Designation For Road To Slaton Is Promised

Lynn County Delegation Given Favorable Hearing Before Highway Commission

Survey and designation of a new highway from Tahoka to Wilson, Slaton, Petersburg, and Plainview was promised a delegation of citizens by the Texas Highway Commission at a hearing of that body in Austin Monday.

The delegation seeking this new highway came home Tuesday night elated over the prospects of finally getting this road paved. However, the Commission will order the survey and designation, which will cost about $8,000.00, on the promise that the towns affected will not push immediate paving of the route. The survey will be made soon, though.

Lynn county was represented by County Judge P. W. Goad, Commissioner Waldo McLaurin, Lonnie Lumsden, Howard Cook, and W. E. Galloway, the latter three from Wilson, K. L. Scudder and Raymond Lee Johns represented Slaton, and Judge LaFont represented Plainview.

Judge Goad says they were promised the route by both Chairman Robert Lee Bobbitt and Harry Hines of the Highway Commission. However, Bobbitt made plain the fact that the Commission is now seeking to close up gaps on highways already under construction and does not wish to start any newly paved routes until these are completed. For this reason no work may be expected on the route in the immediate future.

Chairman Bobbitt expressed his desire that State Highway 84 east and west through here be completed as soon as possible. Judge Goad says. Grade and drainage project east of Tahoka on Highway 84 is going forward nicely, with the dirt crew working to within about six miles of town now.

The Lynn county delegation returned by way of the great Buchanan Dam, on the Colorado River near Burnett. They declared the dam to be a gigantic structure and well worth driving many miles to see.

Visitors Here For Church Opening

Many former members, friends, and relatives of members of the First Baptist Church were here Sunday to attend and participate in the opening of the new church building.

Among the visitors were: Rev. Lawrence Hays, wife and children, of San Angelo, Rev. Hays preaching at the evening hour.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Allen, Lubbock, the former being a member of the basement building committee.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Suits, Plainview, Mr. Suits being a former superintendent of the Sunday School.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Kennedy and daughter, Dorothy Dale, Mr. and Mrs. George Dale, Jr., and Troy Dale relatives of the pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Byers, Lubbock, Mr. Byers being foreman of the building construction.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Walker of Lubbock.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith and daughter from Fort Worth. Mr. Smith installed the air conditioning system, and Miss Smith played a violin solo at Sunday morning's service.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Stanley and children of Lubbock. Mrs. Stanley sang at the afternoon program.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Pickard, Levelland, friends of Rev. and Mrs. Geo. Dale.

There were many others about most of whom we have news items in other columns of this paper.

ATTEND FUNERAL

A. M. Cade of Tahoka, H. M. and R. M. Cade of Slaton went to Goree Tuesday for the funeral of a Mr. Hampton, father-in-law of V. L. Cade, Slaton, of the Conservation Service. Mr. Hampton lived at Slaton but had gone to Goree for his health when death came. V. L. was a Bryan at the time of his father-in-law's death.

Gala Time Expected On Oct. 6 At Football Field Dedication

80 Bales Cotton Ginned In City

Eighty bales of 1938 cotton had been ginned by Tahoka gins up to Thursday night of this week.

Much cotton is open over the county, and picking is getting well under way in some localities. Mexicans are coming in from South Texas, and the cotton season will soon be in full swing. Many farmers are busy with their feed crops, and few of them have been in a very great hurry to start picking.

Worms and dry weather have cut the production considerably, but Lynn county yet has prospects of ginning an average cotton crop.

Fenton Planning New Warehouse

R. W. Fenton Jr. of the Lynn County Bonded Warehouse, which last year was one of the three warehouse companies erecting cotton storage buildings here, has announced that one or two new warehouses will be built by his company here this fall.

The warehouses have been approved by the RFC and are now taking cotton, one of them not having been completely filled last year.

Geo. Mahon Opens Lubbock Office

Congressman George Mahon advised The Lynn County News this week that he has established a temporary office in Lubbock for a period of probably two months. He plans to visit as nearly as possible in every county in the District before returning to Washington but stated that he will spend considerable time in his Lubbock office in order that he may be more easily available to those from surrounding counties who wish to see him.

All correspondence with the Congressman will be handled through the Lubbock office located in the Federal Building during this period.

Mr. Mahon's secretaries, Lloyd Croslin and George Witten, accompanied him to Lubbock this week.

Commissioners Court Attends Convention

The entire Lynn County Commissioners Court attended the annual West Texas County Judges and Commissioners convention in Big Spring Thursday, Friday and Saturday. They report a good convention and fine entertainment.

The court is composed of County Judge P. W. Goad, and Commissioners George Small, Waldo McLaurin, Sam Holland, and Tom Hale.

LAWSON HAS PICTURES OF FOREIGN LANDS

Gene Lawson, who recently returned from service in Uncle Sam's Asiatic Fleet, and about whom we had a lengthy story last week, brought us a large box of pictures he had taken with his camera of scenes and people of Asiatic lands and South Sea Islands, all of which were very entertaining and educational.

His collection of pictures deal with war horrors of Shanghai, the American summer base in North China, Hong Kong, the great Chinese wall and temples, scenes, temples and peoples of the Island of Bali, and also of Siam and Singapore. Many of the photographs, no doubt, are very rare.

O'DONNELL GINS PREPARING FOR GINNING SEASON

Ben Moore of O'Donnell reported Tuesday that the five gins there were making extensive preparations for the ginning season, in spite of the fact that the crop promises to be comparatively short. The five gins have spent $25,000 on repairs. The ginning season has a ready begun and most of the gins have been running at intervals.

Several Bands Are Coming To Game With Post City

On Thursday night October 6, the Tahoka Bulldogs entertain the Post Antelopes on the Bulldog's new lighted field. This is the first conference game for Tahoka and the installation of lights at Tahoka will be formally dedicated at this time.

School officials are making plans to give Tahoka such an athletic show at this time that it will be long remembered. The game was moved up one day in order that it would not conflict with any other game in the district. School officials of the entire football district have assured the Tahoka school that they will be here with their bands, football coaches and representatives of their school boards.

All visiting coaches, school men and band members will be given a free barbecue feed at 6:30 p. m. on the day of the dedication. Businessmen as well as all citizens of Tahoka are urged to cooperate in making this a gala affair. This is an opportunity to demonstrate the hospitality of Tahoka and to build good will which we all agree is the best advertising a town can have.

A mass meeting of men will be called soon to make final plans and preparations for this occasion. Our school officials know that they cannot do this alone. They urgently request the cooperation of the entire town in making this such a warm reception for our visitors that Tahoka will receive untold benefits in the way of good will over this football district.

Next week's News will carry a complete program of the dedication ceremonies.

Squire W. S. Swan Busy With Marrying

Squire W. S. Swan has been tying nuptial knots the past few days.

Tuesday he read the ceremony that united William J. Savage and Mrs. Winnie Pearl Probst, who reside between here and Post.

The day before, Monday, he married Senor Rosendo Cavazos and Senorita Mary Jesus Garcia of Hondo, Texas.

Saturday, a Lamesa couple, Herbert Lee Kirkland and Miss Freida Patterson, were married by Mr. Swan.

Staley Klukan and Hazel Hollenback of El Paso were married Thursday, and several days before that he married G. M. Dodson and Miss Evelyn Thornton of Slaton.

O'Donnell Baptists Building Church

The Baptists of O'Donnell have started construction on a new church. They will build a superstructure over their basement, which is 40 by 46 feet in size, and will build an addition 32 60 feet in size. The length of the completed structure will be 78 feet and the greatest width 60 feet.

In addition to the main auditorium there will be a number of Sunday school rooms. It will be a brick veneer structure. The Church has been worshipping in a basement and a tabernacle for many years.

BEN MOORE'S UNCLE KILLED

Speaking of unexpected accidents, Ben Moore of O'Donnell related Tuesday that an uncle of his, F. G. Phillips of San Antonio, 63, who had been in the service of the Missouri Pacific Railway as an engineer for 34 years, was suddenly killed when he was struck recently by an approaching box car which he did not see. It was another case of just forgetting to look. Mr. Moore was unable to attend the funeral.

NEW LAMESA STADIUM

Lamesa high school is preparing to erect a new $7,000 football stadium, work to start in the near future. The bleachers will be of steel and concrete with wooden seats.

Mr. and Mrs. John Montgomery of Brownwood are visiting his brother, Will Montgomery, and wife.

Baptist Building Is Opened Before Large Crowd

Special Service Held Sunday Morning Opening Week of Church Celebration

Before a crowd which packed the auditorium to capacity, formal opening exercises of the new $40,000 First Baptist Church building were held Sunday morning, beginning at 10:45 o'clock.

The services also marked the fourth anniversary of the pastor, Rev. Geo. A. Dale, in Tahoka, and was the beginning of a one-week series of services in the new building.

Following music by the choir, vocal solos by Bill Sewell and Geo. Dale Jr. of Lubbock, and a violin solo by Miss Smith of Fort Worth, and introduction of visitors and committees connected with the erection of the church, Rev. Dale preached the sermon celebrating the opening of the building.

In the afternoon, Rev. Avery Roger, Brownfield pastor, was the speaker, and Mrs. F. C. Stanley of Lubbock sang a solo.

Sunday night, Rev. Lawrence Hays, pastor at Park Heights, San Angelo, and former pastor here, was the speaker.

This week night services are being held each day, with the following preachers bringing the messages:

Monday night, Rev. C. R. Joiner, Spur.

Tuesday night, Rev. W. H. Ferguson, Slaton.

Wednesday night, Rev. A. C. Huff, Plainview district missionary.

Thursday night, Rev. W. R. Derr, Ralls.

Friday night, Rev. A. J. McCarthy, Lubbock.

There will be no meeting Saturday night, but regular services will be held Sunday. In addition, Dr. C. E. Hereford, pastor of the First Baptist, Lubbock, will speak at 3:00 p. m.

The Sunday School has set its goal for 350 people in attendance next Sunday morning.

Attendance at the night services this week has been good, and twelve new members had been taken in by the church through Wednesday.

Mrs. Longino Dies At Albuquerque

Friends regret to learn of the death Tuesday night in Albuquerque, New Mexico, of Mrs. Longino, who formerly lived here with her daughter, Mrs. Lucille Bludworth.

Mrs. Longino had been suffering for about two weeks as the result of a stroke. Mrs. Bludworth is said to be attending school in Mississippi this winter. She formerly taught in the Tahoka schools.

ATTEND CIRCUS

Many Tahoka and Lynn county people attended the Al G. Barnes and Sells-Floto Circus in Lubbock Wednesday. They reported that the show was an excellent one.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Howard and children Amos Jr. and Elizabeth of Lubbock visited in town Sunday.

