Mrs. Sarah Fenn, County Pioneer Buried Here

First Baptist Church Organized In Her Home; Died At Hobbs, New Mexico, Last Friday

The remains of Mrs. Sarah J. Fenn of Hobbs, New Mexico, were buried in the cemetery here Sunday afternoon following funeral services conducted at the Primitive Baptist Church, Elder Virgil Lorraine of Slaton officiating.

Mrs. Fenn died in Hobbs last Friday afternoon, having almost reached her ninetieth birthday. She was born in Tennessee on October 16, 1847.

She and her husband came to this county about the first or second year of the present century, having acquired a ranch lying eight or nine miles north of the present town of Tahoka. Being then members of the Missionary Baptist Church, Rev. Pharr of that denomination, who was both a physician and a minister as well as a ranchman, often conducted services in the Fenn home, and actually organized a Baptist Church in the home. A year or two later, when a Baptist Church was organized in Tahoka, the Fenn church was absorbed by the new organization. In a way, the present Baptist Church in Tahoka had its beginning in the Fenn home.

W. D. Fenn, the husband, died about thirty years ago, his remains being buried here. Soon thereafter the Fenn family removed from Tahoka and have not resided here since. One son, however, R. D. (Dink) Fenn, has spent much of his time here the past two years. Besides this son, deceased left two other sons surviving, W. D. Fenn Jr. of Hobbs, and Hub Fenn of Magdalena, New Mexico. She also left two surviving daughters, Mrs. Ella Fletcher of Tulla and Mrs. Beulah Lee of Mineral Wells.

Not many of the oldtimers who knew the Fenn family when they resided here more than thirty years ago are here now, but some of them remember the Fenns very well, and speak of them in the highest terms. Impressive funeral services were held here Sunday afternoon. Pall bearers were members of the local Primitive Baptist Church, Mrs. Fenn being a devout and faithful member of that denomination, and consisted of the following: G. C. Clary, S. O. Clark, W. B. Corley, O. A. Corley, I. B. Hill, and J. A. Bartlett.

Fund Started For Big Bend Park

In view of the fact that Governor Allred vetoed the appropriation for the establishment of a state park in the Big Bend section of the state, the Brewster County Chamber of Commerce recently started a campaign to raise by private subscription a fund of one million dollars for the purchase of the land required for the establishment of a National Park.

The Big Bend country is the most scenic section of Texas. The great gorge through which the Rio Grande flows, known as the St. Helena Canyon, rivals in grandeur the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, and the Chisos and other mountain ranges are among the most rugged and majestic in the state.

If plans mature, an international park covering a vast area on both sides of the river will be established and maintained by the U. S. Government and Mexico. Texans should see to it that the necessary funds are provided to purchase the lands required on this side of the river.

Mrs. Howell's Hand Is Badly Scalded

Mrs. L. D. Howell is recovering satisfactorily from bad scalds received on one hand and forearm one day last week when a pressure cooker exploded while she was canning corn.

The burns were exceedingly painful but it is hoped that no permanent injury will result.

Judge P. W. Goad visited a brother-in-law at the Carlsbad Sanatorium near San Angelo last week end.

Livestock Live In Comfort On Modern Farm Of John Heck Near Wilson

One of the best equipped farms and farm homes in Lynn county is that of John Heck who resides a mile from Wilson.

This home, like many others in Lynn county, has been made outstandingly attractive by the presence of trees in great numbers growing on the premises. Although Mr. and Mrs. Heck moved upon this farm of 446 acres and began improving it only six years ago, the trees have already reached splendid proportions, affording a friendly shade during the hot summer days and lending a quiet dignity to the home.

Most of the ornamental trees on the premises are Chinese Elm, and most of these have been propagated on the premises. In a few more years many of them will be of magnificent size.

These deciduous trees are supplemented with many evergreens, chiefly red cedar and long leaf yellow pine, attractive foundation plantings about the house, and flower beds in the back yard.

But while the residence itself is an elegant brick building in an elegant setting, it is not this structure that we wish to call chiefly to the attention of our readers.

Two Loads Beer Are Confiscated

If Sheriff B. L. Parker makes a few more hauls like those he made Wednesday, the commissioners court will have to build a warehouse in which to store the liquor.

Working in conjunction with Sam Fort and O. Lee of the state liquor board, shortly after one o'clock Wednesday morning, he captured 75 cases of Pabst beer being transported through Tahoka from Big Spring in a pick-up, and arrested and placed the driver and a woman companion in jail.

Then, about 8 o'clock in the afternoon, he and Deputy Sheriff Norvel Redwine captured another booze runner and took from his possession 21 cases of Manhattan beer.

The man and woman arrested early in the morning gave their names as A. L. Martin and Miss Pat Gunn. They made bond Wednesday night for their appearance in county court next Monday morning.

The man arrested Wednesday afternoon was still in jail Thursday at noon. He gave his name as Bill Sparkman, Lubbock.

In addition to the liquor charge, Miss Gunn was also charged with unlawfully carrying a pair of brass knucks.

O'Donnell Streets Will Be Paved

Some of the streets of O'Donnell are to be paved or hard-surfaced as a WPA project, according to announcement made from San Antonio Wednesday.

Federal funds were granted in the sum of $6,178 while the local funds amounting to $9,131 will be supplied. Thirty workers are to be employed.

Applewhites Return From West Coast

J. K. Applewhite and family returned Saturday night from a sight-seeing trip which took them through several western states. Among the interesting places visited, besides the cities of Los Angeles, San Francisco, Salt Lake City, and Denver, were Catalina Island in the Pacific near San Diego, Lake Tahoe, the big Redwood Trees, the Petrified Forest, the Grand Canyon, Yellowstone Park, Pikes Peak, and the marvelous mountain scenery of several states. After passing through the Dust Bowl in Southern Colorado, North-eastern New Mexico, and the Dalhart section of Texas, Jack says they were delighted and surprised to find such fine crops here upon their return.

J. E. KETNER'S WIFE DIES

J. E. Ketner and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Price left early Tuesday afternoon for Seymour to attend the funeral of Mrs. J. E. Ketner Jr., who died in Little Rock, Arkansas, early Monday morning. Deceased resided at Seymour prior to her marriage and her parents still reside there. She and husband were residing in Little Rock at the time of her death.

IMPROVE BANK BUILDING

The window and door facings and other woodwork of the First National Bank building is being treated to a new coat of paint this week, which enhances the beauty of this attractive structure.

Future Farmers Will Hold Meeting

The officers of the F. F. A. are to meet at 8:30 p. m., Friday, July 30, at Mr. Hufstetler's residence in a meeting called by Truett Cooper, President of the Tahoka Chapter.

Other officers requested to be present are: Bryan Wright, Vice-President; Paul Casebeer, Reporter; Rudolph Snowden, Treasurer; Elmer Snowden, Secretary; Wyman Johnson, Watchdog; and George Wright, Parliamentarian. Mr. Hufstetler is advisor.

The purpose of the meeting is to make preliminary plans for a F.F.A. trip in August. The entire club will be called to a meeting in the near future to complete plans for the trip.

Slaton People Are Injured In Wreck

Briggs Robertson, 45, and his nephew, Sugg Robertson, 30, prominent ranchmen of Slaton, were seriously injured in an automobile accident on the Slaton-Lubbock highway two miles out of Lubbock Sunday night.

They were taken to a Lubbock sanitarium for treatment. Last reports were that Briggs might be released from the sanitarium in a day or two but Sugg was still in a critical condition and might be compelled to remain in the hospital a long time.

The elder Robertson is an uncle and the younger a cousin of W. M. Sewell of the First National Bank of Tahoka.

The accident occurred when the Robertson car passed another on the highway. It is said that the rear bumper of the Robertson car caught the front bumper of the car which it was passing. As a result the Robertson car swerved off the pavement and turned over.

Chr. Jones Explains New Farm Plan

The News has received the following communication from Marvin Jones, Congressman from the eighteenth district which for many years included Lynn county, setting forth in condensed form the salient features of the new agricultural bill introduced by him in the House.

Mr. Jones is chairman of the important agricultural committee and possibly has more power and influence in shaping farm legislation than any other member of the House.

I have submitted to the Committee on Agriculture suggested provisions for general farm legislation. The measure containing these provisions is based largely on suggestions made by farmers and farm groups and by Committee members. Its major features are as follows:

1. It continues the present Soil Conservation Act as a basis. The present program has worked well and should not be abandoned.
2. Its declared objective is to establish and maintain so far as is practicable parity prices for all farm commodities and parity income for all farmers, as well as to continue soil conservation.
3. It provides an ever-normal granary, warehouse, or storage reserve for the five major non-perishable commodities which are ordinarily produced in surplus quantities. This would benefit both producer and consumer.
4. The measure provides a graduated scale of soil conservation and benefit payments so that there

Slim Morgan Run Over By Car

W. O. (Slim) Morgan, who has been employed at the Burleson Grain Company, sustained serious injuries Friday night when struck by an automobile driven by J. W. Tippit, youthful son of T. I. Tippit, on the highway near the Tahoka Cooperative Fuel Station in Tahoka.

Mr. Morgan and another gentleman were walking along the highway or street. The driver evidently expected them to get out of the way, but when they discovered him it is said that one of them hastened to one side of the highway and the other one to the other side. The result was that young Tippit's car struck Morgan and passed over him.

The injured man was taken hurriedly to a sanitarium in Lubbock, where he received treatment. It is believed that the skull in one place was slightly fractured, and injuries to the tendons of the neck were sustained. The patient was released from the hospital Monday afternoon but he is still confined to his room.

It is hoped and believed that his wounds will heal and that no permanent injury has been sustained.

Rev. Dale Is Holding Collin Co. Revival

Rev. George A. Dale left Tuesday morning for Murphy, Collin county, where he will conduct a revival meeting of ten days duration. He announced that he would return to Tahoka on Saturday of next week and be in his pulpit the following Sunday morning.

