Regino Madrid, charged with aggravated assault, is out on $250 bond, and Jose Perez is a hospital patient with a deep wound on his left hip as an aftermath of a fight at about 3:00 a. m. Sunday at a Mexican house five miles south of Tahoka.

Sheriff "Slick" Clem, who investigated the fight, said several Mexicans were at the house when two of them got in an argument which ended in a scuffle between Madrid and Perez. Following the scuffle, Perez crawled in a truck and laid down. A short time later, when someone went to see about him, he was found nearly dead from loss of blood from a deep L-shaped wound on the hip. The man was brought to Tahoka Hospital, where he is responding to treatment.

New Store Plans Opening Soon

The new Marshall-Brown Department Store hopes to open about August 16 in the McElroy building just across the street east from D&H Super Market, according to Urban Brown, one of the owners.

New and modern fixtures are being installed this week, and stock is arriving daily for the opening. The firm expects to handle a full line of dry goods, ready-to-wear, men's clothing, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown have been here six years, during which time both have been with the local schools, except that Mrs. Brown has been with Forrester Insurance the past year. Mr. Brown has also worked spare time with Rutherford's.

Hubert Davis Calls He's Coming Home

Mrs. Nettie Davis has furnished The News the following interesting story from the newspaper at Marlin which concerns her grandson, well known to a number of people here:

Parents Talking About Son's Likes In Foods, He Phones, "I'm Back"

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Davis were having lunch at their home on Thursday and talking about the anticipated return of their son, EMP2 Hubert E. Davis from duty in Pacific areas. They were discussing the plans to fill up everything from the cookie jar to the refrigerator with foods that he enjoys. The telephone rang—Mr. Davis answered it and from the other end of the line at Treasure Island, in San Francisco Bay came his son's voice, "Hey! Dad, I'm back!"

The serviceman had just returned to the states from 16 months overseas duty this time where he has been stationed on Guam. He was in service during World War II and served 26 months overseas. This present hitch of duty was on a recall to service. He expects to be released from service about August 15 and plans to resume his studies in electrical engineering at Texas Tech, Lubbock.

Arriving for a weekend visit in the Davis home were their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bob Davis of Amarillo.

The home was ransacked by the girl, who admitted taking a dollar in money. Nothing of great value was found missing.

Wilson downed the Bill Strange Motors boys of Tahoka 15 to 10 to win the first game in the play-off Sunday of the Lynn County Junior Baseball League.

Wilson took the lead in the first inning, scoring two runs, and was never overtaken by the Tahoka boys the rest of the game.

Breiger was the winning pitcher; Halameck the loser. "Punk" White relieved Halameck in the sixth inning.

Next Sunday, Aug. 10, these same two teams will meet for the second game of the play-offs at Tahoka ball park. If Wilson wins this game, they will also win the league. If Tahoka wins, they will have to play one more game to decide the winner of the league.

Snake Gives Marla Bray, 3, Bad Time

Mrs. Harvey Freeman rescued Marla Bray, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Bray, from a snake which had the child hemmed up in a corner in the freeman yard Wednesday noon. As it turned out, the snake, which was promptly killed, was a bull snake, but that fact did not lessen the excitement of the moment.

Marla and the little Freeman boy, Herman, age 3 1/2, were playing in the Freeman yard. Mrs. Freeman heard Marla screaming, and ran to the yard to investigate. She found Marla backed up in a corner of the house, hemmed in by a coiled up snake that was hissing at the child vehemently from a distance of about three feet. She reached over the snake, got the child by the arm, and jerked her to safety.

Bull snakes are not poisonous, but Mrs. Freeman didn't take time to examine the snake before the child was safe.

Shortage of trained personnel is listed as the No. 1 problem in operating Texas state hospitals.

Co-op Annual Meeting Scheduled For Tuesday

Possibly 3,000 people are expected in Tahoka Tuesday for the Electric Fair, 14th annual meeting of Lyntegar Electric Cooperative, and the first annual meeting of Poka-Lambro Rural Telephone Cooperative.

"Tom Cat" Caught Burglarizing Store

Local police thought they had a burglar cornered last Monday morning at about 1 a. m., but the intruder in a local business house proved to be a tomcat.

