War Fund Quota For Lynn County Is Set At $4475.00

The $4,495.00 Lynn County War Fund drive gets under way November 3, continuing to November 13, under the leadership of Wallace Kohler, county chairman, it was announced Thursday.

In the 10-day drive, citizens of Lynn county will be called on to raise their quota of the $125,000,000 national fund to benefit seventeen national and international agencies.

"If you have been shaken with sorrow by the sufferings of the oppressed countries, if the cries of small children, desolate mothers and tortured prisoners have rung in your ears, you will give out of pity." "If you have shoes on your feet, clothes on your back, food in your kitchen and a roof over your head, you will give out of gratitude."

"If you believe that the United Nations are struggling for a better world for our children and grandchildren, you will give out of wisdom."

"Admiration, pity, gratitude, faith, wisdom—five reasons for giving. For which on earth you give?" The National War Fund will take care of all these agencies, doing away with the numerous drives throughout the year: USO, United Seaman's Service, War Prisoners Aid, U. S. Committee for Care of European Children, and China, Belgian, Czechoslovak, Yugoslav, Russian, British, French, Luxembourg, Greek, Norwegian, Polish, and the Queen Wilhelmina relief funds.

Dr. H. C. Pender Rotary Speaker

Dr. H. C. Pender, head of the department of government in the Texas Technological College, was the guest speaker at the Rotary luncheon Thursday.

"International Relations" was the theme of his address, which was generally pronounced one of the best that the club has heard in weeks.

By virtue of his position, he has made a special study of this and related subjects and his opinions carry great weight. Regional cooperation—that is cooperation of nations lying in the same geographical division—has been developing through the years, he pointed out, and will probably develop to a greater degree following this war.

He thinks the regional coalitions will aid in bringing about a greater coalition among these nations of the world to preserve peace, but he warned against the efforts of isolationists in this country to use these regional organizations as a substitute for a world-wide international co-operative movement.

The speaker was introduced by Tom Garrard.

The club discussed plans for a special Armistice Day observance.

Control of Cattle Grubs Explained

Now is the time to start making your plans to eradicate the grubs (or ox-warbles) from your cattle. The cattle grub cost cattle producers in the United States from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 each year. The total loss of cattle production in Texas amounts to about $5,000,000 every year.

Approximately 840,000 animals slaughtered in Texas each year are infested with grubs and an average of two pounds of meat is trimmed from each grubby carcass, and after trimming, the loins and ribs are devalued two cents per pound. This trimming causes a loss of 1,680,000 pounds of Texas beef, enough to feed 4,600 soldiers for one year.

Cattle grubs cut holes through the thickest, best part of the hide, causing a reduction of one cent per pound and the loss of enough leather to furnish shoes for 1,000,000 soldiers one year. Grubs cause an average loss of $3.86 per "grubby animal" in the packing plant alone, and as a result these animals are devalued from one-half cent per pound on the market. The producer pays the bill.

In addition to meat and leather losses, heel flies and grubs cause a 25% reduction in milk production in dairy cows and other definite losses that are difficult to estimate. These tremendous losses caused by cattle grubs can be prevented. According to J. C. Smith, county agricultural agent, a simple, inexpensive and effective treatment is now available.

There are five different methods of controlling the cattle grub, one which will fit any size herd. These methods of control are:

1. Extract the grubs by hand. This is applicable where you have only a few cattle.
2. Wash with paste consisting of 12 ounces of either cube or derris powder and 6 ounces of wettable sulphur. Add water to make one gallon. The wash is good for small herds.

3. Inject benzol, undiluted, into each grub hole with an oilcan. The injection method is good for average size herds.
4. Dust with cube or derris powder and wettable sulphur.
5. Spray with a power sprayer, derris powder and wettable sulphur added to water. This is good for range herds.

Uncle Sam and our boys in the Armed Services need our assured protection in beef and milk, and you cannot stand the loss due to grubby animals.

The first grubs will start appearing on cattle in Lynn county in the very near future and will continue throughout the winter months. You will have to apply the treatment that you decided to use several times during the winter, since all grubs do not come to the surface at the same time.

For further information, it is suggested that you contact the county agricultural agent, who will be glad to explain in detail the different methods of treatment.

5641 Pickers Placed By Two Services

According to J. C. Smith, county agricultural agent, the Extension Service and the United States Employment Service have placed 5641 boll pickers with framers in Lynn county since the beginning of the cotton harvest season. Farmers that are still encountering difficulty in securing boll pickers should contact either Olin Evers, Farm Placement Interviewer, of the USES, or J. C. Smith, county agent. Mr. Evers' office is also at the county agent's office.

