Summer Knight Dies Following Long Illness

Prominent Local Young Man Was Buried Here Last Saturday Afternoon

Summer V. Knight, 35, well-known and popular Tahoka man, died last Friday morning at 2 a. m. in a Lubbock hospital after an illness of about a year and a half.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Methodist Church, conducted by Elders Melvin Wise and J. L. Nisbett of the Church of Christ and Rev. George A. Dale of the Baptist Church. The church was filled with several hundred friends and relatives. Interment followed in Tahoka cemetery.

Summer was born in Eastland county June 28, 1903, and came to Tahoka with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Knight, in November, 1921. He was married to Miss Inez Edwards June 28, 1928. For a number of years prior to his recent illness, he was associated with Connolly Chevrolet Co.

Nearly a year and a half ago he underwent operations for mastoid trouble and affected tonsils in a Lubbock hospital. His recovery was not satisfactory, and on undergoing further examinations at the hospital it was found that he was also afflicted with Bright's disease. He was given treatment for the disease there, and Mrs. Knight carried him to Dallas for examination by specialists but his condition was such that little hope was held for his complete recovery.

Recently, Mr. and Mrs. Knight had been staying at Christoval, where he seemed to get some relief. He was anxious to be in Tahoka during the election, and they came back home about three weeks ago. Thursday of last week he contracted pneumonia, and he was rushed to the hospital again, but his resistance was about all gone and death came quickly.

Summer Knight had lived here more than fifteen years and was known to nearly everyone in Lynn county. He had many close friends and acquaintances who mourn his death.

The deceased is survived by his wife, who faithfully attended him during his long illness. Other close relatives are Mr. and Mrs. George Knight, father and mother; Winter Knight, and Lee Roy Knight, brothers, all of whom live here.

The News joins his many friends in extending condolence to the wife, father and mother and other grieved relatives.

Music Program At Rotary Club

Three young ladies furnished the principal entertainment at Thursday's Rotary club meeting.

Miss Valerie Wells played a piano solo, Miss Rae Fern Pennington gave a reading, and Miss Mary Bland Wells sang two solos, Miss Valerie accompanying.

Rev. George Dale described the new Baptist Church building now under construction, stating that when completed, this would be the most modern church building in this part of the state.

R. W. Fenton Jr. of the Lynn County Rodeo Association reported that $1,111.50 had been raised so far by that organization.

J. K. Applewhite, formerly a member of the club who was forced to withdraw a few months ago because of his mule barn business in Lubbock, was re-instated to membership.

Tahoka Clinic Remodels Offices

Offices of the Tahoka Clinic, in the Thomas Building, are being remodeled and slightly enlarged this week. The waiting room is being moved, and two examination rooms made of the present waiting room. A new hallway in the suite of rooms will make offices, patients rooms, and the x-ray room more accessible.

Water Situation In Tahoka Is Finally Solved, Supt. Hines Believes

The saving on electric power alone will pay for the new Tahoka water system in eight or ten years, Pat Hines, water superintendent states.

And, in addition, Tahoka is practically assured of a plentiful supply, since even during the hottest and driest weather, when citizens was using more water than ordinarily, only two of the three new wells in use are under pump about half time.

As an example of the saving in power bill, in June the City paid $341.54 for electricity to operate the pumps, but during July the new wells required only $213.56 worth of power, a saving of $127.68. Mr. Hines figures such a saving over a long period of time would pay for the new water line in about eight years.

Under the old system, the City pumped seven wells, using 58 horse power twenty-four hours a day. Under the new system 30 h. p. is used an average of twelve hours a day. Three wells are being pumped. When the demand is large, the two best wells are pumped during the day, and the weakest of the three is pumped during the night.

Tahoka's two largest wells are now pumping 350 gallons of water per minute into the storage tank. The capacity is larger than this but a part of the old pipe line is only six inches in diameter, which cuts down the load.

For many years City authorities have been harassed with the water problem here, but they now believe they have a stratum which will furnish the town with all the water it needs. Water is being pumped from a stratum of coarse gravel, whereas previous stratas encountered have been of quicksand.

Fair Weather Good For Crops

For the past week Lynn county has been sweltering under some of the hottest weather of the summer, but the return of warm, clear weather looks good to the farmers.

Lice are working on the cotton. Some farmers report they are fearful of serious damage by the infestation. Most of them think, however, the damage will be light. Late, rank cotton is the worst infested by worms.

Crops generally are beautiful. Cotton and feed are growing marvelously fast, and many farmers have been heard to remark the prospects are as good or better than last year at this time.

Cotton acreage is at least a fourth less than last year.

A large feed crop is already certain.

Supt. W. T. Hanes Now On Job

W. T. Hanes, new superintendent of the Tahoka Public Schools, and family moved to Tahoka last week and are occupying the L. B. Jones home on the Brownfield highway. Mr. and Mrs. Hanes have one son. Since the close of school, Mr. Hanes has been doing some special work at Texas Tech. This week he is attending the High School Coaches school at Tech.

The new superintendent here is a graduate of East Texas State Teachers College, attended University of Texas, and has completed requirements for his M. A. degree at Texas Tech. He has served successively as superintendent of Wolfarth schools, principal at Littlefield, and superintendent at Hermleigh.

He comes highly recommended by school authorities and patrons as a progressive, energetic and capable school man.

Draw Schools Open Monday

Draw-Redwine schools will open Monday of next week, the first to open in Lynn county for the 1938-'39 session. The school is opening early because of the possibility of having to close for a time during the fall months for cotton picking.

The Draw-Redwine school, of which R. K. Green is superintendent, is one of the leading rural high schools in the county, is fully affiliated, has eight teachers, and operates two buses. Four grades are taught at Redwine, and the remainder are taught at Draw.

O'Donnell Will Have Trades Day

O'Donnell business men are planning a weekly trades day each Saturday, beginning a week from this Saturday, according to W. G. Forgy, editor of the O'Donnell Press.

Free entertainment and special bargains will be offered people of the territory, he says.

Baptist Church Taking Form

Outside work on the new Baptist Church building is almost complete, and inside work is rapidly taking form.

The roof has been completed and windows put in this week, and partitions and flooring are being built on the interior.

Air-conditioning equipment is being put in place this week, also, and this will be the first air-conditioned church building on the Plains and among the first in Texas. Air-conditioning is not to be confused with air-cooling, however. The plant will condition the air the year around, and takes care of heating, cooling, purifying and humidifying the air.

The church has an auditorium 53x56 feet in size and will seat 600 be six Sunday School rooms, and the pastor's office and study rooms. Behind and above the pulpit and choir loft will be a room for the air-conditioning equipment.

The basement floor will be remodeled into Sunday School assembly room, 14 class rooms, and a room each for cradle roll, beginners, and primary departments. Two of the latter may be converted into a dining room on a few minutes notice. The kitchen will remain where it now is. Rest rooms for men and women are being re-arranged in the basement.

The building is modern in every respect, beautiful in design, and would be a credit to a town much larger than Tahoka.

Church of Christ Meeting Closes

The Church of Christ revival meeting closed Wednesday night after a series of services covering a period of ten days.

About ten or twelve members were taken into the church by baptism.

Elder Melvin Wise of Big Spring did the preaching, and M. L. H. Baze of Brownfield led the singing. Elder J. L. Nisbett is local pastor.

Elder Wise will hold a revival at O'Donnell beginning Friday night.

Work Proceeding On Highway 84

With the return of dry weather, workmen are again busy on Highway No. 84 east of town.

This road, when completed, will represent the very latest type of roadbed engineering, according to County Judge P. W. Goad and Commissioner George Small.

GARLAN McWHORTER STILL IN RACE

Garlan McWhorter, who went into the run-off primary for county clerk, is still in the race, he asks us to state.

He says the rumor is abroad that he had withdrawn. "I have not withdrawn, don't intend to, and have not even considered doing so," he said.

A new drinking fountain has been installed on the first floor of the court house.

In Methodist Revival

Dr. L. N. LIPSCOMB, Pastor of the First Methodist church, Lubbock, who will do preaching during the second week.

TONY Q. DYESS Anton pastor, who will direct songs services and young people's work during Methodist meeting.

Methodist Revival Starts Sunday

The annual revival meeting of the Tahoka Methodist Church will open next Sunday morning and continue three weeks, Rev. Ben Hardy, pastor announces.

During the first week, services will be at 8 o'clock at night only, with various pastors of South Plains churches doing the preaching.

Dr. L. N. Lipscomb, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Lubbock, will preach morning and night during the second week. Dr. Lipscomb is one of the denomination's most successful pastor-evangelists, and always delivers a forceful sermon.

Rev. Tony Q. Dyess will be song leader and soloist. He will also have charge of children's and young people's work.

"We cordially invite your cooperation, whether a Methodist or not," Bro. Hardy says. "We invite all singers to help with the singing. We are working, praying and expecting a real revival."

Brothers Separated 40 Years Meet At Tularosa

W. H. Green left several days ago to join relatives and friends in a family reunion at Tularosa, New Mexico. Friends have received word from him saying he is having a "hog killing" time. At the reunion, he saw one of his brothers the first time in 40 years, however an introduction wasn't necessary.

He also attended the State Rodeo at Alamogordo on July 29 and 30.

Mr. Green will spend several days with his son at El Paso before returning home.

County Board Meets Saturday

The Lynn county school board will meet at the court house Saturday to hear protests on transfers, according to County Superintendent H. P. Caveness.

Al Lehman and two sons, Jo Jo and Irvin, of San Angelo, were here Wednesday on business and shak us hands with friends.

Rodeo Association Raising Finances

May Apply Now For 1937 Subsidy

The county agents office in Tahoka is now ready to start taking applications for the 1937 subsidy payments, according to V. F. Jones, county agent.

The man who operated the farm in 1937 is the person eligible to make the application for payment. Each man who makes application for payment is asked to bring his cotton papers with him at the time the application is signed. These papers are needed to establish proof of total production on the farm in 1937.

