West Texas Gas Company's pipe lines through Lynn county are undergoing repair work. C. L. Hafer of the company states. About fifteen to twenty men have been at work on the job most of the time the past two or three weeks, about half of them being Tahoka men and about half out of Lubbock.

Leaks which had developed in the lines during the past few years are being welded over, and the line otherwise reconditioned.

Freeman Youth Suffers Injury

Kenneth Freeman, eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Freeman who live one mile north of Tahoka, suffered painful and serious facial abrasions Friday when struck by a windcharger.

It is said that the boy, who had climbed up to cut off the windcharger, somehow got in its path, and fanned by a sudden breeze, it unexpectedly struck him in the face, cutting him from the forehead above the temple to the upper lip on the same side, just missing the eye. Dr. Prohl, who is attending the patient, reports that he is doing just "fairly well". He stated that the process of sewing up the cut took over two hours.

Mrs. Verner Smith has been absent from the tax collector's office, where she is employed, for two or three days this week, suffering from a severe sore throat.

SENATOR G. H. NELSON Who announced Saturday he is a candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

Nelson Announces For Lieut. Gov.

Austin, Feb. 10—Declaring that the greatest need of Texas today is "lobby-free legislation," Senator G. H. Nelson of Lubbock this week announced his candidacy for Lieutenant-Governor.

"The people of Texas are tired of seeing session after session of the Legislature ham-strung by professional lobbyists, and the time has come when the people are going to seek the election of men who will vote according to convictions rather than according to lobbyists," Nelson said.

Nelson won state-wide fame with his proposal for the creation of a one-house legislature, a governmental reform which, he says, "will cut the life-line of the lobby in Texas." "The office of Lieutenant-Governor is frequently dismissed as being unimportant because many people do not realize that a Lieutenant-Governor (Continued on Back Page)

Brownfield Team Declared Ineligible

At a meeting in Lubbock of District 5-B interscholastic league football committeemen, it was voted to rescind the 1937 football championship awarded to Brownfield high school, and divide the "trophy" between Levelland and Littlefield runners-up.

This action was taken after Loyd Grider, Brownfield was ruled ineligible for having exceeded the 19-year age limit. He had been cleared after a previous protest, and voted eligible. The meeting Saturday was called after Grider's eligibility to play on the basketball team was questioned.

Brownfield was also ordered to forfeit the games in which Grider had played in the recent non-inter-scholastic league basketball campaign. A play-off between Ralls and Littlefield gave Ralls the first place in the northern half of the district. Supt. Baze conceded Grider's ineligibility, and declared Brownfield was willing to have its championship revoked.

CONGRESSMAN GEO. MAHON Represents the nation's champion cotton producing district.

19th District Leads Nation In Cotton

By Congressman George Mahon—The 1937 West Texas cotton crop has received a lot of publicity. I have noted the claims of various West Texas counties. In fact, I have been making some bold claims myself among my colleagues in Congress who represent cotton areas. Some of them charged me with being overly enthusiastic in some of my claims in behalf of my Congressional district. However, with aid of the Bureau of the Census, I have been able to establish them, and I think you will be interested in the facts which I have just received from the Bureau.

Fulkerson Buys New Station

Construction was begun Monday morning on an addition to the filling station just north of the vacant theatre building on the Lubbock highway. This filling station was purchased by Mr. W. H. Fulkerson, Cosden dealer, who is enlarging and improving it. He expects it to be completed by the first of March, when he plans to make it his new headquarters. His present station has been purchased by D. A. Parkhurst.

The structure when finished will be v-shaped, with the outside of the "v" facing the street, and will be all of brick with large plate glass front. There will be nine pumps, five in front and four at the rear, which will be fed by six large storage tanks. Four of the tanks will each have a capacity of fifteen hundred gallons, while the other two will hold two thousand gallons each. Probably the outstanding improvement will be in greater accessibility of the driveway, which will be constructed in such a way that it will afford the driver plenty of room in which to enter and make it possible for him to exit on the highway, which has not heretofore been the case.

Green Delaney of Colorado, Texas will be the bricklayer in charge.

Mystery of Stolen Mail Pouches Is Cleared

$29,000.00 Money Theft Was Perpetrated At Station Here In Tahoka.

The mystery surrounding the disappearance of a mail pouch containing $29,000 in currency and coin was cleared when it was revealed that the money was taken off the train while left unattended at secured from federal authorities by the Lubbock Avalanche.

Several arrests have been made in connection with the theft of the money, which was en route from the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas to the First National Bank of O'Donnell, but it was not until after the arrest of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Miller of Spur and Port Worth, in Atlanta, Georgia, when starting to board an airplane, that much information was given out on the mystery.

Clyde Eastus, U. S. district attorney, said Tuesday about half the money stolen had been recovered. Besides the $4,300 found on the person of Sidney Miller and his wife, $6,000 had been dug from a hiding place near O'Donnell, $3,500 impounded in a Fort Worth bank, and $1,300 was found near Brownwood.

According to the Avalanche, Miller, after being carried back to Dallas, led Dallas city detectives and postal authorities to a little frequented spot in Dallas, where he said part of the money was buried in a half-gallon fruit jar. Upon reaching the spot, however, it was found that someone had been before them, for all they found were signs of recent digging. Officials said, however, that arrests and prosecution would meet with any attempt to spend the currency, as the serial numbers are known. It was stated that authorities have recovered more than $9,000 of the money. It is believed that $3,000 more had been stolen from one of the men originally involved.

The currency was in denominations of $5, $10, $20, and $50, except for $6,000 in $1 notes.

According to dispatches, a man at the station in Tahoka walked by, and seeing the mail-car unattended, made off with one of the mail bags. His "blind pick" netted the money transfer, which was resting on a siding in a combination baggage and express car of a mixed train. A 44-year-old man who had taken the (Continued on back page)

Business Men in Uproar

SECRETARY OF COMMERCE ROPER thought the thousand "little business" men he invited to Washington to tell their troubles, and needs to the President would hold a nice quiet meeting and formulate a program that wouldn't embarrass the administration. But they fooled him.

Their opening session in the Department of Commerce auditorium was decidedly riotous and finally the police were called in to restore order. Every man present wanted to make a speech and dozens fought for possession of the microphone of the loudspeaker system in order to tell what they thought was wrong with the country and what should be done about it. Mr. Roper tried valiantly to deliver a message of greeting from Mr. Roosevelt, but the throng refused to listen even to that. Assistant Secretary Ernest Draper had little better luck. Draper announced that Fred Roth, shoe manufacturer of Cleveland, was temporary chairman, and this led to further disorder because he was "hand-picked."

RFC Chairman Jesse Jones, who tried to speak, was cheered but soon retired from the room with Roper and Draper.

Some of the business men who could make themselves heard condemned the administration for high taxes, reckless spending and unwarranted attacks on industry and business. Others called on the President to declare he will not accept a third term. They demanded he get rid of his theorists. They voted to consider the problem of taxes, shouting down the attempts of Commerce officials to sidetrack it.

Finally nine small groups were formed to discuss as many phases of the problem and carry their findings to the White House. These, with their topics and chairmen, were:

Small loans, James G. Daly of Columbus, Ohio; wages and hours, Dr. W. K. Gunter of Gaffney, S. C.; fair trade practices, Howard D. North of Cleveland; government research, Bernard McLean of Dallas, Texas; housing, D. E. McAvoy of New York; social security, O. L. Roach of Danville, Va.; development and planning of small business, Leslie E. Sanders of Orlando, Fla.; unemployment, Wallace Kimball of Long Island City, N. Y.; installment selling, R. P. Hasty of Chicago.