On Football Team

JAMES MINOR

This former Tahoka High School star is this year the main scoring threat on the Howard Payne College football team, where he played last year and scored more points than any other man in the Texas Conference.

District Court Is In Session This Week

Yoakum County Promises Road

Yoakum county commissioners last week voted to go ahead with securing of the right of way on Highway 84 (U. S. 380) through the western part of that county.

Failure of that county to cooperate with the Texas Highway Commission has held up development of the east-west route through Texas and New Mexico, and those interested in completion of this pavement are glad to learn that Yoakum county has finally consented to secure the roadway.

Rotary Club Will Aid In Celebration

Tahoka Rotary Club voted Thursday to sponsor the barbecue which will be held here Thursday night, October 6, when bands and school officials from all over the South Plains will attend the formal dedication of the new lighted football field at the game between Post and Tahoka. Visiting delegations will be guests at the barbecue.

Superintendent W. T. Hanes stated that several high school bands and school officials from six or eight Class B towns have already accepted invitations to attend the dedication.

An Egyptian mystic All Bimbo (Wynne Collier), assisted by Charles Townes, demonstrated wonderful power of mind-reading.

Fred Bucy led the club in singing several songs, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. J. K. Applewhite.

"Dad" Arnett, M. C. Lindsey, Joe Alexander, and Homer St. Clair were visitors from the Lamesa club.

Annual Traffic Inspection Soon

State Highway patrolmen are planning a "traffic lane" in Tahoka October 20, 21 and 22 for the purpose of inspecting and testing automobiles and advising with motorists on driving methods, according to Capt. W. W. Legg of Lubbock.

Six state officers, assisted by local officers, will test cars for light range and focus, defects in lights, muffler, windshield wipers and steering apparatus, wheel alignment, brakes and other mechanical parts. No charge will be made the car owners, as the service is strictly in the promotion of public safety.

Tahoka Will Have Day At The Fair

Wednesday, September 28, has been designated Tahoka day at the South Plains Fair at Lubbock.

Tahoka citizens, and especially the school children and band, have a special invitation to the fair on that day.

With new exhibit buildings, new shows, rodeo, and horse races, this year's fair promises to be one of the best in many years. A. B. Davis, secretary of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce writes The News. He promises no one will be disappointed.

SISTER-IN-LAW DIES

Mrs. Jno. Minor was informed last week of the sudden death of her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. H. Swope, at her home at Killeen, Bell county, Sunday night, September 11. She is also advised that her aged mother, Mrs. A. L. Swope, also of Killeen, is critically ill in a Temple hospital.

PAVING AT O'DONNELL

Reports from O'Donnell are to the effect that the loop of the highway through town has just been treated to a new coat of topping just as has been the main highway.

Miss Rachel Bahkston had her tonsils removed in a Lubbock sanitarium Sunday. She was accompanied to the hospital by Mrs. C. C. Ross.

Grand Jury Brings In Indictments Against Eight

Fall term of district court opened here Monday morning with Judge Louis B. Reed giving his instructions to the grand jury, which immediately went into session.

Judge Reed heard several non-jury cases, including three suits for divorce Monday, but otherwise there has been little activity in the court room his week.

The criminal docket will be taken up Monday of next week. A fairly busy session is expected.

After making further investigations Wednesday the grand jury adjourned temporarily.

Tuesday night the grand jury returned the following indictments, in all of which cases arrests have been made:

T. C. Brooks and Elmer Brooks, two cases each for arson.

M. L. Prather, driving a motor vehicle upon a public highway while intoxicated.

Luther Frazier, cattle theft.

Elmo Miller and J. C. Miller, burglary with intent to commit theft.

Alva Holland, Odell Cochran, and Billy White, two cases for burglary.

Henry B. Lewis and John Clark, chicken theft.

Bulldogs Will Play Cooper Tonight

Tahoka Bulldogs meet Cooper, large Lubbock county rural high school, under the lights of the local football field tonight at 7:45 o'clock. Cooper is said to have a strong team, having held the powerful Slaton Tigers to a score of 13 to 6 in their opening game two weeks ago.

Though inexperienced, the local team has been improving right along and is rapidly moulding into a smooth working machine under the direction of Coach Bob Harlow.

Last Friday night, before the largest crowd that has attended a game here in several years, the Bulldogs whipped the Friendship Tigers of Wolfarth 18 to 7 in a game filled with long runs and completed passes. Tahoka scored three times but was unable to convert for extra point.

Brownfield high school's snappy band came over for the game, paraded down town a short time before the game, and played during the contest and between halves.

As a special feature, the school board and faculty played the Rotary club in a game of "tag" football following the school game.

C. C. Williams Is Now At Olney

C. C. Williams, who was secretary of the Tahoka Chamber of Commerce a number of years ago, was recently elected manager of the Olney Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Williams served here about two years. Then he went to South Texas, serving in a similar capacity at Seguin a number of years. For the past few months he has been employed in Austin. Mr. Williams has many friends in Tahoka who will be pleased to learn of his continued success in chamber of commerce work.

Mrs. B. H. Baker of Clovis, Mrs. C. Hunt and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Weir of El Paso, visited Mr. and Mrs. D. V. Smith and Miss Mary Seroyer Monday.

E. I. HILL JR. RETURNS TO WASHINGTON, D. C.

E. I. Hill Jr., who has been here visiting relatives, returned to Washington, D. C. Sunday, where he has been an employee of the Government Printing Office the past eight years. He is now estimator in the planning division. His home is just across the Potomac at Alexandria, Virginia.

He was accompanied as far as Canyon by Frank Hill, who visited there Monday.

Four-Power European Treaty
May Avert General Warfare

By Joseph W. La Bine

Foreign

Until he spoke at Nuremberg a fortnight ago, Adolf Hitler had never given open, out-and-out promise of assistance to Czechoslovakia's Sudeten Germans. If his purpose was to brew trouble, it was not long in coming. By promising his exiled fellow Germans the right of "self determination," Der Fuehrer gave overnight rise to demands for a plebiscite, demands which were not long in bringing bloodshed.

Confident that frightened Prague would tolerate anything, the henchmen of little Fuehrer Konrad Henlein organized demonstrations that ended in riots which took six lives. By this time the Czech government was forced to show its hand. Tight martial law was clamped on five Sudeten towns, then on three more. While a jittery world held its breath, Fuehrer Henlein shot back an ultimatum that martial law be lifted in six hours or his party would "decline responsibility for all further developments."

In the next 24 hours Prague rejected the ultimatum, rushed troops

Europe were obvious. To a nine-year-old visitor who found him studying Czechoslovakia's map, he advised: "Just now, more than ever, it is necessary to remember my geography lessons. So keep up your interest in geography."

That night the presidential special left for Washington where Secretary of State Cordell Hull waited to talk diplomacy, where Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. waited to discuss U. S. money and stock market action in the event of war.

Politics

Until August 11, the word "purge" had little application in American politics. On that date Franklin Roosevelt asked Georgians to defeat their Sen. Walter F. George because: "He is out of touch with the broad objectives of the party . . . On most questions we don't speak the same language."

Subsequently, "purge" went after South Carolina's Sen. Ellison D. Smith and Maryland's Sen. Millard E. Tydings. Both won anyway. Adding to the President's consternation was Maine's historically prophetic election in which all Republicans won, all Democrats lost. Only two days later, Georgians voted to give "purge" a final shellacking, to bury with vengeance the gravest political error Franklin Roosevelt has ever made.

Day before Georgia's election, Manager Edgar B. Dunlap of the George machine could confidently predict victory. Major reason was the President's speech, but Manager Dunlap himself was another reason. One-time Georgia chairman of the Birthday balls, once an RFC attorney, he was fired from the latter job for political activity. Few Georgia Democrats carry more weight. Against red-suspended ex-Gov. Eugene Talmadge, against New Dealer Lawrence S. Camp, against Townsend Planner William G. McRae, Manager Dunlap drove a campaign that won handily. But while anti-New Deal Senator George was renominated, so was Gov. E. D. Rivers with his "Little New Deal" platform.

Among other results in a week filled with primaries:

In Michigan, Gov. Frank Murphy and ex-Gov. Frank Fitzgerald became Democrat, G. O. P. gubernatorial nominees, respectively.

In Utah, Dr. Franklin S. Harris, president of Brigham Young university, won Republican senatorial nomination, will face Democratic Sen. Elbert D. Thomas in November.

Business

No target of New Deal dislike has been U. S. small business, though a leading small town business man is often regarded by his fellow townsmen as the counterpart of big business. Last spring, Franklin Roosevelt called a meeting of little business men at Washington, was later shocked to see his conference turn into a near riot.

Not the outgrowth, rather a reaction from this meeting is the National Small Business Men's association, founded by a letter-writing letterhead manufacturer from Akron, Ohio, Dewitt M. Emery. Jokingly called "little in everything but stature," 6 1/2-foot President Emery solicited members by mail from business firms not employing more than 500 persons, not capitalized at more than $1,000,000. Presumably too inarticulate for membership are the butcher, baker and grocer who fit into Franklin Roosevelt's more logical definition of a small business man.

LITTLE MAN EMERY
How little is little business?

To Pittsburgh last week for their first convention went Dewitt Emery's little business men. Though Pittsburgh's C. W. Elton hopefully predicted 2,500 delegates, the first day found a scant 200 whose restraint held discussion to a minimum. Next day, with their number increased to 300, little business men talked more freely. Drawn up were resolutions which lashed fiercely at administration policies in relation to business.

Their demands: Free enterprise, less waste, removal of excess bureau and employees, balanced budget, lower taxes, sound money.

Crime

Fortnight ago, before his rackets case against Tammany Leader James J. Hines was thrown out of court, New York District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey was a good bet to win Republican gubernatorial nomination. Cause of the mistrial was Tom Dewey's reference to Tammanyman Hines' alleged conspiracy in Manhattan's poultry racket, a reference which Justice Ferdinand Pecora thought constituted a breach of court etiquette.

Since Justice Pecora has a Tammany-Democrat background, it was easy for disgruntled prosecutors to mutter about political influence. Day after the mistrial decision, even the august New York Times, confounded that "Justice Pecora has made a profound mistake of judgment."

In its efforts to prove Politician Hines had participated in the late Arthur ("Dutch" Schultz) Fliegen-

JUSTICE FERDINAND PECORA
... made a profound mistake . . .

heimer's policy racket, the state had spent $50,000, presented four weeks of testimony, gone to great pains guarding precious witnesses.