There will be no preaching services at the Baptist Church next Sunday on account of the revival in progress at the Methodist Church. Sunday school and B. T. U. programs will be conducted as usual. As many as possible are urged to attend the revival services following the Sunday School and B. T. U. hours.

Negro Youth Marries 12-Year-Old Girl

N. E. Gant, a young negro, residing in the vicinity of O'Donnell, was arrested recently on a charge of having sworn falsely to procure a marriage license, the girl he married being only twelve years of age, according to the dope given the sheriff by the girl's mother.

He was placed in jail to await the action of the grand jury, which meets in September.

Scouts Will Have Swimming Meet

Tuesday evening, August 3rd, has been set as the date for the Tri-District Boy Scout Swimming Meet to be held in the City Swimming Pool at Brownfield, Texas.

Approximately 100 Scouts from the following towns are expected to participate in the meet: Namely, Brownfield, Lamesa, O'Donnell, Post, Ropesville, Slaton and Tahoka.

This is one of the outstanding of the five Swimming Meets of the South Plains Council, being conducted to qualify Scouts to participate in the Council-wide Swimming Championship to be held in Lubbock City Pool the evening of August 12th.

This Tri-District meet is expected to attract hundreds of visitors from these towns and some of the best swimmers in the Council are listed among the Troops that are participating. Last year Troop 22 of Lamesa won the Council championship and have most these Scouts back this year. Brownfield ranked third in the Council-wide Meet last year and has a large number of capable swimmers this year. Post, Slaton and Lubbock also have a number of boys who should furnish plenty of competition. Those in charge of the meet are General Chairman, J. H. Dallas; Promotion Chairman, J. E. Shelton; Awards and Prizes, M. L. H. Baze; Eats Committee, Chairman, J. O. Gilham; and Director of Meet, Emory Longbreak; all of these men are from Brownfield.

Ribbons are to be given for 1st, 2nd and 3rd places in the meet and a banner for the Troop scoring the highest number of points.

Two Revivals Are In Progress This Week

Highway 9 Gets Seal Coat Topping

A short segment of Highway No. 9 both north and south of the business section in Tahoka is being treated to a seal coat this week.

The wear and tear on the highway in town is heavier than elsewhere and repairs become necessary sooner. It is expected that a seal coat will be placed on several other miles of this highway in Lynn county within the next year or two.

Farm Supervisors Given Instruction

State Engineer B. M. Irwin is here this week conducting a school of instruction for the benefit of the soil conservation supervisors in this county, teaching them how to use the aerial photograph of the lands of Lynn county in checking compliance with the government program.

These photographs were taken from airplanes some time ago, and from them a complete photographic map of the county has been made.

Assistant County Agent C. A. Lawrence states that the work of checking up compliance will be begun soon and that it is important that every producer or his representative be present when his farm is checked. Previous notice of the time of checking will be given each producer.

Give Consideration To Highway No 84

County Judge P. W. Goad received a communication from Hon. R. L. Bobbitt, chairman of the state highway commission, Thursday stating that the matter of rebuilding highway No. 84 east of Tahoka would be considered next Monday.

Judge Goad and some of the members of the commissioners' court are planning to appear before the commission on that day in the interest of the project.

Dr. Durham Exhibits Very Fine Peaches

Dr. K. R. Durham brought to the News office Monday some samples of peaches grown on a tree in his back yard.

They are fine specimens. Dr. Durham says that he gathered two tubs full and a bushel basket from this one tree, and in addition there to he gave quite a quantity to neighbors and friends.

One peculiar feature of the peach crop this year is the fact that early in the spring nearly everybody thought that all the peaches had been killed. It developed, however, that Lynn county has possibly raised more peaches this year than for several years.

CRAP SHOOTERS CAUGHT

It sounds like cotton picking time at O'Donnell. Sheriff B. L. Parker rounded up ten crap-shooters and drunks down there Saturday night and lodged them in jail here. They had no cotton-picking money with which to pay their fines, however, and were still behind the iron bars here Thursday morning.

Mrs. Curtis Crouch of Hobbs, formerly a resident of Tahoka, underwent a major operation one day last week. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nevill and some of the boys visited the Crouches in Hobbs last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Mack Woodrum and two daughters of Jayton, Miss Bess Woodrum of Memphis, Tenn., and G. R. Buck of Seymour were guests of Mrs. E. Is Hill Wednesday afternoon. They had been on a camping trip to Ruidosa, N. M.

Judge and Mrs. Tom Garrard left Monday morning for Cool Colorado and Beautiful Wyoming. They expected to attend the Frontier Days rodeo at Cheyenne while in the latter state.

Church of Christ Holding Revival

The revival at the Church of Christ is attracting large and attentive audiences, and Elder Foy E. Wallace is delivering interesting gospel sermons. Prof. M. L. H. Baze of Brownfield is conducting the song service in a very creditable and inspiring manner.

Services are being held at 8:30 o'clock each evening and 10:00 each morning.

Regular services will be held Sunday. Special emphasis is being placed on the afternoon services Sunday at 2:30 o'clock.

The singing is a special feature, and all singers are urged to be present. The messages of Elder Wallace are sound and inspiring. Everyone is invited to hear him.

Methodist Meeting Attracts Interest

The revival meeting which began at the Methodist Church Sunday is drawing ever-increasing crowds and it is hoped and believed that great results will be attained.

In addition to the pastor, Rev. Ben Hardy, who has been doing some of the preaching, Rev. J. E. Stephens of Olton preached Tuesday night, Rev. M. M. Beavers of Lamesa Wednesday night, and Rev. R. T. Breedlove of Brownfield Thursday night. Rev. H. C. Smith of Amarillo will preach tonight. Rev. J. B. Nance of Phoenix, Arizona, has been here since Sunday doing personal work. Bill Sewell is song leader.

Rev. D. B. Doak of Wewoka, Oklahoma, a former pastor here and a former presiding elder of this district, is coming Sunday and will preach morning and evening through out next week.

The preaching this week has been excellent, and it is expected that Dr. Doak will bring some great messages next week. The singing also has been fine.

You are cordially invited to attend these services whatever your religious affiliations or inclinations may be.

Dies From Injuries Received In Cave-In

J. T. Wilson, 48, a farmer residing near the Yellowhouse Fork of the Brazos River a few miles north of Post, died in a Lubbock sanitarium Tuesday morning from injuries sustained the preceding Thursday when the bank of the river caved in upon him.

Buried beneath the dirt and sand, it was hours before he was able to extricate himself, when he managed to crawl out upon the bank and make his plight known. He was hurried to the sanitarium, where it was found several ribs were broken, one of which had penetrated the lung, and the heart had been displaced.

The accident occurred while he was inspecting the bank after having discovered the danger of a cave-in and while planning to dislodge the dirt so as to avert any danger to his children who might wander along the bank.

Five of the local Chevrolet boys, Jeff Connolly, George Knight, Ovid Luallin, Beecher Sherrod, and Frank Brown, attended a big Chevrolet rodeo, whatever that may be, five miles north of Amarillo Friday. Prizes were awarded, and both Jeff and George and possibly others of the Tahoka delegation got some of the prize money. Without definite information on the subject, we presume that prizes were awarded to the best riders of bucking Chevrolets.

Postmaster W. E. Smith was taken to a Lubbock hospital on Friday afternoon of last week and underwent an operation Saturday morning. It is expected that he will be able to return to his home here before the end of the week.

Mrs. Myrtle Rochell and children of Lubbock are visiting relatives here this week.

SENATE KILLS COURT BILL

Votes 70 to 20 to Recommit . . . Elect Barkley New Majority Leader . . . Spanish War Enters Second Year

Senator Harrison (right) Congratulates Senator Barkley.

Edward W. Pickard
SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

'Glory Be to God!'

DYING for weeks, the scheme to add to the number of justices of the Supreme court finally choked its last gasp and left this world. On a roll-call vote the United States senate voted to recommit the Robison substitute for the President's original bill to the judiciary committee. The vote was 70 to 20, the most crushing defeat the President's legislation has yet suffered at the hands of a house of congress.

In an agreement made at a session of the judiciary committee earlier, it had been decided to let the opposition senators write their own bill, an innocuous measure for "judicial reform" not dealing in any way with the Supreme court. Senator Barkley, the new majority leader, attempted to save the President's face by having the bill left on the calendar, but he never had a chance. When the roll-call came, even Senators Ashurst of Arizona and Minton of Indiana, two of the Supreme court bill's chief supporters, voted to recommit.

"Glory be to God!" said Sen. Hiram Johnson (Rep. Calif.) when the results of the roll call were made known. The applause that belled forth from the senators and gallery alike left no doubt that the veteran from California had voiced the sentiments of the great majority.

Low Interest for Farmers

BY A vote of 71 to 19, the senate overrode the President's veto of a bill extending for a year low interest rates on loans to farmers. It was a defeat even more crushing than the recommitment of the court bill, and made the bill a law without the President's signature, for the house had previously passed it by a two-thirds majority over Mr. Roosevelt's veto.

Senator Barkley made a half-hearted attempt to stave off the overwhelming vote, and the defeat was accepted by many observers as an expression of resentment over Barkley's having been elected majority leader instead of Sen. Pat Harrison of Mississippi.

Barkley, 38; Harrison, 37

SEN. WILLIAM H. DIETERICH of Illinois changed his mind at the last minute and today Alben W. Barkley, hard-fisted, blustering senator from Kentucky, is the majority leader of the United States senate, succeeding the late Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas. The vote was 38 for Barkley to 37 for Sen. Pat Harrison of Mississippi.

Vice-President Garner

The conservative Democrats in the senate had been assured of 38 votes, enough to elect Harrison, on the eve of the secret election. But that night Dieterich, apparently under pressure from the Democratic party organization in Illinois, begged Harrison to release his pledged vote, in order that the President's choice might head the party in the senate.