However, the incident illustrates the alertness of the local telephone operators and the police.

Several months ago, when burglars entered a local business institution, they in some way knocked a telephone receiver from its position. A telephone operator, on getting no answer from the number, pulled out the plug.

The police suggested to local operators that if such happened again the operators should notify the police.

Past midnight Sunday, there came a signal at the telephone exchange from West Side Grocery. An operator made the connection, and no one answered but she could hear a terrible noise coming from the store. She signaled the police immediately.

Policemen, L. N. Bartley, and Frank Hyles, in the patrol car, with lights off, slipped up from the rear of the store. No one could be seen in the building, nor could they see the phone.

In the meantime, W. J. Kahl and David Renfro, owners, arrived and unlocked the door. It was then that they found a big yellow cat prowling around inside the building had knocked the telephone from its shelf.

Moral: Even a Tom cat must sometimes be careful with his prowling in Tahoka.

Mary Lou Allsup Is Polio Victim

September 6th Is Deadline For Auto Inspections

Automobile inspections are lagging in Lynn county. There will be approximately 2410 vehicles inspected by the end of the week ending Saturday, August 9.

There are approximately 5300 vehicles to be inspected in the county. After Saturday, Aug. 9, there will be only 24 more days before the deadline, Sept. 6, for vehicle owners to get their vehicles inspected. This means that the rate of inspection must increase about 4 times in order to get all of the vehicles in Lynn county inspected.

In Lynn county there are nine inspection stations in operation. Vehicle owners are urged to go to the inspection station of their choice, at their earliest possible convenience. If you so desire, make necessary adjustments yourself. Their only obligation to an inspection station is for the inspection itself.

An average of South Plains counties shows better than 60 per cent of the vehicles inspected—yet, Lynn county shows an average of only 45 per cent inspected.

Approximately 1900 deaths from tuberculosis were reported to the Texas State Department of Health in 1951.

Five Speakers At Rotary Club

An interesting and out-of-the-ordinary program was presented at Tahoka Rotary Club Thursday noon of last week, arranged by Alton Cain and directed by Herb Carter, with five members speaking on various subjects and attempting to imitate the radio news commentators.

The speakers were: Harold Green on "Flying Saucers," Maurice Bray on "Auto Accidents," Frank Hill on "Politics," Rev. Lee Ramsour on "John Q. Public," and Charles Townes on "Unusual News Items."

President Tom Gill announced that Charles Townes and David Weathers would arrange the programs for August.

Harley Henderson, chairman of the Traffic Safety committee, announced that plans were being discussed for the setting up of a safety program in Tahoka similar to that set up a year or so ago in Lubbock.

Bill Stephenson Talks To New Home Civic Club

An interesting two-part program was presented at the monthly meeting of New Home Civic Club Monday night of this week in the school cafeteria.

Coach Bill Stephenson presented a talk in which he outlined the fall football plans. New Home is in District 2-B six-man football competition this year. Prospects are that the school will have a good team, and the boys are going to try for the championship. Prospective members of the team were guests of the club at the meeting.

Second part of the program was presented by Neil Randolph, Extension Service entomologist of this 20-county area, who spoke on insect control, and illustrated his talk with slides. The meal was served by the Methodist WSCS ladies.

Charles Townes Ass't. Postmaster

Charles Townes last Friday was promoted to assistant postmaster at the Tahoka office, according to Postmaster W. E. (Hap) Smith.

Townes has been with the local office since 1936, except for time spent in the Army during the war, and was clerk-in-charge at the time of his promotion.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Elliott, Jr., and baby left Wednesday for a vacation trip to the Yellowstone and other scenic spots in the Rockies.

all people of the area, the awarding of prizes, and the Electric Fair sponsored by Lyntegar and the Texas Power Reserve.

Registration, appliance exhibits, and entertainment will begin at 9:30 a. m. The barbecue will be served at noon, and in the afternoon will come the business sessions of the cooperatives and the election of officers.

Organized in 1938, Lyntegar has become one of the larger electric cooperatives of the country. Since the first members were served in July, 1939, the co-op has grown steadily until it now has 6,700 members in ten counties.

