Commencement Programs Begin Sunday

Woodworth Has Narrow Escape

Another near-tragedy occurred on highway No. 9 a short distance north of Tahoka Sunday afternoon when a car driven by an O'Donnell youth and occupied by four other young people, two boys and two girls, some of whom reside in Tahoka, was headed into the car of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Woodworth to avoid a head-on collision with a third car on the highway.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodworth were driving north and some distance up the road was another car coming south. At this juncture the O'Donnell car approached from the south at a rather high speed and undertook to pass the Woodworth car before meeting the south-bound vehicle. Just as this car was in the act of passing the Woodworths, the driver discovered that he could not pass them before meeting the south-bound car. To avoid a head-on collision, he suddenly swerved his car to the right in an effort to fall in behind the Woodworth car again, but he was going too fast to successfully do this, and the right front wheel and fender of his car ramed the left rear wheel and fender of the Woodworth car.

Fortunately and almost miraculously no one was seriously hurt but both cars were badly damaged, especially the O'Donnell car.

This near-tragedy was caused apparently by the pure recklessness of a youthful driver. Coming so soon after a tragic accident on highway No. 9 a few miles south of Tahoka a few weeks ago in which four persons were killed and six others injured, though it is possible that nobody was to blame for that collision, it does seem that young boys would learn after awhile to exercise some common sense and at least ordinary care in the driving of cars on our streets and highways.

Applewhite Buys Brownfield Firm

J. K. Applewhite closed a deal last week for himself and associates, Borden Davis of Tahoka and W. C. McKinzie of Fletcher, Oklahoma, whereby they become the owners of the Farmers' Implement Co. of Brownfield, owned principally by T. C. Edwards.

This Company, as the name implies, handles International farm implements, including Farmall Tractors.

The new owners took charge of the business Monday. Borden Davis, we understand, will be the business manager and Mr. McKinzie will head the sales department.

Mr. Davis' family will not move over from Tahoka until after the close of school. Mr. McKinzie and family, who formerly resided here but who now reside at Fletcher, Oklahoma, are preparing to move soon from that place to Brownfield.

Mr. Applewhite, of course, retains his implement and tractor business here. He has been doing a thriving and prosperous business here the past several years, and his many friends throughout Lynn county will be delighted at this expansion of his business activities.

Draw School Boy Region 1 Winner

Charles Florence of Rural High School No. 1 (Draw) won the discus throw and shot put recently in the regional interscholastic league meet and represented this section of the state in these events at the state meet at Austin last week. He was accompanied to Austin by the superintendent, R. K. Green.

This high school was notified recently, according to County Superintendent H. P. Caveness, that it had been granted additional credits, bringing their total number to 174.

Wilson Man Out For Representative

T. W. Montgomery, a teacher in the Wilson public school, called at the News office Monday and requested that we announce that he is a candidate for Representative of the 119th district in the legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic primary election this summer.

Montgomery

Mr. Montgomery is a graduate of the Texas Technological College and has been teaching in this district for the past ten years, he says. Several years ago he taught at New Home and now he is teaching in Wilson. He has two brothers residing near Draw in this county.

Mr. Montgomery respectfully solicits the support of the people of this, his home county. His platform will appear in an early issue of this paper.

Plane To Pick Up Mail Here

Tahoka is having a part in the National Air Mail Week May 15 to 21, and has been designated as one of the towns on Flight No. 2 out of Lubbock on May 19.

Four planes will leave Lubbock Thursday morning blanketing the entire South Plains delivering and picking up air mail letters. These planes will carry the mail to Lubbock where it will be transferred to another plane which will make connection with the trans-continental airlines.

Every citizen in Tahoka is asked to have a part in this program details of which have not been completed. Every person is asked to write an air mail letter to some friend or business acquaintance in another part of the state, mailing this letter not later than 7:00 A. M. Thursday, May 19, in time to make connection with the special plane.

A special Air Mail Pick-Up Committee will arrive in Tahoka by plane, Friday or Saturday of this week to complete arrangements. The local committee will meet this plane at the landing field.

Work On Oil Test Resumed

The work of drilling on the Baldrige oil well two miles northwest of Petty will be resumed within the next few days, unless some unforeseen circumstance prevents.

Casing in the well has been set and cemented and workmen have been busy the past few days removing the rotary rig and erecting a stand-ard. A crew of fourteen men were at work Wednesday.

A depth of about 4,300 feet had been reached before drilling operations were temporarily suspended a few weeks ago.

Virgil White Goes To State Hospital

There is scarcely any misfortune that can overtake a man which is more serious than mental trouble. Virgil White recently became a victim of mental aberration and on Wednesday last week he was adjudged by a jury to be of unsound mind.

He was taken to a state hospital for treatment.

G. C. Shaffer of Andrews spent Thursday night here with his parents. He was accompanied to Tahoka by Miss Oleeta Stanford, who came to visit her aunt, Mrs. Ernest Brown, now residing a few miles east of town.

Wilson Softball Park Opened

Many Tahoka people attended the opening of the new softball park at Wilson Tuesday night. They report a great crowd present, a good game of softball, interesting addresses by the candidates, splendid entertainment, and an all-round good time.

The opening game was between Wilson and Tahoka, the two teams being almost equally matched. At the end of the game the score stood 17 to 13 in favor of Tahoka. This was the beginning of a league tournament, that is to last all summer.

L. D. Moore, Wilson, Kicked By Horse

L. D. Moore, residing about two miles north of Wilson and an old-time citizen of that community, was kicked by a horse some time early last Friday afternoon, both bones of the right leg being broken just below the knee.

He was found lying unconscious about six hours after the injury was inflicted, and was then rushed to the hospital at Slaton for treatment, where the leg was placed in a plaster cast. He is now back home and the broken bones seem to be knitting together satisfactorily, it is said.

Mr. Moore had been a resident of that locality about twenty years. He is the father of Allen Moore of Draw whose residence was blown away and completely destroyed by the tornado which swept through that community on April 26.

YOUTH SENT TO BOYS STATE TRAINING SCHOOL

Harwood Owens, 15, one of the four brothers who confessed to the theft of a lot of feed from a farmer at Grassland, was tried in the county court here last Thursday as a delinquent child.

He was found guilty and has been sent to the State Training School for Boys at Gatesville.

Tom Garrard has been about some this week. On Sunday he attended a meeting of Bill McGraw supporters in Dallas. Monday and Tuesday he attended the District Rotary convention at Breckenridge, and Wednesday he spent at Hereford attending an Old Settlers celebration. He reports a great crowd there and excellent entertainment.

Home Ec. Girls Wins State Prize

At the state-wide home economics meeting held in San Antonio last week, Ida Botkin, representing a class in the Tahoka high school, won second place in class B school contest in "Making Our Home More Liveable".

Miss Botkin was accompanied to San Antonio by her teacher, Mrs. Pete Hegl, and by Misses Laura Jane Milliken, Madeline Russell, and June Fender, other pupils in the Tahoka high school.

Joint Recital Friday Evening

Announcement has been made that a joint recital of the piano pupils of Mrs. M. H. Edwards and Mrs. J. K. Applewhite in ensemble, the Expression pupils of Miss Obara Forrester, and the Dancing pupils of Miss Bernice Stevens will be given in the auditorium of the Grade School building Friday evening, beginning at 8.15 o'clock.

This promises to be a very interesting program, and the general public is cordially invited to attend.

State Auditors Visit Collectors

J. K. Johnson and R. D. Joiner of the state comptroller's office were here this week auditing the books and accounts of the county tax assessor and collector, A. M. Cade.

In conversation with a representative of the News Tuesday Mr. Johnson stated that he had been checking the books and accounts of tax collectors for the past eleven years and that Mr. Cade's records are among the very best he has ever checked.

The period of time covered by this audit was July 1, 1936 to June 30, 1937, during which time Mr. Cade handled approximately $182,000.

Mr. Johnson stated that in the past eleven years he has checked the records of 126 counties. This year he has checked 14 south plains counties, besides some elsewhere.

Local People On Lubbock Program

Pupils of Mrs. R. L. Richardson, local music and expression teacher, will furnish three numbers for the amateur night—sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars at the high school auditorium in Lubbock Tuesday night.

The Tahoka pupils appearing on the program will be: W. H. Fulker-son Jr., vocal solo; Joan Thomas reading; La Voyle Richardson, accordion solo; Benoy Gattis, comical vocal number. There will be about twenty-five numbers on the program.

The Tahoka Rotary Club will also be represented at this meeting by Ray Weathers, President elect, and Dr. K. R. Durham, each of whom will doubtless put on an original and highly entertaining show.

E. D. Odom was over from Ropesville Saturday and dropped into the News office to have the paper sent to his new address. He recently contracted for one of the resettlement farms on the project undertaken by the Government near that place and has moved upon the land. He is well pleased thus far with the proposition. He thinks it offers a great opportunity for the few who are lucky enough to procure a contract. There are a number of Lynn county people now on the land.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Haney and little daughter visited Mrs. Haney's mother at Carbon Sunday.

Many Planting Cotton And Feed

Many farmers in Lynn County have finished planting their crops, both feed and cotton. Much feed is already up and a few have cotton now coming up.

The above statements apply particularly to farmers east and south of Tahoka, where good rains have fallen recently. Not much planting has been done in other parts of the county.

The month of April was unusually cool and May thus far has been a very blustery, stormy month, with little rainfall. The weather has been unseasonably cool most of the time also. On Sunday morning the government thermometer kept by the News registered a low of 35 degrees within three degrees of the freezing point, though no frost in the county has been reported to us. The weather is now becoming balmy again, and if a good soaking rain covering the entire county should come within the next few days, everything would be "sitting pretty."

Waco Man Drops Dead Tuesday

Lletcher Carter of Waco, 57, a brother of Mrs. Charley Donaldson, who is well known here, dropped dead Tuesday afternoon while looking after business matters on the old Carter place ten or twelve miles east, slightly southeast, of Tahoka.

Mr. Carter and Mrs. Donaldson, who now resides at Snyder, had come up to the old Carter place on business and were working with a tractor on the premises when Mr. Carter suffered a stroke of apoplexy.

The body was brought to Tahoka and prepared for burial by the Harris Funeral Home and was shipped to Waco for interment Wednesday. Mrs. Donaldson, who was a resident of this county for many years, has the sympathy of many friends here. The sudden and unexpected death of her brother was a terrible shock to her.

Many Attend Scout Circus

Local Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts participated in the Scout Circus at the Texas Tech stadium last Friday night. They were accompanied by a number of local citizens.

Tahoka Scouts, under the direction of W. A. Reddell, won second place in wall-scaling at the circus. Seventeen scouts attended.

The Cubs, under direction of John Kirkwood, also participated in the show.

Mr. Reddell states that eight boys have recently passed the second class tests, and ten have recently passed the tenderfoot tests. Eighteen have re-registered to date, and he thinks there will be several other registrations soon.

Two Texans Elected To The Bishopric

At the General Conference of Southern Methodists held in Birmingham, Alabama, last week, two Texas men were elected Bishops. These are Dr. C. C. Selecman, President of S. M. U. at Dallas, and Dr. W. C. Martin, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Dallas. A third former Texan, Dr. Ivan Lee Holt of St. Louis, was also elected. For some time he was a Professor in S. M. U. Dr. Selecman's diocese or district will comprise Oklahoma and Arkansas, while Dr. Martin's will lie on the Pacific coast.

Miss Ethel Beard of Portales, New Mexico, the former Miss Ethel Kuykendall, spent Mothers Day here as the guest of Mrs. Rafe Richardson.

School Closes On Next Friday

Friday night of next week will mark the close of the 1937-1938 term of the Tahoka public schools.

Commencement exercises will be held on that night, at which time diplomas will be delivered to thirty-five members of the Senior class twelve girls and twenty-three boys. As has been remarked often already, this is a very unusual ratio of girls to boys. Usually the girls in the graduating class outnumber the boys. But for some reason the figures are reversed this year.

