Lynn Old Settlers Hold Annual Meeting

Vice Pres. Garner Stops In Tahoka For Brief Time

Tahoka Citizens Saw and Talked To Second Man of the Nation Here Friday Morning

Did the vice-president pass Tahoka up? We'll say he didn't.

True he didn't sashay around town much—he didn't even call at the News office; but he did stop at one of Andy Mellon's gasoline stations and fill his tank, his gasoline tank.

There he met and conversed pleasantly with a number of citizens, chiefly with our old oil scout, J. B. Nance.

Mr. Garner and party arrived here Friday morning, direct from Amarillo. They drove almost thru town and then stopped at the Gulf Service Station. A number of admirers quickly gathered around. Among them was Rev. George A. Dale, but if he bantered the sage of the Cactus country for a little poker game some time, nobody reported it. The fact of the business is, J. B. Nance stole the show.

"My name is Nance, and I used to live in Red River county", said the old scout in introducing himself.

"Nance, that's in my name", said the vice-president. He got that name from some of his ancestors. If he and J. B. could get out on the creek together somewhere with a couple of fishing poles they might rake up kinship.

"Of course you do not remember me, but I remember meeting you a few times when we were boys; and I knew your father well", Nance told him. Then Garner asked him how long he had been in this country, how he was getting along, etc. In response to some suggestion made by Nance, he even guessed at the latter's age, and admonished him against eating too much and growing too fat.

By that time the chauffeur was ready to go, and as the big vice-presidential car sped away down No. 9, a bunch of Tahoka citizens lingered a moment and then hastened back up town to tell their friends they had met and shook hands with the vice-president.

The next morning we read in the papers that John Garner and party had arrived at his Uvalde home at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening.

Quitque Praises New Manager Of Gas Co.

(From Quitque Post)

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Walden and children, Charles and LaRuth, left Wednesday afternoon for Tahoka, where they will make their home. Mr. Walden has been manager of the local gas office of the West Texas Gas Company since gas was first piped here, eight years ago.

Roy Leslie of Tahoka will replace Mr. Walden as manager for the company in Quitque, Silvertown and Turkey. Mr. and Mrs. Leslie arrived here Wednesday afternoon.

At the time of his leaving, Mr. Walden was secretary of the Quitque Independent School Board, on the Board of Stewards of the local Methodist Church, a member of the Masonic Lodge and of the Quitque Community Club.

While the Walden family will be greatly missed in Quitque, Turkey and Silvertown, reports came from Tahoka that Mr. and Mrs. Leslie are among the leading citizens of that town, and they are expected to take a prominent part in the activities of Quitque.

Negro School House Repainted, Repaired

The negro school building over "on the hill" has been repaired and repainted the past week on order of the school board.

Better desks will be taken from the old Central Ward and placed in the negro school before fall.

New Coordinator ...

ROY I. KIMMEL

Mr. Kimmel, Amarillo, is the newly appointed coordinator for the several federal agencies serving the Great Plains, termed the "dust bowl" by the New Deal. He will have charge of all departmental activities in the wind erosion area of the five-state region. He says he is "depending largely on farmers to recommend a definite constructive program to solve their present problems."

Good Wheat Crop In Lynn County

The best wheat in Lynn county this year thus far reported grew on the Joe Bovell place six miles north of town. The Bovells had 17 acres. About ten acres of it was in the lake on his place and it made approximately 40 bushels per acre. The remaining seven acres made about 20 bushels per acre.

Claude Thomas' 260 acres of volunteer wheat turned out 18 bushels per acre. This came from a field that was sowed in wheat in the fall of 1935. The yield was so poor in 1936 that Mr. Thomas did not harvest it but turned it under. Last fall the wheat came up volunteer and produced a good crop this spring.

A. R. McGonagill seven miles east of Tahoka reports a yield of 23 bushels per acre on 17 acres. He says that Marshall Stewart made about the same yield per acre on 16 acres.

Guion Cobb north of town made about 27 bushels per acre, we are told, while Frank Sargent had 15 acres that yielded about 25 bushels per acre.

George Small grazed his field very late, not expecting to harvest it at all, but he finally decided to do so and took his stock off of it. He made about 12 bushels per acre.

There are many other small fields in the county concerning which we have received no reports, but it is evident Lynn county will harvest a larger wheat crop than it has ever harvested before.

Negroes Celebrate June 'Teenth

In contrast with reports from many other points, the observance of Negro emancipation here on last Saturday, June 19, by the Negroes of Tahoka and visitors from other places was marked by no disorder of any kind.

A free barbecue was served at the noon hour "over on the hill" and a baseball game between the colored teams of Tahoka and Caprock was played in the afternoon. The game resulted in favor of the home team.

It is said that a large crowd was present, taking into consideration the scarcity of negroes in this part of the state. The colored folks are to be commended for their good behavior.

Mrs. Claude Donaldson and children, Claude Jr. and Jane, left Sunday for a few weeks visit with Mrs. Donaldson's mother and sister at Altus, Oklahoma. Claude has made application for admission into the Exalted Order of Forlorn Widowers.

Crops Are Growing Cotton Prospect Is Improving

Warm, Dry Weather Beneficial To Crops; Weeds Are Worst Worry Of Farmers

The weather has been warm and dry this week, except for heavy morning dews, and has been very favorable for cotton.

As a result reports have been coming to the News from many sources that the cotton crop is looking fine.

The crop has reached various stages of development, however. Some of it is several inches high while some of it has just come up.

Typical of much of the cotton east of Tahoka, Bob McCord reported Tuesday that he had cotton with as many as eight squares on it. Cotton planted since the last rains has come up with long shanks and is looking very thrifty. The cotton prospect in the county has taken a decided turn upward the past week.

The fine weather has given farmers a chance to rid their crops of weeds. A few more days of such weather will enable them to complete the job.

Feed crops are also in various stages of development. Some feed is waist high and is beginning to head out. Some of it is barely up. Practically all of it looks thrifty.

Corn is tasseling out in many fields. A good prospect in June is no assurance of a good harvest—in the fall, but the prospects in Lynn county now certainly are excellent.

Oil Boom Is Aid To Seagraves

Seagraves is experiencing something of a boom just now.

A new oil well in the county and the drilling of others is responsible for the business activity. New residences and a few new business houses are already under construction. Many new oil workers have just been sent to Seagraves and they find it almost impossible to find living quarters.

A new oil field in that section of the South Plains seems assured, one big producer having been brought in in the northwest section, and several south of Seminole.

Announcement has also been made that a $100,000 three-story hotel is to be erected there soon.

Last week a group of San Antonio officials from Chicago and Amarillo were in Seagraves making arrangements to build railroad sidings for several oil field supply houses which are locating there.

Seminole has been growing steadily the past year, due to oil discoveries. Substantial business houses and residences have been built and a general air of prosperity is prevalent.

'ON THE LINE!' DEMANDS CIO
Steel Refuses to Sign Contracts . . . And So There's

Monroe (Mich.) Women Defended Their Husbands' Right to Strike.

THERE is no issue of wages, hours or other material demands in the strife between the independent steel corporations and John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization. The corporations have agreed to all of the demands of the unions—verbally. "Verbally"—that is the word which has for weeks kept thousands of workers in eight or ten states from returning to their jobs.

The C. I. O. demands that the corporations put their agreement in the form of a written contract. The corporations refuse. And the unions have refused to call off the strikes until they get the signatures on the line.

Union officials have taken the position that if the company officials are willing to agree orally to union demands they ought to be willing to confirm the agreement in writing. Lewis has demanded that President Roosevelt intervene to force the companies to sign. At a press conference the President refused to say officially what was his reaction to the demand. He did say—and emphasized that he was not speaking "officially"—that he could not see why the companies would not make written agreements if they would make the same ones verbally.

Federal Intervention Asked

IT WAS virtually certain that there would be some federal action in the steel strikes, with Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio and Mayor Daniel J. Shields of Johnstown, Pa., appealing desperately to the President for aid. Governor Davey, in a long telegram detailing the arguments on both sides, declared that the situation had gone far beyond the powers of one state to control. When a worker in the Johnstown steel mills was abducted by six strikers and stripped of his clothing in their automobile (he was later released), following weeks of rioting and bloodshed, the mayor decided that kidnapping was the last straw and appealed to Mr. Roosevelt.

Secretary of Labor Frances E. Perkins named a mediation board of three to meet in Cleveland and hear the cases of the union and the companies. On the board were Charles P. Taft, son of the former President and chief justice, a Republican and lawyer from Cincinnati; Lloyd K. Garrison, who served as the first president of the National Labor Relations board in 1934, and Edward F. McGrady, first assistant secretary of labor, and a known enemy of company unions, spy systems and the tear gas method of quelling strike riots.

In Monroe, Mich., where the C. I. O. union threatened to import thousands of pickets from Detroit, a band of several hundred deputized vigilantes, armed, kept the peace, aided by the police force of twenty. In Youngstown, Ohio, Johnstown and other cities vigilante groups were also being formed.

Steel Wants Its Mail

THE Republic Steel corporation filed in the federal district court in Washington a petition for a writ of mandamus compelling Postmaster General Farley to deliver parcel post packages to steel plants in Ohio which local postmasters have refused to deliver.

The petition charged that the local postmaster at Niles, Ohio, was refusing to deliver packages containing food and clothing and addressed to the loyal workers who were being housed inside the Republic plant. It charged that this refusal was made after the postmaster had reached an "understanding" with two members of the union.

"Having waited a week for a reply to our letter . . . to Mr. Farley and having received none, we have no recourse but to such legal action as is available to us under the circumstances involved," said John S. Brooks, Jr., counsel for the corporation. He said separate suits will be instituted in Ohio against the local postmasters involved.

Court Plan Walloped

THE senate judiciary committee made short work of President Roosevelt's Supreme court packing plan. Its report, in summary:

"We recommend the rejection of this bill as a needless, futile, and utterly dangerous abandonment of constitutional principle.

"It was presented to the congress in a most intricate form and for reasons that obscured its real purpose.

"It would not banish age from the bench nor abolish divided decisions.