Lyntegar's 3,300 miles of lines serve the major portion of Lynn, Terry, Garza, Dawson, Gaines, Hockley, and Borden counties, and its lines reach into Yoakum, Martin, and Lubbock counties also.

The cooperative employs 24 people from the Tahoka headquarters office, and has four employees at the Sundown branch office. It has assets of nearly $4,000,000, and last year had an income of $487,000.00.

Officers and directors are: John Heck, of Wilson, president; Frank Harris of Ackerly, vice president; G. Q. Hensley of Draw, secretary; W. H. Moore of Lamesa, Oscar Graham of Post, J. S. Smith of Brownfield, and Earl Houx of Sundown. Garland Pennington is the efficient manager Poka-Lambro, the rural telephone cooperative, is now in the process of building the eastern unit of a system which it hopes will ultimately serve virtually the same territory covered by Lyntegar.

First spade work for Poka-Lambro was started in February, 1950, when the government proposed to make loans through REA for rural telephone cooperative systems.

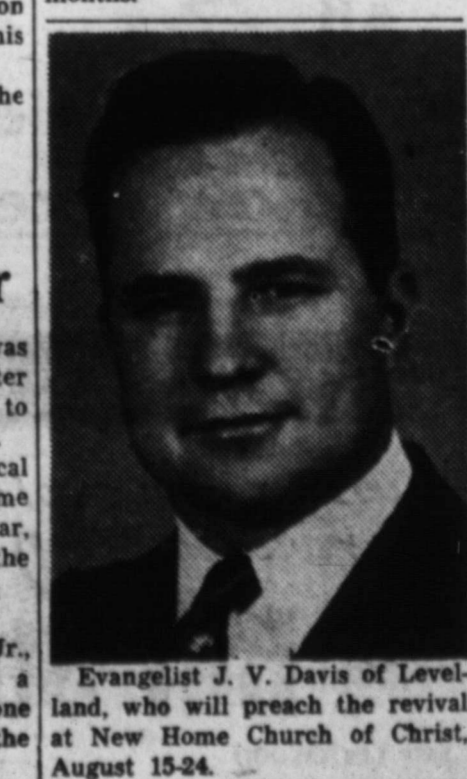

That fall, Poka-Lambro was officially organized, and REA allotted $1,837,000 for proposed construction. However, actual construction did not get underway until April, 1952, for lines to serve Lynn, Dawson, and a part of Garza.

To date, 417 miles of poles have been set up, and wire is being strung. Due to delays, shortages, and strikes, Mrs. Bill Griffin of the local headquarters office says the program has moved slowly but that the cooperative hopes necessary equipment will come through to put telephones in operation in these rural areas in the near future.

Poka-Lambro officers and directors are: V. R. Osborn of Brownfield, president; Lloyd McCormick of New Home, vice president; V. H. Wheatley of Brownfield, secretary; Claude Thomas of Grassland, George Teague of Lamesa, and James T. Dunn of Lamesa.

Tom Garrard of Tahoka is attorney for the cooperatives.

Surplus foods preserved now will help stretch the food budget dollars during the coming winter months.

Odds AND Ends

(BY E. I. THE ELDER)

For the past few weeks we have been hearing a lot about race problems—Jim Crow laws in the South and the segregation of the white and colored races in the schools and cafes and restaurants; discrimination against colored folks in the employment of labor and proposed FEPC laws; and demands for the repeal of the poll tax law as a prerequisite for voting on the grounds that it militates against colored citizens, etc., etc. Planks were placed in the platforms of both the Republicans and the Democratic Parties regarding these matters, and the framing of a platform by the Democrats came very near to "busting" that party wide open on the issues involved.

All of which moves us to say that the matter of dealing with the races justly or otherwise has entered more or less into every national political campaign that has been staged in this country since this government was established. It entered even into the convention that formed and submitted to the states for ratification our federal Constitution. Read that document and you will readily see that this statement is correct. For a comparatively brief time after the adoption of the Constitution and the first ten Amendments, racial issues were not prominent in the national elections, but by 1820 slavery had become a burning issue and remained such up till the Civil War.