The slim victory by no means patched the obvious party rift. Even the administration admitted that the President's Supreme court bill was virtually dead, even then. Vice President Garner visited Sen. Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, leader of the opposition forces, and invited the opposition, which it was believed had enough votes to recommit the substitute court bill to the judiciary committee, to draft a new bill.

President Roosevelt then told Senators Barkley and Harrison at the White House that four measures "must" be passed before the January session: The minimum wage, maximum hours and child labor bill; the new AAA and eye-normal granary bill; the Wagner housing bill, and legislation to plug loopholes in the federal tax laws. Congress was all for quick adjournment, the President was told. The possibility of adjourning congress, then recalling it in special session in the late fall, with committees continuing to function in the interim, was then discussed, but what agreement had been reached was not announced.

A Citizen Takes His Pen

CRUSHING blow to the President's court program, delivered at the time it hurt most, was a letter written by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York to Sen. Robert F. Wagner of that state. The letter, made public, revealed Governor Lehman's opinion "as a citizen of the state of New York" that the bill would be "contrary" to the "interests" of the people of the state. "Its enactment," the governor wrote, "would create a greatly dangerous precedent which could be availed of by future less well-intentioned administrations for the purpose of oppression or for the curtailment of the constitutional rights of our citizens."

Gov. Lehman

create a greatly dangerous precedent which could be availed of by future less well-intentioned administrations for the purpose of oppression or for the curtailment of the constitutional rights of our citizens."

Bloody Anniversary

THE Spanish civil war entered its second year. For the populations of rebel cities, the occasion was one for joyous celebration, with fiestas, bull fights and concerts the order of the day. Gen. Francisco Franco, commander of the insurgent forces, publicly proclaimed it a "year of triumph." He ordered that all communications and public documents for the next twelve months be dated as of "the second year of triumph."

In the first "year of triumph," more than a million persons, including women and children, were killed. The insurgents claim to have taken 34 of the 50 provincial capitals of the country, and all of its colonies. They have captured six of the eleven cities of more than 100,000 inhabitants: Seville, Malaga, Bilbao, Saragossa, Cordoba and Granada.

The rebels lost little time in attempting to regain their losses around Madrid. Franco unleashed the full power of his main army of 160,000 in a drive to recapture Brunete and other suburbs of the loyalist stronghold; they were met by at least 250,000 defending government troops. Every weapon of war except gas was used. There was hand-to-hand fighting in the trenches and the greatest use of artillery since the World War as the fiercest battle of the Spanish conflict raged. The battle was opened by a spectacular aerial fight as the world has seen in years; insurgents were reported to have lost 27 planes against only four for the loyalists.

If there were any definite gains made in a week's fighting, they were probably on the side of the insurgents, observers reported, although the government estimated the rebels had lost 10,000 men.

Japs Maul U. S. Women

ASSAULT upon two American women by sentries in the Japanese embassy in Peiping brought vigorous protests, both orally and in writing, from the United States embassy. The two women, Mrs. Helen R. Jones of Detroit and Miss Carol Lathrop of Washington, D. C., were walking through the embassy when sentries charged them from behind sandbag barricades. While one sentry kicked Miss Lathrop in the side, another held off Mrs. Jones with the flat of his bayonet. When the women were released they were roughly shoved, Mrs. Jones being forcefully kicked from behind.

The Two Classes of Overweight

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

YOU may read from time to time about the "different kinds of obesity-overweight," and if you are overweight you may wonder to which class you belong.

As a matter of fact there are only two classes of overweight, and while they have odd names their meaning is very simple.

The first class is the exogenous—"ex" meaning "out of," and "gen" meaning "beginning,"—beginning that is, the cause of the overweight begins outside the body. Thus taking extra food and not taking enough exercise is the common or usual type of exogenous overweight. It usually comes on with the ease and contentment of middle life.

The second class is the endogenous—"en" within, and "gen" meaning "beginning,"—beginning within the body, which results from some gland disturbance or deficiency within the body. The glands at fault are the thyroid in the neck, pituitary lying on the floor of the skull, and the generative glands. Each gland has its own type of overweight but sometimes the overweight may be due to a deficiency in two or more of these glands.

When the thyroid gland in the neck is not manufacturing enough juice there is an increase of weight in all parts of the body. It is six times as frequent in women as it is in men. "The onset may occur with mental dullness, impaired memory, and obscure pains in the legs. As a result of this thyroid gland deficiency there follows an increase in the bulk of the body, with a firm inelastic swelling of the skin which is not pit on pressure."

Skin Becomes Rough.

The skin becomes dry and rough and wrinkles in the face smooth out leaving a childlike or vacant expression. The mentality, speech and bodily movements become sluggish. Constipation is usually present and the rate at which the body processes work may be from 20 to 40 per cent below normal.

In deficiency of the pituitary gland lying on the floor of the skull there is sometimes a family tendency noted, and it occurs as often in males as in females. It usually begins in the very early teens just before puberty—the age at which girls and boys are entering into manhood and womanhood. Attention to this condition is first given because of the great amount of starch and sweet foods these youngsters can eat without having any disturbance in the stomach or intestine. They have a great craving for sweets and pastries. That these youngsters are going to be plump or chunky is evident even at this age. Fortunately the mental ability remains normal and there is no lack of alertness.

An X-ray of the skull may show changes in the gland itself or the structures about it. Late in the disease there may be eye trouble, blindness, headache or vomiting.

In this type of overweight there is a great increase of fat in the shoulders, breasts, abdomen and hips, while the forearms and lower legs are slender and hands and feet usually small.

In the generative or sex gland type of overweight there is in the male wideness of the hips with also a great deposit of fat there. There is increased fat deposits under the skin of the chest, the abdomen and the hips.

Depends on Glands.

In the female there is lack of breast development and irregularity of the monthly periods.

When more than one gland is at fault such as the thyroid and the pituitary, or the pituitary and the sex glands, the symptoms will of course depend upon the glands involved.

In the treatment of overweight, as more than nine of every ten overweighters got that way from over-eating, cutting down on the food intake is the chief method of treatment if these individuals are to escape the dangers due to overweight—heart, kidney, and blood-vessel ailments. However, in addition to cutting down on the food intake these "gland" types of overweight need to take the special gland extracts under the supervision of a physician.

"Thus restricting the food or energy intake to less than the requirements of the body, and increasing the energy requirements by exercise, the reserve energy deposits of the body (where fat has greatly accumulated) are used to supply the required energy that is lacking in the food; thus, demands are made upon the fat deposits of the body, and so the fat is consumed."

It would be well therefore if you think you are not the "common" variety of overweight (due to over-eating and underexercising) to consult your family physician who by examination, metabolism and X-ray tests will be able to place you in your right class.

"Triple-Barreled Thrill"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Here's a yarn that packs thrills enough to last through a whole night. At least, it did for Mrs. Dorothy Murphy. Many years ago, Dorothy was living on a farm in the Chestnut Ridge section near the little town of Dover Plains, N. Y. She set out to drive to the railroad station three miles away, and before she got back she'd had enough adventures to last a life-time.

That was in February, 1914. Dorothy was just eighteen years old and going under her maiden name of Dorothy Daily. Her aunt had been spending two weeks with the family and it was she whom Dorothy drove to the train on that cold February evening. Automobiles weren't so common then. What Dorothy drove was a surrey, drawn by an old, half-blind horse named Brownie.

The train pulled out of Dover Plains at 6:45 p. m., and Dorothy turned the horse around and headed for home. Already it was dark—a moonless, starless night. The way back lay along a steep, rough, unfenced country road that climbed for nearly three miles before it reached Chestnut Ridge. On one side of it lay thick woods covering an upward slope of the ground, and on the other was a steep declivity. For part of the distance, that declivity straightened out into a tall cliff. And there was nothing to prevent a carriage from going over it if it approached too close to its edge.

That was Dorothy's first thrill—the prospect of driving over that road in the dark. She hadn't thought darkness would fall so soon that night, and she was scared stiff of that cliff. As she drove along, and the darkness deepened, she couldn't see her hand before her face, and she gave Brownie a free rein, hoping that his instincts would keep him on the road.

Thoughts While Hurting Through Space.

They were going along the top of that cliff, and all was going well. And then, all of a sudden, Dorothy felt the wheels slipping over the edge. Poor, half-blind old Brownie had failed her. He had gone too close to the edge! The surrey gave a sudden lurch and Dorothy was thrown out into space!

Says Dorothy: "I clutched at the air as it slid past me, like a drowning man clutches at straws. My hands grabbed some bushes growing out from the side of the cliff and I hung on for all I was worth. And there I was, between earth and air, and with nothing to save me from death on the rocks below but my precarious hold on those shrubs."

Dorothy says that time has no meaning under such circumstances. The minutes seemed like years. Her arms were aching and her head was swimming. She could hear Brownie and the surrey wandering off in the darkness. Evidently the old horse had pulled the surrey back on the road after she had been thrown out. For a terrible moment she clung to the bushes, and then her fingers encountered a branch of a small tree growing along the side of the cliff.

"I was afraid I'd grow weak or faint."

She caught it with one hand—then the other—and drew herself up over the cliff to safety. She lay on the ground for a while, sick and weak. Then, having recovered a little, she got up and stumbled to the road.

The Big Thrill Was Yet to Come.

Brownie and the surrey were nowhere in sight. Dorothy started walking toward home. You'd think she'd had enough adventuring for one night—but the big thrill hadn't even started. She had only walked a few steps when she heard a sound that froze her blood in her veins—the baying and yelping of dogs.

Dogs don't sound so dangerous—but Dorothy knew better. A short time before she had seen the body of a boy who had been killed and partially eaten by these same dogs. They were wild animals—descendants of dogs who had run away from their masters to live in the woods and had reverted to type. Every once in a while, in those days, packs of that sort appeared in the woods in various places throughout the country. And they still do, in wild, outlying regions.

A single dog would run at the sight of a man, but in a pack, and in the middle of winter when they were half starved, they would attack almost anyone. Dorothy knew all too well what would happen if this pack caught up with her. She turned, stumbling, into the woods and ran until she found a tree.