"It would not affect the power of any court to hold laws unconstitutional, nor withdraw from any judge the authority to issue injunctions.

"It would not reduce the expense of litigation, nor speed decision.

"It is a proposal without precedent and without justification.

"It would subjugate the courts to the will of congress and the President and thereby destroy the independence of the judiciary, the only certain shield of individual rights.

"It is a measure which should be so emphatically rejected that its parallel will never again be presented to the free representatives of the free people of America."

Harry Loses 1st Round

DESPITE the pleas of Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, the full senate appropriation committee approved the Byrnes amendment to the relief bill, 13 to 10. The amendment to the $1,500,000,000 bill requires local governments to pay at least 40 per cent of the cost of all WPA projects, or else sign a kind of civic "pauper's oath." The South Carolina senator's amendment was seen as further evidence of the break between the administration and the conservative Democrats.

In the senate debate on the bill it quickly became apparent that Sen. Byrnes' "40 per cent amendment" would not carry. Sen. Joseph T. Robinson offered a compromise which would require states to pay 25 per cent of the cost of work relief projects. President Roosevelt had repeatedly made it known that he wanted no such rider on his relief bill, and it was Sen. Robinson's first break with the White House on an important issue.

Harry Hopkins

SEEN and HEARD
around the
NATIONAL CAPITAL
By Carter Field
FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington. — There is more to the uneasiness of certain high labor officials to government fixing of minimum wages than is being made known. What some of them think about it down in their hearts would not arouse any enthusiasm if stated in plain English. It would not be good politics, and in politics a man who has become a labor leader is apt to know his way around.

One objection is stated frankly. They are afraid that if the government fixes a minimum wage it will tend to become the standard wage. A good deal of publicity has been given to this. But most of it is just talk. A good many workers suspect that the social security payroll taxes are more menacing to pay advances than any governmental edict that not less than a certain amount can be paid for a definite job in a definite place.

Every once in a while there is a hint that the fixing of wages is a matter which should be left to collective bargaining. That comes pretty close to being the heart of the real objection. The same danger was realized by labor leaders during the NRA regime. Obviously if the government should eventually control all working conditions, particularly hours and wages, the importance of union labor leaders would shrink considerably. There might even come a time when workers would doubt the wisdom of having highly paid union officials with liberal expense accounts. The government would be doing the job that the unions set out to do and have been doing.

There was a small contingent of the original brain trust which saw this very clearly, and welcomed the day when it would mature. They wanted all power lodged in the federal government. This line of thought never triumphed. The time was not ripe for it.

Moreover the election was approaching and the administration did not know then that it could have been re-elected even if all the labor unions had been just as strongly opposed to it as they were in favor of it.

See Danger There

But the dangerous germ of thought is still there. The administration intends to march on its efforts to straighten out the warring up and down curve of business booms and depressions. It intends to control business more and more, especially in the matter of plant expansions.

With the regulation of wages and hours, not a part of the program for the present session of congress, the regulation of business comes closer. Sooner or later may come another move. It has not even been hinted, so far, but as a matter of fact it has lots of advocates, some of them inside the New Deal breast-works.

For if governmental control is to be exercised over business in order to avoid hectic booms and gloomy depressions—with the idea being to keep the curve of prosperity in a straight line, with no ups and downs—it will become important not to have cessations of work due to labor troubles. They are apt to play hot not only with production—bearing in mind that the goal of the New Deal is to have production geared down to the capacity of the market to consume—but with government revenues.

The millions of taxes paid to the federal government out of the annual profits of the steel corporation, for example, and out of personal incomes derived from dividends from that company, might conceivably disappear entirely for one year due to strikes which might turn the black ink figures of that company into red.

All of which has labor leaders a little perturbed as they see the start made on government regulation of wages.

Ohio in Congress

The Ohio delegation is an interesting example of what is happening to the President on the Supreme court enlargement bill, and on insurgency in general. It is typical of most of the delegations from states which are normally Republican, and at present have heavy Democratic majorities in the Capitol Hill contingents.

Ohio now has 22 Democrats and only 2 Republicans in the house, although if there is such a thing as a "normal" majority the Buckeye state should have about 300,000 Republicans.

A month ago a confidential poll was taken of these 22 Ohio Democrats. It showed 13 of them were against the President on the Supreme court issue, and only 9 with him. But just a few days ago the 22 Democrats were again polled, and this time there were 15 against the President and only 7 for him!

This does not mean that the two gentlemen who originally favored the President and later decided they would have to vote against him, had changed their own opinions about the merits or demerits of the bill. It means that they had changed their minds about what was the safer thing for them to do.

The point is that most of the Ohio Democrats have discovered, to their own satisfaction, that a majority of the voters in their districts are against the court packing bill; but that a majority of the Democrats in their district are for the President.

Thus they are between the devil and the deep blue sea. If they vote against the President, they are likely to be knocked off in the primaries by a New Dealer who charges them with having betrayed the cause of liberalism, fought our leader, and generally acted in a traitorous fashion. This, especially as the Farley machine is apt to be very efficient in the primaries.

Would Hurt Chances

But if they vote for the President on the court bill, then their chances in the general election are very poor indeed. Their danger there is that the general sentiment in the entire district, among Republicans as well as Democrats, would beat them.

If Roosevelt himself were running in 1938 the situation would be different. The President, they still believe firmly, is simply magical as a vote getter. People would in many instances vote the straight ticket, and thus the Democratic candidates for congress would be pulled through in most of the districts the President carried.

But the President is not running. So they are frightened. They want to keep their $10,000 jobs. They like the perquisites, the feeling of importance. Their wives like the social life of the capital. They do not want to be retired. Most of them, as a matter of fact, could not earn anything like so much money at home.

So they are doing their best to avoid either danger. They do not want this measure voted on in the house, and just because so many of them do not want it voted on, it probably will not be.

They want the bill to stay in the senate until after the election next year, or until present interest in it dies away.

To Rejuvenate G. O. P.

There is a movement on to rejuvenate the Republican party. So far the move is rather shrouded in mystery, but a man very prominent in the last campaign until he was virtually shelved by Chairman John D. M. Hamilton was in Washington a few days ago explaining to some senators he knew what he was trying to do in aiding the movement.

The main point of the idea, it seems, is to organize a large number of huge Republican clubs, starting in the big cities. When campaign time approaches the idea would be for the young Republicans in these clubs to work together, in the various congressional districts and also in the states, for district and state at large delegates to the Republican National convention.

Assuming success in this, the idea then would be for them to take over control of the G. O. P. organization at that time, and make it a live force in the country once more.

There is at least one shrewd idea in the plan, however impractical it may appear to be. This is that the backers are in agreement that they must not try to foist any choice they may develop as to the candidate for the presidency.

Not Like Old Days

It's very different from the good old days, when there were bosses that were bosses. It is just a little bit interesting, since the death of the last of them, J. Henry Roraback of Connecticut, a few weeks back, that some of the young Republicans are wishing the party had a few leaders who had the brains and strategy of the old group headed by Boies Penrose, even if they do think the new party ought to be a little more liberal.

There seems to be no personalities particularly in the new movement, which is just as well at this stage, but there are quite a few gentlemen whose names are anathema. Head and front of this list is Herbert C. Hoover. A close runner-up, for no other reason apparently than that his name is considered bad medicine politically, is Ogden L. Mills of New York, Hoover's Secretary of the Treasury and generally branded as an arch conservative.

It goes without saying that John D. M. Hamilton does not rate very high with the organizers of this movement. If he did they would not be planning so comprehensive a campaign to steel the organization. If they could influence Hamilton to do what they want, the movement would not be necessary. Or, to put it another way, Hamilton would be leading it.

FAMOUS HEADLINE HUNTER
FLOYD GIBBONS
ADVENTURERS CLUB
Hello everybody

"White Death in the Valley"
By FLOYD GIBBONS

ALMA WEBB of Clarence, N. Y., crashes into the Adventurers' club today, and the yarn she brings us is so packed full of thrills that you'll remember it for a long time. For Alma woke up in the middle of the night on March 13, 1928, to find herself right in the midst of one of the most thrilling, and at the same time one of the most terrifying, adventures that ever happened to anyone.

But the adventure wasn't happening to Alma alone. It was happening to thousands of other people, too.

It was happening to everybody in the town of Santa Paula, California, 65 miles north of Los Angeles—and it was happening to almost everybody in the whole of ill-fated Santa Clara valley.

Bells and Whistles Gave the Alarm.

Alma was living in Santa Paula with her husband and her sister, and it was about two-thirty in the morning when she woke up in the midst of her adventure. It was the noise that woke her. Outside there was a terrible din. Sirens were blowing like mad. Alma thought she was having a nightmare at first, but a few seconds of lying still and listening to that racket soon convinced her that it was real.

There were other disquieting sounds out there, too. The streets were normally still at that hour in Santa Paula, but now, mixed in with the din of the bells and sirens, she could hear voices and the patter of running feet.

Fire was Alma's first thought. Forest fires are frequent out there in the California canyons and sometimes those conflagrations sweep out of the woods and destroy whole towns. She leaped out of bed and ran to the window expecting to see the whole town ablaze. But there was no sign of fire and not even a red glow in the sky to indicate the approach of one.

One thing Alma did notice, though. The street lamp on the corner was dark. While she was trying to figure out what that might mean her sister came running into the room.

"What has happened?" she cried. "What is the matter?" Alma told her she didn't know. She reached for the light switch and turned it, but no flood of light came in response to her touch. She ran to the telephone. It was dead. Then she heard some children crying outside—saw the lights of the neighbor's car as it pulled out of the garage about thirty feet away and roared off down the street.

The Dam Had Given Way.

By that time Alma was doggone sure something terrible had happened. The whole town was awake and going somewhere. She grabbed up a dressing gown and started out to find out what the trouble was. She had no sooner reached the front porch than a motorcycle patrolman came speeding around the corner. And as he went past the house and saw Alma he shouted the terrifying words that explained everything.

"Up to the mountain-top, quick!" he cried. "THE DAM HAS GIVEN WAY!"