During and following the War for Texas Independence in 1836, the charge was made that the colonization of Texas and its fight for independence was the result of a conspiracy hatched up by the slave-holders for the purpose of bringing about the extension of slave territory out of which new slave states could be carved; and the admission of Texas into the Union was delayed for a number of years by the opposition who had been led to believe these charges.

And then when the United States was drawn into a war with Mexico in 1846 following the admission of Texas into the Union, this war was opposed on the same grounds and the treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo following the close of the war in 1848 ceding California, Arizona, Nevada, and Utah, and parts of New Mexico, Colorado, and Wyoming to the United States drew further fire from the Abolitionists, and the war was again denounced as a war of conquest for the benefit of southern slave-holders.

Now, we undertake to say that while there may have been an incident now and then and a schemer here and there whose words and deeds were calculated to lend some force to these charges, there was little foundation in fact on which to base them.

Both the Texas War for Independence and the Mexican War resulted from the clash of two widely differing races of people, motivated by two highly different incentives and purposes; having two highly conflicting systems of government and also two highly conflicting systems of religion.

These differences were deep seated and had existed for many hundreds of years.

No need here to contrast the differences between the two races; but it is important to remember that the Spaniards, who usually constituted the ruling class in Mexico, came to this country as exploiters, to seek gold, to spread the Catholic faith, and to claim the country for Spain.

The ancestors of the Texans and of the major element of the American people, came to this country to escape oppression, to build their homes, and to enjoy political and religious liberty.

The Spanish Catholics tolerated no religion except their own; the American Protestants accorded to every individual the right to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience with out, any interference on the part of his government.

The Spaniards had never known any form of government except the monarchical, and they had ruled the Indians and the Mestizos down in Mexico by dictatorial methods alone.

The Americans had established and were successfully operating the most democratic—or republican—form of government the world had ever seen, and they could not tolerate totalitarianism in any form.

The settlement of Texas was prompted by the soul hunger of the people for homes—the same sort of hunger that prompted the people of New England and the so-called Middle states; of Virginia and the Carolinas, to cross over the mountains and to settle in the rich valleys and the wood lands of Ohio and Indiana and Illinois; Kentucky, Tennessee, and Missouri; and that later prompted the prairie schooners to beat winding trails over the Rockies and other mountains to the far distant lands of California, Oregon, and Washington.

These people, all, were seeking homes, prosperity, and better living conditions for their families. Kansas is the only state in this Union into which people rushed in great numbers for the express purpose of making it slave or free territory as the individual families might prefer.

Moses Austin started the parade to Texas. He was born a Connecticut yankee. He had been engaged in the mining of lead in Virginia and in Missouri, but his mining ventures had not proven to be very profitable. Yankee-like he cast his eyes over the country for some other field of operation. Some kind Fate suggested that he go down to San Antonio, Texas, still being a part of the state of Coahuila, in that trouble-infested land of Mexico. The year was 1820. In San Antonio, he met Baron de Bastrop, a man of German birth. What had induced him to come to San Antonio, I do not know. Mexico was then still under the rule of a Spanish viceroy. Baron de Bastrop helped Austin to procure the privilege of filing with the Spanish Government an application for a permit to found a colony in Texas. Austin then made his way homeward overland but died soon after reaching home from hardships suffered on the journey. Just before his death he received word that his application to establish a colony in Texas had been granted, and so his dying request was that his son Stephen F. Austin, who was then in New Orleans studying law, should carry out his plans. Stephen F. Austin was well qualified to do the job. He had been born and educated in Virginia, after which he had joined his father in Missouri and had later gone to New Orleans to study Spanish law.

Soon after receiving news of his father's request, he set out for San Antonio, and there he reached an agreement with Governor Martinez relative to the establishment of the colony; for by that time the independence of Mexico from Spain had been fully established and Martinez was governor of the state of Coahuila Texas. The time was August, 1821.

Austin had been given permission to settle 300 families, and on his way back to the United States he picked out the territory in which to plant his colony, an area between the Colorado and the Brazos Rivers below the San Antonio road.