Lynn Democrats Endorse O'Daniel

W. Lee O'Daniel, democratic nominee for governor of Texas, was given the unqualified endorsement of the Lynn County Democratic convention in session at the court house Saturday afternoon.

Judge J. W. Elliott was elected chairman and Miss Rosemary Nelms secretary of the convention. E. L. Smelser was named chairman and Mrs. Minnie C. Elliott secretary of the resolutions committee.

Delegates to the State convention in Beaumont September 13 were elected, as follows, and instructed to vote as a unit on all questions: J. W. Elliott, Mrs. J. W. Elliott, G. A. Edwards, C. T. Tankersley, N. S. Parker, T. E. McGehee, J. W. Edwards, Mrs. E. T. Wells, D. M. Estes, John Etter, J. R. Strain, A. F. Pitts, A. R. Hensley, M. R. Thomas, E. W. Holloway, Ed Milliken, J. C. Key, W. A. Yates and Miss Rosemary Nelms.

The delegates were instructed to "vote on all questions in harmony with the principles and ideals of W. Lee O'Daniel." The State and National administrations were also endorsed.

J. K. Applewhite, retiring county chairman and the precinct chairmen were praised for their faithful and efficient work.

New Home School Opens Aug. 29

New Home schools will open Monday, August 29, J. T. Carter, superintendent announces.

All seventh grade students will be brought to the New Home school this year from the Lakeview, Petty, and Joe Stokes districts, which have been grouped with New Home for high school purposes, and a seventh grade teacher will be added to the New Home school to take care of them.

The New Home school was granted affiliation, Mr. Carter says, in first year home economics and agriculture during the past year, and second year affiliation will be sought this year.

There are now seventeen teachers in the combined districts.

Candidates Left Out Last Week

Last week in the rush to get out the paper, our advertising solicitor failed to call on a few of the candidates who wished "thank you" ads. Among them were Sheriff B. L. Parker, County Attorney Rollin McCord and County Commissioner Waldo McLaurin, whose ads appear this week.

It's just the same proposition some of the candidates had. We didn't get to see 'em all.

Sleeping Sickness Among Horses

Several farmers of the county are reporting cases of sleeping sickness among their horses, Dr. G. W. Williams reports.

Though the disease is not thought to be widespread, it is always dangerous.

Will Hold Second Annual Show August 25-26

With dates set for less than three weeks away, committees have gone to work on definite plans for the second annual Tahoka Round-up and free barbecue.

The celebration will be August 25 and 26, Thursday and Friday.

Two weeks ago a stock company was formed, and a committee composed of R. W. Fenton Jr., Wynne Collier, and Deen Nowlin and J. K. Applewhite had received $1,111.50 in stock and donations up until Thursday noon. At least $1500, or more if possible, is needed to incorporate the organization, which will be known officially as the Lynn County Rodeo Association.

Those who join the organization are being given window cards which show their membership. To date, only two or three business men contacted have failed to join, the committee says.

This year's rodeo and other amusements will be under supervision of the association, with contracts let to individuals for concessions.

B. J. Leedy is general chairman, and the board of directors is composed of A. P. Edwards, chairman, H. B. McCord, Winter Knight, J. O. Tinsley, and H. B. Howell.

Last year's celebration was a big success from a crowd standpoint, though nothing was realized from a financial standpoint. About 8,000 were fed at the barbecue. Rodeo contestants, many of them champions, were here from a dozen states.

The rodeo association hopes to ultimately secure permanent grounds for the show, and erect a permanent arena, corrals and bleachers.

If the committee has missed anyone wishing to subscribe to stock in the Association or who wishes to make a donation, he is requested to see them at once. A list of the contributors will be printed next week in The News.

Young Man Is Found Dead

Milam Montgomery, 34, of the Draw community was found dead early Friday morning in the sudan field of his brother, J. R. Montgomery, with whom he was living, apparently the victim of his own hand.

The young man had been in ill health for some time and was badly in need of an appendicitis operation, and it is thought he had grown dependent over his physical condition. Some time early Thursday morning he disappeared. Relatives became uneasy and instituted a search, resulting in their finding the body about twenty-four hours later in a field 300 or 400 yards from the house. His throat was cut, evidently with a razor. Justice of the Peace W. L. Henderson of O'Donnell rendered a verdict of suicide.

Funeral services were held at the Baptist Church here Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. R. Lunsford of O'Donnell, assisted by Rev. Dale of Tahoka, conducting the services. Woodrow Montgomery, brother of the deceased, played a violin solo. Burial was near Weatherford Sunday afternoon, at Erv, the old family home and where his mother was buried.

Milam Montgomery is survived by his father, J. A. Montgomery of Weatherford, who was here visiting at the time of the son's death; three brothers, Woodrow of Lubbock, J. R. of Draw, and T. W. of Wilson; three sisters, Mrs. Opal Glass of Spade, Mrs. Linnie Hawkins of the South Ward Community, and Mrs. Shelley Bradley of Denton.

Bereaved relatives have the heartfelt sympathy of many friends in Lynn county.

Garland Curtis and Kelly Hill of Tahoka and Gilbert Northan of O'Donnell left Sunday on a fishing trip down in the Devi's river near Del Rio. They expect to return home Friday.

Senate Campaign Committee UnCOVERS Political Scandal in Berry-Stewart Primary Fight

David E. Lilienthal, TVA director, at left, trying to explain to the congressional investigating committee the methods by which TVA "yardstick" rates for power were established. Next to him is J. A. Kurz, chief power planning engineer; and at extreme right is Dr. A. E. Morgan, the deposed head of the authority.

Political Scandal

SENATOR SHEPPARD'S campaign expenditures committee, after hearing a report from an investigator, announced that the conduct of the Democratic senatorial primary campaign in Tennessee was scandalous and warned that the successful candidate was likely to face an election contest in the senate.

Senator Berry

The shaking down of both federal and state employees, the raising of votes on a huge scale, the raising of funds by intimidation—all were being indulged in by the two rival candidates, according to the committee. Those who are seeking the nomination are Sen. George L. Berry, Tom Stewart, J. Ridley Mitchell, Dr. John R. Neal and C. L. Powell. Stewart is supported by E. H. Crump, political boss of Memphis. Berry is backed by the state machine and Gov. Gordon Browning.

"The committee is of the opinion," its statement said, "that the evidence already before it with respect to assessments of federal employees by one group participating in the Democratic primary contest for United States senator and of state employees by the other group, points sharply toward an election contest in the United States senate regardless of which group's candidate triumphs."

"Regardless of action that may be taken in the courts to punish those practicing illegal election methods and those exercising political pressure, there are indications that the senate may be called upon to consider the probability of excessive money being used in behalf of the victorious candidates." Besides its pronouncement on Tennessee, the committee asked Postmaster General Farley to investigate the distribution of a "political circular" by the Farm Security Administration in South Dakota. The circular, it was said, was sent out under government frank to "aid the senatorial candidacy of former Gov. Tom Berry of South Dakota."

The committee also dispatched investigators to Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, North Dakota and California. It heard reports from its investigators already at work in Pennsylvania and Kentucky and sent them back for additional information. It dismissed from consideration a charge that a recent statement by WPA Administrator Hopkins that 90 per cent of WPA workers would vote for the Roosevelt administration was coercive. The committee said the statement was in answer to a press question and was "in no way a dictation to workers."

Bar Hits Labor Act
COMMITTEE reports received by the house of delegates of the American Bar association in session in Cleveland denounced the national labor relations act as "intensifying class antagonisms"; and condemned "despotic tendencies" of governmental administrative tribunals.

The committee on labor, employment and social security in its report said the labor act is "the deliberate embodiment of a new social policy" in which the government "has departed from the traditional role of mediator and arbiter."

The assault on governmental administrative agencies, such as the securities and exchange commission, interstate commerce commission, N. L. R. B., and others, was contained in a report of the committee on administrative law, headed by former Dean Roscoe Pound of Harvard university law school. This attack, listing 10 "absolutism tendencies" of the bureaus, was assailed bitterly by Jerome N. Frank, SEC commissioner, who charged that it was defamatory.

Utilities to Be Heard

PRIVATE utilities are to be given a chance to present to the TVA investigation committee their case against the "yardstick" for electric power of the authority. The committee said it had invited the Edison Electric institute, representing the power industry in matters of policy and publicity, and the Electric Bond and Share company and Commonwealth and Southern corporation. The latter two are holding companies which have extensive holdings in the Southeast where the TVA is offering cheap power to municipalities and rural co-operatives.

Debt Payment Rumors

FROM a London correspondent comes the report that preliminary negotiations have begun for final settlement by Great Britain and France of their defaulted debts to the United States. It is asserted the discussions, started some weeks ago by Ambassador Kennedy and British Prime Minister Chamberlain, were carried forward in secret talks in Paris among Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Ambassador Bullitt, French Foreign Minister Bonnet and Finance Minister Marchandeau. Both Britain and France, says the correspondent, have expressed willingness to conclude a final settlement on the basis of the principal and not the interest of the original debts, which aggregated $9,286,950,943—$5,185,730,763 contracted by Britain and $4,101,220,180 by France. But in the contemplated settlement Britain and France are asking for a reduction of the principal of the original debts, which, if granted, would serve as the foundation for arranging the payment.

Texas Picks a Yankee

TEXAS Democrats in their primary selected a Yankee to be the next governor of the state. W. Lee O'Daniel, born in Ohio and raised on a Kansas farm, received a clear majority over 11 other candidates for the nomination which is equivalent to election.

