County Pioneers Plan Annual Meeting

Committees Appointed For All Day Affairs On Friday, June 4.

The directors of the Pioneers of Lynn County had a meeting Tuesday, with Waldo McLaurin, the chairman, presiding, and laid plans for their annual meeting, which is to be held here on Friday, June 24.

It is expected that this will be the most largely attended meeting of any yet held.

The following committees were appointed Tuesday:

Program: Mesdames J. W. Elliott, Waldo McLaurin, Gladys M. Stokes, M. H. Edwards, and Miss Obara Forrester.

Outside Activities: Truett Smith, Chester Connolly, W. D. Nevels, and Otis Harris.

Historical: C. H. Doak, Roy Nettles, Walter Robinson, I. W. Meyers, and Weck Kington.

Finance: and Refreshments: J. W. Elliott, W. D. Nevels, G. W. Small, W. H. May, Sailor Williams, Terry Noble, Tom Hale, J. C. Wells, A. L. Lockwood, and C. H. Doak.

Dixie Children Learn By Sight

Pupils of the first, second, and third grades of the Dixie school, and their teacher, Miss Labusha Macha, visited the News office Thursday morning just to see the inside workings of a newspaper printing shop. Our presses were not running at the time, but many of the children were greatly interested in that strange machine that sets type, the Linotype.

The children also had just had their first ride that morning on a railway train. They had ridden the "Blueweed Special" from Wilson to Tahoka. They had also visited a hatchery here, where many of our chickens, the feathered variety, get their start in life. From the News office, they were going to the Bakery to see how bread is made and baked on a large scale.

Some of the boys visiting the News office made up their minds on the spot to go into the newspaper business a little later on. What a life!

"Snow White" Will Show In Tahoka

The English Theatre will be the first theatre on the South Plains to show the new feature-length Walt Disney "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs". The picture will be here Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

"Snow White", though an animated cartoon in technicolor, is said to be one of the greatest pictures ever made, and is breaking attendance records everywhere it is shown over the nation. The regular admission charge will be made.

Walt Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," which runs well over an hour is composed of over 250,000 drawings, with a musical background provided by an orchestra of 80 musicians.

As many as 750 artists worked on the production, which has been in the making since 1934. These consisted of 32 animators, 102 assistants, 167 in-betweeners (at filling in bits of action), 20 lay-out artists, 25 artists doing water color backgrounds, 65 effects animators (those who draw smoke, water, clouds, etc.) and 158 young women adept at inking and painting the Disney figures on transparent celluloid sheets.

Counting all of the preliminary sketches, and figuring that each was redrawn three or four times, it has been estimated that at least two million drawings were turned out during the making of "Snow White." It is estimated that the production has entailed a cost of $1,500,000.

Scott Davis, who has been confined to his bed most of the time for the past two months, is now able to be up again. It is hoped that he will soon completely regain his accustomed health and strength.

Results Of Storm Are Tabulated

A possible imperfect check of the ravages of the recent tornado in Dawson and Lynn counties has been made by the News, which reveals that at least nineteen residences were completely destroyed, seventeen or eighteen others were badly damaged, one store and service station destroyed, and one school building damaged.

In addition to this scores of barns, sheds, garages, and outhouses were completely destroyed, others seriously damaged, uncounted hundreds of chickens were killed, and there was some loss of livestock.

Three lives were lost and nine others seriously injured in Lynn county, and at least 20 were injured in Dawson county.

School Men Visit Austin

County Superintendent H. P. Caveness was in Austin last week in conference with the State Department of Education and the State Auditor relative to transportation allowances for the schools of the county.

Adjustments in State Aid grants have been very satisfactorily made except in districts operating buses only within the home district. According to a recent ruling of the State Auditor, such buses as do not go outside the home district are ineligible to receive aid. A large number of districts all over the state are affected by this new ruling and a storm of protests has resulted. The matter has been referred to the Attorney General for a ruling, and it is hoped that he will find the State Auditor in error in his view of the law. Such districts have heretofore received aid and of course it was expected this year.

Mr. Caveness was accompanied by Superintendents S. G. Anthony of Wilson and J. T. Carter of New Home, who went to Austin in the interest of their schools, and also Misses Linda Francke and Geraldine Wicker, teachers in the Wilson school, the former visiting in Mason and the latter visiting in Austin.

Ball Park Will Be Built Here

B. J. (Jake) Leedy and "Dub" Morris are preparing to open a ball park in southwest Tahoka two blocks west of the old Central Ward school building.

The enclosure will be 300 feet square and will be surrounded with a seven-foot fence. The seating space will have a capacity of 500 to 600. The enclosure will be provided with rest rooms.

They will operate the park on a commission basis.

Rotarians Have Family Night

The Rotarians on Thursday night of last week ate some of the finest barbecued beef that ever came to town.

With the Rotary Anns as their guests, they held their regular "ladies night" meeting in the city park.

Games were played both prior to and following the meal. A softball game in which the Rotarians were matched against the Rotary Anns preceded the "eat". Needless to say the ladies won in a walk. They were the wives of their husbands.

New Wrecking Yard Is Opening Here

J. P. Beck and Robert Hampton, formerly of Ralls, have moved to Tahoka and are opening a new wrecking yard here three blocks south of the court house. Mr. Beck is a married man, he and wife having one child. Mr. Hampton is single.

Mr. Beck formerly operated a filling station in Ralls. Mr. Hampton has worked as a mechanic. We call attention to their announcement in this paper.

MOTHERS' DAY...

Next Sunday will be observed throughout America as Mothers Day.

Most of the churches throughout the entire country will in some special way honor Motherhood.

In the Tahoka churches, and most others, special programs honoring Mother will be given. In sermon, in song, in readings, in prayers, in other ways, Mother's love, Mother's faith, Mother's sacrificial spirit will be recognized and eulogized.

Well it is so. Well it is that we love and appreciate our mothers.

Well it is that the mothers of America, so many of them, are worthy of our deepest trust, devotion, and reverence.

Our mothers must ever remain so if our country is to live and to lead in the building of a higher and better civilization.

If our mothers should degenerate—which is almost inconceivable—our country and our civilization would be doomed.

Go to church next Sunday and honor your God and your mother. Wear a red flower for Mother if she is living, a white flower if she is dead.

New Theatre Will Open Soon

G. A. Cole of Lamesa has leased the big theatre building situated on Main Street a block north of the intersection of the highways, which has been vacant the past several years, and is equipping it with the most modern equipment for a new motion picture theatre which he plans to open in the near future. It will be known as the Cole Theatre.

Chairs for the theatre have been ordered but it is not yet known just when the shipment will arrive, and for that reason Mr. Cole can not name the date when the theatre will open.

Mr. Cole is now operating a theatre in Lamesa, but he says he and wife will make Tahoka their place of residence.

Brownfield Band Visits Tahoka

The band of the Brownfield high school, composed of 34 members, garbed in brilliant uniforms, visited Tahoka Wednesday and gave a concert down town and another at the high school building.

This band makes a fine showing and must be a distinct asset to Brownfield and her high school. The band was accompanied to Tahoka by Superintendent M. L. H. Baze, and he fairly beamed his pride and admiration of his natty nifty group of musicians.

Delegates Attend Home Ec. Meeting

Misses Laura Jane Milliken, Ida Botkin, and Madeline Russell, each representing a Home Economics class in the Tahoka high school, Miss June Fender, representing a Home Economic club, and their teacher, Mrs. Pete Hest, left Tuesday morning for San Antonio, to attend a state-wide Home Economic convention in session there this week.

They expected to be gone the remainder of the week.

SCHOOL ADDS 1/2 UNITS OF AFFILIATION

Superintendent W. G. Barrett has received notice from the State Department of Education that the local school has been granted an additional half unit of affiliation in typewriting, bringing the total to one unit in this subject.

Funerals Held For Tornado Victims

Draw Cleans Up Following Storm

The people of Draw and vicinity met Monday and gathered up the debris and the litter made by the destructive tornado which passed through that community on the preceding Tuesday afternoon.

Later on, with the aid of citizens of the community and the American Red Cross, the destroyed residences will be rebuilt, barns, outhouses and fences restored, and the devastated premises will be made more attractive than they were before.

Red Cross Aids Storm Victims

A. L. Lockwood, chairman of the Lynn County Red Cross Chapter, attended a meeting at O'Donnell Tuesday at which representatives of the National American Red Cross were present to plan relief for the tornado sufferers.

He says that adjustment of losses were made for three families in the storm zone. One of these was the McKay family at Draw. The American Red Cross is to replace their home, their furniture, clothing, and chickens, and to pay their hospital bills, all amounting to more than $1,200. The other two families reside in Dawson county. They also were to be re-implemented for all losses.

Mr. Lockwood stated that citizens of Tahoka had contributed $878.25 for the benefit of the storm sufferers. Lamesa had contributed about $1,000, O'Donnell about $1,400, and the citizens of Draw about $700.

Mr. Lockwood also stated that he had just received a check from the Crosbyton Red Cross Chapter for $23.07.

All funds are turned in to the American Red Cross and it distributes the funds as needed. Whatever amount the local funds lack of taking care of the local needs, the national body contributes.

Mr. Lockwood declared that the American case workers at O'Donnell Tuesday demonstrated that they certainly know their business.

Bovells' Brother Dies Suddenly

Death came suddenly but not without warning at 1:40 o'clock Tuesday afternoon to A. J. Bovell 47, at the home of his brother, George Bovell, six miles north of Tahoka.

Mr. Bovell had been residing in Dallas but came to Tahoka recently to spend some time with his brothers, George and Joe Bovell, hoping that the change might improve his health, which had not been good for many months. Arriving Sunday, he had been here only two days when death overtook him. He was walking in the yard at the time when he suddenly collapsed and fell dead.

A message was sent to his wife in Dallas immediately, and she requested that the body be sent back to Crowley, the boyhood home of all the Bovell brothers, for burial. The body was accordingly prepared for burial by the Harris Funeral Home here and was taken to Post Tuesday night, where it was placed aboard a train for Crowley.

Funeral services were to be conducted at Crowley Wednesday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. George Bovell, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Bovell, and Mrs. Sam Reid went down to Crowley for the funeral.

He is survived by his wife, the following brothers: J. W. Bovell of Denton, S. C. of Dallas, T. J. and George of Tahoka; and sisters, Mrs. B. L. Harris of Dallas, Mrs. G. C. Dunwoody of Fort Worth, Mrs. W. H. Wilson, Crowley, and Mrs. F. C. Scott, Denton.

Tribute Paid Dead By Huge Crowds At Services

Attended by possibly a thousand people, at any rate by far the largest crowd ever assembled there on a similar occasion, funeral services were held at the Methodist Church at Draw on Thursday afternoon of last week for the three victims of the tornado that swept through that community.

The first service was held for Mrs. Vernon O. Caswell, the first fatality of the storm. It was conducted by Elders Charles Watkins and Arthur Watkins of Lubbock, ministers of the Church of Christ. Burial was in the Draw cemetery under the direction of the Harris Funeral Home of Tahoka.

Many relatives of the deceased and of her husband from a distance were present.

Mrs. Caswell was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Petty, who reside ten miles east of Lamesa, and the granddaughter of T. L. Petty residing six miles south of Tahoka. She was born on May 23, 1916, near Hereford. After residing at various places, the family came to O'Donnell in 1931. Miss Marlene was married to Vernon O. Caswell of Draw, on September 1, 1934, and she had resided at Draw practically ever since.

Devoted to her husband and faithful to her friends, she exemplified a beautiful Christian character, and she was beloved by the entire Draw community.

Immediately following the burial of Mrs. Caswell, a double funeral service was held for George and John Walters, Rev. J. W. Braswell of Lamesa, pastor of the Redwine Baptist Church, officiating. Their bodies, too, were laid to rest in the Draw cemetery.

John Walters, 15, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Walters of Draw. He was born and had been reared in that community. What ever amount the local funds lack of taking care of the local needs, the national body contributes.

Mr. Lockwood declared that the American case workers at O'Donnell Tuesday demonstrated that they certainly know their business.

George Walters, 40, was a nephew of M. B. Walters. His home was in Austin but he was here visiting his uncle when this catastrophe came. He is survived by one brother and one sister, S. J. Walters and Mrs. Davis, both residents of Austin. He and John and the latter's little sister, Mary Belle, were in a car on the Walters farm when the tornado struck them.

These three deaths, coming so unexpectedly, brought such a shock and such sorrow to the Draw community as it had never known before. The people of Lynn county and thousands of people elsewhere join in deepest sympathy for all the bereaved.

Favorable Report On School Work

A very favorable report on the work being done by the Tahoka schools has been made to the State Department of Education by the deputy state superintendent, G. D. Holbrook, according to word received this week by Supt. W. G. Barrett.

Mr. Holbrook especially complimented the school district on the erection of the new grade school building, and stated "the work is organized and administered well, course of study is planned and carried on to the view of serving best the needs of the community, teaching conditions good and teachers doing some good work."

W. L. Rowe, who resides down in the Midway community, brought to the News office Thursday morning a freak egg which one of his pull-ters had evidently laid as a joke. It was just about the shape of a grub worm and only about twice as large, with some irregular protuberances on one end. We don't know what biddy was trying to make out of the thing.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK—Georges Bonnet, France's new foreign minister, has been a vigorous advocate of a British-French-American alliance. He is regarded as more in accord with the Chamberlain policies than his predecessors. With the downfall of the Left government, the conclusion of an Anglo-Italian agreement and the appointment of M. Bonnet, interpreters of European politics see an advance toward a four-power pact, possibly five-power, with Poland in, and the further isolation and immobilization of Russia.

The abandonment of the French-Soviet treaty is expected to be an immediate issue in what is regarded as a sharply clarifying outline of dominant conservative policy in France and England.

M. Bonnet, shrewd, suave, dressy, is a somewhat rakish figure, with his hat usually on the back of his head, but a personage of power and dignity in the political forum. He is of the younger school of French politics, and, in that connection, one of the best Jai Alai players in France.

At his country place at St. Georges de Didonne, he spends much time making incredible kangaroo leaps, playing pelota basque, as they call it there. But, in statesmanship, he is no rubber-heeled bounding basque. He is rather a wary and adroit fencer.