The girls, however, are carrying off the highest honors that can be awarded members of the class. Two of them, Edith Robertson and Mary Margaret Tunnell, have tied for the honor of acting as valedictorian. Each has made an average grade for the year of 94.5. Jo Alice Brooks wins second place with a grade of 93.2. Truett Cooper is highest ranking Senior boy, with an average grade of 91. The two highest ranking girls will share equally in honors and scholarships.

The class address will be delivered by Mr. H. C. Pender, head of the Government Department of the Texas Technological college. It is expected that Mr. Pender will bring a very thoughtful and inspiring address, since he has studied and thought much concerning the problems that confront not only the young people but all classes of the people of this country.

The closing exercises will begin Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, when Elder R. P. Drennon, minister of the Church of Christ at O'Donnell, will preach the Commencement sermon.

Represents Tahoka At Rotary Meet

Tom Garrard, Raymond Weathers, and Charles Townes represented the Tahoka Rotary Club at the district convention held in Breckenridge on Monday and Tuesday of this week.

They report that the program was fine and the business meetings very interesting. They had a "great time". More than 600 Rotarians were in attendance.

Tom Garrard was honored by being made chairman of the Elections committee, and Charles Townes won the trophy in a golf contest in which there were more than sixty contestants. Ray Weathers distinguished himself in various and sundry ways.

The meeting next year will be held at Big Spring. Mr. Estes of Wichita Falls was elected Rotary Governor of this district, succeeding Edd McLaughlin of Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Connolly and Geraldine spent the first of the week in Oklahoma City, returning by way of Fort Worth and Hill county, where they visited briefly with relatives and friends. Miss Sally Hudson of Whitney returned with them to visit a few weeks with her niece, Mrs. Clay Bennett.

Highway 84 Is Given Approval

County Judge F. W. Goad received a telegram Monday from Congressman Geo. Mahon stating that the W. F. A. improvement project on highway No. 84 east of Tahoka had been approved by Presidential letter dated May 4.

Judge Goad also states that fair progress in procuring the widened right-of-way is being made. He hopes that adjustments with all land-owners may be made in due course of time without occasioning any great delay in the beginning of construction work.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Two or three years ago, I was one of a group of newspaper men arguing about who was the best reporter who ever worked a round here. One old-timer was holding out for Roy Burton, whom he had known on the Brooklyn Eagle in the nineties. Burton, he said, was the best leg-man and digger, the most fearless, and the most gifted in fanning up a story out of nothing at all. He knew make-up, too, said the oldest.

The diligent reporter has been duly rewarded. He is the Sir Pomeroy Burton whose magnificent French chateau the duke and duchess of Windsor were looking over recently.

With the Northcliffe papers in London, he became a multi-millionaire, as he transformed British journalism with daring American techniques. He became a British citizen in 1914 and was knighted in 1923. In addition to his vast newspaper interests, he is a magnate of electric power and utilities.

He was a printer's devil on his father's newspaper in Youngstown, Ohio, and, at the age of twelve, was knocking about country printshops in Ohio on the same job. He became a compositor on the Brooklyn Eagle. Hearing of a vacancy on the news staff, he persuaded the city editor to give him a try at reporting.

He hired evening clothes to cover a society function. There, Colonel Hester, owner of the Eagle, was tremendously impressed with the personable young man with whom he was talking, and thought he had met him somewhere. Young Burton did not remind the colonel that he had seen the young man in a printer's apron a few days before.

He became city editor and managing editor of the Eagle, held important executive positions with the World and the New York Journal and was taken to England by Lord Northcliffe in 1904. Ten years later, he owned all but a few of the Daily Mail shares not owned by Lord Northcliffe.

In the World war, he virtually headed the organization of British propaganda, and many of the most damaging anti-German stories were attributed to him. His enemies charged that he had "debauched British journalism with degrading American sensationalism."

His friends insisted he had enlivened and regenerated it. He makes an occasional trip to America with a staff of valets and secretaries, suave, dandy and still fit and impressive at seventy-two, with more than a touch of British accent.

Over here, he always hated the name Pomeroy and shortened it to Roy, but picked it up again in England. He had been named for "Brick" Pomeroy, the cyclonic journalistic disturber of the latter half of the last century, and he held Mr. Pomeroy in low esteem. Pomeroy was almost, but not quite, a winner.

From a Wisconsin crossroads, he rambled around the country in newspaper and financial brawls, and, in his old age, just through sheer animal spirits, started plunging a tunnel through the Rocky mountains, at Georgetown, Colo.

He was flattened by the '33 depression and died soon after, with nothing to show for his life's work but a hole in the ground. Then it was discovered that the tunnel had gouged into fabulous mineral wealth in Kelso mountain. Eight years ago, the tunnel went on through the mountain, as the Moffatt tunnel.

REPORTING the return of Poulney Bigelow from a visit to his friend, the former kaiser, and his fervent approval of dictators, has become a matter of annual routine. It is an old story, but the freshness and vehemence of Mr. Bigelow's disgust with democracy and enthusiasm for fuhrers always makes it interesting.

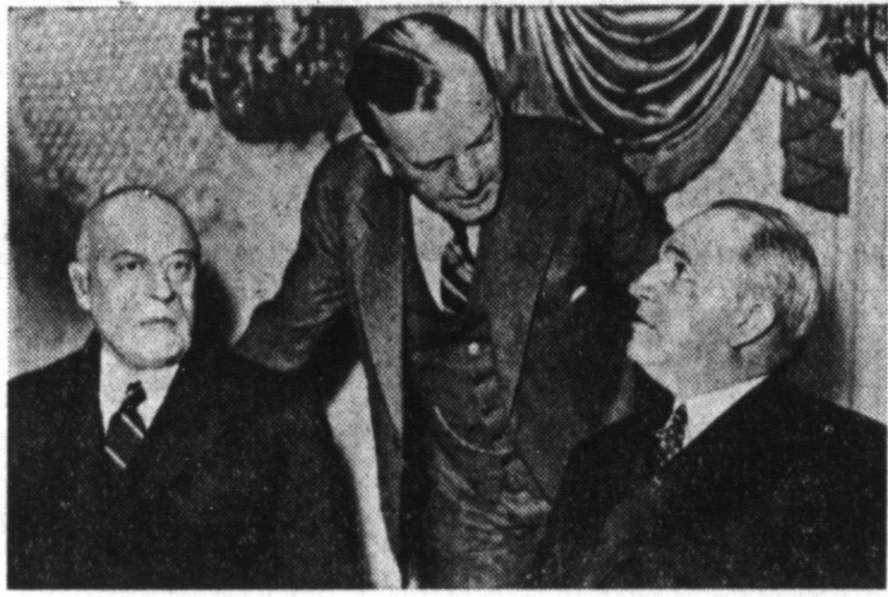

He is the patriarch of Malden-on-the-Hudson, with relatives and descendants, down to great-grandchildren, all up and down the river. He will be eighty-three years old on September 10. His father, John Bigelow, was American minister to France under Abraham Lincoln.

He hunted birds eggs with the kaiser, forming a lifetime friendship, broken only by the war, which he charged the kaiser with having started. He recanted afterward and the two old men meet annually to salute "Der Tag" when only the all-wise and all-just shall rule again.

Mussolini Won't Protect Czechs But Warns Against War . . . Nazi Chieftain's Great Reception in Rome

At a meeting in Chicago the Association of American Railroads voted to reduce wages of employees 15 per cent, or $250,000,000 a year. Three of the members shown above, left to right, are: F. E. Williamson, president of the New York Central; Fred W. Sargent, president of the Northwestern, and J. J. Pelley, president of the association.

Hitler and Il Duce Meet

ITALY will not interfere with Nazi Germany's plans to help the Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia and perhaps to annex the territory they inhabit. In return, Germany will do nothing to check Italy's plans in the Mediterranean, especially in northern Africa.

But Italy is averse to forming a military alliance with Germany and will not permit itself to become involved in a decision of war or peace over the Czechoslovakian question, and is rather in favor of the British plan for a four-power agreement among Britain, Italy, Germany and France for European peace.

That is briefly what is believed at this writing to have developed in the first momentous conference between Hitler and Mussolini in Rome. No official statement was given out immediately.

Hitler, according to reports, opened up with a long statement concerning British rearmament, seeking to wean Mussolini away from his tie-up with England. And he asked Italy's support in his demands for return of Germany's lost colonies.

Il Duce, it was said, told the Fuhrer that German help in defeating loyalist Spain was vital, but Hitler was noncommittal on this point.

Hitler was given a wonderful reception in Rome. He was lodged in the Quirinal palace, being officially the guest of King Victor Emmanuel. The city was lavishly decorated and elaborate demonstrations and reviews were staged to impress him with the power and discipline of Fascist Italy.

After several preliminary conferences in which Foreign Ministers Von Ribbentrop and Ciano participated, Hitler went to Naples and witnessed a naval review that was a startling revelation of Italy's sea power.

One Italian who didn't cheer the Nazi chieftain was Pope Pius. In an address at his summer home, Castel Gandolfo, to which he had conveniently retired, he deplored as a "sad thing" the raising of the Nazi swastika in Rome on Holy Cross day, the day of Hitler's arrival.

Labor Act Denounced

WILLIAM S. KNUDSEN, president of General Motors, speaking before the United States Chamber of Commerce, declared the Wagner labor relations act is the "largest drawback to good industrial relations."

Discussing the strikes that have tied up his company's plants at various times in recent months, Knudsen said in a prepared address:

"The national labor relations board set up to administer the act makes no pretense even of paying any attention to the employer's side of the case.

"He can only be heard when he is summoned, and he knows before he goes that there is no record of a single decision where he has had a ghost of a show. So what!"

The Chamber of Commerce adopted a resolution strongly urging the repeal of the labor relations act, and asked that "management and labor work together without recourse to the federal government."

Other resolutions were substantially as follows: Demand for relief from present tax burdens, the fight transferring itself from the undistributed corporate profits tax and the capital gains tax to the broader field of an annual tax bill which has jumped 30 per cent in the last two years to a total federal-state-local levy of $13,500,000,000 a year.

Urgent request for drastic revision or repeal of the national labor relations act.

Caution and warning on the renewed government spending program, apart from relief expenditures.

Insistence that White House sentiments favoring private enterprise be put into practice through peace with the utilities, abstention from further innovations in government control, and encouragement of private industrial expansion.

President Roosevelt, who was on a fishing trip on a cruiser in South Atlantic waters, was heard from only indirectly in addresses by Jesse Jones of RFC, Secretary of War Woodring and Chester C. Davis of the federal reserve board.

Ireland Elects Dr. Hyde

DR. DOUGLAS HYDE has been made the first president of Ireland—the former Irish Free State. He was invited to take the post by the two largest parties, and, being unopposed, was declared elected by acclamation and at once inaugurated for a seven year term beginning June 1.

Though chosen to be head of a predominantly Roman Catholic state, Hyde is a Protestant. He is seventy-eight years old and one of the leading champions of the use of Gaelic, the old Irish language. He is a retired university professor and has written a number of books.

The inauguration of the president was marked by the release of six prominent political prisoners, the only Republicans still held in jail.

Crop Control Revolt Grows

THROUGHOUT the Middle West the revolt against compulsory crop control was spreading rapidly under the leadership of the Corn Belt Liberty league. Plans for incorporation of the league in several states were being perfected and many branches were organized. Unfortunately for the corn growers, their representatives in congress seemed to be inactive.

In the South the cotton and tobacco growers were equally resentful of the control features of the farm act, and southern senators told the senate of the revolt among their constituents so forcibly that the senate adopted a series of amendments to the law designed to appease them. One provides that any cotton acreage allotment within a state not desired by the farmers receiving it may be apportioned among other farmers within that state. Another amendment would placate the growers of certain types of tobacco.

Big Navy Bill Passed

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S $1,157,000,000 naval expansion bill was passed by the senate by a vote of 56 to 28.