W. Lee O'Daniel

O'Daniel is a flour jobber. He campaigned with a hill-billy band and a platform that included the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule, ridicule of professional politicians, promise of a business administration and more liberal pensions for the aged. More important nationally was the fact that Rep. Maury Maverick, leader of a considerable bloc in congress, was defeated for renomination by Paul Kilday, a San Antonio attorney. Maverick is an enthusiastic New Dealer. Kilday says he will not be a rubber stamp. Two other administration backers were defeated for renomination. They were Representatives W. D. MacFarlane and Morgan Sanders.

Disaster in Bogota

THIRTY-SEVEN persons were killed and 150 injured when a Colombian army plane crashed into a grandstand at Bogota and burst into flames. The stand was packed with spectators gathered to witness an aviation review and in the throng were the president and president-elect of Colombia and many foreign diplomats. These narrowly escaped death. The plane was heading an acrobatic parade, and after its wings struck the sides of the grandstand it nose-dived into the shrieking mass of men, women and children.

Lesson for August 7

RUTH: ADVENTUROUS FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Ruth 1:6-18. GOLDEN TEXT—Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God.—Ruth 1:16. PRIMARY TOPIC—A Girl Named Ruth. JUNIOR TOPIC—The Story of Ruth. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Ruth's Wise Choices. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—An Adventurous Faith.

Out of the dark fastnesses of an underground dungeon into the brightness and warmth of God's sunshine—such is the transition we make when we turn from the moral and spiritual failures of Samson to consider the lovely story of Ruth. She lived in the midst of the travails and the sorrows of life, in fact we find her at the beginning of the book which bears her name, a widow who has lost all that the world would hold dear. Yet she, because of her purity of life and devotion to God rises higher and higher, while the one of whom we spoke last week, starting with every advantage, slipped lower and lower because of his sin.

Ruth was the great-grandmother of King David, and thus this Gentle woman became one of the ancestors of Jesus. (See Ruth 4:22 with Luke 3:22.) Many folk are greatly concerned about their ancestry—one could wish that more were concerned about living such lives and developing such characters as will make them good ancestors.

Teachers and classes will do well to read and study the entire book of Ruth—only about three pages long in most Bibles—and give attention to the full story of her life, especially the picture of the kinsman-redeemer, to be later fulfilled in the Lord Jesus Christ. We must confine our comments largely to the printed portion which reveals Ruth first as a loyal and thoughtful daughter-in-law, then as one whose love was not to be denied by sorrow or circumstance, and finally as one so bound to her mother-in-law in unity of spirit that she became one with her and her people.

I. Commendable Loyalty (vv. 6-10).

Tragic misfortune had visited Naomi, who with her husband and two sons had gone from Bethlehem to Moab in a time of famine. Not only had her husband died but also her two sons, who had married Gentile women, leaving three widows in one family to mourn together. Naomi craved the fellowship of her own people in her hour of trial and arose to return to her own land.

Her departure brought out in the two daughters-in-law the expression of kindness and loyalty which should exist in every family, but which is all too often lacking. Her own testimony concerning these girls of Moab is that they had dealt "kindly" with her and with the dead. That word speaks volumes. There is so little genuine kindness in the world. Both Orpah and Ruth went with her on the way—protesting their loyal purpose to go with her all the way. Thus far the two sisters were not differentiated—but the next incident reveals Ruth as the one who had an

II. Undeniable Love (vv. 11-14).

No one could for a moment condemn Orpah for yielding to her mother-in-law's entreaty that she return to her own people. She affectionately kissed Naomi and in tears turns away. "But Ruth clave unto her." Such love cannot be denied. It is the most precious possession that a man can have, apart from his fellowship with God. The love of a devoted father or mother, of a noble helpmate, or of a little laddie or lassie, these are the things that really make life worth while, that stand out as an oasis in the desert of life, as a light in the darkness.

III. Inseparable Unity (vv. 15-18).

Literature knows no more beautiful gem than verses 16 and 17. It was the Great Commoner, Bryan, who said, "We cannot hope to contribute to literature a sentence so exquisite and thrilling as that into which Ruth poured the full measure of a noble heart, but we can imitate her devotion."

The story is told of a fine young Englishman who left his betrothed sweetheart to go to California during the great gold rush. He was going to make a fortune and then send for her. He sent her his first gold nugget. But alas, there were none to follow and soon he became not only poverty stricken, but ill. In noble sacrifice he decided to release her from her promise, and wrote to tell her so. She (and one could almost believe her name was Ruth) took the treasured nugget, had it made into a ring engraved as a gift from her to him, with the additional words "Ruth 1:16, 17." In due time it reached the young man with its tender and inspiring message—"Treat me not to leave thee," and the assurance of her devotion until death. May this dizzy and bemuddled world have many more characters like Ruth.

Cool, Slim-Waisted Frocks

THESE last few hot weeks will be a whole lot easier to bear if you have some fresh new dresses to wear around the house—cool, slim-waisted styles that are finished enough for shopping and porch wear too. We've picked out two that we know you'll like, one for slim figures and one for large. Both are very, very easy to make, for of course nobody wants to undertake laborious sewing these days. And both are easy to wash and iron. A detailed sew chart comes with each pattern.

Day Frock for Slim Figures.

This little dress is right at the top of new fashions, with its gored skirt and shaped square neckline. Notice that the skirt seams are extended above the waistline, to give a little bosom fullness, which makes the dress more becoming. Very short kimono sleeves, just covering the shoulders, give a much prettier line than sleeveless frocks do, and they're just as cool. The skirt has a charming flare. Make this in linen, dotted Swiss, dimity or organdie in a pretty flower print, and you'll love it.

Day Frock for Large Figures.

You'll find this straight, well-cut dress one of the most becoming, most slenderizing, you ever put on. It has a deep v-neck and short pleated sleeves for coolness and comfort. It's very easy and unhampering in line, so that you can work in it comfortably. Darts on the shoulders and at the waistline give it an unusually trim, slimming fit. A touch of prettiness is added by ricrac braid and the pointed closing. This is a diagram design that you can make in a few hours, and you'll wear several dresses made just like this—in dimity, calico, percale and seersucker.

1533 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Size 14 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35-inch material; 9 yards of ribbon or braid to trim. 1558 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35-inch ma-

HOW to SEW By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

HAVE your door space going to waste? There is always the inside of a closet door—even in the tiniest apartment. A pocket like the one shown here gives a place for shoes, whisk broom, hat brush, shoe brush and even a dust cloth to have within easy reach when tidying up the bedroom. A large pocket at the bottom takes care of small pieces of laundry. This door pocket may be made from 2 1/4 yards of 35-inch-wide cotton material. All the dimensions as well as suggestions for making are given here in the diagram.

There are other doors in every house where pockets of various types and sizes may be used to good advantage. The broom closet door offers a place for cleaning brushes and bottles of furniture polish. Two large pockets on the pantry door—one for clean dish towels and one for soiled ones, have been in use in my kitchen for years. A large pocket of heavy ticking on the inside of the door leading to the basement makes a place for old newspapers that are so useful for many purposes. Pockets on the inside of a door leading to the attic often make a place to keep small cleaning equipment. And here is another thought—even a small wall space in your closet may be used for

All Is Fair Even If It Is a Dog's Life

He was a pork butcher, and he and his sausages had done very well indeed in the town—until a rival came along and, by undercutting and pushful publicity, started to take all the trade.

Butcher No. 1 was sitting in his shop musing on what the inside of a poorhouse would look like, when a bright idea suddenly struck him. Changing his clothes as quickly as he could, he hurried to his competitor's shop and, elbowing his way through the crowd of customers, planted a dead dog on the counter. "Ere y'are, Jack," he exclaimed in a loud voice. "That makes the dozen."

AROUND the HOUSE Items of Interest to the Housewife

More Meringue.—A teaspoon of cold water added to the white of an egg before beating will give a double quantity of meringue.

Keep Peas From Burning.—If a slice of bread is put in the kettle when making pea soup the peas will not sink to the bottom and burn.

Don't Wrap Ice.—It is poor economy to save ice by wrapping it in heavy paper or cloth; such a covering insulates the ice from the rest of the refrigerator.

In the Bathroom.—Don't keep an array of bottles and jars out on view on window sills and shelves. An inexpensive medicine cabinet will take care of these things and prove just as convenient as when exposed to view.

Covering for White Cake.—Mashed ripe bananas, sweetened to taste, added to whipped cream, makes a good coating for white cake. This can be served as a dessert and is tasty when accompanied by coffee.

Lou Howard lay on a bunk staring at the ceiling. Buck Conrad, his guard, had turned in for the night. He was sullen and despondent. Why was his father not doing something to get him out of this trouble? He knew Sherm had sent a messenger to Chiswick threatening reprisals if any harm happened to his son. But why didn't he do something instead of just talk?

The prisoner could not get to sleep. He was worried. The best he could hope for was a term in the penitentiary, unless his father could work out some slick scheme for getting him off. The only escape from this was to turn state's evidence. If he did this, his name would be a hissing by-word. He would have to get out of the country.

A faint tapping on the window reached him. He sat up, as well as he could for his bonds, his stomach muscles tightening. A pricking of the skin ran over him.

A voice murmured, "That you, Lou?"

"Yes. Who is it?" he whispered.

The saw ripped through a resinous knot, died down for a moment, and attacked another.

"Morg Norris. Listen. Where does this Gray sleep?"

"He's gone to town. Get me out of here, Morg—please."

A second voice asked hoarsely, "Only one fellow in the dog-house with you?"

"Yes. Buck Conrad. All right. I'll tell him."

Conrad awakened at the sound of young Howard's urgent voice.

"What's eatin' you?" he asked sleepily.

"Someone has been calling you. Sounds like Chiswick."

Buck sat up and listened. Someone outside shouted his name. He went to the door, not waiting to light a lamp, and threw it open.

"Who wants me?" he asked.

They were his last words. Two guhs roared. The cowpuncher caught at the jamb, and slid down, his knees buckling under him. Morg Norris ran forward and flung another bullet into the prone body.

The face of the outlaw was distorted with rage. He had nothing personal against Buck, but the fury of the kill was on him. He spat out a venomous epithet.

