H. P. Caveness Asks Return To Office

To the People of Lynn County. I am again asking for the office of County Superintendent of Lynn county. I can do no more than submit my candidacy on my past record.

Nearly twenty years ago I came to Lynn county and have been giving my best to the schools of the county since that time. My first work was the affiliation of Tahoka High School which I left seven years later with 22½ credits. During that period I had the privilege of advising with superintendents and trustees who were affiliating O'Donnell and Wilson high schools.

As County Superintendent, it has been my duty and privilege to help in accrediting the high schools at Draw and New Home. Splendid progress has been made with our rural schools. Our county school system as a whole ranks with the best in the state, I am told by state authorities. Through cooperation with trustees, transportation has been provided for a majority of the

How long they will remain here, or where they will work is not made public, but such crews have in the past, remained in the town from three to six months.

W. H. Hawkes is party chief, and he and J. W. Fishback and Howard A. Jones are in charge of the company office, which is located on the second floor of the First National Bank building.

Of the twenty-two men with the party, fifteen are married men, it is said. The Western Geophysical Company had a crew working out of Tahoka for several months, leaving here over a year ago.

Funeral services were held in Dallas Tuesday and interment was in a Dallas cemetery.

Roy Cowan's Truck Damaged By Fire

Roy Cowan's truck was burned Wednesday night on highway 9 six or seven miles north of town, when the body caught fire from some unknown source. No damage was done to the trailer. The fire department was called out, but most of the fire had been extinguished when the fire truck arrived.

The fire boys were called to Calvery's Hatchery Monday morning to extinguish a fire in a brooder house. Damage was slight.

W. D. Smith Jr. New Station Proprietor

W. D. Smith Jr. this week took charge of the Modern Service Station on Main Street operated recently by Clarence Williams. W. D. was formerly connected with the Phillips Service Station, but for the past few months he has been working in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Movement Is Started For New Highway Tahoka To Slaton

A movement has been started in Plainview and Slaton for designation of and ultimate paving of a new highway from Plainview south to Petersburg, Lorenzo, Slaton, Wilson and Tahoka, and delegations to notify some of the candidates in District Highway Engineer George Garrett at Lubbock to present the matter to the State Highway Department.

The delegation was advised that the highway commission would not make any promises for designation of such a road unless right-of-way was secured and the road opened along the proposed route. Organization is already being perfected on the north end with such in view.

The road is already paved from Plainview south to Petersburg.

The route proposed would continue south from a point on the present about three miles west of Petersburg, cross the Lubbock-Crosbyton pavement between Lorenzo and Idalou, cross the Yellowhouse canyon just north of Slaton and follow the Santa Fe railroad through Wilson and to Tahoka. There would be little difference in this mileage to the mileage from here to Plainview through Lubbock.

The route would give relief to congested traffic through Lubbock on highways 7 and 9, and would furnish a cutoff to traffic on the Crosbyton highway going either to the north or south part of the Plains, in addition to serving much new territory.

Some new right-of-way would be required in Lynn county from Tahoka up the railroad.

Boosters of the proposed highway point out that this designation would be of much more benefit to the public than some other designations recently made by the Highway Department. In particular, the new routes from Lamesa to Welch and Brownfield, from Brownfield to Levelland, from Plains to Morton, and from Rails to Floydada, and other minor designations, might be mentioned.

Those from Tahoka attending the meeting held recently in Lubbock were County Commissioner George Small, W. E. (Happy) Smith, and Winter Knight.

Wilson School Head Re-elected

Superintendent S. G. Anthony of the Wilson schools was in Tahoka Thursday on business with County Superintendent H. P. Caveness. He has just been re-elected to his present position for another year, which will be his third at Wilson.

During that time, the school has made splendid progress and is now among the most efficient in this section, it is said. In addition to standard courses, commercial subjects, vocational agriculture and vocational home economics are taught.

The school district operates six buses, not only serving the home district, but Dixie and Morgan as well. Pupils above the sixth grade from the latter districts are transported to Wilson. Much of the success of this school is due, no doubt to the management of Mr. Anthony.

Edwards Will Hold Opening

Formal opening of the new Edwards Implement Company building on highway 84 near the gin district will be held Tuesday of next week and all farmers, as well as all people interested in farming, are invited to attend.

A. J. and A. P. Edwards are the owners and they have secured the J. I. Case farm machine agency for this territory. A full line of machines will be on hand.

Beginning at 2:30, there will be a free show, including moving pictures and other entertainment. Refreshments will be served.

Parkhurst Starts New Building

Mr. Parkhurst has recently secured the agency for the Willys car and also the new airplane-type automobile known as the Achromobile. The building will be used as a sales and display room and garage.

Larkin Weathers has taken space in a part of the building and will open a grocery store there.

Great Grandma Aged Only 64

A few weeks ago a Lynn county man through this publication made the claim that possibly he was the youngest great grand-father in this county. Now comes Mrs. Fannie Bartley of Tahoka to "go him one better." The above mentioned man is a great grandfather at 64. Mrs. Bartley is not yet 65 and boasts of eight great grandchildren, all living.

"I am not anyone's grandfather, but I am a great grandmother," she said.

Besides the great grandchildren, Mrs. Bartley is the mother of thirteen children, twelve of whom are living, and forty-six grandchildren, all but two of whom are living.

Mrs. Bartley challenges any 65-year-old man or woman in the county to present an equal record.

Fire Damages West Texas Gin

Fire broke out in one stall of the cotton house at West Texas Gin No. 1 Thursday morning, causing only slight damage, according to W. O. Henderson, manager. The fire caught in the process of unloading a bale of cotton.

The fire department extinguished the fire before it had succeeded in doing much damage.

Man Injured At Chemical Plant

E. C. Wood of Lubbock, carpenter working at the cyanamide plant under construction west of O'Donnell was critically injured, possibly fatally, when he fell more than 30 feet from the building about 3:45 Tuesday afternoon. He was rushed to Tahoka and put in a Harris Ambulance and taken to a hospital in Lubbock.

According to the Lubbock Avalanche, he was suffering from a severe case of shock, so no x-ray had been taken Tuesday night.

Among his injuries were fractures of the left foot, right leg, pelvis, left arm, probably fractures of several ribs, a severe injury to his back, and possibly a fracture of the left leg.

Fellow workers could not give details of the accident, but said that Wood probably lost his balance, due to wind, and jumped to avoid striking any of the equipment, landing on his feet. The impact was so great, however, his body was thrown forward, causing the fractures.

Wood had been working at the Tahoka plant until recently, but transferred to the O'Donnell plant.

Two Burned In Wayside Fire

O. B. Davis received facial burns and Mrs. Davis was badly burned on one arm Monday night when the house in which they were living was completely destroyed by fire. The house, situated one mile north and a quarter mile west of the Wayside Service Station, was owned by a Lubbock man, it is said. Neither it nor the furniture, part of which was saved, was insured.

At the time the fire broke out, Mr. Davis was in the front bedroom, and Mrs. Davis was in the living room. Neither of the two boys were at home. Not being aware that anything was wrong, Mr. Davis opened the door leading into the rear bedroom, and the flames leaped out and burned his face. He gave the alarm and Mrs. Davis went back through the kitchen and opened the door from that room to the bedroom, only to be burned on the arm and beaten back by the flames.

One of the sons happened to be at the filling station, and looking toward home saw the flames. By the time he and others arrived on the scene, the house was beyond saving. The other son, O. B. Jr., who works in Tahoka for an oil company, was attending a motion picture.

The family are staying at the home of Mrs. Davis' brother, W. C. Huffaker. Mrs. Davis is confined to bed, but is said to be improving nicely.

Mrs. W. H. Fulkerson is sick in bed with a bad case of the flu.

HITLER TROOPS SEIZE AUSTRIA

Coup Amazes World

STRIKING with startling rapidity Adolf Hitler's motorized army crossed the Austrian frontier, seized Vienna, forced Austrian Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg to resign, and placed a full-fledged Nazi administration in command of the Austrian government.

Jittery European governments were thrown into a panic as they learned of the German leader's astounding coup. Britain and France sent Hitler identical protests against the Austrian invasion; warning of grave reactions, and several other powers were reported to have joined in the protest.

