STANDING ON THE CORNER

With P. J.

Have you read about the Boneheads of Dallas? It is a club comprised of doctors, lawyers, and other dignitaries of the city that meets once each week to make fools of themselves.

Guests speakers are invited to their weekly luncheons, and invariably given a glass of water, a plateful of peas and a knife with a groove in it for eating them.

However, one Texas sheriff who was warned and his deputies met the members at the door with six-shooters. They then listened for two hours while the sheriff told them about the price fluctuations of cotton since 1900.

Don't you think Pete Hegi and Truett Smith would make good charter members of a Boneheads of Tahoka Club?

We will be bringing you now and then a few thoughts from a lady in Hereford who has recently entered the professional writing field:

In the beginning, time was meant to pass like a gentle breeze, but man and his inventions has changed it to a rushing wind.—Gladys Miller.

What about a father? Here's what Paul Harvey says about him:

A father is a thing that is forced to endure childbirth without an anesthetic.

A father is a thing that grows when it feels good and laughs loud when it's scared.

A father never feels worthy of the worship in a child's eyes. He's never quite the hero his daughter thinks, never quite the man his son believes him to be, and this worries him sometimes.

A father is a thing that gets very argy when the first school grades aren't as good as he thinks they should be. He scolds his son, though he knows it's the teacher's fault.

Local Children Dog Bite Victims

Two local Mexican children have been bitten recently by vicious dogs, and sheep, calves, and pigs have also been attacked by such dogs.

Dr. Emil Prohl reports that Ramiro Anchondo, age three, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Anchondo, was bitten in the back by a vicious dog here in town near Union Compress on Sunday, July 29.

Thursday of last week, in the same neighborhood, Gracie Rodriguez, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isidro Rodriguez, was attacked by the same dog. The dog grabbed the child's nose with its teeth and hung on so tenaciously that some other children had to pull the dog off.

Both children were treated at Tahoka Hospital, and are now doing fine, but the injuries could have been serious.

With the owner's cooperation, the dog was destroyed. However, there are other dogs doing damage and causing citizens trouble. The News is informed.

Dogs a few weeks ago killed three sheep of Clovis Honeycutt's. Dogs attacked the sheep of Borden Davis and killed one ewe. They have also reportedly been attacking calves and pigs.

All dog owners may do well to make sure their dogs are not roaming around stock pens near town or molesting children.

Grassland Opposes School Consolidation

Grassland defeated the school consolidation issue at the polls Tuesday by voting 41 for and 53 negatively.

The election was held after petitions were handed County Judge W. M. Mathis asking for a vote to be taken in an effort to consolidate the Grassland school with the Tahoka schools.

Tahoka voted 57 for the consolidation and three against.

Last year Grassland also voted down the consolidation of the two schools. A spokesman said that many of the citizens in the Grassland community feel that if they lose their school they will lose some of their community spirit, and therefore wish to keep it as long as possible.

The school teaches through the seventh grade and eighth grade and high school students transfer to Post and Tahoka.

Earlier this summer Grassland and Garmolia voted down a proposal to consolidate with Southland, Graham, and Close City.

Roy Edwards held the election in Tahoka, and H. W. Edwards Jr. was election judge at Grassland.

Plains Cotton Growers Head Tells Of Problems of Short Staple Crop

Problems of marketing Plains cotton were discussed at a meeting of New Home Civic Club Monday night at the Community Center by George Pfeifferberger, executive vice president of the new Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

Fifty-four men were present for the meeting and were served a fried chicken dinner by ladies of the home demonstration club.

"Our small percentage of bad cotton has given us a bad reputation for the whole," he told his audience.

He outlined some of the problems of marketing short staple Plains cotton and some of the methods that will be used to promote our staple.

In spite of abuse given Plains cotton by prejudiced competitors, he emphasized that there is a demand for short staple cotton. He said there has always been a good (Cont'd. On Back Page)

Today's MEDITATION

from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

The Upper Room

© THE UPPER ROOM, NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

Then said Jesus unto his disciples, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." (Matthew 16:24.)

One of the most beautiful words in any language is sacrifice. We associate it with the rich, sweet, and beautiful self-giving experiences of life.

I recall such an experience during the depression days. My mother, a devoted Christian, had a very limited income. It was her wish to subscribe for a splendid religious periodical for my brothers and me. Out of her limited income she expected to pay for those subscriptions. When I discovered it, I chided her and refused to allow her to pay for them. I shall never forget the pained expression on her face. Tears flowed down her cheeks as she said, "But I want to; it gives me great joy."