But Justice Pecora's decision had hardly ceased echoing through the courtroom before Tom Dewey began planning his next move. Though the Republican nominating convention was but two weeks away, though Defense Attorney Lloyd P. Stryker had sarcastically suggested that a new trial be delayed until "after the political campaign," the state will probably rush through a new trial which would preclude the 36-year-old prosecutor's running for governor. Biggest job will be to avoid Justice Pecora's sitting on the case. For this, the state must either ask Gov. Herbert Lehman to designate another judge, or present the case back to a county grand jury for an indictment identical with the last.

Relief

As enacted, social security is in surance based on a man's lifetime earnings. But Depression and Recession have shown that some never earn enough to retire comfortably. For this reason, also because 1938 has brought an alarming rebirth of pension ideas (Townsendism had 100 supporters in the last congress) social security will probably be revised next winter in the face of such "short cuts to Utopia" as California's "$30-a-week-Thursday" plan.

Changes Franklin Roosevelt reportedly wants: (1) Beginning of old age insurance payments in 1940 instead of 1942; (2) increasing minimum monthly old-age payments from $10 to $30, decreasing maximums from $85 to $60; (3) payments to widows and orphans of workers equal to those received by a man retiring at 65.

Already announced are plans to expand social security among 16,000,000 now excluded: Farm laborers, domestics, seamen, federal reserve bank employees, and possibly self-employed persons.

War

In theory the forlorn League of Nations applies sanctions against aggressor nations. Ineffective against Italy's Ethiopian campaign, the league has been even less capable of spanking Japan for her Chinese conquest. Fortnight ago, when the league began its current session, China resolved to demand action. From Hankow went hundreds of telegrams to league representatives.

But last week all hopes were dashed when a European crisis (See FOREIGN) developed into such proportions that China's complaint drifted to the background. Only hope remaining is that Great Britain will force the league's hand to protect her swiftly vanishing economic domination of the Far East. Meanwhile, Jap troops continued creeping up on Hankow, one-time Chinese capital which is their final objective, and which they will ultimately capture whatever the cost.

● In Spain, fighting practically ceased on both sides as eyes turned to central Europe where an even greater conflict was brewing. Only action took place on the Ebro river front, where insurgent troops occupied a hill north of Gandesa and strengthened their positions.

Government Must Be Kept Liberal,
Cry of President and Spokesmen

Roosevelt's Definition of Term Means He Has Cast Die
For Realignment of Political Parties; Time May Prove Fallacy of Today's Liberal Doctrines.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—There is a great deal to be made these days about "liberalism." We are told in the press, through the radio, in personal conversations that "liberalism," liberal thinking, is vitally necessary; it is urgent that our government be kept liberal, and that our daily lives be moulded along liberal lines. President Roosevelt says so, and sought in a recent speech to define liberalism; his spokesmen—repeat and emphasize what he has said—the vast army of ballyhoo artists on the government payroll is saying it after the manner of a stooge for a ventriloquist. A lot of Republicans, trying to ape the New Dealer, are saying it, too, and making just as much of a mess of the proposition as the less slick-tongued among the New Dealers.

Well, any way, at any cost, there must be liberalism. If we don't be liberal, we are warned, the devil will get us. The nation, its 130,000,000 inhabitants and all of their works will sink to the depth of perdition. It's a very sorry situation, indeed.

Recognizing the need, the urgent necessity for liberalism, Mr. Roosevelt undertook recently to define it. I quote his words from a recent speech in Maryland where he had gone to try to bring about the defeat of Sen. Millard Tydings in a race for the Democratic senatorial nomination:

"For example, Mr. A is a composite conservative. He admitted that in 1933, interest rates charged by private bankers to ordinary citizens who wanted to finance a farm were altogether too high; he admitted that there were sharp practices, excesses and abuses in issuing securities and buying and selling stocks and bonds; he admitted that the hours of work in his factory were too long; he admitted that old people, who became destitute through no fault of their own, were a problem; he admitted that national and international economics and speculation made farming and fishing extremely hazardous occupations; and he even admitted that the buying power of farmers and fishermen had not kept pace with the buying power of other kinds of workers."

"But conservative Mr. A. not only declined to take any lead in solving these problems in co-operation with the government. He even found fault with and opposed, openly or secretly, almost every suggestion that was put forward by those who belonged to the liberal school of thought."

"Mr. B. I said, was a composite liberal. He not only admitted the needs and the problems like Mr. A, but he put his shoulder under the load; he gave active study and actual support to working out methods, in co-operation with the government, for solving the problems and the filling of the needs. Mr. B did not claim that the remedies were perfect, but he knew that we had to start with something less than perfect in this imperfect world."

Would Force Realignment
Of Politics of Country

Mr. Roosevelt's pronouncement on what constitutes a liberal followed very closely a statement he had issued in a meeting with the newspaper correspondents at the White House, saying that he had no objection to election of "liberal Republicans." Said he: "If there is a good liberal running on the Republican ticket, I would not have the slightest objection to his election. The good of the country rises above party."

The importance of these two declarations?

Mr. Roosevelt has cast the die for a new alignment of political parties. He has swept aside all previous bonds that held men and women within the Democratic party or the Republican party or the lesser political groups and has said, in effect, "Come with me into a new fusion of forces and action." Of course, no one who has studied Mr. Roosevelt's course since his political ears were first pinned back in defeat of his malodorous plan to add six justices of his own choosing to the United States Supreme court could have failed to recognize this eventuality. He was planning to force realignment in politics in this country for some months; but now the thing is out in the open, and the Democrats and Republicans, alike, know what confronts them if it is their desire to maintain the present political party setup.

What will happen is quite another question. Undoubtedly, the Democratic party will be the greater sufferer. It has to be so, because Mr. Roosevelt became titular head of the Democratic party by virtue of election to the presidency in 1932 and again in 1936 as the candidate of that party. So many of the former Democrats have become wedded to the New Deal either by conviction or as a result of having won office on New Deal coat tails that there is no turning back for them.

Thus, there is a split, with those who subscribe to the New Deal theory of liberalism on the one hand and the Democrats who adhere to the hundred-year-old principles of the Democratic party on the other. There will be some Republicans drawn into the new alignment, but they will be fewer than the wing formed from Democrats. The Republicans who will go over to any new alignment will be of the type of Harold Ickes, now secretary of the interior, Senator Norris of Nebraska (who once wore a Republican label) and others of the here-today-gone-tomorrow category.

And further, as to what will happen: my observation is that these so-called liberal movements don't last very long. They crack up on the very principles which are supposed to be their foundation stones. Always, there are too many "leaders." Every "liberal," who catalogues himself as such, shouts about it and produces plans for saving the world wherever anybody will listen, conceives himself to be a leader. Someway, the ideas and ideals of these liberal leaders always differ. Each invariably takes the position that his plans must be adopted unanimously or the world will go to pot.

Ideas Subject to Quick
Change; Try Something Else

Then, too, their ideas are subject to such quick change that few of them are retained very long. They are cast aside for something else that has more glamor. A case in point is an incident of recent history. After New Dealer Senator Pope had been licked for the Idaho Democratic nomination for senator by the youthful Worth Clark, there was talk among the New Dealers about having Senator Pope seek reelection independently; it was proposed and discussed with Mr. Roosevelt whether Senator Pope should embrace the faith of the LaFollette's progressive ticket in Idaho. It was found, however, that the LaFollette had a candidate for the senate on their ticket. To the suggestion that he withdraw and let Senator Pope be their candidate, the LaFollette spokesman said: no sir—Senator Pope isn't progressive enough for us—and Senator Pope had campaigned as a 100 per cent New Dealer.

One can walk around the halls of congress any day when the session is on and find hundred-per-centers arguing how far "reform" must be carried; what "liberalism" means. And, in downtown Washington, where the really important headmen of liberalism are to be found, they are constantly fuming and fretting at each other. Instances are on record where two rabid liberals actually have sought to get each other discredited in the eyes of the President because of their differences over what liberalism means.

The only thing about which they seem to agree is that anyone who insists on sanity in governmental thinking—anyone who takes heed of lessons of experience and traditions of the past—must, of necessity be a tory, a bloodsucker, a tramp of the poor, an obstructionist, a "republican," or some other animal in human form who is overcome with personal greed. On that point, the liberals that we see in the government these days present a united front.

Time May Prove Fallacy
Of Today's Liberal Ideas

That is the story of the self-appointed liberals. To them has been given the right—in their own minds, at least—to guide the destinies of the nation. I assume that if they regard me at all they classify me as coming from across the railroad tracks, question my mental balance. But I shall continue to study their methods, commend what is good, criticize that which is obviously unsound. More important, I shall continue to cling to the doctrine of the ages that human nature is going to be changed by some Power that is considerably above the level of human intelligence; I shall hold to a conviction that real progress comes by that method and not from the crackpots who look upon the human race as a fresh litter of guinea-pigs.

But, anyway, we have liberalism defined at last by a man who is qualified to define it, and we find that it differs from what liberalism formerly meant. It was only a few generations ago that liberalism meant restricting, not increasing, the powers of government. Neither Mr. Roosevelt's definition nor his record in office coincides with the former understanding of the word. It seems to me likely, therefore, that we will go on for quite some years with this quarrel, and that may be—and this is just a hunch—time will prove the fallacy of some of the so-called liberal doctrines of this day.

SYNOPSIS

Young Rex Hale calls on Casper Kneeland, friend of his father, in New York, and finds him proudly successful but strangely preoccupied. He tells Hale of his wife's death while insane, invites him for the summer to Halcyn Camp, his home on Long Island, and promises him he will be "useful" as his secretary there. Hale is joined at lunch by Fred Ainsworth, an unpopular college mate, also at Halcyn, who leaves him with a premonition of unpleasant mystery. He is met at the train by Mrs. Wilbur Nash, whom he questions about the message, and experiences a disturbing premonition. The premonition is barely eased by the comfortable hospitality of Hosanna, Kneeland's elderly sister, and her friend, Ruth Forbes, middle-aged sophisticate. In his room, Hale finds a soiled paper, printed, "This place dangerous." Hale meets the rest of the strange group—Dr. Craig, psychiatrist friend of Bert Kneeland, nervous young son of Casper, and beautiful but moody Joan Kneeland, niece of the house.

CHAPTER II—Continued

Hale studied young Kneeland. He had been four years old when they had last met, a yellow-haired rather delicate child. He had developed into a brown-haired rather delicate young man, with ordinary features, a weak mouth, and an expression made up in equal parts of boredom, anxiety and irresolution. Hale suspected that the boredom was a mask for the other emotions. His head and eyes were like his father's. It was plain that he had inherited none of the older man's driving energy.

Miss Hosanna had been warning her companions at the table against eating the food she had set before them. Now she developed her theme.