Housing Bill Passed

ENOUGH Democratic senators switched their votes on the Lodge prevailing wages amendment to the housing bill, so the senate by a vote of 42 to 40 adopted the conference report on the housing bill and the measure went to the White House for the President's approval. This was the first item on the administration's program to be enacted since the special session was called November 15 last.

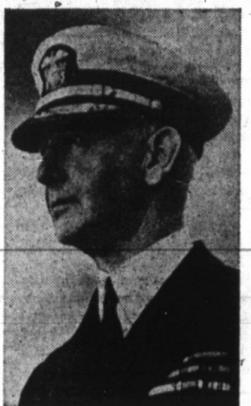

The measure provides for government insurance of mortgages on privately constructed housing up to 90 per cent of the value of the property on homes costing not more than $6,000; and on 80 per cent on homes costing up to $16,000.

With the prevailing wage amendment eliminated, legislators and labor leaders are disputing as to the effect it will have on the wage scales in the residential building industry. Senator Lodge's amendment was approved by the American Federation of Labor, but proponents of the measure said it would defeat the whole housing program. At any rate, it appears to have served the opponents of the administration by getting it in bad with organized labor.

Generals Versus Nazis

ACCORDING to dispatches from Berlin a crisis is pending between the high officers of the German army and the Nazi government leaders. The generals brought things to a focus by forcing the resignation of Marshal Werner von Blomberg, war minister, because he had married the daughter of a carpenter. That, of course, was a minor affair, but it emphasized the split between the army clique and the Nazi party chieftains concerning the control of the Reich's armed forces. It was said Hitler was considering following Mussolini's example and himself taking over the war portfolio.

All this leads to a revival of the reports current in diplomatic circles that the army set may try to ease Hitler into virtual retirement, revive the monarchy and make the duke of Windsor the kaiser of Germany. When all the circumstances are considered, this isn't as foolish as it may sound at first.

Admiral Claude Charles Bloch, shown above, has assumed command of the United States fleet, succeeding Admiral Heppburn. The transfer was made at San Pedro, Calif.

A. F. of L.'s Big Offer

SEEKING to organize the purchasing power of its members behind manufacturers who employ them, and to undermine the position of the C. I. O., the American Federation in its Miami convention promised to spend $6,000,000, annually on goods made or serviced by federation affiliates. Officials explained that what was wanted was agreement with as many manufacturers as possible to sign contracts with the federation unions in return for a guaranteed market. The union label trades department has sent a brochure to business men to enlist their support.

First step in the drive will be a "momentous national educational campaign," President William Green said. This will be marked by a national exhibition of products and services of A. F. of L. affiliates which will be held in Cincinnati May 16 to 21.

The federation's executive council endorsed a proposed change in the Wagner labor relations act that would insure to the members of craft unions within an industry the right to elect their own collective bargaining representatives.

The United Mine Workers, of which John L. Lewis is president, voted unanimously at their Washington convention to oppose any change in the act.

Franco's Program

GENERALISSIMO FRANCO, chief of the Spanish rebels and now the dictator-president, has created a cabinet to administer the territory he controls and announced the policies of the government thus:

A labor charter, "based on the working class," and providing separate unions for workers, technicians and employers. A press statute guaranteeing freedom of the press. Municipal organization for efficient local government.

A public works program for reconstruction of devastated regions and an agrarian plan for loans to farmers and "judicious redistribution of land."

Revision of legislation created by the republic. A foreign policy based on "peace compatible with the dignity of great peoples."

A financial program claiming "all that belonged to Spanish soil as well as treasures which have been stolen from Spain."

Navy Fliers Perish

DURING the naval maneuvers off the southern California coast two navy planes collided 70 miles from Point Loma, and ten of the men aboard lost their lives. Three were rescued from the sea and taken aboard the battleship Tennessee. Bodies of eight of the victims were quickly recovered. Only small bits of wreckage were found.

League Asks Aid for China

MEMBERS of the League of Nations were asked by the council to consider whether they can lend individual aid to China in its war with Japan.

Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, China's chief delegate, urged the league to halt Japan's campaign and assure a just settlement of the conflict through the co-operation of peace-loving countries. "So long as Japanese aggression in the Far East is permitted to rage unrestrained, so long will the peace of Europe remain precarious and general European settlement will be difficult of realization," he said.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for February 13 CONSERVING THE SABBATH FOR MAN

LESSON TEXT—Mark 2:23-3:6. GOLDEN TEXT—And He said unto them, The Sabbath was made for man—Mark 2:27. PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Holy Day. JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Holy Day. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Shall I Do on Sunday? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Using the Sabbath for the Whole Man.

"A man's soul is in a bad state when he begins to regard man-made rites and ceremonies as things of superior importance and exalts them above the preaching of the gospel. It is a symptom of spiritual disease. There is mischief within. It is too often the recourse of an uneasy conscience. . . . No wonder St. Paul said to the Galatians, 'Ye observe days, and months, and times, and years. I am afraid of you, lest I have bestowed on you labor in vain.'" These are the comments of John Charles Ryle, Lord Bishop of Liverpool, on the lesson of today.

The formalists of Christ's day, the Pharisees, had overlooked the heart of God's law and the holy living which it was intended to produce, and had bound up even the observance of the Sabbath (which was intended to be a day of rest and gladness) in such a mass of technical "thou shalt not" that it was a day of fear. They had a false outward profession of worship and had entirely missed the true spirituality of God's law, a fact which drew upon their heads the anger and rebuke of our Lord.

While we as Christians do not observe the Jewish Sabbath, there are principles of doctrine and life bound up in this lesson concerning the Sabbath which we may with profit apply to our day of rest—the first day of the week—the resurrection day, often called "the Lord's Day."

I. False Spirituality Unmasked. The two incidents in our lesson reveal that under the cloak of earnestly observing the law of the Sabbath the Pharisees were actually covering their own hypocrisy and their hatred for Christ.

The accusations against the disciples because they had taken and eaten grain was not on the ground that they had stolen, for the law (Deut. 23:25) guaranteed that right to the one who had passed through his neighbor's field. They contended, however, that the disciples had worked on the Sabbath in picking and hulling the grain.

The healing of the man with the withered arm revealed that back of their professed concern for the Sabbath was a real hatred for Christ. It is an appalling thing that in the house of worship on the very Sabbath day these men, outwardly so religious, were plotting against our Lord. "They watched him," and even so the enemies of the cross watch us who are his followers.

II. True Spirituality Defined. Jesus cuts across human hypocrisy and hatred to declare that the true keeping of the Sabbath is to do the work of God. No work of necessity (like plucking the grain) or of mercy (like healing the withered arm) is ever out of place on the day of rest.

How shall we know what we may do on the Lord's Day? Two guiding principles appear in our lesson. (1) Know and follow God's Word. Note the use that Jesus made of it in verses 25 and 26. No man will misuse the Sabbath or the Lord's Day who understands God's Word and obeys it. (2) Live in accordance with the spirit of the Lord Jesus. When tradition stood in the way of the best interests of man, He broke with tradition. If He could do good on the Sabbath He did it.