Alma dashed back into the house. She knew only too well what that meant. Santa Paula lies in a notch between two mountains. The water from the broken dam would sweep down and tear it wide apart. It was a mile to the mountain top, but they had to get there somehow. If they didn't they'd all be drowned.

Alma tried to wake her husband. He was a heavy sleeper and it took precious minutes to get him up. They lit matches to find a few clothes and get them on. Shoes, stockings, coats and pocketbooks—that's all Alma and her sister bothered to take. But Alma's husband was still half asleep and only half aware of the danger. He put on all his clothes while Alma begged him to hurry.

All Fleeing to the Higher Ground.

At last they were out of the house and running for the garage. They got into the car and were off for the side of the mountain. The streets were jammed with hundreds of other cars—with crowds of pedestrians all fleeing to the high ground. The car seemed to crawl. And off in the distance they could hear a thunderous rumble that grew ever louder as the water swept onward down the valley.

It was a picture—a sort of sound picture—that Alma will never forget. Before them and behind them, as far as they could see, a solid line of cars crept along toward the mountain. Families of Mexicans trooped along afoot carrying their children and bedding and leading cattle in an eerie procession to the sound of babbling, excited voices and the tooting of automobile horns and that steady, increasing, terrifying roar from up the valley.

It was pitch dark and drizzling. As they started up the side of the hill the long row of automobile headlights furnished the only illumination. "We had just reached the high ground," Alma says, "when we heard a terrific roar and something that sounded like a dozen cannons being fired at random. The wall of water, a hundred and seventy-five feet high when it left the dam, had swept down the valley and struck Santa Paula. The great bridge of iron and concrete spanning the river was the first thing to go, and now the swirling waters were taking everything in their path on their way to the ocean."

Alma, her husband and her sister had just made it to safety, but there were four hundred and fifty people who DIDN'T make it. Seven-hundred houses were swept away in that catastrophe, and Alma says, the scene that met their eyes the next morning was indescribable. Houses were floating in the water with people clinging to the rooftops. Mothers, fathers and children were wandering around in a daze looking for their loved ones, and all of them were left homeless—stripped of their possessions by the flood. But it was the events of the night before that left the strongest impression on Alma's mind. She still remembers that terrific din of bells and whistles. "And even yet," she says, "I find myself getting weak and sick every time I hear the siren of a passing fire engine."

Smoke Small Particles

Suspended in the Air

Smoke is nothing more than myriads of small solid particles suspended in the air, writes Dr. Thomas M. Beck in the Chicago Tribune. These particles are denser than air, yet they settle only with extreme slowness because of two facts. A falling body soon reaches a speed at which its weight is balanced by the air resistance opposing its motion. This resistance is roughly proportional to the amount of surface exposed, and the smaller the body, the greater the ratio of surface to weight and the slower its rate of fall through air. Smoke particles usually are so small that their rates of fall hardly are perceptible. In addition, the particles' motion through the air causes them to pick up electrical charges, and the mutual repulsion of these charges prevents the particles from coalescing into larger particles which would fall more quickly.

It is a surprising fact that these smoke particles are much harder to remove from air than are the far smaller molecules of a gaseous impurity. Air can be freed from foreign gases by bubbling it through the right kind of absorbing liquid or by passing it through a loosely packed mass of a porous solid absorbent. These methods frequently fail with smokes.

The reason for this difference lies in the fact that the small, light gas molecules are in a state of constant motion, and travel at incredible speeds which quickly bring them into contact with the absorbing material. On the other hand the far heavier smoke particles drift very slowly through the rest of the gas, and only a few of them have time to reach the absorbent.

Birds Lay Eggs on Rock

The brightest eggs laid by British birds are those of the guillemot, found in colonies around the coasts. The birds like a large flat ledge of rock, and there they may be seen sitting packed close together with their wings and breasts touching. No nest is built; the one large egg laid by each bird is just dropped on the bare rock. Each bird knows its own egg, and the same applies to the young when they appear. If a strange baby tries to take food from the beak of an old bird it receives a violent peck, and the food is not parted with until the mother finds her own offspring. Most eggs laid in open nests in hedges or on the ground are colored with various markings.

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Reburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Amanda Dapne. Unwittingly she overhears Jed talking to Mark Trent, nephew of Mrs. Dapne who has been disinherited. Mrs. Dapne had lived at Lookout House, a huge structure by the sea, built by her father and divided into two, for her and Mark's father. Brooke had been a fashion expert, and Mrs. Dapne, a "shut-in," hearing her on the radio, had invited her to call and developed a deep affection for her. Mark discloses that Mrs. Dapne had threatened to disinherit him if he married Lola, from whom he is now divorced. He says he does not trust Henri and Clotilde Jacques, Mrs. Dapne's servants. He says he is not interested in an offer of Brooke's to share the estate with him. Leaving her department store job, Brooke refuses an offer to "go stepping" with Jerry Field, a carefree young man who wants to marry her. At a family conference she learns she must live at Lookout House alone, since Lucette, her younger sister who is taking her job, her brother, Sam, a young playwright, and her mother plan to stay in the city. Jed and Mark are astounded when they hear from Mrs. Gregory, a family friend, that she had witnessed a hitherto unknown will with Henri and Clotilde two weeks before Mrs. Dapne died. Brooke had arrived just as she was leaving. Jed suggests that Mark open his part of Lookout House, get friendly with Brooke and try to find out about the will. Jed agrees to stay with him. Mark accepts Brooke's invitation for a family Thanksgiving dinner at Lookout. Mrs. Reburn announces on Thanksgiving eve that she has been invited to England. Sam and Lucette decide to move in with Brooke and Sam plans to produce a new play locally.

CHAPTER IV

Brooke noticed Mark Trent's quick glance about as he entered the dining-room at Lookout House. She felt an instant of self-consciousness as she took the seat against the variegated yellow background of tall mimosa and acacia which filled a broad bay-window, which her mother refused with a quick shake of her head and a smile. She immediately forgot herself in pride of her sporting family. Each one was so gay, so determined to do his or her share to make the party a real festivity. Holidays were hard days since her father's death, but always someone who was alone had been invited to keep the feast with them. Thinking of others helped immeasurably to bridge the sense of loss, Celia Reburn argued.

The dinner was a success. Brooke breathed a little sigh of relief as she rose from the table. This Thanksgiving dinner had been the first entertaining in her own home. Of course the guests had been her family and Mark Trent only, but she had felt pride in having it a success.

As she served coffee from the massive silver tray in the living-room, she glanced at Mark Trent standing before the fire. With his elbow on the mantel, he was talking to Celia Reburn seated in a corner of the couch. The orchids he had brought her added the perfect touch to her amethyst frock. Orchids for her mother, gardenias for Lucette, and deep fragrant purple violets for his hostess. He had said it with flowers. A lavish gentleman. Had Henri turned chalky as he had announced dinner, or had she imagined it? He had stared at Mark Trent as if seeing an unwelcome apparition.

With a groan of repletion Sam pulled himself out of a deep chair. "Boy, let's get out and walk! I feel like a stuffed, trussed turkey. Why do we eat so much more on Thanksgiving? Because we haven't any sense. Notice that I'm acquiring the analytic method, question and answer. Anybody here got the energy to take the shore walk?"

"I'll go with you, Sammy," Celia Reburn smiled at her tall son. "Elaine Jaffrey is a great hiker; she will probably walk me all over the British Isles. I must get in practice. Just wait until I change my shoes."

"Boy, I'm glad we have one sport in the family. I'll bet Lucette has a heavy date, and is expecting someone. Coming, Brooke? Coming, Mr. Trent?"

"Mark to you, I hope, Sam. Do come, Miss Reburn," Mark Trent urged. "It's a grand day. After hours of storm, there is enough wind to make the surf worth looking at."

"Worth looking at" were colorless words to express the grandeur of the shore, Brooke thought, as, standing on a jutting crag, holding on her breast with one hand, skirts blowing, she looked down at the driving current, cold and stealthy in places, in others foaming and tossing white-edged green waves against ledges transformed by the magic of the slanting sun into ruddy copper, dark brown in the crevices. Spray, diaphanous as a mist from a giant atomizer, iridescent as jeweled malines, shimmered in the light. Beyond the surf a dozen lavender winged gulls floated on the water. An amber green wave outlasted its predecessors, hissed, roared, broke against a ledge, and showered Brooke with crystal spray.

"Oh!" Instinctively she clutched Mark Trent's arm. "It—it took my breath!"

He drew her back to the path, pulled out his handkerchief, and wiped her wet face.

"I should have known better than to let you stand there."

"It wasn't your fault. I adored it. It made me feel as if every inch of me had been electrified. Why is it that when we are together I need to be rescued from difficulties? I want to thank you for—"

"Please, don't." She wondered at the embarrassed fierceness of his voice.

"I won't, except to add that I know I owe my life to you. There, that's over. I promise never to mention it again."

Spurred by the stimulating air, she took her courage in both hands and plunged.

"Won't you please be friends? I didn't know Mrs. Mary Amanda Dapne had any money, really I didn't, Mr. Trent."

In the instant that she waited for his answer, sun, sea, the roar of the surf were blotted out. Only his straight-gazing eyes meeting hers were real. They touched her heart, quickly, passionately. Then Mark Trent thrust his handkerchief into his pocket.

"Forget that Mr. Trent stuff. Being legatees in the same estate—my aunt left me a bank account, you know—ought to make us friends, oughtn't it?" His voice was light, but she sensed a tinge of irony. "We'd better keep going if we are to walk around the point before dark." Your mother and Sam went on some time ago. What did she mean when she spoke of hiking over the British Isles?

"She is going to England to visit her college classmate. Of course, I'm crazy to have her go, but—but I didn't realize how precious she was until I thought of her being so far away."

"Are your brother and sister going?"

"No. They are to be with me while Mother is away. I am so glad. It will give me heaps to do. I'm not used to this poison-ivy leisure that looked so alluring before I had tried it. My life was so full before—"

"Neighbor!"

"Before you had Lookout House stuffed down your throat, you mean? I don't see why the dickens Aunt Mary Amanda tied that string to her legacy, forced you to live in this house."