In Washington, Secretary of State Cordell Hull announced a hands off policy toward the European crisis, and noted leaders gave their opinion that there was no immediate danger of a general war, although they regarded the present situation as highly dangerous. By a unanimous vote, the House of Representatives began consideration of the billion dollar naval expansion bill.

Hitler's Austrian coup was a demonstration of the rapidity of modern armed forces. In less than twelve hours, 50,000 picked troops had advanced into Austrian territory and had forced the fall of the Schuschnigg government. At 10:15 o'clock at night the first mobile units crossed the border, at 1:15 in the morning the advance guard seized the Vienna police and telegraph stations and clamped down a rigid censorship. Complete surprise marked the movement. This was in contrast to Germany's movements in 1914 when five days were required for her armies to enter Belgium.

Faced with overwhelming forces, Schuschnigg broadcast the following message to the Austrian people: "The President of the republic has received from the (German) Reichfuhrer and chancellor an ultimatum demanding that his own candidate be appointed head of a new Austrian government. "President Miklas asked me to tell you that the policy of the Austrian government is to recede from force so that no German blood shall be shed.

"We have, therefore, given orders to our army that if it has occasion to meet German troops our soldiers will retreat. "I yield to brute force. We must avoid bloodshed. Our troops have been ordered to retire before German troops and await further developments. "May God protect Austria."

It was announced the plebiscite Schuschnigg had called for Sunday to permit the people to vote on whether the country would remain independent or submit to Nazi rule had been called off. The plebiscite had been denounced by the Nazis as a violation of Austria's agreement with Germany.

Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Hitler's personal representative in the Austrian cabinet, assumed the post of chancellor, and a new cabinet composed of Nazis was announced. Meanwhile, Italy's reaction to the German coup was watched with interest, and it was believed to have placed a heavy strain on the Rome-Berlin accord. In 1934 Italy massed troops on the border to prevent Hitler's intervention in Austria, and preservation of the latter's independence has been a major point in Italian diplomacy. However, in view of the new accord existing between Italy and Germany, Mussolini will be forced to abandon either Austria or Germany, and since he has not completed negotiations with Great Britain and having few other European ties, he will be left in virtual isolation should he break with Hitler. Unverified reports stated Italian troops were being rushed to the Brenner Pass, gateway between Italy and Austria.

In London, stock market prices slumped as the coup became public news. Despite the strong terms in Britain's note to Hitler, it is believed in some quarters that a deal has been made with Hitler, whereby the latter has been allowed free hand in Central Europe in exchange for renouncing claims to colonies.

France, already in the throes of internal disorders, and without a cabinet, stood helplessly by. Premier-Designate Blum hurried consultations with political leaders striving to rally support, and to combine the various opposing factions into a united group. Repercussions in Czechoslovakia of Nazi power in Austria was the chief concern in France, although the cabinet meeting in Prague was said to be considering the situation calmly. Reports from Bratislava, on the

TVA Pot Boils

DETERMINED to get the "low down" on the controversy among the directors of the Tennessee Valley authority, President Roosevelt summoned to the White House Chairman Arthur E. Morgan and his colleagues, David Lillenthal and Harcourt Morgan. It was believed in Washington that if they could not compose their differences he might ask all of them to resign.

Upon the outcome of this conference depended the action of congress leaders in relation to the resolution calling for a senatorial investigation of the entire TVA setup, sponsored by Senators Bridges of New Hampshire and King of Utah, and Senator Norris' proposal that the inquiry be conducted by the federal trade commission.

Senator Byrnes of South Carolina put forward the suggestion, liked by many, that a single administrator be substituted for the three-man board of TVA directors, this one man to be selected by a joint committee of congress. Norris thought this plan had good features but would prefer a board of three business executives, who, in his opinion, would be more capable of administering the project than engineers, lawyers or other experts.

Bridges engaged in hot debate with administration senators. He defended his investigation resolution in a long speech in which he made detailed charges against the TVA administration and characterized Lillenthal as a "Hitler" seeking to assert dictatorial powers over the Tennessee valley.

Diplomats Shifted SHIFTING our diplomatic representatives in Latin America, President Roosevelt sent to the senate these nominations: Meredith Nicholson of Indiana, now minister to Venezuela, transferred to Nicaragua.

Boaz Long of New Mexico, now minister to Nicaragua, transferred to Ecuador. Antonio C. Gonzalez of New York, now minister to Ecuador, transferred to Venezuela.

Hoover Sees Hitler FORMER President Herbert Hoover, in Europe to study conditions, had a long talk in Berlin with Adolf Hitler, who expounded his views on world politics, and was entertained by other Nazi notables. At the close of his two-day visit in the German capital Mr. Hoover said only that he is "even more reinforced in his belief that progress in America rests in the principles of intellectual liberty and spiritual freedom, a system of free economy regulated to prevent abuse, and popular government."

DORIS DENE'S COLUMN

If Sweetheart Keeps Postponing Wedding, She's Probably Fickle.

DEAR DORIS DENE: I have been engaged—or almost engaged—to a girl for two years. At first we couldn't make it public because of my family's objections but I talked them out of their attitude and they accepted my fiancée. However she refuses to let me announce the engagement even now. She keeps postponing the day of the wedding and if I hint to any of our friends that we are really engaged she flies into a temper. She won't wear the ring I gave her and she claims the right to have other boy friends. Through it all, she says she loves me and I believe her. But what is the meaning of her refusal to make the fact of our relationship known?—B. R. F.

ANSWER—There is nothing more distasteful than having to enlighten a nice young chap as to the nature of his fickle sweetheart. And certainly if your long letter, B. R. F., had given me a glimmer of hope for your case, I'd have stressed the hope for all it was worth. But the facts look uncompromisingly clear.

Here is a girl who presumably likes steady devotion as much as any other normally vain woman. She enjoys that sense of security induced by the knowledge that there is a man on hand waiting to do her bidding—ready to be her escort—eager to prove his undying love for her. This she is not willing to give up.

But on the other hand she has a sneaking suspicion that her steady beau is not the hero she's dreamed of. Perhaps if she waited a while, Mr. Right would come along. And in the meantime nothing could be more convenient than to have Mr. Wrong on tap registering devotion in a big way.

Believe me, B. R. F. there are hundreds of heartless, selfish young things in the world who play this trick regularly on their unsuspecting admirers. The wonder to me is the unflinching good-nature with which these ardent suitors accept excuses and postponements and alibis. It must become apparent after a while to even the most credulous youth that something is wrong with a situation in which a lady claims to love her hero yet continually refuses to make him her private and personal possession.

It is pretty safe to say that when a gal is in love, she will move Heaven and earth to hasten the wedding date, not to postpone it. Unless there is a really grave reason for delay it is the female of the species who clamors for wedding bells. She wants her ring, and she wants her wedding, and she wants the world to know that Mr. Right belongs exclusively to her. She also wants to prevent any other woman from making even a temporary claim on her hero's time and affection.

So that when a fiancée shilly shalies and fakes excuses and urges freedom and independence for both parties to the contract she is demonstrating fairly conclusively that she is not marriage-minded. She proves that she is holding on to a good sure thing with one hand and feeling around for a more exciting romance with the other.

Be warned, B. R. F., and don't waste your youth waiting for your girl to find someone she likes better than you.

DEAR DORIS DENE: My daughter married a boy three years ago who is nice enough in his way but has proved a very bad provider. His salary at present does not enable him to support a wife and they have had to come to live with me. I am not rich and as my daughter is not good at housework, I am overworked. My son-in-law is still working but at a greatly reduced salary. I feel that I am being made to pay for my daughter's matrimonial mistake but do not know how to get rid of the incubus. Is it my duty to tell the boy he must get out and fend for himself until he is able to support his wife?—Mrs. A. G.

ANSWER—First of all, it might be a good idea to train your daughter to be useful around the house so that at least you would not be overworked. Presumably if she had her own home she'd have to learn to be a good housekeeper and it is certainly not right that she should be allowed to drift idly along depending on you to cook and clean and wait on her.

In fact it looks as though your daughter's problem were more serious than your son-in-law's.

There is no evidence to prove that your son-in-law is anything but a well-meaning boy who believed that he was able to give your daughter a home. It is unfortunate for you that he has found himself to be in wrong but honestly you can't blame him.