"Get out your knife and cut me free," implored Howard.

The second man came into the room. With a jackknife he severed the rope that bound the prisoner. Lou Howard was surprised to note that the sinister face bent over him was unfamiliar.

"Hurry!" urged the young man. "They'll hear the shots and be on us in a minute. We got to get out sudden."

"Let 'em come," boasted Norris, with an imprecation. "We're ready to swap lead with them."

"Anyone else with you?" Lou asked, rising from the bunk.

"No more. We came to get Gray. Lucky for him he's not here. Don't need an army, do we?" the killer wanted to know. He added, cruel laughter in his voice: "Wish it had been the spy Gray we had croaked instead of this dumbskull here."

The three men passed swiftly out of the cabin. Already they could hear voices and the sound of men running. It was time to be gone. Someone came out on the porch of the big house and wanted to know who was there.

Norris was in the saddle. He galloped up to the porch and fired at the man standing there. Out of the foreman's cottage came Dan Brand, sketchedly dressed. He blazed away at the young outlaw with a rifle. The bandit wheeled his horse and cantered back to his companions.

"Hit the grit, boys," he ordered. "Gonna be hot here if we stick around."

The stranger gave Lou a foot for a rest and Howard swung to his saddle behind him. As the horses pounded down the road, the roar of guns followed them. Howard looked back anxiously, his heart thumping with fear. Framed in a window, he saw the face of Ruth Chiswick.

The fugitives headed for Tall Holt. They kept to the road. Pursuit would probably be useless, since the outlaws could turn into the brush whenever they heard the sound of riders back of them.

The lights were still blazing in the Golden Nugget when they drew up at the hitchrack. Norris walked into the gambling-house, the other two at his heels.

Mile High and some others were at the bar drinking. A man who started to lift his glass put it down instantly.

"Morg Norris!" he exclaimed.

The card game was suspended. The wheel ceased to turn. All eyes turned upon the three who had just entered the place.

"Don't get on the prod, boys," warned Norris. "I'm here peacefully. Listen to what I've got to spill before you start foggin.' I been out to the L C ranch for a I'll call on Lee Chiswick. I bumped off one of his warriors and brought back with me Lou Howard. I got to apologize for not getting that spy Gray. He wasn't there."

"Didn't I have something to do with all this?" sneered Clint Duke.

"Sure. You went along with me. But I thought of it. I ran the show."

The killer swaggered to the bar. Mile High said, not lifting his eyes from Norris: "You got quite some explaining to do, fellow. Kansas?"

"He was aimin' to give me up to Chiswick's warriors. I had to get him before he got me. Same with Curly. He was firing at me when I wounded him. I could of killed him, but I didn't."

"And I reckon you ran away with the young lady for a joke."

"No, sir. I made a mistake there, but I was taking her back home when Gray's posse bumped into me. She'll tell you I didn't hurt her any. Send for Sherm. We'll have a powwow and fix things up."

"You run 'hog-wild, then come back and say, 'Forget it, boys.' I got a better memory than that," Mile High flung back.

Morg slid an ugly look at him. But he spoke with unusual restraint. This was not the time to indulge a bad temper.

"I went out to the L C with Duke here and rescued Lou, didn't I,

"Where's he at?" asked Norris.

"Roosting right here," corrected Mile High. "Five or six hours ago. We bumped into him, Morg, in Curly's room."

"Bumped into him and didn't knock him off," jeered Norris. "You're a fine bunch of warriors."

"Lou was still at the L. C.," Mile High retorted angrily. "We dassent touch the fellow, for fear Chiswick would hang Lou's hide up to dry. Gray had the gall to tell us so."

"So you said 'Adios, amigo,' and walked out on him," the other young man snarled. "If it had been me, I would sure have sent him to hell in smoke."

"Keep feeling that way, Morg," said Howard evenly. "Lou isn't at the L C any more. Far as I'm concerned it's an open season on Mr. Jeff Gray. We'll all be safer when the dirt is patted down on him in Boot Hill. I'm an old man myself, and peaceable, but if you young bucks are snorting for battle, I can give a guess where you'll find him."

Four eyes fastened to those of Howard.

"In Tall Holt?" snapped Norris.

"Roosting right here," corrected Mile High. "Five or six hours ago. We bumped into him, Morg, in Curly's room."

The older man spread plump white hands. His expressionless eyes were fixed on the other.

"Come clean, Lou," he ordered. "What does this Gray know? What did you tell him?"

Tiny beads of perspiration began to stand out on the forehead of the younger man. "You didn't do a thing for me," he protested, with the violence of weakness. "Left me there to be hanged. If they hadn't got Ruth home safe, that's what would have happened to me, too. You look after your own hide mighty well, but you don't want me to do the same."

"I was doing all I could for you, but never mind that. I've got to know where we stand. What did you tell Gray and Chiswick?"

"What I told under fear of death doesn't count," Lou evaded. "Maybe I said more'n I should. So would you have. So would anyone."

"I'm listening."

Lou told what he had confessed, bit by bit, his father sweating the story out of him.

After the son had finished, the older man sat staring in front of him, piecing together the things that he knew and those that he suspected. What Lou had told Chiswick did not matter so much. It had been general, and it had dealt only with the attack on the Mexicans. But what he had admitted to the United States marshal would hang or put behind bars half a dozen of the Tall Holt outlaws. The questions Gray had put showed that he had plenty of information and was only seeking confirmation.

Sherm Howard knew he must act quickly. He had to destroy Gray before the marshal closed the net on him. Tomorrow might be too late.

"Tell Morg and Mile High I want to see them in here," he ordered. "You go home and go to bed. Keep your mouth padlocked. Don't tell anybody else what you've told me. If you do, someone is liable to fill you full of lead."

Howard waved the two outlaws to chairs when they entered the room.

"We've got to get busy, boys," he told them. "Lou is right. This fellow Gray is dangerous. While he was at the L C, Lou picked up one or two bits of information. Gray knows a lot more than we think."

"Hmp! Do you expect me to comb the brush for him?" asked Norris.

The big man slumped in the chair and an oblique look at the killer.

"If you're looking for him you can move to his destruction. Morg. Gray is in town."

"In Tall Holt?" snapped Norris.

"Roosting right here," corrected Mile High. "Five or six hours ago. We bumped into him, Morg, in Curly's room."

"Bumped into him and didn't knock him off," jeered Norris. "You're a fine bunch of warriors."

Four eyes fastened to those of Howard.

"Where's he at?" asked Norris, a sharp edge to his voice.

"Unless I'm 'way off he's spending the night with his friend Hank Ransom."

"How d'you know?"

"I don't know for sure. I'm reasonably certain. Maybe a little bird told me."

Howard was secretive by nature. It was his opinion that one made no mistake to live under his hat, as he expressed it. The habit had grown on him. When mystery was not necessary, he had an irritating way of hinting at one. There was no reason for not telling that a Mexican had brought him word he had seen Ransom catch and saddle a horse in Willard's pasture, none except that he liked to convey an impression of omniscience.

Norris swaggered to the door, followed by Mile High.

CHAPTER XIII

Lee Chiswick looked down at the body lying on the cot.

"Buck would have been alive now if I hadn't given him the job of guarding that scamp," he said sorrowfully.

"He'd been alive if he had obeyed orders," Dan Brand said. "You got to look at this right, Lee. We told him not to open the door unless he was sure who was there. I reckon he was roused from sleep and didn't stop to use his head."

Ruth stood behind her father, her gaze fixed on the still figure of the cowpuncher. "Who did it?" she asked in a low voice.

"That devil Morg Norris," answered Lee, his face set and rigid. "I recognized him when he rode up to the porch to take a crack at me."

The girl shuddered. The thought stabbed her that she was responsible for the death of Buck Conrad. If she hadn't interfered with the aim of Jeff Gray, he would have put an end to the killer.

"No use trying to follow him in the dark," her brother Frank said. "If we got close he'd take to the brush."

"They'll likely head for Tall Holt to get Lou Howard home," Brand guessed.

The eyes of Ruth grew wide with horror. The paralyzing conviction had come to her that Jeff Gray would not know until too late that the prisoner at the L C had escaped. He would carry on under the impression that he had a hostage in the camp of his friend that Sherman Howard dare not move to his destruction.

She cried out her fear to her father.

For a moment he stared at her, letting her warning sink into his mind. "You're right, girl," he answered. "I don't know how he is playin' his hand, but we've got to let him know there's nothing to keep Sherm from him now."

Lee gave curt orders. "Get the boys together, Dan. Send they're armed. Frank, you and Tony run up mounts. We'll take off with what men we have. Round up the men at the line-camp, Bob, and bring them to Tall Holt. This looks like war, and we may need all the help we can get."

Five minutes later, Ruth walked into her father's office and found him examining guns and ammunition.

"What are you going to do with me and Nelly?" she asked.

He looked at her, startled at the problem posed. "By jinks, Ruth, I hadn't thought of that. Can't leave you here alone. Once was too often. And I can't spare any men to guard you. We're short-handed now. Only five of us."

Following the O'Daniel landslide, the News began to wonder if it had made a mistake by not climbing onto the "four wagon". Maybe, O'Daniel will rescue Texas from the lion's den of politicians, we thought. Then we ran across a little item in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, the substance of which was that Frank H. Rawlings, O'Daniel's political advisor. Great horses and little fishes! Frank H.
Rawlings! Do you know who that boy is? Why, he's the Texas State senator who has led the fight in the legislature for legalized gambling.
He's the senator who fought tooth and toenail for horse-racing. And, he's long been the leader in the fights for repeal of liquor laws.
Rawlings wants to put wide-open saloons, gambling dens, and racehorse gambling in Tahoka and every other town in Texas. We certainly hope the Star-Telegram story is incorrect, or that our governor-elect does not follow advice given him by Mr. Rawlings.