"It wasn't a string, and she didn't force me. I like old towns, and I love Lookout House."

"My mistake." Trent's laugh turned to a frown. "What are the town fathers thinking of to allow a gas station stuck out on this road? Has that house been sold?"

Brooke promptly defended the brilliant equipment in front of a small white cottage.

"I don't know who owns the place, but doubtless the town fathers were thinking of giving the poor man who has started the filling-station another chance. I heard that he had money, lost it, began to drink too much, and that a friend set him up in business here hoping to steady him."

"Who told you the story of his life?"

"Henri! Does he know the man?"

"He will have to answer that question. He asked me to buy gas at the new filling-station, and I do to encourage the poor fellow to keep on trying to make good."

"How about encouraging honest Mike Cassidy who started the garage at the end of the causeway years ago and has served the public faithfully and unselfishly? He has a wife and five children to support."

Why did his voice rouse opposition in her, Brooke wondered. She had doubts herself lately as to the permanency of the filling-station owner's reform. Twice when she had stopped for gas, a young Irish girl had reported the boss as "sick" and she had wondered if he were backsliding. Mark the Magnificent need not know that, however.

"Don't you believe in helping a man to come back?" she asked crisply.

"I do, most decidedly, but I believe also in helping an honest hard-working man like Cassidy, who has had the strength of character to leave drink alone, to keep his kids in shoes. Come on. We are almost quarreling. Why should you and I fight over a filling-station owner?"

"You're right, when we have so many other things about which to disagree."

Brooke's brown eyes met his, intent and darkly gray; wistfulness tinged her voice as she urged:

"Speaking of disagreeing—will you please behave like a sensible person and take the family treasures which belong to you?"

"Aunt Mary Amanda left them to you."

"I know, but it isn't right for me to have them, and what's more, I don't need or want them. I'd rather go without rings all my life than wear one of those gorgeous things she left, which are rightfully yours. Mr. Stewart has put all the jewelry in a bank vault for you. I have Mother's lovely china and glass and furniture which have been in storage since our home was broken up. I've had everything which belonged to your family moved to the chauffeur's apartment over the garage. There seems to be very little silver. Perhaps your aunt gave it to you?"

"Silver! Very little silver! She had the Trent service which came originally from England and any number of beautiful pieces. That silver is a family tradition. Where is it? She didn't give it to me. What does Stewart say about it?"

"He thought that because of the epidemic of crime reported in the newspapers, Mrs. Dapne might have become timid about keeping valuables in a bank. But he found no receipt for it among her papers. Do you think she sold it?"

"Sold it! No, I'll bet—" he broke off abruptly. "See that great rock sticking up off shore? I used to imagine it the peak of a submerged island rising from the sea."

"Perhaps it is. Islands arise, grow old and disappear. That isn't original. Sam has taken the title for his comedy from it. The first night I spent at Lookout House I was kept awake by the wailing of that distant siren. Now I don't notice it."

"You'll notice it if you stay here during the winter as Jed told me you were planning to do. There goes the sun behind the city!"

They walked in silence back to Lookout House. On the threshold of the living-room she stopped in startled disbelief. Jerry Field stood by the fire talking to her mother. Who was the brown-haired girl in blue beside Lucette?

"Couldn't wait for you to send out At Home cards, Brooke," Jerry Field greeted jauntily. "You remember that you said I could come to Lookout House when you were settled, don't you? I wanted to meet your family, wanted them to know that I'm in your stag line for sure."

His eyes flashed beyond her to Mark Trent on the threshold. There was laughter in his voice and a hint of challenge. Before she could answer, he commanded:

"Come hither, Daphne, and meet our neighbor. This is my sister."

"Neighbor!" Brooke smiled at the brown-haired girl as she welcomed her with a cordial handshake. "I would know that you were Jerry's sister; you look so like him; but is the neighbor stuff a joke?"

"No, Miss Reburn, we really are staying on the Point."

Daphne Field's smile disclosed small teeth as perfect in color and size as a row of matched pearls. She turned to Sam.

"I've heard that you are the coming playwright, Mr. Reburn, that you have a touch of O'Neil's tragic outlook, a seasoning of Kaufman's humor, and a hint of Coward's sophistication."

Sam grinned. "Is that original, or did you get it from the Times?"

The girl pouted: "Of course it's original. Why, Mark?"

Daphne Field's breathless exclamation, the radiance of her face revealed so much that Brooke had the embarrassed sense of having looked for an instant at a naked heart. Trent came forward. Was the firelight playing pranks, or had his face gone dark with color?

"Where did you drop from, Daphne? How are you, Field?"

Why didn't someone say something and smash the strained silence, Brooke wondered impatiently. It was as if the firelight had cast a spell and tied all their tongues. Her mother's eyes were on Daphne Field as she thoughtfully pulled her gloves through her hands. Sam, back to the room, was poking at the parrot. He hated emotional scenes—off the stage. The atmosphere fairly quivered with things unsaid. Lucette came to life.

"Turn on the lights, Sam, this gloom may be artistic, but it gives me the merry-pranks. This has turned out to be meet-your-neighbor day, hasn't it? Who's the dame in the floppy hat, Brooke, who looks like a super-animated Bo-peep, and carries a cane which easily could be mistaken for a shepherd's crook? There's the chance of a lifetime for you to get in a little missionary work as clothes adviser; you'd better begin with a streamline dist. She thinks everything here, including Mother, 'charming.'"

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for June 27

LESSON TEXT—Hebrews 11:3-10, 17-22. GOLDEN TEXT—These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth.—Hebrews 11:13. PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Honor Roll. JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Honor Roll. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Heroes of Faith. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Faith Tested and Triumphant.

The great "heroes of the faith" chapter, Hebrews 11, provides an excellent review summary of the messages in Genesis, which we have studied during the last three months. Fittingly, the entire account, from the Creation to the hope for the future expressed by Joseph, revolves around the word "Faith." The patriarchs had many noble qualities but these were all rooted in the fundamental of all virtues, namely, that faith in God without which "it is impossible to please him" (v. 6).

Our study may well attempt no closer analysis of the text than to note the results of faith as they appear in the verses of our lesson.

I. Understanding (v. 3). Philosophy and human research frequently bog down in the confused bypaths of unbelief and partial knowledge, but faith cuts right through the clouds and the confusion and "understands" that God is the creator of all things. If you want to know, believe God.

II. Worship (v. 4). The world abounds with cults and religions of almost unbelievable diversity, and of appalling insufficiency for the needs of man. Only when man does as did Abel, and worships God in accordance with God's holy law will he obtain "witness that he is 'righteous.'"

III. Fellowship (v. 5). Here again faith triumphs. The societies and associations of man fumble around trying to establish "good will," "fellowship of faiths," and what not, only to fail. But when a man knows God as Enoch did, then he is ready for true fellowship with his brother.

IV. Assurance (v. 6). When a man trusts God implicitly the uncertainties of life vanish. It is an easier thing to talk about than to do, but, thank God, it can be done. We must believe not only that God is, but by faith we must recognize him "as the rewarder of them that diligently seek him."

V. Salvation (v. 7). Saved by faith—that is the story of the Christian, even as it was the story of Noah. The ark is typical of Christ. Only in him is there salvation.

VI. Obedience (vv. 8, 9). The world has a ribald saying, "I don't know where I'm going but I'm on my way," which represents a dangerous philosophy of life. But faith in God enables one to go with Abraham who "when he was called went out, not knowing whither he went." He knew God and that was enough to call forth unquestioning obedience.

VII. Vision (v. 10). Men of vision—that's what we need, we are told. Well, then we need men of faith who can see the unseen, who can see 'a city which hath foundations' even in the midst of the wilderness.

In the fields both of secular and spiritual achievement vision has marched before victory. Carey, Judson, Livingstone, every great missionary, dreamed dreams and saw visions before they achieved lasting victories in distant lands.

VIII. Resurrection (vv. 17-19). God gave a promise and the only means of fulfilling that promise was about to be taken away, but Abraham did not hesitate for he believed that God was able and ready to raise the dead if necessary to fulfill his promise. Have all our prospects been dashed to the ground? Is everything hopeless, humanly speaking? God is both willing and able to make all things work together for good and for his glory.

IX. Hope (vv. 20-22). The forward look—that is the look of faith. Isaac's blessing concerned "things to come." Jacob, too, wore to stand alone, leaned on his staff and worshipped, and passed on the covenant blessing. Joseph gave commandment concerning his body, looking forward to God's fulfillment of the promise.

Christian hope is not a wishful desire that an unbelievable thing may somehow occur. That is an unbelieving misuse of the word "hope." To a child of God hope means a well-grounded assurance that God will keep his word.

Right and Wrong Conscience is that faculty which perceives right and wrong in actions, approves or disapproves them, anticipates their consequences under the moral administration of God, and is thus either the cause of peace or of disquietude of mind.

Opportunities There are people who would do great acts, but because they wait for great opportunities, life passes, and the acts of love are not done at all.—F. W. Robertson.

(Where Cardui fails to benefit, consult a physician.) Ask your druggist for Cardui—pronounced "Card-u-i."

Hot Weather is Here—Beware of Biliousness!

Have you ever noticed that in very hot weather your organs of digestion and elimination seem to become torpid or lazy? Your food sours, forms gas, causes belching, heartburn, and a feeling of restlessness and irritability. Perhaps you may have sick headache, nausea and dizziness or blind spells on suddenly rising. Your tongue may be coated, your complexion bilious and your bowel actions sluggish or insufficient.

These are some of the more common symptoms or warnings of biliousness or so-called "torpid liver," so prevalent in hot climates. Don't neglect them. WILY POLITICIANS PLAY A SHREWD GAME—BUT LOSE

During the regular session of the legislature, Governor Allred did his best to get that body to repeal the pari-mutuel race track gambling law.

The House passed such a bill but a few senators blocked the game in the Senate.

Then the governor called a special session and submitted repeal of pari-mutuel race track gambling.

Senators who were openly opposed to repeal and others who claimed to favor it but who had consistently joined with the opposition to block a vote, raised a terrible hue and cry against the governor because he had not submitted other phases and forms of gambling, such as book-making and betting on dog races. The bill finally passed the Senate by a narrow margin.