A word of caution is needed, for some have sought to interpret this lesson as providing biblical ground for doing all sorts of things on the day of rest. That day is for man's good, not for his destruction. His greatest good is served by rest, worship, spiritual development, Christian fellowship, and the doing of deeds of necessity and mercy.

III. Righteous Indignation Manifested. Our Lord rightly showed His holy anger (v. 5) against his hard-hearted critics. He was the Holy One who did not permit His anger to go beyond its proper expression. Man, it must be confessed, seldom is able to control and direct even his righteous indignation. But there is such a thing as being angry without sin (Eph. 4:26), and one could sometimes wish that God's children could be moved to a holy anger against all sin and unrighteousness.

Stitches in Time

A STITCH in time goes a long way toward making your days brighter and your burdens lighter when the bustling, busy days of Spring roll 'round. No time then for leisure hours with your sewing kit, and fortunate indeed are the early birds who have got on with their Spring wardrobe. The moral?—make your selections now and be off to the races when the season starts!

Practical House Coat. There is a versatility to this clever pattern which makes it a prime favorite for the style conscious and the thrifty. Designed in two lengths, it lends itself perfectly to either of two needs—as an apron frock in gingham or seersucker for busy days around the house, or as a full length beach or sports coat in chintz or linen crash. The princess lines are smooth and flattering and there are just seven pieces to the pattern—a cinch to make and a joy to wear.

Slimming Silhouette. This handsome frock in linen or crepe does wonders for the full figure, sloughing off pounds here and bulges there with the utmost ease. Streamlined from the shoulders and buttoned at the waist with two graceful scallops, this is the sort of frock which answers your need perfectly for almost any social or shopping excursion, a standby to see you through the Summer. There is a choice of long or short sleeves and the simplicity of the design—just eight pieces in all—insures success even for the inexperienced in home sewing.

Attractive Apron. "Swell" isn't a word the teacher recommends but it is highly appropriate in describing this handy apron frock which goes about the business of being an honest-to-goodness apron, not just a postage stamp model to wear for effect. Appealing in design, easy to wear, extremely serviceable, with two convenient pockets, this perfectly swell apron was designed by a busy housewife who knew her oats!—Six pieces to the pattern.

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the virus-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package.—(adv.)

Joyce did not wait for the end; leaving the men still arguing she went to her room, sat down at the desk and strove to prepare herself for what she felt sure would prove an ordeal. Blackadder was not long in following; she motioned toward a comfortable armchair and he sat down.

"Joyce, I'm a queer bird," he began in a voice so amiable it startled her. "That little talk we had yesterday—I certainly got off on the wrong foot, and I'm sorry. That's been my trouble all my life—making other people angry through getting riled myself. If a vile temper was something you could have cut out like an appendix I swear I'd take ether tomorrow."

"Better wait," she said smilingly, scarcely able to credit her ears, "until you get somewhere you can do it right—surgeon, hospital and a pretty nurse."

"Yes," said Helm more soberly, "those things are a long way off—an awful long way off—and that brings me back to the line I meant to have taken from the start. I ought to have reasoned with you, Joyce, shown you a fact or two you're too young to think out for yourself. For instance, you've got this place; you've actually taken it over, but you can't hold it—not possibly."

"But that's exactly what I'm doing," protested Joyce. "You think you are, but it can't last," asserted Blackadder with growing confidence. "It's against reason, Dorado, the science of economics, the Mexican and American governments. What's fooling you just now is the well-known phenomenon of the calm between the two winds of a cyclone. Besides, it isn't worth it. The worst trick you could play on any American would be to give him this rancho for nothing."

"It isn't a rancho," corrected Joyce quietly; "it's a hacienda—the difference between a toy balloon and a Zeppelin."

"I know, I know," said Helm, showing a first trace of impatience, but he promptly restrained himself. Her placidity fooled him into thinking he was really getting somewhere; why spoil it? "The thing that gets me, Joyce, is how you could ever bring yourself to come here after what—what happened."

"You mean about my mother?" asked Joyce in the same still voice. "Yes," he answered.

She rose with a peculiarly swift motion and stood with fingers resting on the desk to steady herself. A moment before she had seemed small, on the point of resuming the familiar form of the young girl he had felt sure he could handle; now, suddenly, she was an imposing and arresting figure.

"I wonder if you can be made to see what I see," she began, her voice low and vibrant, "what I've seen for years, all my life. It worked with Mr. Van Suttart, perhaps it might with you."

"What?" asked Blackadder. "Things that happen—especially terrible things," continued Joyce, ignoring the question, "can't be measured or weighed or seen away from where they took place. My mother's death has become part of time. To me it's a stone in a long high wall—longer and older than any one life. It's built into La Barranca, and so am I. Come with me and I'll try to show you what I mean—a world, my part in it, where my part began and where you think it ended."

Blackadder rose and fixed his eyes on her rapt face. "Since you offer to read my thoughts, just where do I think it ended?"

"With escape, of course," said Joyce, "father's and mine. But it's the difference that counts; with him there was no return."

The great idea—the blinding inspiration—did not come to Blackadder until many minutes later at the moment when Joyce, standing aside for him to pull open the little postern door, stepped past him into the velvet blackness of the outer garden, stopped and drew back. Her dark head seemed to vanish; there remained only the stenciled splashes of her printed frock.

"You've taken off your coat!" exclaimed Joyce. "Yes," he said, "I realized you must be cold. Here, slip it on—slip it on like a sweater."

Before she could quite understand, before she could raise her arms, the coat was descending over her head. How extraordinary, she thought, and was on the point of crying out it was nonsense to put on a coat like that when its sleeves swirled and tightened; one around her neck, the other across her astonished half-open mouth. Then she struggled frantically, but the sleeves only drew tighter. They were being tied, knotted. She was gagged, trapped, powerless to raise her hands.

Too late she realized her only chance would have been to run—run at the first instant of attack. But already Blackadder's arms were descending past her hips to her knees; they closed, lifted her, hung her like a sack over his shoulder. If only she could get at the buttons! But she was lying on them and all he had to do was keep her that way was to tilt her knees upward.

The Cavalcade Set Off, Dorado in the Lead.

He did it twice, and that was enough to cure her. He was strong; she had never imagined a man could be so strong.

She felt him step off the pier and creep along its side until he reached the edge of the water. Immediately he sank halfway to his knees but persevered, making his way toward the right. Once he reached and turned the angle of the hacienda's outer wall he knew where he was; now all he had to do was to keep in touch with that wall, follow it so closely no eye from the ramparts above could spy him. As Joyce struggled the cloth of the coat grew hot and soggy against her face.

Promptly she quieted and bent every effort to getting a little air by turning her head this way and that. She must think, and to think she must breathe. After all, this was only Helm Blackadder in the grip of an insane conviction he was doing his duty as decreed by God and Irma Sewell. Why be frightened?

She lost all sense of locality until he slowed almost to a complete halt, released the pressure of his right arm to take a grip on one of the hand ropes and ventured a cautious foot on the bridge. At its first oscillation she realized her chance had come at last; once started down that treacherous incline no longer would he dare practice the trick of raising her knees. She tore at the buttons, freed one hand; quickly she untied the sleeves, threw back her head and screamed for help at the top of her voice.