When he was appointed ambassador to the United States in January, 1937, he brought with him a year's supply of truffles and pate de foies gras. He had to take most of it back, however, as, in July, he was recalled to save the franc in the Chautemps cabinet.

He was supposed to have saved it, but, as usual, it didn't stay saved, and, in the turn of the Ferris wheel, which is French politics, he was down under and up again.

He is an economist, but also a philosopher and author, in the chamber of deputies from southwest France at the age of thirty-six and a former minister of budget, pensions and finance. He budgets a few wisps of hair carefully across his bald pate and surveys the world warily through gold-rimmed spectacles.

JAPAN'S strongly authoritarian government, with its feudal carry-over, has never fitted exactly into any of the molds of ultra-modern absolutism.

The intensifying issue of fascism which may force out the present government, several likely-looking "strong men" as possible successors to Premier Konoye.

The only one with apparently clearly formulated ideas, and a fluent line of totalitarian talk is War Minister General Hajimi Sugiyama.

After several years of European post-graduate studies in direct action, he returned to talk of "national renovation," "decadent parliamentarism," "unity and discipline," and the like. More than any other leader, he employs the standard terminology of fascism—if that means anything.

On May 27, 1937, he gave the diet quite a lacing and said that it would have to behave, or "we will dissolve it." Since he was then a member of the ruling military triumvirate, this was no casual editorial "we."

While he is fifty-eight years old, he hits big-time politics with a strong momentum, not a contender for high place until 1936, and hence not track-sore, like some of his rivals. He did not become a general until 1936, after the army revolt early in that year. He had been vice-minister of war and head of the military air force.

His heavily underslung face, resting, neckless, on a heavy torso, is asymmetrical, with one eyebrow always cocked, one side watchful and the set of a Benda mask of a dictator. He is of the army caste, graduated from the national military college. He represented Japan at the 1926 disarmament conference at Geneva, remaining in Europe for several years thereafter.

Elephant Remembers
An elephant walked along a road near Rangpur, Bengal, a man in a garden shouted and made faces at it. The beast ambled into the garden, but the mahout restrained it while the mocker fled to safety. When the elephant returned along the road the same night it trampled at its tormentor's house and badly damaged it.

GREAT WAR ALLIANCE

Britain and France Will Pool All Their Armed Forces for Defense of Both Nations

Loan contracts totaling $36,657,000 for four cities, covering not more than 90 per cent of the cost of proposed slum-clearance and low-rent housing, were approved by President Roosevelt upon the recommendation of Nathan Straus, administrator of the housing authority. These will provide approximately 6,667 family dwelling units for over 28,000 slum dwellers. The photograph shows Senator Robert Wagner of New York watching Mr. Straus sign the loan contracts.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

Anglo-French Alliance

PREMIER DALADIER and Foreign Minister Bonnet of France had a momentous conference in London with Prime Minister Chamberlain and Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, of Great Britain, and at its close it was announced that the two nations had entered into a powerful defensive alliance. The sensational part is that when the next war comes—and the statesmen seemed sure one is coming—all the armed forces of the French and the British will be pooled under unified commands.

The land forces will be commanded by a French general immediately either of the nations is attacked. The combined sea and air forces will be under command of British officers. The British air force will be permitted to use French bases.

Purchases of war supplies, including planes from the United States, will be pooled by Britain and France. War resources such as stores of ammunition, mechanical equipment, and oil will be placed on French soil. Consequently Britain will not be forced to move them across the English channel in the face of enemy surface warships and submarines when war starts.

Daladier promised Chamberlain that France would, if possible, complete by May 15 negotiations for an alliance of friendship with Italy and if necessary would recognize Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia. He also consented to plans for closing the frontier between France and Spain to facilitate the plan for removing "volunteers" from the Spanish civil war.

The British government announced that at the breaking out of the next war all food in Britain would be rationed under a controller.

Asks Press Censorship

SENATOR SHERMAN MINTON of Indiana, who succeeded Hugo Black as chairman of the senate's inquisitorial committee, is so vexed with the newspapers that he has introduced a bill providing for censorship of the press. It is as follows: "Any person, firm, corporation, or association that publishes in the District of Columbia or publishes or causes to be transported in interstate commerce or through the mails any newspaper, magazine, or other periodical in which is published as a fact anything known to said publisher or his responsible agent to be false, shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $1,000 nor more than $10,000 and shall be imprisoned for not more than two years."

Simultaneously the American Newspaper Publishers' association, meeting in New York, reaffirmed its determination to defend the freedom of the press and the constitutional rights of private citizens. It adopted resolutions condemning the actions of the Minton committee, especially in the case of the organization headed by Frank Gannett.

Ford at White House

ONE of our greatest industrialists, Henry Ford, was the President's guest at luncheon and it was expected that something important or at least interesting would come out of the encounter. But, officially, it was "just a pleasant family meeting such as might take place at a roadside inn." That's what a White House spokesman said. However,

Washington correspondents learned from what they considered a trustworthy source that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Ford were agreed on but one issue—that the government should leave business alone. Mr. Ford told the Chief Executive there was too much interference with private enterprise by the administration and that if this were ended recovery would return.

Most of the discussion, which was described as good-humored, centered around the government's spending and fiscal policy. Mr. Ford clashed repeatedly with Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the board of the federal reserve system. He stoutly maintained that less spending by the government would restore confidence and encourage business and industry to go forward on its own. Mr. Eccles, champion of the spending policy, upheld the opposite view that the greater the spending, the more rapid the recovery. Mr. Ford was critical of spending which increased the public debt, and so informed the President.

"National Progressives"

BIRTH of a third national party, known as the National Progressive party, was announced at the much heralded meeting of the La Follette followers in Madison, Wis. The gathering was brought about by Gov. Philip F. La Follette, who delivered the main address before the throng in the University of Wisconsin live stock pavilion. No nationally known Progressives were present, and details of the program are yet to be adopted. The party already has a symbol, a red circle on a white background with a blue cross in the center.

Basic principles of the new party, the governor said, include: "The ownership and control of money and credit, without qualification or reservation, must be under public and not private control."

"The organized power of this nation must stop at nothing short of necessary steps to restore to every American the absolute right to earn his living by the sweat of his brow."

"We believe in the basic concepts of American government and, in particular, that grants of power always should be safeguarded against abuse."

"Those who work on the farm and in the city must be given security, not a security founded on producing less for more, or working less for more. We propose security founded on a definite, decent annual income for all."

"We flatly oppose every form of coddling, or spoon feeding the American people—whether it be those on relief—whether it be farmers or workers—whether it be business or industry."

"Our hemisphere was divinely destined to evolve peace, security, and plenty. It shall remain inviolate for that sacred purpose."

Threat to German Jews

FIELD MARSHAL GOERING, economic dictator of Germany, has been authorized to "utilize" the properties of all Jews in the country, foreign as well as German. He has ordered all German and Austrian Jews to give to the government their possessions at home and abroad if they exceed $2,000. It is estimated two billion dollars' worth of property is threatened with confiscation.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL

By Carter Field

Washington.—It becomes increasingly apparent with every passing month that President Roosevelt has not successfully replaced Louis McHenry Howe. It is absurd to say that Howe was Roosevelt's political brain. As a matter of fact Roosevelt often overrode Howe's judgment. For instance, back in the 1932 campaign Louis Howe moved heaven and earth to prevent Roosevelt from making the swing to the Pacific coast. But Roosevelt went. He wanted to go.

But again and again Howe would be able to stop Roosevelt from doing or saying something that might have unexpected and bad repercussions. No one who knew the two men believes that Howe would not have prevented the President's opening up the story about the rift between the White House and Vice President John Nance Garner.

Actually it was one of the worst publicity moves made by Roosevelt in his entire political career.

Let's look at the history of this particular item. Chapter one was a sentence in a story by Arthur Krock, published on the editorial page of the New York Times. Krock knows his Washington from the days of the Taft administration, when he was correspondent here for the Louisville Courier Journal. He is shrewd and discerning, and his judgment is greatly respected.

An article, printed on the editorial page, would be skipped over by many readers who were not actually Krock fans. Unfortunately for the President, in this case, there are a good many Krock fans among the Washington newspaper men. So they asked the President if it were true that Mr. Garner had made the remark about letting the cattle—big and little business—put on a little fat.

Garner in Opposition

Roosevelt could have turned the thing off with a joke. He could have just smiled and said he hadn't seen the story—his normal procedure on anything threatening to become embarrassing.

But he didn't. He demonstrated to the reporters that he had worried about the story by telling them he had asked the Vice President about it, and had been assured by the Vice President that he didn't say it.

Which immediately put the story in every newspaper in the land, accompanied by the alleged Garner opinion that the cattle (business—big and little) should be allowed to put on a little fat.

It makes no difference now whether Garner said it or not. It sounds like Garner, and it is a logic which at the moment is very appealing to the country.

But the real danger is this. Actually Garner and the President are very far apart indeed on many important issues, notably spending—the very issue on which the fight is now raging. So every day, almost without exception, there is some reference to Garner's attitude in the stories that come out of Washington about government spending. And the probability is that this will continue for at least a month.

And, the President having gone as far as he did, Garner simply cannot do anything to stop it without stultifying himself. All of which spells loss of prestige for Roosevelt among a great many Democrats who admire and agree with Garner.

Question of Dare

Although the vote by which the house pigeonholed President Roosevelt's pet reorganization bill has been hailed from one end of the country to the other by critics of the New Deal as marking the turn of the tide, actually there is a good deal of doubt in the minds of most senators and representatives, even those who backed him on this and some other issues, as to just how strong the President remains with the folks back home.

A careful canvass of a number of members of the house who voted against the President on reorganization discloses that for the most part they voted as they thought a majority of their constituents wanted them to vote. They were glad to find this backing for the vote, for in almost every instance the members approached wanted to vote against the bill. It was just a question if they dared to do it.

But a considerable sprinkling of the letters Democratic representatives received urging them to vote against the bill—and considering only letters from people they knew, or knew about—did not indicate any swerving of loyalty to the President. Lots of the people thought the President should not be given this power because they were afraid some of his lieutenants would misuse it!

In other words, plenty of voters are strong for the President who would not trust Harold L. Ickes across the street. Plenty of others don't mention Ickes, but think Jim Farley's political activities should be restrained. Still another group is strong for the President but has no use for Henry A. Wallace. And a tremendous lot of them, without voicing antagonism to any particular New Deal official, insisted that the comptroller's office should be maintained 100 per cent independent of White House control, and should continue to audit and approve payments to be made from the Treasury before they are made. In short, just because a lot of voters approved Mr. Roosevelt personally, and thought he was making a fine President, they did not propose to set up a change in the government which might make it easier for some lieutenant or aide to get away with something.

Makes Them Foggy

There is so much of this in the mail of so many Democratic representatives that it is no wonder they are a bit foggy as to what the President's strength really is.

It is a truism, as old as the picking of tribal chieftains, that loyalty is given to the king—but not to the king's ministers. It is much easier to understand in the British system, where the king's ministers may be kicked out of office overnight, but the king goes right on undisturbed.

It is not as logical when applied to the United States form of government, for actually the President is responsible for his lieutenants. Most of them he can fire at will. Most of his actions, save on the really big issues, are really decided by them.

But the loyalty out in the country which makes a President strong is not to them. It is to him alone. Few even of the most rabid partisans of President Roosevelt will argue that he has a good cabinet. This is not necessarily a commentary on the caliber of his official family. For party leaders of every party have always deplored the cabinet selections of their Presidents. Their loyalty is to him alone.

And that goes for the individual cabinet members as well as the folks who write to their congressmen. There is not a member of the cabinet who does not think he could vastly improve the administration if he could toss half a dozen of his colleagues out the window and pick their successors.

Faces a Problem

Robert L. Doughton, chairman of the house ways and means committee, faces a problem in the conferences between the house and senate on the tax bill, which only a Southerner can understand. It revolves around the idea of unwavering loyalty to the Democratic party, and to whoever is leader of that party at the moment, regardless of one's private opinions.

As a matter of fact two of Doughton's Democratic colleagues in the house from North Carolina are refusing to run for re-election because of this same problem. They do not like the New Deal. They disapprove most of the administration measures, but they regard themselves almost as soldiers in the line of battle. They do not feel they have any right to do anything else than what the general says—especially on any question which by any remote stretch of the imagination could be classified as a party issue.

Wild horses could not drag it from Doughton in a public statement but in private conversations with many friends he has indicated, again and again in the last few months, that he was fed up with the present situation. He is still seriously considering not being a candidate for re-election this fall. Yet just a year ago Doughton was thinking of rounding out his career with a term in the senate.

So that President Roosevelt's special letter to Doughton and to Senator Pat Harrison, insisting that the principle of the tax on undistributed corporation earnings be retained, put the North Carolina veteran very much on the spot.

Actually the house leaders were afraid, when the senate tax bill was brought to the house, that it might be accepted by acclamation without being sent to conference at all.

Badly Scared

So frightened were they that Doughton himself appealed to his colleagues personally, saying on the floor that questions and proposals indicated the house didn't have much faith in its committee.

This is the sort of appeal the house seldom denies, especially to a man who has its whole-souled respect to the degree that Robert Doughton has. So the bill was sent to the conference with no strings on the house conferees. This was before the receipt of the Roosevelt letter demanding that the house provision, instead of the senate provision on undistributed earnings, be retained.

Harrison snapped back at the President. Doughton said nothing. But the senators on the conference committee know how the house feels. They know the administration leaders in the house were afraid of a test vote just before sending the bill to conference.

Incidentally, the Harrison statement was one of two chickens that came home to roost within a week, to the annoyance of the White House. It was the President's influence that beat Pat Harrison by one vote for Democratic leader of the senate. It was also the President's influence that beat John J. O'Connor of New York for house Democratic leader. O'Connor virtually led the fight that beat the President's pet reorganization bill, much as it must have galled him to be on the same side as Father Coughlin.