The measure empowers this government to surpass the rearmament programs of other nations with construction of the most powerful warships ever floated. However, it precludes the possibility of the United States precipitating a race of super-warships by limiting the size of future battleships to treaty specifications of 35,000 tons unless it is determined foreign powers are building in excess of treaty restrictions.

In the latter event, the United States will be authorized to construct super-dreadnaughts of 45,000 tons, armed with deadly 18-inch guns.

WHAT TO EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Noted Food Authority

Describes the ACID- and ALKALINE-ASH FOODS and Explains Their Role in Maintaining the ACID-BASE BALANCE of the Body

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

ACIDITY is the topic of the hour. On every side we hear people complaining that they have too much acid in their systems, that they suffer from acid stomach, acid headaches, acid mouth, acidosis. In fact, most adults fancy themselves victims of a great battle between acid and alkaline forces, with the acid having the better of it.

They confuse gastric acidity—which is entirely normal, for the healthy stomach is always strongly acid—with the potential acidity of foods which leave an acid residue following digestion. And many of them are convinced that they should take drastic steps to overcome the danger of acidosis.

The Vogue of Acidosis

There are fashions in disease, just as in dress, home furnishings and automobiles.

Ten years ago, we heard much about the evils of auto-intoxication, and it was some time before people realized that they had been misled by the extreme claims of those who had some sort of remedy to sell. And now it is acidosis that is the most talked of complaint. Friends caution one another against this or that food, with the mistaken idea that it causes or aggravates an acid condition. Food faddists have frightened thousands by suggesting that acidosis is brought about by mixing various kinds of foods.

Indeed, we have come to a point where the fear of a so-called acid condition is assuming proportions which indicate the possibility of real trouble unless the American people get the true facts and put aside these foolish delusions.

Physiologists believe that fear and worry have a detrimental effect on digestion, and, in turn, on the general health. Thus eating meals in constant fear of acidity may upset the digestion and bring about the very symptoms that you are trying to avoid. One well-known authority contends that perhaps 90 per cent of digestive distress, attributed to the kind or combinations of food eaten, is actually due to unfavorable mental or emotional states, and other causes such as over-eating, even when fatigued, or consuming at one meal too many foods that are difficult to digest. It, therefore, becomes apparent that thousands of people are contributing to their own discomfort as a result of fear, ignorance, or a blind belief in misleading claims which are opposed to scientific facts.

Acidosis Uncommon The danger is not from acidosis, but from the fear of this bugbear, and from self medication in the belief that certain remedies are required to overcome a fancied condition. For in spite of the large amount of acid produced in metabolism, the blood normally remains remarkably constant and slightly alkaline, due to a highly efficient buffer system.

Perhaps you wonder, if this is so, why doctors and dietitians talk so much about the acid-base balance.

The Acid-Base Balance To understand this phrase, you must know that every food leaves an ash when burned in the body, just as ashes remain when coal or wood is burned in a furnace. In the body, the ash consists of valuable minerals which are required in large amounts to maintain optimal health.

Some foods, such as meat, fish, eggs and cereals, leave an acid ash because the predominating minerals are phosphorus, chlorine and sulphur. Other foods, chiefly milk and most fruits and vegetables, leave an alkaline ash because the remaining minerals are principally calcium, magnesium, potassium and sodium. These are the base-forming foods. Besides the alkaline ash and acid ash foods, there is a group of foods, including sugar, cornstarch and purified fats, which are so highly refined that no minerals remain after they are burned; and some other foods, such as butter and cream, leave a balance of the two types of ash. These are known as neutral foods.

Cannot Trust Your Tongue

The sense of taste cannot be relied upon as a guide in determining which foods are acid and which alkaline. For example, cereals, which are bland to the taste, have an acid reaction following digestion. Bread, likewise, is acid forming, although you would not suspect that fact from its taste. On the other hand, potatoes, though somewhat similar to bread in flavor and food value, are one of our most valuable alkaline foods, and dried lima beans are the most highly alkaline of any food known.

If it seems curious that such bland foods should have an acid ash, you may find it even harder to believe that oranges, lemons, grapefruit, peaches and tomatoes, which taste acid in the mouth, leave an alkaline ash following digestion. But the fact is that the body performs a clever bit of chemical engineering and the final effect on the blood is alkaline.

Homemaker's Responsibility

A balanced diet must include sufficient base-forming foods to neutralize and counter-balance

Have You a Question? Ask C. Houston Goudiss

C. Houston Goudiss has put at the disposal of readers of this newspaper all the facilities of his famous Experimental Kitchen Laboratory in New York City. He will gladly answer questions concerning foods, diet, nutrition, and their relation to health. You are also invited to consult him in matters of personal hygiene. It's not necessary to write a letter unless you desire, for post-card inquiries will receive the same careful attention. Address him at 6 East 39th Street, New York City.

the effects of the acids formed in metabolism.

That is one reason why it is so important for the homemaker to provide her family with plenty of milk, fruits and vegetables, in addition to the necessary meat, fish, eggs and cereals.

In general, one is likely to feel better when base-forming foods predominate, at least slightly, in the diet over acid-forming foods. Some authorities believe that this may be due not so much to their effect on the acid-base balance as to the fact that they provide such splendid amounts of vitamins, minerals and fiber.

However, one must not make the mistake of becoming so enthusiastic over building a highly alkaline diet that one overlooks good foods necessary to round out a balanced diet.

To those homemakers who take seriously the important job of feeding a family, and wish to be correctly informed, I shall gladly send a chart showing which foods are alkaline and which acid. It can be used as a helpful guide in planning a balanced diet.

Send for this chart and increase your food knowledge. In the meantime, don't under any circumstances allow misguided individuals to frighten you into joining the vast army of acid-minded people who are so concerned over the possibilities of acidosis that they haven't time to enjoy life.

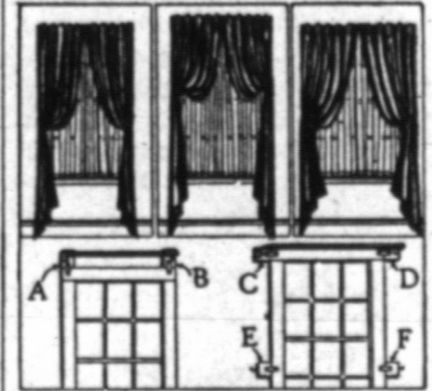

Questions Answered

Mrs. S. T. R.—No, egg whites most certainly are not toxic, except to people who have an allergy toward this food. For all normal individuals, they offer an excellent source of protein.

Mrs. R. McK.—Generally speaking, the ideal weight for men and women over thirty is their normal weight at the age of thirty. From that time on, the scales should be watched, and the food intake reduced as soon as a gain is noticed. When maturity is reached, food is no longer required to support growth, and unless muscular activity is maintained at a high level, the total energy requirement will gradually decline.

HOW to SEW RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE windows shown here are the same size. The center one is made to look taller by adding an extension at the top. The one on the right is made wider with extensions at the sides. Tall windows lend dignity and a note of formality. By placing the tie-backs quite high this effect is emphasized even more.

Wide windows often make a room seem larger and give wall spaces better proportions. Exh spaces at the sides may also be used so the draperies will cover less of the window, giving more view and sunlight.

To make a window higher, merely screw blocks of wood to the top of the frame as at A and B with metal straps such as may be obtained at any hardware store. The curtain rods are then screwed to the wood blocks. To add width, screw the blocks to the sides of the window frame as at C and D. If tie-backs are to be used, extensions for them may be added as at E and F.

Draperies like the ones shown here may be lined or not according to the weight of the material used. My book SEWING, for the Home Decorator, shows you exactly how to make them either way and how to make the French heading. This book also gives directions for making slipcovers; all types of dressing table covers; seventeen different types of curtains; bedspreads; and numerous other useful and decorative things for the home. Readers wishing a copy should address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill., enclosing 25 cents (coin preferred) and the book will be sent by return mail.

Men of the Mounted

"SOAPY SMITH" CHANGES HIS MIND

A MORE notorious political racketeer never lived than "Soapy" Smith. For years he and his gangsters did just as they pleased up and down the west coast, and when "Soapy" decided to hit for the Yukon during the historically famous gold rush, he took most of his gang of ruffians, cut-throats and robbers with him. Almost overnight "Soapy" gained complete control of Skagway, and soon the town was wide open multiplied by ten.

Skagway's streets became battlefields where provoked and unprovoked gunfights occurred daily as some of "Soapy's" ruffians robbed and plundered outgoing, well-heeled goldrushers and incoming goldseekers alike. At night, raucous voices singing lewd and filthy songs were augmented by cries of "murder" from the street. Might was right in every sense of the word, meanwhile all sorts of gyp-artists, card sharps, confidence men, and shell-game crooks robbed and plundered right and left, keeping out of trouble because "Soapy," the Big Boss, had arranged the police and judiciary to suit himself.

"Soapy" and his lieutenants planned and executed hundreds of robberies and swindling schemes, growing richer and more powerful the while. Then came news the Northwest Mounted Police were about to escort about $200,000 in notes and gold from Lake Bennett post, to Victoria, British Columbia, via the port at Skagway. Surely this was too juicy a plum for "Soapy" and his gang to miss. Moreover, up to this time, both "Soapy" and his henchmen had balked at any "job" that might make them step into Canadian territory. Even the reputedly daring "Soapy" entertained a healthy respect for the Men of the Mounted.

Here was a job they could pull right on American soil where, by rights, the Men of the Mounted had no business. And so "Soapy" and his brain-trust sat down and schemed, planned and arranged for every emergency. This was to be the job of the decade. "Soapy" organized an army of 100 well-armed men, engaged boats, and planted scouts here and there; the commissioner of the Yukon territory bade good-by, and good luck, to three Men of the Mounted, Inspector Wood and two constables. Their load consisted of their own personal kits, and the $200,000.

After many anxious miles during which the three Men of the Mounted followed the Skagway trail, and nodded the time of day with furtive-eyed rascals who were evidently "Soapy's" scouts, Inspector Wood and his men arrived at Dyea where they immediately boarded a waiting rowboat and were soon rowing out across the bay. Halfway across several well-armed men in a rather large rowboat manned by half a dozen stout-muscled oarsmen, did their best to intimidate the Northwest Mounted and made several attempts to bring the two boats into a collision. Inspector Wood, handling the steering oar, warned the ruffians to keep their distance or he would fire upon them, and, thus arguing back and forth, the two boats finally crossed the bay without any shootings or drownings. Upon arrival at the wharf, however, Inspector Wood and his men received a rough and tumble reception from almost a hundred ruffians lined up and ready for the big robbery. As the Men of the Mounted stepped to the wharf carrying their $200,000 they were tripped and jostled and pushed about hither and yon as they tried to make their way toward a small steamer that lay alongside awaiting their coming. Kicked and pushed and tripped, and otherwise held up and delayed, things began to look really serious. The great robbery was imminent. And then, just when it seemed that the Men of the Mounted were about to be smothered by the mob, the captain aboard the steamer tooted the vessel's horn, and instantly a score of armed members of the Royal naval reserve were over the side and down among "Soapy's" gang. In no time the Men of the Mounted and their $200,000 were snatched from the mob and were aboard the steamer.

"Soapy" Smith, surrounded by at least a score of his most trusted gunmen, had witnessed the whole show from the deck of a tug that was "treading water" nearby. Although he had seen his best plans go haywire, he was still smiling or sneering, when he opened up conversation with Inspector Wood.

"Like ter have yer stay round Skagway a day er two, 'Spector," said "Soapy," "it's a mighty nice town... y'kin have any'ing yer want. Name it... an' it's yores. How 'bout it? 'Spector?"

"Thank you, Mr. Smith," the inspector replied, coolly, "but I must be about my business. I'd advise you to keep off Canadian territory in the future, as you have done, so very well, in the past. Good afternoon, sir."

WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE'S To Ride the River With

SYNOPSIS

Ruth Chiswick of L C ranch, obsessed by fear of danger to her outspoken father, Lee, from a band of lawless rustlers headed by Sherm Howard, decides to save him by flying with young Lou Howard, Sherm's son, and comes to the town of Tail Holt to meet him. While in Yell Sanger's store, a crook-nosed stranger enters, sizes up the situation, and when a drunken cowboy, Jim Pender, rides in and starts shooting, protects Ruth, while Lou Howard hides. Disgusted with Lee's cowardice, Ruth calls off the elopement, and sends the stranger for her father at the gambling house across the street. There the stranger, calling himself Jeff Gray, meets Morgan Norris, a killer, Curly Connor, Kansas, Mile High, Sid Hunt, and other rustlers, and Sherm Howard. Lee Chiswick enters, with his foreman, Dan Brand, and tells Sherm Howard of his orders to shoot rustlers at sight. Jeff Gray returns to Ruth and coldly reassures her of her father's safety. At supper, Ruth introduces Jeff to her father and Brand, and in Sanger's store later she speaks cordially to Curly Connor. Coming out of the store, they are greeted by hidden gunplay. Lee is wounded, and Jeff Gray appears with a smoking revolver. Two days later, Ruth tells her father of her projected elopement and her disillusionment. Later, Ruth meets Jeff Gray, who she thinks tried to kill her father. Ruth accidentally wounds Jeff. She takes him to Pat Sorley's camp. Ruth is credulous of Jeff's story of shooting at the assassin rather than at her father, and later pleads with Lee to listen to him. When Lee arrives at Pat Sorley's camp, he finds only a note to Pat from Jeff. Meanwhile, Jeff rides into Tail Holt and sends word to Sherm Howard that he wants to see him. He shows Howard a poster with his picture, with the name of Clint Doke, wanted as the leader of a band of outlaws. The rest of the band arrives. Jeff shows the outlaws the poster and asks their confidence, and tells them to stay. Another rider agrees to allow him to stay. Another rider agrees to allow him to stay. completely bored. He washed up, and went down for supper. At the long table in the dining-room Ma Presnell put him next a crook-nosed stranger with reddish hair. Presently the man mentioned amiably that his name was Gray.

The words were a little shock to Frank. His swift gaze swept the man, down and up. He noted a certain pantherish lightness of body, a hard recklessness of face. A chill ran through young Chiswick. His first impulse was to fling out a challenge, but he remembered his father's instructions. He was not to get into trouble with their enemies.

"Stiffly he answered, iron in his voice, "I am Frank Chiswick." Two or three of those at the table were watching them. "I reckon you don't feel friendly, Mr. Chiswick," drawled Gray. "Would you expect me to feel friendly with a man who tried to murder my father and later helped to rustle his cattle?" Frank asked harshly.

"You've certainly got me wrong, sir," Gray replied, with unhurried courtesy. "But I don't expect I can convince you of it." "Not in a hundred years," Frank retorted hotly. "I don't wish to talk with you, sir, or to know you when we meet." "Short and sweet," Gray said with a smile, his manner cheerfully indifferent. "It's a blow, but I expect I'll have to get along without knowing Mr. Frank Chiswick."

He turned and began to talk with the man on the other side of him. As soon as supper was over, Frank went to the landlady and asked her to change his seat to the other end of the table.

The day after Frank reached Tail Holt, he saw Morgan Norris and Mile High jog into town and tie at the hitchbar in front of the Golden Nugget. Young Chiswick sauntered up the street and turned in at Curt Dubbs' place. He knew he would not be exactly welcome there, but the objection to his patronage would probably be expressed only in pointed hints.

Morris and Mile High were at the bar slaking thirst after a short visit to a hidden cache. A poker game was in progress, but the wheel and the faro table were both deserted. It was too early in the day for them. Inside of an hour they would be going full blast. Around the poker table sat six men. Curly and Jeff Gray were two of them.

To Mile High his companion said, "Tail Holt sure is being honored these days." Mile High glanced at Chiswick hastily, to see if he had caught the slur. "What's eatin' you, Morg?" he said hastily. "No use raisin' a rookus."

"Am I raisin' a rookus because I'm grateful the big moguls have started drappin' in on us?" he asked offensively. Frank moved away. He heard Norris say, without troubling to lower his voice, "I was aimin' to ask him how his old man is getting along putting down the rustlers."

The tall cowpuncher laughed, then tried to cover his mirth with a decorous cough. Chiswick flushed angrily. The rage was still simmering in him when he passed the poker table and met the bland smile of Gray. He felt the disadvantage of youth. He was not philosophical enough to ignore insults without letting them burn him up, nor neat-enough-of-tongue to answer them with a stinging retort that could not be construed as a challenge.

Out of the back door Frank passed into a night roofed by a star-peppered sky. He cut across a vacant lot and walked up the narrow, dusty road leading to a crooked canyon the black mouth of which opened in front of him. In the shadow of a cottonwood he saw the figures of a man and a woman locked in embrace. The murmur of the man's low voice reached him as he passed. At the end of the road, where it terminated in a narrow trail running up the canyon, Frank turned and retraced his steps.

The girl beneath the cottonwood ran into the adjoining house and the man came out to the road. He was just behind Chiswick, whistling gaily, "Good-by, my lover, good-by." His brisk stride presently brought him abreast of Frank. "Lo, fellow. How are cases?" he asked cheerfully.

His good spirits subsided abruptly. Lou Howard did not feel like a conquering hero when he recognized in the man beside him Frank Chiswick. "So you're at it again," Frank said grimly.

There was a false note of heartiness in the glib reply of Howard. "I been wanting to have a talk with you, Frank," he said. "I reckon you have done heard Ruth's side of the story. You know her better than I do—how bossy she is when she gets a notion in her head, and has to have her own way. I tried to talk her out of this sloping business, and finally I did all right. Told her to go home and behave like a good girl, which of course she is, come down to brass tacks."

"You liar," Frank said. He had heard gossip since he came to town. Howard bristled. "Looky here. You can't talk thataway to me. I won't stand it for a minute."

"I am talking that way. I'm telling you that you're a liar and a yellow cur. Right now I'm going to whale the life out of you."

Frank weighed twenty pounds less than the other man. He was only nineteen years old and Howard was twenty-four. In actual physical strength he was no match for the Tail Holt loafer, but he had one great asset. He yearned to get at this scamp who had, according to his view, insulted Ruth and dragged her name into common talk, whereas Howard had gone panicky at the thought of a fight.

"Don't you monkey with me, fellow," blustered Lou. "My friends will make you mighty sorry if you try to do me a meanness."

"Put up yore dukeys," Frank ordered. The larger man backed away, protesting that he did not want to fight.

"But you're going to all the same," insisted Chiswick, and he drew his hand insultingly across the cheek of the other. Howard reached for a gun. The fingers of Frank's left hand closed on his wrist and twisted the arm. With a yelp of pain Howard dropped the revolver to the ground. He broke free and tried to run. Within a dozen strides Frank landed on his back and brought him down.

As he scrambled to his feet, Chiswick crowded him against an adobe wall and lashed out at his frightened face. Feebly Howard put up his arms to defend himself. He took for five minutes a hard drubbing, then collapsed to the ground. "For God's sake, don't!" he whined. "I've had enough. You're killing me."

"I've heard about yore talk," Frank panted, still hot with anger. "Listen. If you ever mention my sister's name again I'll beat you till you can't stand."

He turned on his heel and walked down the road. Frank had no feeling of elation at what he had done, but he could not blame himself. To trash a man who was too cowardly to fight was no pleasure. Yet he had at least stopped Howard from talking about Ruth. The fellow would keep his mouth shut after this.

It would be better to go back to the rooming-house, Chiswick decided. To hang around Main street now would be asking for trouble. Someone very likely would take on the quarrel for Lou. If so, it would be with guns. By morning a more reasonable point of view would obtain.

He turned into Main street down the alley beside the Golden Nugget. As he did so, he caught sight of a man at the hitchrack in front of the gambling-house. The man was Jeff Gray. Frank stopped in the shadow and watched him.

Gray was examining the hoof of a horse. He put down the foot of the animal, glanced swiftly at the door of the Golden Nugget, and moved to a second horse tied to the rack. He stooped and picked up the left hind leg of the cow-pony. Long and carefully he studied the hoof, not forgetting to look occasionally in the direction of the door. Clearly, he did not want to be caught at this inspection.

He straightened, dusted his hands, and walked into the Golden Nugget. On his way to the lodging-house Frank asked himself questions. The horses at the hitchrack had been the ones upon which Morg Norris and Mile High had ridden into town a little while ago. What was Gray trying to find out? Why was he interested in these horses more than any others? He seemed on friendly terms with the outlaws. Yet Frank had sensed a latent hostility between the stranger and Morgan-Norris. Oh, well, thieves fell out among themselves. Frank went to his room and forgot the incident. Very likely it had no importance.

Five minutes later Lou Howard pushed open the door of the Golden Nugget and moved, feet dragging, to the bar. "Gimme a drink—a stiff one," he ordered.

The bartender stared at his bruised and bleeding face. "Holy mackerel! You been tangling with a grizzly, Lou?" he asked. "He jumped me—when I wasn't looking," Howard said, almost weeping with self-pity. "Who jumped you?" Morgan-Norris wanted to know.

"Frank Chiswick. That's who." "A kid," Norris jeered. "No such thing. An' he lit on my back while I was walking down the road, then beat me up something awful."

"You sure look like a tiger had clawed you," Curly said cheerfully. "Frank certainly worked you over considerable."

He was immensely pleased at the retribution which had fallen on Howard. "Time someone cut the comb of those Chiswicks," Norris growled. "I'll go along with you any time you say to fix this fellow's clock, Lou."

"How much help do you reckon Lou will need, Morg?" Curly inquired, with intent to insult young Howard. "You throwin' in with the Chiswicks, Curly?" murmured Norris derisively. "Would I have to ask yore permission, Morg?" the black-haired man demanded coolly. "Or am I free, white, and twenty-one?"

The eyes of Morgan-Norris flickered over Curly. The killer leaned negligently against the bar, his body slumped, his eyes sleepy. But in him was the suggestion of violent eruption one sees in a crouched tiger. "I like to know who my friends are, Curly," he said softly. "Don't get you, Morg. When a kid whops a loose-mouthed scallawag bigger and older than he is, do we all have to get on the prod about it?"

First Dentistry by Family Jewelers; Blacksmiths Also Drew Aching Molars

Back in Revolutionary war days men called upon their blacksmiths when they wanted aching molars drawn. Ladies of the nicer families, garbed in flowing gowns and powdered wigs, visited their jewelers for the drawing of a tooth and for its replacement.

While the war was at its height 'two fidgety, excitable Frenchmen arrived in this country with brown leather packs containing iron forceps, wires, dog teeth, human teeth and goat teeth. These two men, said a bulletin of the Dental Institute of America, were the first real dentists of professional background in America. Crude as were their methods, they were like rain on a parched field.

"What a steep road dental science has climbed in the intervening 160 years," says the Institute. "Leaders in Europe observe that we are fifty years ahead of the old world. Our 60,000 dentists are highly-skilled and of superior scientific intellect

The foreigners point to our triumph in modern dentures, or plates. They are amazed at our successful treatment of pyorrhea in its early stages. X-ray progress here in revealing hidden infections impresses the European dentist, as does our new science of straightening teeth." Dental experts from Europe, studying conditions in this country, were also impressed by the extent to which specialization had entered the profession. "Dental specialists include the pedodontist who works entirely with the mouths of children, the radiodontist who X-rays teeth, the orthodontist who straightens teeth, the exodontist who specializes in extraction, the pyorrhea specialist, known as a periodontist, and the prosthodontist, who makes and fits plates. While the average dentist is proficient in most branches of the science, many practitioners now restrict their activities to special phases of the profession."

UNICAMERAL MOVEMENT

The Nebraska example has given rise to proposals in many States for Legislatures of a single body. In New York the constitutional convention now in session is considering changing that State's Legislature to a small unicameral group. The board of directors of the Merchants' Association of New York after long deliberation, has concluded that the bicameral Legislature has outlived its usefulness and has recommended change to the unicameral form.