"Leonardo! Tobalito! Accude! Dirk, Dirk, oh, Dirk!" Blackadder clamped his left arm like a vise and kept on. He was at his last gasp, thoughts racing so madly through his brain he scarcely heard her cry. Why was he here? What was he doing? What did he care whether Joyce stayed or went? Hot sweat was pouring down his back, yet an icy crust was forming on his forehead! What a fool he had been to think he could cross this bridge carrying a wildcat in his arms—a wildcat that had seemed a feather at the start and now weighed a ton!

But there was something indomitable in him—some bulldog quality that made him the slave of an idea once he had sunk his teeth in it and drove him on to domination whatever the cost. It explained much—why he was here and why he couldn't quit.

The floor of spiles beneath his feet was rising—for an instant it had been level, now it was steep! He was winning—winning through. He looked up and saw a bulky shadow. Two brown hands like talons were reaching out to relieve him of his burden. He had won! But only Dorado's left hand seized on Joyce; his right crashed into Blackadder's face, sending him hurtling backward. He tumbled, rolled. He could feel his nails breaking as they clawed vainly on the corrugated surface of the spiles. His arms thrashed out. One of them struck against a rope and for his very life he wound it on his wrist. Fury blinded him; now to climb back, bury his thumbs in Dorado's double-crossing throat and—

At that moment all four anchor ropes at Dorado's end were slashed and Blackadder knew an instant of horror as the bridge fell. Treachery, and now death! But what saved him was the very depth of the gorge. The severed bridge acted as a bumper as it slammed against the opposite cliff, its dangling end reaching less than halfway down. Shaken off, torn by thorns, cut by the shale, bruised against boulders, he rolled to the bottom. Then silence—minutes of silence before he commenced to groan. Presently a frenzied voice called to him.

"What's the matter? Who are you down there? What happened?"

Immediately there were other excited voices. Under Leonardo's direction two of the severed ropes were hastily knotted into one, another added, and Tobalito was descending backward, his bare toes seizing like hands on grip after grip. Having tied the end of the rope under the injured man's shoulders he ascended almost as fast as he had gone down and helped haul Blackadder to the top. Dirk leaned over him.

"Blackadder! You? What happened? Where's Joyce?" He took hold of his shoulder and shook it. "Answer! Where's Joyce?"

CHAPTER XIV

Joyce, seized by an arm, had been dragged forward so violently she would have fallen face down had not the same hand supported her and set her on her feet. She heard a low laugh and looked up into Dorado's unforgettable face. Nightmare—this was nightmare. He was laughing at the trick of the coat. Now he repeated it with modifications. No longer need it cover her head; let her yell all she liked. Also it was secured in place not with the buttons but by the simple expedient of a lariat wrapped around her from shoulder to waist, leaving enough loose end to bind her to the man with whom she must ride. No sooner was the operation completed than the cavalcade set off, Dorado in the lead, she at the extreme rear. Already lights were showing and people coming on the run from the hacienda, but if any shots were fired she would get them first.

Dorado, convinced Blackadder's mouth was closed forever, saw no reason to hurry. The half dozen horses ambled along at a running walk, giving Joyce time to think, too much time, time enough to grow afraid.

Had she really witnessed Helm Blackadder's murder and the destruction of the bridge, or was it part of this ghastly dream? Oh, if only it could be a dream! An hour passed. Her knees grew chafed, burned and then turned numb with the pain. She swayed and would have fallen had she not been tied to the man before her, but the worst was yet to come. With the descent of the switchback path, owing to the changing of the angle of pressure, agony returned fourfold. She broke down and wept, sobbing whimpering in her abject misery.

As relief had come to Blackadder on the level stretch from the path to the camp, so it came to her. But it was not complete.

An hour passed and she found herself released of her bonds and stretched on the army cot in Dorado's quarters. Then it surged over her. Nothing but divine rest mattered—nothing. Her eyes shut with almost a click and she slept. When she woke a fine fire was burning at the entrance to the drift and by its light she saw Dorado seated on a camp stool near by, watching her out of half-closed eyes. As hers opened wide his did also. He smiled but said nothing. They looked at each other for a long time and the longer the silence lasted the more did Joyce feel her heart grow tight and small in her breast. What magic word could save her? But it was he who spoke first.

"You frightened, hein?" "Talk in Spanish," said Joyce, surprised she could speak at all. "It will be easier for both of us."

Promptly his heavy face brightened and he became voluble. "Ah, that's better, much better. In castellano I can talk, tell you things, explain how simply and easily everything can be arranged if only you turn out to be as reasonable as you are beautiful."

"I don't feel beautiful," said Joyce shortly, straightening on the cot and bracing herself. "I'm thirsty—terribly thirsty."

"Ah, forgive!" cried Dorado, turned and shouted an order. A man came running with a pannikin of water fresh from the brook and scarcely had she drained it before another retainer appeared carrying a tin plate heaped with food.

"It's a molle de guajalote," said Dorado proudly. "Knowing you were to be my guest I ordered it especially for you."

At first Joyce merely toyed with the most famous of Mexican dishes but presently hunger triumphed over anxiety and she began really to eat.

Slowly, then more slowly, for the longer each mouthful lasted the more time she gained to think. But somehow thinking didn't seem to do much good; perhaps talking—saying anything at all—would be better.

"What do you want?" she asked. "Money? La Barranca? What?"

"You," said Dorado briefly, smiled and waited.

"That's impossible," said Joyce after a pause. "Nobody can take me—not while I'm alive. That probably sounds silly, but I mean it."

"Social Competence" Can Be Measured; New Test Determines Fitness for Life

The ability of a person to fit into a changing world may be measured by a new yardstick known as "social competence." It is the newest of mental and sociological level of human beings. It contemplates the day when the science of eugenics may be applied to breed a superior race and weed out the incompetent, feeble-minded and other social dependents.

Dr. Edgar A. Doll of the Vineland, N. J., training school, originated the yardstick. He declared that when social competence is expressed mathematically as a "social quotient" it is similar to the long-familiar "intelligence quotient" and is comparable to it in many ways in measuring the intangible factors of human behavior.

Writing in the Journal of Heredity, Dr. Doll explained that the social quotient is not a measure of the intelligence of a human being, but rather a rating of an individual's fitness for society and parenthood. A feeble-minded person of very low intelligence might be rated to live freely and independently instead of being confined to an institution. On the other hand a highly intelligent person might be found socially incompetent and unfit for society.

Social competence under this yardstick is analyzed according to six valuations: Self-help, locomotion, self-direction and socialization. In a baby, "self-help" would include grasping objects or sitting up unsupported. In an older child, it would mean going about alone or looking after his health. In an adult, self-direction would include using money providently, providing for the future, and assisting others.

The social measurement of an individual can be obtained by questioning a friend or relative, Dr. Doll said. Thus it is possible to analyze social competence of children yet unborn through their parents.

Pottery and Stoves in Ancient Chinese Graves

The ancient Chinese, like the Egyptians, were much concerned about extending the necessities, comforts and conveniences of life to their deceased relatives and friends. Consequently they buried with the dead various implements and even human servitors.

Among the things buried with the dead were pottery models of stoves, so that the cooking of food might be continued in the other world. A number of these, dating to about the beginning of the Christian era, are in the hall of Chinese archeology of Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago. Also exhibited is a cast-iron stove of a type practical for actual use in cooking. This, although likewise found buried in a grave, is of the type of stove upon which the people of the period did their cooking, according to a curator of sinology. Made during the later Han dynasty (A. D. 25-220), it is one of the oldest extant cast-iron objects in the world. The process of casting iron was unknown to the ancient Greeks and Romans, but was the basis of an important industry in ancient China. Iron founders amassed large fortunes, and in 119 B. C., during the reign of Emperor Wu, the industry became a state monopoly.