COPYRIGHT WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE—WNU SERVICE

SYNOPSIS

Ruth Chiswick of L C ranch, obsessed by fear of danger to her outspoken father, Lee, from a band of lawless rustlers headed by Sperm Howard, decides to save him by sloping with young Lou Howard, Sperm's son, and comes to the town of Tail Holt to meet him. While in Yell Sanger's store, a crook-nosed stranger enters, sizes up the situation, and when a drunken cowboy, Jim Pender, rides in and starts shooting, protects Ruth, while Lou Howard hides. Disgusted with Lou's cowardice, Ruth calls off the element, and sends the stranger for her father at the gambling house across the street. There the stranger, calling himself Jeff Gray, meets Morgan Norris, a killer, Curly Connor, Kansas, Mile High, Sid Hunt, and other rustlers, and Sperm Howard. Lee Chiswick enters, with his foreman, Dan Brand, and tells Sperm Howard of his orders to shoot rustlers at sight. Jeff Gray returns to Ruth and coolly reassures her of her father's safety. At supper, Ruth introduces Jeff to her father and Brand, and in Sanger's store later she speaks cordially to Curly Connor. Coming out of the store, they are greeted by sudden gunplay. Lee is wounded, and Jeff Gray appears with a smoking revolver. Two days later, Ruth tells her father of her projected elopement and her disillusionment. Later, Ruth meets Jeff Gray, whom she thinks tried to kill her father. When he tries to hold her bride, Ruth accidentally presses the trigger of her gun, and wounds Jeff. She takes him to Pat Sorley's camp. Talking over the shooting with Sorley, Ruth is incredulous of Jeff's story of shooting at the assassin rather than at her father, and later pleads with Lee to listen to him. When Lee arrives at Pat Sorley's camp, he finds only a note to Pat from Jeff. Meanwhile, Jeff rides into Tail Holt and sends word to Sperm Howard he wants to see him.

He pulled on his boots and swiftly examined his revolver. That the weapon rested lightly in its holster so that there would be no hindrance to a quick draw he made sure. This invasion in force might or might not mean trouble. Curly had probably come with a chip on his shoulder. Norris was a killer of the worst kind. On the other hand, Sperm Howard had the reputation of doing his fighting by proxy. He might have brought Morg merely as a defensive precaution. Jeff hoped, if he did not open up with a blast of guns, to talk them out of any thought of vengeance. It would not be easy now, not with Curly all hot to rub him out.

In his throat there beat the pulse of excitement that always accompanied deadly danger. His fingers trembled.

A knock on the door sounded. Gray's nervousness vanished instantly. He said, "Come in," his drawing voice cool as ice-water.

CHAPTER V

Their host maneuvered Norris to a rocking-chair. Howard to a straight-backed one. Curly he seated at the foot of the bed. Gray stood in a shadowy corner farthest from the window. He was giving himself the best chance possible. Of the three visitors, Norris was probably the most dangerous gunman, and a rocking-chair is not the most advantageous spot for swift and accurate shooting.

"A little crowded in here, gents," Gray said lightly. "Hope you don't mind sitting on the bed, Mr. Connor. I'm short of chairs."

"Suits me," Curly answered. Gray nodded, turned his attention to the big man. "I hated to trouble you to come here, Mr. Howard," he said apologetically, "but I have a busted leg that interferes with walking."

"I didn't mind coming. I wasn't busy," Howard's leaden opaque eyes never lifted from the stranger.

"Just reached town and I thought I'd better see you," Gray mentioned.

Slumped in the chair, the gross weight of the man overflowing, Howard reminded Gray of a prize hog.

Howard said nothing. He waited for the situation to develop. The man had a capacity for effective silence.

"Figuring I might want to stay around Tail Holt awhile," Gray went on easily.

"It's a free country," Howard's voice was suave.

"For some folks," Norris added with an insinuating laugh.

Gray smiled. "My idea, too, Mr. Norris. I want to find out if I'm one of those folks."

"Last time I saw you that roan was foggin' it outa town fast," Norris taunted. "You looked like you had hurry-up business anywhere but here, Mr. Gray, if that's what you call yourself."

"I changed my mind," Gray said.

"Why?" Howard asked bluntly.

"Got a busted leg. Shot up the other day."

"In front of the Golden Nugget?" Norris inquired, suspicion in his cold gray eyes.

"No. Out on the L C range."

"While you were gunning for Lee," Curly charged.

"No."

"That so?" Norris snarled. "Who did it? How come you out there?"

"Talk fast, fellow," Curly ordered harshly.

"Miss, Ruth Chiswick did it," Gray did not look at Curly. His stone-wall gaze was on the killer Norris.

"I was there on personal business of my own."

"Curly ripped out an angry oath. "If you hurt Miss Ruth—" "Smoothly Howard interrupted. "Let us hear the story, Curly. Mr. Gray sent for us to tell it, don't you reckon?" "Go ahead, Sorreltop," Norris laughed derisively. "We'll believe every word you say."

Gray told the story of his adventures in the L C territory, with careful editorial elisions. They heard it to a finish.

"That Chiswick girl is a tough proposition," Howard said, shaking his head gravely. "She'll come to a bad end, like enough."

"Nothing of the kind," retorted Curly hotly. "She's a mighty nice little lady."

"Some hot-tempered, but with the making of a fine woman in her," Gray concurred.

"She's sure a wampus cat," Norris cut in, his slurred voice a sneer. "Leave the girl out of this," Curly snapped.

"Mr. Norris only meant she is a little lively," Gray explained.

"I can tell him what I meant, fellow, without any help from you," Norris blustered. "And I didn't bring her name into it. She was in the fairy tale this bird has been giving us."

Ignoring Norris, the crook-nosed man spoke to Howard. "I don't claim to be so law-abiding myself. Maybe I left some place in a hurry. Maybe I didn't. Thought it wasn't good manners to ask a stranger about his past."

"You can't catch a mule without an ear of corn, Mr. Gray," the big man said. "If I get you right, you are asking our help. Before we give it we have a right to know all about you."

"Fine, for you," the cornered man replied. "But how about me? How do I know some fox won't write a letter and have me dragged back to—some place I don't want to go?"

Howard looked affronted. "If a man throws in with us, we don't betray him."

"Is that a promise?" Gray asked, looking to the others for confirmation.

"Y'betcha, if we're satisfied with yore story," Curly said.

"If," Norris accented, with an ugly laugh.

Reluctantly Gray drew from his pocket the poster. Still slumped in his chair, the big-shouldered fat man read it carefully.

"So you're Clint Duke," he said. "Gray did not admit this in words. "Draw yore own conclusions," he told Howard.

"Lemme have a look at it," Curly said impatiently. He read aloud: "Height five foot ten, age twenty-nine, weight about 158 pounds, crook nose, light red hair, gray eyes, scar on back of left hand. Will probably fight desperately before being taken."

Curly lifted his eyes and grinned at Gray. "Certainly reads like it might be you, unless you've got a twin brother the spittin' image of you, even to the scar on yore hand."

Norris reached for the poster. "The picture is sure ugly as galvanized sin," he sneered. "But it looks a heap like this guy, I'll say that. I knew all the time he was from Texas."

"Says you and these three other fellows are wanted for robbing the Texas and Southern Flyer," Curly mentioned. "Where are the other guys?"

"On the dodge, down in the Texas brush country."

"How come you not to stay there?"

"The Rangers were after me special," Gray explained. "I figured I had better light out."

Norris looked at the poster, his lip curled. "Mr. Duke is real important in Texas. Arizona sure ought to give him the glad hand." "The name is Gray in Arizona," corrected the crook-nosed man. "Worth two thousand on the hoof—or as meat, I reckon—down Santone way," Norris continued. "The other guys who helped rob the train only rate at five hundred apiece. But Mr. Duke—he's an honest-to-God Jesse James."

Gray ignored the jeer. "Like to correct you on one point, Mr. Norris. Two thousand on the hoof. Not a cent if shipped down in a coffin." He thought it just as well to stress this, to avoid being shot in the back.

"That's right," Norris assented. "I didn't read it careful. Well, Mr. Duke—Gray, I mean—it's a pleasure to meet up with a famous man like you."

"This is private information," the fugitive said. "I don't expect the word passed around among yore friends. I'm lying low for a while, you understand."

"It still isn't clear to me what you were doing in the Sweet Spring valley," Curly insisted. "Or why you wanted to kill Lee Chiswick?"

Gray smiled. "I was in the Sweet Spring valley because I had to get out of Tail Holt in a hurry on account of Curly Connor making a target out of me," he told the black-haired man cheerfully. "Me, I was going somewhere in a hurry, and I happened to land in the L C country. About yore other question—I never have wanted to kill Chiswick."

"You just shot at him for practice," Curly suggested.

"I didn't shoot at him," Gray lay the cold eyes rest on Norris. "I reckon that's not information to yore friends."

"Meaning me?" asked Norris, his eyes slitted.

"Meaning only that this has been talked over among you. Someone took a crack at Chiswick. Whoever it was, I could just see his figure in the alley, and I ripped loose at him."

"Why?" asked Howard. "Had you any chips in the game?"

"I've asked myself why often enough since," Gray replied, shaking his head. "Darnfno why, Nary chip, Mr. Howard. But I had just been eating supper with him as his guest, and I reckon my notion must have been to see he got a fair break."

"But that isn't yore notion any longer, Mr. Gray?" Howard queried lightly.

"I'm not drawing a pay-check to be his bodyguard," Gray drawled.

"Is it straight goods what he says, Sperm?" Curly demanded.

"I reckon so, Curly. One of the boys got impatient and cut loose at Chiswick."

"Who?"

"I don't know who. I'm telling you only what I've heard."

"All right," Norris said. "This busted leg of his. Do we have to take it on faith?"

"It needs some attention," the wounded man replied. "Is there a doc in town?"

"No, doc, but Sperm here is almost as good."

"Fine. Would you mind looking at it, Mr. Howard?" Gray asked.

Howard examined, washed, and dressed the wound. There could be no doubt it was authentic. After he had finished taking care of it, the fat man gave a decision.

"No objection to your staying here, Mr. Gray. This community doesn't aim to be hard on a man in trouble. Of course, if Lee Chiswick finds out you are here, as he is liable to do, it will be up to you to look out for yourself."

Gray said he would try to do that.

Early Roman Writers Classified Their Dogs as Watch, Sheep, Hunting Breeds

Without doubt one of the earliest uses of a dog was to help herd the stock of his master. Early references to dogs confirm this. When you examine the works of Roman writers, observes an authority in the Chicago Tribune, you find that they divided dogs into three classifications, watchdogs, sheep dogs, and hunting dogs. It is quite likely that the conquering Romans brought these dogs into England. The Bible also gives us a sidelight on the early use of dogs for herding, as in the book of Job we read Job's reference to "those whose fathers I would have disinherited to have set with dogs of my flocks."

Since dogs have helped for many centuries to tend the flocks of their masters—a practice that prevailed in many countries—it isn't surprising that today we still have a rather large number of working breeds with herding instincts and a real working background. The Belgian sheep dog, Bouvier des Flandres, collie, Old English sheep dog, and others are in this group.

The border collie found herding

A PLOWMAN THAT LOOKS BACKWARD

P. Pierce Brooks of Dallas has announced his candidacy for lieutenant governor. Two years ago he was a candidate for governor on a platform favoring the abolition of automobile license taxes. He received a mere sprinkling of votes. This year he has dropped back a notch. He now wants to be lieutenant governor. He probably feels that he could be of more service in that position to certain special interests which, it is believed, are backing him than he could in the governor's office. As lieutenant governor, he would have much more power in controlling legislation than the governor ordinarily has.

In announcing for lieutenant governor, he announces his opposition to any new taxes of any kind "regardless of which interest, group or faction they may fall upon."

A lot of people who are sick and tired of high taxes might go with him that far, but Brooks would go much farther. If he had his way he would practically abolish all taxes, thus crippling our public schools, our highway building program, and every other tax-supported enterprise.

"I hate taxes", he declared in making his announcement, thereby writing himself down as not a good citizen.

If he had said, I hate excessive taxes, or unjust taxes or unnecessary taxes, his statement would not have been subject to criticism. But he tried to make it plain that he hates all taxes. If he is not the candidate of special interests in this state, he is evidently bidding for their support. He would free them largely from the payment of all taxes, and he would turn the pages of Texas progress back at least a quarter of a century.

The man who puts his hand to the plow and continually looks backward will not do much good as a farmer. We don't need backward-looking men in public office.

BORROWING CATHOLIC THUNDER

After quoting our recent editorial respecting the spread of Roman Catholic ritualism and ceremonialism in this country, Jack Stricklin of the Terry County Herald last week took a whack at what he conceives to be one shining example of the evil. Jack says:

"To go just a bit further, Bro. Hill, the modern protestant denominational world, is trying to borrow a lot of the Catholic thunder. Take for instance Easter. They are trying to make a great thing out of that for weeks before the day arrives, in a religious way, when in fact the word is not used but one time in the Bible, and that is in the King James Version. The American Standard revised version does not use the word "Easter", at all, but gives it the right usage, "Passover." There are a number of other things we could mention Bro. Hill, that are used now, that was undreamed of in New Testament times, but this is a secular and not a religious journal."

We don't think God pays any attention to the formalism often in evidence in our Easter services, to the mere lip services of so-called worshippers, nor to the glitter and the finery of these occasions, for God looks on the heart; but it may be, Jack, that much good comes out of these special occasions after all. If they have the effect of deepening the spirituality of some worshiper or of turning the thoughts of the wicked toward God, then they have accomplished great good, even though the word Easter may not be found in the Bible and even though Easter was originally a festival of the German barbarians. Where we err most is in accepting mere formalism and ceremonialism as Christianity.

Norman Thomas, leader of the socialists in this country, was denied the right to speak in Jersey City Saturday night and was forcibly deported from the city by policemen. They were, acting, we understand, under the direction of Mayor Hague. We have none too much love for the doctrines of the socialists in this country but we do believe in the fundamental right of free speech guaranteed to every citizen by our Constitution. When city officials assume the authority to deny this right to any citizen, it is high time for them to be kicked out of office.

Lynn County . . . . .
History

[As Revealed by the Files of the Lynn County News
of May 9, 1913.]

Rev. J. P. Calloway, pastor of the Methodist Church, has secured the services of Rev. C. W. Young of Trent to assist him in the protracted meeting to begin the first Sunday in June.

Dr. E. H. Inman left Tuesday morning in his auto for his new home in Dallas.