It was a tree with a low fork of its branches—one she could climb. She began pulling herself up into it. The yelping of the pack was coming nearer and nearer. She wasn't a minute too soon. She had hardly clambered into the lower branches when they were on the spot, yelping and snarling at the bottom of the tree.

She Couldn't Understand Why There Was No Help.

"And there I was," she says, "perched in the tree while the hunger-maddened brutes howled and snarled below. I still turn sick and cold all over when I think of that moment. The worst part of it was that I was afraid I'd grow weak or faint, or so numb from the cold that I'd fall out. I knew what would happen then."

Hour after hour Dorothy clung to that tree, wondering why her folks didn't miss her and come looking for her. Wondering why they didn't realize something was wrong when the horse and buggy came home without her. She didn't know that old Brownie, turning completely around in his struggles to haul the surrey back on the road, had wandered back to town and was spending the night in an open horse shed. Her folks thought Dorothy had decided to spend the night with relatives in town, as she often did, so they didn't worry. And all that night, she crouched in the tree racked by the cold and harried by terrible fears.

As the first streaks of gray appeared in the sky, the dogs slunk off through the woods, and when she thought it was safe she came down and crawled to the road. She couldn't walk, but a farmer, driving to the milk depot, found her in the road and brought her home.

Dorothy says she's written this story for us other adventurers to read, but she adds, "Usually, I don't think of it if I can help it."

Third of Australia in Tropics

More than one-third of Australia, or 1,149,000 square miles, lies within the tropics. The remainder, 1,825,000 square miles, is within the temperate zone. Australia, being an island, is less subject to weather extremes than are regions of similar area in other parts of the world. Latitude for latitude, it is more temperate, the extreme range of temperatures in the shade in summer and winter over a very large area. Over the greater part of the Commonwealth the climate is similar to that of California, Southern France or Italy.

The Lachine Rapids

La Chine means China in French. The Chevalier de La Salle set out for the West (and China and the Orient) from a spot near the Lachine rapids. After his failure to reach the Orient, his enemies named the spot and the rapids "La Chine" in derision.

Horseshoe as Headdress

In early days, the horseshoe was regarded as the mystic sign of the female creator. The headdress of Isis, Egyptian goddess, was a horseshoe, and in India temples were constructed on a horseshoe plan.

WITH BANNERS

By Emilie Loring

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Reyburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Armada Dane. Unwittingly she overhears Jed talking to Trent, nephew of Mrs. Dane who has been disinherited. Mrs. Dane had lived at Lookout House, a huge structure by the sea, built by her father and divided into two, for her and Mark's father. Brooke had been a fashion expert, and Mrs. Dane, a "shut-in," hearing her on the radio, had invited her to call and developed a deep affection for her. Mark discloses that Mrs. Dane had threatened to disinherit him if he married Lola, from whom he is now divorced. He says he does not trust Henri and Clotilde Jacques, Mrs. Dane's servants. He says he is not interested in an offer of Brooke's to share the estate with him. Leaving her department store job, Brooke refuses an offer to "go sleeping with Jerry Field, a carefree young man who wants to marry her. At a family conference she learns she must live at Lookout House alone, since Lucette, her younger sister who is losing her job, her brother, Sam, a young playwright, and her mother plan to stay in the city. Jed and Mark are astounded when they hear from Mrs. Gregory, a friend of her mother's, that she needed a hitherto unknown will with Henri and Clotilde two weeks before Mrs. Dane died. Brooke had arrived just as she was leaving. Jed suggests that Mark open his part of Lookout House to get friendly with Brooke and try to find out about the will. Jed agrees to stay with him. Mark accepts Brooke's invitation for a family Thanksgiving dinner at Lookout. Mrs. Reyburn announces on Thanksgiving eve that she has been invited to England. Sam and Lucette decide to move in with Brooke and Sam plans to produce a play locally. After the Thanksgiving dinner Brooke tells Mark that little of Mrs. Dane's silver collection is left. Jerry Field and his sister Daphne drop in and announce they will be neighbors for the winter. Sam adds them to the cast of his play. Later Inspector Harrison of the local police visits Mark and is informed about the missing will and silver. As Harrison leaves, Lola arrives. She announces that she and her new husband, Bert Hunt, have started a neighborhood filling station. Mark almost makes a break about the missing will and Brooke is suspicious. Returning home, she sees Lola talking covertly to Henri. "Mr. Miceawber," Mrs. Dane's pet parrot, is missing. Henri is ugly and warns Brooke she had better like him and Clotilde.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

She reached the question and a door at the same time. As Mark Trent opened it, a slightly musty smell, a blend of camphor and old books and ancient furniture, stole out. He motioned with the flash in his hand. Brooke's eyes followed the light. She set her teeth hard in her lips to keep back an exclamation of astonishment. On a large table, illuminated by the spotlight, surrounded by boxes and trunks and storeroom litter, was a massive tea-service and perhaps a dozen dishes and pitchers of silver, tarnished to a light copper color. A scrap of paper drifted to the floor.

"It's a great hide-out, isn't it?" She nodded in answer to the low, amused question.

"When did you discover it?"

"Thought I heard strange sounds upstairs when Jed and I were waiting for you in the living-room the other afternoon. The Japs' rooms are in the L on the first floor, and when I had this house opened I told the caretaker not to touch the third. After you and Mrs. Gregory left, I investigated and found this silver. I've been on the watch ever since to discover who put it here. This afternoon someone slipped a cog, and left both keys; must have been frightened off, or else they were left purposely so that a second party might have access to the loot."

"Who put the loot, as you call it, in that room?"

"That's what you and I will find out."

"That 'you and I' was fuse to dynamite. Brooke leaned back against the balustrade.

"You will, you mean, you and your sleuth Jed Stewart. You and he are spies, aren't you? Amateur detectives. 'Mark, to you,' you say to Sam, and all the time you are spying on his sister and accusing her of 'undue influence,' of hypnotizing an old woman into leaving her a fortune. I ought to have known what you thought of me when you said that. I do now. Find out who stole the silver. You've put Inspector Harrison on the case, haven't you? I wish you luck."

She jerked her wrist free and ran down the stairs. She stopped at the foot of them. A tirade like that she had just delivered took one's breath for a minute. Why, why had she let Mark the Magnificent know that she suspected his reason for occupying the house? She, who had prided herself on her self-control in business? Why couldn't she be diplomatic? Her outrageous temper was the answer. Thank Heaven she had had sense enough not to tell him of Henri's threat that he could put her out of Lookout House.

A sound! Someone had touched the knob on the other side of the door! Had the person remembered that both keys had been left? Now—now Mark and she would find out who had taken the silver.

Stealthily she touched the button and plunged the top floor into darkness. She raced up the stairs. Caromed into Mark Trent coming out of the storeroom. She clutched his sleeve; whispered:

"Shut the door! Quick! Someone is fumbling at the hall key. Perhaps he'll come for this one."

He held her by one arm as he noiselessly closed the door. In the dark he drew her into another room. Side by side they waited. Brooke's heart shook her body. How could the man so near her help hearing it thump in the tomblike silence?

A spot of light. Creeping up! Creeping up! Her breath caught in a gasp. An arm slipped round her shoulders and held her so close that the scent of the crushed gardenias was sickish.

"Sach! Mustn't let him know we are here!" Mark Trent whispered.

The spot of light illumined the key in the door, illumined the black-gloved hand which gently turned it and as gently drew it out.

Mark Trent felt the hard beating of the girl's heart as his arm tightened about her shoulders, the softness of her skin against his hand. He didn't dare release her for fear she might make a sound and reveal their presence to the unknown person in the hall. What a good little sport she was. She had followed him into his house with no embarrassment, but with a modern girl's interpretation of propriety, her ignoring of outworn conventions. Just the same, he wished fervently that she was back in her own living-room in that chair before the fire, for there was no dodging the fact that black-gloved fingers had withdrawn the key from the lock. To whom had they belonged? The words on the scrap of paper he had picked up from the floor of the storeroom and replaced on the table teased his mind.

"Make X on cover when—"

That was all. What cover? Much as he wanted to know, he couldn't let Brooke Reyburn get mixed up in the mess. When he had discovered the silver, his first thought had been of her and the thrill she would get from seeing it. If he hadn't brought her, he would be on the man's neck by this time.

It seemed hours that he stood rigid, listening, with the only sound the underground roar of a great city, and the girl's unsteady breathing. He strained his ears. Was a door being closed cautiously, or was his imagination playing tricks? He must find out. He couldn't stay here forever. He put his mouth close to Brooke's ear. He felt the softness of her hair against his face.

"Don't move. Don't speak. I'll come back."

Whenever in after life he smelled the fragrance of a gardenia, he would remember this night, he told himself.

He took a cautious step into the hall. Listened. The house was so quiet that he could hear the tick of the old clock on the stairs. He tiptoed to the door of the room in which he had found the silver and ran his fingers lightly over the knob. The key was gone.

He felt his way down; he didn't dare use the flash. The lamp in the lower hall provided a faint light. Gently he turned the knob of the connecting door. It was locked. Someone had followed him down the stairs! He felt a presence. Fool, not to have suspected that an accomplice might be hidden in the dark. He must get back to her no matter who was between them.

He wheeled with pantherlike agility. Raised his flashlight to bring it crashing down on a head.

"Mark! Mark!"

It was Brooke Reyburn's voice, her hand on his arm. The stiffening went out of his knees. Relief was submerged in a mighty rush of anger as he gripped her shoulders.

"What do you mean by coming down when I told you not to move? What do you mean? I might have struck you!"

"But you didn't, Mark. I felt like a quitter hiding in the dark while you came down alone, so I crept after you. What did you see?"

"Nothing here—but the door is locked."

"A black-gloved hand did pull the key from the storeroom door, didn't it? I didn't dream it, did I?"

"If you did, I was in the same dream. Brooke. Wonder when they intend to remove the stuff."