The single-house Legislature, the Merchants' Association points out, would cut legislative costs in half,
reduce the number of committees, concentrate public attention on pending legislation and provide a small body in which the importance of each member would be increased and the responsibility of members for acts would be more definitely fixed.

Procedure would be simple, the association argues further, each step in enacting a bill would be final and there could be no evasion of responsibility through action of a second body. Legislative checks by executive veto and judicial review would remain unchanged, but the opportunity for manipulating procedure by playing one house against the other or by influencing conference committees would be ended.

Opposition to this New York unicameral proposal is expected to come mainly from upstate Republicans who for many years have blocked efforts to reappoint the State on a population basis. Democratic New York, with fifty-two per cent of the State's population, has not had proportional representation in the Legislature. Factional advantage, rather than the good of the State, appears to be the determining factor in opposition to the unicameral move.

In the present political campaign in Texas, aspirants for the governorship have ignored the unicameral issue. It is being emphasized only by a few legislative candidates and by Senator G. H. Nelson of Tahoka, who is seeking to become Lieutenant Governor. Voters should take occasion to question other candidates on this important subject, especially those who are seeking places in the Legislature.—Dallas News.

Dictator Hitler paid a visit to Tahoka last week. They had a gleeful time gloating over the great "war machine bristling with means of mass destruction" that Mussolini has built up. On Friday Mussolini staged a military parade for the benefit of the visiting autocrat, in which 30,000 soldiers participated. Mussolini boasts that he has 9 million of them. For more than two hours, soldiers, artillery, tanks, armored cars, poison gas dispensers and flame-spreading units passed before their admiring eyes. In the display, we are told, were "Men ready for combat, women prepared for work behind the lines, and little boys bearing toy rifles as the start of their military training—all a part of Italy's vast war organization." Thus are the whole Italian people being infused with the war spirit. Their boys are being taught the art of killing and are being inspired with the desire to kill. Babies in their mothers' arms are being instilled with the spirit of hatred and murder. It bodes no good for the Italian people for the world. They that sow the winds shall reap the whirlwind.
We can't afford to be unprepared in this country against the mad deeds of war but God grant that we shall ever teach our children the pursuits and the glory of peace.

A Ralls citizen a few days ago got his gun and went on a wild rampage of murder. His first victim was his wife, against whom he had, or fancied he had, some kind of grievance. After shooting her to death without warning he went to the house of a neighbor and shot him in the back through a window. Then he went to a seed house in the community, crawled in, and shot himself to death. There seems to have been no connection between the stevanages he held against his two victims. Crazy? Probably so; but the press reports say that he was a heavy drinker. Drink probably had much to do with his mental condition. "Wine is a mocker; strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." We can't understand why anybody but a blank fool would fool with the stuff.

The County Fathers while in session Wednesday, upon being presented with a petition with 151 signers, decided to appropriate money to grade and gravel the north and west streets on the square from the St.
Clair Hotel to the First National Bank and from in front of the Ta-hoka Hotel to the Fair store. It is estimated it will take something like six or eight car loads of gravel to make the streets what they ought to be.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miles of O'Donnell were second Monday visitors, coming up and returning on the train.

Grandpa Nevils left on the Tuesday morning train for Slaton, from which place he went to the ranch.
He had been visiting his son, W. D.
Nevils.

Many prizes were awarded at the second Monday Trades Day. Raymond Weathers won the four mile foot race. James Crie coming in second. The other contestants were forced by the intense heat to drop out before reaching the finish line.

The race track began at the Dyer place four miles east of town and ended in town. The half mile foot race for small boys was won by Joe Hickerson and Tom Baldrige. Carl Beatenbaugh won the bronc-busting contest. Miss Cryte Wright won the saddle pony show.

Miss Grace Leedy, who has been spending the winter with her brother-in-law, Virgil Johns, at Electra came in Wednesday accompanied by her sister and little niece.

Mrs. Fisher Patterson left on the Tuesday morning train for Slaton to visit her sister, Mrs. Ivy Shaffer, for a few days.

J. E. Stokes, proprietor of the months old, and when it arrived in

YES, WE DON'T CARRY BEER ADS.

We noticed that about two or three of our exchanges failed to carry the beer ad that appeared in this and the other local paper last week. One of them, the Lynn County News, Tahoka, failed to explain why they didn't carry the ad, but we know E. I. is so dry that you have to pump prime him before he will respire. The Snyder Times reported that they did not need the money had enough to carry even an argumentative ad about beer, and not an ad for any brand of beer. We are very sorry that we are not in such prime fix that $60 does not look good. However, we are willing to wager that there is not a merchant in Snyder that would turn down a nice order from beer dealers of Sweetwater. We know that they wouldn't turn down a New Mexico liquor or beer dealer's order for a suit of clothes, groceries or what have you, here in Brownfield. So, that's that.—Terry County Herald.

Yes, we turned down the beer ad.
We did so simply because we are just about as dry as you charge, Jack. We didn't parade our refusal to run this series of ads on our front page or in our editorial columns, for we did not wish to appear as assuming a holier-than-thou attitude. We have no criticism for our brethren of the press who elect to run beer advertising when it is offered them. That is their right, and it is possibly no worse than a lot of other things we do.

We declined to run these ads for two reasons. First, our county is a dry county. The sale of beer in this county is illegal, for it is at least mildly intoxicating. It can not be legally sold in this county, so why carry an advertisement that would encourage violations of the law?

Second, we are opposed to legalizing the sale of beer. We believe that the licensing of its sale is against good public policy, that it would promote intemperance, and that many licensed beer joints would only become hell holes for the sale of stronger liquors.

Personally, we are not going to line up with that sort of business.
Furthermore we are not going to permit that sort of business to use our columns for its foul purpose—which is the cultivation of the drink habit among our boys and girls, the debauching of our young people for the enriching of a bunch of pot-gutted brewers.

And so that's that.

bly galling to Hitler and his intolerant gang of hoodlums now in control of Germany. Every day in every way we grow stronger and stronger for American ideals and our American system of government. Let 'the heathen rage.

Jim has been trying to get her have been held for that purpose, but some how or other the draft

WHY DOTTIE WHERE IN THE WORLD DID YOU GET YOUR O.D. FIGURE?

NOTHING TO IT—NEARLY EVERYONE I KNOW IS ON THE NEW BREAD DIET

If you really want to reduce, start this Bread Diet today—and stick to it!

These Diet Meals give about 1500 Calories a day—reducing allowance of the average person, moderately active, with an ideal weight of 130 lbs., who is 10 to 20 lbs. overweight. If your ideal weight is more or less than 130 lbs., increase or decrease foods in these meals, but keep Bread in the right proportion.

BREAKFAST
one glass of grape juice portion of lean meat 2 slices of toast
one cup of clear coffee with one lump of sugar

LUNCH
cream chowder (1 cup) lettuce and tomato sandwich (1 small tomato sliced and 2 lettuce leaves) one glass of milk

DINNER
fruit cup (1 cup) broiled beef liver (1 slice) brussels sprouts (1 cup) green peas (1/2 cup) 2 slices of bread cooked peaches (1 half) 1 cup of coffee with 1 lump of sugar and 1 tablespoon of cream

Maintains HEALTH and ENERGY while reducing

THE new Bread Diet is safe, sane and efficient. It has been tested and it works. It was developed in leading American universities and laboratories after four years of extensive study. Extreme diets often cut down too much on energy and protective foods. The Bread Diet provides these necessary elements and enables the body to burn up completely the fat lost while reducing, without leaving any harmful residue.

Bread itself should not be considered fattening. It is a perfect combination of carbohydrates and protein—especially important when reducing.

Excess fat results from food not utilized for energy. No other common food except sugar can be more quickly turned into energy than bread. By substituting bread for foods that are nearly all starch, body protein is maintained while reducing.

Bread is used in this diet because it is the ideal energy food that also builds and maintains firm, strong muscles. It helps you reduce without that all gone feeling.

The Wilson High School senior class, composed of thirty members, accompanied by Supt. S. G. Anthony, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Head, Mrs. C. E. Campbell, Mrs. R. A. Kahlich, and Mrs. M. C. Brandon, leave this afternoon on an extended nine-day bus trip, during which they will see many of the scenic wonders of Texas, and Carlsbad Cavern as well.

The party will visit the cavern, Fort Stockton, Davis Mountains, Ft. Davis, McDonald Observatory, and then follow the border down to Brownsville. They will then follow the coast a piece, visiting Port Isabel and Corpus Christi, swing inland to San Antonio and Austin, and then drive across to Huntsville to visit the State Penitentiary, and return by way of Dallas and Fort Worth.

The party will travel in a school bus, which will pull a chuck wagon. They will sleep in tents, unless the weather is too disagreeable.

The trip is being made at a cost of $6.00 per student, augmented by funds raised by the Senior Class by presenting a class play, operating a peanut machine, and various other activities.

"DOCTOR RHYTHM" FIESTA OF MIRTH, AT ENGLISH

Your prescription to banish the blues and make yourself feel twenty years younger is furnished by "Doctor Rhythm" Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the English Theatre, starring Bing Crosby and Beatrice Lillie in a new musical comedy partnership that should make screen history.

Croon-conditioned as only Bing knows how to make it, and gag-infested by London's inimitable Bea, who proves once again that fun never sets on the British Empire, "Doctor Rhythm" is the screen version of one of O. Henry's most popular tales, directed by Hollywood's master of frivolous screen musicals, Frank Tuttle, who was responsible for "Waikiki Wedding" and "College Holiday." For this festive production he selected an all star cast, including Mary Carlisle, Laura Hope Crews, Andy Devine, Frank Elliott, Bill Austin and Louis Armstrong and his Band.

Bing's enjoyment is second only to that of the audience as he plays the Park Avenue physician who turns policeman for a day as a favor to the "Devine Andy," who has been put hors de combat by a trained seal with whom he wrestled in the Central Park Zoo. Bing's first assignment, to act as personal body-guard to the madcap Miss Lillie, convinces him that a policeman's lot is not a happy one, but when she turns him over to her niece, Mary Carlisle, he finds that love and duty mix perfectly.

Romance travels a rough road, for Bing must not only lead Miss Carlisle away from her infatuation with a gangster, Fred Keating, but also must protect her from his gang when the disappointed suitor tries to carry her off on his yacht.

Even the animals do their part to contribute to the gaiety of "Doctor Rhythm." In the opening scene at the Central Park Zoo, giraffes, zebras, seals, monkeys and the rest all enter joyously into the spirit of

DOUGLASS HENDERSON SUFFERS BURNS

Dougllass Henderson, who operates a machine shop on Main Street, suffered severe facial burns Tuesday when the gas in a generator which he was handling ignited. This gas is produced from the carbide used in the generator.

The burns which he sustained are on the forehead and upper face and were very painful though not serious.

The Oregon Trail route of the covered wagon extended 2,000 miles—from Independence, Mo. to Oregon City and Fort Vancouver, Oregon.

On the occasion, Miss Lillie is again the ace comedienne who rules supreme over the English and American stage, and in one scene does her "dinner napkin" routine which has become almost as familiar to radio fans as the Gettysburg Address.