The true Christian does not look upon such sacrifice as self-denial but as privilege, an opportunity, a joy. This is the kind of sacrifice that God blesses. It enables His church to grow and to prosper. For those who would be true followers of Christ, the thread of sacrifice must run through all of life.

PRAYER

O God, forgive us wherein we have thought more of ourselves than of Thee and of others. Forgive us for accepting the lesser values. Grant us strength of mind

ELMER BLANKENSHIP

The blue panic grass that was cut back with shears on Charles Baker's farm and Theo Campbell's farm around the first week in July is again making seed heads. These cuttings were made to control careless weeds and to obtain uniform growth. Satisfactory results were obtained on weed control.

M. C. Thomas at Grassland used a weed killer in a field of blue panic for weed control. The effect seems to be good on all weeds.

Jiggs Swann is controlling a heavy growth of careless weeds in his blue panic with intense grazing with cattle. Enough livestock were used to graze down the weeds. The blue panic has made sufficient growth that it will not be pulled up or damaged by grazing. An electric fence was used to hold livestock on the area.

Carl Griffing planted blue panic grass on dryland south of Tahoka and has had enough showers to obtain adequate stands on approximately sixty acres.

This planting was up to a stand the third week in July and with any moisture at all should be well established before any killing frost.

The planting of Sesbania on the Campbells, north of Carters store is four feet high at present. It is needing rain but nodule formation is continuing although less than if moisture conditions were better. Sesbania has the ability to stop growth during dry periods but continues again after rain.

Bureau Leaders To Attend Lubbock Policy Meeting

The Lynn County Farm Bureau leaders will attend a district Farm Bureau policy development planning meeting Monday at the Lubbock Hotel in Lubbock, according to Lois Smelser, president of the local county organization.

Those who will represent the county Farm Bureau at the one-day session include: E. R. Blakney, J. W. Gardenhire, Elmer Blankenship, T. B. Mason, and N. E. Wood.

One of the objectives of the meeting, according to Mr. Smelser, is to discuss ways of getting more Farm Bureau members to participate in the development of policies which guide the organization on county, state and national levels. Policy development in Farm Bureau starts at the "grass roots" level in the counties and culminates at the annual national convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation. County Farm Bureaus adopt county policies and make recommendations to the state convention on state and national issues.

The more important issues facing farmers and ranchers today also will be discussed at the meeting in Lubbock. Background information on these issues will be made available at all of the county leaders in attendance. This information will be used later in discussions of issues at community meetings.

State issues to be discussed at the district level meeting include feed control legislation, insecticide law, state-wide disease control, water and re-apportionment of state legislators districts. Subjects on the national level to be discussed include removing "roadblocks" to higher net farm incomes, surplus disposal, expanding markets and getting the government back to the people.

Plains Cotton . . .

market for 15/16 inch staple, and other lengths less than an inch. This area is not suited for long staple cotton, and he said we need to shoot for proper varieties, for stormproofness, or storm resistant, cotton that has a fiber the mills like.

In spite of the fact that the foreign market has gone to pieces, he thinks a demand can be built up in Europe for short staple cotton. For instance, England can use short staple on fully one-third of the yarns it spins.

Even in a bad year, the grade of Plains cotton is pretty good, and the story that the Plains raises cotton for the Government loan is not true, he said. Mills do not fuss too much about short staple, but about poor character. Mills buy on the basis of grade, staple, and good character.

He said we will be hearing a lot about micronaire in the near future. Micronaire is simply a quick method of determining the good character of cotton fiber. A micronaire test of 3.5 or above is considered good character cotton. A low micronaire test indicates immature, and therefore low character or weak fiber. He thinks a lot of our cotton will test up to 4.5 or better on the micronaire.

Plains Cotton Growers will attempt to break down some of the false reputation of Plains cotton by direct contact with the mills, through sending them samples, by inviting mill representatives to this area to inspect the cotton, etc. Work is also being done with the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The organization has three main objectives—service, promotion, and research. One project now underway is an attempt to get special recognition for light spotted cotton. He said light spotted cotton is now thrown in with spotted cotton, when actually light spotted cotton is much better spotted cotton and some times as good a white cotton, and should bring a comparable price.

Texas Tech laboratories will be used to the fullest in both research and in producing samples to promote short staple.