Texas was then an almost entirely uninhabited region. All the old Spanish missions in Texas except two had been closed in 1793. The Mission of "Our Lady of Refuge" at Refugio and the Mission of "La Bahia del Espiritu Santo" at Goliad were not officially closed until 1830. All the missions in and around the old town of San Antonio had been closed, but there was still a considerable Spanish and Mexican settlement there. There were also settlements at Refugio, Goliad, and Nacogdoches, and possibly a few scattered along the Texas side of the Rio Grande. But otherwise the population of Texas was practically nil. But there were many millions of acres of rich virgin soil in Texas, and these facts doubtless gave birth to the colonization idea in the fertile brain of Moses Austin and fired the soul of his son Stephen F. when the father had passed away

Unfortunately, the institution of slavery had not been abolished in the United States, and it had spread all over the South. The first Negro ever brought to the English colonies in America were a few who were brought to Jamestown, Virginia, in 1619, 12 years after the colony was founded. The traffic in slaves increased very slowly for many years, but soon after Eli Whitney invented the cotton gin in 1792, the cultivation and production of cotton increased by leaps and bounds, great cotton plantations were rapidly established, and the demand for Negro slaves increased accordingly.

Since Texas lay immediately west of the state of Louisiana on the western frontier of the deep south and contained within its bounds much prospective cotton producing territory, of course it was naturally contemplated that slavery would exist in the prospective colonies, just as it existed in all the states immediately east of it and much further north, as Virginia, and Tennessee.

But the charges vehemently and persistently made that the colonization and settlement of Texas were the result of a conspiracy on the part of slave holders or of Government officials to thus populate the territory with Americans and then wrest it from Mexico in order to create one or more new slave states is preposterous.

Henry B. Parkes, who wrote a history of Mexico in 1938, gives Juan Almonte, the "intriguing" ambassador to the United States, credit for originating this charge. He quotes: "They (the Texans) had been hoping to guarantee themselves against attack by securing admission into the American Union; but opposition had developed in the northern states, where it had been decided that the whole episode was a slave owners' plot to filch slave soil from a freedom-loving republic—an interpretation which had been invented by Almonte and imparted by him to abolitionists who had visited Mexico."

Henry B. Parkes certainly was no apologist for slavery, no sympathizer with the South, and no friend of President Andrew Jackson. He really showed some prejudice against all of them, but as a historian he was fair enough to write down what he believed to be the truth concerning disputed issues.

Of course it is natural and probable that many of the Americans who came to the Austin colony, the Edwards colony, and all the other colonies, came hoping that some day circumstances might make it possible for Texas to become a state in the American Union, but we doubt if that was the primary motive of any of them.

In the first place, at the beginning of the movement they were invited and offered inducements to come. But political conditions in Mexico were woefully unsettled (Continued)

Yes, dishes are a "dial-and-smile" snap when you wash and dry them in an automatic electric dishwasher. All the drudgery—and summertime heat—of old-fashioned dishwashing just disappears. Electric dishwashing is economical, too. You can wash them and dry them with economical electric service for 50 cents a month. What a bargain!

Odds & Ends

ed, changeable, almost chaotic, and it was a change of policy on the part of Mexico that caused dire discontent in Texas. After many hundreds, possibly thousands, of settlers had come, under the terms of the original stipulations, Mexico suddenly began to throw up barriers against the immigration of others, imposing heavy taxes and other hardships upon those who had already come, and finally undertaking to ban further immigration altogether, making it impossible for some of the empresarios to fulfill their contracts with the Mexican authorities. These and other facts are admitted by all historians whose works we have consulted. The Texans tried to live up to all their obligations as citizens of Mexico, with the single exception of the curtailment of their religious rights, but it was Mexico which changed front and flagrantly violated her obligations to the citizens. And that finally resulted in the Texas war for independence. And the war was brought upon them before the Texans were really prepared for it. They had practically no army, no organization, and no adequate plan of procedure, until after the massacres at the Alamo and Goliad. It was no war of aggression on the part of the Texans. It was a war of defense.