Sunday, May 4, freinds gathered in to help Grandma Phenix celebrate her ninety-third birthday. Those present besides the family were Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Jones, Mrs. J. E. Ketter and children, Mrs. Jack Alley, Mrs. H. M. Larkin, Mrs. D. A. Parkhurst, Mrs. M. A. Stroud, Mrs. Shaw and Miss Etta, Mrs. J. B. Lowe, Mrs. J. W. Samford, and W. K. Ray.

We call your attention to the professional card of Dr. E. E. Callaway, which appears this week for the first time. Dr. Callaway has moved to Tahoka from Cleburne and is highly recommended by Dr. Inman.

Dr. S. H. Windham shipped in 145 head of cows in five cars from Marfa. They arrived Tuesday night. The extra good grass which we have here now is causing many of our stockmen to enlarge their herds in Lynn county, which means that when they have built and filled their silos, fed their stuff and shipped it to market, right tidy sums of money will come rolling into Lynn county this winter.

R. C. Chisum and his two daughters, Misses Ruby and Bessie, came in on the evening train Friday of last week after an absence of 2 years.

The young son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Napier of 2 miles north of Tahoka underwent an appendicitis operation Tuesday.

(Delayed)
In the early hours of Wednesday morning, April 6, our darling wife and mother went to her heavenly home, went to that beautiful garden of love—left us to pluck flowers from our earthly garden of memory. Oh, the memory of her will not dim thro' the years. Those beautiful flowers that were brought and placed beside her have faded and withered away, and our bitter tears of sorrow will dry, but sweet and glorious memories of you, Jewell, will ever live in our hearts. Oh, God bless each and every one of our friends and loved ones for loving words that were spoken and every kind deed that was done. Especially do we thank those who weathered the storm at the cemetery, for such comforting words from our minister. We humbly pray for God's blessings to rest on all of you.—Wayne McClintock and Monte Rae.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Holland and Dorothy went down to Fort Worth Sunday, where Mrs. Holland and Dorothy will visit the former's mother a week or two. Sam returned home Tuesday. He reported Dorothy as still improving from the injuries she received in a car wreck several weeks ago.

Miss Evelyn Ritcher of Lubbock, district supervisor of the House-keeping Aide project of the W. P. A., was here last Friday visiting the Tahoka project, of which Mrs. Millie Halsey Hill is superintendent. A number of women here are being trained to give housekeeping aid.

Bread should be his principle source of energy . . .

GOOD BREAD helps children make the grade. It provides them with the energy and pep they must have to compete successfully with others of their own age.

It also does far more than that. It supplies their growing bodies with protein to meet their muscle-building needs and contributes to the minerals they must have for all-round health.

According to leading authorities, a FOURTH of all the muscle-building food children eat can well come from bread. After the age of six, their daily diet can include six or more slices of bread to their benefit.

Bread builds muscles. It revives worn out, tired muscles. It digests MORE QUICKLY than any other common food except sugar. No residue is left to upset or strain delicate digestive systems. And it continues to supply energy throughout the entire day.

There is no BETTER, CHEAPER way than through good bread of giving growing children the things their bodies need in largest amounts: a good source of food energy and muscle-building protein.

CARD OF THANKS

We are sincerely grateful to our friends here and elsewhere who have been so kind and thoughtful of us during the sad hours following the death of our loved ones, John and George. We want to thank each and every one for all the kind words that were spoken and for the beautiful floral offerings. We also thank the doctors and the Harris Funeral Home. Sincerely— M. B. ### MRS. OSA GATTIS HONORED WITH BRIDAL SHOWER

The young ladies of the Church of Christ honored Mrs. Osa Gattis with a bridal shower on Tuesday afternoon, April 26, in the home of Mrs. Loyd Nowlin.

The house was decorated with beautiful spring flowers and pot plants.

The guests arrived about 3 o'clock, spending a few minutes visiting. Later Mrs. Rafe Richardson and Mrs. Gattis arrived. When Mrs. Gattis was seated and everything made ready, Mrs. Tobe Kennedy, in her pleasing manner called the house to order and announced the happy event of the afternoon, and being assisted by Mrs. Roy Cowan and Mrs. Nowlin, Mrs. Gattis was soon most covered in beautiful and useful gifts.

After sixty or seventy gifts were admired by all present, the punch bowl became the next center of attraction; and then the ladies adjourned.—Contributed.

GRASSLAND H. D. CLUB

The Grassland H. D. Club met in the home of Mrs. Paul Lawson April 25.

Mrs. Appling, Mrs. Douglas Greer and Mrs. A. Lawson gave a program on consumer buying.

Members present were: Mesdames R. E. Appling, D. G. Cook, Lewis Kenley, J. P. Ray, Douglas Greer, Paul Lawson, Bob McCord, C. E. Short, C. M. Greer, W. R. Greer, A. Lawson, B. N. Durham, Watson.

REVIVAL BEGINS SUNDAY AT CHURCH OF GOD

A revival meeting will begin Sunday night at the Church of the Assembly of God, according to Rev. E. R. Holcomb, the pastor.

Rev. W. E. Wilson of Tatum, New Mexico, will assist in the meeting. The Church and pastor extend a cordial welcome to all.

A couple of weeks ago Mrs. J. L. Reese underwent an operation on one of the eyes. Wednesday of this week she underwent an operation on the other eye. Both operations, it is thought, were successful.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. King and daughter, Miss Betty, returned last Friday night from Albuquerque, where they visited a daughter, Mrs. B. F. Taylor.

"None But Americans on Guard"

There is a tradition that during an especially critical period of the Revolution General Washington issued the order, "Put none but Americans on guard tonight." There is no record that such an order was ever issued, but that it might have been issued is suggested by a circular letter which Washington sent to his regimental commanders in 1777 regarding recruits for his body-guard: "You will therefore send me none but natives." A few months before Thomas Hickey, a pretended deserter from the British army, had tried to poison Washington and had been convicted and hanged. "Put none but Americans on guard" was one of the mottoes of the Know Nothing party which was organized about 1852.

P. PIERCE BROOKS.

Houston, candidate for Lieutenant Governor, says he is for repeal of the auto license tax, a reduction in the cost of government, full payment of pensions, creation of a new department of Real Estate and Industry, co-operation with the National Farm program, and says "I hate taxes." He once made the race for governor of Texas.

Solomon Island Natives

Vigorous and Fighters

The Solomons are a group of seven large and a great number of smaller islands, stretching over about 800 miles in the Pacific ocean east of New Guinea. Most of them are rough and mountainous, and covered with dense tropical forests, writes Albert B. Lewis in Field Museum News.

The natives form a part of the Melanesian group of peoples, all of whom speak languages also known as Melanesian. These are fundamentally related in a grammatical sense, but differ greatly in vocabulary.

The Solomon Islanders are vigorous and warlike, but are compelled to keep the peace except in the interior of one or two of the larger islands. Many of them were formerly head-hunters and cannibals, and often made raids on their neighbors, using large high-built war canoes 40 to 50 feet long, capable of carrying 25 or more men. Clubs and spears were the principal weapons, but bows and arrows were used in some places.

The natives are of medium height, but vary considerably. In the western end of the group they are rather tall, somewhat negroid in appearance, with kinky, black hair and a very dark or sooty-black skin. The eastern islanders are somewhat smaller, of a lighter, chocolate-brown color, with curly or wavy hair. It is evident that in the Solomons, as in all other Melanesian islands, there is an underlying Oceanic negroid or Papuan type, mixed to a greater or lesser degree with Indonesian or Malayan immigrants.

For food the natives are largely dependent on their gardens, terra being the most important foodstuff. Other vegetables are used to some extent, but taro is the basis of nearly every meal, with fish, shrimp or meat (chiefly pork) being added when obtainable. The natives are very fond of the milk and meat of the unripe coconut, to obtain which they must climb the coconut palms.

"Easterling" Word Used to Denote Real Quality

After the Romans left Britain, coinage was in chaos for several centuries, writes Alice H. Coutant in the American Collector. Coins were of all shapes and sizes. Quality and weight of silver varied greatly and the practice of clipping coins, although punishable by death, was common. Toward the middle of the Thirteenth century, a number of north-German merchants came to England and formed a guild in London. They made their own coins which soon became notable for honesty of weight and fine quality.

Called "Easterlings," probably because of the geographical position of the country where they originated the term soon applied to their coins as well. Then, by the end of the century, it had been shortened to sterling and this, derived from the name given to the honest product of honest men, became the accepted term for the alloy which has been of such a high standard in England for more than 600 years.

Sterling silver is an alloy of 925 parts pure silver in 1,000. This standard, decreed by King Edward I in the year 1300, has been adhered to ever since, except for a few years when an even higher standard prevailed. No other country holds such a record.

"How Old Is Ann?" Gave Puzzle Sherlock's a Problem

The question, "How old is Ann?" refers to an old mathematical problem which had a wide vogue at the beginning of the Twentieth century. On October 12, 1903, the New York Press, in its column "On the Tip of the Tongue," printed the following letter submitted by a correspondent who signed himself John Mahon and gave his residence as Brooklyn:

"Mary is twenty-four years old. She is twice as old as Ann was when she was as old as Ann is now. How old is Ann now? A says the answer is sixteen; B says twelve. Which is correct?"

Mark Sullivan, in Our Times, says that this letter "started people sharpening pencils over the entire country, and for half a dozen years remained a subject of dispute and means of pastime." The imperfect manner in which the problem was stated (both the answers given were incorrect) not only confused those attempting to solve it, but also contributed to the fascination of the task. Several persons, it was reported, went insane trying to find out how old Ann was. All sorts of "Ann problems" (some of them entirely new and some of them merely modifications of the original) were published for the amusement of the public.

From what source the writer of the letter printed in the New York Press obtained the original problem is not known. That it antedates 1903, in one form or another, is probable. Some people have attributed the original Ann problem to Sam Loyd, an inventor of puzzles and brain-twisters, but there is no evidence to support the claim. The problem as stated in the paper presents no particular mathematical difficulties and is readily solved by algebra. The answer is that Ann is eighteen years of age, says a writer in the Indianapolis News.

MIDWAY H. D. CLUB

The Midway 4-H Club met in the Midway school building with their sponsor, Mrs. Spears, April 28. Almost every girl has begun sewing on the garment that she is to make for the style show at Tahoka May 21.

Fourteen girls have started on their poultry books.

Members present were: Clara Lee Henry, Reba Phillips, Clara Faye Nordyke, Icaephene, Nieto La Nell Stephens, Clovis Stephens, Mary and Evelyn McDonald Irene Grider, La Vern Johnson, Mary Louise, Bessie Rainey, and sponsor, Mrs. Spears.

Little Margaret Durham, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. K. R. Durham, underwent a mastoid operation in a Lubbock hospital Tuesday. She is said to be recovering nicely and it is hoped she will have no more trouble of this nature.

Tahoka Observes Air Mail Week

The week beginning Sunday, May 15, is to be observed as National Air Mail Week.

Thursday, May 19, is the date set for the air-mail pick up. On this day, a scheduled plane will make the flight from Amarillo to San Antonio via Plainview, Lubbock, Big Spring, and San Angelo. Four "feeder" planes will be sent out from Lubbock to pick up the mail over the south plains to make connection with that schedule.

One of these "feeder" planes will gather up the mail from the following places: Brownfield, Seagraves, Hobbs, N. M. Seminole, Lamesa, and Tahoka.

National Air Mail Week is designed, we are told, to impress upon the American people the progress that has been made in this department of the postal service and the possibilities of its future expansion.

John Lee Smith In State Race

John Lee Smith of Throckmorton, candidate for lieutenant governor, announces that he will make his opening address at Throckmorton Saturday afternoon.

Smith offers to divide time with Senator G. H. Nelson for a discussion of Nelson's unicameral house proposal, dubbing this proposal as Nelson's "little fascist child".

But Nelson will be shelling the woods elsewhere on that date.

Mrs. F. L. Kelley came from Dallas Monday with Mrs. Hays, the former to visit her daughter, Mrs. R. C. Wells, and the latter to visit her daughter, Miss Ada Hays, teacher in the public school here.

Mrs. Lee Gable was released from a Lamesa hospital last Sunday, where she had undergone a major operation a few days before.

Curtains For Edith School Received

W. J. Burkhart says that he can again walk the streets of Tahoka without fear of being mobbed.

A few weeks ago Mr. Burkhart, who is a trustee in the Edith district, gave his approval to a plan presented to him by two women driving a car bearing Oklahoma license plates whereby these women were to present to the school a curtain for the stage on consent to sell advertising on the curtain. The women did sell the advertising in Tahoka, but because of their suspicious actions certain business men consulted local officers and the women were overtaken on the highway headed for Lubbock. The women convinced the "law" that their intentions were good, however, and the ladies were allowed to proceed on their journey northward. Local merchants who bought advertising on the curtain were still not satisfied.

But, Friday morning of last week, Mr. Burkhart says, the curtains were received as promised. He says, also, that they are very nice and that he will see that they are hung in the school as promised.

Needless to say, Mr. Burkhart, as well as the merchants, is very much relieved.

Have You a Favorite Cake Recipe?—Send It In It May Win Cash Prize

WHEN you decide to give your family a real treat and you bake one of those luscious, tempting chocolate cakes, or it may be a delectable marble cake or a delicious devil's food cake, made from your favorite recipe, and the folk all reach for a second, or perhaps a third, helping—now isn't that gratifying! How amply rewarded you feel by the remarks of appreciation going around the festive board such as "Oh, boy, what a cake!" from little Willie, said with a mouthful, to "I must have another piece if I burst!" from Dad.

But here!—you may have still further reward coming to you. The very recipe that the family makes so much over may be the one to take the first prize of $25, or one of the five second prizes of $10, or one of the ten third prizes of $5 in the Cake Recipe Contest. And why not?

C. Houston Goudiss, noted food authority, who for 30 years has exerted a wide influence on the food habits of this nation through his lectures and books, and who at present conducts the food department in this newspaper known as "What to Eat and Why," is conducting a cake recipe contest with cash prizes to be given to persons submitting the best recipes. Your recipe will be judged on the basis of its nutritional and wholesome value. It need not be a marvelous creation for the eye to behold. The judges of this contest may agree with your family that your favorite recipe IS THE BEST! For further particulars see the announcement elsewhere in this issue of this newspaper. There is nothing to buy. No letter to write. Just send in your favorite cake recipe. It may win a prize.