Though little publicized, the security of an abundant supply of soft water by the "city dads" this year is one of the biggest things that has happened to Tahoka since the first citizens started hunting water in 1903. Have you noticed how much softer the water we are now getting is than the water we have had in the past? By chemical analysis our water shows to be among the softest of any on the Plains. We are still knocking on wood, but it looks like the supply is such that Tahoka will never again be without sufficient water. Mayor Deen Nowlin, Water Superintendent Pat Hines, and the city council deserve much credit for their work in securing more and better water.

How about a city park? A hint has been dropped by the city council that since the city has acquired a sizeable tract of land two miles north of town and since we now have an abundant water supply that a city park might be eventually built up on the tract if some of the civic organizations down town would help out. Tahoka and Lynn county people need a picnic and outing resort in the worst way. Why not a nice swimming pool. Why not a shady, grassy retreat?

Mrs. S. M. Clayton, and son, S. M. Jr., and sister, Miss Bessie Marie, left Tuesday morning for a short visit with relatives in Floydada. They stayed over Tuesday in Lubbock, at the home of Lewis Robinson.

Messrs. Jim Swan of Jones County and Hillary Swan, of Bell county, left for their homes the first of the week, after spending several days in Tahoka visiting their brother, W. S. Swan.

Letters advertised by Jack Alley, Postmaster, bore the following names: Bryan Williams, Mrs. E. L. Nelly, Mrs. Dick White, J. W. Neil.

B. Hickerson and family of Crawford, came in Wednesday to visit Mr. Hickerson's sister, Mrs. J. B. Lowe, of Tahoka, and his brother, Wash, Hickerson of Three Lakes community.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Smith, of East Tahoka, Monday night, a daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Swan, accompanied by their son and daughters, Master Buford, Miss Christine and little Miss Lucy Belle, left for Lamesa Wednesday afternoon to visit Mr. Swan's sister, Mrs. Andrews, who is sick at the Joiner ranch south of Lamesa.

THREE LAKES:

Mrs. W. C. Cowan, of Tahoka, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. W. P. Humphries of Big Spring, visited with Mrs. Yates.

Mr. Marshal carried a load of melons to Tahoka the first of the week; think Three Lakes could get the prize for fine melons, chickens and gardens this year.

South Texas Has Beautiful Towns And Parks, Fishing Is Good

Two weeks ago the associate editor told of some of the scenic sights he and family and Jack Fenton's family recently viewed between Tahoka and the Gulf Coast, and promised to spin some more yarns. This second installment of the travel tale was crowded out by election returns last week.

Jack had been to Rockport before, and had told us tales of the many fish that abound in the waters there. Too, this was supposed to be a nice, quiet, cool place to rest.

Rockport is a little town, unique in several respects. There's nothing sensational there. However, it ships select oysters and shrimp to an upper-crust clientele in the big cities. It's a commercial fishing town, and becoming something of a tourist resort.

Situated on a peninsula, Rockport is almost surrounded by water, with the Copano bay on one side and Aransas bay on the other, with the Gulf beyond the latter just over a sand island. The peninsula is oak covered—scrub oak and live oak—beautiful, wind twisted trees growing almost to the water's edge in places. The oak thickets are, over much of the country, as dense as a South American jungle, if anyone around here knows how thick that is—so thick that one cannot see into them more than a few feet, and so thick that man or beast cannot penetrate them in places. One man told us he got lost in his 160-acre pasture once and was half a day getting out. He crawled much of the way out on his hands and knees and was sore and bleeding after the ordeal. He had strayed from one of the trails, or clearings through a thicket.

Here began the Texas cattle industry. Here the Texas Longhorn thrived until some enterprising new citizen, trying to find some means of livelihood in this area of sand and thicket, conceived the idea of shipping these Longhorns by boat to New Orleans. Other men chose to drive herds to Kansas, when the railroads reached that state, letting the cattle graze their way to market rather than pay ship passage to New Orleans. This began in the 1860's.

On this peninsula was a natural rock port, where a little shipping port came into being, and the natural name for it was Rockport. Soon a packing house was established, a special act of the Texas legislature incorporating the growing little city in 1872, the Morgan steamship line came in, and the Morgans next built the Southern Pacific railroad into this port city. The village soon became a little city with street cars, several big hotels, one of which was the biggest in Texas at that time. Excursion trains of two and three sections would come into Rockport daily. It was the resort and social center of the southwest.

Then, Corpus Christi was established. Busy and frolicous old Rockport became stagnant, and soon was on the decline. The 1919 flood all but finished up the town. However, with the return of fishing and tourist business, this historic old Texas town is again "on the up."

We secured a dandy little apartment at Triple Oaks Courts, where there are spacious lawns, children's playgrounds, shade trees in which the redbirds nest, and where the seabreeze always blows. J. W. Armontrout spent the spring here, we learned, and J. M. Noble also winters here occasionally.

All the people talk at Rockport is fish, fish, fish. So, of course, we had to try our hand. In fact, we tried it three days with very little luck. A rabbit twister is out of luck in the Gulf unless he knows something about Gulf fishing. Jack had had Gulf fishing experience, and we gleaned a few ideas from him, but after three days of "lazy man" surf and pier fishing we got tired and decided to get some fish or else!

We found an experienced fisherman at Guinn's fishing place, on the "back" bay, who unlike most natives was willing to tell us how, when, and why to fish, what for and with what, etc. That afternoon in forty-five minutes we caught fish until we were too tired to drag them in. Trout, redbfish, and drum. Boy, they're there, if you can find them. Sunday, Harley Henderson and family came up from McAllen, where he is buying cotton, and we had another fairly successful day of fishing.

We found our luck about a mile off-shore in the shallow bay, rowing out in a skiff, and then wading to do the fishing in waist-deep water. And, if you never tried rowing a skiff back to shore against a wind with the tide going out, you don't know what wasted work means.

A few miles north of Rockport, we visited Goose Island State Park, which offers some beautiful scenery featuring, principally, wind-blown oak trees, one of which is said to be the biggest oak tree in Texas and with a trunk nine feet in diameter.

Hearing of our Dad's unfortunate accident after we had spent about a week at Rockport enjoying fishing, bathing, and sleeping, we decided we better rush back to help save the country. Jack and family were not yet tired of fish, however, and remained for another week.

Our return was through a

400 Coaches At Lubbock School

Lubbock, August 4.—With approximately 400 coaches registering for the sixth annual Texas School in session this week, big names in high school as well as college football can be found on the registration list.

Classes began at 8:30 this morning and will continue through the week with Lynn Waldorf, Harry Stuhlreher, Frank Leahy, and "Ox" DaGross as instructors. Classes in theory, field, line play defense, and treatment of injuries, were well attended.

Climaxing this six day school will be the all-star gridiron clash between the Senior all-stars of the North and South Texas teams next Saturday night, August 6 at Texas Tech stadium. This windup feature of the school—the dream game in inter-scholastic football—is expected to draw a record attendance. This is the fourth game of its kind, last year's battle being staged in Waco.

P. F. Swan of Portales, New Mexico, who suffered a stroke of paralysis a few weeks ago and who has been visiting his daughters in this county, is reported to be improving nicely. He is now visiting in the home of Mrs. Van Bates.

The ceremony was performed by candlelight, by the Lutheran pastor, as the couple stood beneath an arch of flowers. Before the ceremony, Misses Geraldine Campbell and Majorie Key sang "I Love You Truly" (Bond) with organ accompaniment played by Mrs. W. A. Eppes.

The Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin" was played with Mrs. Eppes at the organ and Paul Eppes at the violin as the bridal party entered in the following order:

The flower girl, Mary Evelyn Cook, sister of the bride, wearing a long pink organza dress; the bride accompanied by her father and wearing a white marquisette over satin dress with long veil attached to her cap with lilies of the valley, and carrying white gladiolus.

The ring bearer, Luther Herber, son of the minister, wearing a long dark suit with white shirt and carrying the ring on a white satin pillow trimmed with pink and blue ribbon and white lace.

Miss Shambeck wore a bandana corsage similar to that worn by Miss Butts. Mrs. Eppes and Paul Eppes played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" as a recessional.

Attending the ceremony were several hundred guests including the following out-of-town visitors:

ELDER DRENNON'S NOTES FROM DENISON

Here we are with another message from Denison.

It is some hot here and I am afraid I will be turned out of the Never-Sweat Society for I just can't keep from sweating. But, oh you fine juicy peaches and sweet watermelons! How I am enjoying them! But, of course, I have to take the chiggers and mosquitoes. As I am so old and tough and glad to say they do not bother me much.

Our meeting is going good, with fine crowds. Three have obeyed the Gospel and we are looking for more to do likewise. I preached last night on "No Room for Christ". It seems to be today as it was at the birth of Christ (Luke 2-7) that there is no room for Christ in our homes, lives, and hearts. We have room for most everything except Christ and His teachings.

The principal money crops in this county are cotton, peanuts and Johnson grass. The Johnson grass is grazed by fine milk cows and the milk is sold to the Kraft cheese factory located here.

I have been wondering if our good Editor Hill has become reconciled to the way the election went. Of course, if he can't, as much as we hate to lose him, we will let him move back to Arkansas.

Don't forget, the meeting at the Church of Christ in O'Donnell will begin next Lord's Day morning. Brother Wise doing the preaching. I guess I will close and help my wife put up some peaches. She put them in jars and I just put them up or down.

I will be thinking of all my friends in good old Lynn county as I eat fried chicken, peaches and cream, watermelon, grapes, etc., for dinner.

Yours for more breeze in East Texas and no less in the West.—R. P. DRENNON, O'DONNELL.

HEAR REV. DARBY IN WILSON REVIVAL

A number of Tahoka people have attended some of the services of the Wilson Baptist Church revival, in which Rev. Graves Darby is doing the preaching. Rev. Darby, a former pastor at Wilson, has many friends over the county.