The Plains Ginners' Association has agreed to cooperate with the movement to promote Plains cotton by assessing 15 cents dues for each bale ginner at time of ginning.

Wilmer Smith, a director of Plains Cotton Growers, introduced the speaker. He declared that if Mr. Pfeiffenberger does nothing else he has already been worth the money put into Plains Cotton Growers because of the contacts made and promotion work done on a recent trip to Washington, D. C. Mr. Smith thinks another big cut in acreage of Plains growers has been averted by the trip.

Many of those present expressed the opinion that the right man had been secured to head the Plains Cotton Growers organization.

Although a native of Ohio, he has spent most of his life in Texas, and is well acquainted in all branches of the cotton industry. He spent several years at Texas Tech in the textile department, was with cotton mills in the North and South for eight years, was with the U. S. Department of Agriculture for 10 years, and was with the National Cotton Council for several years.

A. C. Verner of Tahoka, also a director from Lynn county in the Plains Cotton Growers, and other guests from Tahoka and Wilson were present at the meeting.

PRESTON SMITH HERE
Preston Smith, candidate for State Senator, visited friends and supporters in Tahoka Tuesday to begin his campaign for the August 25 run-off election.

Out of approximately 46,000 votes cast in the 11 counties of the 28th senatorial district, Smith lacked only 541 votes getting a majority over both his opponents.

F. C. Jones, is slowly improving as a medical patient in Tahoka Hospital. He is the father of V. F. and Felix Jones and was here visiting V. F. when he became ill.

The smoke ascends to heaven as lightly from a cottage hearth as from the haughty place. He whose soul ponders this true equality may walk the fields of earth with gratitude and hope.—Wordsworth.

Standing . . .

Fathers are what give daughters away to other men who aren't nearly good enough, so they can have grandchildren who are smarter than anybody's.

Fathers make bets with insurance companies about who will live the longest. One day they lose and the bet's paid off to the part of them they leave behind.

I don't know where father goes when he dies. But I've an idea after a good rest, wherever it is, he won't sit on a cloud and wait for the girl he's loved and the children she bore. He'll be busy there, too, repairing the stairs, oiling the gate, improving the streets, smoothing the way.

Louie Weathers sent in a sample of his peaches. He says he has picked 15 or 20 bushels from three trees in the back yard. The trees have been very cooperative with Mrs. Weathers' canning operations, however, by being kind enough to ripen one at a time.

D. C. Carroll has a little tree that has produced many big Elberta peaches. Likewise D. R. Grayson has had to pick about four bushels from one tree before the fruit was ripe to keep the weight from breaking the tree down. Even at that, after propping up and tying up limbs the best he could, many of the limbs broke.

And, speaking of crops, have you noticed Bert Dollins' great big corn crop right down in town? He has a one-stalk crop growing out of a small island of dirt and surrounded by concrete in the driveway in the front of his place of business. We hear he pampers that stalk like he does any one of those three cute grandchildren.

Golf Rule of the Week: 14-club rule: Penalty reduced to loss of each hole in match play and two strokes in stroke play for each hole in which violation occurred. I still haven't figured out what last week's rule means. If you need any help, Lester Strech will be glad to decipher 'em for you. Mrs. Lucy Drager, mother of Just call him at number 527-J. Earnest Drager, was admitted to Tahoka Hospital Tuesday with the honor should be allowed pneumonia. She is improving, at to play before his opponent or tendants say.

OUR HATS ARE OFF TO—

IDA PEARL MASON, Farm Bureau Queen, and Edwina Overstreet, alternate, and to the other contestants, Roma Brewer, Jerene Wuensche, Joyce Church, Betty Phipps, Mary Alice Stone, and Linda Milliken—all very beautiful and very fine girls in whom Lynn county can justly take pride. We believe these girls will rank at the top anywhere.

Fred Mauhart Tells of History, Life, Government, Farming in Austria

Fred Mauhart, Austrian agricultural student guest for two months of Tahoka Rotary Club, talked at the club's weekly meeting Thursday noon of last week.

He told of his life and family, the geography, history, politics, education, and farming in Austria.

He is the son of a farmer living near Linz. His parents have five sons and two daughters. Evidently, his father is considered a big farmer in that country, for he owns 150 acres, and the average farm is 40 to 50 acres in size. (The father is also a leader in farm and political affairs of the country.)