"You think someone is planning to take it away?"

"Why else should it be there? It probably was moved from Lookout House to this one, which has been unoccupied for years, before I came back here to live. After Aunt Mary Amanda went, I was the only person who would know about the silver, and I was far away in South America. That's why Henri's face turned chalky when he saw me enter your living-room on Thanksgiving day."

"Then you noticed it too? I thought it might be my imagination."

"He was white, all right. Come on, we can't get back to Lookout House through this door. We'd better beat it downstairs and out that way. Lucky I pocketed your key."

"Hurry! Hurry! Suppose it was Henri who left those keys in the doors? Suppose he remembered that he had left them and stole back from the movies? I told him that you and Jed Stewart would be with us for supper after rehearsal. He may be looking for me now to see if I was telling the truth."

In the lower hall, which was slightly opened by the smoky aroma of open fires, Mark laid a detaining hand on her shoulder.

"Wait! Listen!"

The stillness of the high-ceilinged rooms was accentuated by the low moan of the wind at the corner of the house, by the muted thunder of the sea, by the sharp crackle of a burning log; was haunted by the weird wail of the distant siren, but no human sound intruded.

"Coast's clear. Let's go. Hold on!" Mark Trent frowned at her bare arms and throat, ivory tinted above the lace of her frock. "You need a wrap."

"To go from one door to another! Don't be foolish. If we don't hurry, Henri may get there before us."

In the green-walled living-room at Lookout House, Mark Trent threw a log on the smoldering fire and poked it into flame.

"Come here and get warm, Brooke. You are still shivering."

"If I am, it is from excitement, not cold." She toasted her fingers at the blaze. What do we do next?"

"Watchful waiting seems our best bet."

"You would say that."

"I don't like the implication, but we'll let that ride—for the present. What move would you suggest?"

"I don't know, but let's do something. I hate sitting on the sidelines. I hate waiting. First we must find out who took the key from the storeroom door. If you hadn't held me, I would have dashed at him and found out."

"I had a hunch you would; that's why I grabbed you. Afraid I crushed your gardenia."

Brooke put her hand to her shoulder. "They're gone! Where could I have lost them?"

"Don't make a tragedy of it. I'll get you another."

Mark Trent had never seen brown eyes so flamingly gold, cheeks so red as Brooke's.

"I'm not making a tragedy of it, and I don't want another gardenia. For an amateur detective—amateur is the word with a capital A—you are dense, Mark Trent. Suppose the person in the attic went back for something and picked them up? Wouldn't he know at once that he was being watched?"

"I thought of that so—I brought this along." He held a flower in the palm of his hand. The once waxen petals were brown at the edges, but they had the feel of velvet in his fingers. "You don't want it now, do you?" He slipped it back into his pocket. "I'll keep it as a souvenir of our late dive into the underworld."

"I do want it and the other too."

"Because Field gave them to you? I don't know where the other is; didn't realize that there were two. You dropped this as you came into this house. Better let me keep it. Would you want him to know that it had been crushed out of shape against my shoulder?"

"Just why should Jerry assume that it was your shoulder against which the gardenia was crushed? You are not the only man in my life, you know," Brooke reminded disdainfully.

"I intend to keep the flower."

Mark Trent felt the color surge to his hair and recede. He had caught back to back in time.

"I haven't had a chance, Brooke, to tell you how ridiculous Mrs. Hunt's suggestion was—that I had any thought of trying to keep Aunt Mary Amanda's money in the family by—"

"Why stumble over it? Why tell me again that you wouldn't marry me? This is the second time. First in Jed Stewart's office and now here. To save a third attempt to impress the fact on me, I'll tell you that I wouldn't marry you if you were the only man in the world. Divorced men leave me cold. Sometime perhaps I'll have the privilege of refusing to marry you."

He knew now the sensation of a knife being plunged into his heart. He drew the gardenia from his pocket and dropped it into her lap.

"Here it is. Water may revive it."

She twirled the stem in her fingers.

"It is past recovery." She flung it into the wastebasket. "She flung it into the wastebasket. 'She' flung it for rejuvenated gardenias any more than I care for warmed-over love. That sounds like a car. Can they have come so soon?"

"Better not speak of what we discovered," Mark suggested hastily, as she started for the hall.

She left the room without answering. He salvaged the flower and thrust it into his pocket. He was not keeping it for sentimental reasons, he assured himself, but as a reminder of how near he had come to forgetting that all he had to offer a girl was "warmed-over" love.

Sam Reyburn entered the living-room and flung his blue covered script to the table. He dropped into the wing chair with a groan. Voices in the hall thinned in the distance. Mark Trent could distinguish Jerry Field's laugh, Lucette's rather high-pitched tone, Brooke's questioning murmur, and Daphne's drawl. He looked at the dejected figure in the chair, at the long legs outstretched.

"What's wrong, Sam? Aren't you home early?"

"What's wrong with you, you're white as a sheet?"

"I'm okay, it's these artistic lights that play the dickens with one's color. Didn't Stewart and the rest of the cast come with you?"

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL

By Carter Field

Washington. — There is more than a possibility that the wages and hours bill will go over until the next session of congress. The probability right along has been that it would be enacted, in some form, but the difficulties are great, the lines of thought which must be reconciled are wide apart, and the number of men in both houses who would like to see the thing put over is very large.

It includes the new chairman of the house labor committee, Mary T. Norton of Jersey City, who succeeded to the chairmanship on the death of William P. Connery of Massachusetts.

If it were not for the Supreme court enlargement bill fight in the senate, the situation might be different. But all house members know that the senate is not going to have much time this session to fool with the wages and hours bill, and they know perfectly well that the senate is not going to rush through any bill which the house may agree on without extensive debate.

The thought of the house, therefore, is that if they do a tremendous job, surrender principles and opinions in compromises to get something through and perhaps put themselves on record on things which may prove very embarrassing later—the whole thing may be wasted. The senate just might decide not to take the bill up this session.

The house members know that the wages and hours regulation bill is a subject on which there will be widely varied opinions back in their districts, with more than a probability that there may be considerable numbers of their constituents to whom it just is the most important measure on which congress will vote. By the same token, some one of these groups may be so outraged by their congressman's vote on this bill that they will be inclined to vote against him at the next primary and election regard-

Danger Multiplied

There is always the possibility of this sort of thing on any controversial legislation. But in the wages and hours measure this danger is multiplied. It is a thing which touches the lives and pocketbooks, in one way or another, of a far larger proportion of people than the average measure. In fact, there is probably more selfish interest in it than any other legislation which congress is called upon to consider at this session.

Voters ought to be equally interested in a tax bill, for of course every one's pocketbook is affected by that, but there is quite a large percentage of voters who do not believe that their pocketbooks are affected by a tax bill.

In the case of this wages and hours bill it is not the outright opponents of the measure who threaten to postpone action on it. As a matter of fact, the number of outright opponents is so small as to be futile against the steam-roller tactics possible, especially in the house. It is just people who do not want to take any unnecessary chance, if they are sure that taking the chance at this time will do no particular good.

Moreover, there are a lot of members of the house who think that the sensible thing for them to do while the senate is wrangling over the Supreme court enlargement bill is to take a nice long recess, with a gentlemen's agreement that nothing will be done and no roll calls forced before a certain day. That would give a lot of them a chance to go home, or to the seashore, or perhaps even to Europe.

Deep, Dark Stuff

Two jobs are going on under the surface at Capitol Hill—while the senate engages in a debate on the merits and demerits—or at least that is what the debate is supposed to be about—of the Supreme court enlargement bill.

One of these is an attempt to compromise that measure itself. One of the compromises being talked about might easily be acceptable to most of the opponents of the measure—but the administration is not ready to accept that yet. It may never accept it, for the odds would seem to favor the administration's being able to break the filibuster if it continues to press for such a consummation, with no regard whatever for consequences.

The other job is determining, in private conferences between senators and representatives, the fate of several other important measures, which, under the stringent rules being enforced in the effort to break the cloture, cannot be discussed seriously on the floor. That is, under the strict letter of the rules it cannot. Actually no attempt has ever been made, during past filibusters, to enforce the rule that a speaker must confine himself to the subject.

The answer is simple. It would not make any difference. Filibust-ers are not broken because those taking part in them run out of things to say. They are broken for two reasons. Sometimes the physical strain on the participants becomes too great. They give out physically—not for lack of ideas. The other is when the country becomes aroused against the endless talking, shows plainly that its sympathies are the other way, and thereby deprives the filibusters of an incentive to go on.

No Good Anyway

There is no hint of either of these things yet. So it would really do no good for the administration group to clap down on some time-killing speaker with a demand that he stop discussing, for example, the wages and hours bill.

For that is one of the things that is being flaked about under the surface more than anything else. So far no accord has been reached. Some of the participants in the conferences are still worrying about regional differentials—whether employees can be worked longer hours and paid smaller wages in the South than in the North. Others are worried about exemptions, the latest decision of the administration apparently being that there are to be none.

Then there is always the government reorganization bill. There is general agreement among congressmen that President Roosevelt can have his additional secretaries. There is a willingness to give him several other things he wants. But the measure is not going to pass in toto as the President wants it—far from it.

Just for instance, the army engineers are not going to have their powers even jeopardized, much less threatened. And that is only one. There are a lot more. There may be one more cabinet position, but not the two more the President wishes.

But the details of both the government reorganization and the wages and hours bills are still under discussion—in the cloakrooms, in offices, and even at parties. That is usually the rule during some big filibuster which has reached the stage, as this has, where no other business will be permitted by the side trying to break the talkfest.

And it still looks like an October adjournment!

Make Up! Not Yet

John L. Lewis and William Green are not going to kiss and make up before Christmas, no matter what authentic sounding gossip you may hear to that effect. Neither is Franklin D. Roosevelt going to repudiate Lewis, no matter how much he quotes that "Platue on both your houses." Neither is on the cards.