"Bread!" Hale heard her say. "We've always been taught that it's the staff of life. Instead, it's rank poison. I would never serve it if Casper wasn't so funny about his meals. He actually suggests our menus. He would eat bread three times a day if I would give it to him. I don't. It's very bad for his arthritis. I never touch it myself. As for starches and sugar and alcohol I never touch them, either. I wouldn't offer them to others when Casper isn't here if Ruth and Mr. Ainsworth didn't make such a fuss about their meals. They seem bent on destroying their health."

Ainsworth looked at Mrs. Spencer Forbes.

"I don't care much what I eat," Mrs. Spencer Forbes said wearily. "But as meal time is the only bright spot in life at Halcyn Camp I don't see why it should be ruined by your notions, Hosanna. Your brother is what is known as a good provider. Your cook knows how to prepare what he buys. Why can't you leave us in peace while we're eating it, without plunging into these distressing hygienic details, I shall never understand."

It was certainly amazing company he had joined. Hale dismissed the reflection and ceased to listen to Miss Hosanna. He had always been interested in unusual types of human beings. He realized that most of these men and women were unusual. Not Miss Hosanna, of course. In appearance and manner she ran true to her New England form, though her admiration and affection for Mrs. Spencer Forbes seemed deeper than their object justified. Mrs. Spencer Forbes was an easily classified type. She was the burned-out woman of the world, whose opportunities for burning were growing rarer with her years. She must be fifty. She was still as greedy for excitement as she had been at thirty—probably more so; but she had a saving stock of common sense that accepted even while it resented life's soft pedaling. Joan Kneeland was normal, of course. She must be, he robustly told himself. He suspected that she was not very well. Neither was her cousin Herbert. Ainsworth was a straight cad, deliberately making himself objectionable to everyone. Craig was probably eight-tenths scientist and two-tenths human, a good doctor of the coldly impersonal type. He was not quite as impersonal with Joan Kneeland as he was with the rest of the group. Even with her his attitude was not that of a normal man admiring a charming girl. It was—what was it? Watchful? That was the word. He was conscious of her all the time, even when he was talking to others.

His manner with Mrs. Spencer Forbes was also interesting. It was accepting, accustomed, even a trifle amused. In a different man it would have seemed indulgent. There was nothing in it she could reasonably object to, but it was clear that it annoyed her. In fact it was already very plain that most of the inmates of Halcyn Camp were more or less on one another's nerves. Mrs. Spencer Forbes was especially irritated by Craig and Ainsworth. Miss Hosanna also disliked them both, possibly in sympathy with her friend. Hale could imagine her Ruth's caustic comments on the two young men when the women were alone. Joan Kneeland disliked and despised Ainsworth and was doubtful of Craig. Her cousin despised most of the others, and at moments appeared to share his cousin's feeling about Craig. Hale had already learned from their talk that Herbert and the young psychiatrist had been close friends for years. That was interesting, because there must be five or six years difference in their ages. Herbert was only twenty-two. Craig must be about his, Hale's age. He had dropped enough in his dinner-table talk to show that he was in his second year of practice. He was professionally obsessed, inordinately ambitious. It was hard to understand the close friendship that was said to exist between him and Casper Kneeland's only son.

Thus Hale summed up his companions in the first hour he was with them. He did it by the cold light of reason, with no hunches now to help him. The instinct or premonition he had felt on approaching the house had died. The setting of the big dining-room was very pleasant. The guests around him were unusual enough to interest anyone. Like Ainsworth, he should have been at peace with the world, but he was not in quite that ideal state.

Young Kneeland had cast off his depression and was talking now, rather well and with more interest than he had yet shown. He was a nice-looking chap, with that new animation in his face. He was smooth-shaven, immaculate, and he wore his evening clothes with accustomed ease.

After dinner Hale, Craig and the cousins played contract. Mrs. Spencer Forbes and Aunt Hosanna played backgammon, the former with an eloquent look at Hale which informed him that this diversion was not her choice. Ainsworth, pointedly ignored by his companions, read and smoked under a reading lamp. Miss Hosanna alone gave him a kind word as the party ebbed away from him.

"When Casper is here we can have two tables," she promised. It was the triumph of hospitality and breeding over mere human nature. Her pale blue eyes hardly touched his face as she spoke to him. She liked him no better than the rest did.

Hale was glad he had not let his contract game grow rusty in Spain. He had played there a good deal, with some fellow-engineers who were experts. He liked playing with Miss Kneeland. It gave him opportunities to look at her and to meet her lovely eyes. Also, she played a good game and had a fine sporting spirit. She had not turned a hair when, earlier in the rubber, he had heavily "set" her and himself by over-optimism.

The game broke up at half past ten. He was not sorry. The day had seemed long. The party separated almost at once, its members seeking their individual rooms upstairs. Hale was glad to get into the quiet of his quarters. The windows facing the sea were wide open and a salt breeze came in, mingled with the sound of pounding waves.

His bed was ready for him. The silk cover was folded back over the footboard. The pillows were inviting. The upper sheet was turned over a light blue blanket. No soiled little billet-doux waited for him this time.

He was on his way from his bathroom to his bed when he heard a light tap on the door. He slipped on his dressing-gown and opened the door. Ainsworth, very wide awake and still fully dressed, strolled into the room.

"Saw a light under your door and thought I'd pop in," he said. "Got any cigarettes? I forgot to bring some upstairs."

Hale forced a smile and pointed to a box on his smoking table.

"Hope I'm not disturbing you," Ainsworth purred as he helped himself.

"Not at all. Sit down."

Ainsworth sat down, lit the cigarette and ostentatiously relaxed. Hale had no choice but to sit down, too, and show decent courtesy to his unwelcome visitor. He did not speak. If Ainsworth had any purpose in this untimely call let him get it off his chest. Hale filled the interval by selecting and lighting a cigarette.

"Well, what's your opinion of us?" Ainsworth drawled.

"You're a reasonably interesting group," he said when he was ready to speak.

"Granted. But what do you really think of us?"

"You do me too much credit, Ainsworth. I don't form definite opinions so quickly."

Again Ainsworth proved that he could not take a snub.

"Give me some offhand ones, then," he invited. "Let's have your first impressions."

"Oh, well, they're rather chaotic. I find Aunt Hosanna very cordial and hospitable. Mrs. Spencer Forbes mildly amusing, young Kneeland rather pathetic, Craig self-absorbed and scientific."

"And Miss Kneeland?" That was a purr.

"Lovely and charming, of course."

"Of course. Do you happen to know that she's quite an heiress?"

"No, I didn't know that."

"She had almost a million before the crash. She inherited it from her father, who struck oil out in Oklahoma, and died soon afterward, apparently of the joyful shock. Uncle Casper has had the handling of the estate, so some of it may have disappeared during the depression. But Joan is of age now. I fancy she has enough left to make herself a deserving young husband quite comfortable."

He waited a moment. Hale made no comment and Ainsworth went on.

"Young Kneeland wanted to be the deserving young husband. She wouldn't have any of that. This may explain the pathetic quality you discovered in him."

"I don't think I care to talk about Miss Kneeland's private affairs," Hale said stiffly.

"All right. Just thought I'd give you a tip. Great opportunity for ambitious youth. Craig is in the running, too, but only mildly. I don't think he has much chance. You've got a pretty clear field, it seems to me."

Hale set his teeth.

"I'm afraid you didn't get my meaning, Ainsworth," he brought out between them. "I said—"

"That you didn't want to talk about Miss Kneeland. I know. All right. But there's one more interesting fact you ought to know. If Joan Kneeland dies before she marries, young Bert gets practically her entire estate. Her father made that provision originally, and it seems that she repeats it in her own will."

Hale remained silent and Ainsworth asked conversationally:

"Is there any objection to talking about Mrs. Spencer Forbes?"

"Only the lateness of the hour," Ainsworth laughed.

"I always envied you your way of putting things. You can make a snub sound almost suave. But I'm not sleepy."

"I am."

Ainsworth shook his head at him.

"That isn't as subtle as your usual methods," he said reproachfully.

"But I want to tell you about Mrs. Spencer Forbes. You don't appreciate it, old man, but I'm trying to put you wise to conditions here. Mrs. Spencer Forbes, for example. There's tragedy for you."

"Why?"

"She's down and out. It's the old story. Good family, fine position, plenty of money to begin with. Nothing left now. Supposedly she lives in a back room of some New York lodging-house. In reality she's here most of the time, sponging on the Kneelands. Casper Kneeland stands it because he's impressed by her social position. He likes to be shocked by her talk, too. Miss Hosanna encourages it because she's fascinated by the creature. Always has been, it seems. The one big friendship of her life—and a mighty lopsided affair it is. All Ruth Spencer Forbes cares about is a snug haven and plenty to eat and drink. Once in a while, as a matter of form, she goes back to the lodging-house for a week or two. That must be pretty ghastly for her."

"Your manly sympathy for her doesn't show much when you and she are together," Hale commented. Ainsworth laughed.

"No, we hate each other," he admitted, "even though we speak the same language and have known each other all our lives. Just the same, it's damned interesting to see her wriggling on the hook."

"That's rather your specialty, isn't it? Watching people wriggle?"

"Yes," Ainsworth said simply. "There's a grand and glorious opportunity for it right here at Halcyn Camp. That's why I'm staying on. Besides, there will be an added interest now in watching you watch them wriggle. I'm quite looking forward to that."

"All right." Hale laid down his half-smoked cigarette. "Ainsworth, you won't mind if I ask you to clear out, will you?" he added. "I've had a long day and I'm all in. Con-va-lescent, you know."

"I know. But you'll brace up here," Ainsworth predicted. "Did anyone tell you we bathe on the beach at eleven? Private beach. All to ourselves unless Mrs. Nash and her cub show up. They often do. She likes this beach better than her own, and God made the Kneelands to be imposed upon. That's the real reason we're all here. You, too, old man. I'll tiddle now. Good-night. See you at breakfast."

Hale closed the door behind him and threw open the third window of his room. A place Ainsworth had been in seemed to need special ventilation. He went again to a front window and stared out over the sea to calm his nerves. As he looked two figures detached themselves from the sheltering trees at the left of the house. One almost immediately turned back into the woods. The other moved toward the house. He looked at it idly. It was not yet midnight. Probably some of the servants had been having a moonlight rendezvous. Hale stiffened. The figure approaching the house was nearer now. It was not anxious to be seen. It kept as close to the trees as it could, but Hale recognized it. It was—could it be? Miss Hosanna? Yes. Her plump figure was unmistakable and now he saw her face, quite clearly in the moonlight.

Her companion had been a man, not one of the guests at Halcyn Camp, but a stranger. He had been a lean fellow, with a narrow, unpleasant face. There was something furtive about the meeting. The man might have been a servant, but there was no man-servant at the Camp in addition to Banks and Joe. What was he, and why was Miss Hosanna meeting him in a lonely wood toward midnight?

