Letters To Santa

Dear Santa Claus:
I want a walking doll and a doll nurse set and vanity table set and Cinderella cleaning set and a complete kitchen.
Your friend,
Judy Stone.

Dear Santa:
I hope you are having luck about making your toys. There are a lot of boys and girls that will be waiting for their things.
I would like to have a motel and machinegun, and anything else that you would like to bring me.
Yours truly,
Jack Wood.

And here is your reindeer:
(Drawing of reindeer.)

Dear Santa Claus:
I am a little boy four years old. For Christmas, I would like a green tractor just like Daddy's, an Oliver 88. My brother, Ronald would like a train, and I have a sister but I don't know what she wants. Her name is Vona Lou.
See you Christmas.
Duane Wyatt.

Dear Santa Claus:
If you think I've been a good little girl, please come to my house and bring me a doll, doll clothes, doctor and nurse set. Don't forget Daddy and bring him a pair of shoes. My little sister, Harriet wants a Teddy bear. Thank you. I love you.
Libby Cook.

P. S. I have a secret for you, too.

Dearest Santa:
I am a little boy 8 years old. I would like for you to bring me a slide and monopoly board. I have a little brother nine months old. He wants a rocking horse and anything else you can bring him, for he doesn't have any toys he can play with, and he is so pretty and sweet all time. We love you. As always, your friends,
Buddy and Wayne Giles,
5067 Trueland Dr.,
Fort Worth 5, Texas.

MRS. MILDRED NOWLIN
WEDS AT GRANDVIEW

Mrs. Nowlin was married in her home there on December 14 to Mr. O. E. Eubanks of that town. They will make their home in Grandview.

Her son, Thomas Deen Nowlin, is a Freshman student in Baylor University at Waco this year.

SCOTCH

Three blood transfusions were necessary to save a lady patient's life at a hospital. A brawny young Scotchman offered his blood.
The patient gave him $50 for the first pint, $25 for the second pint—but the third time she had too much Scotch blood in her and she only thanked him.

AN IDEA

Hubby went out with the boys one evening and before he realized it, the dawn of the next day had broken. He hesitated to call home and tell his wife. Finally he hit upon an idea.
He phoned and when his wife answered he shouted, "Don't pay the ransom! I'm back."

TAHOKA GARDEN CLUB TO MEET SATURDAY

The Tahoka Garden Club will have its annual "Christmas Pilgrimage" on Saturday, Dec. 20, beginning at 7:00 p. m.

The pilgrimage will begin at the home of Mrs. Lenore M. Tunnell. From there we go to Mrs. Irving Stewart's and then to Mrs. L. C. Haney's. Next we will go to Grassland where we will visit the home of Mrs. M. L. Thomas, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Claude Thomas and Mrs. E. A. Thomas.

Every club member is urged to attend and bring your guests. These ladies have gone to a lot of trouble decorating their homes and we are sure they will have something interesting to show us. —Reporter.

TO ALL OF OUR FRIENDS

We wish to express our deepest appreciation and gratitude to the blood donors, visitations and beautiful flowers that we received during our father's illness.

Bulldogs Enter New Deal Play

Tahoka Bulldogs are entered in the 17th annual New Deal invitational basketball tournament which opened Thursday night and closes Saturday night.

Tahoka opens play tonight, Friday, at 7:20 p. m. against the always strong Abernathy boys team.

Boys teams entered include Tahoka and Abernathy, Lockney, Muleshoe, Post, Frenship, Kress and New Deal.

LAZINESS

An old New Englander was remarkably well informed, but so very lazy that the new pastor asked him how he had contrived to learn so much.

He replied, "I just heard it here and there—and I was too lazy to forget it."

Gifts To CROP Are Asked Here

Time is drawing short for those who wish to have a part in the CROP—Christian Rural Overseas Program, a worthy program, according to Rev. Jim Sharp, member of the Lynn county committee.

CROP is sending raw materials to needy people in various parts of the world. This year the Texas Friendship Food Ship will sail from Houston for Korea about January 15. It will be loaded with wheat, cotton, milo, powdered milk, garden seed, seed corn, rice, etc.