You must regard the marriage as a partnership which has been temporarily rendered financially unsound. You must understand that under the circumstances it is up to your daughter to do all she can to help the man she's married. And surely her best means of helping is to be as efficient as possible in assisting you with housework.

I venture to say that if you had a willing able helper with you in your home, doing her utmost to spare you all the toil and worry of the day, you would not be so seriously concerned with the present state of things.

WHAT TO EAT AND WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses PROTEINS—

The Foods That You Cannot Live Without

Eminent Food Authority Explains Why No Protein Means No Life—Describes the Kind and Amount Required for the Best Growth in Children—Good Resistance, Vigor and Endurance in Adults.

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th St., New York.

FOOD is—and always has been—the central problem of life. But only in recent years has its true power been revealed, as a result of scientific investigation.

Fortunately, we now know what constitutes sound nutrition, and it is possible for every homemaker to plan meals that will enable her family to eat their way to health.

Topping the list of food essentials are the proteins. The Dutch chemist, Mulder, who hit upon this name, made a wise choice, for it means "to take first place."

And certainly the proteins are first in importance. For they are the stuff of which our bodies are built. Without them, there would be no life.

Every man, woman and child has a fundamental need for protein, because it is an essential component of every living cell and makes up a large part of the solids of a muscle cell. Evidently, a great many of the glandular principles and substances, which control the functions of the body, are also protein in character.

Protein is the only food element that contains nitrogen, and next to water, nitrogen is the chief constituent of the human body.

Protein Builds Bodies.

A new born baby weighs, on an average, from 7 to 7½ pounds, and the adult into which it grows may weigh 20 to 30 times as much. The vast amount of tissue necessary to construct a man is built chiefly from protein.

Once the adult body is built, however, protein is not required for the growth of new tissues, except under certain conditions, such as during pregnancy, when one is recovering from a wasting illness, or when an athlete is in training and the muscles are increasing in size.

Keeps the Body in Repair.

There is, however, a maintenance requirement for protein which continues throughout life, and which applies to both children and adults. For the body may be compared to a machine, on which it is necessary to make allowance for the wear and tear of parts. Protein is the only substance that will rebuild the millions of cells which each day cease to function.

Thus, we see that protein performs two vital services—First, it builds new tissues; second, it repairs worn-out tissues.

The Building Stones of the Body.

Protein is found in many different foods, but unfortunately, not all proteins are equally valuable. That is because protein is a very complex substance, resulting from the union of 22 or more simpler substances containing nitrogen, and called amino acids. These are the true building stones of the body. Some protein foods may have only 7 amino acids represented in their substance; others may have as many as 15 or 16, and these also may be varied by the proportions of the kinds present.

Proteins Vary in Value.

Some of these amino acids are necessary to build new tissue; others will not build tissue, but are capable of repairing worn-out cells. Some protein foods are, therefore, more valuable to the body than others.

It is absolutely essential that the homemaker, charged with the responsibility of feeding a family, should be able to distinguish between those types of protein which are adequate for both growth and repair, and those that are only useful for maintenance.

For if the diet does not contain an adequate amount, or the right kind of protein, our bodies will be badly built and they will be improperly repaired and cannot wear well. As Dr. Eugene V. McCollum of Johns Hopkins university, the world-famous investigator and discoverer of vitamin A, puts it: "Unless the right kinds, with respect to the size and shape, are furnished by the food proteins, the exact pattern on which the muscle must be constructed cannot be formed and, in this case, growth is interfered with."

If you were building a house you would consider nothing less than the finest materials. You would know that cheap lumber and poorly made bricks could not produce a lasting building. In the same way, you must learn to discriminate between the various types of protein used for the supremely important purpose of building your children's bodies, or keeping adult physiques in perfect repair.

Some foods cost more than others and you should not be guilty of spending hard-earned money for expensive protein foods when the same amount of nourishment could be more economically obtained from an inexpensive source.

Where to Find Protein.

Proteins are found in many different foods, but unfortunately, only a limited number of foods supply proteins containing all the amino acids necessary for both growth and repair. Proteins that will build new tissue, as well as replace worn-out cells, are known as complete proteins. In this class we have meats, fish, cheese, milk, eggs and some nuts.

Other proteins are adequate for repairing worn-out tissue, but will not support growth. Such incomplete proteins are found in grains and products made from them, and in the legumes—that is peas, beans, lentils and peanuts.

The proteins of these foods are of high nutritive value, however, and when supplemented with other proteins, such as those of milk, will meet every bodily requirement.

How Much Protein?

The protein requirement varies according to size, age, and the kind of protein foods consumed.

To allow for growth, children require twice as much protein per pound of body weight as adults. That is to say, an adult requires daily one-thirtieth of an ounce for each pound of body weight, but a child needs one-fifth of an ounce for each pound of body weight.

The amount of protein food should usually constitute from 10 to 15 per cent of all the calories taken. If this plan is faithfully followed, there will be more than enough to take care of every requirement, because experiments indicate that a man who weighs 154 pounds, or 70,000 grams, needs a minimum of 44 grams of protein every day.

Eskimos eat two or three times as much protein as most dwellers in the temperate zone, but that is because other foods are scarce. In the tropics, on the other hand, the consumption of protein is often not more than half that of the temperate zone.

An Adequate Protein Ration.

Milk and eggs are among the finest forms of protein, and they should have an especially important part in the diet, not only of the growing child but of invalids, prospective mothers, and the mother who is nursing a baby. If the choice must be between milk and eggs, milk should have first place because it is usually cheaper in proportion to the food value it supplies.

In planning the family dietary, a safe rule to keep in mind is to include in the daily diet: a quart of milk for every child, a pint for each adult; one egg, one serving of meat, fish or chicken, one serving of another protein food such as cheese, dried peas or beans, or a main dish made with nuts.

You can achieve wide variety and still provide an adequate protein ration within the limits of this rule. For milk may be served as a beverage, in soups, puddings, and as cream sauce. Eggs may likewise be varied in their method of preparation, or concealed in other foods. There are many fine meats, and the number of ways in which fresh, canned, frozen or dried fish can be served is legion.

Both cheese and nuts make sandwiches, salads and desserts, as well as main course dishes. Peas, beans and lentils can appear as soup, mock roast or croquettes. Grain products, which include cereals, macaroni and bread, may appear in any course in the meal. In planning menus, always keep before you the ideal that an adequate amount of first class protein makes a first class man, whereas an inadequate amount may lead to stunted growth, functional nervous diseases, lessened efficiency and the earlier approach of old age.

In choosing proteins to feed your family—remember that they take first place among foods, and that upon their wise choice rests your future welfare, your destiny—your life!

Polishing Ethics— Pro and Con

When fine furniture leaves the shop of the manufacturer, its finish has been professionally treated, to preserve its beauty—prolong its endurance. And from that time on, this furniture is best maintained by a quality light-oil furniture polish—first, on the shop floor of the furniture dealer—and then in the home. This is acknowledged and accepted as the best way to heighten its beauty—lengthen its life! But unfortunately, many housewives coat the finish of their furniture and woodwork with various shellacs and veneers—using them as a substitute for a fine oil polish and rubbing. And what a great mistake this is! For these coatings form a false finish over the true finish of the furniture; and rosin and other destructive elements in them dry out the wood—toughen it—leave a sticky residue. When many layers have been applied, they accumulate as a crust over the finish, clogging it and clouding the natural beauty of the grain. This is the slack way to care for furniture. If the home-maker really "cares for" her furniture, she will frequently rub on a reputable light-oil polish, to preserve it—keep it lastingly lovely!

WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE'S
To Ride the River With
COPYRIGHT WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE—WNU SERVICE

CHAPTER I
(In the old Western parlance the commendation, "He's a man to ride the river with," was the highest possible praise. It meant that one could be trusted in all emergencies.)

Sun rays were streaming through the mesquite when Ruth rode out of the arroyo. In the light of morning the dust in the air from the desert sand, finer than powdered sugar, gave the atmosphere a faint rose color.

Ruth Chiswick drew a deep breath, almost a sigh. The desert could show its teeth grimly, but it could be poignantly lovely too. This was her country. It held her by a thousand ties, yet she was beginning to be afraid of the ruthlessness that struck at life so savagely. All plant and animal life had its sting. Nothing survived without a struggle. Always the desert fought to destroy.