Absolutely Hale decided that it was none of his business. He threw off his dressing-gown, switched off the electric light, and jumped into bed. A few minutes later he heard soft quick footsteps passing his door and going further along the hall. Miss Hosanna, no doubt. But what the devil had the woman been doing with that unwholesome human specimen she had met?

Hale awoke to an impression of gorgeous sunshine and a singing sea. He had slept from two on without turning, and he felt like a fighting-cock. He looked at his watch. Half past eight. He sprang out of bed, hustled into the bathroom, and made a quick toilet. If Kneeland had been in Camp he wouldn't have thought much of a new employee who showed up at nine o'clock on his first morning. It was exactly nine when Hale entered the dining-room.

He found it empty save for Rose, who looked very smart in a fresh pink uniform.

Plants Thrive 1,000 Feet Underground In Experiments Made in South Wales

Strange discoveries 1,000 feet below the surface of the earth have recently proved that plants can flourish without the aid of sunlight. A few months ago a South Wales colliery was wired for electric light, and globes of a sunlight type were fitted. Within a few weeks, patches of green plant life began to appear, and have since developed to strong growths.

Viscount Weymouth, an enthusiastic explorer of the Cheddar caves, recently wired some of the caverns for floodlights, to show off the gleaming metals in the rocks. After a few months small plants were found to be thriving in the lamp rays, and they have now developed into patches several feet wide.

When London buildings were flooded for the coronation, it was found that small plants were beginning to grow in wall crevices near each light. These plants were not of the type found in London parks, but had come from the country, and even from the tropics, the minute seeds being carried on currents of air. But as soon as the lights were removed the plants withered and died.

The blue mercury lamps which are now used in many London suburbs have also brought new life to trees, shrubs and plants that are near them. The rays, apparently, have the same effect as sunshine, and gardens under the direct glow of the lamps are blooming, while others, out of the lamps' range, are a mass of withered leaves.

It seems as though we may, one day, be able to pick select blooms on a winter's day, thanks to the use of the right kind of electric lamp.

Tooth Is Honored

One of the strangest festivals in the world is observed in Kandy, Ceylon. Native bands clang mystic music, dancers whirl along streets and elephants in gorgeous trappings lumber by—all in honor of a tooth! The tooth is thought by Buddhists of Ceylon to be the eye-tooth of their god, Buddha. Supposedly, says the Washington Post, it was picked off his funeral pyre, taken to Ceylon 1,600 years ago. Ordinarily, it reposes in the great temple at Kandy. But once a year it is paraded at a huge festival or "Perahera." It rides alone, encased in a diamond-studded, bell-shaped casket, on the back of the biggest of the temple elephants. Four priests support a canopy over the tooth. The elephant and the two pachyderms flanking it are jewel-bedecked. Lines of dancers precede and follow the relic.

Lesson for September 25

DAVID: TRIUMPHANT FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Psalms 23 and 27:1-3. GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want. Psalm 23:1.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Song of the Shepherd.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Song of a Shepherd Boy.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Songs of Faith and Courage.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Steadfast and Triumphant Faith.

What a fitting conclusion to our three-month study of Old Testament characters it is to sound the note of "triumphant faith." The life stories which have passed in review have been true to life, as they have shifted from strength to weakness, from fear to courage, from moral responsibility to moral weakness. But God is the one who changeth not—and we would not close our series properly without the encouraging reminder that the man who truly believes God may know strength out of weakness, courage in place of fear, may like David rise out of degrading sin and defeat into the joy and victory of faith.

Two elemental needs are common to all mankind—provision for the maintenance of life, both physical and spiritual, and protection from the enemies of soul and body. Our first Scripture portion declares the faith of David in God, as his providing shepherd and the second as his security from fear.

I. Provision (Ps. 23).

"The Lord is my shepherd." Putting God first in every detail of life means that there will be

1. No want (vv. 1-3). "My cup runneth over," and surely then there can be no lack of any good thing. God is able and willing. We, like David, should trust Him.

2. No weakness (v. 3). "He restoreth my soul." The world is puzzled by the rejuvenating power of the grace of God in the Christian's soul, but it becomes very real to us through the Word, through prayer, through the indwelling Holy Spirit Himself.

3. No wandering (v. 3). "He leadeth me." In an unknown or dangerous country the essential thing is to stay close to one's guide. In the wilderness of this sinful world, we must keep close to our divine Leader. He knows where the still waters and the green pastures are to be found, even in wildest and most barren land.

4. No worry (v. 6). "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life." It was true of David, it is (or should be), preeminently true of the Christian. Someone has said, "If we trust we do not worry; if we worry we do not trust."

5. But—blessed assurance. Not only will the goodness of God follow us all our days, but we shall "dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

II. Protection (Ps. 27:1-6).

"The Lord is my light and my salvation"—could there be any greater certainty that we shall be delivered from every danger and difficulty? To the one who walks in that light there can be

1. No fear (v. 1). "The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid?" He is the perfect and final answer to all the fears of life.

2. No failure (vv. 2, 3). "Though an host should encamp against me . . . in this will I be confident," that they shall but stumble and fall. One of the fears that dogs the footsteps of a man is that after all his effort and labor some enemy will come in and destroy. The Christian must often meet wicked and troublesome enemies—but though they be a host, he may be serene in his soul, knowing that if he is right with God the devices of man or devil against him shall only fail.

3. No falling (vv. 4, 5). "He shall set me up upon a rock," and that rock is in "the secret of his tabernacle." The assurance of the believer in Christ is in Him, His work upon the cross and His certain word of promise.

David longed for the house of the Lord; he wanted to return to the temple from which his many wanderings so often separated him. How blessed is our lot as Christians for we have in our own bodies the temple of the Holy Spirit (I Cor. 3:16, 17); we have Christ in us as the hope of glory (Col. 1:22). We also long to be in God's house (that is if we really love Him), but if we are born again we have the temple of God wherever we may be.

4. No fainting (v. 6). "Now shall mine head be lifted up above mine enemies round about me." Just when, humanly speaking, we would faint because of the enemies all around us, or by reason of the heat and pressure of the fight, then God causes our heads to be lifted up and in the moment of apparent defeat there is victory.

5. But—a song. "I will sing praises unto the Lord." The atmosphere of praise is one which the enemy of our soul cannot stand. It is too rare, too pure, too holy for him. Next time he tries to defeat you—why not "Try Praise"? It works!

Smart Fall Styles That Are Flattering

HERE are two charming fashions with the crisp, slim-waisted, very feminine look that proves they are new and smart! And you'll notice that the sleeves are proudly puffed up, not out—they give height, not width, to the shoulders. These two simple designs, each accompanied by a detailed sew chart, make it very very easy for you to have two leading fashions of the coming season at very little cost.

Two-Piece With Jacket Blouse.

This charming fashion is extremely good this fall. It's tailored or dressy, according to the materials in which you make it up. The skirt is slim and plain. The jacket-blouse as youthful and becoming as it can be. For street, make it of wool crepe, flannel or faille. For afternoon, choose velvet or broadcloth for the skirt; satin, velvet or silver cloth for the jacket blouse.

With Smart, Slenderizing Lines.

Notice that the front panel of the skirt is cut in one with the midriff section—that's a smart detail that you see in expensive models, and it's excellent for large women. You can trust the suave, slick lines of this dress to make you look several pounds slimmer. It fits beautifully. Shoulder darts, and gathers above the waistline, ease it over the bust, without any hint of bulkiness. Make this of satin, silk crepe, velvet or sheer wool, and you'll like it better than any dress you've had for a long time.

The Patterns.

1477 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2 yards of 39 inch material for the jacket-blouse; 2 yards for the skirt.

1585 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 5½ yards of 39 inch material for long-sleeved dress; 4½ yards for short-sleeved.

Fall and Winter Fashion Book.

The new 32-page Fall and Winter Pattern Book which shows photographs of the dresses being worn is now out. (One pattern and the Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents.) You can order the book separately for 15 cents.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.

Burning, stinging or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

from the deals. If we may be permitted to advertise in our own editorial column, the above hint might bring in additional business to some of our advertisers.

When the enemies of Daniel of old threw him into the lion's den, the Lord shut the mouths of the lions so that they did not even attempt to harm little Daniel. But when Wilbert Lee O'Daniel suddenly found himself in the midst of a den of snarling lions down at the Beaumont convention early last week, there was nobody there to shut the lion's mouth and it looked for a time as if they were going to rend him to pieces. They did nothing more however than chase him from the stage.

Modernize your home with proper lighting. Just one I.E.S. lamp will discover a distinctive charm that, heretofore, has been hidden by dim light. Many homes discovered a definite need for several more. Remember, it is impossible to have too much certified light.

So that you may "light condi-

SHOULD GO TO WORK

I may be a bit out of date to say that somebody ought to go to work in order that the people may get back to a self supporting basis.

I believe in the government helping a fellow when he is down and out, but this thing of lying down on the government and depending on it to support him and his numerous offspring, is going to put us in a worse hole than we have ever been in since the Civil War.

A man who never tries to be self-supporting soon loses his individuality. He loses his pride and even interest in the government which supports him. With him it is come day, go day and God send Sunday.
He loaf around and watches for six o'clock and pay day. He never tries to get ahead or put aside a penny for a rainy day.

I fear that so many people are being spoiled by being fed at the public trough that the coming generation will have a tough time of it when Uncle Sam takes out from them and lets them root, hog or die.

These dependencies on the bounties of the government are like cows in late winter when the grass is short. An old cow could make it through the winter if she keeps on working at the short grass, but her owner thinks too much of her to let her grow thin, so he feeds her. After being fed for awhile, she soon learns to lie down on her master and becomes so lazy that if breath didn't come and go of its own volition
she would die.

While it is a homely comparison, lots of people are like cows in that respect. As soon as Uncle Sam begins to feed them, they quit work and will not try to work for their feed.

One of these days Uncle Sam is going to find out that somebody must go to work or there will be no beans. Then he will let them rustle or starve. When they find out that no one will work for a living for them, they will go to work for themselves. It is a mighty bad thing to keep people up at the expense of others unless they actually need it.
Work makes the beans taste good.
Anyway—Uncle Bill Kellis in the Sterling City News-Record.

Honestly, it seemed to us a crying shame when the delegates to the C. Daniel convention at Beaumont turned upon him and shouted him down when he undertook to speak on the pension plank of his platform. Most of the irate delegates doubtless were men who had loyally supported O'Daniel but who became enraged when he pronounced his blessings upon six candidates in the run-off. The friends of Mann and Sadler and some others did not appreciate this and they said so.
The Beaumont convention afforded them the opportunity to vent their feelings, and they turned loose.
Poor Wilbert Lee appeared dumb-founded, finally climbed off the platform and slunk back to his hotel, wondering perhaps if politics was always like this.