The revival will continue for two weeks, having begun last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McPherson and two children left Wednesday to visit Los Angeles and San Francisco. Mack says they may spend a few days in the mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McIntyre and Mrs. Wiley Fortenberry and daughter are spending two weeks at Corpus Christi.

Some Weigh and Measure in a Haphazard Manner

All our measurements are governed by the most accurate standards imaginable, but because this is so it must not be thought that a great many people do not measure and weigh and reckon time in a most haphazard manner, declares a writer in London Tit-Bits Magazine.

Our mile is 1,760 yards, but the Burmese reckons his mile as equal to the distance he can walk in the middle of the day, when it is hottest, without stopping for a rest. In Egypt the Great Pyramid throws a shadow at sundown which is said to reach for miles, and this used to be a sign for the rice workers to knock off.

Some people in the Rhineland do not boil eggs by means of automatic timers; they prefer the old way of repeating the Lord's Prayer slowly, when they know the eggs are done.

Even the canal men in Holland do not always look at maps to see the number of miles they have covered. They know by the number of pipes they have smoked on the journey.

Doctor Offers Advice to People Who Read in Bed

ALBANY, N. Y.—Reading in bed, rather than being injurious to the eyes, may prove beneficial.

Dr. J. F. Morrow, member of the American Optical company's bureau of visual science, said in an address here that bed reading can be relaxing to the eyes because the eyes are used at a different angle from the one employed in office or classroom work.

He offered the following rules to govern bed reading:

Have adequate illumination; do not slouch in bed; incline the head forward slightly; rest reading material on a surface 16 to 20 inches from the eyes; rest the eyes occasionally.

MRS. W. J. FAIRES WRITES OF "SHOWER"

Please, Mr. Editor, may I come in. This is the first time I have called since Santa Claus time. I come to tell you and the readers of the News what nice things came my way Monday eve.

Mama Claus stopped on her way from town to chat awhile and bring me some nice things.

There were two bags of fruit from Mama Claus, fresh tomatoes from a lady I have known of for a number of years but never had the pleasure of meeting; also, a fine assortment of fruits from another good sanarian unknown to me.

From whence they came, or from whom, I appreciate every kindness shown, and hope to be worthy of all this food that has come my way in life. I do not report all the nice things that are done for me, as I would be coming too often for the peace of the editor, who has been most generous in printing my reports.—MRS. W. J. FAIRES.

An Ancient Paris Restaurant
Boulangers' restaurant, which opened in Paris in 1785, was the first dining establishment to offer a choice of foods and liquors. Previously, says Collier's Weekly, the only public eating places were coffee houses and taverns, serving "regular" meals at a common table at a fixed time and price. Parisians so enjoyed eating when and what they liked that, by 1810, the city had more than 125 restaurants, one of which served 157 meat dishes.

Savings Clubs

BANKING institutions in thirty-eight States are now operating New York World's Fair 1939 Savings Clubs, according to a report just made to Grover A. Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation.

The popularity of these clubs arises from the fact that they enable individuals and families easily to finance a trip to the Fair next year through gradual accumulation of the necessary funds instead of by single demand upon financial resources. The slogan of the plan is: "Save Today to See the World of Tomorrow."

Some of the banks which have instituted the World's Fair Savings Clubs are operating them in connection with Christmas and Vacation Clubs, these having for long been in successful existence.

In one of the Southern States such Fair clubs have been organized in colleges to aid students to set aside part of their allowances to provide means of visiting the Exposition next Spring. Banks are also utilizing the plan to encourage saving by school children.

Attendance at the Fair is expected to reach 60,000,000, according to present estimates.

baseball

By Billy Hill

The Blue Socks really did play a real game of baseball last Sunday when they defeated Ropes 4 to 2.

Ropes had played 19 ball games this season and hadn't been beaten a single time until they played here at 1st day.

Hyde was on the mound for the Blue Socks and he certainly did pitch a good ball.

Manager Walker found this fellow Hyde up at Wilson.

The Tahoka Blue Socks are going over to Roswell, New Mexico, Sunday to play those boys over there a real game of baseball and come out with the big end of the score.

SOUTH TEXAS HAS BEAUTIFUL TOWNS

picturesque country, possibly equal to that of the down trip.

Following the Hug-the-Coast highway, across causeway and coastal plain, to Tivoli, we turned north through some of the earliest settled portions of Texas to Victoria, on the banks of the Guadalupe River.

Victoria, named for Guadalupe Victoria, first president of the Republic of Mexico, was originally settled by the Spanish, but is now inhabited largely by Germans and is a beautiful little city of 8,000 souls; parks, churches, and schools are outstanding.

Over fine highways, over timbered hills, past many old-time farm and ranch homes, mansions which show the marks of fifty or seventy-five years weathering, and thirty miles to the northwest lies Cuero, a little town known far and wide for its annual "Turkey Trot".

Still following the course of the Guadalupe, the highway we were following brought us to Gonzales, "the Lexington of Texas", where the first shot of the Texas Revolution was fired on October 2, 1835, when Texas defeated Mexican Colonel Ugartechea. South of town, on the river, the battlefield has been made a state park.

Halfway between Gonzales and Luling is Palmetto Springs State Park, a park with winding drives through a forest of moss-covered oaks, around lagoons and marshes, by springs, creeks, and the river.

Luling is the point of trade of the near-by oil fields.

Austin, our state capital, is always interesting. The immense domed capitol building is especially beautiful at night, when vari-colored flood lights play over the Texas red-granite walls and dome. One should visit the great 10,000-student, 500-teacher University of Texas with its 30-odd major buildings, including the new and unsurpassed 22-story library building, the stadium, and the American Legion museum under construction. One who has not seen the University plant in the last few years has not seen the University. And, there are twelve other state institutions in Austin.

Then, the little city has some beautiful parks, such as Zilker Park and Barton Springs bathing pool. Other interesting places are Elizabeth Ney studio, full of art treasures; the O. Henry home; the French Embassy, only building on American soil ever built by a foreign government; and the Governor's Mansion.

A fine highway leads west from Austin, over cedar-clad hills and along the Perdenales river to quaint, picturesque Germanic Fredericksburg, with its mile-long business section and old German shops.

We're in the Texas Hill Country again, and as one drives along the highway there's an ever-changing scenic panorama.

Mason is an old and yet very modern little town—old stone house and new modernistic homes side by side.

Brady is a produce center, a country of small farms and ranches. We noticed the retaining wall built to keep old Brady Creek from flooding the down-town section, and then hardly two weeks later we read of that harmless-looking little stream, gaving on another rampage through the town's streets.

Eden in late years has become one of the biggest shippers of wool and mohair in the nation, and in the world, for that matter.

Back to San Angelo and up to Sterling City, we could not resist the temptation to visit "Uncle Bill" Kellis, brother of "Sky Juice" Tom Kellis who used to operate the O'Donnell Index. "Uncle Bill" is a living example of the old-time editor. At 84 he is still active, works every day, and is known far and wide for his barbed writings in the News-Record. "Many folks die at forty and are not buried until they're seventy. I'm still living," he told us.

Big Spring has undergone much rejuvenation in the last few years. The new state hospital for mental patients is beginning to loom up north of town. Big Spring certainly has taken advantage of various government offers of aid in municipal projects. She has built a fine city park, swimming pool, golf course, tennis courts, picnic units, museum, stadium, federal building, airport, and possibly many other such projects.

As we drove into home, we could not help but compare our town and country with sections of Texas we had just visited. We have the best country of any, and a dandy little town. But, Tahoka is far, far behind in the matter of Government aid public improvements, and especially recreational facilities.

We sometimes hear criticism of our young folks for their idleness, frivolity, and because of the fact that they spend much of their time on the streets. But, what has Tahoka to offer the idle child in the way of wholesome entertainment? We are impressed with the fact that Tahoka needs a park and playground, wading pool, swimming pool, public croquet and tennis courts picnic units, outdoor auditorium for children's plays and pageants—some place where young and old may find wholesome outdoor entertainment.

Just another little Texas trip—nothing unusual—but this story has just been a little advertising from trip to the national capital by special train, E. E. Smith, Colorado, president of the Texas rural letter carriers' body, announced here today.

Smith designated the Hardin-Simmons University Cowboy Band, of Abilene, as the official band to represent the Texas association at the national convention. The widely traveled H-SU musicians, who have traveled almost 300,000 miles to meet engagements the past fifteen years, will play under the baton of Marion B. McClure, their composer-director, and will make the trip aboard the convention special.

Paul Attaway, Big Spring, was named arrangements chairman for the special train trip to Washington for the convention goes, and with G. B. Sandefer, Abilene, H-SU Cowboy Band manager, is arranging with railroad representatives, special air conditioned coach fares for the trip.

Concentration points for the special train will be at El Paso, Big Spring, Abilene, Fort Worth, Longview and Texarkana, Attaway said. The trip will be made Texas and Pacific to Fort Worth, Missouri Pacific to St. Louis, and Baltimore and Ohio to Washington.

Individual return trips, with stopovers at scenic and historic points enroute, may be made, Smith said. The president of the Texas rural letter carriers' group extended an invitation to "all Texans to make this trip to the national capital with us and the Hardin-Simmons Cowboy Band."

Editor E. I. Hill, who was injured in a car accident four weeks ago, continues to improve steadily but will be confined to his bed two or three weeks more.

U-BOAT VICTIM IN SEARCH FOR DATA

Vows to Find German Responsible for Torpedoing.

SALINAS, CALIF.—For 20 years Harris Sproles, business man of this city, has made it his life's game to identify the submarine and crew that torpedoed the ship he was on one bright day in August, 1918, and left him adrift for 60 hours in the north Atlantic.

When Sproles gets his information, which he is absolutely sure he will, he does not know exactly what he will do with it, but he is certain it will give him a great feeling of satisfaction and the joy of having accomplished one of his great aims in life.