The Christian people of Texas along with other American Christians are joining hands in exporting Love, Hope, and Friendship to many, many destitute hungry boys and girls in Korea in an effort to stop Communism and preserve Christianity.

The South Plains has been asked to supply 200 bales of cotton, Lynn county 40 bales, to go on this ship.

Rev. Sharp says: "We want Lynn county to do her part. If you have any cotton that you can give to this worthy cause, leave it at the gin where you do your ginning. It will be collected and shipped. If you do not have cotton and want to give money, send it or leave it with Pete Hegi at the First National Bank in Tahoka."

Ramsour Gives Rotary Program

Lee Ramsour presented a unique and interesting Christmas program at Tahoka Rotary Club Thursday noon of last week.

The program conducted on the lines of the "Dr. I. Q." radio show, complete with microphones and assistants in the audience (Truett Smith and Happy Smith) featured questions on "The Christmas Story" from the Bible. Though a few of the questions stumped the Rotarians, members of the group showed an unusually good knowledge of this part of the Bible.

The name, "Miss Hap," Praytor explained, was given the kitten, "because she was born at the wrong place at the wrong time." (Official U.S. Navy Photograph—FHTNC)

SMALL BOATS DANGEROUS

Small boat accidents annually kill about 1,200 Americans, according to a leading insurance company. A fifth of the accidents occurred when the boats were swamped or the victims washed overboard. Many of those drowned had ignored bad weather, or tipped or over-crowded boats, or had been careless in other ways.

Tahoka will play six games at home on the ten-game football schedule for the fall of 1953 just completed by Coach Bill Haralson.

Three of the five District 6-AA conference games will be played in Tahoka.

This district now has six teams, Floydada and Abernathy having been added to District 6-AA recently. Floydada has been moved from District 2-AA to 6-AA, and Abernathy has moved up to AA from Class A, District 3.

Tahoka, Floydada, and Abernathy were champions of their respective districts this year. Tahoka has two other district champions on its next-year schedule, Denver City and Seminole.

Coach Haralson believes next year's schedule will be an excellent one. Looking at the situation at this time, most of the teams should be fairly well matched with Tahoka.

Floydada, one of the better Plains teams, loses heavily by graduation. So do Abernathy, Seminole, and Denver City.

Tahoka will lose nine by graduation, but will have some good replacements coming up from the squad and from the Freshman team.

The complete schedule follows.
Sept. 18. Denver City here.
Sept. 25. O'Donnell there.
Oct. 9. Seminole here.
Oct. 16. Tulla here.
*Oct. 23. Post here.

Odds AND Ends

(BY E. I. THE ELDER)

Perhaps the people of today are not much interested in the Indian wars or the Indian raids of by-gone generations. Perhaps not many of you have been reading my lengthy but thrilling or tragic stories of Indian life and activities that I have been presenting recently in this column. But they really constitute a vital element in our country's history; for, from the very time that the first white settlements were made on our shores until little more than a hundred years ago, the Indian menace hung like a pall over almost every white man's home. Just one savage attack upon some settler's home whereby one or more persons were murdered in cold blood or were kidnapped and snatched out into the darkness of the night and into some secret Indian hide-out was enough to strike horror and unending dread into the hearts of people for many miles around and for many years to come.

Personally, I was born in central Texas too late ever to feel that dread in my own heart, but well do I remember how my father and mother, who had come to Texas from Alabama, often spoke of the depredations made by Indians in that state before their day but recently enough to create in their childhood minds the haunting fear that the Indians might come again.

Alabama and Georgia and Florida were all in the Indian country—the land of the Five Civilized Tribes, the Creeks, the Seminoles, the Cherokees, Choctaws and Chickasaws. Some of these tribes had lived in that general area for hundreds of years—how many hundreds of years nobody knows. But, as we pointed out last week, nearly all of them were engaged in agricultural pursuits and lived in semi-permanent homes—in log houses or other substantial structures. Some of them, however, were quarrelsome and warlike, and were hard to get along with. Some of them, notably the Cherokees, were very intelligent, loved peaceful pursuits, and were reasonably friendly unless sorely injured or provoked.