Farmers have found it more difficult to harvest their cotton crops this year than in previous years, however the situation has not been as bad as was expected before the actual harvesting started. It is believed that we will be able to finish our harvesting without undue hardships, if good weather is in our favor.

According to the county agent, crews of boll pickers are coming in larger groups this year than ever before, due to tire and gasoline shortage. Consequently, it has become necessary that farmers accommodate these larger crews in order to harvest the cotton. It has been most difficult to find smaller crews for the quarter section farmers, however, this is being worked out by pooling the acreages of two or three farmers and harvesting it in that manner. One of the largest crews that the county agent has encountered contained 114 members. He estimates that the average crew has from 30 to 40 people in it.

THE MILLION DOLLAR HOME
Letter of thanks from Elder D. W. Reed and wife to their many friends whose hearts have been opened to cause them to show such esteem for the past association as to donate so liberally to the fund for an old age home for the humble old servant of the Cross.

Words are poor substitutes for the something we need to express the feelings of our generosity engenders.

We are told people of all denominations and many who have no church affiliations have been donors and we appreciate the place we have now in your thoughts. Especially do we thank the committee, Mr. Lub Burk, Prof. E. Henderson, and Mr. Geo. Sartain, for their sacrifice of time and effort.

We truly believe we have seen the workings of God's hand in these past weeks.

The home has been purchased and is located three miles east of Garnolia school house, one mile north of Post-Tahoka highway, where we will be at home after January, 1944, and hope our many friends can visit us and help us enjoy our shelter for our declining years.

A home is worth a million dollars, as anyone who is homeless will tell you, and friends so true are wealth untold.

The committee has not yet disbanded, as there are promises not yet fulfilled. As soon as they make a final report, we will publish it as you all will wish to know the results. We want to be of service in such ways as God approves and will do all we can to be ready when needed.

"Bless be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love."
Eld. and Mrs. D. W. Reed.

Poultry Meeting Being Planned

In accordance with the National and State Poultry Conservation program sponsored by the Poultry Industry and headed in Texas by Prof. D. H. Reid of Texas A. and M. College, Lynn county has organized a local poultry conservation committee composed of leading poultrymen and representatives of agricultural services, according to N. S. Abbott, New Home agriculture teacher.

Recommendations from the state committee have been received by the local organization and plans are being made to begin a practical program to prevent excessive losses of poultry and eggs in the county.

The local committee for conservation suggests that immediate emphasis be placed on culling and the control of internal and external parasites. Along with these suggestions are recommendations for providing winter grazing, checking and repairing equipment, and disinfecting.

Hens in high production should not be wormed, according to the committee recommendations, but pullets not yet in production and hens in full molt or in low production should be treated.

Mr. Abbott said that the committee recommended the use of sodium fluoride, sulphur, sulphur and rotenone, or nicotine sulfate for lice. Since lice reproduce faster in winter than summer flocks should be examined carefully and treated if necessary.

To rid a poultry house of external poultry parasites, carbolenium or some other disinfectant containing anthracine oil is very effective. Diseases and low production can often times be traced directly to

NEW GRAND CHILD

Mr. and Mrs. Jarrel Cox went to Athens last week to visit their first grandson, born a few days before to Pfc. and Mrs. James H. Cox.

They report Jimmie Sr.'s smile reaches from ear to ear. James H. Jr., their first born, is the first grandchild on both sides of the family and the first great-grandchild. All the grandparents and the two great-grandmothers were visiting the baby the first Sunday after his arrival. The father received a 16-day furlough from Sheppard Field for the occasion.

The mother and babe are at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barkley at Athens.

Infestation by these parasites.

In the near future, Mr. Abbott said, a series of meetings will be conducted in which poultry problems will be discussed by practical poultrymen. All local citizens will be welcomed and expected to attend if they have poultry problems that need attention.

This national program inaugurated by the poultry industry arose from the need for more education in care and management of home flocks. An accumulation of a number of factors created by war economy has increased the difficulty of producing along with increased poultry losses.

In order for poultrymen to continue to produce effectively, adjustments in their programs must closely follow recent and future changes, Mr. Abbott said. It is hoped that the combined planning of poultrymen will make these adjustments easier to adapt in this locality.