Then the governor submitted the matter of prohibiting book-making and betting on races.

Opposition Senators and Representatives then demanded that all forms of gambling and betting be included such as bridge parties and other amusements of that character in private homes.

Governor Allred countered by charging that the opposition were merely seeking to so broaden the scope of the law as to make it unpopular and ridiculous. Whereupon, the opposition became "insulted" and worked themselves up into a terrible fury on the grounds that their motives had been impugned.

The fact of the business is that the Governor had hit the bull's eye; he had rung the bell; he had told the truth; and the truth hurt. But all the dust that these wounded bulls can raise will not blind the people of Texas to the facts. Advocates of race track gambling were simply trying to becloud the issue. They were merely playing a game of shrewd politics. Like some criminal lawyer defending a client who has no defense, they were seeking to smear the attorney and the witnesses for the prosecution in the hope that—the real culprit might escape. They were seeking to make the people of Texas believe that the Governor had been insincere and unfair. As is usually the case, they won the support of some on the other side, but the people of Texas are not fooled. They are on to the tricks of that bunch, and they are with the Governor in this fight.

Race track gambling has gone. It was hard to kill because the owners of the graft had a lot of money and a lot of friends.

What this state needs is a law that will prevent Senators and Representatives from representing corporations and special interests while ostensibly representing the people.

That might bar some West Texas Senators, but if so let them be barred.

Federal authorities have given the State of Texas a broad hint to tighten up on its pension laws, intimating that Texas has too many people on the pension list and that unless the number is trimmed—well something might happen. Attention is called to the fact that although Texas has only half the population of New York state, it has 40 per cent more old age pensioners. New York has 92,000 on the list and Texas 130,000. Yet a bunch of fellows have been shouting for a large increase in Texas pension list. They want to pay pensions to everybody over 65 years of age, regardless of their financial condition. Some of these may be just plain fools but many of them are politicians with axes to grind. Pensions should be paid to the needy, not the wealthy. Let's keep the wealthy and the well-to-do off the pension lists and save the money for those who really need it.

The practice of the golden rule on the part of all involved would settle every strike, every labor dispute, and every industrial problem in this country. It would drive away every war cloud that has arisen on the international horizon and bring universal peace upon earth and good will among men.

Less Monthly Discomfort

Many women, who formerly suffered from a weak, run-down condition as a result of poor assimilation of food, say they benefited by taking CARDUI, a special medicine for women. They found it helped to increase the appetite and improve digestion, thereby bringing them more strength from their food.

Naturally there is less discomfort at monthly periods when the system has been strengthened and the various functions restored and regulated.

Cardui, praised by thousands of women, is well worth trying. Of course, if not benefited, consult a physician.

TUFFY NELSON

The State Observer is a strictly political weekly paper published in Austin.

Last week, under the caption, "The Mirrors of Austin," it gave a bit of political dope about various individuals now in the public eye, from which we quote the following: CONVERSATION/ Small talk over coffee, or what politicians gossip about:

Who, asks Curtis Hill, is going to run for Attorney General? and together we count 'em up on our collective fingers: Walter Woodul, Weaver Moore (maybe), Roy Hofheinz—

"Say," interrupts Fred Harris, "is this a strictly Harris County affair?"

—Ralph Yarborough. Everett Looney, Gerald Mann, Junior Neff, Robert Calvert, Clyde Smith, a fellow named Boatright, G. H. Nelson—

"Now that fellow Nelson," says Hill, "don't you underestimate him. He was born and raised over there in East Texas. Trouble is, he ought to drop those initials and call himself Tuffy. That's what we called him back home."

Why Tuffy? "Well, he used to play guard, or tackle or something in the line at East Texas Teachers, and let me tell you, they never did knock him out. Folks over in East Texas, they all remember Tuffy Nelson but they might not recognize Garret Hobart Nelson."

WHY WOODUL?

Lieut. Governor Walter Woodul visited the Panhandle Sunday. He is the most active candidate for Attorney General in 1938. While several candidates are considering making the race, none of them compare in ability or experience with the popular Lieutenant Governor.—Canyon News.

Woodul is doubtless a splendid gentleman and an able lawyer. But the fact that a man resides in a great city and represents great corporations doesn't necessarily mean that he is pre-eminently well fitted to serve the people as attorney general. He may be more learned in that particular branch of the law in which he has specialized than are his brother lawyers in the smaller cities and towns, but there are hundreds of lawyers residing in these smaller cities and towns engaged in the general practice who have a broader grasp and a deeper knowledge of the law in general than does the highly specialized corporation lawyer residing in the city.

We do not know who will be in the race for attorney general next year, but we can not see why West Texans should rush to the support of a man who resides in a city that doesn't think West Texas is worth a hoot and gives it a kick in the seat of the pants every chance it gets.

In recent years we have become critical of the courts. We are as likely to criticize a perfectly logical and highly learned opinion of the Supreme Court, without having even read it, as we are to criticize the action of the justice of the peace at Podunk for some two-bit judgment which he has rendered. Just now, we are exercising our God-given and inalienable right of criticism by finding fault with the Court of Criminal Appeals for holding "Bank Night" to be a lottery. Yet, most lawyers, we dare say, have believed from the first that it is such, especially lawyers who have been engaged in the prosecution or defense of gaming and lottery cases. The courts a long time ago held similar schemes to be lotteries. The gambling spirit of which nearly all of us are possessed and the popular participation in and approval of "Bank Night", has caused prosecuting attorneys and peace officers to be reluctant to instigate prosecutions. We tolerated and enjoyed this mild form of gambling so long that we have a kind of injured feeling when a court comes along and declares it illegal. And so, we cuss the court, composed of three splendid gentlemen who are able lawyers and jurists, even though we never read a lottery law and wouldn't know one from a goat if we met it in the road. Now, having said this much, we ourself may be criticizing the court next week. But if so somebody ought to shoot us.

The commissioners court and County Home Demonstration Agent Miss Lillith Boyd are to be congratulated upon the greatly improved appearance of the courthouse lawn. Pretty soon it will be a thing

REPORTS FROM THE COUNTY CLUBS

Miss Lillith Boyd, H. D. Agent

Pleasure And Profit In Poultry Flock

Home demonstration club members and 4-H club girls of Northwest Texas are reporting to their county home demonstration agents that their farm poultry flocks are a source of pleasure as well as adding variety to meals.

A Hockley county 4-H club girl, Margie Rea of Anton club, has 95 eight week old chickens that weigh from one and three-quarters to two pounds each. Margie, through the use of a natural gas heated brooder, has lost only six of the 101 Buff Orpington chicks she bought the latter part of March. Care in sanitation of the chicks surroundings was a major factor in her record, she believes.

Members of the 26 4-H girls' clubs in Fisher county have a total of 11,273 chicks ranging from baby chicks a few weeks old to chickens weighing two pounds. Members of the Rotan club have the largest number of chicks with 1,397.

"It pays to feed chickens cod liver oil because it makes them grow more rapidly," Mrs. A. L. Parks of the Pringle club in Hutchinson county recently reported at a club meeting. On January 22, Mrs. Parks bought 200 White Rock two-day old chicks which she fed with a commercial chick starter to which she added one cup of cod liver oil to each 100 pounds of feed. When the chicks were two months old, they averaged two and one-half pounds each. Other chicken fed the same ration without cod liver oil did not weigh as much and were not as well feathered.

DIXIE CLUB WILL HAVE "42" PARTY TONIGHT

The Dixie H. D. Club is sponsoring a "42" party Friday night, June 25, at the Dixie school house. A small admission fee of ten cents for each person will be charged. Refreshments will be served. The funds raised from the party will be used to help pay the expenses of the delegate to A. & M. Short Course. Everyone is invited to come.

THREE LAKES CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. C. F. GALYEN

Time and labor-saving devices was the topic of discussion by the Three Lakes Club in the home of Mrs. C. F. Galyen, June 17. If we have a certain place to keep pot-holders, pans, dishes, etc., much time and energy may be saved. A built-in cabinet is nice to keep everything close together, therefore saving steps.

Running water in the kitchen is another great convenience. Many trips to the well will be made every day if we do not have running water. A sink for the disposal of water saves labor, even if running water is not available.

Misses Johnnie McClintock and Mildred Cox were elected to attend the muffin-making demonstration. Miss Johnnie McClintock was elected a new member, and Mrs. W. E. Sikes was a visitor.

Those present were: Mesdames A. L. McMillan, Jarrell Cox, I. L. Johnson, Elmo McMillan, Wright Edwards, W. E. Sikes, Misses Johnnie McClintock, Mildred Cox, and the hostess.

DIXIE H. D. CLUB HOLDS MEETING

An over-equipped kitchen is as bad as an under-equipped kitchen. Miss Boyd, county home demonstration agent, told the Dixie Home Demonstration Club at a meeting in the home of Mrs. Burke Aycox on June 16.

In buying utensils for the kitchen, always consider whether you are buying wisely or not. See that cutlery has good substantial handles, she said.

Mrs. Watson came as a new member, with Mrs. Tunnell as a visitor.

A refreshment plate of ice cream and cookies was served to Mesdames A. C. Aycox, Buel Draper, H. Bearden, Marvin Berry, G. L. Cobb, A. L. Dunagan, L. E. Huffaker, R. F. Janak, Paul Johnson, Alee Johnson, G. B. Sherrod, Watson, E. R. Tunnell, and the hostess.

Our next meeting will be with Mrs. Marvin Berry July 7, at 2:30 P. M.

TAHOKA H. D. CLUB HAS ALL DAY MEETING

The Tahoka Club met in the home of Mrs. R. L. Richardson for an all day meeting Wednesday.

A very interesting program on labor-saving devices was given by Mrs. Cecil Shaw, Mrs. Chas. Nelms,

Facing America's Basic Problem

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Congress at this time is proposing a thorough study of the pressing problem of unemployment.

Every thoughtful American will approve such a plan. For as all citizens realize, widespread re-employment—with its consequent increases in production and in income for workers—constitutes the true key to recovery.