Sproles was a member of the gun crew on board the United States army transport oil tanker Joseph Cudahy, when on the morning of August 17, 1918, it was torpedoed by a German submarine in the north Atlantic.

When the crew of the Joseph Cudahy had taken to lifeboats, the sailors were forced to come alongside the submarine to have their photographs taken.

Adrift 60 Hours. It was during the 60 hours that the crew of the Joseph Cudahy was drifting about in the north Atlantic waters, that Sproles determined he would eventually ascertain the number of the submarine and the name of its commander.

He began his search immediately after the close of the war, but it was 10 years before he even found a clew to work on. While going east by train in 1928, he met Capt. Julius Lauterbach, who had been executive officer of the German raider Ender and later commander of several submarines.

Lauterbach investigated and later wrote that he believed the submarine was the U-62 commanded by Lieutenant Commander Hashagen. However, there was no way to find the present address of Hashagen.

Then Lowell Thomas' war book came out giving an index of nearly all the German undersea raiders, including the U-62, and Sproles wrote him for Hashagen's address which was sent.

Several letters were sent and a long time elapsed before Hashagen replied, stating that it was not his submarine that had sunk the Joseph Cudahy.

Sproles then applied to the German consul at San Francisco, but without success.

First Concrete Clew. Undismayed, Sproles then applied to the American consul at Berlin and this finally brought a reply from the German reichskriegsministerium, stating that the submarine which sank the Joseph Cudahy was the U-90, commanded by Senior Lieutenant Patzig, whose initials and address were unknown. With this concrete clew, Sproles then checked again with Lowell Thomas' records only to find that it was precisely the submarines numbered from 88 to 93 on which it had been impossible to obtain information. What happened to U-90 is still a mystery.

Sproles, however, still is convinced that somewhere there must exist a picture of the U-90 and some information about Lieutenant Patzig, its commander. This he is now trying to have traced down by a cousin who is in the American consular service in Russia.

So Sproles still awaits optimistically the day when he will know something about the man who torpedoed him and the one big mystery of his life will be solved.

Teacher Improves Pump

Invented by Archimedes AMES, IOWA.—The Greeks had a machine for it, too, but Walter Rollman, graduate engineering assistant at Iowa State college, found it could be improved.

Searching for a pump that chemicals would not corrode, Rollman hit upon "Archimedes' screw," a device without valves, invented by the ancient Greek to lift water from one level to another.

As Archimedes invented it, the device was a spiral pipe that dipped into the water and when it turned over and over the water came out the other end.

But the machine had its shortcomings. When the water entered the pipe there was so much back suction that it took more of Archimedes' slaves to turn up a gallon of water than it required to run up and down hill in a bucket brigade.

Rollman figured that the back suction was caused by air pressure. He eliminated it by inserting tubes into the spiral just below the water line.

Thus the pressure is relieved and when the pipes go round and round water flows freely.

Nelson Thankful For Support

To the people of West Texas as a whole and more particularly to those of the 30th Senatorial District, I wish to express my sincere appreciation for the confidence they expressed in me when they went to the polls on July 23.

I had rather to have been defeated for Lieutenant-Governor, and to have received the over-whelming majority of those about home who know me best, than to have won the race and had those about me say by their vote I was unfit for the job I sought.

I am not discouraged nor downhearted. I feel that for one from the western Plains with a new name in state politics to have polled near 20,000 votes from all sections of Texas is a creditable showing. It is an indication that this section of the State will be recognized by other sections of Texas through the election to high places in our State government before many more years have elapsed.

To those in my district who are interested in the education of the youth, both in our towns and in the rural areas; to those who are interested in Texas Technological College, one of the greatest institutions in Texas today; to the aged, the blind and the dependent of this area; to those who are interested in the development of our natural resources and the general expansion and betterment of this area, including farming and ranching, I want all of you to know that I am continuing my study of these problems to the end that I may be of greater service as your State Senator.

It shall be my purpose to work in harmony with the Governor, the next Lieutenant-Governor, the Railroad Commission, the Department of Agriculture, and other agencies of our State government to the end that West Texas may receive her fair share of the fruits of government.

G. H. NELSON.

Gives Remedy For Pneumonia

Mrs. W. M. Harris this week brought us a clipping published in the Sulphur Springs Gazette many years ago the title of which article is "Never-Fail Remedy for Cure of Pneumonia". She says the remedy had helped her when she had colds, and has helped her friends, and wants us to publish it for what it might be worth to others.

The article follows:
Take six to ten onions, according to size, and chop fine, put in a large skillet over a hot fire, then add about same quantity of rye meal and vinegar enough to form a thick paste. In the meanwhile, stir it thoroughly, letting it simmer five or ten minutes. Then put in a cotton cloth large enough to cover lungs, and apply to chest as hot as patient can bear. In about ten minutes change the poultices, and in a few hours the patient will be out of danger. This simple remedy has never failed to cure this too often fatal disease. Usually three or four applications will be sufficient, but continue always until perspiration flows freely from the chest. This remedy was formulated many years ago by one of the best physicians New England has ever known, who never lost a patient by the disease, and who has gained renown by simple remedies.

NATIONAL CAPITAL

FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON.—A very prominent New Dealer, Thurman W. Arnold, now the official trust buster of the administration, frequently expresses amazement at the morals and sense of civic duty and mental processes which permit big corporations to cut wages or lay off help if they have a surplus at the time. The curious element about this statement is that it comes from the official trust buster. It involves a very simple question in economics, which anyone who has ever been in business, even if it were a peanut stand, can follow.

To dismiss all questions of morality, loyalty to one's employees, and that sort of thing, assume that the Ford Motor company has a huge cash surplus, which it actually has, but that none of its competitors has, which is not true. Also assume that Henry Ford is deeply imbued with the thought that Mr. Arnold thinks he should have. (The writer does not know that Mr. Arnold has ever applied his theory to the automobile industry. He talks mostly about steel when he is discussing it.)

What would happen when the normal situation, which results in cutting pay or laying off workers, develops? Obviously Ford, having a big surplus, would go on producing cars at top speed, while his competitors, in this illustration not having any surpluses on which to draw, would have to close down.

Lead to Monopoly

There being no demand for cars, that being the cause of the situation, Ford would be forced to do one of two things. He could either store his product in the hopes that a revival of buying would eventually take them off his hands, or he could slash prices in order to force the cars out. If he did the latter, he would eventually put all his competitors out of business. He would be selling cars below cost, using up his surplus, in order to keep his workers employed. But the moment that times became better he would have a tremendous advantage. His plant would be going under full steam. Big production would have cut his costs way down. Operation, instead of idleness, would eliminate the wastes of a shutdown. He would be able to slash prices still more in order to continue going full blast.

Meanwhile, especially if the depression were of some duration, this very activity would have made the resumption of selling by his competitors more difficult. There would not be the piled up demand that usually ends a depression. There would be hundreds of thousands of persons who had run their old cars a few years too long. They would have bought new Fords at the reduced prices.

Carried to its logical conclusion, the company with a big surplus could thus eliminate its competitors, and acquire a monopoly in almost any field.

Food for Thought

One of the spokesmen for the New Dealers has just written a short article predicting government ownership of the steel industry. The article attracted singularly little attention merely because nobody believed it! Actually there is considerable food for thought in it. It was far from the half-baked statement most readers thought. It showed a study of the steel industry had been made by some of the informants of the writer, and it was remarkably accurate in predicting the probable course, as seen by men inside the steel industry.

For instance, the government has been seeking for several years to break down the so-called basing-point system. Actually the basing-point system was a lifesaver for the smaller steel companies. It forced the quotation of prices as of certain places, the basing points, the price always being the fixed amount plus freight from this basing point. Naturally, being the biggest of the steel companies, and a merger of many original units, the U. S. Steel company has plants in more localities than its competitors. Therefore, with basing-point bidding eliminated, and with all bids submitted providing for delivery on freight cars at the steel mill, the company with the most widely separated plants has a tremendous advantage.

Buyers patronizing it would have to pay only the freight rate from the mill of that company closest to the point where they proposed to use the steel.

In view of this situation, it is difficult to understand why the trust-busting section of the government has been so anxious to break up a practice which actually helped maintain competition, or at least it was until this article by a comparatively unofficial spokesman. He states the only answer that has been made which appeals to the logic of those who have been wondering about the government's course.

The answer, of course, is that the government is looking ahead of the immediate developments, and planning to take over the steel business just as it has been moving in on the electric business now for several years.

All-American Waterway

Development of an all-American waterway in lieu of the St. Lawrence seaway is urged in a letter to Secretary of State Cordell Hull by Commander Eugene F. McDonald Jr. McDonald was a member of the MacMillan polar expedition. "Many years' experience," McDonald wrote Secretary Hull, "in navigation of the salt and fresh waters of the world, from within 11 degrees of the North pole to and beyond the equator, prompts this letter to you."

"Recently, while returning from a 12,900-mile winter cruise through the Caribbean and as far as South America, I brought my 185-foot Diesel yacht Mizpah through the St. Lawrence waterways to Lake Michigan and then on to Chicago. I have made this same trip many times before, but my recent experience brought again rather forcibly to my mind the St. Lawrence system as it exists today.

"Born in Syracuse, N. Y., I have known the Erie and Barge canals since boyhood. For 25 years I have explored the waters of the Great Lakes and their tributaries, and have a deep interest in their development as waterways. I have no personal or commercial interests of any kind at stake.

"I hope I am, therefore, able to consider the problems presented by the proposed Great Lakes-to-ocean waterways with an informed, but detached and objective, viewpoint.

Enlarge Barge Canal

"The conclusions that have forced themselves upon me are the following:

"1. A deep waterway—a ship canal—between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic ocean is, unquestionably, to be desired. Especially is this true when we consider that, in years of normal crop movement, some 12 per cent of the total United States foreign trade clears through the Great Lakes—even with our present inadequate waterways.