Our own Senator G. H. Nelson has announced his candidacy for the office of lieutenant governor. His ability and integrity are recognized both at home and abroad. Elected a few years ago to serve out the unexpired term of Senator Dugan, who died in office, Nelson first came into the limelight as an advocate of the unicameral, or one-house legislature. His resolution favoring such a plan, introduced in the Senate soon after he became a member of that body, brought him the criticism of some of the leading members of that body, but it caught the attention of the people of Texas, and since that time many legislators have joined him in advocacy of the change. In the last regular session of the legislature, he led the fight in the Senate for the repeal of the race-horse gambling laws, which meant the destruction of the big race-horse downs at Arlington, Houston, and San Antonio, which were robbing thousands of people of their earnings who were lured into betting on the races. Nelson has always stood for civil righteousness and for honesty in government and politics. As lieutenant governor, he would have the power to appoint all the committees and thereby to wield a wonderful influence and power over legislation. Out here in this district, where Nelson first served as superintendent of school at Tahoka, later as county attorney of Lynn county, and still later as district attorney of the 106th judicial district, we are familiar with his ability, his courage, and his unimpeachable integrity. We need such men as Nelson in public life.

The brilliant young speaker of the House of Representatives at Austin, Robert W. Calvert, is one of the five avowed candidates for attorney general of Texas. While Calvert has necessarily had only brief experience as a lawyer, he is said to be able and capable and in time may become one of the great legal lights of the state. In recent years, moreover, the attorney general has depended largely on the work of his assistants. It is presumed that if he were elected he would appoint some seasoned lawyers on his staff, who would bear the brunt of many of the legal battles it would become the duty of his department to fight. Calvert has had a remarkable career. Left an orphan when a small child, for a number of years he was an inmate of the State Orphans Home at Corsicana, and when he left that institution he made his own way in life, receiving many a stern lesson in the hard school of experience. Working his way through college, he was admitted to the bar to practice law a few years ago and soon thereafter entered politics as a candidate for the legislature from Hill county. He was elected and during his second term was elected Speaker of the House. He has always stood for civic righteousness and honesty in the administration of governmental affairs and would doubtless make a most excellent record as attorney general.

The most recent announcement for attorney general is that of Gerald Mann of Dallas. Though yet a very young man, Mann has had a rather unusual career. Twelve or thirteen years ago he was a football star at S. M. U. at Dallas. After receiving his bachelor's degree there, he went to Harvard to study law. He paid his way through that great institution by working as a shipping clerk for a factory. When the factory closed down, he entered the ministry for a time, filling the pulpit of an inter-denominational church. He preached on Sunday while studying law through the week. He is a member of the Methodist Church. Completing his law course, he came back to Dallas and entered the practice. While Jimmie Allred was attorney general, he appointed Mann as one of his assistants. Later Mann served as secretary of state under Governor Allred. Then he resigned and again entered the practice in Dallas, and last Sunday announced as a candidate for attorney general. In making his announcement he declared war on "political racketeering," which he says has become a disgrace to the state. He is a brilliant, dynamic young fellow, and would doubtless make an aggressive and efficient attorney general.

THE SECRET OF OUR PROSPERITY

A staff writer in Sunday's Lubbock Avalanche called attention to the fact that statistics show that Lubbock is the center of the most prosperous section of Texas.

"Dry statistics saturated with indisputable evidences of amazing business activity in Lubbock were made available here Saturday," says the writer.

"Comparative compilation of figures on retail trade of independent stores, building permits and postal receipts as gathered by the bureau of business research of the University of Texas, give the South Plains 'hub' ranking in Texas far above its population position."

Our question is, What made this prosperity?

There can be only one answer: Cotton.

The unprecedented cotton crop in the territory surrounding Lubbock has made it prosperous.

Why should the business men of the South Plains desire our cotton crop cut to the minimum, thus cutting off thousands of the very poor from the possibility of securing employment in the cotton fields and making business bum?

There is a neutral prejudice against a public official who criticizes the official conduct of another. Nobody knows this better, perhaps, than Governor James V. Allred. He knew that he would arouse the prejudices of many people against him when he launched his attack upon the official conduct of Land Commissioner William H. McDonald. But he had the courage to launch the attack in spite of the criticism that he must have known would be showered upon his own head. In this matter Allred was not merely "butting in." The oil lease contracts made by McDonald must be approved by a board, as we understand it, of which the governor is a member. He could not approve these contracts without himself becoming a participant in the crime, if any was committed. Therefore, in order to protect his own good name as well as to protect the interests of the State, it was incumbent upon him to make protest. His protests led to an investigation by a committee of the Senate, and the revelations made in this investigation have been little less than startling. We think Governor Allred is to be highly commended instead of condemned for his course.

Among the recent announcements for the office of lieutenant governor is that of Walter Woodward of Coleman. When he and Bill McGraw were opposing candidates for attorney general in 1934, we supported Woodward. For a number of years he was one of the leading members of the Senate. Walter lawyer and a most estimable gentleman personally. We understand, however, that since his last candidacy he has served at times as lobbyist for some of the special interests. While this would not necessarily disqualify him to perform the duties of the lieutenant governor's office fairly and well, yet it would seem hardly wise to elevate an lobbyist to so important a position as that of lieutenant governor. We do not believe that Mr. Woodward has much chance to be elected.

Longer than any of his opponents, perhaps, Lieutenant Governor Walter Woodul of Houston has been an avowed candidate for attorney general. Woodul is doubtless an able lawyer. He lives in the largest city in Texas. He has long been in the public eye. So far as we know, he has never done anything to antagonize any large group of the voters of Texas. He is an amiable gentleman. But, he is a corporation lawyer, a representative of some of the big special interests. The people of Texas should take that into consideration when they come to the polls to elect the chief law officer of the state.

When You Need a Laxative

Thousands of men and women know how wise it is to take Black-Draught at the first sign of constipation. They like the refreshing relief it brings. They know its timely use may save them from feeling badly and possibly losing time at work from sickness brought on by constipation.

If you have to take a laxative occasionally, you can rely on BLACK-DRAUGHT, A GOOD LAXATIVE

Coming from Shamrock up in the North Panhandle is Lewis Goodrich, serving his third term as district attorney, who has already been campaigning many months for the office of attorney general. Goodrich is doubtless an efficient and popular district attorney and it is presumed that he has the ability and the legal learning to make a good attorney general. He is also a man of character, in so far as we have been able to learn. His greatest handicap would seem to be that he lives so far away from the geographical and population centers of the state. If the people of his immediate section will give him their active and aggressive support, it may be that thousands and thousands of other West Texans would fall in line and give him their support. Otherwise, we can see little or no hope for him.

In the trial of any public official charged with official misconduct he should be given the benefit of the doubt, but when he offers for reelection the State should be given the benefit of the doubt. Every public official, like Caesar's wife, should be above suspicion. The conduct of Land Commissioner William H. McDonald in leasing state oil lands has been so unusual and so contrary to sound business principles that we believe he should be replaced. If some good man does not voluntarily announce for the office, we believe that the people of Texas should draft a candidate.