Now we have given you this picture of these five tribes as a part of the background of the story that follows.

There is a long historical background, much of which we have recited recently in this column: The long-drawn-out struggle between England and France to dominate the territory now covered by the United States and Canada, including the several French and Indian wars; the efforts of each country to win the friendship and aid of the Indians, and the many clashes that occurred as the French advanced southward down the valleys of the Ohio and the Mississippi rivers and as the English pushed westward from the Atlantic seaboard to the Mississippi.

The French were generally successful in winning the friendship and the aid of the Indians as against the English until the close of the last French and Indian war in 1763, when a treaty of peace was signed in which the French gave up the right.

Following that, the English succeeded in winning the friendship and aid of most of the Indian tribes as against the Americans in the Revolutionary War. The English, before and during the Revolution, be it said to their shame, poisoned the minds of many of the Indians against the Americans, and in this they were aided by American Tories, many of whom settled among the Indians during and following the Revolution. Some of the Creeks in Georgia are said to have actually fought on the side of the English in that struggle, incited or at least encouraged, no doubt, by the Tories.

So, we came up to the close of the Revolution and a little later up to the War of 1812 with most of the Indian tribes sympathizing with the English and unfriendly toward the United States. We must admit that much of this hostility toward us was due to the unfair and unjust treatment of the Indians by many of our own citizens who cheated and swindled the Indians at every opportunity.

Some of it, after the Revolutionary War, grew out of the wavering and sometimes unjust policy of our Government in dealing with the Indians.

Some of it, in the later stages of the era, grew out of the curse of Negro slavery and out of the race problem generally.

With this general background, our main story this week must deal mostly with events which occurred during or following the War of 1812.

With the advent of that War, Andrew Jackson enters into the picture in a big way, but his activities alone would fill a book, and so we shall omit most of them and mention his connection with these events only when it seems necessary to do so.

As soon as that War of 1812 with Great Britain broke out, Andrew Jackson of Tennessee, who had already won considerable political and military distinction in that state, offered his services to the Government at Washington together with 2,000 militiamen. His offer was accepted and he was assigned to duty in New Orleans. But while he was raising his promised body of 2,000 men, Authorities in Washington reversed their plans and ordered Jackson to dismiss his men and send them home. I have never seen any explanation of this strange action. Jackson himself was bitterly disappointed and angered, for he heartily hated the British and was intent on doing all he could to whip and to humble them.

In the meantime, the Creek Indians had started a war against the whites in Georgia and Alabama, prompted no doubt by their own grievances against the Americans as well as by a desire also to help the British. Jackson then determined to strike a blow against them. He hastily raised a body of Tennessee volunteers and went after those Creeks. He gave them a terrible licking at Horseshoe Bend in Alabama. This victory restored him to the good graces of the Washington authorities, and he was commissioned Major General in the regular army, 1814. As such, he asked permission to attack Pensacola, Florida. That was then in Spanish territory, and the Washington authorities hesitated. Though Pensacola was in Spanish territory, the British were using it as their base of operations. So, while Washington was hesitating, Jackson decided to act on his own responsibility. He attacked and captured Pensacola. That prepared the way for him to hasten to New Orleans and build up his defenses there against the British.

But on January 8, 1815, almost immediately after his arrival there, the British, evidently not knowing the mettle of Jackson and his soldiers, made an all-out attack. The British, to their great surprise, were repulsed with heavy losses. Although it turned out that peace had already been declared, this victory at New Orleans made Jackson nationally famous. The British had been driven from our shores, and most of the Indian tribes in this country were again keenly disappointed.

West Florida, which included that comparatively small portion of Florida lying west of the Apalachicola River, had been in the possession of the United States since the capture of Pensacola by Jackson in 1814. Pensacola is situated at the mouth of that river. East Florida embraced all that portion of the state lying east of the Apalachicola, which embraced, in fact, nearly all of the territory.