One night last week we listened to the address of Vice-President Henry A. Wallace made in Dallas in which he set out many alleged facts to prove that the railroads of the country are still running roughshod over the people. While the charges were grave, Mr. Wallace seemed unable to present them with sufficient forcefulness and vigor to arouse any considerable enthusiasm on the part of his auditors, and we got the distinct impression that he is not and can never be a great leader. On Monday of this week, The News received a copy of a statement made by J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, denying the truth of the "facts" presented by Wallace and insisting that they had been discredited and disproved long ago. Mr. Wallace must have known full well that these charges had been "conclusively refuted" repeatedly, and yet he repeats them to the great disparagement of the railroads of the country. That is the conclusion that one must reach if Mr. Pelley's vigorous statements are to be believed. The people of the country doubtless do not have sufficient information to enable them to reach definite conclusions respecting the controversy, but it does seem that it is now up to Mr. Wallace to "put up or shut up."

Cotton Loans For Storage At Home

According to J. C. Smith, county agricultural agent, it is becoming increasingly difficult to obtain a warehouse loan on cotton, due to transportation and warehouse shortages, and as result, cotton that is not placed in warehouses or for which a warehouse receipt is not issued, is not eligible for a warehouse loan.

Commodity Credit Corporation will make Farm Stored Loans for cotton that is stored on the farm if it is adequately protected from inclement weather. The cotton also has to be several inches off the ground in order to prevent it from absorbing moisture and damaging in that respect. A farm building with a floor several inches off the ground will qualify. If a farmer has a building that does not have a floor, the cotton could be placed on railroad cross ties or something similar and be eligible for a Farm Stored Loan. A fee of $1.00 per bale is charged for making the Farm Stored Loan. The producer is paid 10c per bale per month storage.

Probably all producers will try to obtain a warehouse stored loan as long as it is possible for them to do so, but when this becomes impossible, it is likely that many producers will be interested in the Farm Stored Loan. For further information concerning the Farm Stored Loan, it is suggested that you contact the local A. A. A. office at Tahoka for details and particulars.

Pvt. Lee Wayne Hardin, who has finished his basic training at Camp Roberts, Calif., is here this week visiting his parents, Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Hardin, and the other members of the family. He expects to leave Monday for Fort Ord, Calif., for further training.

Doubtless there are still some isolationists in this country, as will become apparent as soon as this war is over, but we believe that the great masses of American people are strongly in favor of such post-war cooperation among the leading Allied nations of today as will enable them to crush promptly and effectively any Hitlers and Tojos that may arise in the future, and as will insure, as far as humanly possible, the peace of the world for a long time to come. To us, it does not seem important whether this fixed purpose of the American people is expressed in the verbiage of the Connolly Resolution, the Pullbright Resolution, or some similar measure, but it is well for Congress to commit itself now to the general plan of cooperation with other nations after the war to outlaw war.

Statistics show that the people of the United States last year spent five billion dollars on liquor. Since the consumption of that liquor did nobody on earth any good but on the other hand caused much crime, bloodshed, suffering, and even insanity, the money spent for it was utterly wasted. If it had been contributed to the Red Cross, it not only would have met the needs of every great disaster in this country but it would have saved the lives of hundreds of thousands of starving men, women, and children in Europe and Asia. Is it any wonder that many of us insist that, next to slavery, the legalized sale of intoxicating liquor constitutes the blackest page on the history of our country?

ODDS and ENDS

by Ece Eye, the Elder

This column may seem personal and frivolous this week for these serious times when momentous events are gripping the attention of the world. But it is well to get away from the momentous things occasionally.

We got the cue for this column from a very serious and able discourse which Brother Dale delivered in the Baptist Church here the other Sunday. At one point in his sermon he took occasion to relate a little story of his childhood home-life that involved the little brass lamp, a utensil that is now extinct but that at one period in our history was a necessary part of the equipment of almost every household.

Do you remember the little brass lamp? Well, if your hair is well streaked with gray, probably you do. The brass lamp days followed close after the pine-knot and the tallow-candle age.

When wife and I got home from church that day, she said that she was not sure that she could remember having ever seen a little brass lamp. I told her that I could; that one figured conspicuously in the most exciting event of my entire childhood.

One night in the fall of the year, when I was about five or six years of age, two older brothers and an older sister took a school book or two and a little brass lamp and went into a bedroom, from which the bed had been removed and in which we had piled some cotton as it was gathered, and there they sat down on the cotton to scan the pages of the book. I had tagged along behind them, for I too wanted to see the pictures.

Scarcely had they got started until I accidentally tipped that little lamp over. The fire flashed over that cotton in the twinkling of an eye; and right then and there is where the excitement began. Mother rushed in from another room and she and the older children succeeded in smothering out that fire by the use of quilts and possibly some water.