Linz is a manufacturing town, principally iron and steel, surrounded by farms, and most of the farmers also work in the factories. Because his father was a farmer and the products of his labor badly needed, the Nazis gave the family little trouble during World War II. However, because his father was not a Nazi, Fred was not allowed to go to school for a time during the Nazi occupation.

Next year, Fred expects to finish his work at the University of Vienna. He was one of eight students selected from the University to come to America this summer under the International Research Fund program, cooperating with Rotary Clubs.

He says when he received the invitation from Tahoka, he bought a map of Texas, found Tahoka located on the Llano Estacado, and supposed he was coming to some "island on the desert."

Austria, "the heart of Europe," is one eighth the size of Texas and has about the same population, seven million. Much of the country is mountains, with the Alps covering a large part. The few plains and the valleys are farmed and grazed. Iron, coal, and salt are mined. Considerable oil is produced, but Austria is forced to let the Soviets have most of it in payment for independence.

Vienna, the capital with a population of two million, was destroyed by bombs during the war, but the city has been restored and few scars of the war are left.

Austria was established as a dukedom about 950. In World War I, 1918, the empire was destroyed and the people reduced to the class of vassals. Hitler occupied the nation in 1938. Since the war the country has been under occupation, but a year ago in May, a democratic form of government was set up with a constitution, president, and elected officials.

He visited the polling places here during the recent Democratic Primary and found that their present system of elections is very much like ours.

There are two great parties in Austria. About 47 percent vote

Mauhart Is Busy On Area Visits

Fred Mauhart, Austrian agricultural student spending two months here as the guest of Tahoka Rotary Club, is keeping up a busy schedule.

Currently, he is staying in the Harold Green home. On Thursday night he was to see the all-star basketball game in Lubbock Coliseum, and tonight he will see the all-star football game.

He spent from Thursday until Tuesday in the Mitchell Williams home.

Thursday of last week, he spoke before Tahoka Rotary Club. That afternoon, he visited the Wuensches and Moerbes at Wilson, and inspected the farm of Aubrey Smith, as well as other farms at New Home.

Friday, he accompanied District Attorney Williams to Seminole, and was taken by Sheriff V. A. Harris of that city on a visit to the Brunson Ranch, near there.

Saturday was spent in Lubbock, where he visited business houses and was specially impressed with the super markets. He saw the movie, "Moby Dick" and that night attended a dance in Tahoka given by the Rainbow Girls.

Sunday morning, accompanied by the Emil Raindl family, he attended mass at a Lubbock Catholic Church. During the afternoon, he visited with young people of the town, and was accompanied on a rabbit hunt by Jerry Cain.

He also visited Texas Tech on Monday in company of Jerry Cain, who is attending summer school there, and sat-in on some classes, including a German class. That night, he was the guest of Patsy Smith and others at a picnic supper and attended a softball game at Tahoka Park.

Conservative and 45 percent Labor. The remaining 8 percent is made up of minor parties, of which 4 percent are Communist.

Austrian farmers raise wheat, rye, barley, oats, sugar beets, potatoes, and grapes; clover, alfalfa, and grasses for grazing cattle; also peaches, plums, and apples and strawberries. Austrian, German, and American tractors and other farm machinery are used, and agriculture is rapidly being modernized.

The country has lots of rain, 25 to 30 inches on the plains and 50 to 60 inches a year in the Alps. A farm of 150 acres is worth $50,000 to $200,000, depending on the richness of the soil and the rain district.

Mauhart declares Austria has a good school system, but the children of many farmers are not able to go to school in winter and many attend classes only five months of the year.

He brought a number of pictures with him that help give the American an insight to the country and life therein.

Mitchell Williams was in charge of the program. Brief talks on the current attendance contest were made by Granvel Ayer for the Navy team and Dr. K. R. Durham for the Army team.

BLANCO COUNTY REUNION
L. H. "Lit" Moore Sr. of New Home announces that the annual Blanco county Reunion will be held at Mackenzie Park all day Sunday. All former citizens are urged to come early and stay late, and there will be plenty of food. This is the 22nd annual Blanco Reunion, which Mr. Moore thinks is the oldest county reunion in this part of Texas.

Danny Daniels, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Louie Weathers, is visiting his mother in Boston, Mass., for a month or more.

He left Lubbock by train on July 29. It was the first time he had made a long trip alone, and made it just fine in spite of missing connections with a train in Chicago.