"2. Why build this great waterway through Canada, either wholly or partially with American money, when the more logical, more economical, shorter route can be wholly an American waterway? I am speaking of enlarging the Barge canal, through New York state, to the proportions of a ship canal.

"3. New York city, as a seaport, is closer than the mouth of the St. Lawrence to all the world markets, with the exception of Labrador, Greenland, Iceland, Newfoundland, and northern Europe.

"By this all-American waterway route Buffalo, Cleveland, Toledo, Port Arthur, Fort William, Toronto, Detroit, Milwaukee, Duluth, Chicago, and all the other Great Lakes ports—whether Canadian or American—and their tributary territory, will be 1,559.3 miles closer to New York and to all the seaports of the world than they would be by the St. Lawrence route, with, of course, the few exceptions named above. From Buffalo to New York, via the Welland canal and the St. Lawrence, is 2,066 land miles. Yet it is only 506.7 miles from Buffalo to New York via the Barge canal.

"The Hudson river is already dredged, and available for ocean-going ships, from New York to Albany, with a 27-foot draft channel. The all-American route would merely entail the deepening and widening of the Barge canal, the installation of new locks, and the removal of fixed bridges over a distance of 362.5 miles, from Buffalo to Albany.

Another Suggestion

"A still more practical, economical, all-American route can be made by merely enlarging the Barge canal from Buffalo, or Tonawanda, to Lockport, and creating a new canal, of a length of 12 miles, from Lockport to Olcott, which is on Lake Ontario. The route then to go through Lake Ontario to Oswego, and enlarging the Barge canal from Oswego to Albany. This latter route would entail the deepening of the Barge canal for a distance of only 213.6 miles, and the creation of a new canal of 12 miles.

"In my opinion, either of these shorter, all-American routes can be constructed for less than the proposed deepening of the St. Lawrence waterways. In case of emergency, we would then have an all-American waterway to move our much needed vessels from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic ocean.

"If a plan such as I have outlined were adopted, it would not be necessary, in order to get some of our vessels to the seaboard, to dismantle them and, in fact, actually cut them in two, as was the case during the last emergency because of the inadequacy of the present waterways.

"Last, but not least, it should be borne in mind that because of the more favorable southern latitude of the all-American route, it would be open a number of weeks longer each year than would the Canadian waterway. The low cost of transportation by the all-American waterway is bound to increase business and create jobs for the unemployed."

SIX GUNS and CARPET TACKS

A Gallos County Story

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

MOST times, here in Gallos county, a six gun's a-got just a leetle the best of the argument, but there was one time when the difference between two gun toters was a box of carpet tacks.

See that tree a-standin' out there, there at the bend in the road. Well, that's where they finally lynched Butch Manton.

Folks just heard that some of Butch's friends was a-plannin' to ride in to town and take him out o' jail. And Butch a-bein' a cow thief like he was, they just up and taken him out and strung him to that tree. And Butch'd been livin' right, like as not, if it wasn't for them carpet tacks.

It was right here in the Happy Hour where things was a-beginnin'. Butch was at the bar when Johnnie Rucker comes in and was a leetle slow when he said somethin' 'bout Butch stealin' 50 head of steers from Johnnie, but Johnnie did nick Butch's right foot as the lead from Butch's gun went a-tearin' through his own heart. Course, Butch'd shot Johnnie without givin' him a chance, but Butch still had that gun in his hand when he backs out of the Happy Hour.

'Fore long after the shootin', Sheriff Tom rides into town and hears 'bout the shootin'. It kinda hits him hard on account of Johnnie bein' a pal of his'n, and he don't wait for reason why there ain't been no posse after Butch. He lights out for the Diablo canyon country down close to the border where Butch and his gang has holed up for years.

Butch oughta gone right on to the border, but he don't. He stops by the shack, sends them riders of his'n on with them steers he stole from Johnnie and waits back to see if he can't do somethin' 'bout that foot of his'n.

He's a doin' a leetle doctorin' of his own when Tom rides up. Tom ain't never been a fool 'fore, but a-thinkin' 'bout Johnnie musta got him off, 'cause Butch gits the drop on him and takes Tom's gun but Tom does manage to kick a table over and put out a candle,

Along the Highway

Don't let ownership of an automobile rob you of your politeness.

Probably the worst fault in driving a car is believing you haven't any fault.

In these days, on the roads, it's a case of the survival of the fittest.

Thinking about one thing while doing another causes accidents.

the only light that's in the room. No sir, Butch don't get away from Tom and Tom lives to bring Butch Manton right to the jail from which he was taken and hung on that tree at the bend of the road, down yonder.

You see, Tom, he's been out a-tackin' up signs when Johnnie was shot. Well he'd just brung them tacks long with him, and them tacks is how he caught Butch.

He just spread them on the floor quiet-like while he was movin' around there in the dark and a-fore long Butch steps on one with his foot that ain't got no boot on.

Butch's kinda surprised and lets out a hoop and Tom just grabs in the direction of that hoop.

Doctor Offers Advice to People Who Read in Bed

ALBANY, N. Y.—Reading in bed, rather than being injurious to the eyes, may prove beneficial. Dr. J. F. Morrow, member of the American Optical company's bureau of visual science, said in an address here that bed reading can be relaxing to the eyes because the eyes are used at a different angle from the one employed in office or classroom work.

He offered the following rules to govern bed reading: Have adequate illumination; do not slouch in bed; incline the head forward slightly; rest reading material on a surface 16 to 20 inches from the eyes; rest the eyes occasionally.

Chemists Toot Horns to Help in Fusing Metals

BERLIN.—Some German chemists are blowing automobile horns since they discovered that sound waves help to fuse different metals into lightweight alloys. The discovery was made by Drs. Masing and Ritzow, who for months vainly had tried to blend lead and aluminum to produce a substitute for bronze. When they tried blowing automobile horns while mixing the metals they found the sound waves acted to drive out the finely distributed gases which hitherto prevented the metals from fusing. Ultrashort sound waves which are inaudible to the human ear are now being used.

MARIJUANA LIKELY TO CAUSE INSANITY

History of Weed Is Traced Through 3,000 Years.

NEW ORLEANS.—Criminality and insanity in many cases spring from the use of marijuana, a study of the drug's history reveals. J. Skelly Wright, assistant United States district attorney, who is cooperating in the federal-state drive to ban the weed, found that for 30 centuries the "muggle" has been used. Smoking on a large scale is comparatively new in the United States, Wright explained. The marijuana weed can be grown in flower gardens with little fear of its being detected. With this condition prevailing and with the sudden and terrible effects of the weed, Wright stressed the difficulties in stamping out its use. "Within 30 minutes," he said, "the crude cigarette rolled by a marijuana smoker can transform a normal person into a raving maniac who obeys every impulse arising from current or previous suggestion."

Appeared in Ancient Asia.
 In Asia Minor and India, where its influence first was felt, priests 3,000 years ago used various forms of the weed to induce religious frenzy, Wright said the study revealed.

Centuries ago royal families drank "bhang," which was a mixture of honey and water with marijuana added to it for a "kick." Although the drug was introduced in western Asia more than 3,000 years ago, it was not until 1845 that a French doctor made a detailed study of its effects and the relation between "hashish" excess and insanity.

Since then, according to Wright, use of the weed has spread over the entire world. In the United States "killers-for-hire" smoke a "muggle" or two to bolster their nerve.

Wright does not believe that continued smoking of marijuana will produce addiction, as the use of opium or heroin.

"But it will produce a craving," he said, "not unlike that of a tobacco smoker for cigarettes."

What a person does under the influence of the weed, Wright said, is determined partly by his racial, physiological and emotional background.

Pattern Not Universal.
 But even then "muggle" smoking does not affect along a given pattern.

"Afflicted with hallucinations of terrifying extent," Wright said, "he is liable to run amok, leaving a trail of crime—even murder—in his wake."

Case after case in which criminals have admitted smoking "muggles" indicates this is true, according to Wright.

And after the crime is over, Wright said, and the effects of the marijuana die off, the smoker's mind is usually blank of all that happened in the meantime and his confessions cannot be depended upon.

Eventually, continued smoking brings on complete mental collapse an insanity for which there may be no cure, according to Wright.

Six-Year-Old Scholar Learns to Speak Latin

NEW ORLEANS.—John Thomas Browne, a blond six-year-old first grader, decided two months ago that he wanted to be an altar boy. Despite the fact other altar boys were at least four years older, John determined to learn the intricate rhythms of Latin responses. Today the boy, shy in his miniature red surplice and starched white cassock, amazed priests, nuns and members of the congregation at St. James Major church in Gentilly, New Orleans suburb, with his ease and fluency in the strange tongue. John is not certain what caused him to make his decision. The training, he said, was "kinda hard." The boy's mother believes that his aunt, a nun, may have inspired him. He has another ambition—he wants to be a magician.

Loans Made To Tenant Farmers

Lubbock, Aug. 4.—Hall and Hansford counties have been selected by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace to participate in the coming year's purchase loan program, according to word received here today by Marvin C. Wilson, County Farm Security Administration supervisor, from Regional Director L. H. Hauter in Amarillo, Texas.

Mr. Wilson said this means that the program will operate in Hall, Hansford, Floyd, Randall and Wheeler counties this year. The funds allocated to this part of Texas for these two counties for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1939, are $174,500.

Selections of counties are made on the basis of farm population, prevalence of tenancy, types of farming and geographical distribution. Floyd, Randall and Wheeler counties were the first in this part of the state to participate in the program which was inaugurated last year. Ten farms have been bought in these three counties to date.

Under the program, authorized by the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, loans will be made to a limited number of qualified farm tenants of Hall, Hansford, Floyd, Randall and Wheeler counties for the purchase of farms. These loans will bear three per cent interest and may be made for a 40-year period.

The Farm Debt Adjustment committee serving Lynn County, which