Mr. and Mrs. John Berry of left Tuesday afternoon to take their daughter, Mrs. Marvin Aldridge, and her two children to Freer, Duval county, where her husband is employed.

Mrs. A. P. Martin of Tulla and Mrs. N. E. Broyles of Liberal, Kansas, were here Sunday visiting their sister, Mrs. I. I. Gattis, and her family.

H. C. Pender Selected High School Commencement Speaker May 20

H. C. Pender, acting head of the Government department, of the Texas Technological College, will deliver the address to the graduating class of the Tahoka high school on Friday night of Commencement week, according to announcements made by Mrs. Lenore Tunnell, the class sponsor.

Elder R. P. Drennon, now of O'Donnell, will preach the Commencement sermon on Sunday, May 15.

Two members of the class tied for the honor of acting as valedictorian, we are informed. Mary Margaret Tunnell and Edith Robertson. Each made a grade of 94.8 for the entire term.

Dr. K. R. Durham returned last Sunday from Alexandria, Louisiana, where he attended the convention of the Louisiana State Dental Association, and where he had a place on the program. He was accompanied home by his aunt, Mrs. Betty Gilbert of Winnfield, La., who came to visit the Durhams a few weeks.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Bids will be received by Lynn County, at the Court House at Tahoka, Texas, until 10 o'clock a. m. on May 13, 1938, for the purchase of one heavy duty motor grader and an Adams No. 12 grader to be taken as part payment, and notice is hereby given that warrants will be issued in the maximum sum of $5,300.00, payable serially, last maturity not later than April 15, 1940, bearing interest at the rate of 6% per annum, interest payable semi-annually. The right is reserved to reject all bids.

P. W. GOAD, County Judge of Lynn County, Texas. 37-2tc.

Bob Bosworth, son of R. Bosworth of Magnolia, underwent an operation in a Lamesa hospital a couple of weeks ago for ruptured appendix. He is recovering.

Mr. and Mrs. George Knight and Lee Roy returned Wednesday night from Pleasanton, where they had gone to see Mr. and Mrs. Summer Knight, who had been stopping there with relatives a few days. Summer and wife accompanied them back as far as San Antonio and expected to go from there to Kerrville within a day or two. Summer's condition, as we understand it, has shown little change.

Mrs. O. L. McClendon returned home Sunday from a hospital in Lamesa where she had undergone a major operation.

Governor Allred Declares
Texas Bread Week

GOVERNOR JAMES V. ALLRED by special proclamation calls upon the citizens of Texas to observe the week of May 9th as TEXAS BREAD WEEK by serving bread, toast, sweet rolls, cake, and other baked wheat foods. The Governor points out that this program is important to the agricultural and industrial welfare of Texas because the increased consumption of bakery products increases the consumption of wheat, flour, milk, butter and cottonseed-oil products. These products all are important to the prosperity of Texas agriculture. Farmers, millers, bakers and grocers are cooperating to put the proclamation into effect.

COUNTY CLUBS

Miss Lillith Boyd, H. D. Agent

MIDWAY H. D. CLUB
MET APRIL 21

The Midway H. D. Club met April 21 at the home of Mrs. Geo. Vaughn.

We demonstrated several milk dishes and drinks.

The hostess and four neighbors who are not club members seemed interested in the work. We hope they will become members. On April 29 we met at the home of Mrs. Curtis Driver.

After a short business session, we indulged in a round table discussion on selection of blankets materials for dresses and slips, and laundering of linen garments.

Each club member present furnished an article made of odds and ends, which was sold at auction netting $2.30. This feature created so much merriment with Mrs. Littlepage as auctioneer we voted to repeat it next meeting.

Refreshments were served to the following members: Mesdames G. A. Edwards, R. L. Littlepage, Howard Draper, Alice Duncan, I. M. Draper, Curtis Driver, J. F. Thomas, Pete Surry, Otis Curry, and R. D. Donaldson, and Mrs. Weldon McMillstock, visitor.

Health-Wrecking Functional

Severe functional pains of menstruation, cramping spells and jangled nerves soon rub a woman of her natural, youthful freshness. PAIN lines in a woman's face too often grow into AGE lines!

Thousands of women have found it helpful to take Cardul. They say it seemed to ease their pains and they noticed an increase in their appetites and finally a strengthened resistance to the discomfort of monthly periods.

Try Cardul. Of course if it doesn't help you, see your doctor.

GRASSLAND H. D. CLUB
MET IN GARLYN

The Grassland H. D. Club met in the Garlyn community April 26 in the home of Mrs. Z. G. Robinson.

Mrs. Paul Lawson gave a demonstration on a white butter cake.

The secret of this cake is creaming the butter and sugar evenly "said Mrs. Lawson."

Members present: Mesdames Bob McCord, Paul Lawson, R. E. Appling, A. L. Shepherd, Claud Thomas, C. E. Short, B. N. Durham, J. P. Ray, A. Lawson, and Lewis Ward; visitors were: Mrs. O. R. Cook, R. E. Cash, A. B. Short, Sam Cox, and Z. E. Robinson. Five children were present.

FREDDIE SMITH IS NEW HOME
POULTRY DEMONSTRATOR

"My chickens are eight weeks old and only four of the 211 have died", said Freddie Smith, poultry demonstrator in the New Home 4-H Club.

"I keep litter made of bundle feed on the floor. This makes the house easier to clean but as it is not very thick I remove it every three days and add new litter. I keep sufficient fresh water and feed before the chickens all the time. There is an opening between the chicken house and sun room which permits the chickens to pass in and out during the day."

"I am growing this group to add to next year's flock because 95% of them are pullets", said Freddie.

Tornado Swept Away 19 Farm Homes

Editor Follows Path Of Storm Over 30-Mile Sector

Did you ever follow the path of a tornado?

Well, we had that unusual experience last Saturday. Desiring to get firsthand knowledge of the terrific twister that ripped through portions of Dawson and Lynn counties late Tuesday afternoon of last week, the editor and Mrs. Hill drove down highway 9 to the little store one mile east of the OK school house on last Saturday and from that point backtracked the tornado almost to its origin. Now come and go with us, dear readers, from its origin to its destination, a path of death and destruction fully 30 miles long.

Originates In Dawson
The first house at which any damage was reported was the Stevens residence something like seventeen or eighteen miles southwest of O'Donnell in the Woody community. There some outhouses were blown down and possibly some feed blown away. From this point the twister came in a northeasterly direction taking the back end off of the Bettis residence, situated about two miles from the Stevens place blowing down his barn and outhouses and destroying some feed, but no one was hurt at either the Stevens or Bettis homes.

About three quarters of a mile nearly east, slightly northeast, of the Bettis home was the four-room residence of J. H. Long, a widower. The center of the tornado apparently struck his place, utterly reducing the house to kindling wood, destroying all his outhouses, uprooting most of the larger trees and some of the smaller ones, and demolishing the windmill and tower. Mr. Long lived in this house alone, and he was the first man injured by the storm. His lower jaw was broken in two places, a great gash cut on his shoulder and other injuries inflicted. After being found some time later he was taken to a Lamesa hospital.

Carries Baby Away
Long's house was situated on the north side of a public road running east and west. A half mile further down the road east, situated on the south side of the road was the three-room W. O. Standefer house. At the Long house, the storm veered very perceptibly to the southeast, crossing the road, and proceeding in a direction which, if unchanged, would have taken it south of the Standefer residence; but, at just the right point, with apparent design, the mad storm again swerved slightly to the northeast and caught the little house in its very vortex. This house was also reduced to splinters. Mr. Standefer was not at home at the time, but the wife and two children were in the house. All were hurt, Mrs. Standefer sustaining only minor injuries, but a sliver of wood was driven into the arm of Claudine, 13, while the 18 months old baby was later found a hundred yards or more from the place where the house had stood, with the legs broken and other injuries.

Cloud Lifts
A half mile slightly north of east from the Standefer residence was a house occupied by R. S. Byrd and family. Only some outhouses were destroyed here and no one was hurt. Here the cloud must have lifted slightly, for no more serious damage was done until the Mrs. Beulah Burleson home was struck two or three miles east and one mile north of the Byrd place. This was a nice substantial home. It was unroofed and otherwise badly damaged. In the house at the time were Mrs. Burleson, two nieces, her aged mother, Mrs. Cox, and a male relative. Household articles were blown from room to room, they stated, and all the occupants received minor injuries but no one was seriously hurt.

Strange as it may seem, the storm at this point turned due east, following the public road for four miles, the center of the storm veering slightly to one side of the road here and slightly to the other side there, but touching practically every house along the road until the OK school house and store were reached.

House Wrecked, Family Uninjured
A little vacant house a few hundred yards east of the Burleson home was practically unharmed, but two or three hundred yards further east on the south side of the road, a small house occupied by F. M. Morris, two sons and a daughter was unroofed. The outhouses just south of the residence were utterly demolished. The Morris family were in their home at the time the roof was lifted and carried away, but scarcely a hair of their heads was injured. They were compelled to find shelter elsewhere, however. Only a boy was there feeding the chickens when we called. A part of the roof had lodged on the chicken house and was still there.

But the family residing in the next house east on the same side of the road did not fare so well. This was the J. P. Minter residence, consisting of two long rooms and a smaller room. This house was so completely demolished and the ground swept so clean that it was difficult to determine just where the house had stood. Mrs. Minter sustained head injuries, a fracture of the collar bone, many lacerations and bruises, and was found in a critical condition. Two little sons sustained many lacerations and bruises. Several others in the house sustained only minor scratches and bruises.

A half mile still further east and two or three hundred yards north of the road was the two room house of Clyde Edwards. Two hundred yards nearly north but slightly east of the Edwards house was another two-room house occupied by Curley Winters and family. Both these houses were torn to shreds. Mr. Edwards was not at home. He did not get home till about dark, when he found his wife and son and the Winters family huddled under the shelter of a tractor. Both Mrs. Edwards and their son were suffering from severe lacerations and bruises

Donald Winters, 12, had been seriously injured on the back and head, and it was feared for a time that his neck was broken.

Brick Home Wrecked
A mile east of these places on the same side of the road stood the substantial brick home of Mrs. T. H. Edwards. A hundred yards west of the brick home was a three-room frame house occupied by her son, Howard Eason, his wife and child. When the storm broke upon them in its fury the Easons fled from their house and scurried to the home of his mother, Mrs. Edwards Eason carrying their little child in his arms when he mounted the front porch the force of the wind carried him and the child around the corner of the house to the east side, but Mrs. Eason managed to swing onto the front door and open it. Just as she was entering the door the porch was swept away, a portion of it catching and crushing her feet. The roof was torn away and outhouses and barns demolished. The Eason 3-room home was completely destroyed.

A tenant house on the L. H. Clark place occupied by a family named Bryant, situated east of the Edwards home was destroyed but the Bryant family had taken refuge in a storm cellar and were unharmed.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hemmeltine, other tenants living near by, also took refuge in a storm cellar and were likewise uninjured. Their house was destroyed.

Wind Plays Pranks
Now we come to OK school house and surroundings. Some queer pranks were played here by the tornado. The brick school building itself was only slightly damaged. Only the skylight and a small portion of the roof were taken away although the outhouses were destroyed. Neither was any damage done to the teacherage, situated a hundred yards west of the school building, except the destruction of the front porch. But two chicken houses and a garage were scattered over the school grounds and an adjoining pasture. Needless to say, hundreds of chickens and scores of hogs and some cows caught in the path of the storm had been killed.

K. D. Watson, principal of the OK school and occupant of the teacherage, related a harrowing experience. He was just arriving home from O'Donnell in his car when the furious winds began to blow. Parking the car in the shelter of the house he climbed out and hastened to herd his chickens into one of the chicken houses. Unable to drive them in he gave up the job and ran to close the door of one of the houses in which two hens were sitting. Just as he took hold of the chicken house it suddenly rose into the air and passed over his head, followed by the roof and upper portions of the walls of his garage, and he was left standing dumfounded in the stillness and utter darkness that surrounded him, for it had suddenly turned as dark as Egyptian darkness, and the air apparently was so still that he could not even feel it fan his cheeks.

He dropped down on his hands and knees and began to crawl, but he could not see the house only a few feet away and missed his course. Finally in the darkness he contacted an object which he recognized as his wind-charger, and from that point he crawled to the porch of his house, for he had not entirely lost his sense of direction. Reaching the porch he finally found the door and eagerly entered. Just as he did so, a sudden quirk of the wind tore the porch away from the house and made kindling wood of it.

Find Setting Hens
What became of the setting hens? Well, one of them was found wandering around aimlessly but unharmed among the wreckage of the store and filling station a hundred and fifty yards away that the storm had broken into splinters as if it had been a mousetrap and the other hen was found four hundred yards from that point in the pasture blinded by the mud and sand that encased her head and eyes. After she had been given a good bath, it was found, that she too, was unharmed. But a proud male of the species had not fared quite so well. He had lost absolutely every one of his tail feathers, even the pin feathers that lie next to the skin. The other feathers of the body apparently had been untouched. But this rooster presented a half-tragic, half-ludicrous aspect as we watched him saunter around the back yard Saturday. Still, he was alive, and that was "sumpin'" for hundreds of his fellow fowls had been wafted into that oblivion from which no winged travelers ever return.

Hits Filling Station
E. C. Mason, proprietor of the OK store and filling station, had detected trouble in the air. He suspected that a bad hallstorm was brewing. He closed his store, jumped into his car, and rushed to the home of his sister-in-law, for her husband was away from home and he knew she would be frightened. Little harm was done to his sister-in-law's home, and he has been thanking his stars ever since that he was not in that store when the roaring winds swooped down upon it.

Just east of the school grounds was a three-room house which had been formed by the bringing of three separate rooms together. Room B was situated immediately west of A and C was situated immediately south of A, the three forming a kind of L. Rooms B and C were swept away and scattered over the terrain while Room A was left standing, as was also a little shack of a toilet less than fifteen feet to the north. This house was occupied by a family named Tidwell. Becoming alarmed at the menacing appearance of the approaching storm, they left this house and made their way against the terrific sandstorm to the entrance of the school building. Finding the door locked, they broke out the glass and effected an entry, thus escaping injury.