But when that fire flashed over the cotton I dashed out at the door and I proceeded to stage a dance out in the front yard accompanied by yells that would have made any Comanche Indian turn green with envy.

It was a primitive and rather crude history book that we had been looking at, filled with war pictures—pictures of armies and battles and carnage—but nothing in it could have made as deep an impression on my mind as the flash of fire and smoke that followed the overturning of that little brass lamp.

I have never ceased to remember that history book, Peter Parley's Universal History, and I told my wife that among the pictures it contained was one of Queen Semiramis and her elephants.

"Who was Queen Semiramis?" she asked, naturally, for her name no longer appears in the history books. I went to one of our book shelves and hunted out an old and ragged volume with one of the backs gone, and there on the first page was the title, Peter Parley's Universal History. That book had remained in the family ever since that fateful night and it had been in my possession for years and years.

Then I turned over a few pages, and there was Queen Semiramis and her army in chariots being put to rout by the army of the King of the Indies mounted on horses and elephants. And there too was the story of the battle. It is an interesting story, even though it is now discounted by historians.

Semiramis was queen of the ancient country of Assyria, which, according to Mr. Peter Parley, "was the first of the nations of the earth." It lay along the banks of the Tigris and the Euphrates rivers and between the two streams. Included within its boundaries during much of its history were both the cities of Nineveh and Babylon.

At one time in the early history of the country a guy named Ninus was king of Assyria, and Semiramis was his wife. When he died she became ruler of the entire empire herself, according to Mr. Parley. Probably she had been the real ruler all the time, for Mr. Parley says "she was an ambitious woman, and was not content to live quietly in Babylon. . . . She was tormented with a wicked desire to conquer all the nations of the earth. So she collected an immense army, and marched against the rich and powerful king of the Indies, or Hindustan." A regular female Hitler of her day and generation, it seems.

But she seems to have made as fatal a blunder when she attacked India as Tojo made when he attacked the United States or as Hitler made when he marched with his armies into Russia.

The King of India seems to have acted with much more common sense than we did, however. When he heard that the wicked and ambitious woman was planning to attack his kingdom, he made prompt and adequate preparation to meet her. He mustered a great army of men and elephants. These elephants had been so trained that when they rushed into battle, tossing the enemy about with their trunks, and trampling them down with their huge feet, each of them, Mr. Parley says, was worth a whole regiment of soldiers.

But Queen Semiramis seems to have been as foolish as she was wicked. She tried to run a bluff that didn't work. Having no elephants, she ordered 3,000 brown oxen to be killed, skinned them, and had their hides sewed together in the shape of elephants. She had these hollow hides placed over camels in such fashion as to make them look like elephants. With these she hoped to frighten the armies of India and put them to flight. But when the battle began the Hindus discovered at once that the Assyrian beasts were not elephants at all, only camels clothed in the hides of oxen.

The queen and her camels and her soldiers were immediately put to flight. There was great slaughter of the men and the camels but the queen made her escape in a chariot. She slunk back to her own city of Babylon but never looked like anything much after that. Finally she was murdered by her own son.

She had spent her life wickedly and foolishly, had been the cause of the death of thousands and thousands of her subjects, and finally met a tragic death herself.

It's a pity that Hitler didn't read and ponder the story of Queen Semiramis before he set out upon his career of murder and rapine.

S/Sgt. Wilson King of Kelly Field spent a 20-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. King, and other relatives here recently. He and his mother made a trip to Amarillo to see a brother, J. L. Sgt. King returned to his base late last week.

Poultry Hints

One of the surest ways poultry producers can make the best use of available feed supplies is to cull all non-layers and low producers from their flocks, says Nolan J. Robnett, agriculture teacher at Wilson.

"With feed supplies short, rigid culling of the flock is more important than ever before," he said. "By removing the low producing and unprofitable birds, the owner will have relatively more feed for the higher producing hens and in this way can get more eggs from his feed supply."

To get rid of poor layers, first remove all birds that are sick or otherwise unsound. A cripple or weak hen will not pay, and eventually will come down with disease. It is important, therefore, to remove birds that are sick or lame, decidedly undersized or underweight or that have deformities or weaknesses of their backs, legs, breast or wings.

Good culling also calls for removing all mature hens that are yellow-legged and fat. Vigorous birds with red combs and wattles, bleached beak and legs, and a thin, pliable abdomen, are usually in production.