Yet like all ill, the current one of joblessness is difficult to solve without proper diagnosis. And that, according to many students of government, has been lacking. Earlier proposals for an accurate census of the jobless appear to have been ignored, while relief costs show no sign of shrinking.

In the place of some such accurate census, various estimates of the extent and nature of unemployment have been published. But these have varied widely—adding to the confusion. There is no question that a true knowledge of just who are out of jobs—and why—would help greatly in approaching a solution to this basic problem of the day.

Whether or not the proposed Congressional study contemplates such a count at this time has not been stated. But a sense of justice would seem to demand it—justice not only to the unfortunate job-hunters themselves, but to the millions of workers who bear the cost of aiding the unemployed, and who have a right to know just how their money is spent.

Every taxpayer is eager to help the jobless—but he wants to know that his money accomplishes that purpose without political ineptitude or waste.

And only through a sincere attempt to learn the facts can he get that assurance.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Crouch and daughter, Mrs. Moselle Welch, of Hobbs, New Mexico, were visitors here Tuesday. Mr. Crouch traded his old car in on a Chevrolet and went home in the new machine.

Jeff Brown, late of Lamesa, has accepted a position with the Tahoka Drug Company here. He began work Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Frank Hill had her tonsils removed in a Lubbock hospital Friday of last week. She has been in ill health for several months, but it is now hoped she will show improvement.

and Mrs. A. C. Weaver.

In doing cooking and serving up as much care as possible not to allow too many dishes to accumulate. Many times using a piece of oiled paper, a piece of wrapping paper, or paper toweling or a bag, will save washing a dish. For example, when flouring pieces of chicken or fish, put the flour in a paper bag, drop in the pieces and shake. Every piece will be perfectly floured, but there will be no dish to wash.

Members present were: Mesdames W. S. Taylor, Cecil Shaw, J. G. Patterson, and C. R. Rogers, the latter a new member. Next meeting will be with Mrs. Cecil Shaw.

MIDWAY WOMEN MEET AT SCHOOL HOUSE

The Midway Home Demonstration Club met at the school house June 22 for an all day meeting.

We discussed labor-saving devices and quilted four quilts for Mrs. W. P. McDonald.

All the ladies brought covered dishes, games were played, and everyone present had a nice day.

The visitors were: Mesdames O. R. Crow, L. R. Stephens, B. F. Rainey, G. A. Henry, G. D. Bailey, Lula Traveek, R. R. Littrell, A. P. Stephens, and Lloyd Edwards, of the Friendship H. D. Club.

Members present were: Mesdames R. B. Floyd, Pete Curry, A. O. Murphy, G. A. Edwards, W. P. McDonald, I. M. Draper, L. M. Nordyke, Howard Draper, R. T. Cope, Rufus Slover, R. L. Littlepage, John Thomas, Sam H. Floyd.

GRASSLAND 4-H CLUB MEETS AT MRS. GREER'S

The Grassland 4-H Club girls met June 18 at Mrs. C. M. Greer's. The club girls served our mothers refreshments.

We elected Miss Dorothy Kenley as sponsor and Ruby Greer as reporter.

Those present: Lorene Norman, Mary Alice Norman, Rubie Greer, Beth Shepherd, Margie Shepherd, Billy Greer, Fay Blassingame, Viola Roberts, and Bernice Huffaker.

The next club meeting will be at Mrs. J. W. Norman's home.

H. W. Calaway reports satisfactory progress in procuring oil leases on lands situated in the vicinity of Draw owned by non-residents. He is very sanguine that the block will finally be completed.

Miss Helen Park, who was recently so ill with meningitis, was able to resume her duties as book-keeper for the Gaignal Hardware Company Monday morning.

NOTES FROM PEN OF ELDER R. P. DRENNON

We were greeted with fair crowds last Lord's Day with visitors from Slaton, Lubbock, Cloze City, and Memphis, Tennessee.

I spoke upon "Those whom God Calls Fools," and here they are: The atheist, Psa. 14: 1; he that despises instruction, Prov. 15: 5; the contentious person, Prov. 18: 6; a meddler, Prov. 20: 3; he that trusts in his own heart, Prov. 28: 26; he that gets riches wrongfully, Jer. 17: 11; he that is soon angry, Eccl. 7: 8; he that trusts in outward forms, Luke 11: 38-42; he that becomes vain and selfish, Luke 12: 15-21.

We need to be careful lest we fall into these classes mentioned.

The singers from Boles Orphan Home will render a program here next Tuesday from 10:30 a. m. until 12 m., followed by a basket dinner. Come, bring your basket, and enjoy yourself—Yes, I know it is busy times, but what about "The Father's Business"? They will render programs at Dixie Monday morning and at O'Donnell Monday night.

We want to express our appreciation for the fine paper Editor Hill is giving us, especially last week's issue. We are also pleased to see the way the merchants are patronizing it with ads. Keep the good work up! More power to our fine paper! Let's boost it more!

To the Baptist folks: How about helping in your meeting? I attended one night and did not see many of you there. Tahoka needs a revival of church attendance. How can we say that we love the church and not attend her services. Empty benches are black eyes to the church.

Don't forget the date for our meeting—it is July 25th to August 1st. Brother Wallace will be with us again to do the preaching. I will preach at O'Donnell next Lord's day, the Lord willing.

Make every Sunday a "Go to Church Sunday." We are looking for you.—R. P. Drennon.

ATTEND GARDEN PARTY

District Attorney and Mrs. Truett Smith, the editor and Mrs. E. I. Hill, Mrs. G. M. Stewart, Mrs. Gladys Stokes, and Miss Lillith Boyd attended the lawn party of the Lubbock Garden Club held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whitacre, 1905 29th Street, Lubbock last Friday night. This is an annual affair, held each year at the home of some member of the club. The Whitacre lawn is one of the most beautiful in the city, and it is said that 300 persons called Friday night to delight their souls in its loveliness and to enjoy the festivities of the occasion. The Tahoka ladies present are honorary members of the Club.

W.M.S. STUDY OF GENESIS

At the Woman's Missionary Society Monday afternoon, Mrs. Hardy, the superintendent of study, stressed in the third chapter of Genesis the beginning of sin and the continuation of it even through Revelation. The first two chapters of the book gave the creation in perfection—the only two chapters of the Bible without sin. Mrs. Hardy left the class with the thought of the beauty, the order, and the precision of the creation. The next lesson will be the study of the fourth and fifth chapters of Genesis, July 5. The program for next Monday will be taken from "The Outlook".

VISITING PREACHER AT GRASSLAND NAZARENE

Rev. Buford Battin, president of the N. Y. P. S. of the Abilene district, will be with us Saturday night and Sunday. Everyone is invited to hear this splendid young man these three services. Eugene Wood, pastor.

Post July 4 Boosters Here Thursday

Twenty highly decorated cars bearing more than seventy citizens of the city of Post drove into town Thursday, fell in line and formed a part of the Old Settlers Parade staged here at 2 o'clock, after which the band struck up a lively air at the Wynne Collier Corner and a speaker invited the people of Tahoka to the big picnic to be held at Two-Draw Lake near Post on July 3-4.

Many Tahoka people as well as other Lynn county folks will doubtless be there.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Hegl visited his parents at Petersburg last Sunday. Pete says the wheat crop is turning out even better than expected up there. He says only about a minute is required to dump a truck of wheat at an elevator, and at each of two elevators there he saw fifty truck loads of wheat lined up. He thinks it is the biggest wheat crop in the history of that section.

Jim Applewhite and Garland Edwards are doubtless having the time of their lives. They leave a few days ago on a pleasure trip which they expected to take them to Houston, Galveston, and other South Texas points, and thence into Old Mexico. Jack says he looks for 'em home when their money plays out.

Mrs. E. M. Hooper and son, George Hogan Hooper, left Tuesday for their home at San Diego, Duval county, after a two weeks visit here with the Hogan families. They were accompanied back to Pharr in the Valley by Miss Mary Jewell Ferguson, who had spent a month here in the G. E. Hogan home.

Mrs. Jim Wetsel and daughter, Baby Tot, returned to their home here early Wednesday morning after a few days visit at Arp, Smith county, accompanied by Mrs. Wetsel's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and P. A. North, who will visit here several days.

Friends here have received announcement of the birth of a little eight-pound daughter to Rev. and Mrs. Lawrence Hayes at Snyder on June 10. The little lady has been given the name of Randa Beth.

Rev. Ben Hardy ran down to Big Spring Monday to see a grandson who was leaving with other Boy Scouts this week for the big jamboree in Washington. He came home Tuesday.

J. W. Burleson and daughter, Mrs. Dick Williams, and the latter's son all came down from Lubbock Wednesday and spent the day here visiting Jim and Bill Burleson and families. The elder Burleson is the father of Jim and Bill.

Mrs. R. S. Morrison of Archer City left for her home Thursday, after having spent several weeks here visiting her daughter, Mrs. George Hogan Jr.

Mrs. Pearl Brown and son, Joy Edwin, returned Monday night from a few days visit with Mrs. Brown's daughter, Mrs. O. D. (Paye) Pierce at Eagle Pass.

Mrs. J. O. Eubanks and two children of Corpus Christi arrived Tuesday night to spend a few weeks with Mrs. Eubanks' parents, Rev. and Mrs. Ben Hardy.

Mr. and Mrs. S. N. McDaniel returned Monday from a few days visit with relatives at Sayre, Oklahoma. Mr. McDaniel says much of the wheat between Amarillo and Canadian is just now in the boot, and its yield is yet problematical.

Mrs. C. L. Head, who has been here visiting J. L. Nevill and family, returned to her home at Harlingen last Friday. She is a sister of Mr. Nevill.

Frances Jane Mitchell is visiting relatives at Arlington and Carrollton and attending the Pan-American Exposition in Dallas. Evelyn Mae is visiting relatives in Sherman.

Mrs. R. W. Fenton left a few days ago for Oarville, California, for a week's visit with a brother.