Storm Was Worst Ever Known On South Plains

At this point the tornado again changed its course, turning slightly to the northeastward and making a bee line for the big seven-room Gary residence a mile and a half away on the east side of the Santa Fe railway. A portion of the floor and some inner walls that enclosed a hallway were the only portion of the house left intact. The rest of it was scattered to the winds. The N. S. Ballard family occupied this residence. They received only minor injuries and were taken to O'Donnell about five miles away for treatment.

Vandiveres Victims
A half mile east of the Gary house was the four room residence of E. Vandivere. His roof was gone and walls of the house so badly damaged that they planned to rebuild the entire structure. Mr. Vandivere said his wife kept telling him to look at the terrible storm cloud approaching. "But there wasn't any use to look," he said facetiously, "for we had no storm cellar". Finally he ran out to cut off the windmill and as he turned back toward the house he was compelled to see the storm—a black wall of sand hard upon them. "Before I got to the house, car sheds and chicken houses were passing me but I managed to dodge them," he said. "I met my boy coming out the door to see about Daddy. I grabbed him and hurried into the house. My wife grabbed my hand. I think it was the first time we had held hands in 30 years. She was praying while I was holding the front door, which didn't need holding. And then two or three of the windows blew in and the roof went, and there we were. But luckily none of us were hurt. The main part of the twister was to the north of us."

From the Vandivere place frantic swirling winds swept across the draw doing little damage to a house occupied by the Reeves family on the Burleson place, but further on to the northeast it struck and tore into smithereens the old Best home a large house then vacant.

Storm Misses O'Donnell

The next residence in its path was the Roy D. Smith home, a large substantial structure a little more than two miles south and a mile east of O'Donnell. Here, the most complete destruction of any house its size in the entire path of the storm was wrought. The house was reduced to splinters, numerous out-houses were swept away, and the tornado left this place a scene of complete devastation. Some insignificant sheds and pens some distance southeast of the house and a substantial barn or storage house still further out were left standing. A piano, however, was standing among the wreckage forty yards east of the spot where the house had stood, and strangely enough it had not been wrecked. Near by it was a large refrigerator also apparently in fair repair. But, strangest of all, when the big house was torn away and hurled through space like a football, the floor of the front porch was left intact. The wall just back of it had fallen across it, knocking down the concrete columns that stood at the corners but leaving two, one at each end of the doorsteps, as if nothing had happened.

Mr. Smith suffered the fracture of three ribs and the bones of the chest were crushed. Mrs. Smith sustained a rib fracture and internal injuries. Their 15-months old son sustained an injury to the head. The 12-year old daughter was only slightly injured but suffered greatly from the severe shock.

A mile east of the Smith home, the windmill, chicken house, barn, other out-houses at the Troy Isaacs residence were blown down, and some slight damage was done to the residence, but no one was hurt.

A quarter mile still further east, the poultry house of Eddy Smith was blown down and his car almost wrecked. The barn and out houses of Mr. Carlisle a half mile still further east and likewise the barn and some feed of Ed Allen, a half mile northeast of the Eddy Smith place were blown away.

Damage At Joe Bailey
In this vicinity the track of the tornado veered almost directly to the northeast, and a mile further on it struck and demolished a four-room house just recently vacated by Jake Burkett. Passing about a mile east of the Joe Bailey Schoolhouse, it left hardly a vestige of a small tenant house on the Harris place. It swept away some of the out-houses at the Tyler place just to the north, took the barn and windmill of Ed Brewer, and also the small barn at the rent house occupied by Houston Brewer.

Keeping its northeast course and apparently increasing again in its fury, it next struck a house on the T. T. Williams place occupied by Allen Moore two miles west of Draw. It left nothing standing. But the family had fled to the Luttrell place for safety and escaped injury.

Mrs. Caswell Killed

At about this point, for some unaccountable reason, the storm swirled around to the southeast but veered back to the northeast again before striking the residence of V. O. Caswell a half mile down the road east of the Moore place. Here the wild winds inflicted their first death. The substantial farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Caswell was lifted from its foundation and swept across the road on the north and utterly wrecked. Mr. and Mrs. Caswell had just hurried into the house from the cow pen for refuge from the approaching storm, when Mr. Caswell was called back out the door by Bob Alexander, who at that moment drove up seeking a storm cellar. As he turned to go back into the house and reached for the door knob, all suddenly turned dark and the house left him. No door knob was there. He was hurled inside the space where the house had been, and it was some moments before he realized that the house was gone. Some of the debris had struck him wounding his side and leg, and he could not rise to his feet in the tornado wind. But all the time he was thinking of this wife, wondering if she was safe.

Man Escapes Car

As the winds finally began to abate he saw a form approaching, and he first thought it was she. It turned out to be Bob Alexander. He then went in search of his wife—and found her, 100 to 140 yards away, lying in the field, mutilated, bloody, begrimed with mud, still hoping that there was a spark of life in her that might be revived. Long he sat thus, holding her in his arms, until aid could come. Later it was found that her body was literally covered with small abrasions and lacerations, inflicted no doubt by the splinters and other debris to which the house and its contents had been reduced.

The Caswell smokehouse, garage, and outbuildings were destroyed, and his car converted into a mass of junk. It was here too that Bob Alexander was caught by the furious wind demons in his car. Over and over the car went, tumbling through the pasture. Somewhere, somehow, Bob was thrown clear of the car and was practically unhurt, but the car was completely wrecked. Mr. Caswell's car, too, was as completely ground to pieces as if it had been caught between two railway locomotives. The motor was found in the ditch a hundred yards or so down the road. A part of the chassis was found still further on, and other parts of it were scattered to the four winds.

On the north side of the road a few hundred yards to the northeast of the Caswell place is a spot where Bill Williams house had stood. He had recently moved to his father's home and the little house was vacant. Nothing is left of it now.

McKays Home In Path
Sweeping across the field to the northeast, the tornado next struck the four room house of Mr. and Mrs. Louis McKay situated on the west side of the public road a half mile north of the village of Draw. Here the destruction was complete. Apparently the main portion of the house was carried to the west and wrecked but the porch was left wrapped around the fencing to the southeast of the house site.

There were seven persons in the McKay home, and it must have been a miracle that none of them were killed. Five of them, however, were taken to the hospital for treatment:

Mr. and Mrs. McKay, a son, Louis Daniel, one of the twins, Helen Irene, 13 months old, and a niece, Laverne Standefer. The other twin, Evelyn Maurene, was also slightly injured but was not taken to a hospital. For two or three days it was deemed impossible for Helen Irene, suffering from a fractured skull, to survive, but she is still living. Mrs. Ileda Standefer, sister of Mrs. McKay, was practically unhurt.

Walters Are Killed

A half mile or more to the northeast of the McKay home, George, John, and little Mary Belle Walters, 7, driving along the road in their car, suddenly found themselves in the clutches of the storm. Physical markings showed what happened as well as the testimony of an eye witness. The car was picked up and hurled many feet through the air. The little girl and the boy, John, 15, were thrown clear of the machine. Miraculously the little girl, who was carried possibly 15 or 20 feet into the air, came down and alighted in fencing wire entanglement and was only slightly injured. Markings on the ground showed where the boy first struck the earth many feet out in the field, and the body was carried many more feet along a slightly curved course to the place where it was left lifeless. Markings also showed where the car landed from which point the indentations on the ground indicated that it had been turned over from 15 to 17 times. It was twisted and distorted into a mass of junk, and the dead body of George Walters, 40, was found in or near the wreckage.

Storm Enters "Breaks"

The tornado kept its course northeastward to the Grover Stewart farm a mile further on, where it wrecked some outbuildings and a car and then swerved again to the southeast. Destroying some out buildings at the Carl Williams place, it then passed on into the Double-U pasture, where it seems to have spent its force.

Contrary to our statement last week, this cyclone was accompanied by only a light rain. The heavy rain covered the territory to the north of it. To those residing in the path of the tornado, it appeared as a very terrific sandstorm as it approached. The sand and dust in the air being so dense as to render it impossible for them to detect the funnel shape of the cloud. But to many on the side lines, the funnel was clearly distinguishable, and many of them surmised the nature and seriousness of the disturbance.

It was the first tornado of any consequence that has ever visited Leynn county or this portion of the south plains since the coming of the white man, though a tornado of considerable proportions struck through Crosby county twenty years ago, old-timers say, but no lives were lost and no serious personal injuries inflicted.

C. A. Daniel in the civil service of the United States Government at the Mare Island Navy Yard at Los Angeles, California, was here Tuesday the guest of his friend, County Attorney Rollin McCord. He was on his way to New York City, with the expectation of being transferred to the Atlantic coast.

MOTHERS DAY AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The sentiment of a nation and world-wide Mothers day is most beautiful and timely. There should be a Mothers day. After a few more years of training, there may be a Fathers Day.

Possibly no day set apart as a special day by the churches and the Christian world has more arrested the attention of the Church world than this. Like our Bunker Hill memorials, there is an inspiration and patriotism about it. The response to the call of Mothers day, in song, flowers, letters, telegrams, radio, prayers, sermons, and sweet remembrances of Mother on this day, is indeed most timely and becoming.

Be in our Mother's day service at 11 a. m. Sunday. Some of the choir are out of town. The pipe organ is out of repair; and our seating capacity is limited; but Mothers will be there, and the grand old Mothers Day songs will be sung, and you will enjoy the service.

The spring meeting of the El Paso Presbytery, with the laymen's meeting and the women's Presbyterial of this Presbytery in Lubbock all this past week was both inspirational and educational. Messrs. George Bovell and John Evans represented the Tahoka Church in these meetings. Mrs. John Evans is president of women's Auxillary this year. The ladies of the Tahoka Church will report about their attendance later.

Reports from over the field of our Presbyterian work are commendable.

Our Sunday School or Bible Class meets every Sunday at 10 A. M. The little Roddy girls are going to sing for us Sunday. Hear them. Morning theme of sermon: "A New Testament Mother, with a Quest".

Glad to have you in this Mothers day service. Everybody cordially invited.—W. K. Johnston, Minister.

Subscription paying time is here!

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

(Ben Hardy, Pastor)
Our Sunday morning attendance, both at church and church school, has been increasing in a fine way for several weeks.

We have about fifty in the choir for the last several Sundays. A number of children and young people have added to our regular choir until every seat is taken.

There will be appropriate services next Sunday for Mothers Day, both in sermon and song. Let's honor mothers, God's best gift to man, by being at church and having her with us if possible. If that isn't possible and she is still living, send her a love letter, a telegram, or flowers.

T-BAR H. D. CLUB MET WITH MRS. LEVERETT

The T-Bar Club met at the home of Mrs. E. A. Leverett April 22.

Miss Boyd, H. D. agent, gave an angel food cake demonstration.

Two members of our club that day said that they would attend the rug school, Mrs. Ellis Barnes and Mrs. Frank Sargent.

Cake and ice cream were served to the following: Mesdames R. E. Townsend, Paul Johnson, Frank Sargent, Coffey, Smith, Dorman, Barnes, Lindley, Manes, Leverett, and one visitor, Mrs. Luther Teague.

MAKES STORAGE SPACE MORE CONVENIENT

"Lowering the rod for hanging clothes has made my storage space more convenient", stated Thelma Ruth Strain, clothing demonstrator in the New Home 4-H Club.

"Now I can hang my clothing up without tip-toeing. I lowered two shelves and added one long one above the clothes rod. I made a built-in shoe rack below the four shelves at one side. Mother and I painted the shelves, shoe rack, and rod white and papered the walls with white ceiling paper. When I have the door painted white inside, three hat racks made and a laundry bag added, I shall have my storage space completed", said Thelma Ruth.

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE ANNOUNCEMENT

Wednesday 8 p. m. Prayer meeting.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the relatives of the deceased Merline Petty Caswell, wish to express our sincere appreciation and thanks for all the acts of kindness shown by the many, many friends who helped make more bearable this heart rending tragedy. We are especially grateful to the ladies of the Tahoka churches and to Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Story and family. Individual acts of kindness are too numerous to enumerate here, but we want each of you to consider this a personal thanks.

May God's richest blessings rest with all of those that did so much as speak a consoling word in this time of grief.

DRAW PEOPLE THANK — TAHOKA LAUNDRIES

The Draw community wishes to thank the three laundries in Tahoka for permitting the use of their facilities for the washing and laundering of the clothes, quilts and other articles for the storm sufferers of that community last week. They genuinely appreciate the favor.—Mrs. John Berry.

The body of the stillborn infant of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Easton of South Ward was buried Tuesday. It was born Monday afternoon. The father and mother desire to express their thanks to the neighbors and friends for kindness shown them in their misfortune.

Vernon Davis took his mother, Mrs. Scott Davis, down to a sanitarium at Mineral Wells Thursday for treatment. Mrs. Davis has been quite seriously sick.

Right Beauty; Wrong College

Chosen as "the only beautiful girl" at the University of Chicago, Miss Joy Hawley, graduate and former beauty of Texas State College for Women, turned out to be enrolled in Northwestern University, where she has already been named a 1938 beauty.

The mix-up began when a Chicago U. magazine stated, "There hasn't been a really beautiful woman around here since Little Egypt reared her skirts on the World's Fair midway in 1893." To debunk the article, Chicago U. boys went down to the photographers and with the help of three prominent judges selected what they thought was the picture of a Chicago co-ed.

Great was the chagrin of the C. U. student body when their triumphant choice turned out to be a Northwestern girl, Miss Hawley is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Hawley of Denton, Texas.

Speed of Large Rivers Depends Much on Depth

Most large rivers travel at only walking speed. As rivers usually have their sources on very high ground, their velocity is greatest at the beginning of their course, which is for many streams a succession of rapids and waterfalls.

The velocity of falls, which is often enormous, cannot very well be included in any estimate of the velocity of rivers, although the impetus given by rapids, as well as the general inclination of the bed of the stream, has a most important influence on the rate of its current.

But the velocity of a river does not altogether depend on the slope of its bed. Much is owing to its depth and volume, says an authority in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Most rivers, therefore, flow with varying velocity at different seasons of the year. Furthermore, bends in the course, jutting peaks of rock, or other obstacles, interfere with its speed, so that the water of a river flows at different velocities at different parts of its bed; it moves lower at the bottom than at the surface and at the sides than at the middle.