In culling, cautioned Robnett, consideration should be given to whether the birds have had a fair chance to lay. Low production may be caused by improper feeding, crowded and unsanitary conditions, like mites, or intestinal worms.

Ability to cull is easily acquired, but is best learned through actual handling of birds under experienced guidance. Poultry owners who cannot cull satisfactorily should call upon their Vocational Agriculture teacher, county agent, or some other experienced person to help them get the needed skill. Mr. Robnett says that he will be glad to assist any poultry owner in the Wilson community with their culling or any other farm problems.

ESSENTIALS IN PRODUCING AND RAISING LARGE LITTERS OF PIGS TO WEANING AGE

(By N. S. Abbott)

1. Care and management of sow during gestation period:

(a) Age: It has been found that sows reach the maximum degree of prolificacy at about four years of age, or the sixth or seventh litter. Older sows produce larger pigs than younger sows.
(b) Age at first mating: Under good feeding conditions no serious damage can result from breeding well-developed sows at seven or eight months of age.
(c) Time of mating: Do not breed earlier than the second day or 25 hours after the heat period begins. Breed the sow back after 5-7 days after pigs are weaned. For September pigs breed April 15 to May 15. For March pigs breed October 15 to November 15.
(d) Housing: Individual, movable farrowing houses of not less than 8x8 feet in size with proper ventilation are very valuable in hog raising. Pig guard rails should be provided on all four sides and corners of the farrowing pen. The lower outer edge of these guard rails should be 10 inches above the floor and 10 inches from the wall.
(e) Sanitation: Provide open, sunny house; good ventilation in houses; clean quarters; clean walls; moveable farrowing houses; rotation of pastures and lots; special treatments for prevention of diseases and parasites.
(f) Feeding: Hogs must have protein feed, animal matter or tankage and milk, and vegetable matter or pasture and green feed. Good quality pasture will reduce the amount of protein supplement required by 50 percent. Pasture also supplies some minerals, and will supply the needed exercise, make sanitation possible, stimulate appetite, and keep hogs in the best of physical condition. Sweet milk, not over 1 gallon per pig weighing up to 100 lbs., and never over 2 gallons to hogs weighing over 100 lbs., will prove very valuable. A ration consisting of 40 pounds ground oats, 50 lbs. ground corn, barley, or grain sorghums, 5 lbs. cottonseed meal and 5 lbs. of tankage is very good. Hand feed the above ration in amounts to keep sows and gilts in good condition. A good protein supplement consisting of 100 lbs. of 80% protein tankage, 200 lbs. of 43% protein cottonseed meal and 75 lbs. of 14% protein green alfalfa meal. Hand feed the above supplement in the amounts of one part to six parts of grain. A mineral mixture consisting of 2 lbs. of limestone flour or oyster shell flour, 2 lbs. of bone meal and one pound of salt should be kept in a box where the hogs have access to it at all times. When fed with the ration two pounds of the mixture in each 100 lbs. of feed.
(g) Water: Provide plenty of clean, fresh water near a good shade, at least six feet above the ground.
(h) Diseases: Preventing a disease by the proper sanitation methods is much more economical than treatment of a disease.
(i) Parasites: Again sanitation of houses and pens will help control parasites.
2. Care and management of sow during suckling period.
(a) If it is cold weather when pigs are born, dry off and place in warm quarters.
(b) Pigs may be kept in a basket and assistance given in nursing for three days, if necessary.
(c) Clip needle teeth within 24 hours after pigs are born.
(d) Clip naval cord and treat with iodine.
(e) After two weeks of age, creep feed pigs, using the same ration as for mother.
(f) Castrate at four weeks of age.
(g) Vaccinate at six weeks of age.
(h) Wean at eight weeks of age.
Mrs. Otto Cawthron of New Lynn, who underwent an operation in a Lamesa hospital recently, was able to return to her home last Saturday.

The first unit of the Santa Fe System Lines back in 1868

JUST 75 years ago this week, October 30, 1868, rail was laid on the first unit of the Santa Fe System Lines—a 17-mile stretch in Kansas from Topeka to Carbondale.
Today, Santa Fe System Lines are over 13,000 miles long, serving people and products from Illinois to California, and from Colorado to the Gulf of Mexico.
Looking Ahead
Farsighted men, even years back, began looking ahead to the Southwest and West not only as a land of enchantment and natural resources but as the coming theater of industrial expansion in this country.
The war has brought home the soundness of this vision—big things are happening today in the states of Santa Fe land.
States served by the Santa Fe
Thousands are flocking to Texas—great state of farm, factory and free enterprise—to man its booming plants, cultivate its soil, and ride its far-reaching ranges.
Kansas is becoming famous for its plane factories and munition plants, as well as its golden wheat fields.
Arizona is winning new fame in the fields of agriculture, live-stock, mining, and as an aviation center.
Oklahoma's oil is writing bright new pages in the science of war, and advances for the peace to come.