Eventually, the probability is that the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization will unite. But not for some time to come. Not this good year of 1937. It is much too soon. There is too much face-saving to be done first, and the time for the face-saving gestures is not yet.

For either to make any gesture now would be construed by too many of their followers as a sign of weakness. For Lewis to make the move would deter certain important unions which are thinking of jumping the old organization to one that promises more action. It would cool the enthusiasm of so many budding unions about to affiliate with C. I. O.

For Green to make the move would be construed by too many as not merely a sign of weakness, but virtually as a surrender.

But even the die-hards on both sides know that inevitably something must bring about peace. For the time being there is considerable advantage in the present setup—from the standpoint of organized labor.

Reminiscence

Actually the present situation is reminiscent of the bitterness which raged, back in the Wilson administration, between the two groups of women who were fighting for woman suffrage. In this comparison the C. I. O. is like the Woman's party, headed by vibrant Alice Paul, the American Federation being like the dignified but rather ineffective association headed by Carrie Chapman Catt. Mrs. Catt's group had just as many arguments and a great deal more money, but it was terribly sedate. Mrs. Catt worried a great deal about what was the proper thing to do. Alice Paul kept the "cause" on the front pages. She had women picketing the White House, dropping banners over house of representatives galleries when the President was addressing congress, always was exciting.

The Woman's party did things and put things over. It obtained the submission of the woman suffrage amendment and its ratification by three-fourths of the states at a time when any candid observer will admit that the great majority of the country did not care two whoops whether women had the right to vote or not. It literally heckled the thing through.

Most people have forgotten how bitter the feud was between the two groups of women. Most people twenty years hence will have forgotten the present bitterness between the Federation and the C. I. O. No mere difference between the craft plan and the one union for each industry idea is going to keep the two big organizations apart. But personalities will, for many months to come. Though if the feud lasts until the presidential election in 1940 it will surprise most of the insiders.

WHAT WILL THE HARVEST BE?

During the last few years of the reign of National Prohibition it upon the "noble experiment", and upon all those who championed the dry cause.

This was part of an organized campaign to break down the law and to bring back the reign of the liquor interests. This campaign succeeded and large areas of the country became legally wet.

The practice of deriding prohibition is being kept alive as far as the liquor interests and the leading wets can keep it alive.

But facts are stubborn things, and they have a peculiar way of getting into the newspapers, sometimes into even the wettest of the wet daily press.

Last Friday, a story coming from New York under a date line of July 22, was printed in many of the daily papers, from which we quote a few paragraphs.

"The two-listed drinkers or tomorrow will be girls instead of men. As it is, the girls are drinking now just as much as the men, a New York University survey disclosed Wednesday, but they are increasing their individual consumption much faster than the males.

"The survey, undertaken by Dr. Paul Studenski, economics professor at N.Y.U., covered the drinking habits of 2,379 young persons in New York state. It showed among other things that 63.9 per cent of New York City women students in the age group between 18 and 21 have increased their hard liquor consumption in the last two years, while only 43.7 per cent of the men reported an increase.

"Sixty-five percent of those questioned said their parents did not object to their drinking.

"It was found that in settlement house districts 83 per cent admitted drinking, while 89 per cent of New York students drink and 94 per cent of the white collar youths use liquor regularly.

"Most agreed that bars promote excessive drinking. About one-third thought drinking interfered with their work and two-thirds thought it did not.

"The survey was prepared for the social study committee of the National Conference of State Liquor Control Administration."

If this seemingly fair and unbiased report is a reasonably accurate portrayal of the drinking habits of the people of New York and other dripping wet centers, we are wondering what the harvest will be. Are we to become a nation of drunkards? Knowing that we reap what we sow, the conclusion is inevitable that by the time the shadows of old age shall begin to gather above the heads of this generation of young people, innumerable inebriates, "sots," will again fill the back alleys and the gutters as in pre-Volsted days.

As sure as we flood our country with the seeds of drink, just so sure will we reap a terrible harvest of drunkards.

It is now evident to everybody that President Roosevelt made a great political blunder in continuing to urge the passage of the Supreme Court reorganization bill after so much opposition developed. Especially was it unwise to insist upon its passage when it became evident that it could not be passed without causing a serious rift in the Democratic party. As many of us see it, he made an unpardonable blunder in proposing such a measure in the first place. The people of this country are not yet willing for any President, it makes no difference, how able and patriotic he may be, to dominate the other two branches of this government. Especially are they not willing for him to make the courts subservient to his will. His insistence on this legislation in the face of the fact that practically all the decisions of the courts on New Deal measures in recent months had upheld their constitutionality, laid him open to the charge that he craved the power of a dictator. It was a monstrous proposition in the first place and deserved the defeat that it sustained.

It will soon become the duty of President Roosevelt to appoint a member of the Supreme Court to succeed Justice Van Devanter, who recently resigned. There have been strong intimations that two other members of the court may resign at an early date, in which event the President will enjoy the privilege of appointing three new members. Since we now have only one Southern man on this court, Justice McReynolds, we hope that the President may select a Southern man to succeed Van Devanter. If not, surely he will select a Southerner to fill one of the positions that promise to become vacant soon. There are already three New Yorkers on the Court. Whoever is appointed should be an able lawyer and jurist, a man of the highest integrity, and a citizen thoroughly imbued with American ideals.

What we need in this state just now is another Jim Hogg. He defied and whipped the big corporations. If general report is true the legislature for many years has been teeming with corporation lawyers who never fail to look out after the interests of their clients. It's probably useless to mention it until some second Jim Hogg does arise, but we need a law that will prohibit a man from representing any public service corporation, except banks and other local concerns, while ostensibly representing the people in a legislative capacity. These corporation lawyers should be driven out of the House and Senate at Austin.

We have recently read the law enacted by the legislature a few weeks ago which undertakes to prohibit advertising by dentists and have given it just a little study. While it was adroitly drawn in an effort to evade the Constitutional guarantee of a free press, we still believe that it is unconstitutional. Yes, in our humble opinion, which we concede is not entitled to much weight, we believe that it is unconstitutional from several standpoints. Governor Allred and Bill McGraw to the contrary notwithstanding. It does not go into effect until January 1, 1938, but we may expect it to get into court soon thereafter. We predict that the courts will kill it dead as Hector.

MONKEY BUSINESS

Since Elder R. P. Drennon in his little write-up last week hurled a couple of pebbles at the editor and the postmaster, and since Hap has been in bed and unable to defend himself, it has been suggested that the editor make some sort of reply to the preacher's monkey business. The only thing that we have to say is that we have been wondering how the preacher managed to "escape from the zoo after being securely locked up inside. And we are also wondering how many of the other animals also escaped.

If Jimmie Allred has made a single bad mistake as governor yet it has not been called to our attention—unless it was that mistake he made in signing the dentist anti-advertising bill.

YELLS MAKING OF THE FIVE MINUTE CAKE
 The Tahoka Club met in the home of Mrs. Chas. Nelms at 4:00 o'clock Wednesday for a muffin making demonstration.

We should serve the Five Minute Cake on busy days as it is so easily made:

- 2 cups cake flour.
 - 3 teaspoons baking powder.
 - ¼ teaspoon salt.
 - 1 cup sugar.
 - 3 eggs.
 - 2-3 cup milk.
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla.
 - ½ cup butter (melted).
- Mix and sift dry ingredients, beat the eggs and add to the milk, extract, and melted butter and combine well. Turn the milk mixture into the floured mixture and stir until blended. Bake in two layers in a moderate oven (350 degrees F) for 20 minutes-25 minutes. This may be baked in muffin tins or cup cakes.

To dress up the muffins to make children-like them, sprinkle the top with coconut before baking, or sprinkle the top with powdered sugar after they are baked.

Next meeting will be at the Legion Hall at 4 o'clock.

Those present were: Mmes. James Connolly, Clay Bennett; A. C. Weaver, W. S. Taylor, R. W. Fenton Sr., Cecil Shaw, Mill Finch, W. S. Anglin, J. O. Patterson, Jack Corley, and Chas. Nelms.

MUFFIN DEMONSTRATION IS GIVEN AT WILSON

Muffins should be uniform in size and very light in weight, according to the muffin demonstration given by Mrs. M. J. Scaer to the Wilson Home Demonstration Club at the home of Mrs. W. H. May July 21.

Muffins should have uniform air spaces, but not tunnels. The batter should not be beaten after the flour is added, but mixed only enough to moisten the dry ingredients. The batter should be put into the pans at once but may be baked later.

Mrs. P. D. Server was appointed as council delegate in place of Mrs. M. J. Scaer, who is moving away.

The club voted to have a party for the husbands August 25. Mrs. J. W. Brown was a visitor. Members present were: Mmes. M. C. Brandon, P. D. Server, Earl Cummings, S. A. Cummings, W. H. May, B. W. Baker, M. J. Scaer, and S. G. Anthony.

DEMONSTRATION ON MUFFINS GIVEN BY MRS. F. F. TAYLOR

Mrs. F. F. Taylor was asked to give the demonstration on making muffins, at Mrs. I. M. Draper's July 21, to the Midway Home Demonstration club.

Some time was spent in preparation of entertainment for the encampment on July 22. Mesdames G. A. Edwards, Pete Curry and I. M. Draper will represent the club at the encampment.

Mesdames Scott and Edd Davis of Tahoka were visitors. Members present were: Mesdames Sam H. Floyd, R. B. Floyd, G. A. Edwards, Rufus Slover, I. M. Draper and Pete Curry.

Charley Thompson, one of the promoters of the new town of Bennett, Yoakum county, reports that in spite of the fact that the auction sale of town lots was postponed, they sold quite a number of lots last Friday. The purchasers were residents of Tahoka, Lubbock, San Angelo, Abilene, Olney, Crowell, Benjamin, Knox City, and other places. Mr. Thompson also says that the new well brought in Sunday night near Bennett promises to be a good one.