Judge Ralph Yarbrough, judge of one of the district courts in Austin, announced some weeks ago that he would make the race for attorney general. He is a progressive in politics, we understand, and like most of the other candidates has been a supporter of Governor James V. Allred. We know nothing about his record as district judge but he seems to be popular in Austin. Also like most of his opponents he is a very young man. We will learn more about him as the campaign progresses.

Coke Stevenson of Junction, popular member of the House of Representatives at Austin, so popular that he was twice elected speaker of that body, has announced as a candidate for lieutenant governor of Texas. That Coke Stevenson is a shrewd and capable public official and a likable man personally there can be no doubt. But his sympathies are ever with the special interests, the liquor interests, and the race-horse gambling interests in this state. As lieutenant governor he would preside over the Texas Senate, where his power over legislation would be exceedingly great. As fine a gentleman as Coke Stevenson may be personally, we would regret for him to be elevated to this position of power.

Subscription paying time is here!

Among the announced candidates for lieutenant governor is one Mr. Smith of Throckmorton. He may be well known throughout the state but we know little about him. There are persistent rumors that Senator Colle of Eastland is to become a candidate, but he has not yet announced.

New BREAD DIET takes off "years" as well as pounds

MATRONLY FIGURES are a thing of the past. New fashions and modern times call for youthful, active lines. That's why thousands have turned to the new Bread Diet. It offers the safe, sane and efficient way of reducing, while maintaining body energy. This diet is the result of four years of extensive research in leading American universities and laboratories. Where extreme diets cut down too much on energy and protective foods, the Bread Diet provides the food-energy needed for daily activities. Bread also helps to burn up completely the fat you lose while reducing, without leaving any harmful residue. Bread is used in this reducing diet because bread is a food high in energy, not of itself fattening. It contains an excellent combination of carbohydrates and valuable protein. No other common food except sugar can be more quickly changed into energy. By substituting bread for foods that are nearly all starch, material is supplied to strengthen muscle and nerve tissues. And the pounds vanish—one by one.

Officers Investigate Death Of Infant

After a man walked into Harris store last Friday morning and made the request "I wish you would come up and get a dead baby and bury it", suspicious actions of those involved caused Mr. W. O. Robertson, undertaker, to request an inquest.

The mother of the baby, a three months old baby girl, and two brothers whom she claimed were her cousins, but who disclaimed any kin to her, were camped on a vacant lot in the east section of town. With them were two other children, a boy about ten, her brother, and a little daughter, about two and a half years old.

The inquest was held by W. S. Swan, with Dr. Prohl acting in the place of Dr. Turrentine, who was ill. The verdict was given as death due to natural causes, the cause being named as undernourishment and exposure. The baby had died during the night, but no help was called until morning.

The woman gave her name as Mrs. Elmer Daugherty, of Searcy, Arkansas, the baby's as Lola Floris. The men were Claude and Clarence Curnett. According to nearby residents, they had been camped in that location only since noon Thursday, but they claimed to have been in town several days. All but one man, Claude Curnett, were released after short investigation; he was held while his record was checked, but as only a meager amount of information could be gotten, no charges were filed. Officers and the doctors were all of the opinion however, that neglect was the principal cause. The group were in an old decrepit car, without even the meagerest camping equipment.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

The "good turn" for this week is being disposed of in the form of a mail-picking-up campaign. To the Scout who picks up the most mails from the streets will be given a special prize of one dollar. In addition each member who picks up as many as ten pounds will be registered by Mr. Reddell in the "Go To Camp" club. On Tuesday afternoon quite a number of the scouts had picked up ten pounds or more and one scout reported over twenty pounds.

Friday will be the big day in Tahoka, for that will be the day on which the scouts take charge of the town. Mr. Walter Anglin and Mr. Reddell request that the citizens of Tahoka cooperate with the boys by observing the traffic rules and giving to the scouts the same respect they would to an adult officer of the law.

In a meeting Monday night, the city council and Milt Finch, city marshal, pledged to Mr. Anglin their whole-hearted support in helping to put this day over in Tahoka, so the boys might have the training and experience of serving in public office.

Mr. Anglin asked that the News remind the scouts that they will be required to answer roll call Friday morning, otherwise they will be counted absent from school. If they do answer the call, they will be counted present at school as usual.

The Scouts and Cubs who will have charge of the city and its various officers are as follows:

- Mayor, Herbert Womack
- Police Chief, Elbert Boullouin, Jr.
- City Judge, C. W. Conway
- Assistant Judge, Winston Redwine, Cub.
- City Marshal, Wilbert Finch.
- Fire Chief, D. F. Reddell.
- City Secretary, Carma Reese.
- Water Supt., Dan Daniels.
- Police Force: Claude Slover, Hoy West, Truman Hines, Jerry Noble, Jake Weathers, Derl Burkhalter, Max Minor.
- Cub Police: J. Fred Bucy Jr., Lee Roy Baldrige, Carl Griffing Jr.

Claude Donaldson Jr., Billy Knight, Billy Joe Oliver, Billy Earl Pennington, Johnnie Wells, Sammy Telteller, Bobbie Finch.

Firemen: Sonny Roberts, Euel Akin, Charles Reid, Jack Swafford, Billie Jack Edwards, Kenneth Ross, Wade Howell, George Hogan III.

Cub Firemen: Roy Anglin, Gene Earl Knight, Ovid Luallin Jr., H. B. McCord Jr., Johnnie McKaughan, Bobbie Weaver.

Four Scouts have purchased uniforms this week. The Scouts are encouraged to earn the money to buy their own uniforms.

At present there are twenty-four registered Scouts in Tahoka. This is a credit to the leadership of W. E. Reddell, who became leader October 1. At that time there were only fifteen or sixteen Scouts registered. He has been very zealous in the work and has succeeded in arousing the interest in Scout work to a new high. Boy Scout organizations are a great boon to any community or city in the training of its young men to become civic leaders and law-abiding citizens, and Mr. Reddell, Mr. Smith, Mr. Kirkwood, Mr. Anglin, and all others associated in this work are to be highly commended, as well as the boys themselves.

Mr. Reddell requested that the News express for him his gratitude to the parents for their cooperation in the past, and asks that they give the greatest possible cooperation in the future, in order that it may be possible for Tahoka to make theirs the best troop in the Lubbock district, not only for the sake of the record but for the sake of the boys themselves, that they may receive all the benefits which Scouting affords.

LIFF TAYLOR WEDS IN LOVINGTON, N. M.

Mr. Liff Taylor of this city and Miss Eula Faye Waller of Hobbs, New Mexico, formerly of Tahoka, were married in Lovington, New Mexico Sunday, January 30. Mr. Taylor was accompanied to New Mexico by Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Cathcart, who were guests at the wedding. Mrs. Taylor's roommate of Hobbs was married at the same time. However, it was not a double ceremony.

Mrs. Taylor is well known here.

having worked at the telephone exchange for two or three years. Mr. Taylor was reared here, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Taylor of near Lamesa, and formerly of this place. Both have many friends in Tahoka who wish them every happiness.

After a short trip to Ruidosa, the young couple are making their home in Ralls, where Mr. Taylor is associated with A. L. Smith in his market and grocery there.

ELDER DRENNON PRAISES TAHOKA MERCHANTS' NEWS

I want to write a few things about moving. First, it is no fun, but it has its good points. Think of the many things you have that are not good enough to take but too good to leave. And then when you get to your new home you find you have been so careful not to lose anything that you don't find them until you have bought new ones.