Up at Canyon the Panhandle-Plains Museum will soon have among its exhibits an old-time printing office of G-Wash hand press vintage. The junior editor of The News and several other newspapermen of the Panhandle Press Association have been gathering material and planning the shop, and they hope to preserve in the exhibit some of the atmosphere of the early-day West Texas printing office. There will be the George Washington hand press, an old-time paper cutter, the type stand, the editorial nail keg, the "shooting stick", the hand compositor's type-stand, stool, eyeshades, corncob pipe, composition rule, etc. Then there will be such accessories as the dirty towel, the dirty apron, the coal oil lamp, the spittoon, and the editor's "persuasion iron" (gun), without which no early day printing office was complete. Also, pictures of pioneer and present day editors will be displayed in panels along with the exhibit. The Museum at West Texas State is possibly the largest in the Southwest, at least until the University of Texas-Legion museum is completed, and is especially noted for historical documents, ranch and Indian relics, and its rapidly growing fossil animal life exhibits and research work. One hundred and sixty thousand people have registered as visitors to the museum and represent every state in the Union and nearly every nation in the world.

For two weeks or more it looked as if the breaking out of another general European war was only a matter of a few hours. To prevent such a catastrophe, England and France used their influence to induce the Czechoslovakians to surrender to the demands of Hitler.
The Czechs had steadfastly refused to do so up to the time this was written. It may be that Hitler will have begun an invasion of Czechoslovakia before this reaches the readers. If so this will probably mean the final dismemberment of the latter country and it may mean further aggression by Hitler in other directions later on. It's the dictators that are threatening the peace of the world. It seems a pity that we can't get rid of them in some way, just as we get rid of rattlesnakes and mad dogs.

The senior editor again extends greetings to all the subscribers and friends of the News. We have only the very best wishes for every one of you. This is a great people whom we love and appreciate. We can never express our gratitude for the numberless evidences of interest and friendship shown us during our recent illness. But we are unable to contribute to the publication of the paper except in only the most meager way. But we can assure you that the other workers on the News will continue to give you a fine paper weekly as they have been doing.
Again we want to thank everybody.

SOME MORE VERSE

The News does not publish verse as a practice, but J. B. Ray of and we reprint them here on the behest of Mr. Ray.

My Dad

A dear, kind dad I never knew,
Within my memory—
I wish I could remember—
Sitting upon his knee.

To feel his strong arms 'round me
When he rocked me fast asleep—
If I could remember him
It would mean so much to me.

I wish I could remember him
When I was just a lad,
And the lot of fun we used to have
Like other boys and their Dads;

Like going fishing and swimming
Down by the old mill dam,
And hear him say "Sonny boy, be quiet,
Or you'll surely have to scam."

Health-Wrecking Functional

PAINS

Severe functional pains of menstruation, cramping spells and jangled nerves soon rob a woman of her natural, youthful freshness. PAIN lines in a woman's face too often grow into AGE lines!

Thousands of women have found it helpful to take Cardul. They say it seemed to ease their pains and they noticed an increase in their appetites and finally a strengthened resistance to the discomfort of monthly periods.

Try Cardul. Of course if it doesn't help you, see your doctor.

Friends have told me much about him—

What a fine man was he;
How he loved a little boy—
And that little boy was me.

Wish I could remember Wise counsel he would have given me,

To help me to go straight
Across life's rugged sea.

To-day I am a man,
Nearing life's December,
Still wishing for a dear kind Dad—
There was something to remember.

Making Cotton Price Payments

College Station—Cotton price adjustment payments on the 1937 crop, which are expected to go to some 350,000 Texas farmers, are under way, and checks have started going out from the Regional Disbursing office, the state AAA office at Texas A. and M. College has announced.

Payments in excess of $2,500,000 were certified during the past week, and additional payments are being certified at the rate of around $600,000 a day.

It is estimated that payments under the cotton price adjustment program will reach 37 million dollars in Texas, Geo. Slaughter, Wharton, chairman of the Texas Agricultural Conservation Committee, said.

During the first week, some 15,000 applications for payments were certified.

Dr. H. H. Hughes and son of Brownfield visited Dr. Hughes' mother, Mrs. A. N. Hughes, and sister, Mrs. R. C. Forrester Sunday and attended the dedication services at the Baptist Church.

THE LIFE OF THE PARTY IN THIS PAPER

Famous Big Ben Is Not a Clock But Giant Bell

Big Ben is not a clock! It is a giant bell, weighing 13 tons, with a four hundredweight hammer, on which the Westminster clock, built by Frederick Dent and fixed in the tower in 1859, strikes the hours. The first blow on Big Ben denotes the correct time.

Largest striking, most accurate and powerful public clock in the world, says London Tit-Bits Magazine, Westminster's Time Dictator has four faces, each 23 feet in diameter, the centers being 180 feet from the ground. The figures are 2 feet long, the minute spaces one foot square, and the copper minute hands are 14 feet long, weighing about 2 hundredweight each. They travel a distance equal to 100 miles a year. The gunmetal hour hands, nine feet long, weigh about six hundredweight. The 13 foot pendulum, beating two seconds, has a bob that weighs 4 hundredweight, and the clock weights are nearly 2 1/2 tons. Big Ben's young brothers, the four quarter bells, account for nearly eight tons.

Winding is done by electric motor three times a week, but, contrary to popular belief, the clock is not automatically synchronized or controlled, although twice a day it telegraphs its time automatically to Greenwich observatory for checking. Its accuracy is astonishing. Out of 270 days checked, the error of signal was not greater than two-tenths second on 118 days, from two-tenths to five-tenths second on 105 days, five-tenths to one second on 42 days and only greater than one second on five occasions.

To get to that clock room you must climb 292 steps.

Celery Traced Back to the Ancient Egyptians

The ancient Egyptians are credited with the growing of celery long before the coming of Christ. However, the white, crisp vegetable that we have on our dinner table is used in a different way. Where we enjoy eating it, the Egyptians used it in their funeral rites. According to information from a breeding institute, Egyptologists found a garland of it on the breast of a mummy of the twentieth dynasty discovered at Sheikh - abd - el Kureh, near Thebes. This would make it approximately 3,000 years old.

The celery which we eat resembles wild celery which thrives all over Europe and Asia. However, wild celery is slightly acid in taste. Ancient records of this vegetable are rather indefinite. So it is doubtful if celery was cultivated for eating purposes until the Middle ages. It is supposed that the Selinus mentioned by Homer in the Odyssey was wild celery. Dioscorides distinguished forms of the plant. Much later, in 1629, Parkinson wrote that "sellery" was rare in England. Apparently the garden vegetable was introduced into Great Britain from Italy. Italy probably began the actual cultivation of "garden celery" or "eating celery." During the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries the English referred to it as "smallage," and the French called it "ache." However, these terms have become obsolete.

Practical, Practicable

Practical means that which is adapted to actual conditions; that which experience has proved to be useful. While the others were wondering what to do, Jones took practical steps to stop the leak in the boat. Evangeline was a dreamer, Joan a practical kind of girl. Practicable denotes that which may be practiced, used, or followed with good results. Some solutions to material problems are all right in theory, but are not practicable in actual practice; in other words they cannot be carried out. To leave a room all you need do is to go out by the door—but if the door is locked on the outside that method of leaving is impracticable.

Early Use of Osage Orange

In the early days farmers turned to osage orange for wood to make felloes (or rims) of wagon wheels. Pioneer wives used to make a yellow dye from the wood of the tree, while a tanning mixture can be made from the bark. Indians used the osage as wood for their bows. The tree was called Bois d'Arc (wood of the bow) by the French in the South. So valuable was an osage bow that sometimes a horse and a blanket represented the price of a good one of excellent grain and finish.

Historic Nyon

Nyon is picturesquely situated on the lake of Geneva, Switzerland. It is a very ancient little town, for it was founded by the Romans in 46 B. C. The chateau, which forms Nyon's crowning diadem, was first heard of in 1239, but the main part of the building dates from the end of the Sixteenth century.

Ambergris for Tea

Much of the world's ambergris is washed up on the Taniand coast of Kenya Protectorate, Africa. It is ejected by the Cachalot whale, whose habitat is far from here. Its value in perfume is very high, averaging $25 per ounce. The wealthy Arabs of Morocco use it to flavor their tea.

A report received by the Texas Planning Board indicates that a Japanese industrial firm is ready to confine its manufacturing activities to one product of the soil—the soybean, which can be profitably raised in Texas. The Japanese firm plans to use the wonder bean for the manufacture of hardened oil, soap, sodium glutamate, synthetic soy-sauce, casein, amino acid, plastics and fiber.

The American automobile industry uses 150,000,000 yards, or 40 percent of the annual mohair supply in the United States to make upholstery, according to the Texas Planning Board which points out that Texas mohair producers benefit most as they produce more than 80 per cent of the domestic supply.

California walnut growers are crushing waste walnut shells into a flour and converting it into plastic compounds such as bakelite, insulators, tiling and linoleum, and Texas Planning Board's technicians are now studying the possibilities of crushing Texas' waste pecan shells into a similar flour.

J. W. Fortenberry of Post visited his parents Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Fortenberry here Sunday.

Miss Billie Rowland left last week for Abilene where she is enrolled as a sophomore in McMurry.

There will be singing at Redwine Sunday afternoon, September 25. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Minor visited Mrs. Minor's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Carter in Paducah Sunday.

Mrs. John Stokes of Bangs is here on an extended visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Hicks of Abilene were here Sunday visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jim Van Dyke.

Numerous Eastern investment firms are seeking information on industrial opportunities in Texas from the Texas Planning Board.

Texas marine resources, among the most valuable in the State, have not been scratched by industry.

Capital which overreaches for profits; labor which overreaches for wages; or a public which overreaches for bargains will all destroy each other.—Owen D. Young.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Ray of the Magnolia community are visiting his mother in Eastland county this week.

School Spirit

(An Editorial)
In the editor's opinion, the base of school spirit is ambition and friendship. A student should be ambitious to make his school among the best in the state and to improve himself by taking part in all possible school activities. Friendship will cause a student to co-operate with his classmates and to take an interest in their work.

School spirit is usually considered first in sports. They are among the best attribute of a good school. Many schools work and co-operate to have fine athletics and good crowds at the competition, and then stop. They have worked and co-operated and shown their school spirit.

School spirit is proportionately important in other activities such as the pep squad, band, interscholastic League contests, and class competition. The pep squad and band are intended largely to help school spirit. They are to advertise the school and pep up the team.

If the only benefit from school activities were school spirit and training, they would nearly all be worth while. But these are all fun to take part in if you start right. The editor believes the willingness to work and co-operate in these activities is part of school spirit.