W. S. Anglin and family left Thursday afternoon for a few days visit with relatives in Comanche county.

Mrs. Bessie Beard of Kiowa, Oklahoma, and her son Ernest of Eldorado, Arkansas, were here last week visiting A. T. Beard and family, John Beard and family, and Paul and Belton Howell and families. Mrs. Beard is the widow of Clayton Beard, former county treasurer of Lynn county, who died while holding that office about the year 1917.

1939 NEW YORK FAIR'S TWO MILE AMUSEMENT LOOP

NEW YORK (Special).—"The 1939 New York World's Fair has planned to have the largest area and the greatest number and variety of amusements ever provided for any exposition in the world," announces Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation. "but let it be understood, too, that we are already assured of producing a fair that will be remembered for its bold treatment of today's problems and for its path-finding to the World of Tomorrow."
The accompanying photograph shows the design of the Fair's two-mile, 280-acre amusement zone as released at the time of Mr. Whalen's announcement. The sector is being laid out with a greater visitor capacity than that of any amusement park in the world. Following an entirely new pattern that lends itself to the development of new and novel amusement and entertainment features, the sector is featured by the two-mile looped thoroughfare, flanked on one side by a continuous facade 70 feet high and on the other by the more open and landscaped area extending to the east shore of Meadow Lake.

The upper end of the lake-shore region will be dominated by a $1,600,000 State amphitheatre with a marine stage for presentation of aquatic shows, operas, pageants and extravaganzas of all sorts. On the far side of the lake, as sketched, will be every conceivable kind of show, spectacle, device, ride, and eating place.

Small Attendance At Rotary Club

Attendance at the Rotary Club Thursday was cut somewhat on account of so many members being out of town on their vacations. Three visitors were present, however: Messrs. Killman of Lubbock, Gordon McGuire Jr. of Lamesa, and Supt. M. L. H. Base of Brownfield.
Mr. Base directed the musical part of the program.
W. T. Bovell announced plans for the donkey baseball game to be played here the night of August 26.
Gordon McGuire brought a few words respecting the Lamesa club.
Frank Hill gave some information respecting the Tahoka public schools and the financial condition of the district. He stated there is a growing trend toward consolidations and grouping of school districts and that efforts are now being made by some of our neighboring towns to absorb some of the rural districts lying adjacent to the Tahoka district. This would be hurtful to Tahoka in many ways, and he expressed the opinion that the people of Tahoka should become interested in the situation that confronts them.

ELDER DRENNON'S TRAVELOGUE

I am in a fine meeting here in Grayson county, with fine interest and fair crowds.
It is real hot and the mosquitoes are bad, but as I am feasting on watermelons, grapes, peaches, and fried chicken, I think I will make it all right.
I drove through a beautiful wooded lane yesterday afternoon, thinking of how fine if I could transplant it in good old Lynn county; then I thought of the good breeze we have there that I did not have here. I decided it is best just as God has fixed it and to be satisfied, for our heavenly Father has divided the good and bad very evenly.
I am meeting many of my boyhood friends, and how old man time has written lines in their faces and turned their hair to silver and grey, which reminds me that we cannot stand still but are travelers from time to eternity, and oh to think that so many are not giving much, if any, consideration to the life beyond the river of death.

I will be home the latter part of next week for a day or two; then to Gail to begin a meeting August 1st at 11 a. m., to continue eight or nine days.
Visit the friendly church and hear Brother Foy Wallace.
I am scratching chigger and mosquito bites now.—R. P. Drennon.

We wish to thank the Soft Ball League for calling off their games, and most cordially invite them to attend our services.
We are looking forward to hearing two of your former much-loved pastors tonight, Thursday, and tomorrow night, Bros. Breedlove and Smith.
We are expecting a great week next week with Bro. Doak preaching mornings and night.
Bro. Nance is doing some very effective work in the homes and business houses.
Be with us every possible time.—Reporter.

NEW LYNN EPWORTH LEAGUE HAS GOOD PROGRAM

The New Lynn Epworth League met Sunday evening at eight o'clock, with a good attendance and an interesting program. A short business session followed in which they made plans to make the League stronger, and to gain new members. Plans for a social were also made.
We are taking this opportunity to invite every one who will, to come and be with us.

LOCALS

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Meredith and son Vernon of Augusta, Kansas, were here last week visiting their aunt, Mrs. G. W. Forsythe, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Oliver. All of them went over to see the Carlsbad Cavern and Mrs. Oliver says that the visitors were amazed and astounded at the beauty and magnificence of the Cavern, repeatedly declaring that in all their travels this is the most marvelous work of nature they have ever seen. They left here for Dallas to attend the Pan-American Exposition before returning to their home.

SLOW SERVICE

Household Helps

Do you know the proper thing to say when you sit on a wad of chewing gum?

If your suit is washable, here is the correct command—if you want to get rid of the chewing gum and not your garment:

"Bring me an egg white, some soap and some lukewarm water. Then stand back and watch me soften the gum with the egg white—so! And finally wash it completely away with the soapy water."

If your suit isn't washable, the fabric-saving element is carbon tetrachloride, which will remove all traces of stain.

The authority for these points of chewing gum etiquette is a new booklet called "Handy Helps for Homemakers," which has been prepared by a group of home economics authorities. This booklet is a convenient, compact handbook of practical remedies for the most common household problems. It is divided into four sections: laundering (which includes not only stain-removal formulae, but also detailed advice on the proper way to wash various fabrics); home lighting; heating, and cooking.

The writers of the "Handy Helps for Homemakers" booklet have confined the chapter on "Cooking" to an informative discussion of meat-selection rules, suggestions for improving actual cooking technique and a summary of the merits and problems of home canning.

A copy of the "Handy Helps for Homemakers" book can be secured by sending 5 cents to cover postage and handling to Miss Boyd, 210 S. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill.—Adv.

Sheer Wools in Summer Wardrobe

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THERE'S no doubt about it, the well-dressed woman of today knows the value of clothes that will go places and do things with the same ease and aplomb as their streamlined wearers. The up-and-about wardrobe must contain frocks and costumes that will adapt themselves with taste and comfort to any number of changing scenes and temperatures.

No matter what the season, there is something about sheer wool that does the trick. Tailored or dressmaker in style, a sheer wool costume carries with it a classic atmosphere which keeps it never too dressy for town or country, traveling or local activities. There is ever that something about the smart new light woollen ensembles, dresses and coats that bespeak that casual look of good taste that is aristocratically at home at tea or card party or any more or less social event of the day.

Wool knits, light as a feather and luxuriously soft to the touch, make charming and supremely correct sports frocks. Whether you are an agile golfer or simply a deck loungee your wool knit costume will give you a joyful feeling of freedom to take your fun as you find it. Both pastel and darker shades are too smart for sports and clever designs vary from one-piece classic styles to two-piece and jacket costumes that may be ensembled with a variety of blouses and accessories. Zephyr knits, soft wool jerseys and fine featherweight angoras are cool and comfortable, and lacy weaves in lightweight wool are unusually interesting.

Fancy shadow weaves, fascinating bright prints and embroidery motifs are cleverly emphasized by simple styling. Sheer monotones and self-plaided weaves vie with hard-twisted worsteds for first place in the tailored scene.

The adaptability of sheer wool knits is well illustrated in the slim short-sleeved frock shown to the left in the picture. The material for this dress is a featherweight angora knit in pearl gray with distinctive two-toned bands in brown and maize inserted in bolero effect in the blouse and edging the sleeves and skirt hem. The smart shirtwaist neck is finished with a row of composition buttons in maize. A deep inverted pleat in the skirt front gives plenty of action freedom.

As pictured to the right, close knit wool jersey in chic navy blue makes stunning and versatile frock for sports or spectator wear. Cut on flattering princess lines with a full-length front buttoned closing, it is cool and practical. Sleeves are full and short and neckline is high. Men's tie silk in gay red, navy and white tri-color patterning is interesting trimming. Note how attractively it is employed to outline two large plastron pockets and the round yoke treatment below a trim tailored neck.

A stunning color combination distinguishes the beautifully tailored dress and redingote ensemble of sheer wool centered in the group. Tucked treatment in bold chevron patterning accents the high-throated neckline. The dusty rose dress is topped by a full length redingote in a light olive green. Double flap hip pockets and scissor-sharp lapels are nice details.

IT'S HAND KNIT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Just imagine the joy, not to forget the comfort in wearing, any little girl will find in owning such a cute peasant hand knit dress as this. When all other frocks in little missy's wardrobe fail, being too this or that for a practical day, there just isn't anything to equal a dress knit of knit-cro-sheen, as is the model pictured. Looks not too dressy but is dressy enough, washes perfectly and is pretty in dark colors or in the charming pastels as you may choose. Doesn't take long at all to knit the cunning model pictured and the yarn costs very little. Note that it has no belt, the dress falling in a graceful princess line from the shoulders, which makes it very stylish.

SHIRTMAKER FROCKS IN COTTON, LINENS

Summer means shirtmaker frocks, and this year's crop of shirtmakers is smarter and more distinguished than ever.

Cotton, linen and silk are used to fashion useful frocks that are good for most occasions in the summer scene, especially out-of-town. New and diversified necklines bring novelty to some of the models.

Smart is a shirtmaker frock with a collarless neckline marked by tucking. The tucks continue all the way down the button-up-the-front closing.

The classic frock in striped silk is always good, as is the model in pure silk that tucks beautifully. A grand model is in dotted silk and has a fly front with enclosed zipper.

Decorative Zippers Now Used in Variety of Ways

New jeweled zippers are now being shown in use on women's wear, for fastening sweaters, bathing suits, gloves, hand bags and many other purposes. The new zippers are bound on colored tape and spaced at frequent intervals with various colored catalin ornaments resembling novelty buttons. When the zipper is closed the catalin ornaments take the place of buttons. When opened the ornaments assemble at the base of the zipper with the effect of being in a continuous piece.

Variety in Hats

Little pillbox hats that attain new summer heights indicate that the width of a chapeau is no more certain than the depth of its crown.