Spain still remained in possession of all that vast domain, but she did little to maintain order therein. So it had become the rendezvous of all kinds of crooks and criminals—white adventurers run-away slaves, and hostile Seminole Indians. It is claimed that these Indians made frequent raids over into Georgia during and following the War of 1812, stealing, plundering, and sometimes murdering white settlers. In 1818, General Jackson, commander-in-chief of the Southern Division of the United States Army, was sent out to put a stop to all this lawlessness. Jackson did not stop at the border but penetrated deep into Spanish territory. While this was called the second Seminole War, not much fighting was done. Jackson did not lose a single white soldier in the operation and did not kill but twenty Seminoles. His own army of about 1,850 men was aided by some 1,500 friendly Indians. But the invasion accomplished its purpose, the Seminoles retiring into the Florida jungles and showing up no more that year.

This invasion of Spanish territory, however, did almost bring on a war with Spain and caused the British lion to snarl viciously as if he wanted to fight again. But by 1819 Spain decided that she was willing to sell the whole territory for a price. The price agreed upon by the two countries was $5,000,000, and so Florida became a possession of the United States by purchase in that same year. She has been trying to prove ever since that she was well worth the money. But before we detail the pathetic story of the Seminole Indians that followed quickly after the Stars and Stripes were raised over their log huts and their wigwams and their fountains of youth, we want to give another brief chapter on the fate of the (Continued) tradition...

Just like the familiar toy-filled stocking, it's a traditional holiday event to telephone distant friends and loved ones. There's something extra warm and personal about a Christmas phone call — a thoughtfulness and sincerity no card or gift can match. Why not make this tradition a part of your Christmas?

To avoid delay, place your Christmas calls a day or more before Christmas day — and, if you can, give the operator the out-of-town number you are calling. Then be sure and have a very merry Christmas!

The Cherokees, you remember, were the tribe that invented their own alphabet, set up a printing press, printed a translation of the New Testament, published hymns—and must have sung them too—printed and distributed religious and secular tracts, established schools, and lived in peace for years and years under their own vines and fig trees, and possibly under some orange trees, or Georgia apple trees. Americans had not cultivated their friendship much, however, and in the Revolutionary War, they sympathized with the British. They wanted to live in peace with the Americans, however, and so in 1785, only two years after the close of the American Revolution, realizing that the British were done for on this continent forever, they entered into a treaty with the Government of the United States whereby we acknowledged their independence and confirmed their title to the lands which they occupied. The Cherokees believed of course that a solemn contract made by us would be held as sacred and would be observed faithfully.

But a few years sped by, and in the early 1820's the news began to spread that gold had been discovered in "them thar Georgia hills." The Georgia people became quite excited. They began "clamoring" for the Indians' lands. So insistent was the demand that Georgia passed a law ousting them from their homes; their lands were taken from them and they were ordered to make their way out to the Indian Territory. Their insistence upon their rights under the treaty they had made with the United States, their pleas for simple justice, their arguments of whatever kind, had no influence on the Georgia authorities. Their greed for gold had won the fight, and the Cherokees must go.

As a last resort, the Cherokees appealed to the President, who at that time, 1830, happened to be none other than Andrew Jackson. The President denied their plea on the ground that a statute of the state of Georgia—or of any state—took precedence over a federal statute or contract of any kind, within the boundaries of such state. This was in accord with the doctrine of States Rights and nullification then held by John C. Calhoun and many other Southern Democrats.

So, disillusioned and disappointed, those home-owning, home-loving Cherokees, under the leadership of one John Ross, trudged out into the mud and the slush, on foot, to make the long journey of many hundreds of miles, across swamps and through malaria-infested swamps, to cross numberless rivers including the Great Father of Waters, so named by the Indians themselves, thence over mountains and patches of prairie, to join other tribes and other Indians of their own tribe who had preceded them to the reservation. But not all of them reached the reservation. Many of them had died from sickness and disease and from hardships on the way.

Some of the Cherokees refused to undertake the journey. They fled to the mountains of western North Carolina, and some of their descendants live in those mountains yet.

Think of such a journey as that, folks, by men, women, and children!