There is no stream which has a regular current of 30 miles an hour, or even 25 miles an hour. The lower Amazon flows at a rate of three miles an hour. The Mississippi, in its lower course, has a velocity of about three and a half miles an hour. The Congo has for many miles above its mouth a current of about seven miles an hour, the impetus of its great falls extending for a great distance below them. The Nile, similarly influenced, moves for a long distance at nine miles an hour.

Probably the most rapid river in the world, with the exception of some small streams which are nearly torrents or cataracts, is the River Rhone, in France. At some seasons the current of this stream reaches a speed of 40 miles an hour. In the dryer season, however, it drops to a rate of six miles an hour.

R. H. Martin, candidate for Representative in the legislature from this district, was a Tahoka visitor Wednesday and called at the News office. Mr. Martin is a baker and a pioneer resident of Lubbock. The paramount plank in his platform is Economy. He believes in cutting expenses and cutting taxes to the very heart.

Pipes Reveal Character, Notes London Authority

The briar pipe has nothing to do with briars as we know them, but is a corruption of the word "bruyere," a kind of giant white heather which grows on the island of Corsica, writes a correspondent in London Answers Magazine.

Curiously enough, the briar owes its popularity to Napoleon, who detested smoking. After his death, tourists visited his birthplace on the island. One of them lost his meerschaum pipe and borrowed a rough briar from a peasant. He found it smoked so pleasantly that he took a number of briars back to France with him, where they soon became popular.

In the Far North the Eskimos make pipes from walrus ivory, which they carve beautifully with little figures. In the East the Chinaman uses a hollow bamboo stem, while the Australian aborigines actually make a pipe from an emu's leg.

Almost every nation has its own peculiar pipes, and they are worth studying for they throw some curious sidelights on national characteristics.

Queen of Ancient Roads

The Appian way, built in 312 B. C., was the queen of all ancient roads, notes a writer in the Los Angeles Times, and early was threaded daily with traffic for all the known eastern world. Its sides were flanked with the tombs of the Scipios, Claudius, Milo, Livia, Seneca and other illustrious Romans. Scipio Africanus in 201 B. C. entered Rome by this road. Cicero was welcomed here with honors on his return from exile in B. C. 57, the Apostle Paul entered Rome over its pavements and Titus after he had destroyed Jerusalem was received with triumph along the Via Appia. This road was 350 miles long, marked with the earliest milestones. From it we come to the Baths of Caracalla, and soon pass over the ground where the Catcombs burrow below, till we reach the old Church of San Sebastian built by Constantine in 313 A. D., and then to the Belvedere, where is obtained a wonderful view over the Roman Campagna and of the Claudian aqueducts which still supply Rome with water.

Mr. and Mrs. Clem Gillespie left Monday night for Shelby county to visit his mother and other relatives.

Poorly Nourished Women — They Just Can't Hold Up

Are you getting proper nourishment from your food, and restful sleep?

A poorly nourished body just can't hold up. And as for that run-down feeling, that nervous fatigue, — don't neglect it!

Cardul, for lack of appetite, poor digestion and nervous fatigue, has been recommended by mothers to daughters — women to women — for over fifty years.

Try it! Thousands of women testify Cardul helped them. Of course, if it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Newmoore

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Rogers and family and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Rogers have returned from a trip to Dallas. They all reported a good trip.

Mr. Tom Rogers and his father, J. P. Rogers, were in Big Spring on business Tuesday.

Mrs. O. C. Cox is back in school this week, and we are all proud to have her.

There was a meeting at the school house Friday night to collect things for the people who were in the tornado. There was a number of things collected, and $18.00 in money was taken in.

The Newmoore ball club went to Harmony Sunday and defeated them, 22 to 2.

Miss Syble Rogers is spending the week with her cousin, Miss Jerald Cox of Lamesa.

Mrs. Jake Warnick and son, J. J., of Lubbock, are spending the week here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Small, and other relatives.

Marlen Patterson of Houston is here visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Sherrod and other relatives.

IN MEMORY OF MERLINE PETTY CASWELL

"I am come a light into the world," said the Master. To the memory of one that was created so much in the likeness of that light, this article is dedicated. Sometimes the beauty and benefit of the bright morning sun is not fully realized until there comes a dark cloud to obscure its light; it is very true of the lives of our dearest friends, at times, that we also understand better their real meaning to us after they are gone. We have lost a ray of light that seems very much akin to that "light that lighteth the world."

Merline is not here longer to cheer us with her bright smile and friendly "hello". But of this we like to think; and that is the fact that her husband gave me these words in speaking of her death: "I can't go with her but I can go where she is". It is a thought that is restful to our otherwise saddened hearts. We, that are glad to be called the dearest friends of the sweet one that has gone on, can glory in doing our best to live the same sweet life that she lived in the little while that she was with us.

A flower seems much sweeter while it is alive and growing; we don't, in any way, understand why we should lose one that had so lately blossomed into womanhood and was shedding her sweet fragrance on all of our lives. We feel certain, however, that so sweet and good was her life in her every contact with those of us that were privileged to know her, that we may say that "she lived and did her work and is no more".

Merline won a place in our hearts that shall remain vacant because of the lack of any person that is capable of filling that place. As a wife, her thoughts and ambitions were to please her husband whom she loved with a love that was quite divine. She was, seemingly, very happy with her new responsibility in life, and for over three and a half years she had succeeded in making cheerful the life of her chosen companion. May he rest himself in the thought that the poet gave us when he said:

"And those that were good shall be happy,
And they shall sit in a golden Chair,
And shall splash at a ten-league canvas
With brushes of comet's hair."

So, we say, let him understand that our loss is their gain, and the Heavenly host must be praising God anew because of the sweet angel that has joined their group so recently.

As a daughter, Merline was such a one as could easily have been, and was, a pride and joy to her parents. May they also rest themselves in the same happy thought that we so ardently hope cheers her bereaved husband.

As a member of her adopted family, she fit in so well as to make us, be very glad to call her one of our own.

The wonderful spirit that was shown (in the giving of flowers and the doing of kind deeds and speaking of consoling words) shows us, in a measure, how she had won her way into the hearts of those that knew her.

Certainly she had no thoughts

Announces For State Representative

R. H. MARTIN

Candidate for State Representative, 119th District. Subject to the Democratic Primary.

My Platform:

"Believing that there is no substitute for experience; believing in economy in the administration of governmental affairs and the curtailment of spending the tax payers money in every way that is consistent with the needs of our present day civilization; recognizing that the functions of government should reflect the wishes of a majority of the citizenship and the last but not least the protection of his right of those who live in the hard places, the ones who are so often forgotten, those whom we term the common people and yet the very ones that have made of America the most sublime nation that the mind of man has ever created is my pledge, if elected as your representative at Austin.

"I am not a stranger to this territory, its vast growth during the past quarter century and I believe I know its needs.

"On January 3rd, 1910 I entered the baking business in the city of Lubbock and have continued the same business through good years and hard years up to the present time. The South Plains has been good to me and I am proud to feel that I have assisted to some extent in its growth and development.

"Looking back over a long line of yesterdays I am sure that most of our citizenship are proud of the plains, its cities and farms and that most of them feel with me that this is really the garden spot of the nation.

"We all realize that taxes must be paid, if we continue along development lines. And yet, most of us realize that there should be a limit to this essential burden. Greater care is necessary in spending the tax payers money and in order to reach that goal we should elect men to office who are carrying this burden. Elect men who know the responsibility of correct legislation, men who realize their responsibilities. It is the one and only way through which relief may come."

Taxation

It has been aptly stated that the power to tax also embraces the power to destroy and few will deny that unless some way is employed to check the present wave of tax and we had no thought, of her sudden death, but "God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform". We do not question His wisdom in taking this precious loved one from us; our lives are richer from having had her with us this little while and her memory shall abide and bless us all the days of our lives. In speaking of such a one we realize the truth in the words of the man that said:

"It is better to have loved and lost Than to have never loved at all." May the sweet, contagious, cheerful nature, that was until so recently the beloved Merline Petty Caswell, continue to prelude our souls until we shall at last be accounted worthy to be with her in that Great Beyond where we may, with her, sing praises unto Him in whose likeness she was created.

Sincerely,

lunacy we will awake some day to the fact that bankruptcy has enveloped the nation, individually and collectively. Some method must be adopted whereby the expense of administration of public business shall at least bear some semblance of sane methods.

We know that taxes must be levied for the public good and I favor a just and equitable tax but the following facts give us a picture of present conditions, present trends, and unless some way can be devised to remedy or correct these conditions we are headed for the rocks. Here are figures based on facts that give a picture of what has happened during the past twenty years, from 1917 to 1937. Read and ponder these increases; Population 28 per cent, taxable property values 43 per cent, State departmental expenses 760 per cent, expenditures of State government 670 per cent, number of state department employees 246 per cent and so it might continue ad infinitum.

If elected as your representative to the next state legislature I pledge the best efforts of my being will be devoted to the one idea of equity, fairness and justice to all our people in every walk of life, but I will need and must have your shoulder to the wheel right alongside my own. With your full and hearty co-operation we will win a glorious, a lasting victory of freedom from this oppression that is rapidly sapping the life blood of this one time glorious democracy.

W. A. Eaton was brought home Saturday afternoon from a Lamesa hospital, where he had been under treatment. His condition was said to be slightly improved. He has been suffering from a kidney trouble for a long time.

Mrs. Clay Bennett underwent a major operation in a hospital in Lubbock Sunday afternoon. Her condition is reported to be satisfactory.

First.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
Working with Others for Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
Co-operating in Service.

That there is strength in united and co-operative effort is a truth so obvious that in the affairs of the home and of the office we would not attempt to make progress with "a house divided against itself." But with strange and destructive inconsistency some who are engaged in the propagation of the Christian faith, and often the very folk who speak much of love and fellowship and sacrificial service, fight one another with cunning and often bitterness of spirit, and all in the name of Christ whom they profess to serve.

No one who is awake to the real issue involved would ask any true believer to co-operate in Christian work with those who, while holding the name and outward symbols of the followers of Christ, deny His deity and His Word. But surely there is need for loving co-operation between all those who truly love the Lord, who believe in Him and in His Word.

I. A Dispute by the Way (vv. 30-34).

Jesus had taken His disciples from the Mount of Transfiguration by secluded roads through Galilee so that He might instruct them in the all-important truths regarding His death and resurrection. One could hardly conceive of a more propitious arrangement for their growth both in knowledge and grace. Did they profit by it? No; they not only did not understand what He told them but they used their time to dispute "among themselves who should be the greatest" (v. 34).

Possibly James, Peter, and John were a bit puffed up by their experience on the Mount, or perhaps the others were jealous because Jesus had taken them with Him. Or perchance it was just another unprovoked expression of the sinful pride that is so close to the surface of the human heart and mind.

II. An Example of Humility (vv. 35-37).

"True greatness consists not in attaining the first place in the notice and praise of the world, not in being served by many, but in being willing to stoop down to a humble place, not for the sake of self-effacement, not in timid diffidence, but in order to serve others for the sake of Christ" (Erdman). Note carefully that it is the receiving of a little one in the name of Christ that brings to us the glory of His presence with us. Every deed of kindness and love is commendable and has its own reward, but there is a vast difference between it and humble service in the name and for the glory of Christ.

III. A Lesson in Co-operation (vv. 38-41).

John, quick to apprehend spiritual truth, sees in the teaching of Christ concerning the little child the condemnation of something he had done. "If indeed it be true that to receive a child, an ordinary everyday child, is to receive Christ, and to receive God," said John within himself, "what did I do when I forbade that man who in the Name was casting out a demon? Verily, the light had broken in upon him."

The man who casts out demons, or who gives the disciple of Jesus a cup of water, in His name—that is with true faith in Christ, and in His power, and for His glory—must be a believer. He may not belong to our group or circle, he may not speak our language, he may not use our methods, but if he is serving Christ we should not forbid him or speak evil of him. God has at times called a man to witness for Him, who has done so in a manner distasteful to others, and these in turn have aligned themselves against him and hindered his full usefulness in the gospel. One of the great evangelists of the last generation used methods which shocked many church folk. They stood against him, and yet that man was used to win hosts of business and professional men that the church had scarcely touched, into earnest Christian testimony and service which continues to this day. You and I may not like one another's appearance, or voice, or methods, but let us love and co-operate with one another for Christ's sake!

"Tale of a Modern Mariner"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Remember that old phrase "Son of a Sea-Cook?" Well, right here in this club we've got one of those old sea-cooks who are supposed to have such ornery offspring. And by golly, I'd be proud to be the son of this sea-cook.

Yes, sir, this sea cook is H. K. Nixon of Elizabeth, N. J., and he tells one of those yarns that Joseph Conrad and the rest of those sea story writers would have given their right eye to get hold of.

Why, this yarn of a modern mariner makes that old rime of the ancient mariner seem like a bedtime story. Here are the words and music:

By jiminy, this adventure of sea cook, Nixon—the crew all called him Nix for short—starts out with a whale of a good word—barkentine—just like a first-rate pirate story. It was the barkentine St. James, of San Francisco, and that proud old rakish barque was converted into a coal hulk. Just to get even, the St. James started building up a history that made her known all up and down the Pacific coast as the "Haunted Hulk." When the war came on they converted her back into a barkentine, but her pride had been wounded and she kept right on being a haunted ship.

All Kinds of Bad Luck Signs.

Well, Captain Martin Anderson sailed her into Seattle, loaded her with mine timbers and cleared for Delagoa bay, South Africa.

Shiver my timbers, if that wasn't a haunted voyage. It almost gave sea cook Nix the shivers before the St. James got out of the harbor. Before she cast off, the ship's cat jumped ashore three times and that was a pretty strange beginning of a voyage. But that cat was thrown back aboard and maybe she was the mascot that brought that crew through.

And then a few miles out two wild geese swooped down out of the sky and came aboard the St. James. Cook Nixon did to those birds just what the ancient mariner did to that albatross. The crew said there would be trouble and, by the beard of Neptune, there was trouble. But unlike the ancient mariner, Cook Nixon wasn't the goat for what happened.

Wrecked on Island of Oneno.