No Monotones

Three and four bright colors are combined for tailored cotton suits, as well as summer evening gowns.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Lesson for August 1

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 13:17-22; 14:10-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—And the Lord shall guide thee continually.—Isaiah 58:11.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Shining Cloud.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Forward March!
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How God Leads Today.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Nation Following God's Leadership.

The destinies of the nations are in the hands of God. Mighty are the warriors, learned are the advisors, clever are the diplomats, and when they have exercised all their human ingenuity and have only brought themselves and their nations to "Wits' End Corner," God must lay hold and bring order out of chaos. Happy is that people where rulers recognize God and seek his guidance.

Israel through the human instrumentality of Moses was ruled by God. He had prepared for them a leader and had prepared the people to follow that leader. Now he brings them forth out of their bondage.

I. "God Led Them" (Exod. 13:17-22).

It is significant that he did not lead them by the easy way to Canaan, by the short route through Philistia but rather led them south into the wilderness.

How often it seems to us that we could improve on God's ways. Suffering, sorrow, affliction, we would shun and would go the quick easy road, where all is bright and happy. But God's way is the best way, even though it leads through the wilderness.

His purpose for Israel was that they might not be disheartened by the warlike Philistines (v. 17). Thus it was really his loving-kindness that sent them the long way. See Prov. 14:12, and Prov. 10:29.

Another and equally important purpose of God was that the undisciplined multitude might in the trials and responsibilities of their journey through the wilderness be prepared to enter the promised land.

The miraculous pillar of cloud and fire was God's constant assurance of his presence with them.

Hardly had Israel withdrawn, and the wall over the death of the first-born in Egypt ceased when Pharaoh regretted that he had permitted his slaves to escape, and set out in pursuit. He represents the world, the flesh, and the Devil in their relentless efforts to hold back those who would follow the Lord. Making a decision for Christ, and experiencing his redemptive power does not mean that the enemy has given up. Temptations, doubts, trials, will come. When you come up out of Egypt do not be surprised if Pharaoh pursues you.

The situation could not have been more difficult. Hemmed in by the flower of Egypt's army, with the Red sea before them—a group of men not trained in warfare—with women and children to care for, and God forgotten in their disbelief and discouragement.

Moses, who was their great leader in the hour of triumph, tastes the bitterness of their hatred and unbelief in the hour of trial. A leader of men for God must know that God has called him and have faith in his almighty power, for in the time of crises he will find those whom he leads ready to condemn him. What is the solution?

III. "Stand Still" (vv. 13,14).
Sublime in his confidence in God, Moses bids the people to cease their petty complaining, to abandon their plans for saving themselves. "Stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord" (v. 13).

Perhaps these lines will be read by some Christian who is fretting and fussing, bearing all the burdens of the universe on his shoulders. Be still, my friend. God is able to care for you, and for all the burdens which you are needlessly trying to bear. Trusting God will result in real spiritual progress.

IV. "Go Forward" (v. 15).
Humanly it was impossible, but "with God all things are possible" (Mark 10:27). When every circumstance says "Stop," when the counsel of men is against attempting anything, when human leadership seems to be lacking—just at that hour God may say, "go forward."

If every true Christian who reads these words will respond to the Lord's command, "Go forward," hundreds of locked church doors will be opened, new Sunday schools will gather children to hear God's Word, men and women will be won for Christ. Let us "go forward." The God who brought Israel dry-shod through the Red sea is just the same today!

Enjoyments and Troubles
—I make the most of my enjoyments. As for my troubles, I pack them in as little compass as I can for myself and never let them annoy others.—Southey.

Faith
—Given a man of faith, and the heavenly powers behind him, and you have untold possibilities.

Right Kind of Growth
—All growth that is not toward God, is growing to decay.

Sew-Your-Own Style News

HERE is something practical, something sweet, and something ornamental for your mid-summer wardrobe.

Simple As Toast and Coffee.
At breakfast time you need the crisp shipshape style of the little model at the left. He'll proffer that eight o'clock kiss with alacrity and fervor when you greet your hubby in this pleasant surprise. Make it of a gay tub-well cotton for greatest usability.

Lines That Live.
For luncheon in town, for cutting up touches on the Club veranda you can't find a more fetching frock than the one in the center. It combines sweet swing with nonchalance. Never has a designer given more flattering shoulder and waist lines than these. "And what about the skirt?" you ask. Obviously it has the most finished flare in town. Chiffon, acetate, or sports silk will do justice to both the flare and you, Milady.

And If Autumn Comes.
It's a help to have a dress like the one at the right around for it gives that feeling of preparedness. Prepared in case a cool fallish day or evening is slipped in without warning. Then, too, it won't be long before cool days will be the rule rather than the exception. So it would seem a logical as well as a fashionable step to set about making this elegant model right away. Be first in your crowd to show what's new under the fashion sun for Fall.

The Patterns.
Pattern 1354 is designed for sizes 34 to 46. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35 inch material.
Pattern 1307 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 40 bust). Size 14 requires 3 3/4 yards of 39 inch material plus 7 1/2 yards of ribbon for trimming as pictured.
Pattern 1324 is designed for sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 3 3/4 yards of 39 inch material plus 1/2 yard contrasting, and 1 1/4 yards of ribbon for the belt and bow at the neck.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Improper Foods Cause Pellagra

Austin, Texas, July 29.—"Pellagra is a disease that is caused by not eating the right kind of food and shows itself usually by a strange kind of reddening and scaling of the skin," said Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"The person with pellagra usually suffers loss of appetite, indigestion, diarrhea, soreness of the mouth and tongue, nervousness, low spirits and more or less general weakness.

"Thousands of Texans suffer with this disease and approximately one thousand die each year. More cases appear in the spring and early summer months than at any other time of the year. This is because more people live on a restricted diet during the winter. It comes to those whose diet does not contain all that is needed to keep one in good health. The missing essentials in the diet is called the pellagra prevention factor or vitamin. We know this because people who eat the right kind of food do not have the disease, because those who do have the disease and eat the right kind of food do get well and remain well as long as they maintain a proper diet and also when people are fed the wrong kind of food they develop the disease. Pellagra is not a communicable disease. The treatment should be directed by your doctor and the main thing is diet. Do not rely on patent medicines.

"The prevention of pellagra depends upon eating the right kind of food at all times. To make sure that the diet is right it should always contain plenty of milk daily, some fresh meat and as many fresh vegetables as possible. Tomatoes, whole wheat products, salmon, yeast, and fresh fruits are especially valuable. Having provided these essentials of a proper diet, the rest may be arranged according to family or personal likes. In this way, you avoid pellagra."

FORTY ACRES OF FUN AT S. F. IN '39

This artist's sketch of the entrance to the Midway at the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition, to be held on Treasure Island in San Francisco Bay, gives an idea of the pyrotechnic and electrical display which will greet millions of visitors to the World's Fair fun zone. Amazing as well as amusing, the Exposition's forty-acre Midway will be a sportive Pageant of the Pacific.

LIVESTOCK LIVE COMFORTABLY ON THE JOHN HECK FARM

yard equipment are the unique features of this farm.

Mr. Heck is evidently a resourceful farmer. In connection with his farming operations, he and Mrs. Heck give much attention to poultry raising. Mr. Heck has somewhere learned the art of building a remarkably substantial wall with packed dirt. And so, he has built on his premises a spacious chicken brooder of this material, a house that is easily kept cool in summer and warm in winter.

In addition to this, Mr. and Mrs. Heck have a large chicken house constructed of adobe brick. This material, too, makes a substantial and durable building, a fine home for the chickens. In fact, a cursory inspection of this chicken house reveals the fact that John Heck's hens have a better home in which to live than have thousands and thousands of people in Texas.

Mr. Heck's garage is likewise built of adobe.

One of the finest features of this material is that while it is durable, if properly made, it is also comparatively inexpensive.

Even Mr. Heck's hogs are given the benefit of modern conveniences, and if hogs could be made proud and haughty, John Heck's swine would be proud aristocrats.

In the first place, they are furnished good and substantial housing. And even a hog appreciates good treatment.

In the second place, Mr. Heck has provided for his porcine family a self-feeder barn. A feed bin has been equipped with a self-feeder contrivance extending along the whole length of one side, so that after he once stores his threshed maize in the bin it is not necessary for him to touch it again. All Mr. Pig has to do is to go to the side of the bin, lift the lid with his snout, and proceed to help himself.

A self watering outfit has likewise been contrived, so that Mr. Pig at any time of the day or night may help himself to an unending supply of clean, sparkling water. He can't mess it up, to the discomfiture of the next pig that comes to drink, but each succeeding porker will find just as clean and abundant supply of water as did his predecessor.

Mr. Heck is not going very strong in the hog business this year, but he recently sold 35 nice porkers and had 30 still left in his pens.

When we visited his place recently, he had also a little less than 200 hens and pullets, but he makes them pay.

Adjoining Mr. Heck's beautiful lawn and shutting off the view of his hog lots and chicken pens is an orchard of many trees, consisting chiefly of peaches, plums and apricots. These furnish much fresh fruit for canning as well as for immediate use; and with their chickens and eggs, their pork, their fruits, and their vegetables of many kinds taken from their own garden, the Hecks are living like the lords of creation.

will be a reduction in payments to large operators.

5. It provides a fund for search for new uses and new markets for farm commodities and the products thereof, including a research laboratory for each major producing area.

6. Provision is also made for the use of a fund for the purpose of disposing of our surplus commodities both at home and abroad. This would tend to promote world trade, in which the entire nation is interested.

7. Another new feature authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to file application on behalf of farmers or cooperative organizations of farmers for adjustment in freight rate schedules. The freight rates on many farm commodities are not in proportion to the general rate schedules and absorb too large a part of the value of farm production.

8. As to certain crops a market control provision as a further safeguard is provided.

The committee is considering these suggestions together with the different suggestions made by the various farm groups, the three major farm groups having submitted