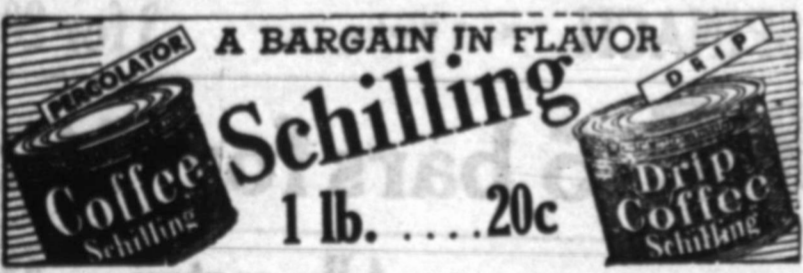

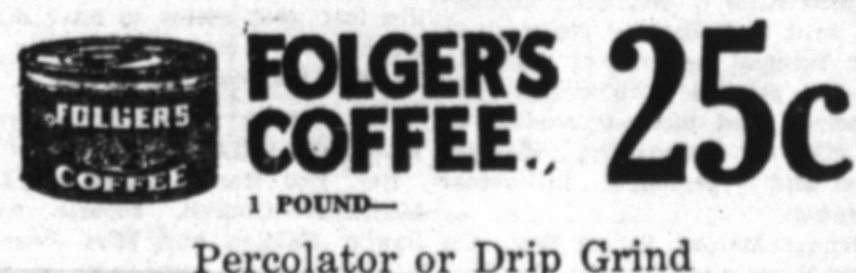

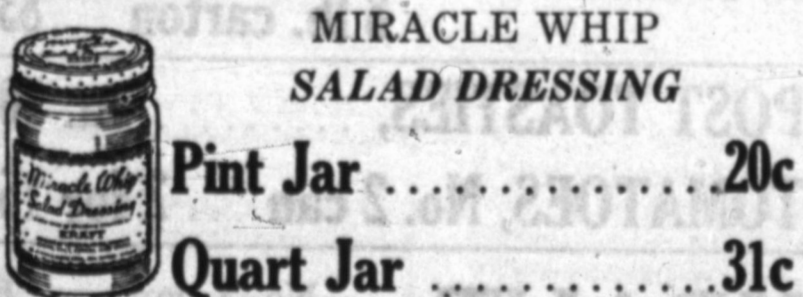

"Doctor Rhythm" is a musical comedy as tuneful as "Rhythm on the Range," as laugh-filled as "She Loves Me Not." Don't neglect putting yourself under the doctor's care for a few hours. He's good for what ails you!

Marie St. Clair Floyd Goad Wed

It was a beautiful home wedding in which Miss Marie St. Clair became the bride of Mr. Floyd Goad in the Homer St. Clair residence last Saturday night.

Young people, it seems, are rarely ever married these days either in a church or in the home. Not only were this couple married in the home of the bride's parents, but the groom's father, County Judge P. W. Goad, read the marriage ceremony. Only members of the immediate family were present.

These are fine young people who have the best wishes of many friends here. With the exception of a few years spent in O'Donnell and Lamesa, the bride has been reared here. She is a graduate of the Tahoka high school and recently has been employed in the offices of Drs. Prohl and Green.

The groom, as indicated, is the son of Judge and Mrs. P. W. Goad and was reared at New Home in this county. He has been employed in a lumber yard here and is a young man of much promise.

The young couple have an apartment in the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. S. N. McDaniel.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

(Ben Hardy, Pastor)

We had a good Mothers' Day service last Sunday. Several special songs; one by the children, one by the young people, and one by Mrs. Marvin Munn. They were all very appropriate and very fine.

Be on time for Sunday School next Sunday, 9:45. We will dismiss in good time to get to the High School Building for the 11 o'clock service.

We congratulate the splendid class that finish this year, most of them boys—rather unusual. We wish for them every good thing.

Evening service at 8:15.

BAPTIST GIRLS AUXILIARY MET MONDAY AFTERNOON

The Girls Auxiliary of the Baptist Church met at the church house Monday afternoon at 4:30. The following were present: Mary Beth Roddy, Virginia Roddy, Louise Young, Joyce Jolly, Charlene Latham, Rae Fern Pennington, Maurine Buchanan, Dorothy Threet, Bertha R. Green, Ethel Goad, LaVerne Reddell.

We are working to increase our attendance.—Dorothy Threet, Reporter.

YOUTH GETS TRIP

Stephenville, Texas.—Travis Key, senior at John Tarleton College was a member of the 422 Education class in psychology as applied to business administration who, accompanied by Mrs. Effie C. Neathery, instructor, went to Dallas last Saturday to tour business concerns of that city for the purpose of observing the principles and methods studied by the class on salesmanship, management and personnel in actual operation.

Neiman-Marcus, Sanger Bros., the Texas Power and Light Co., the Bur-rus Mills, and the Dallas News were among the concerns inspected by the group.

ELDER DRENNON'S NOTES

For lack of time, the News was compelled last week to leave out several articles, among them Elder Drennon's Notes. Part of his observations are out of date this week, but we are publishing the following paragraphs from them.

Since last week's notes were written, I have visited the storm swept districts. I stood in awe at the mighty force displayed in nature. It caused me to see how weak and puny man is against the forces of nature.

I gathered several lessons from the storm and its results, among them the uncertainty of life and the certainty of death, the power God has at his disposal.

One bright spot amidst all the disaster was the fine response of the people for those in distress. I visited the Bank here this morning and about $1,400 had been paid in, besides a great quantity of clothes and household goods.

I see Tahoka is taking on new life. My wife visited there last Saturday and she said there was the largest crowd there she had seen in a long time. I think the ads. in the News were responsible for the most of them. To the merchants, why not have some music, speaking, or some kind of out-door amusements to draw the people? It pays. We tried it at Roaring Springs and got two thousand there one Saturday. The people are going somewhere on Saturday, why not Tahoka?

An explanation: I want to offer a few words on the editor's note on my notes last week. This is not a reply but an explanation. I do not know what church the editor had in mind but hasten to say that I am not a member of it. I am a member of the church which began in Jerusalem A. D. 34. It was the one Jesus said he would build. Matthew 16:18, and gave Peter the keys to, Matthew 16:19; but he was not to use the keys until he was endued with power from on high, Luke 24:49 also Acts 1:4-8. The power came on Pentecost, Acts 2:1-4. Peter preached to the people. They were cut to the heart, cried out what to do, were told to repent and be baptized for the remission of sins, Acts 2:37-38. As many as did this were added to the Lord's church Acts 2:41, also verse 47. I did just what they did. If he added them he added me. If not, why not? I am writing this lest some of my readers think that I belong to a modern denomination. As the editor said, this is not a challenge for a debate but just to keep the record straight.—R. P. Drennon.

(Editor's Note: Many thanks, Brother Drennon, for the suggestion to the merchants that we have some special amusement or entertainment here each Saturday. It's a fine idea. By the way, our little friendly jibe last week seems to have done some good; it put the preacher to studying his bible.)

HARSTON-WILSON

Rev. Ben Hardy, pastor of the Methodist Church, reports that Bowlin Harston and Miss Juanita Wilson, residing somewhere in the vicinity of Wilson, were united in marriage at the Methodist parsonage on Thursday night of last week.

METHODIST W. M. S. HAS BUSY MEETING

The Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church met in regular business session Monday, May 2, at 3 p. m. in the church, with the president, Mrs. V. F. Jones, in the chair.

The president led the devotional, after which the officers made their reports.

The Superintendent of Study discussed the Bible Study which the Auxiliary will take up July 18 and continue through August.

A motion was made and carried that a vote of appreciation be recorded in the minutes to Mrs. G. M. Stewart for so ably directing the study recently completed. The Rebuilding of Russia, America. This book was thoroughly enjoyed by the class, and the closing session consisted of an enthusiastic debate bringing out the ideas gleaned from the study.

The Superintendent of Social Relations brought an invitation from the Missionary Society at Draw to join them Tuesday, May 3, in rehabilitating quilts and garments salvaged from the recent storm at Draw. Several of the ladies went to Draw church Tuesday and helped with this work. Several new quilts were made and new bed linens. Two sewing machines were kept busy. Everybody carried lunch, and at noon we enjoyed a real feast. About fifty ladies and the Red Cross officials at Draw enjoyed the bountiful meal. The Missionary Society at Draw was invited to a Good Neighbor program in Tahoka May 23.

On Monday, May 9, the Missionary Society were guests of the Brownfield Auxiliary. The theme of their program was Neighbors. We came home happy in the realization that neighbors are not limited to our own immediate neighborhood but that our mutual interest in Missions bind all the small separate groups into a great army of women striving to help all the world carry out Christ's work of preaching and teaching and healing.

The Missionary Society will meet Monday, May 16 at 3 o'clock in the home of Mrs. C. A. Thomas.

Theme: Sixty years in China. Song: Lead On, O King Eternal, No. 105.

Scripture: Leader, Mrs. Walden Prayer: Mrs. Hardy. Meditation: Mrs. Fenton. "Recollections of Charlie Soongs" Mrs. J. H. Edwards Jr.

Song: We've a Story to Tell to the Nations, No. 253. Social Hour.

MRS. WEAVER CANNING FROM FRAME GARDEN

"I canned 28 pints of spinach and 10 pints of Swiss Chard from my frame garden Monday," said Mrs. A. C. Weaver, cooperator in the Tahoka Home Demonstration Club. "I added beet tops to the Swiss Chard to improve the flavor," she said.

Mrs. Weaver planted 18 varieties in her frame garden March 10. She has had onions, spinach, radishes and Swiss Chard to eat. She said that within twenty-eight days after the seed were planted she served mustard and lettuce.

Six-Man Football For Small Schools

The six man game of football has invaded Texas.

According to Rodney J. Kidd, athletic director of the Interscholastic League, a number of experimental units are being formed in the League for trying out the six man teams.

This sport, Kidd explained, offers many advantages for the small high school. Equipment is less expensive than an 11-man team, and the strain of maintaining a large squad is not so great. Schools with an enrollment of 75 to 100 are finding this an ideal fall sport, he said.

Kidd pointed out the same is much more open than the 11-man game, but is not to be confused with touch football. "It has," he said, "everything the eleven man team has except line plunges. It is a speedier game, and from a spectacular standpoint appeals to the American crowd which wants lots of action."

The League is undertaking this game especially for the benefit of small schools in 1938 and is arranging districts for groups of schools conveniently located. The regular football supplies are furnished these units, accurate records will be kept and league eligibility rules will be strictly enforced."

Jungle Is Termed Safer Than Cities by Priest

Cleveland.—After 32 years in the Amazon jungle, Brother Raphael Haag is bewildered by the multitude of automobiles on the streets of modern American cities.

The rush of motor traffic so confused him that he gained the impression there were more automobiles than pedestrians on the city streets.

Brother Haag made his first trip to America since 1905 to visit a brother, Herman Haag. The priest is a teacher in the mission school of the Holy Ghost fathers in Teffe, Brazil, on the Amazon river.

Being a missionary is the safest occupation at Teffe, Brother Raphael is convinced.

"The Indians distrust all white men," he explained, "but they respect the priests for the long, white cassocks we wear. One day, one of the brothers ventured into the jungle without his cassock but dressed in native garb of white shorts and shirt. He soon was dodging missiles fired at him from blow guns."

50-Year Photography of Sun Planned by Experts

San Jose, Calif.—A photographic mapping of the entire sky which will take 50 years to complete soon will be undertaken at the Lick observatory on Mount Wilson, Dr. Joseph H. Moore, assistant director, has revealed.

The project has been made possible by the donation of $65,000 which will be used in the construction of the largest star camera in the world. The instrument will have a 20-inch lens.

The carrying out of the 50-year program will make possible the measurement of the rotation of the entire stellar universe.

"I Saw It in the News Review" is a common expression among those who keep well informed on current events. They know that the "Weekly News Review," which appears regularly in this paper, offers a comprehensive interpretation of world events written by Edward W. Pickard, one of the nation's most widely known news commentators.

Weekly News Review deals with the important happenings and their effect upon our country. It is more than news—it is an interpretation of the news, and therefore much more valuable to the person who wants to understand what is going on in the world today.

Read it carefully each week. You will find it interesting and helpful in your discussion of world events with your neighbors and friends.

Charges Stevenson Is Water-Boy For Ferguson

Austin, Texas, May 10—(special) Asserting that his opponent, former Speaker Coke Stevenson, is "Jim Ferguson's political water-boy," Senator G. H. Nelson of Lubbock this week started the fireworks in the race for Lieutenant-Governor with a vigorous attack on Stevenson and Ferguson.