Ruth was greatly worried. She had gone such a little way in life, was so inexperienced. At the parting of the ways, she did not know what to do. Her problems were two, though they merged into one. That her father lived in constant danger from the lawless rustlers of Tail Holt she knew. He took no precautions. Instead of biding his time until he could crush them he bluntly defied and threatened. Some day he would be dry-gulched from the brush.

Though at times there was stormy conflict between father and daughter, the tie which bound them together was very close. To Ruth the peril in which he stood had become an obsession. She must save him at any cost, and she believed she had found the way to do it. That fat slug Sherman Howard was the leader of the outlaws, yet kept within the law himself, as far as she knew. If he gave the word for his men to keep their hands off L-C stock the rustlers would obey him. No longer would there be cause of strife between these light-fingered riders and Lee Chiswick.

And Sherman Howard had a son who was no fat slug but a dark handsome youth with a merry laugh, Ruth liked Lou Howard very much. He was wild, of course. She did not know him well, and there had been moments when there had flashed out evidence of moral callousness. So it had seemed, but always afterward his warm smile had banished doubts. He had given her to understand that she was the one woman with influence enough to keep him straight, and she was young enough to be attracted by the thought of snatching so good-looking a brand from the burning. There was something romantic about clandestine meetings with the son of the enemy of her house.

She had flirted with a lot of boys in an innocent way, but she did not know anything about love—unless the emotion she felt for Lou Howard came under that category. At times a strange feeling flooded her, almost religious in its intensity, that she had been appointed to save her father by marrying this young man. Lou was in her mind a great deal. She was not sure about him.

The last time they had met he had kissed her. Indignantly she had pushed him away, but afterward—thinking of that ardent embrace alone in her room—she knew her indignation had been a fraud. She had been chary of favors to boys. None of them had ever kissed her like that, with a fire which had stirred in her reluctant response.

A young man rode out of the mesquite and flung up a hand in greeting. She watched him as he cantered forward, flung himself from the saddle, and strode to meet her. A queer little thrill ran through her, and after it a tremor of fear. He was essentially a stranger, as many men are to the girls who marry them, yet it was likely he was going to be the most important person in her life.

"I was afraid you wouldn't come," he said, and kissed her hand.

Ruth took it away, embarrassed. Hand-kissing on the frontier was something alien. "I said I would be here," she reminded him.

"So you did." He looked at her eagerly, boyishly. "Is it going to be yes?"

She nodded. "I think so." He reached up to help her from the horse, but she shook her head. "No, I can't stay but a minute."

"You can rest yore saddle that minute, can't you, honey?" The girl knew what he wanted, to take her in his arms and make love to her. She discovered that she did not want him to do that—not yet, at least. Until she knew him better she did not want to be kissed, not with urgent passion.

"No, I slipped away, and I have to get back. They'll miss me." She asked, abruptly, a wave of color in her cheeks, "Are you sure you still . . . want me?"

down and let us talk, Ruth. If we're going to get married—" "I don't know you, and you don't know me," she interrupted.

"Course I know you," he denied. "You're the prettiest girl in the county. I know all about you, and you know about me. I'm wild about you. What's the sense in sitting up there like—the Queen of Sheba?"

Very likely he was right. Ruth had been brought up in a household of men without the guidance of a mother. She slipped from the saddle and stood beside him.

He took her in his arms and she submitted, withholding herself. Presently she drew back from his embrace. That he was dissatisfied with her lack of response she knew. "Be patient with me—at first," she begged. "I'm worried, Lou. I don't know whether what we are going to do is right. I—I—I'm scared."

"Some hot on the desert," the storekeeper suggested.

Promises poured out of him. He would make her happy. He would reconcile their fathers. There would no longer be war on the range. Forgetting all the other girls, he would make her the best husband in the territory. All she had to do was to trust him and he would fix it. She must not worry.

Yet she did worry, even as they made the arrangements for the elopement. The weight was still in her breast as she rode back up the arroyo. The sun was hot in the coppery sky. From the far canyons the mist had vanished. Harsh and forbidding stretched the grim desert, all its sharp teeth showing.

Into Tail Holt, near the close of a hot day, rode a man on a long-barreled roan.

The rider dismounted at a store which carried on the false front a sign, "Yell Sanger, General Merchandise." He dropped the reins at a hitchrack and looked up and down the street to orient himself. Through the hazy amber light of late afternoon he saw Tail Holt drowse in a coma of sunshine. A man was crossing the street from one saloon to another. Otherwise the place appeared to be deserted, except for half a dozen cow-ponies drooping at the hitchrack of Curt Dubbs' Golden Nugget, saloon and gambling-house.

Four saloons, a blacksmith shop, another general store, a Chinese restaurant, a shoemaker's cubby hole, and a public corral were checked off by the stranger. Leisurely he turned and walked with trailing spurs into Sanger's store.

In addition to Sanger, who was a bald-headed little fellow with black gimlet eyes, two cowboys were in the place. They were lounging against a counter. Conversation ceased at the entrance of the newcomer. All three gazed at him. They saw a crook-nosed man of middle size with a leathery brown face in which were set light gray eyes, from the corners of which radiated many tiny wrinkles. He might be thirty years old, perhaps a year or two less. His movements had a kind of rippling ease and he carried himself with an assurance almost insolent. When he took off his dusty hat he showed a thick head of hair burnt sorrel by a thousand untempered suns. He wore shiny leathers and high-heeled boots, an open vest, no coat. A gun hung low on his thigh, well forward. A tough hombre, it could be guessed, able to take care of himself in any emergency.

From a throat caked with alkali dust the traveler said hoarsely, "Tomato airtight."

Sanger slashed open a can with a hatchet.

"Some hot on the desert," the storekeeper suggested.

The crook-nosed man drank the juice from the can, then flashed out a tomato. "Some," he assented. "I got to thinkin' if Tail Holt was any farther off it must be near somewhere."

Experimentally, one of the cowboys murmured, "You come quite a ways?"

The crook-nosed man looked at him. Apparently this did not call for an answer. "Yes, sir, hot and dry," he drawled, after shifting his gaze to Sanger.

"That's right," the second cowboy agreed. He was a long-legged man with a lank lower jaw.

"Sure is," his companion said. "Well, I'll be moseyin', Mile High."

"Yo tambien, Sid," the tall man concurred promptly, unwinding to his full height. "I'll take a plug of Horse-Shoe, Sanger."

He followed Sid from the building.

"Town kinda quiet," the stranger said.

"Liable to liven up later," Sanger told him.

From where he sat on a counter the man with the sorrel-top could see the two cowboys looking at his horse. Words drifted to him.

"Double cinch—Texas man," Mile High hazarded.

"Yep. No tenderfoot." Sid rolled a cigarette.

"Not none. Plenty tough." The tall man said something more, in a low voice.

Sid laughed, harshly. "I wouldn't know."

They bowlegged across the road to the Golden Nugget.

"Tail Holt takes notice of a stranger," the newcomer mentioned dryly. Sanger did not answer. His small black eyes were taking in with a vast surprise two people who had come into the store.

"Evening, Miss Chiswick—Lou," he greeted them.

The man he had called Lou drew the storekeeper aside for a whispered conference. He was wearing new corduroys, fancy top-boots, an expensive sombrero, and a purple silk shirt around the neck of which was tied loosely a polka-dot bandanna. On his dark, handsome face there was just now a wulky look. In one keen glance the crook-nosed man sized him up as a showy, raffish fellow with no bottom.

The girl held a greater interest. She had, he guessed, an exciting personality. In her dark, stormy eyes was the threat of passion.

A snatch of the low-voiced conversation came to the stranger.

" . . . have Spicer meet us at Ma Presnall's boarding-house and do the job . . . want to get to Tough Nut before night."

Gretna Green business, of course. Bad medicine for the girl. Probably she was an undisciplined little devil, but she was too fine of grain for the man with whom she was eloping. Sardonicly Crook-nose added a stipulation. Very likely he was letting her glamorous, troubled beauty sway his judgment.

"Are you expecting to spend the day here?" she asked her companion, and her voice had in it the sing-song sting of a small whiplash.

"I'm fixing things up with Sanger, Ruth," the young man answered irritably. "Can't do it any faster."