Now, a few more facts. At the beginning of this war, Santa Anna was the recognized Dictator of Mexico. There was a Congress with legislative powers, it is true, but Santa Anna dictated its policies. When the President, which was Santa Anna, chose to go on a vacation, or to lead an army into war, he could turn the duties of the President over to the Vice President, who at that time was a rather weak and colorless sort of fellow named Barragan. Santa Anna therefore, in due course of time, put himself at the head of his army and struck out for Texas to teach the rebels a lesson. Well, you know the rest. He won out at the Alamo and at Goliad but got the pants whipped off of him at San Jacinto. At Velasco he signed a treaty of peace, virtually acknowledging the independence of Texas and its right of sovereignty over the land clear on down to the Rio Grande River.

But the Mexican Government refused to confirm the treaty. It refused to do anything. It still laid claim to all of Texas but never did do anything to enforce its claim. When agents of the U. S. Government proposed that some agreement be made as to the boundary lines and suggested some kind of settlement, the Mexican leaders only became insulted. They did let it be known on different occasions, however, that if the United States ever admitted Texas into the Union, that would mean war with Mexico.

More than once, proposals were made that the state be admitted into the Union but all such proposals were assailed by the Abolitionists who claimed that Texas had been unjustly wrenched from Mexico anyway in furtherance of the demands of the slave-holders for another slave state in the Union. So, its admission was delayed several years. Finally, since Mexico would agree to nothing, it was admitted into the Union as a state by act of Congress early in 1845. Before annexation could be perfected, however, it was necessary for Texas to adopt a state constitution and for the same to be approved by Congress. These formalities were observed, and Congress approved the Texas Constitution on December 29, 1845, and the supreme court has held that this is the date when Texas became a state in the Union. The official change was not made, however, until February 19, 1846, when the Flag of Texas which floated above the state capitol building was removed and the Stars and Stripes was hoisted in its place, when President Anson Jones relinquished his office, and J. Pinckney Henderson took the oath of office as the first governor of the state of Texas.

Immediately after annexation was accomplished, the Mexican ambassador to the United States, the same Juan Almonte, mentioned above, asked for his passports, and the Mexican Government terminated all diplomatic relations with the United States and got ready to fight. The Mexicans had sent an army across the Rio Grande to resist any American forces that might be sent into the territory lying between that River and the Nueces. Gen. Zachary Taylor, in charge of the American forces, was commanded by President Polk to advance to the Rio Grande. Near Brownsville the two armies met and on May 8 and May 9, respectively, two battles were fought, the first at Palo Alto and the second at Resaca de la Palma. And the war was on.

We have recited the principal events of the war in a previous issue of this column, and we shall not repeat them here. There are some other pertinent facts pertaining to this war and its consequences, however, which we may discuss in a later issue of this column.

Of course, the northern Abolitionists opposed the war and criticized the treaty of peace which followed, but the facts of history will show how hollow and how ill-advised those charges were.

This column, however, has no disposition to defend the institution of slavery. We wish that it had never gained a foothold in this country and we are glad that it was abolished in the great Civil War, though we are sorry that it had to be destroyed by war. We have long felt that it could have been abolished by peaceable means if the abolitionists in the North and the hot-head secessionists in the South had controlled their tempers and had permitted cooler heads to work the problem out.

And we hope that the hot-heads on both sides of the race issues that are now disturbing the country will discard radicalism and listen to reason in the solution of these issues.

A PROUD NAME IN THE TELEPHONE INDUSTRY

The name of Southwestern Associated Telephone Company was changed on August 1, 1952, to General Telephone Company of the Southwest.

This change is in line with that taken by other subsidiary operating companies of the General Telephone Corporation. It is designed to make the public aware that the General Telephone System is one organization, strong and growing. As you know, the General Telephone System is the largest independent (non-Bell) telephone organization in the industry. The new name clearly distinguishes us from all other telephone companies and unites the General Telephone System more closely.

Here in the Southwest our Company serves more than 120,000 customers in the states of Texas, New Mexico, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Oklahoma.