Now I am not contending that these Cherokees should not have been moved. I think that it was wise and necessary, in fact, to provide a reservation for them, but I think that this Government should have furnished transportation, paid all expenses, and treated them, not like a bunch of cattle rounded up and driven to some distant range, but like human beings. The world may not be growing better, but I feel sure that the people of the United States today would not stand for a procedure like that for one single minute. It reminds one of the callousness and the cruelty of a Hitler or a Stalin.

Now, friends, I want to introduce you to a man of rather low birth, who was brought up in a rather unpromising environment, who married a woman of unfortunate status, and whom you would not invite into your home, I am sure, but in spite of all that he was a human being and probably a much better human being than some men we have in our own community. He had a rather poetical name, don't you think?, Osceola.

Osceola was a Georgian by birth, being born somewhere about the year 1804 in southwestern Georgia on the Chattahoochee River, near the Florida line. His race he was a half-breed Creek Indian who was brought up among the Seminoles and as a young man became a Seminole chief. He was a half-breed Englishman as well as a half-breed Indian, for his father was an English trader and adventurer named Powell. His mother was the daughter of a Creek Indian chief, and I presume therefore that she was full-blood Creek. I do not know whether they were legitimately married or not, probably not, for when little Osceola was four years old his mother migrated on down the Chattahoochee River into Florida and took up her abode with the Seminoles.

When he grew up, he fell in love with another half-breed and married her. His wife's father presumably was a Seminole Indian. His wife's mother was a run-away negro slave. She too was the property therefore of her mother's former owner. Under the law in most if not all of the slave states, the owner of a run-away slave could go into any state in which the fugitive might be found and by making a simple affidavit of ownership could take charge of the fugitive and take her back to his own home or plantation. The same rule applied as to the fugitive slave's child or children, for the child of a slave was per se a slave also. Neither the fugitive nor the fugitive's child could contest the claim of an owner who made the proper affidavit. These slaves had no standing in court in such matters and hence had no remedy and no means of defense. They were mere property in the eyes of the law, just like hogs or cows. It seems now almost unthinkable that good people permitted such pernicious laws to exist. Right here we should like to make this observation also: That slaves and fugitive slaves could love and be loved. Osceola evidently deeply loved his wife, and they doubtless were living together happily. Possibly they had children in their home. Be that as it may, the former owner of Osceola's mother-in-law appeared at his home one day and dragged his wife away and back into slavery. That was in 1835, when Osceola was about 31 years old. This outrage so infuriated

THE LYNN COUNTY NEWS,

Friday, December 19, 1962

Osceola that a government agent chained him up like a wild beast and kept him chained up for six days. And that is what started the last Seminole War, led by Osceola, in 1835. It started on the day when Osceola killed the government agent who had recently chained him up, and on that same day his followers massacred 110 U. S. Soldiers and started a reign of terror throughout Florida. The Indians unable to cope with the U. S. Army, would rush out of the Everglades and make their murderous onslaughts and then slink back into their hiding places.

It was through an act of treachery on the part of U. S. officers that Osceola was finally captured. On October 27, 1837. (Cont'd. On Back Page, Sec. 2)

General Thomas Jesup in charge of a U. S. force sent up a flag of truce and thereby induced Osceola to come forth. The conference between the two men had scarcely begun when army officers seized the wily Indian and imprisoned him in St. Augustine, Florida. Later he was taken to Fort Moultrie, S. C., where allegedly he died of a broken heart within another four months. I fancy I can see him now pacing his cell in a burning rage that grows hotter and hotter as he thinks unceasingly of the wrongs that have been done him and his mulatto companion now herself snatched into slavery and passing the long dreary days and nights in utter despair on a Georgia plantation Osceola's fever, as he thinks of her and of the white man's treachery and trickery that entrapped and imprisoned him, burns hotter and hotter till death ends it all.

There is little point now to a guy getting worked up over the blighting curse of slavery, dead now for nigh on to a hundred years, but when I think of victims of it like that mad-dened Indian Osceola, my temperature just naturally rises several degrees. It behooves all of us to fight with all our might against any dictator like Stalin or any gang of demons like the Red Chinese who today would seek to enslave any other people anywhere, of any race, color, or nationality. Let's have no more of slavery.