The girl did not reply. She brushed back impatiently a tendril that had escaped from the soft waves of dark hair disordered by her long ride.

A fusillade of shots came from the street. The three men moved swiftly to the door. A rider was galloping down the dusty road, revolver in hand, waving a hat in the air.

"Hi-yi! Whoopee! Git out the way of Wild Jim Pender," he yelled.

"Pender on a drunk again," Sanger said. "He's a terror when he has tanglefoot aboard. . . . He's headin' back down the street . . . Lordee, he's comin' in!"

"Hunt cover, Ruth," her young man shouted, and vaulted over a counter. "Back here. Quick."

An arm of the stranger went round the waist of the girl, swept her up the store, and flung her down behind some sacks of potatoes.

The drunken man drove his horse into the store. "Lo, Sanger, you old son-of-a-vinegaroon, where are you? I want cartridges—pronto."

Window Washer's Job Is Risky; Worker Can Clean Ten to Fifteen in an Hour

All skyscraper windows aren't "architect's nightmares," and not all window washing is done in sub-freezing weather. Usually the cleaner climbs out on a reasonably wide sill with a rubber squeegee and a wet chamois, snaps his safety belt hooks into the little steel rings the builders put in the window frames for that purpose, and in a few quick swipes is ready to climb back inside and begin all over on the next one.

To hold his job, says a writer in the Washington Star, a window cleaner must keep moving. A good worker can average 10 windows an hour, or 80 a day; the topnotchers even wash 15 windows every hour! For thus risking his life, he may receive from $36 to $45 for a 40-hour week where union wages prevail, and his average age of usefulness in the business runs from about twenty-two to forty.

Dangerous? Yes, though most window cleaners seldom think of that—or they probably wouldn't be window cleaners! Their employers pay as much as a dollar a day to insure each worker's life, and it is the insurance company which does everything humanly possible to make the cleaner's calling a safer one. Inspectors regularly test the metal rings into which the safety belt hooks are fastened. These rust away in old buildings and result in more falls than any other cause.

Sometimes a near-tragedy in a window cleaner's life turns out to be funny. One worker recently got his name in the papers when his safety belt gave way on a third-story window and he fell to the ground without suffering a scratch. He got up, brushed off his clothes, stopped at the office for a new belt and climbed out to finish the window.

A hero? He'd be the last one to think so. To a window cleaner, taking hazardous risks is all in the day's work.

Brady Writer Gives County Publicity

C. D. "Slick" Reed is a member of The Brady Standard force, and writes a column in that first-class semi-weekly publication under the title of "Who's Who in the Wood Pile." He was a recent visitor in Tahoka with the Woosley families, and while here wrote the following for his "Wood Pile":

Man, that Plains country raised a cotton crop last year and, believe it or not, Lynn county farmers are still gathering the lint. . . . Friday, between Lubbock and Tahoka, several farmers were picking cotton and two gins were running head-on in Tahoka Saturday. We think this is something to write home about. . . . March, 1938, and still picking and ginning cotton.

Lynn county's 1937 cotton figures are at the 150,000 bales mark now, and some of the merchants in Ta-hoka believe there will be another thousand bales ginned within the next thirty days. The farmers of Plains county don't go in for small grain much, but give the row crops a fit. Sorghum, maize and hegari are the principal crops planted, and prospects are bright for this year. The ranchers in those parts are not much for sheep and goats, but cattle and hogs catch the devil.
They feed out lots of livestock in a year's time. You don't hear any wool and mohair price talk around the barber shops, but they are still talking plenty about cotton. The farmers plant cotton up there much later than we do in McCulloch, and they don't seem to be worried about getting their land in shape for this year's crop. The cotton producers in that part of Texas don't have many weeds to fight and the loose red soil is easy to till.

Another production that Lynn county has come into the lime-light within the past five years, is chickens and eggs. Last Saturday over 400 cases of eggs were brought to market in Tahoka. The Calvery electric hatchery of Tahoka has already this year taken off 6,000 baby chicks and has all incubators full of good eggs. . . . bought from Lynn county farmers. . . . which hatch good, blooded chickens. In a season this hatchery will produce between 15 and 16 thousand chicks. Eighty percent of the hatches are sold locally. The setting eggs are bought from the farmers that have good, blooded flocks and besides the regular price received for the eggs, farmers receive a premium on each case of eggs. Seventy-five percent of the eggs used in the hatcheries are Leghorns, and eighty percent hatch is a good batting average for a man in the hatchery business. A farmer in Lynn county without a flock of chickens is just about like a cow horse without any shoes. . . . they are liable to get behind during the year. Merchants of Tahoka declare this egg and chicken business brings in some revenue the year 'round and is classed as velvet for the producers. F. E. Calvery, operator of one of the "biggest hatcheries in Lynn county," states this business is increasing every year. And at this time he is ready for the rush season, which will be on in about two weeks.

Friday in Lubbock the wind and sand was blowing like the devil, but the natives don't let a little thing like that bother them. The ranchers of the Plains don't wear big hats this time of the year. They say if the wind ever takes the lid off your head you have a slim chance of ever getting it back. Last year about this time, a rancher in Lubbock was lifted of his ten-gallon hat by the wind and about a month later his hat was found in a small community ten miles south of Lubbock. The Plainsmen have a time keeping their hats on, correctly; most every hat is crushed on the head, and a stranger may think they are not tidy gentlemen. . . .

but not that. . . . if you keep your hat on in that country, you have got to pull her way down and during a sure-enough sandstorm they say you had better pull the hat down past the ears.

Driving along on the Plains, looking for miles without seeing a tree, a very serious question came to "Wood Pile." Not a single stick of fire-wood is seen around the farm homes, so what in the dickens do they use for fuel. Later on we found out coal was the answer. That is a fine country, but Wood Pile is still "fer" his native McCulloch. . . . he loves the trees and the hum of the bees. Up in the windy west, there are few polecats and as far as fur market is concerned, they have none. So besides not having trees to make fuel and a wood pile from, squirrels are scarce. . . . but that country produces a few woodpeckers, and the mice and rat families are very familiar figures.

Another big drawing card that those towns have functioning to a perfection, is their weekly livestock auction sales. Get a load of this:
On last Tuesday in Tahoka at their weekly sale, 250 head of livestock were sold. Lubbock conducts a sale of this kind every Friday and Saturday. Early Saturday morning the highways leading into Lubbock were lined with trucks and trailers loaded with cattle, horses, mules and hogs, which were going to town for sales days.

There is not much sign of Spring yet on the windy Plains. That country has very few fruit trees, but they do have plenty of windmills. In speaking of varmints, the wolves are rather plentiful, and a number of the farmers keep dogs for the purpose of wolf hunts, which provide great pastime for the Plainsmen. Another pastime in that part of the country is rooster fights, but they keep that part of the program on the q. t.

From the looks of the Lynn County News, official publication of Ta-hoka, that county is going to have

CIVIL SERVICE SCHOOLS ARE NOT APPROVED

A. C. Weaver, clerk at the local postoffice, requests that we issue warning to people of Lynn county who contemplate at some time studying by correspondence from so-called
"civil-service schools."

The Civil Service Commission has repeatedly warned the public that extravagant claims of such schools that they can train people for civil service work as being untrue. Their course are not required for entering civil service, are not authorized by the government as hinted, and in most cases such courses are of no benefit whatever to the person taking civil service examinations.

Strength During MIDDLE LIFE

Strength is extra-important for women going through the change of life. Then the body needs the very best nourishment to fortify it against the changes that are taking place.

In such cases, Cardui has proved helpful to many women.
It increases the appetite and aids digestion, favoring more complete transformation of food into living tissue, resulting in improved nutrition and building up and strengthening of the whole system.

New BREAD DIET offers Safe and Sane way to reducing...
BREAD ITSELF should not be considered fattening. It is not just a "starchy" food, either. Both of these facts have been proved during the four years of research in leading American universities and laboratories.
Excess weight comes from food not utilized for energy. Bread, however, is an excellent combination of carbohydrates for energy and a valuable tissue-building protein—both important in reducing.
Not only is the bread in this new diet turned into energy, but it helps burn up completely the fat lost while reducing, without leaving any harmful residue. In addition, it supplies material for maintaining nerve and muscle tissue.
The Bread Diet is based on this new principle. It substitutes bread for foods that are nearly all starch in a perfectly balanced diet.
Craving for excess food is cut to a minimum.
The usual after-effects of extreme diets are avoided. And the scales go down—pound by pound!