Very truly yours,

Ray Tuttle

Texas Sunflower Surpasses Kansas'

Texas, the Lone Star State, which features the Bluebonnet as its state flower, has Kansas, the Sunflower State, beat at its own game, A. L. Dunagan believes. Last week the daily press carried a Kansas publicity picture showing a boy with a 9 foot 9 inch sunflower, along with the boast that Kansas was raising something big besides corn.

The next day, A. L. Dunagan went out in his yard with an axe and cut down one of his biggest sunflowers. First, he made sure there were no bystanders in the danger zone; then, he yelled "Timber!", and down came a sunflower which measured 10 feet 10 inches in height—fully a foot higher than the Kansas product.

Furthermore, he had made no effort to raise a giant sunflower. He just pitched some seeds in the ground on his lot and let them grow without irrigation. He says Kansas will have to do better to beat Texas products.

"NISBET"
Bug Catcher

"It Puts Them in the Bag"

The Nisbet Bug Catcher is an air blast machine, mounted on the front of the tractor and used with the cultivator. A blast of air from a high pressure fan, driven by the tractor belt pulley, is directed through the cotton, taking the bugs with it up a chute into the bag. The blast is sufficient to dislodge any and all kinds of bugs from the cotton, so it makes no difference what kind of bugs, worms, millers, moths, aphids, or what have you, they all go with the wind into the bag. The infested squares with the boll weevil egg or grub are also taken and put in the bag with the other pests. The principle of the bug catcher makes it indiscriminate in taking the bugs. The farmer need have no concern even after the catch as to what kind he had in the field; he may simply destroy them and produce cotton.

Nisbet Bug Catchers are available in one, two, and four-row sizes, and fitted for all makes and models of row-crop tractors, to operate with the cultivator.

House Given Tips On Cooling

COLLEGE STATION. —In hot, humid weather it is difficult for homemakers to keep the house and its contents dry and fresh smelling. Bernice Claytor, home management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, suggests that the use of the new electrical drying equipment or chemicals that absorb moisture from the air will help to dry out the house.

Mrs. Claytor explains that the electrical dehumidifiers draw in damp air, condense the moisture and then draw it off. This equipment should be used with doors and windows closed where condensation causes moisture damage.

Two chemicals that absorb moisture from the air are silica gel and calcium chloride. These are available in department stores and drug stores. Silica gel is not harmful to fabrics, does not drip and may be used again after it has been dried in a vented 300 degree oven. Hang it in a cloth bag or place in an open container in closets with the doors closed. Silica gel is blue when dry and pink when full of moisture.

To use calcium chloride, the specialist says place this chemical on a non-rusting piece of screen wire over an enamel ware container placed in closed closets. As the moisture is absorbed the calcium chloride liquifies and should be replaced with new material. Do not let this liquid come in contact with clothes because it is harmful to fabrics.

There was a young woman named Lil Whose car barely crept up each hill.

When she started to climb It would buck every time

People bet: "No, she won't—yes, she will."

Then I got Conoco's NEW 1-2-3 "50,000 Miles No Wear" Service!

Now smart, young Lil climbs every hill, thanks to one of the greatest services ever offered the motoring public—a service that helps engines last longer, perform better, use less gasoline and oil!

It's exactly the same service that kept test cars new in Conoco's spectacular "50,000 Miles—No Wear" road test!

In that famous 50,000-mile test, with 1,000-mile drains and proper filter service, test car engines showed no wear of any consequence: in fact, an average of less than one one-thousandth inch on cylinders and crankshafts. Gasoline mileage for the last 5,000 miles was actually 99.77% as good as for the first 5,000.

Now you can get this same 1-2-3 "50,000 Miles—No Wear" Service, at your Conoco Mileage Merchant's today!

HELPS YOUR ENGINE LAST LONGER, PERFORM BETTER, USE LESS GASOLINE AND OIL!

Don't tie yourself to your kitchen. Install an automatic Gas Range built to "CP" standards. No range is more automatic! An automatic gas range will cook a complete oven meal for you while you are miles away from home.

Only gas ranges give you smokeless broiling. The clean blue flame of natural gas consumes grease and food vapors and leaves your kitchen smokeless and fresh. Ask your dealer to install an automatic gas range in your kitchen. There is no finer cooking appliance.