Also, you get to make acquaintance with some new mice and a batch of new neighbors to borrow from. All in all, moving is not so bad, but laying aside all jesting, this move is making me a little sad when I think of the many friends I am leaving. But, I am resolved to make as many friends where I go as I can and also I promise not to forget my old ones.

I was agreeably surprised last week at the large edition of the News. I am glad our merchants are waking up to the value of advertising in the home paper and hope you continue to appreciate the place the home paper plays in community life. What is a town without a paper? About like a blacksmith shop without an anvil, a drug store without aspirins or castor oil, and a bank without money—and The News is worthy of your best support.

As the editor has asked me to continue to send in my notes and several of my friends have requested the same, I will.

Yours for more trust in God and less in gold, also more helping and less hindering of our fellow-man in his struggles.

ATTENDANCE GOOD AT CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

The attendance is improving at the Nazarene Church, says the reporter, both in the Sunday morning and evening services.

We have been improving the buildings, making them more comfortable and convenient. Next Monday and Tuesday will be work day for all the members and friends who will help us improve the interior decorations of the church. Our church will not be as spacious or as large in membership, probably, for some time, but will be as neat and comfortable as any.

After all, it is not the spaciousness of the building nor the number in membership that goes to make a great church, but it takes old time religion in the heart of each member, with loyalty to God their fellowman and the church, to make a great church.

Our pastor is doing some old-time Holy Ghost preaching, and we believe you will enjoy hearing him. Come and worship with us.

There is to be a revival begin at the Nazarene Church February 27th, running over three Sundays (March 13). The pastor, Rev. B. A. Fox, acting as evangelist with special singers and musicians. We cover the prayers of the other churches who believe in prayer for lost souls. May God give us a great revival in Tahoka.

Group Meeting
There will be a great group meeting of all the churches of the Lamesa zone. Churches of the Nazarene here February 24, services to be held in the Nazarene Church. The zone is composed of the Lamesa, Ropesville, Tokio, Tahoka, Lynn Chapel, Grassland, O'Donnell, and visiting churches out of the zone. Plan to be with us. This is your invitation.

SERVICES AT THE PRESBYTERIAN

Thanks for our fine fifth Sunday at Tahoka. We seem to be finding ourselves in the New Year church program.

Our church notice for this time is necessarily abbreviated.

But next Sunday is an important day. Sunday School at the usual hour. Preaching at 11:00 a. m. No service at night. Morning theme: "The First Gospel Preached".

Be in our services next Sunday. Women's Bible Study Monday afternoon with a review of "Home Mission Study Books". You are invited.—W. K. Johnson, Minister.

NEW LYNN EPWORTH LEAGUE HAS VISITORS

The New Lynn Epworth League met Sunday at 6:30. A program was well rendered by Mr. James Baker, the leader. Miss Mezzie Mae Baker could not be there, and Mr. Baker acted as leader.

We had some visitors from Lubbock and were very glad to have them. Visitors are always welcome to the New Lynn League.

The New Lynn singing class is going to have singing at the Methodist Church Saturday night, Feb. 12. Everybody come.—Publicity Superintendent.

Leonard Womack of the Medical Corps in the U. S. Army at Ft. Bliss, El Paso, is here on a one month furlough to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Womack.

Mrs. B. A. Fox, wife of the pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, left Wednesday for Springdale, Ark., to visit her parents for several weeks.

New York Fair To Honor Press

NEW YORK (Special)—To remind millions of visitors to the New York World's Fair 1939 that freedom of the press has helped preserve the democratic form of our government, a statue dedicated to that constitutional liberty will be erected on the $60,000,000 Central Mall, Grover A. Whalen, president of the Fair corporation, announces.

The statue will depict a partially nude woman, representing "the unadorned truth," watching the passing show of world events and recording history day-by-day. A tribute to the moral standard of the press as a whole is contained in the subordinate figure of a child reading a newspaper.

Freedom of religion, speech and assembly will be combined with freedom of press to suggest that these four factors are the cornerstone of democratic government.

MISS ETHEL EDWARDS WEDS CRANE MAN

Miss Ethel Edwards of New Home became the bride of Hiram Crawford of Crane Saturday afternoon in the home of Rev. R. T. Edwards, the bride's grandfather. The ceremony was read by Rev. S. K. McCulloch, pastor of the New Home Baptist Church.

At the wedding there was a large number of friends and relatives, who presented the couple with presents after the ceremony.

Mr. W. G. Barrett attended the district football meeting held in Lubbock Saturday for the purpose of investigating the eligibility of the Brownfield football team during the past season.

BROTHER OF J. B. NANCE IS BURIED AT PARIS

J. B. Nance returned Wednesday night from Paris, where he was called last Friday by the death of his brother, R. H. Nance, 75. Burial was Saturday, and Mr. Nance remained over a few days to visit another brother who is very ill.

Deceased was born and raised near Paris.

Rev. Richburg of Big Spring, former pastor at New Home, filled the pulpit of the Baptist Church at New Home Sunday.

TWO MILES OF AMUSEMENT FOR NEW YORK FAIR

NEW YORK—The largest amusement park in the world, with every conceivable safe and respectable entertainment device and show, will be a part of the New York World's Fair exposition. The 280-acre amusement zone is shown above in an artist's sketch made from the architects' plans. It will form a two-mile loop. So modern is the type of construction that the drawing looks "futuristic."

Medicine

Pharmacy is the practice of preparing and compounding medicines. Medicine is the science dealing with the prevention, cure, or alleviation of diseases.

Note the difference!

The pharmacist spends years in the study of drugs—their origin, characteristics, and methods of compounding.

The physician spends years in the study of the human body—also, the prevention, cure, or alleviation of the diseases to which it is subject.

If you are ill, a physician is the proper person to consult.

If you will have your prescriptions compounded in our pharmacy, you can be assured the work will be done in a scientific manner.

The Rest Of The Record

BY JAMES V. ALLRED
Governor of Texas

An enlarged picture of the Land Commissioner's policies emerged last week from the maze of testimony developed before the Senate Investigating Committee.

Evidence was brought out to show that one group, which has been very successful with their bids before the Land Department, had secured leases for small sums of money, usually a dollar an acre with an agreement from an oil operator to pay them three dollars an acre for part interest where he paid the state only one dollar for the whole. This group of bidders was headed by two men from Burkburnett, another from Oklahoma City, and several others from various parts of Texas.

These successful bidders got one of their own employees a job in the Land Office. This man worked in the Land Office during the time the bids were being received and granted; in fact, he was the receiving clerk. After it was all over, he quit and went back to work for the bidders. They have cut him in on a one hundred thousand dollar deal.

One of this group of bidders admitted that they were carrying somebody on their books for a 25% interest. He testified the party was a man by the name of Dawson, but the Senate committee never has been able to locate Dawson. No written record has been introduced, however, to show that this interest was carried for Dawson.

Some of the newspapers have editorialized that perhaps after all in the award of these leases it was just a question of judgment; that is, whether high cash bids should be accepted, or bids calling for high royalty. These editorials have missed the point entirely.

In private oil business, no one ever turns down high cash payments in favor of high royalties except where it is known positively that oil is present and there is an agreement for immediate development. In nearly all the leases made by the Land Commissioner, neither of these elements has existed. That is, we have not known whether or not there was oil; and, with one exception, there has been no immediate drilling and development. As pointed out before, only one well has been commenced on State land although some of the leases are over a year old. Thousands of acres have been leased in a number of counties.