Senior High-Lights

The Senior group is proud to report that it was backing the Bulldogs one hundred percent. The class as a whole gives confidence to the Bulldogs. We will be backing them again tonight when we clash with the Cooper bunch. The Seniors invite everyone to be there.

Flash! Click! Click! Click! The Senior Class as a whole is going nutty about Chaucer. "If gold will rust, what will iron do?" This is one example.

Here's a boost for the Bulldogs.

Junior News

The Junior class for 1938 and '39 is a large one, consisting of about 50 students full of pep and ready to go. I mean by this they will be the leading class of Tahoka High School through the school term of 38 and 39.

Since the first day of enrollment the juniors have made much progress in selecting their officers and getting the new year off right. Our officers are as follows:

President—Carl Lane.
Vice-President—La Ruth Walden.
Sec'y.—Treas.—Lynette Tinsley.
Reporter—J. W. Weathers.
Social Chairman—Genale Henderson.

The boxes are all open in Tahoka High School for all classes to select a nominee for the Tahoka High queen. The Juniors already have their selection, and it is Doris

Sophomores

The Sophomore class met Wednesday of last week and elected officers needed for this organization.

The officers are as follows:

Social Reporter—Nieto La Nell Stephens.

Social chairman—Jean Simmons.
Class Flower—Violet.

Reporter—Nieto La Nell Stephens.

Freshman News

The Freshman class started off with a bang! We have an enrollment of 63.

As yet, the class officers have not been elected. When they are we shall get some capable officers because this Freshman class is one of the finest ever seen in Tahoka High School.

Wanda Lee Tinsley has been appointed by Mrs. Hegi as temporary reporter.

Seventh Grade News

The seventh grade held a class meeting Tuesday of last week. The following officers were elected: President, Sarah Jane Jones; Vice-President, Peggy Fenton; Reporter, La Voyle Richardson; Sergeant-at-arms, Dale Hogan; Fire Monitor, Cecil Curry.

The girls organized two soft ball teams, "The Tornadoes," of which Sarah Jane Jones is Captain, and the "Cardinals," of which Danna Sue Eaton is Captain. They are evenly matched. So far the Cardinals are 2 up on the Tornadoes, but the Tornadoes plan to storm the Cardinals before the week is over.

The boys have likewise organized two soft ball clubs, the Rattlesnakes, of which Horace West is captain and "The Giants," Cecil Curry is captain of "The Giants".

The seventh grade has sixty members. Each member is interested in making—the class the best seventh grade Tahoka has ever had.

Tahoka Wins!

The Tahoka Bulldogs and the Frenship Tigers clashed last Friday night on the new lighted football field. The Bulldogs emerged with a victory between their teeth, the score being 18 to 7 in our favor.

The boys were splendidly backed by one of the largest crowds ever assembled at a local football game. The pep squad, aided by the Brownfield band, gave the Bulldogs plenty of enthusiasm.

The Brownfield Band, with the aid of the Tahoka pep squad, gave a demonstration at the half. The fans were very much delighted with the display of color.

Fans from other cities and members of football clubs from other towns were present.

Tahoka received the kick-off and made steady gains toward a touchdown. J. H. Dyer plunged through the line in the first ten minutes of the first quarter to make the first touchdown of the game. Tahoka failed in their attempt to make an extra point.

Frenship attempted many passes and completed few, one resulting in a touchdown in the latter part of the third quarter. G. Bond carried the ball over the goal line and Frenship kicked the goal.

Tahoka tried several passes and completed most of them. The Bulldogs gained several yards by passing.

Max Minor made two touchdowns for the hard-fighting Bulldogs. Each time the Bulldogs failed in their attempt to gain the extra point.

The Bulldogs as a team are improving immensely.

Alvin White, right guard, blocked several long passes that would have been otherwise useful to the Tigers in making a larger score.

Max Minor and J. H. Dyer played skillfully and gained many yards as well as three touchdowns. Odean Millman, tackle, Finis Connolly, left end, Earl Adams, right end, played football as never before. It seems that the Tigers just couldn't keep them from breaking through, no matter how hard they tried.

The Frenship Tigers and Coach Bob Rich were pleased with the excellent sportsmanship that the Bulldogs displayed all through the game. The Bulldogs also appreciated Frenship's fair playing.

The Bulldogs are showing the team's various opponents, as well as local fans, that Coach Harlow is an excellent coach. Mr. Harlow is becoming more and more satisfied with the Bulldogs. The statement, "if the coaching is good and the players are average, a good football is certain," which applies to the Bulldogs and Mr. Harlow, is very true.

The Bulldogs will have another chance to "bring home the bacon" tonight when they tie up with the Cooper football squad. This game promises to be one of the best games of the season. Cooper has a team that's "raring to go" and they are going to give the Bulldogs a run for the money.

The Tahoka High School and the Football Club invites you to attend the Tahoka-Cooper game tonight at the local lighted football field. Fans who attended the Tahoka-Frenship game report that the game was indeed a spectacular one.

Come one, come all, and see the Tahoka-Cooper game tonight. Come and boost the local team. Let them know that the public wants them to win. Give the boys the necessary backing and they will come out on top.

LOST CONTINENT IS FOUND IN MEXICO

Area Was Buried Hundred Million Years Ago.

NEW YORK.—Discovery of "a lost continent" in northern Mexico is reported to the Geological Society of America. The area, it is explained, was buried 100,000,000 years ago beneath the sediments of an ancient sea. Indications have also been found of a lost ocean which separated North and South America during the same age.

Evidence of the missing land and sea has been uncovered by Dr. Lewis B. Kellum, associate professor of geology at the University of Michigan and Dr. Ralph Imlay of the museum of paleontology at the University of Michigan. Their studies will be completed this summer in the state of Sonora in northwestern Mexico by Doctor Imlay, who has just been awarded a grant by the society.

As remapped by geologists, the continent has the shape of a bear's paw which points east and projects 250 miles from the southern border of Texas into an ocean which lay in what is now the central part of Mexico.

Get First Clues.

Layers of different types of rock, set like leaves of a closed book, each with fossilized marine life, found during previous expeditions, gave geologists the first clues leading to the discovery. A shoreline exposed by erosion in the southern section of the state of Coahuila added valuable information. To geologists, the rock layers are part of a code, each layer representing an age through which the earth passed. The rocks within the area, now crumpled and folded, were traced back to the Permian age.

Locating the shoreline of the lost continent in northwestern Mexico by studying the rock layers on the sides of the gulleys, canyons, and gulches cut by erosion is the principal object of Doctor Imlay's 10-week expedition. He will concentrate his research over an area of 8,000 square miles in Sonora between Caborca and Altar on the west and the eastern boundary of Sonora on the east where it is believed the shoreline of the lost continent will be found.

In mapping the outlines of the continent, geologists have placed the shoreline boundary as approximately extending east along northern Sonora and slightly north to a point 75 miles southeast of El Paso, Texas, within the United States.

From this point it is definitely known that the line turns sharply southward across the Rio Grande and through the eastern part of the state of Chihuahua before extending southeast through the state of Durango where bandits held up and robbed the first expedition to the area in 1933. At that time a geologist was slightly wounded and costly scientific equipment stolen.

Trace Shoreline.

The continental shoreline executes an about-face in the state of Coahuila at the point of the bear's toe and continues northward into northwestern Coahuila. In turning again to the southeast, the shoreline forms a leaning inverted "V," the right arm of the "V" stopping near the border of the state of Nuevo Leon.

"Although these studies have no direct economic application," says Doctor Imlay, "they are of interest to both petroleum and mining geologists, because of their regional scope and bearing on the nature and reflection in overlying strata of a continental margin, and their possible contribution to knowledge of the factors which control ore deposition."

"In geologic exploration for petroleum, the present trend is toward search for buried shorelines. In southern Coahuila erosion has exposed an old shoreline. This can be examined on the surface over a broad area and its relation to the structure of the enclosing rocks can be seen. Its projection to the northeast beneath overlying strata may well lead to disclosure of a reservoir in areas where source beds of petroleum interfinger with, or overlie, the shore face."

"In ore prospecting, knowledge of horizons in which ore deposition commonly occurs may be of prime importance. If mineralization has been found to be limited to one or two horizons in the stratigraphic column, accurate mapping of the area will narrow the belt to be intensely prospected."

5,400 Pennies for Taxes

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.—Clerks in the New Bedford treasurer's office had a busy time when Antone Antunes laid down 5,400 pennies as part payment of a $200 tax bill.

Grade School Closes

After 132 Years' Use

CINCINNATI, OHIO.—One of the oldest rural grade schools in the nation wrote "finis" to its educational history here when the Science Hall school was closed after operating for 132 years. The final graduation class consisted of two boys, James Corbett and John Sterwerf. The one-room school building will be maintained as a historical object and its yard turned into a playground.

What a Blow This Will Be!

Surrounded by $3,000 worth of new musical instruments, this Texas State College for Women student, Miss Amalese Gough of Beaumont, can't decide whether to play the big double b flat symphony model bass tuba, an unusual instrument for a girl, the trumpet, or one of the other new pieces bought by the college. Launching an enlarged musical program, T. S. C. W. will have the only girls' symphony orchestra in the Southwest with complete instrumentation. Gibson Walters, conductor of the 75 piece orchestra, will give instruction to the girls on the new instruments, part of which are shown here.

ELDER DRENNON'S NOTES

Oh, you nice cool days and cooler nights! They ought to put pep into all of us, especially we young fellows and even old men like Frank Hill. Happy Smith, A. L. Smith and Lloyd Nowlin should be helped a lot.

Fall is a fine time of the year, but it has a touch of sadness as we see the trees, flowers and other vegetation getting ready to die and go to the grave, but think of the beautiful resurrection next spring when they shall burst forth into new life. How like our lives. It would be sad indeed if the grave was the end, but thanks be to God, Jesus conquered death and the grave for us, and now we have hope in the resurrection.

Last Lord's Day was a fine day with us. Crowds were good and one soul was saved from his past sins by being baptized into Christ. Plans were made for doing some mission work in the Newmoore community.

I wish we all might realize what Jesus said in John 4:35 "Say not ye, there are yet four months and then cometh harvest! Behold I say unto you, lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest"—and then go out and gather some of the golden grain.

I was impressed with the picture of the fine building the Baptist Church is dedicating this week, but I would not be true to my convictions if I did not say that I wished it housed the Church of Christ. If we were all one as Jesus prayed for in John 17-21-23 what a grand thing it would be, and think of the money we could save on meeting houses.

The Mexicans are sure coming to our little town. Last Saturday the streets were full of them and I was set to thinking what are the churches doing for their spiritual welfare. I sure wish I could speak their language so I could tell them of Jesus and His salvation.