Former Governor Jim Ferguson recently called Nelson "a one-horse statesman" in an editorial in the Ferguson Forum opposing the one-house legislature.

"The trouble with Jim is that I'm one horse he can't drive. Coke Stevenson has worn the Ferguson saddle so long that he's now beginning to get political saddle-burns," Nelson declared.

"Jim and Coke have been political playmates for a long time. In 1933 Ferguson used his power to elect Stevenson Speaker of the House of Representatives. It was during that session that legalized race-track gambling was brought back to Texas after it had been outlawed for a quarter of a century," Nelson pointed out.

"Ferguson and Stevenson claim they are fighting me because of my one-house legislature proposal. That's not what's worrying them. They know I believe in full publicity on retainer fees taken by members of the Legislature. They know that I am opposed to the repeal of the chain store tax law," he pointed out.

"More than that, these old-time political pals know that I am calling on Stevenson to take a stand on these real issues in this race for Lieutenant-Governor. To avoid taking a stand, they are trying to bury all these issues by yelling about the one-house legislature, but before this race is over, we will smoke them out on all these vital questions," Nelson asserted.

Dunagan Visits Old Home Place

A. L. Dunagan and his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lowrey, left Thursday last week to visit relatives in Hill and Navarro counties. They were accompanied to Corsicana by Miss Carrie Ruth Powell of the Petty community, who remained for a visit of several weeks in that section of the state, the others returning home on Thursday night of this week.

Mr. Dunagan reports entirely too much rain in that section of the state for the good of the crops. The corn is dwarfed and yellow and much of the cotton is not yet planted as a result of the excessive rainfall, while the weeds are flourishing in many of the fields. Oats, however, promise to be fine, Mr. Dunagan says.

But Mr. Dunagan says they had a wonderful time in spite of the rain. He sat on the stump of a tree one day and fished, though without much success. But that tree had sheltered him when he was a boy. He played around under its branches while his mother did the family washing each week. He didn't say anything about helping his mother do the washing, however.

Mr. Dunagan also had another happy experience on the trip. They stopped over in Jack county on the way down to visit an uncle whom he had not seen for thirty-seven years. It was back in the covered-wagon days when they parted, not dreaming that their separation would be so uninterrupted and so complete for so long a time. It was a happy reunion.

Continuity of Wedding Ring and Eternal Love

When the bridegroom places the wedding ring on his chosen one's finger and says, "With this ring I thee wed," he little realizes the history that lies behind the simple wedding band.

Long before the ring became a symbol of matrimony, it had a mystic significance with the ancients, states a writer in the Washington Star. The circular continuity of the ring was accepted as a type of eternity and hence of the stability of affection. Often the rings were inscribed with loving wishes.

Coming up to the middle ages, the ring often was used at solemn betrothal ceremonies. Frequently lovers who were about to separate for long periods of time demonstrated their lasting affection by going through the ring ceremony.

Even greater significance to the custom was given by the invention of the linked ring. Made with a double and often a triple link which turned upon a pivot, it could be turned into one solid ring. It was customary to break these rings apart at the betrothal. This solemn ceremony was done in front of a witness. The prospective bride and her bridegroom each kept a ring while the witness was given the central one of the trio. When the marriage contract was fulfilled at the altar the three parts of the ring were again united and the ring used at the ceremony.

A custom that has survived in a revised way to the modern day was the habit of engraving simple sentiments in the nuptial hoop. Rhymes to rival Ogden Nash were inscribed in many Sixteenth and Seventeenth century wedding rings.

"Our contract was Heaven's act," "In thee, my choice, I do rejoice," and "God Above, Increase Our Love," express the medieval version of the couple's happy sentiments.

Infants React to Sound

More Than to the Light Every child when born is both deaf and dumb. From such an inauspicious beginning the normal child's auditory powers begin to function, and are closely related to the development of voice and speech, observes a writer in the Washington Post.

Hearing begins from the first day, occurring when the baby's cries force air through the Eustachian tubes of the mouth to the middle ears. This filling with air of the middle ears causes them to respond to vibrations of sound against the eardrums.

Once the sense of hearing is developed, it is very acute and remains so, unless the ear is attacked by disease or is injured. For instance, infants react more definitely to sound than to light. A strong light may only cause a sleeping baby to turn in order to avoid it. But a loud noise will awaken the baby, and perhaps frighten it or throw it into convulsions. Therefore, quiet is imperative for the small child during its rest.

Practically all babies are born with normal ears and prospects of good hearing. A small number, because of hereditary weaknesses, or other prenatal cause, may be born with defective hearing and speech organs. Determination of this lies solely with the family doctor or an ear specialist.

Red River Colored by Clay
The Red river of the North (there's a Red river in Texas and Oklahoma) is often colored by the clay through which it runs. Hence the name. Rising in Minnesota, it flows 350 miles almost straight north into Lake Winnipeg. In spring the headwaters thaw while farther north it is still frozen solidly. Floods result. Before railroads came the river connected Canada with the Mississippi river. Small steamers went up it to Lake Traverse and thence down the Minnesota river to the Mississippi.

Frigid Finger Reaches Low
New Zealand breaks the rule that glaciers usually stop near the lower limits of perpetual snow, above the timber line. Some of its rivers of ice wind over wooded slopes to end only among tree ferns and other sub-tropical vegetation. Fox glacier reaches down to 670 feet above sea level. Its surface is rough with patches of rock debris and with the sharp ridges of great crevasses.

Kipling's Autographs
The late Rudyard Kipling once was asked by his grocer to pay his bills by check. Mr. Kipling did so, then noticed the checks never came back from the bank. He investigated, found the butcher was selling the checks as autographs. Since the author rarely autographed anything, his name on a check was worth more than the check itself!

First Lamp Patent in 1798
In 1798 the first lamp patent was issued to John Love, of South Carolina, for a tallow lamp. The earliest patented lamp known is the nursery lamp made by William Howe, of Boston, dated 1812. The second earliest example appeared nearly two decades later, in 1831, and the patent was issued to John W. Schulz and William Trull. Between the granting of these two patents twenty others had been issued.

THE CANDIDATES ARE OUT

(By Nora Billingsly)
It takes no seer to read the signs. No guess at what's between the lines". No trumpeting nor shout; You read it in his beaming eye. His handclasp, as you pass him by— The candidate are out.

It will not matter if the land Rises and fills our eyes with sand, The winds howls North or South. The candidate, with sprightly grace, Will keep a cheerful, smiling face, Regardless of the drouth.

For him no luxury of "blues" As he the vagrant vote pursues, Mile after weary mile Though other faces droop and gloom With impress of impending doom, The candidate will smile.

And so, we welcome them tonight With admiration for the fight That they so gamely make Life owes some favors to the brave And so tonight Hackberry gave The candidate a break.

We don't ask him to buy a box Nor try to make him sell his socks To boost it's price up high. Can strut his stuff, and show his paces, And tell his reasons "why"

So good luck, fellows. Try your wings. God gave that right to everything From mocking birds to men and kings, Let naught your courage daunt

Less Monthly Discomfort

Many women, who formerly suffered from a weak, run-down condition as a result of poor assimilation of food, say they benefited by taking CARD-DUL, a special medicine for women. They found it helped to increase the appetite and improve digestion, thereby bringing them more strength from their food.

Naturally there is less discomfort at monthly periods when the system has been strengthened and the various functions restored and regulated.

Cardul, praised by thousands of women, is well worth trying. Of course, if not benefited, consult a physician.

If from the ranks you hope to rise Don't wait and wish to win a prize Go after what you want.

As a "lucky break" in the writer's life four verses of the above poem was sold to the New York Times many years ago. A few years later it was reprinted in the Slatonite. The fourth and fifth verses were added a few days ago. It was given as a reading by Blanton Martin, the writer's nephew, at the opening of the Hackberry Club House Friday night, April 29, at which a number of the candidates spoke.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Jones of Eunice, New Mexico, left for home Thursday morning after a visit of a couple of days with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fulkerson. Mr. Jones is a brother of Mrs. Fulkerson. They were accompanied home by Mrs. Oscar Jones, mother of Mr. Jones and Mrs. Fulkerson.

Mrs. W. H. Fulkerson has just recovered from a severe and prolonged attack of the influenza.

REPORTS FROM THE COUNTY CLUBS

Miss Lilith Boyd, H. D. Agent
WILSON H. D. CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. LLOYD SWON

"In making hooked rugs one should use only materials of the same fiber" stated Miss Boyd in the Wilson Home Demonstration meeting at the home of Mrs. Edwin May on May 4.

Several materials may be used but wool is preferred, as it is more durable. The material should be cut on the length of the cloth and all worn places should be left out. The color is a very important factor and good dyes should be selected to obtain the best hues. Heavy closely woven burlap makes the best foundation for the rug and it is essential for best use and beauty to have a firm foundation.

Mrs. Pat Swann was a visitor. Members present were Mesdames M. C. Brandon, B. W. Baker, J. F. Covey, Edwin May, H. C. Huffaker, Howard Cook, S. G. Anthony, S. L. Alderson, D. A. Hill, Lloyd Swan.

Teachers Given Salary Increase

The board of trustees of the Tahoka district in a meeting Tuesday night, voted to adopt the so-called "state salary schedule" of paying teachers, which becomes compulsory by state department regulation in 1939. Under this schedule, about fifteen of the 22 teachers will receive increases in pay of from five to ten per cent.

The board is also attempting to

Dales Enjoying Great Convention

Rev. George A. Dale has sent us a brief card from Richmond, where he and Mrs. Dale and Mrs. Jim Burleson of Tahoka and Rev. Paul McCasland of Wilson are attending the Southern Baptist Convention in session there this week.

We quote from his card as follows: "We got here O. K. for service yesterday (Sunday) morning. We had a good trip coming; no trouble. All well, and we are enjoying the fine fellowship. One of the largest attendance we have ever had. Lots of Texas people here. Plenty of rain here in the East. . . . I am praying for the church program at home. We will leave here Sunday and get home the next Friday."

Our statement last week that Mrs. Caveness was one of the party was erroneous. She had indicated that she would go but at almost the last moment decided she could not make the trip.

Mrs. L. W. (Ruby) Harvick, who was reported to be critically ill a few weeks ago, has apparently shown some improvement but her condition seemingly varies from day to day and the family are still very anxious about her. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Carpenter.

Valley of the Nile Is a 700-Mile-Long Oasis

The valley of the Nile is nothing more or less than a 700-mile-long oasis, with the great wastes of the Libyan desert bounding it on the west and the Arabian desert on the east.

At times, writes a correspondent in the Detroit News, the two great deserts try hard to meet, compressing the Nile valley into a mere thread consisting of little more than the river. For the greater part, however, the valley ranges in width from three or four to fifteen miles.

Except in those places where the deserts encroach or the fantastic multi-colored sandstone hills crowd in, the floor of the Nile valley resembles nothing so much as a great rambling checker board, its squares blocked out by an intricate system of irrigation ditches, which suck their life-giving water from the river.

Once every year the 180 sluices of the great dam at Assouan are opened and the Nile rises more than a man's height, the unleashed waters overflow its banks and, from the Sudan to the approaches of Cairo, spread far and wide over the floor of the valley. For three months these mechanically-controlled flood waters cover the land, seeping deep into the rich earth and irrigating it for the next year's crops.

With the coming of the flood waters the fellahen, or peasants, who have been careless of the sites on which they have erected their mud huts must watch their miserable homes melt away before their eyes. Then, leading their all, which is usually next to nothing, on a camel, they move back to higher and drier land and start building anew.

After the water has subsided it is drawn from the river during the next nine months by water wheels and dumped into the deep transverse ditches from which it flows, in turn, into smaller channels running parallel to the river.

Valentine Day Dates to

Martyr of Third Century

Valentine day is an observance which seems to be connected with the first signs of spring rather than with the careers or character of any of the several Saints Valentine, observes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Happening to occur on the date consecrated to a Roman martyr of the Third century, it has simply appropriated his name for what was probably a pre-Christian custom in England and Scotland.