Collectors got an eyeful of smoke when the Treasury burned a suitcase of rare currency. Authorities said the $198,178 in old bills destroyed was worth $1,000,000 on the collectors' market and came from a collection started by the late Hetty Green, once the world's wealthiest woman.

Preachers Speak At Rotary Club Meeting

The Rotary Club was entertained at its luncheon Thursday with two popular song numbers and one religious selection rendered by Mr. Ira M. Powell of Big Spring, who is here leading the song services in the revival meeting at the Baptist Church. Miss Eunice Mullins was the piano accompanist.

An interesting but brief address on Service was given by Rev. J. W. Williams of Hobbs, who is doing the preaching in the revival here.

J. Sam Lewis of the Avalanche-Journal publications of Lubbock was an honored guest of the club.

Tired of the toils of pressing over the Senate, John Garner decided that he too wanted a new deal. He figured that anybody could act as a mere figure-head. So, the other day he packed up his grips and lit out for Texas. Got home, dug up some bait, and went down on the Gulf and try his skill at hooking a tarpon, which by the way is hardly fit to eat; He didn't bring a press agent along to flash his name over the wires to all the newspapers in the country every few hours. He just got him a pole and line, maybe cut the pole from the bank of the creek, put a nice, juicy worm on it, spit on the bait, and went out after some nice cat. As for us, we prefer the John Garner type of fishing to that of the big boss. We never have time to fish, but if we did, we think we would hunt a place out on some little stream somewhere and fish for perch, just as we did when a boy. What a thrill for the cork to go under and then to jerk a nice perch clear out about fifty feet on the bank! We're goin' a-fishin' again some time.

Mrs. Myrtle Rochell and children of Lubbock spent the week end here with the editor and family, returning to their home Monday afternoon.

4-H CLUB WORK TEACHES GIRL TO MAKE CLOTHES

"Sewing is very interesting to me since I plan my own clothes said Elsie Bernice Etter, clothing demonstrator in the Wells 4-H Club, at a club meeting in her home June 22.

"I have been designing my own clothes since I was elected clothing demonstrator last October. I first made a brown woolen skirt with a vest to match. It was the only winter garment I made. Then in the spring my mother became ill and it was necessary for me to sew for my two sisters. I made an evening dress, slip, and print dress for my older sister, two print dresses for my little sister, and a print dress for my mother. For myself, I have made a sheer cotton navy blue dress, a white wash silk, four prints and two slips.

The Wilson H. D. Club met in regular session in the home of Mrs. H. B. Crosby, at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. This being Achievement day for the Club each member brought a package, which very cleverly, turned out to be a gift for Mrs. M. J. Scaer our Secretary, who is moving away from Wilson.

The afternoon was spent in playing games, very ably conducted by Mrs. Howard Cook and Mrs. Jackson West.

Mrs. Scaer was elected as muffin demonstrator. She will meet with delegates from other clubs at Miss Boyd's office in Tahoka, next Wednesday, for a lesson in making muffins, then later will demonstrate same to her club.

Midway

(Delayed)

Yes, we have weeds. The farmers are all busy planting over after the ball and killing weeds.

Miss Marion Draper visited in Lubbock this week.

Mrs. R. L. Littlepage and Mrs. Sam Kitchens spent Sunday afternoon in Brownfield with Mrs. Claud Kitchens.

Opal and Letha Johnson visited in the Stephens home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dolph Cleveland left last week for Hot Springs, New Mexico, for Mrs. Cleveland's health.

The club ladies will have their regular meeting and a quilting at Midway school house Tuesday, June 22nd.

Miss Lucille Keeton of Lubbock called in the Midway community Sunday.

Rush Dudgeon, a city lad who moved to the country and went to farming, dropped into the News office for a brief chat Monday morning, and he reported both cotton and weeds as doing fine in his community, South Ward. He said that a good gooseneck hoe was about the only thing that could clean the cotton out now, and he thought there would be plenty of work for a few weeks for the seat warmers in town. Rush was reared in Sweetwater, but he is making a dandy good farmer.

County Superintendent H. P. Caviness experienced quite a thrill Friday when a message came from Akron, Ohio, bearing the information that he was a grandfather. Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Dixon are the parents of a fine eight pound son, who has been named Robert Henry. Mrs. Caviness has been in Akron the past three or four weeks at the home of her daughter. The mother is better known here as the former Miss Jeanette Caviness.

W. L. Tunnell, the first man who really made farming pay in Lynn county according to Ben Moore, was a pleasant caller at the News office Saturday. Mr. Tunnell says they had no destructive rains nor hail in his neighborhood and that cotton generally is looking fine. He slipped us a dollar and asked that we send the paper for a year to his son, Charles, who is a journalist and is editor of a bakers' magazine in Houston.

Happy Smith and little daughter, Jeannine, returned Sunday from San Antonio, where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ketner and where Hap attended the postmasters' convention in session Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. He reports about 230 present, an excellent program, and a good time. Upon his return, he ordered the paper sent for a year to Mr. and Mrs. Ketner.

Miss Iris Dean Cade returned Saturday from a week's visit with her cousin at Hobbs, New Mexico.

UNCLE BILL GIVES US GENTLE SPANKING

A few weeks ago we made some gentle remarks in our editorial columns about the immodesty, the immorality, the drinking and the crime being committed by so many women of the present day. Our young friend, "Uncle Bill" Kellis of the Sterling City News-Record, rushed gallantly to their defense in the next issue of his paper, but we have been so busy since that time trying to keep the legislature and Congress straight that we couldn't give space to "Uncle Bill's" witty and ingenious disquisition. He spunks us so beautifully and at the same time administers so many back-hand slaps at the very tribe we were after that we really enjoyed the spanking. So we pass it on to our readers. Here it is.

GROWING OLD and FORGETFUL

Brother Hill, you must be getting old. The bad things of which you speak concerning the crimes of the human race have always been the heritage of mankind.

Speaking of the nakedness and the want of common modesty of today, don't you recall reading in your Bible that the first man and woman did not wear any clothes until that old talking snake had a palaver with the woman and influenced her to don a fig leaf gown. The man also made him a pair of britches out of fig leaves. Remember now that they were as naked as young birds until the woman met a snake that could talk.

From that time on, people wore clothes until recently, some nutty people started the fashion of going naked, and other nuts followed the style by wearing next to nothing and exposing their anatomy so much that we think little of it.

Don't you remember about King David, the man after God's own heart, got so happy over the recovery of the Ark of the Covenant that he pulled off his shirt and britches and danced a jig before all the folks, and his wife, Michal, bawled him out about it?

Don't you recall reading about some of the capers of King Solomon with the women?

Now about murder and other crimes of which we have a lot today, don't you recall the siege of a certain city in Bible times where the women killed and ate their babies and the head of a jackass sold for a big piece of money. Remember about Pharaoh and King Houd having had all the babies of a certain age slaughtered? As you know the German naval force under that windbag Hitler are about the only ones who keep up that sport as a regular amusement.

It has always been thus. When you and I were coming up, we never saw a woman's ankle until we were grown up and married, but it was the style then. In those days women were very careful to keep their person covered. It was considered bad for a woman to expose her limbs (legs). I never knew one who had the temerity to do it until late years, when the skirts began to grow shorter and shorter until they reached a lofty altitude. Then they began to grow longer and longer until they have reached almost to the depth of former modesty.

It is all in the fashion, Brother Hill. When it was the style to wear dresses as tight as the skin on an eel, they wore them. When skirts were so long that they trailed a yard behind, they wore them and when they became so brief that they became a matter of mere imagination, they wore them. All this time the minister thundered at each change in style, but the women always looked good to me, no matter if their habiliments were a la Salle Rand. It does no good, Brother Hill, women are going to wear what they please, and we old fellows can do nothing about it except to howl, and I for one, don't like to howl.

As for crime, Brother Hill, the reason we think that there is more crime now than there used to be, is because we have newspapers, telephones, radio and other quick means of learning of them, and we naturally think that the world is going to hades because every crime is now fed to the printing press, whereas, in the long ago, we didn't hear of one crime in twenty.

People are no worse now than they always were. Of course they take spells of being bad at times, as they always did. The time will come when people will quit going nud; because it is more comfortable to wear clothes. They will let up on crime, because they will finally learn that crime doesn't pay. Then there will be a spell when the world will be calm and serene again. It all goes by spells, Brother Hill.—Uncle Bill.

The Curse of Progress

Musical Temperament
"Were you slumming today?" asked the inquisitive friend.
"What do you mean?" rejoined Miss Cayenne.
"I saw you looking into several pawnshop windows."
"That was for musical satisfaction. It delights me to see so many saxophones and nobody playing any."
Folly Put the Kettle On
Donovan and his wife went for a picnic. They found a pretty spot in a wood; and Donovan, putting down the basket, said he'd be away to get some sticks for the fire.
"Ah!" said his wife, "don't be bothering. We'll not need them. Haven't I brought the gas-ring?"
Cultured Swearing
Fred—When I returned Smith's lawn mower with the nicked blade, Smith swore.
Well—We don't want that sort of thing to happen again, dear. The next time borrow from the minister.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste
Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally deranged and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.
Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.
You may suffer sagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous; all played out.
In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Silk Prints, Jackets and Big Brims

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

HERE'S giving you a very proper formula for smart spectator sports costumes to wear these summer days. The combination runs thusly—stunning silk print for the dress which must have a jacket, cape or coat of the same or of some other plain silk related to the ensemble, with matching print silk details, to which add headgear that makes a wide brim appear at its widest.

The vogue started early in the season, at which time fashions at the Belmont racetrack set the pace for a colorful and luxurious summer costume program, that highlights silk prints in unmistakable terms.

At outdoor events fashionables are adopting this formula of silk print costume plus a huge brim with greatest enthusiasm. Noteworthy among high-style gestures is the topping of one's print dress with a coat or a cape or a jacket of silk bengaline.

In assembling your costume to be worn in the grandstand or to view what's going on from the club verandah the big thought to keep in mind is the importance that fashion attaches to matching or related jackets or coats or capes if your taste runs in that direction.