It is only necessary to look at a map to see what has been done with these leases. For example, one tract which was leased for $310 (and on which a well has never been drilled) is offset on one side by actual oil wells and circled on other sides by leases which the Land Commissioner sold for a total of $458,000 in cash and $371,000 in oil. The Land Commissioner turned down over a thousand dollars an acre cash for this one tract of land in favor of a bid for $310 and three-sixteenths royalty.

Thus has the picture emerged from the testimony, with further enlargement due as the committee continues its investigation.

An American Point of View

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Washington, in response to popular insistence, seems recently to be lending a more attentive ear to the problems of the smaller employers and other average producers.

It has heard many protests, varied in nature. But prominent among them has been the demand for freedom to continue their labors without undue harassment and impractical interference from officialdom—however paternal in theory.

This demand may have amazed many politicians, but it didn't surprise the nation as a whole.

It was a typical American point of view, which office-holders who admire the European pattern seem to find difficult to understand. It was the point of view of our pioneer ancestors who carved America out of a wilderness, asking only the right to build their homes and their churches, to raise their families, and to perform their labors, without the intrusion of appointed bureaucrats and destructive tax burdens.

In America, the spirit of self-reliance expressed in that point of view still persists. It is our great national heritage. It should be preserved.

But it cannot be preserved by constant attacks on initiative and enterprise; by proud pointings to the doubtful economic experiments of a frightened Europe; by preachments that the politicians, rather than the people themselves, know best how to conduct the people's business.

It was the people, and not the politicians, who built America.

It is the people, and not the politicians, who know the work to be done, and are eager to continue it.

That is the principle on which our nation was founded, and on which it grew to greatness. It is the principle that Jefferson preached. It is the principle that the average man is trying to impress on Washington.

And when Washington listens to him, and returns sincerely to that fundamental principle, the gates which bar the pathway to recovery will be opened, and America can continue the progress which the strength, the energy and the intelligence of her people assure.

TREES

By Joyce Kilmer

I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree.

A tree whose hungry mouth is prest
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast;

A tree that looks at God all day,
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;

A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;

Upon whose bosom snow has lain;
Who intimately lives with rain.

Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree.

Jake Leedy and Mrs. L. E. Turrentine went down to Denton Wednesday and came back Thursday with Miss Dottie Turrentine, who had just finished her winter semester in Texas State College for Women. Miss Dottie will enter Tech for the spring term.

 Congressional Districts in the nation in the production of cotton in 1937, according to the latest Bureau of the Census figures, the total being 1,133,531 bales. The District of Congressman Whitlington of Mississippi located on the Mississippi Delta ranks second in the United States. The District of Congressman Sam Rayburn of Bonham ranks second in Texas, but its production is not one half that of the 19th District.

Of the four counties in Texas producing 100,000 bales or more last year, three are in the 19th District; Lubbock county led the parade with 149,937 bales; Lynn was next with 140,564 bales; and Dawson was third with 106,324 bales. In the nation, Mississippi county, Arkansas, was first with 233,771 bales.

Not only did the 19th District produce more cotton than any other Congressional district, but more than any one of 12 of the 15 states, other than Texas, listed by the Bureau of the Census as cotton producing States. The crop of 1,133,531 bales exceeded that of such states as Louisiana, Tennessee, South Carolina, and North Carolina.

West Texas has achieved a dominant place in cotton production in a relatively short time. It is interesting to compare the 1,133,531 bales of the 1937 crop to the 60,000 bales produced by those 25 counties in 1907; the 34,107 produced by them in 1917, and the 460,406 produced by them in 1927.

With the aid of the Department of Agriculture experts in Washington, I have been trying to figure out some of the things which could be done with 1,133,531 bales of cotton. If it should be manufactured into bed sheeting 81 inches in width, it would reach around the earth 16 times. It would be adequate to supply every woman in the 19th District with 100 dresses, every man with 100 shirts, and every household with 100 bed sheets, and enough would be left over to supply every woman in America outside the West Texas area with 13 cotton frocks.

If the 1937 crop of the 19th District should be converted into money at the rate of 10c per pound, it would supply each of the 254 residents of the District with $223.13, a grand total of $56,876,550.00. If this sum were divided equally among the 30,193 farms of the District, each farm would be entitled to $1,877.14.

This further fact is interesting: The average consumption of cotton for all purposes in the United States is 25 pounds per person per year. On this basis, the 1937 crop in the 19th District would be adequate to supply the people of the district for 88 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Burleson were called to Hobbs, N. M., Sunday to the bedside of Mrs. Burleson's niece, little Neysa Jean Cain, who was being seriously ill with pneumonia. They found her much improved, however, and it is believed that the crises has been passed. Neysa Jean is the daughter of Mrs. Clarence Cain, Mrs. Burleson's niece and the former Miss Myrna Fancher.

Mr. and Mrs. Nabors of Meadow were visitors in the Floyd Pendergrass home Sunday.

NELSON ANNOUNCES FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

 Governor can control the entire work of the Legislature through the appointment of committees, Nelson pointed out.

"Both houses of the Legislature can pass a measure, but if the conference committee members named by the Lieutenant-Governor are opposed to the measure, it will never become a law," he said.

Although he has lived in West Texas for the past 15 years, Nelson was born on a farm in East Texas. Born in Cass county thirty-five years ago, Nelson worked his way through East Texas Teachers College at Commerce and the University of Texas before going to West Texas as a school teacher.

After four years teaching, Nelson opened his law office and in 1928 was elected county attorney of Lynn County. In 1932 he was elected district attorney, and when Senator Arthur Duggan died in 1935, Nelson was elected to fill his unexpired term.

In 1936 he was elected to a full four-year term without opposition.

In 1924 he married Alleen Hackney of Hopkins County and they have three children.

MYSTERY OF STOLEN MAIL POUCH CLEARED

 sack discovered that he had $30,000. He was afraid to negotiate any of the notes, so he offered to sell the lot at 50 cents on the dollar.

It was noted that the man had more money than he should have had, so authorities called postal inspectors. After much grilling, the story was drawn out, and charges followed. The man stated that $3,000 of the loot had been stolen from him. The remainder had been sold to two men whom he met through a third man under charge at San Antonio. The other men were charged. After searching the premises of Miller, none of the loot was found, and it was not until Wichita Falls banks turned up 300 of the $1 notes, and pictures of Miller were identified as the man who exchanged them for $100 notes, that proof was found.

When Miller and his wife were located in Atlanta, Georgia, he had on his person $4,300 in currency. His wife, who had been held under $7,000 bond, has been released. Other men held in connection with the case are Jack Cathey, Roy Cathey, and Oscar Petty, all of O'Donnell, Carl E. Williams of Brownwood, and J. T. (Buddy) Morris of Kerrville.

The condition of Mr. Will Brown, affectionately known as "Uncle Will," is reported as satisfactory, although he has had two or three setbacks in the past week. Mr. Brown suffered a broken leg when he stepped in front of a moving automobile Friday, January 29. His many friends wish for him as speedy recovery as possible.

G. E. Hogan, who suffered a stroke last week, is reported slightly improved. Many friends hope for his early recovery.

Mrs. Pat Murphy of Clovis, New Mexico, visited her brother, Oran McCrea and Mrs. McCrea last week.