The Rest Of The Record

BY JAMES V. ALLRED
Governor of Texas

This week has been designated by official proclamation as Natural Resources Week in Texas.

Thousands of school children, civic club members, and other public-spirited citizens are studying the possibilities for industrial development in this state as well as the immense importance of such development to the continued progress of Texas. Industrialists, business leaders, bankers, and capitalists are cooperating to insure the fullest realization of the importance of this week.

Thinking Texans for many years have realized the need for developing the unlimited natural resources of our rich empire to supplement the wealth obtained from our basic stock. The wisdom of such a plan has become more apparent as world-wide competition has restricted the markets and sales of the elementary products from Texas farms and ranches.

Obviously a systematic and scientific expansion of these latent resources is necessary before the realization of a well balanced economic program between agriculture and industry can be attained. The result will be a more abundant life for the people of Texas.

Working toward that attainment are two agencies: Texas Institute of Natural Resources and Industrial Development, located in Dallas, and the Texas Planning Board, an official arm of the State government. The Institute during Natural Resources Week will display more of development. In addition there will be addresses by informed and prominent citizens whose knowledge of Texas resources and their grasp at the problems to be solved should insure the best presentation of Texas' industrial future available.

It is hoped that this week will emphasize to the people of Texas the need for continued interest and the future progress of our State. It is fortunate that for three years Texas has had the unprecedented benefit of favorable nation-wide publicity which began before our Centennial Year, and extended through the Pan American Year, and is continuing into 1938.

The rays of the nation's publicity spotlight has played upon Texas during these years, outlining in bold and favorable relief not only the progress we already have achieved, but the tremendous latent wealth of our resources upon whose proper development depends our future. By every possible publicity medium—the press, radio, newsreels, mag-

On Monday night the two debate teams from the Speech Department debated those from Brownfield.

This contest was merely a practice to whip both teams in shape for the Round Robin debates to be held tomorrow. The two winning teams will again debate in Interscholastic League. Here's hoping that good old T. H. S. will win.

The Typing Department wishes to announce that they won third place in the contest held in Lubbock not long ago.

Edith Robertson was high Tahoka girl with Marjorie Wells second and Mary M. Tunnell third.

A contest will be held by the typing class this afternoon.

It literally broke the hearts of all the student body when school turned out last Friday. The reason for this unexpected sorrow was that the teachers attended a teachers' convention in Big Spring. Why can't this happen every week?

The declaimers and extemporaneous speakers had charge of chapel Wednesday. This was good practice for the entries and was also entertaining for the student body.

La Ruth goes around singing love songs all the time. Wonder if they are directed at a certain Sophomore boy?

Flash! Flash! Ensign McCord recovered his lost ring last week end. He stated that he really never expected to see it again, but you never can tell about these FOXES. Foster would like to gain any information regarding the whereabouts of his Boys, you'd better watch these mean old girls; they'll take anything!

Baby Tot just can't keep her mind on lessons these days for talking about Arp. Wonder what's got her attention down there?

Mrs. A. D. Davis, the former Miss Lucille Slaton, came in Saturday from Dallas to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Slaton.

The Snooper wonders if its water on the knee, as a certain party claims he has, or water on the brain.

All the teachers returned from Big Spring with a certain amount of new knowledge; all Mr. Dodson got was a bouquet of bluebonnets.

Hiram Snowden, member of the local debate team states that the opposition, in form of a certain High school teacher, was a little strong Friday night and that he had to get a certain Senior.

Two very prominent citizens from Abilene, Texas, visited Tahoka over the week-end. Of course, they came to see the magnificent sights of Tahoka, but we notice that one of them was repeatedly seen about a mile and a half west on the Brownfield highway.

The Seniors have been measured for their caps and gowns this week and the orders for their invitations have been sent off.

Mrs. A. D. Davis, the former Miss Lucille Slaton, came in Saturday from Dallas to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Slaton.

LEGION ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED IN TAHOKA

The American Legion, the Auxiliary, and their children, celebrated the nineteenth birthday of the Legion at the Hall Monday night, with Mrs. Rafe Richardson, Auxiliary president, in charge of the program.

Jack Swafford and Helen Belle Pennington gave a humorous skit. A. M. Cade gave the history of the American Legion, and Mrs. H. M. Snowden gave the history of the Auxiliary. The only charter member of the Legion present was Mill Finch.

At the close of the program a large white cake with nineteen red candles in blue holders was brought in and placed on the center of the table. The cake, baked by Mrs. Richardson, was the first birthday cake the Legion has ever had, this being their first anniversary celebration. Two Gold Star sisters, Mrs. Chester Connolly and Miss Floyce Sherrod, cut the cake and it was served with ice cream.

About thirty members of the two organizations enjoyed the event, which was voted to be made an annual affair.—Mrs. Walden, reporter.

METHODIST CHURCH HOLDS QUARTERLY CONFERENCE

With the better weather and a let-up in sickness, our Church School attendance is growing.

Our Quarterly Conference was held Wednesday night, Rev. R. T. Breedlove preaching and Dr. O. P. Clark holding the conference.

I have been giving some time this week to Church Extension business. Attended a board meeting at Lubbock Tuesday, and Thursday was at Crosbyton going over their church debt situation. Crosbyton has recently paid $6,000.00 on a rather burdensome debt. Lamesa has recently reduced their debt by $10,000.00.

Be with us Sunday, March 20.
—BEN HARDY, Pastor.

BLUEBIRD CLASS HAS ENTERTAINMENT

The Bluebird class had a business and social meeting Monday night. After the business meeting, games were played, carrying out the St. Patrick scheme, after which refreshments were served.

Those present were: Pauline Cunningham, Lucille Burroughs, Ethel Norris, Ophelia Eudaly, Laura Jane Milliken, Wanda Dyer, Mildred Cooper, Julia Snowden, Madeline Russell, Joyce Russell, Jennie Reba Nevill, and Genell Fortenberry.

EUZELIAN CLASS PARTY HELD TUESDAY NIGHT

Mrs. E. J. Cooper was hostess to the Euzelian Class of the First Baptist Church Tuesday night, when they held their monthly business meeting and social.

A devotional was lead by Rev. Geo. A. Dale, followed by a prayer led by the teacher of the class, Mr. H. P. Caveness. A short business meeting was held, during which plans were made for the Rotary banquet Thursday night which the class will serve. Games were the chief amusement of the evening. The refreshment committee, Mrs. E. J. Cooper, Mrs. T. B. Burroughs, and Mrs. H. M. Snowden served ice cream and cake.

Guests were Rev. and Mrs. Geo. Dale, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Caveness, Mrs. A. J. Mullins, J. L. Reese, Forrester, Burroughs, J. N. Scott, H. B. Howell, Wylie Fortenberry, Snowden, Jim Dye, H. Roddy, Chester Connolly, W. A. Reddell, Sam Holland, and P. M. Billman.

The party was saddened by a death message received by Mrs. Dye.

Y. W. A. MEETS IN GEO. DALE HOME

The Y. W. A. met in regular session at the home of Mrs. Geo. A. Dale Monday night. A Bible lesson was presented in the form of Bible contests. This proved a very effective and interesting way of refreshing the memory of the young ladies on Bible facts. Six girls attended.

BAPTIST W. M. U. MET IN CIRCLES MONDAY

The Baptist W. M. U. met in circles Monday the Blanche Rose Walker circle and the Lockett circle meeting in joint session at the home of Mrs. H. B. McCord. The Walker circle furnished the program, and the Lockett circle served delicious refreshments.

The Sallee circle and the Lottie Moon circle met with Mrs. Snowden, with the Sallee circle furnishing the program and the Moon furnishing refreshments. St. Patrick's day theme was carried out in the refreshments.

In a practice tennis match, the Tahoka entries in the county meet were defeated by O'Donnell. Hiram Snowden, as singles entry, was defeated 8-6; and the doubles team, David Weathers and James Foster, was defeated 6-4, 6-4.

Miss Billie Swafford has been ill with the flu for the past week.