BOLERO EFFECT

Rivalling the princess style in popularity in children's fashions is the dress with a bolero or at least with a bolero effect. The idea of a bolero is really a peasant trend, such as is wielding a widespread influence throughout juvenile styles this season.

in coats that are worn over either black or beige crepe dresses. The huge stitched silk cartwheel that completes this costume gives perfect style accent. Speaking of hats that are styled of silk, the most recent millinery collections feature them, particularly wide-brimmed types that are tailored of black or navy taffeta.

The idea of a jacket of contrasting material that is lined with the print that fashions the dress is nicely carried out in the costume illustrated to the right.

If you favor the very smart red-and-white color scheme we would suggest a redingote of wine and white printed silk chiffon banded with a matching silk print of the same fabric as the dress.

ROMANTIC MOOD IS KEYNOTE OF SEASON

For the very formal evening gown the romantic mood is the keynote of the season. Crisp silk mousselines, silk nets and silk marisettes or stiff silk taffetas make gowns with yards and yards of skirt fullness swirling and billowing about the ankles.

There's romance in daytime clothes, too. Frills and furbelows in the way of ribbon-bow trappings and neckwear, also blouses of the sheer face-trimmed fluff-ruffle type add the feminine touch.

New Evening Frocks Are Beau Catchers for Fair

The new evening frocks are regular beau catchers, and the dance floor looks just like a garden filled with beautiful, ethereal blossoms. Full-skirted frocks of chiffon or lace with matching, long capes, complete with dainty hoods, are selling fast.

Modern-to-the-Minute

AS RIGHT as rain, and as cooling, are these clever young modes for the woman who sews. Each is simple to make, pleasant to wear, and may possibly be the difference between a modern and a mediocre wardrobe for you this summer.

A Two Piecer for Chic. If he tells you you're just a nice armful you are the right size and type to wear the blouse 'n' skirt shown above, left. The waistcoat idea is very much the thing in blouses.

Uncle Phil Says: Sedative for Fear. If we must undergo danger, the best sedative for fear is familiarity with the danger.

Smaller the town, the more vivid is the gent who is pointed out as a horrible example to the young.

Old-Fashioned Courtesy. Common highway courtesy, that good old-fashioned kind that existed in the horse and buggy days, will prevent many traffic accidents.

Those who follow evil ways are forever moping out alibis. You are saving up a lot of ill temper when you permit yourself to cherish anger toward an untidy man. Laugh it off.

Any species of animals get along together without slaughtering each other except man. We don't see the romance in real life; but it's there; and a good novelist finds it.

Poverty is natural to some who have no taste for thrift.

ahead that all but specify this very outfit.

You should sue for slander anyone who calls you a Smart Marton when you don this gratifying new fashion (above center). You step into an entirely new size range when you step forth in this frock. So simple is its technique—merely a deftly designed feminine jabot, softly draped contours, and a meticulously slender skirt—yet so effective. It will thrill you in marquisette chiffon or lace, and it will keep you deliciously cool.

The Patterns. Pattern 1302 is for sizes 14 to 42. Size 16 requires 2 1/4 yards of 39 inch material for the blouse, 2 1/4 yards for the skirt.

Pattern 1286 is for sizes 36 to 48. Size 38 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1915 is for sizes 14 to 42. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards of 35 inch material plus 3 1/2 yards of 1/2 inch binding to finish edges as pictured.

Household Questions

Chilling Canned Fruits.—Before placing canned fruits in the refrigerator to chill remove the paper label which acts as an insulator.

Cleaning Silver.—Moist salt will remove egg tarnish from silver.

Washing Woolens.—Rinse woolens in warm water to which a little olive oil has been added. This helps to keep them soft.

Clearing the Atmosphere.—Burn a few drops of vinegar on a hot shovel for a quick way of clearing the smell of stale smoke out of a room.

Washing Linoleum.—Oilcloth and linoleum will dry with a brighter finish if a lump of sugar is dissolved in the scrubbing water.

Rice, Scrambled Eggs, Cheese.—Have ready a border of rice (boiled) in a dish. Make some scrambled eggs to which cheese has been added. Place the mixture in the center of the dish and sprinkle a little chopped parsley over the top. Serve piping hot.

Quick Mayonnaise.—The yellow part of an egg is thoroughly beaten up with a teaspoon vinegar. Add some salt and pepper. Pour oil over it and whip the mixture thoroughly. Then add two dessertspoons of vinegar and one tablespoon boiling water.

Removing Spots From Tile.—Spots can be removed from the tile bathroom floor by rubbing with a cloth moistened with kerosene and then polishing with one moistened with paraffin.

Frying Doughnuts.—To keep doughnuts from absorbing too much of the fat in which they are fried, put a drop or two of vinegar in the dough when mixing the ingredients.

Barbecued Ham.—Fry the required number of thin-ham slices from a left-over boiled ham. Arrange them in a serving dish, and pour the following sauce over them; add to the ham fat in the frying pan a teaspoonful of made mustard, half a teaspoonful sugar, three tablespoonfuls vinegar and a tablespoonful of red currant jelly. Warm all the ingredients up together, sprinkle with paprika (optional) and pour over the ham.

Carmacks Visit The Pacific Coast

Rev. and Mrs. C. F. Carmack returned Tuesday from an extended trip which took them to and along the Pacific coast as far north as San Francisco.

They were accompanied on the trip by Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Gibbons of Waverley, Florida, who arrived here about the first of the month on an across-the-continent trip. Rev. Carmack and Mr. Gibbons are cousins, but prior to last fall they had not seen each other for forty years. Yet they were boys together in Erath county. Strange to say, though Mr. Gibbons comes of American parentage, he was born in Brazil, his father having moved to that country following the Civil War. He was brought to Texas by his father when only a child. He grew up here and then moved to Florida.

Mr. Gibbons had the pleasure of killing some prairie dogs while he but he hunted in vain for a coyote.

He and Brother Carmack say that they had a wonderful trip to the west coast. They crossed the big new bridge across San Francisco Bay, enjoyed the marvelous scenery between San Francisco and Los Angeles, reveled in the beauty of the Yosemite, marveled at the wonders of the Grand Canyon, stood with bowed heads and humble hearts in the presence of the majesty and grandeur of Carlsbad Cavern.

Farmers, Ranchmen Building Lakes

County agricultural agents in Northwest Texas are reporting that farmers and ranchmen are improving their holdings by following the practices recommended under the Agricultural Conservation Program.

Locations for 36 Potter county dams have been laid out, of which 14 have been completed and five are in process of construction. The average amount of the fills in the dams so far constructed is 3,090 cubic yards. The 12 dams completed prior to recent heavy rains all held in spite of being freshly constructed.

In Callahan county, 740 producers are cooperating in the 1937 program. Included in the sign-up are 310,000 acres of ranch land and 62,000 acres of cultivated land, which together represent 80 percent of the total land in the county.

About 80 percent of the cultivated land in Nolan county, consisting of 725 farms, has been entered in the 1937 Agricultural Conservation Program. In addition, 175 ranchmen, holding some 200,000 acres, have made application for range inspection under the range conservation feature.

Some 75 tanks will be constructed by 30 Gray county ranchmen during 1937 under the terms of the range conservation program. The dams will contain from 500 to 4,000 cubic yards of dirt.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Thomas left the first of the week for the Sangre de Christo Mountains in northern New Mexico, where they expect to build a summer cabin. The site selected is west of Eagle Nest Lake and near the cabin owned by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Heare. The Thomases expect to do some trout fishing, of course.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Gagnat and children, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Howell and children of Longview, left Wednesday morning on a pleasure trip to Ruidoso, El Paso, and other points of interest. Mrs. Gagnat and Mrs. Howell are sisters.

W. H. Finley and family of Alford were visitors here Saturday, going from here to Brownfield. Mr. Finley is a rural mail carrier at Alford.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Tippitt and baby of Gatesville visited Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Botkins last week. Mrs. Tippitt is Mr. Botkins' sister.

Strength During MIDDLE LIFE

Strength is extra-important for women going through the change of life. Then the body needs the very best nourishment to fortify it against the changes that are taking place. In such cases, Cardui has proved helpful to many women. It increases the appetite and aids digestion, favoring more complete transformation of food into living tissue, resulting in improved nutrition and building up and strengthening of the whole system.

Wetsel Visits Wests Near Forresteron

Jim Wetsel was browsing around down in Ellis county a few days ago, and at Forresteron he ran across Mr. and Mrs. O. B. West, who formerly resided here. They are now out on their black land farm near that little city, and Jim eagerly accepted the invitation to take dinner with them—and he says it was a dinner fit for the Duke of Windsor. Jim says they were actually glad to see him—glad to see any body from Tahoka. But they are prosperous and happy—their cotton knee high, corn in the tassel, good wheat and oat crops, mules fat, fine Jersey cows in the meadow, hogs as big as a hippopotamus, chickens galore. The grazing looked good to Jim. And by the way, O. B. sent a dollar along to have the News sent to his address, so that if any of his friends out here got into devilment he would find out about it.

Correctly surmising that the editor likes fried chicken, Rev. W. P. Bussell of New Lynn voluntarily promised Monday to bring us in a nice fryer at an early date. He and Mrs. Bussell have a pen of considerably more than 200 chickens, and they have had eggs and chicken meat at their house so long that the preacher has learned to crow. Hence his crowing over his chickens.

Rev. J. O. Quattlebaum, pastor of the Methodist Church at Canyon, walked leisurely into the News office Monday morning, and it was the first time he and the editor had met since the preacher was pastor of the Methodist Church in Roscoe in 1917-1918. We greatly enjoyed his visit.

Chester Connolly and family returned Sunday from a visit of several days at Christoval and Nasworthy, where they found the fishing good. Ches says they brought 21 of the catch back home with them and had a fish fry at the home of G. B. Sherrod Sunday night.

Charlie Curry and little daughter Jeannette visited his parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Curry, at Rule Saturday night and Sunday. They accompanied J. P. West, who visited his family, who are still at O'Brien.

Mrs. E. N. Weathers returned home the first of the week from a few days visit with relatives at Lockney.

Jeff Connolly spent several days this week in Amarillo attending a Chevrolet parts and accessories training school.