Poindexter Writes From Nazi Prison

Pfc. R. V. Poindexter, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Poindexter of Wayside, 12 miles north of Tahoka, has written his wife from Stalag, Germany, where he is a prisoner of war. The letter, written last May 23, was the first word they had received from him in several months.

Pfc. Poindexter enlisted in the Army May 7, 1942, and went overseas about six months later, first to Ireland, and then with the invasion forces to North Africa.

He was a member of an anti-tank division, and in the battle of Kasserine Pass, he was taken prisoner on February 17.

His letter follows:
"Dear wife and all:
"Hope this finds all well. I am feeling fine.

"Got another Red Cross box yesterday, so have been cooking most all eve. Boy, the boxes are really nice—have stuff that we can make puddings and deserts out of.

"Boy, it would be nice to be there and help eat that fresh garden stuff. But, we have lots of vegetables here.

"We have church services on Sunday, now. See, there is a boy here that just likes one term having his preacher's certificate. He can make some real good talks. Guess you all are just getting back from church; it is seven o'clock here.

"Hope to hear from you all soon. It has been over three months. Tell all hello. May God bless us all. As ever—R. V."

Mr. and Mrs. Poindexter have three other sons in the service. They are Quentin, 35, who is in a California camp; Roy, 27, in the Air Corps, stationed at Carlsbad, N. M.; and J. B., 21, who was recently inducted and expects to go to camp Nov. 5.

Congratulations—

Mr. and Mrs. O. M. McGinty of Spur are the parents of a daughter, born at 10:20 Wednesday night in a Lubbock hospital. The baby's weight was 8 pounds, 2 ounces. Mrs. McGinty is the former Miss Montie Draper. They have two sons.

Mrs. Dan Yandell returned home Saturday from Santa Fe, New Mexico, where she spent her vacation with S/Sgt. and Mrs. Richard Russell. They accompanied her as far as the H. M. Jenkins home, where they spent Sunday, and then went on to their home in Dallas.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

No More Brass

On land or at sea our fighting men do their many chores by the sound of a bugle. All sorts of uncomplimentary epithets are used to designate the bugler, but nobody has yet been able to provide a satisfactory substitute for a bugle although recordings are used at some permanent bases.

Aboard ship the men fall in at the order of "Pipe muster." On land the bugler sounds "Assembly!" But no matter where the bugle is used thousands must be bought out of the money we are investing in War Bonds. Back the attack with an extra $100 Bond in the 3rd War Loan.

Can Vitamins Change GRAY HAIR?

Impartial investigators have found vitamin Calcium Pantothenate of some value in changing gray hair, where a deficiency of this vitamin may have caused gray or graying hair.

For example, one test conducted by Good Housekeeping magazine on a number of people, showed 88% of those tested (all ages were included) had positive evidence of a return of some hair color. The new GRAYVITA contains not 10, but 20 mg. of Calcium Pantothenate. Absolutely harmless. This gives you TWICE the former Calcium Pantothenate potency and value in each tablet. Or by using one-half the tablet you cut your cost one-half yet still get the same potency of ordinary brands. Each new GRAYVITA tablet also contains Brewer's Yeast, a natural source of B-Complex, PLUS 450 U.S.P. units of vitamin B₁₂—necessary for healthy nerves. Try GRAYVITA. See what a difference it may make in the way you look. 30 day supply, $1.50; 100 day supply, $4.00.

Dairy Feed Price Adjustment Payment For Lynn Farmers

The Lynn county AAA office has been advised, according to Robert R. Adams, county AAA committee chairman, that a dairy feed payment will be made direct to producers upon submission to the county AAA committee of satisfactory evidence of quantity of whole milk or butterfat sold.

For whole milk, sales records must show pounds of milk delivered and the butterfat content is not necessary. Butterfat sales evidence must be on butterfat basis. Payment will be made at 80 percent of the butterfat rate for butter sold as such. Payment will be made at 20 percent of the butterfat rate for cream sold for consumption as such.

It is expected that the first payments will cover October sales. Time of payments depends upon availability of forms. The county office expects to receive program instructions and payment procedure soon.