ELDER DRENNON'S O'DONNELL NOTES

We were happy to see the enlarged edition last week. The paper is entitled to every bit of support it gets, and I am glad to see the merchants are waking up to the fact that if they want the people in their trade territory to trade with them they must let them know it.

It pays to advertise—even in the Lord's work. I believe if the church would take space in the local paper and put a dignified ad in, it would pay in more ways than one. The devil advertises.

I think our papers are mighty nice to give us space free and I for one want to go on record as being appreciative of the courtesy. I wonder if many churches realize this, and when they want some printing done go out of town for it. I think the paper that writes up our birth, marriage, and then says nice things about us when we die, ought to be given consideration when we need anything in their line. (Do I hear an Amen from the editor?) I may not have practiced these things as I should but they are facts nevertheless.

Judge Maddox was down our way today and he said that my record was so good at Tahoka that I could come back for short visits and possibly to live. Thanks, Judge!

I want to pay a compliment to the court house gang. They were just as courteous to me in off-years as they were at election times, which is unusual for politicians. But let you think I am dissatisfied with O'Donnell will say that the people here have treated me better than I deserve and though we are not as large as Tahoka, we have two weekly papers, a fine school system, a good town spirit and last but not least we are grading our streets—so my car-spring breaking days are over. In fact I think it is a good town to live in. All we need is the county seat to make it a better town than Tahoka.

YIP for more fair play instead of foul. Don't hit below the belt. A big preacher in a small town.—R. P. Drennon.

Amen! AMEN! (To your compliments on The News and Tahoka, and O'Donnell, as well.) No newspaper ever hesitates to give publicity, though the space costs money, to churches, schools, and other worth-while religious, fraternal, benevolent, and civic organizations. But many organizations in Tahoka would think it an outrage if we refused to give five or ten or twenty dollars worth of space free bally-hooing a play, a ball game, or some other commercial proposition. And many Tahoka organizations do not know that it is customary to hand out a few press passes (at least a dollar or two's worth) in appreciation for the ten or twenty dollars' worth of newspaper space. A few of the larger papers boycott such organizations on their publicity. But, that's O. K., folks. We want to help. We wouldn't be in the newspaper business if we couldn't shed knocks like a duck sheds water. Nevertheless, we're just human, and certainly appreciate words like these from such a fine fellow as Elder Drennon. They don't make 'em much better or much more optimistic than Old Preacher Drennon.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Holland and Dorothy went down to Fort Worth Friday to the Fat Stock Show and Exposition, coming back Sunday. They were accompanied down by Mrs. Goad and Ethel, who visited relatives of Judge Goad in Fort Worth and Venus.

Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Hill left Sunday morning for Rogers and other Bell county points, where they will visit relatives. The editor will stay one or two weeks, but Mrs. Hill expects to remain longer.

E. J. Emanuel of Magnolia, who recently underwent an operation in Oklahoma City, is recovering in the home of his son, Dr. Roy Emanuel, in Chickasha, Oklahoma.

When You Feel Sluggish (Constipated)

BLACK-DRAUGHT

A GOOD LAXATIVE

J. B. WALKER SENDS LASSES TO EDITOR

Our good friend J. B. Walker, now of Lubbock, sent us a half gallon can of genuine, pure-dee, honest-to-goodness ribbon cane syrup a few days ago, which we imagine was made right out back of the horse-lot just at the end of the cane-patch on somebody's plantation down in old Louisiana. It may have been made by a Creole, for all we know. At any rate it was made down in the Pelican state. Mr. Walker's daughter, Mrs. Fred Fleener of New Orleans, sent him a number of cans, and not feeling the need of so much 'lasses himself, he has been dividing up among his friends.

This editor sure does like 'lasses; and next to 'lasses, he'll take a joint of ribbon cane; and when he can't get ribbon cane, he'll take a stalk of sorghum. By the way, he was brought up on corn pone and sweet milk, and sorghum cane between meals.

The Power of Taxation

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Congress, as this is written, is deep in deliberation over proposed revisions of pending tax measures. Somehow, there has been created the impression that these measures affect only that branch of American activity known collectively as business. But this picture is incomplete. It covers too narrow a field. What Congress decides, whenever it deliberates on taxes, affects profoundly every man, woman and child in our nation. It deals with the welfare of our great army of approximately 130,000,000 consumers. Tax legislation can determine whether or not men should have jobs, and the amount of purchasing power which those jobs create. It can determine how well American families may live and progress. It can weave its influence through the entire fabric of our national economy. For taxes, as every one knows, are a constant and inescapable part of our daily existence. Through the higher costs of necessities which unreasonable taxes entail, they intrude into the cost of all necessities. They slip into the gas tank of every car and tractor; into the cloth of every suit and dress, into the rent or purchase price of every home and farm, into the cost-lag of every piece of home and industrial equipment, into the food basket of every housewife. They can influence all production, all employment. For when they threaten the enterprise and the production which create employment, they threaten jobs. Our recent record of mounting unemployment bears tragic evidence of this. Taxation, therefore, should be above all politics. It is everybody's business, everybody's burden. That is something of which Congress should be reminded as it deals with this great national problem.

Jeff Gray FRIEND OR FOE?

● When a man saves your daughter's life, he's a friend. When he tries to shoot you in the back, he's a foe. Jeff Gray was both, for he rescued beautiful Ruth Chiswick from a drunken cowboy, then drew a bead at her father, Lee. Was the man insane?

● You'll follow this mysterious desert rider with intense interest as he joins forces with Sherm Howard, a cattle rustler... as he helps the brigands steal Chiswick cattle... and as he finally shows his true colors during an exciting gun battle that made history in Arizona!

● Jeff Gray was not a scoundrel, but you'll learn the truth about him in our exciting new serial story

"TO RIDE THE RIVER WITH"

TO RIDE THE RIVER WITH William MacLeod Raine's Tale of Western Adventure ... An Exciting New Serial!!

In the cowboy's lingo, "a man to ride the river with" was a man who could be trusted in a pinch. Was Jeff Gray such a man? Ruth, daughter of Lee Chiswick, the great Arizona ranchman, suspected that her father's life and her own happiness depended on the answer. Jeff Gray appeared from nowhere, saved Ruth's life, then joined forces with the cattle-rustling band of Sherm Howard. He tried to kill her father, his horse's hoof prints were found along the trail of stolen cattle. He was obviously a hated scoundrel, but Ruth Chiswick loved him! Read "To Ride the River With" and solve this mystery.

Less Monthly Discomfort
Many women, who formerly suffered from a weak, run-down condition as a result of poor assimilation of food, say they benefited by taking CARDUI, a special medicine for women. They found it helped to increase the appetite and improve digestion, thereby bringing them more strength from their food.

Naturally there is less discomfort at monthly periods when the system has been strengthened and the various functions restored and regulated.

Cardui, praised by thousands of women, is well worth trying. Of course, if not benefited, consult a physician.

ONLY YOUR MILEAGE MERCHANT OIL-PLATES YOUR ENGINE

Does Spring begin on March 20th?... or on the 21st? "Begin it today!" pleads your engine. "Bleed out my Winter-poisoned oil. But this Spring help me with more than an oil-change. Change to Your Mileage Merchant! And that's changing to Conoco Germ Processed oil—the only way to change me into an OIL-PLATED engine."

You want this modern exclusive OIL-PLATING because especially in Summer your steady driving demands more than the plain old type of oil-film that slithers OFF the working parts like drops of quicksilver. Exactly the opposite is achieved by the Germ Process—patented. It makes droplets of oil act like a billion tiny suction cups, powerfully attracted and OIL-PLATED to every working surface... Never draining down, never inviting friction, no matter how many thousands of starts and thousands of miles you make all Spring and Summer. And you'll notice Germ Processed oil sticking so close to "Full"—even in older cars—that you'll want to be sticking to Your Mileage Merchant. Continental Oil Company

TIPS to Gardeners

Care in Planting
 PLANTING and planting preliminaries demand care as the first step toward a successful garden. The ground should be worked deeply and the top three or four inches should be made as fine and loose as possible.

A primary consideration in planting is to have the soil favorably moist—damp but not wet. If circumstances demand that you plant when the ground is dry, moisten trenches before dropping the seed. Use enough water to wet soil, but not enough to cake. To retain moisture after planting, cover seeds with fine earth and press down firmly.