In this time of war scare, think what it would mean if the people would let the God of Peace, send His Prince of Peace, into their hearts and lives.

Yours for more people interested in the Golden Rule, than the rule of gold.—R. P. DRENNON.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sewell of Lubbock were week-end visitors of the latter's parents Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Weathers. Mr. Sewell sang a special number at the dedication of the Baptist Church Sunday.

CONSTIPATED! Gas Crowds Heart.

"For thirty years constipation caused me headaches and pains in the back. Atrial bloating crowded my heart. Adieria helped right away. Now I eat sausage, bananas, etc., anything I want and never feel better."—Mrs. Mabel Schott. Two things happen when you are constipated. FIRST: Accumulated wastes swell up bowels and press on nerves in the digestive tract. SECOND: Partly digested food starts to decay forming GAS, bringing on your stomach, indigestion, and heartburn, bloating you up until you sometimes gasp for breath. Adieria gives double relief with DOUBLE ACTION. Adieria relieves STOMACH GAS almost at once. It often clears bowels in less than two hours. No griping, no after effects, just quick results. Recommended by many doctors for 35 years. Sold at all drug stores.

chemists who can manufacture "ersatz" or substitute materials of war. These products relieve them of some worry in the event of blockade, but there are certain essentials—like oil and cotton—which every nation must have to carry on successful warfare.

The discouraging inevitability of war has been growing in Europe's consciousness for five years, and out of that inevitability have arisen new methods of defense unparalleled in history. England, which is especially invulnerable to modern aircraft, has developed her "ARP" (air raids precaution) program to the point where almost every man, woman and child knows how to handle a gas mask. She has built bomb-proof and gas-proof cellars with feverish haste, constructed new coast defenses and trained expert anti-aircraft gunners.

But these precautions are minor compared to those of France, Germany and Czechoslovakia with their amazing "lines." Between 1929 and 1936, France employed 15,000 men to construct the Maginot line, a series of underground fortifications which extend from Belgium to Switzerland, aimed to protect the country against invasion from Germany.

When the September crisis first broke, France rushed hundreds of thousands of men into this line and Germany answered by hastening work on a similarly startling series of fortifications, the Siegfried line.

distance guns and other fiendish implements of Mars.

But the theory has not been borne out in the three conflicts the world has seen these past five years. Italy's campaign to capture Ethiopia lasted an amazingly long time, considering the crude type of opposition offered by Haile Selassie's forces. And in China the Japs have met with similar resistance. Shanghai was not captured overnight by a terrific bombing attack; the campaign lasted closer to five months.

The most striking example of modern warfare is in Spain, where two powerful forces are fighting their battles along tactics similar to those used in the World War. Madrid was bombed hundreds of times and still found itself able to hold out against Generalissimo Franco's rebel troops.

Thus, militarists of 1938 are of the opinion that warfare has not changed much in the past 20 years. As in the World War, the doughboy is the most vital factor in land conflict. A similar comparison can be made on the sea, where the battleship is still the backbone of the fleet despite mighty naval planes.

"Ersatz" to the Fore.

Perhaps the major difference between 1918 and 1938 is that gold is not now so important. The "allies" have behind them a gold reserve almost 30 times the value of that of Germany and Italy, but the latter two countries now boast of their

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Describes Diet After Middle Age; Shows How Right Food Can Prolong the Vigorous Years

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

ONE of the best prescriptions ever offered for longevity was advanced by the wise man who said: In the twenties, prepare for the thirties; in the thirties, prepare for the forties; and after that—prepare for a long and vigorous old age!

That advice is well worth following, for it has been estimated that by taking into account all the newer knowledge of nutrition, it is possible not only to improve health, but to add a number of years to the normal life span.

A Man Is as Young as He Feels

It has been well said that "the age of man has small relation to his years," for it has been demonstrated, both clinically and in the scientist's laboratory, that old age is a physiological condition rather than an accumulation of years. In grandmother's day, a woman of 50 was considered old. Today that age is regarded as young, and much of the important work of the world is being done by men and women who can see 50 only by looking over their shoulder.

Importance of Correct Diet

On the other hand, thousands of Americans are unknowingly impairing their efficiency and shortening their lives through the misuse of food. They are eating the wrong kind of food—and what is equally disastrous—they are overeating! They do not seem to realize that eating too much does not strengthen the body, but exhausts it with the labors of digestion. The surplus nourishment clogs the system and may be indirectly responsible for headache, dyspepsia, biliousness and mental dullness. Unless they change their habits of eating, they will inevitably become victims of their own indiscretions. For while it is folly to neglect the health at any age, to do so in middle life is to open the way to an early death or to an old age marred by sickness.

Keep Down the Weight

The first 25 years of man's life are devoted to growth. During this period of youth, the body usually has a large fund of reserve energy which can be called upon in times of stress. During the next 25 or 30 years, the weight should remain constant. If the diet is properly regulated, and sound habits of hygiene are followed, a man or woman will come into middle age full of vigor and with mental and physical capacities undiminished.

Unfortunately, however, the laws of hygiene and nutrition are often broken during the active middle years. As a result, bodily reserves are depleted and middle age finds many men and women near the danger line, no longer able to resist infections and the degenerative diseases.

That is why it is so desirable—if you hope to be vigorous at 50 and after—that you begin to plan for it many years earlier.

Live sensibly. Avoid overwork. Regularly take a moderate amount of exercise. Get enough sleep so that you avoid that chronic "tired feeling." Above all, eat enough, but not too much, of the foods that build and maintain health: milk; eggs; fruits and vegetables; protein foods in amounts just sufficient to meet your requirements, so that there is no excess to be eliminated; enough fuel foods to give you plenty of pep and power, but not in amounts that will cause the weight increase which many people erroneously believe inevitable during the middle years!

Curb the Appetite for Rich Foods

It is most important to avoid overeating. For muscular activity decreases with the passing years. The middle aged individual often rides where a younger person might walk or observes active sports from the sidelines where he formerly played them with zeal. Unfortunately, however, the appetite seldom diminishes in proportion to the lessened fuel needs. That is why every individual who has entered upon the middle years should check his or her weight frequently, and promptly reduce the fuel foods if a significant gain is noted.

The protein requirement diminishes somewhat after the age of 60 for no new tissue is being built. It is, furthermore, advisable to take a large share of the protein in the form of milk and eggs.

Vegetables should be used freely and if there is difficulty in mastication, they may be finely chopped. Fresh fruits may be eaten as long as they do not cause fermentation; otherwise cooked fruits should be used instead. Contrary to popular opinion, sweets can frequently be eaten in considerable amounts without causing indigestion. Fats, however, should be used sparingly.

Hot Foods Beneficial

Hot foods are often more easily digested than cold, and it is helpful to begin a meal with hot broth, in order to stimulate the secretion of digestive fluids. A hot beverage may also be beneficial at bedtime.

It is sometimes observed that five or six small meals are more easily digested than three large ones. Each person should discover what meal schedule best suits individual requirements and then abide by it. For it is indeed true that middle age—and the years beyond—are largely what you make them!

Questions Answered

Mrs. J. A. H.—Milk, fruits and vegetables supply a large part, but not all of the minerals required by the body daily. The diet must be supplemented with whole grain bread or cereals, eggs and some meat.

HOW to SEW

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THIS mat is made of white cotton cable cord such as you buy at the notion counter for corded seams and trimmings. The original mat from which this design was taken was made of—no one of this generation would ever guess what! Corset strings. These were once a common commodity along with collar boning, hat pins and side combs. There was quite a fad for making luncheon sets of them braided or arranged in various designs and sewn with fine stitches on the wrong side.

The design shown here is compact and, copied in rather heavy cord, makes an ideal hot dish mat. Follow the sketches for directions. Make the circles in pairs, as shown, using No. 40 cotton thread to sew them. Braid three cords together and then sew the braided strip around and around to make the center of the mat. Sew a row of the circles to the edge of this center part; then add another braided row, being careful to "ease in" the inside edge just enough to keep the mat flat. Continue adding alternate rows of circles and braiding until the mat is the size desired.

To join the ends of the braided rows, pull one end through the braiding to the wrong side of the mat; then trim the ends and sew them flat. It is not too early to begin thinking of Christmas gifts—and you will be wanting to make something a bit unusual for that next bazaar when it comes rolling around. Sewing Book 2, Embroidery, Gifts and Novelties, is full of new ideas all clearly illustrated with step-by-step pictures. ## J. A. Jaynes Has Some Fine Maize

J. A. Jaynes of New Lynn, who works hard to improve the quality of his planting seed, Saturday brought in some sample maize heads from this year's crop.

He had with him three heads of Black Hull maize, which variety he has been raising and improving on for twenty years, which weighed one pound and one and one-half ounces each. He has twenty acres of this variety that is making two tons to the acre, and he declares that it takes 800 fewer heads of this maize to make a ton than it does of the ordinary variety.

Mr. Jaynes also had a few heads of blight resistant maize which weighed 14 ounces each.

The Jaynes farm is contoured and terraced, and its owner is said to be one of the best farmers in that section of the county.

It's a Toss-Up—A Toast to Taste

A trick of the old-time bartender—tossing a drink from glass to glass—is being revived by modern maidens at summer drink fountains. This brings tree-ripened freshness to canned fruit juice, grapefruit growers in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas have found. The explanation: Grapefruit juice, which is packed now in its full fresh taste, is put up in vacuum—all air removed. To serve, "put the air back." Fountains and restaurants featuring the drink this summer pour the grapefruit juice from cans into their motor-driven mixing machines to aerate it.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Goodnough and Aletha of Snyder were here Sunday visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Cook and attended the Baptist dedication services. Mr. Goodnough and Aletha returned to Snyder Sunday night but Mrs. Goodnough remained for a longer visit.

Visiting last week with Mr. and Mrs. Will Brown and Mrs. Jewell Wells and family were Mrs. Lizzie Hendrix, niece of the Browns, and daughter. Mrs. Ernest Williams, grandniece, both of Palestine, and Mrs. J. F. Austin, niece, of Austin.

L. H. Moore, well known resident of the Lakeview community, underwent a serious operation on one of his eyes in a Lubbock Sanitarium last Thursday and is said to be making satisfactory progress toward recovery.

Brown Bradley, brother of Don, visited his mother and other relatives and friends here over the week-end. He returned Monday to Odessa, where he is a post office clerk.

Mrs. Edd Goddard, who recently underwent major surgery in a Lubbock hospital, is reported well on the road to recovery and expects to return home in a few days. Mrs. Goddard is a sister-in-law of Mrs. J. H. Edwards of Tahoka.

Mr. and Mrs. Borden Davis and daughter, Gwynnelle of Brownfield were visitors here Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Curry and attended the special services at the Baptist Church.