Coming out of the straits of San Juan de Fuca, the St. James ran into a howling southeaster. The gale raged for nine days and drove the barkentine far out of her course. The old St. James battled through that mad Pacific. She battled bravely, but finally with a splintering smash of timbers, she broke her back on the coral reefs of the island of Oneno.

The crew took to their boats, but there was little chance for rescue out there in that vast South Pacific. They rode four days and nights before low headlands and a fringe of palms lay before them. Then the lifeboats scraped on the beach of the historic island of Pitcairn at the break of day, December 17, 1918.

Well, those sailors from the St. James dragged their boats up into Bounty bay—named after that old mutiny ship—and waited. It was a swell spot to be shipwrecked in, but it wasn't the world for Cook Nixon, nor for Skipper Anderson, nor for the first mate—the second mate and the Bos'n, who were all named Hansen. For 32 days they kept a lookout up on that hill beside the ship's bell and cannon of the old Bounty, hoping to see a friendly sail.

Islander Had Broken His Neck.

Well, sir, shipwrecked as that crew was, they weren't in half as bad a spot as one of the islanders named Lindsay. Three months before Nix and his shipmates arrived, Lindsay was hunting wild goats, and pitched over a precipice. He broke a leg and doggone near broke his neck. There he was, slowly dying out there on the Pacific and not a doctor or a nurse on the island. Cook Nixon looked Lindsay over and decided he'd do some life-saving while waiting to be saved himself. That's just where the sea cook became a hero and earned himself a reputation for being one of the fastest thinkers in an emergency that I ever heard of. He went to work on Lindsay. Drugs?—well, Nix figured out a liniment. He used the acid juice of lime as an irritant, and coconut oil as a lubricant, and went to work on that dislocated neck that made Lindsay almost helpless. Sure enough, in three days time that terribly swollen neck of Lindsay's was reduced. But his head was still contorted and he suffered agonizing pains at the nape of his neck.

Nixon kept thinking this over. One night he jumped out of his bunk with an idea. Nix shot out of camp yelling, "Lord, man, I've got it!" and he dashed into Lindsay's house at 2:30 a. m. and got him out of bed. Nix sat Lindsay down on a chair and told him to hold tight with both hands. Nix grabbed him by the head, put his thumbs under his jaw and lifted as though he were heaving the old St. James' anchor.

How Nix Fixed It Up.

Suddenly there was a snap. A vertebra which had been twisted and held fast by one of those tendons Nix had been massaging, snapped back into place and Lindsay shot out of that chair like he'd been sitting on a hot stove.

Well, sir, that islander tried turning his neck in all directions. By jiminy, it worked as well as ever. He almost wagged his head off trying out his new neck. Nix tells me that Lindsay started to laugh and then cry and wound up by doing a series of hand springs and flip flops. And then Lindsay hustled out of that hut, ran up the hill to the old Bounty bell and began hammering like a bass drummer, trying to get all the islanders together so he could tell them the good news.

And that ended the curse that hung over the crew of the haunted barkentine St. James. When daylight broke, there was a smudge of smoke on the horizon. It was the old Dominion liner, Port Augusta. Captain Allen of the Port Augusta laid her by until that shipwrecked crew of the badluck barkentine—yes, sir, and the ship's cat also—pulled out through the surf breaking over the coral reefs and climbed on board. The Port Augusta dropped Nixon and his shipmates in Sydney, Australia.

Columbia Has Old Church Tiles

Two tiles, taken from the oldest church in the Western hemisphere and presented to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, as a commemoration of his visit last year to Santo Domingo, now hang in the Spanish house at Columbia. Both ceramics are accompanied by papers certifying that they come from the Iglesia de San Nicolas, which was built in the old city of Santo Domingo 14 years after Columbus arrived in America.

Founding of West Point

The United States Military academy at West Point was opened, or founded, by virtue of a resolution passed by the Continental congress on October 1, 1776, calling for the preparation of a plan for "a military academy for the army." On June 20, 1777, orders were given for the organization of a corps, which, however, did not move to West Point until 1781. The academy was not formally opened as a school until July, 1802.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses

FOOD PRESERVATION and Explains How to Protect Your Family Against the DANGERS of TAINTED FOOD

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th Street, New York.

A DISTINGUISHED nutritional scientist once remarked that it is a small favor to keep people alive on a poorly chosen diet. For with the wrong food, they may not get one-fifth of their potential efficiency into their lives; they will drag themselves through miserable days, never knowing the joys of physical fitness nor enjoying the abundant health that comes from a perfect balance of nutriment.

The Perfect Diet May Not Be Safe to Eat

But even the homemaker who plans an ideal diet may be undermining the health of her family by feeding them spoiled or tainted food which carries the deadly germs of disease.

We frequently hear stories of death or serious illness caused by food contamination. And it is significant that the improper care of food in the home is most often responsible. One physician has gone so far as to state that there is no estimating the number of persons who, while not sick in bed, feel "rather poorly," "not strong," or "kind of run down" because improperly preserved food gives them insufficient nourishment and their strength is exhausted in combating the action of germs.

Homemaker's Responsibility For Food Sanitation

An enormous amount of time and money is expended to put foodstuffs in your kitchen in a fresh, palatable and safe form. Laws govern the manufacture, transportation and merchandising of every food product and an elaborate system is maintained for the inspection of meat. But all this care can be undone if food is not adequately refrigerated in the home.

From the moment that meats, fruits, vegetables and groceries reach your kitchen, the responsibility is yours, and you will be guilty if your husband and children suffer ill effects from eating tainted food.

Causes of Food Spoilage

Spoilage in food is due to the ravages of a vast army of micro-organisms which cause it to sour, decay or putrefy, depending upon the nature of the food.

There are three classes of micro-organisms which develop in food—bacteria, molds and yeasts. All three are notable for their minute size, rapid growth and wide distribution. Yeasts and bacteria can only be seen with the aid of a microscope.

Not all micro-organisms are the enemies of man; some are useful in the preparation of foods such as cheese, sauerkraut and bread. These need not concern the homemaker. But the harmful bacteria will flourish wherever conditions are favorable to their growth.

There are two important factors governing food preservation. One is the maintenance of a constant temperature of from 40 to 50 degrees Fahrenheit—under no circumstances should food be stored at a temperature higher than 50 degrees, or bacteria will multiply so rapidly as to make it unsafe to eat. The other is to maintain the proper degree of moisture in the air—neither too much, which encourages the growth of micro-organisms, nor too little, which dehydrates fruits and vegetables.

Appearance of Food May Be Deceptive

The great danger of food that is improperly stored is that it may become spoiled without advertising that fact. Appearance is seldom a reliable guide and unless your refrigerator is efficient, food may become unfit for consumption before spoilage can be noted by sight, taste or smell.

All types of protein foods harbor bacteria which multiply rapidly at temperatures higher than 50 degrees. Under favorable conditions of moisture and temperature, bacteria double their number every 20 to 30 minutes, and a single bacterium can produce a million bacteria in 15 hours.

Safeguard Children's Milk

Milk is the most perishable of all foods, because it is an ideal medium for bacterial growth. If this master food is to be kept safe for children, it must be stored at a temperature not higher than 45 degrees.

Careful studies show that there is very little increase in bacteria when milk is held for as long as 48 hours at a temperature of 40 degrees. But when the temperature was allowed to rise to 50 degrees, almost 30 times as many bacteria developed, and at 60 degrees, the bacteria multiplied more than 8,000 times in the same period.

Foods That Spoil Easily

The rapid multiplication of bacteria also occurs in other foods having a high protein content, including meat, meat broths, fish, gelatin, custards, creamed foods, peas and beans. It is important that all these foods, as well as milk, be kept in the coldest part of the refrigerator, as a few degrees in temperature make a great deal of difference in preventing spoilage.

Once food has begun to deteriorate, it must be discarded or it may endanger health. Cooking will not make spoiled foods fit for consumption.

How to Prevent Mold

Molds are another form of spoilage that the homemaker must constantly battle. Mold will grow on almost any substance, but is particularly likely to occur on acid foods, as lemons, oranges, tomatoes and berries; on neutral foods, such as bread and meat; on sweets, notably jellies and preserves, and on salty foods, including ham or bacon.

Molds may develop quickly or slowly, depending upon the temperature and degree of moisture. They thrive under the influence of warmth and moisture and may remain invisible to the naked eye for as long as 36 hours. All molds are white at first, but as they mature they change color, becoming blue, red, or assuming various shades of brown.

To the bacteriologist, these colors have different meanings. To the homemaker, they all tell the same story—that through improper storage food has lost its appetite appeal and palatability.

Have You a Question? Ask C. Houston Goudiss

C. Houston Goudiss has put at the disposal of readers of this newspaper all the facilities of his famous Experimental Kitchen Laboratory in New York City. He will gladly answer questions concerning foods, diet, nutrition, and their relation to health. You are also invited to consult him in matters of personal hygiene. It is not necessary to write a letter unless you desire, for postcard inquiries will receive the same careful attention. Address him at 6 East 39th Street, New York City.

Mold growths may be destroyed by boiling temperatures. They may be retarded by keeping food in the cold, dry circulating air provided by an efficient refrigerator.

A good refrigerator is the best investment a family can make. It enables you to take advantage of bargain prices to buy food in quantity. And it safeguards health by preventing contaminated food from finding its way to your table. An efficient refrigerator also preserves the flavor and texture of meats, fruits and vegetables, so that you enjoy these foods at their best. But its greatest contribution to human welfare is the preservation of food so that it will nourish your body instead of poisoning it.

Questions Answered

E. W.—It's a fallacy to assume that brown sugar is "more nutritious and healthful" than granulated sugar. It is true that brown sugar contains traces of mineral elements, while white sugar contains practically none. But the amounts are variable and never significant. Regardless of color, sugars make their sole contribution to the diet through their carbohydrate content. The caloric value of white sugar is a trifle higher than that of brown, the difference amounting to 91 calories per pound.

Mrs. S. T.—When thoroughly chewed and given a proper place in the diet, cheese is usually well digested. Experiments performed by the United States Department of Agriculture demonstrated that an average of 95 per cent of the protein and over 95 per cent of the fat of cheese were digested and absorbed.

New Beauty for the Home

Self-polishing wax for the household is practical—protective—and popular! Its already wide use is increasing yearly, throughout the homes of the country. And it is the efficient, up-to-date homemaker who regularly applies this amazing product to the floors of her home. The unusual feature of a good self-polishing wax is the maximum beauty it affords, with the minimum labor—both in application and upkeep. It's on a jiffy—dries thoroughly in 20 minutes—and results in resplendent floors that gleam like satin, look like new, and "dress up" the entire house. A quality self-polishing wax is urged, however, for it is more resistant to dust and dirt, its richer content lasts longer, and shows up to more glowing advantage the natural color and pattern of the wood. Yes, a good self-polishing wax is truly a domestic gem that is inexpensive—time and trouble-saving—and definitely beautifying!

FLOORS POLISH THEMSELVES

...with O-Cedar Self-Polishing Wax. No rubbing—simply spread it on and let it dry—then watch your floors sparkle! Non-slippery, long-wearing—eliminates scrubbing—dusting alone keeps floors clean. Full qt., only 85¢.

Restoring Life From Drowning

Austin, Texas May 5—May is the month when most Texans take a look at the thermometer, make a dive for their bathing suits and hunt the nearest swimming pool or lake. Swimming is a fine sport but it does involve certain hazards. It is tragedy enough to have a drowning accident but far greater tragedy if no one present knows how to save life by artificial respiration.

Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health officer, advises that the "Prone Pressure Method" is the accepted one for restoring life from drowning. The method involves the following steps:

Place patient stomach down, one arm stretched above the other bent, with face resting on it.

Rescue measures should begin at once and continue rhythmically until natural breathing is established. This may take four or more hours.

The procedure is:

1. Kneel, and straddle the patient below the hips, placing hand on small of the back with fingers over the lower ribs, tips of fingers just out of sight.

2. With arms straight, while counting one, two, swing forward bearing weight on body firmly but not violently.

3. Swing backward while counting one, straightening up and thus relieving pressure. This allows air to be drawn into the lungs.

4. Rest in this position for two counts.

5. Repeat these movements rhythmically, forward and backwards without interruption, about twelve to fifteen a minute, until natural breathing is restored.

6. Meanwhile, if assistance is at hand, a physician should be sent for, patient's tight clothing should be loosened at neck, chest or waist, and patient should be kept warm.

Patient should not be moved from this spot until he is breathing naturally and then should be carried in a lying position to a place where he can be kept warm and receive expert medical attention.

More Old Coins Are Turned Up

The publicity we gave those old coins of Ed Cook a few weeks ago seems to have started something. Everybody is digging up his old coins and exhibiting them. We didn't know there were so many of them in the country. Personally, we have never been able to keep one long enough for it to get old.

C. R. Cargile drew a bunch of old coins on us down at Draw the other day. They are not as old as some we have mentioned but they are old enough to know how to get around.

His oldest coin is a dime minted in 1841. That would make it about 97 years old now. He has another dime bearing date of 1845; two 25-cent pieces, one made in 1353 and the other in 1854; and one half-dollar coined in 1856.

We seldom have that much money of recent vintage to jingle in our pockets. If we had, we might go fishing oftener—as Franklin D. does, and our own W. T.

Mrs. E. J. Cooper and son Truett left Sunday for Robstown, called there by the serious illness of Mrs. Cooper's daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Dulin. They found Mrs. Dulin much improved, however, and returned home Wednesday.

Lloyd Grider Will Enter Kansas School

Lloyd Grider will attend school and play football in Coffeyville, Kansas, next year, if present plans materialize.

Lloyd went up to Coffeyville last week and made a successful tryout for a place on the Coffeyville team, according to his father, Judge G. C. Grider. Lloyd is a junior this year in the Brownfield high school.

His development into a star high school football player is really marvelous, considering the early handicap he had to overcome. Ten years ago, while a mere child residing with his parents at O'Donnell he was struck and run over by an automobile, resulting in a bad fracture of one of the hips. For several months he lay in a hospital while the broken fragments of bone were knitting back together, and it did not seem possible then that some day he would be a star player on a football team. But Nature and the Doctors can do marvelous things sometimes, and so Lloyd now has prospects of going a long way yet along the road of success, in football.