The tradition is that on this date the birds choose their mates for the year. Various old British writers, including Chaucer, allude to such a belief. Emulating the birds, it was the custom in old Britain, for each young maid and man to receive by lot one of the opposite sex as "valentine" for the year. From this evolved the more recent forms of observing the day.

St. Valentine was a priest of Rome who was imprisoned because he had given assistance to persecuted Christians. He became a convert himself while in prison, and although he is said to have restored the sight of his jailer's blind daughter, he was martyred by being clubbed to death. The date of his martyrdom is given as February 14, 269.

College for Poor White Orphans Girard college at Philadelphia, Pa., is an institution for the vocational education and maintenance of poor white male orphans, as the donor of the trust fund expressed it. The college was founded under the will of Stephen Girard and opened January 1, 1848. By a provision in the will no ecclesiastical, missionary, or minister of any sect whatever is permitted to hold office in this institution or to enter its premises at any time or for any reason. That provision should, however, not be interpreted as a reflection upon any sect or person; on the contrary, the founder's desire was, as he himself stated, simply that the minds of the boys reared by the institution should be kept free from the confusion of denominational controversies so that on their entrance into active life they may adopt such religious tenets as their natural reason may enable them to prefer. The purest principles of morality were to be instilled into the minds of the scholars.

Hudson's Bay Company Ruled For nearly 200 years the Hudson's Bay company ruled huge portions of Canada. Wherever it established a trading post it had the right to govern, says the Washington Post. Company men trapped and hunted for some furs, bartered with savage Indians for others. They lived in isolated fort-like posts, often saw other white men only twice a year. They had to be fighters. Disgruntled Indians, competing traders frequently attacked their posts.

Famous Cathedral in Havana The cathedral of Havana is a famous church. It is built of native limestone; it is also the most noteworthy architectural. It was erected between 1656 and 1724 and was long believed to shelter the bones of Columbus. Historians dispute about his tomb, some holding that it is in Santo Domingo, whence his bones were supposed to have been taken some decades after his death, some holding that it is in Havana and some in Spain.

Still Another Aged Coin Pops Up

These stories about old coins may be getting old too, but just to show that he is doing what practically everybody else seems to be doing W. J. Benson brought one of his samples in Saturday. It was a 25-cent piece made in 1834 and is therefore 104 years old or thereabouts.

Mr. Benson says he found this coin more than 30 years ago and has never been broke since. He has always had at least a quarter. He has at home old coins of other denominations too but none of them quite as old as this quarter. By the way, it looks almost as fresh and bright as if it had been coined only a few years ago. It must have had an easy time in life, like most other centenarians, centurians, and so forth.

IN LOVING REMEMBRANCE

John H. Walters, who was a victim of the storm disaster of April 26, was greatly loved and appreciated by a host of friends who feel keenly his loss. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Walters and is survived by them, two sisters and two brothers.

John was an active member of the sophomore class of the Draw-Redwine High School, where he not only ranked high in his studies, but also took part in other phases of school work. This spring he was a member of the winning spelling team. Having worked hard for the award, he was proud of the achievement. His death has left a vacant place in the lives of his teachers and schoolmates that can never be filled. Particularly the sophomore class finds school incomplete without John's thoughtfulness, cheerfulness, and helpfulness. He was the kind of friend and student who could be depended upon to smile at whatever was assigned and to do it.

Those who knew the home life intimately speak of his deep consideration for the wishes of his parents and of his devotion to his sisters and brothers. His kindness was manifest in perhaps the last words uttered to his little sister, who, as was often the case, accompanied him. Many speak of his devotion and obedience to his parents, for he truly honored his father and mother.

John was a devout church member. Friends who attended Redwine Baptist Church, of which he was a member, miss his voice in the choir, but they rejoice that influenced by his reverence for God and his loyalty to the church, their lives have been made better. His religion was the kind that others recognized as sincere. "I am not worried about John", an intimate friend said "for I know he is in heaven".

The many friends deeply sympathize with the family in the loss of one so lovable. Every one who knew him feel deeply saddened at his going. His influence, although he was only fifteen, will live long after him making better the lives of those who knew him. God, who "doeth all things well", had a purpose in taking him. Those loved ones, schoolmates, and friends can best honor him by trying to show in their lives the admirable traits so beautifully shown in his.

Praise Candidate For State Office

The News has received a communication from the friends of S. R. (Bob) LeMay setting forth his qualifications for the office of State Superintendent of Public Instruction. He will open his campaign for the office at Crockett, Houston county, his boyhood home, on June 3.

Mr. LeMay has been head of the Athens Public School system for the past sixteen years, one of the outstanding small city schools in the state. He is regarded as one of the leading public school administrators of Texas. After being graduated from the Crockett High School and later from the Sam Houston State Teachers College at Huntsville, he attended the University of Texas from which institution he holds both a B. A. and an LL. B. degree. He also holds a B. S. degree from the Texas A. & M. College. He took his M. A. degree from the George Peabody College of Nashville, Tennessee.

Another candidate for State Superintendent is W. E. James of Austin. He also has been one of the leading educators of Texas. A native of Van Zandt county, he was connected for some time with the State Department of Education under the late S. M. N. Marrs. He served as county superintendent of Williamson county and until about a year ago he was first assistant state superintendent under L. A. Woods. A few years ago he made an unsuccessful race for State Superintendent.

L. A. Woods of Waco is now serving his third term as State Superintendent, and he is a candidate for a fourth term. There has been considerable criticism of his administration of the office and many school people and others feel that a change would be advisable.

ONLY YOUR MILEAGE MERCHANT OIL-PLATES YOUR ENGINE

Do you need any reminder of what oil you bought? Not if it delivers smooth long mileage that you can't forget! Then here's the real big value of the little drain tag you get from Your Mileage Merchant: he marks it with your mileage today as you change to his patented Conoco Germ Processed oil, and then you can keep tabs on how far you go before you ever need another quart in your OIL-PLATED engine.

OIL-PLATING is exclusive with Conoco Germ Processed oil. The patent-guarded Germ Process forces this oil to "magnetize" on to the working parts in the form of implanted slippery OIL-PLATING. The parts that used to wear worst and make your oil "rub out" fastest, now possess this all-over, deep-seated OIL-PLATING. It can neither drain down while your engine is stopped, nor let loose in all the whirl of 4,000 revolutions a minute. Therefore OIL-PLATING, done only by Your Mileage Merchant, distinctly tells you why your Germ Processed oil and your car money won't do a "disappearing act."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Lesson for May 15 TESTING DISCIPLINE BY SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 10:17-31. GOLDEN TEXT—Come . . . and follow me.—Mark 10:21. PRIMARY TOPIC—A Young Man Jesus Loved.

"The almighty dollar"—how triumphantly it rules in the affairs of nations and of the men who make up nations. The world's measure of success is how much one can "make," and "no questions asked" as to how one made it, if he but avoid the legal pitfalls that may land him in jail.

I. Self Before God (vv. 17-22). The rich young ruler had many advantages and virtues. He was young, life was before him, vivid was his imagination, strong was his body.

What stands between you and a full surrender to Christ? Face it honestly. Be thankful if your pastor or a friend frankly points it out. Shun those who would "pat you on the back" and assure you that all is well.

Note that the statement of Jesus in verse 18 is not a denial of His deity, but a definite claim that He is God. He says in effect, "If you call me good you must recognize that I am God."

II. God Before Self (vv. 21-27). The disciples, who evidently shared the common opinion that money could do almost anything, were surprised to hear that riches were really a hindrance to spirituality, because (v. 24) of the tendency of men to trust in their wealth and forget their need of God.

Two things need emphasis in this connection. First, let those of us who have little of this world's goods be thankful that we have, at least, been delivered from this temptation. It may well be an expression of God's love and grace toward us.

III. The Last Before the First (vv. 28-31).

The ways of God are confusing and humbling to the flesh. The way up in spiritual things is to go down (Mark 9:35). Those who are first in the eyes of men are often last in God's sight.

Man's Humble Origin And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and the man became a living soul.—Gen. 2:7.

The Live Minister The minister who gets out of touch with men will soon forget to speak their language.

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Tropic Hurricane" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

We have had a lot of stories, boys and girls, about people who have had close shaves and gotten out of them by some fast action, or some quick thinking, or by some herculean feat of strength.

That is the sort of yarn we have today, fellow adventurers—the story of Tom Brady of New York City—the story of how he sat, helpless, in a strange land, among strange people, while chaos gripped the world and threatened to tumble it in ruins upon his head.

The story, in short, of a tropical hurricane.

Tom Had Never Seen a Hurricane.

For years, in his role as traveling man, Tom Brady had been journeying through the tropical islands of the Caribbean sea, selling goods and looking over the country. He had heard plenty about the hurricanes they have down there.

Tom was in the city of Roseau, on the little British island of Dominica on September 11, 1928. He had been there for about ten days, and was just about ready to move on. He had his sample-trunks all packed and in the Custom house, and was waiting for a steamer due that day which was to take him to St. Lucia, another small island in the Windward group.

Storm warnings! Barometer falling! No steamer that day—nor for a few days to come. Tom was going to see that hurricane now. He couldn't get out of it.

The hotel Tom was stopping at was a frame structure. They said it was safe—said it had stood up under other storms—but Tom had his doubts. Nevertheless, it was the safest place to be found in Roseau, so it was Hobson's choice for Tom.

Along about sundown, rain and wind began coming in short, fitful gusts. At 8 o'clock, the cannon at the fort—the only means the police had of advising the natives that the storm was headed their way—boomed out its ominous warning! Get ready. Board up your windows. Take shelter. Then the wind began rising slowly—steadily—relentlessly.

Havoc Wreaked by the Fierce Storm.

All through the night lightning flashes ripped the black skies while the wind rose and the rain increased. The colored natives were screaming now, and chanting prayers in the streets. Everywhere people were scrambling about, boarding up their houses as best they could.

At 5 a. m. the cannon on the fort boomed again, this time with a message of far more evil portent than the first. "It's upon us!" And on its heels, the fury of the storm, lashing and tearing—carving its path of havoc and destruction from the seawall to the farthest limits of the town.

The seawall was the first to go. Its solid concrete bulk, running the length of the town, crumbled like ashes under the force of the sea that battered against it. The Custom house jett—the Belle jett—the Fish market by the seawall were wrecked by the fury of the wind and carried away on the receding, lashing tide that was momentarily getting higher and higher.

In his hotel, a block and a half from the seawall, Tom Brady watched the waterfront "coming up the street." The gallery on the side of the hotel he was in was ripped off and carried away. Shutters were torn from their fastenings. The rain was coming in. The wind blew all the furniture against the opposite wall.

He Found Out What Fear Was.

Downstairs, they were lifting a huge wooden trap door and putting the women and the servants in the cellar. They were expecting the roof to go next. And in those moments, Tom Brady found out what it was to be afraid.

They say a drowning man sees his whole life pass before him before he dies. Tom saw just that. There, all alone, a thousand miles away from home, on a strange island, among strange people, he thought out his own obituary. He prayed, and he isn't ashamed of it. He promised the Lord he'd be a better man if he was spared this time—and he meant it—every doggone word of it—at the time.

Still the tempest raged. A church steeple came crashing down. Death, ruin, destruction were all about him. Tom himself was literally thrown about the room by the sickening impact of the blow. From time to time the wind would shift—strike the hotel from another angle. Then the men in that room would board up the windows again and be safe—for a time. In all, Tom was boarded up for 23 hours—the worst 23 hours he ever spent in his life.

It was the next morning—at 4 a. m., when the storm finally passed over. The town was a shambles—the streets full of debris—the houses in ruins. Tom took some pictures and thanked God he was alive. He says: "I went to church religiously for about four or five Sundays after that, and then, like a good many more of us, not being scared any more, I started to miss again."

Like a good many more of us is right! Copyright—WNU Service.