Generally, a temperature between 65 and 75 degrees when planting is most favorable.

Depth of planting is important, and it varies, of course, with different seeds. Generally, seeds approximately the size of turnip seed should be covered not more than half an inch. Larger seeds, such as peas, beans and corn may be planted one to two and one-half inches deep.

LINEAGE LONGER THAN A KING'S!

For 80 years, generation after generation of flower and vegetable seeds have been grown and gradually perfected by the unique Ferry-Morse Seed-Breeding Institute. Some have twenty generations behind them—for it takes time to produce prize-winning strains.

Each year, before Ferry's Seeds are packeted, the same Institute tests them all for growing ability—and grows and analyzes each variety for true-ness to type.

Only seeds that have passed their tests appear in the familiar Ferry's Seeds store display. Choose your seeds there—and be sure of a fine garden this year! 5c a packet and up. 1938 NOVELTIES too! Ferry-Morse Seed Co., Detroit, San Francisco.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!
 Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood streams free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbances.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed by the country over. Look for Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Lesson for March 20

KEEPING THE BODY STRONG
 LESSON TEXT—Mark 6:53-56; Judg. 13:12-14; 1 Cor. 3:16, 17; Rom. 12:1, 2.
 GOLDEN TEXT—Now therefore beware, I pray thee, and drink not wine nor strong drink, and eat not any unclean thing.—Judg. 13:4.
 PRIMARY TOPIC—The Body God Gave Us.
 JUNIOR TOPIC—For Jesus' Sake.
 INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Liquor, Drugs, and Tobacco Do to Health.
 YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Intemperance Affects Health.

The universe of God is perfectly organized in every respect. Beings that function in the spirit realm are spirit beings, not subject to the limitations of the physical world. We who dwell and serve in the physical world are equipped with physical bodies which are ideal instruments for our present existence. With all their shortcomings and frailties, our bodies are indeed marvelous machines, intricate and delicate, yet unbelievably hardy and durable. They are a gift from God, and it is our express responsibility to glorify God in our bodies (1 Cor. 6:20).

I. How to Have a Strong Body.
 It is obvious that not every one has equal physical strength and health. In some measure this is by divine providence or at least by God's permissive will, and those of us who find ourselves thus limited do well to count on His grace for patience to use what we have for His glory. But not one of us wants to yield hopelessly to our inability. Rather we will do our best to overcome it. We want to know

1. How to cure weakness (Mark 6:53-56).
 God alone can heal the sick. Even in our day when science has made such strides in the healing art, we note that the most successful remedy or system of treatment is the one that clears the way for what men call nature, but we know to be God, to work. Jesus healed the multitudes in the land of Gennesaret; He heals in America.

2. How to prevent weakness (Judg. 13:12-14).
 The mother of Samson, who was to be a Nazirite, was to drink no wine and to observe careful dietary regulations before he was born. Note also that if it is bad for a man to have such poisons in his veins before he is born, surely it is poor judgment to put them in after he comes to the age where he controls his own life. We need to watch our diets, and we have much valuable help on that point. We also need to give serious attention to the use of narcotics. It may surprise some to know that the term narcotics includes not only drugs and alcoholic beverages, but also tobacco, and such common things as tea and coffee.

Other abuse of the body, such as overwork, neglect of rest, etc., may well be mentioned. The besetting sin of some Christian workers is the destruction of their bodies, the very temple of the Holy Ghost, by overwork.

II. How to Use a Strong Body.
 Unfortunate as it is to observe that some who would serve the Lord have to struggle with the weakness of the body, it is far sadder to note that all too often those who have strong bodies forget to use that strength for God. Our Scripture portions give us two excellent guiding principles. Our bodies should be

1. Kept for God (1 Cor. 3:16, 17).
 These verses refer to the body of the Christian, for only of him can it be said that his body is the temple of the Holy Ghost.

The Holy Spirit is a person, the third person of the blessed Trinity. He comes to dwell within the soul of the Christian immediately upon his being regenerated, thus making his body the temple of the Holy Ghost. A clear grasp of that truth solves the problem of what we should do with and for our bodies. We must keep them well and clean. We dare not defile them in any way. The body of the Christian is kept for God.

2. Yielded to God (Rom. 12:1, 2).
 It is a high and noble sacrifice to die for Christ.
 But our call just now is to be a "living sacrifice." There are times when that may seem harder than to be a martyr. We do know that it is not always easy to live through the drab, difficult, and sometimes dreadful days, with a clear and shining testimony for Christ. But it can be done and is always to His glory. It is by the transforming grace of God that we are enabled to live such a life.

Meditation
 It is the mark of a superior man that, left to himself, he is able endlessly to amuse, interest and entertain himself out of his personal meditations, ideas, criticisms, memories, philosophy, humor and what not.—George Nathan.

Like Unto Him
 There should be no greater comfort to Christian persons than to be made like unto Christ by suffering patiently adversities, troubles, and sickness.

Pretty Things for Easter

THESE three dresses are up high on the list of fashion's favorites, and you can easily make them at home by using our simple, easy-to-follow patterns, each accompanied by a complete and detailed sew chart. Start right now, for even if there's a shiver in the air at this moment, Easter is not very far off! And you'll want to be ready!

Dress With Lifted Waistline.
 This is a very, very popular fashion because it makes you look so slim and graceful, what with the waistline high in front, and soft gathers above it, the gently flaring skirt. Made up in a prettily print or silk crepe, it will be lovely for Easter and for all Spring. Be sure to wear a bunch of flowers at the neckline.

A Jumper Frock for Girls.
 This is one of the sweetest and most becoming styles ever invented for girls of school age, just about the time they begin to shoot up so fast that you can almost see them grow! Make the jumper of linen, gingham or percale, and why not make two or three blouses to go with it? One of linen, one of dimity, and one of organdie.

Everybody Likes Dirndl Frock.
 The square neckline, the full rippling skirt and tight little waist, are so flattering to slim figures! Here's a charming dirndl with just the right air of quaintness and freshness about it. Choose a gay flowered print, or a cheerful plain color, pale or bright. But be sure, whether you make it up in silk or cotton, to choose a crisp fabric so that the skirt will flare as it should.

The Patterns.
 1481 is designed for sizes 14 to 42 (32 to 42 bust.) Size 16 (34) requires 3 3/4 yards of 39-inch material.
 1996 is designed for 6 to 14 years. Size 8 requires 1 3/4 yards of 39-inch material for the jumper; 1 1/2 yards for the blouse. Also 2 1/2 yards of bias facing for neck and armholes of jumper.

 1480 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 38 bust.) Size 14 (32) requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material, plus 1 1/4 yards of ribbon for belt and 3/4 yards of braid or ribbon for trimming.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Like a family heirloom, a preference for Jewel Shortening is handed down from mother to daughter in thousands of families. A Pig Was to Blame

By the disobedience of a lad in 1809, a garden gate in Rhode Island was left open, and a pig got in and destroyed a few plants. A quarrel between the owners of the garden and the pig resulted, which spread among their friends, defeated the Federal candidate for the legislature, and gave the state a senator by whose vote war was declared in 1812 with Great Britain.—Pat Paragraphs.

Truth in Speaking

Speak not at all, in any wise, till you have somewhat to speak; care not for the reward of your speaking, but simply and with undivided mind for the truth of your speaking.—Carlyle.

All this has necessitated the solving of many perplexing problems and there are many such problems that must be solved in the near future. During my term of office the schools have passed through one of the hardest financial periods in their history. In spite of this, with the help of trustees and patrons, five districts in the county have been cleared of all bonded indebtedness, taxes have been reduced in many places, and yet teachers' salaries have been generally the maximum provided by the state salary schedule.

At this time when radical changes are being made in our school system and when the interests of the schools must be so closely guarded, I feel that my wide experience in school affairs, my intimate knowledge of existing conditions in the county, and my familiarity with laws, rules, and regulations at present vitally affecting the schools would enable me to be of much service to the county. I am asking for this opportunity to serve.

The duties of my office will not permit my seeing all the voters of the county; therefore I hope each voter will give my candidacy consideration, although I may not see him or her personally. I shall greatly appreciate ever vote and any help given.—H. P. CAVENESS.