MASON DAVIDSON COMING HOME FROM GERMANY

Mrs. Pearl Davidson and daughter, Ann, have gone to Arkansas to meet the former's son and the latter's brother, Mason, who is coming home from Germany, where he has spent 18 months in service with the Army. He expects to receive his discharge.

VISITS MASSACHUSETTS

Miss Ethelene Bucy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bucy of Brownfield, is in Provincetown, Mass. for six weeks this summer studying art composition under Hans Hoffman.

She left Texas in June and will return this month.

Ethelene received her BA degree from Texas Tech in commercial art and design last May.

4-H Members At Electric Camp

Six Lynn county 4-H Club boys and girls and the local farm agents attended the Electric Camp held at Lubbock August 1, 2, and 3 under sponsorship of Southwestern Public Service Company.

The youths studied all phases of electricity, including wiring, appliances, and lighting, and as a project each built a table lamp.

The boys from Lynn county were Robert Bessire of O'Donnell, Ronald Wyatt of New Home, and Rodney Maeker of Wilson. They were accompanied by Bill Griffin, county agent, and Nathan Boardman, agent-in-training.

The girls were Sandra Meeker of O'Donnell, Linda Roper and Sue Campbell of Wilson. They were accompanied by Miss Wanda Roach, home demonstration agent, and Miss Shirley Holbrook, agent-in-training.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Waldrip and son, Raindl (Bud), and wife of Ralls left Saturday night on a week's vacation at Turner Falls and Sulphur, Okla.

Nothing takes to the road like a Chevy!

Once in a blue moon a car like this comes along—a design so advanced in performance, so beautifully balanced that it stands out above every other car on the highway. It has a solid, sure-footed way of going that makes driving safer and more pleasant on any road. And you feel a very special sense of security in its rapid-fire responsiveness to your touch on the wheel, brakes and accelerator.

You can see that the '56 Chevy is a standout for style. But until you have driven one you're missing the best part of the news—the fact that Chevrolet is the smoothest, solidest, most wedded-to-the-road automobile you ever bossed. Try it and see.

Odds and Ends

(By E. I. The Elder)

Although Texas is often chided and ridiculed for its so-called "Texas Brag," it seems to be strangely forgetful of many of the really "big things" that have occurred in connection with its history. In fact, its history can be told only in the use of superlatives. Not only is it the largest state in the American Union in extent of its territory, but it is the richest one in the matter of natural resources. The story of its evolution from an uninhabited and practically unexplored wilderness into a free and independent Republic and thereafter by gradual but heroic steps into the sixth most populous and powerful state in this marvelous galaxy of forty-eight states is a story that thrills every Texas school-boy and school girl, and that, in spite of the brutal crimes that are being committed here and there throughout our bounds almost every day, Texas, through its churches and schools and courts of justice, is leading the way to a higher level of civilization and international influence and power as the years come and go.

Now, may be all this is just a little more "Texas Brag," but I believe that it is sustained by well-established facts. I think that in fact we are prone to forget many of the great deeds and episodes that have made Texas history great. I think that we are prone to forget even the calamities that our state has frequently suffered. I shall not recall them here and now. But I do wish to remind the readers of this Column of the beginning of the oil industry in this state.

Why select that dull subject for a discussion in your Column? many of you will ask. There are oil wells and great oil fields and kindred products all over our state today. Although some poetic idealist named it "liquid gold" many years ago, it is a "messy" product, if you ask me.

All of which is true, but it is by far Texas' most valuable product. Nearly one billion barrels of oil were pumped from the soil of Texas in 1954. I do not have time now to hunt up values of petroleum products mined in Texas annually, but even if I had time neither you nor I would or could comprehend the enormity of the figures.

All this prodigious oil industry in Texas was started when the noted Spindletop Well blew in suddenly, and I might say unexpectedly, near Beaumont in January, 1901. I was a young married man nearly 26 years of age, with a license to practice law, hanging up in my office, when that sensational event occurred. I stayed at home and looked after our meager law practice, while my law partner, a young man older than I but still unmarried, rushed off down to Beaumont to watch Old Spindletop spout its "Liquid gold" high into the air. In a few days scores of others were doing the same thing—scores? Hundreds of them—thousands! People from practically every state in the Union were rushing to Beaumont. Some were coming from foreign countries. The big oil find at Spindletop was being talked in England, France, Germany, Spain; and other countries; for it was the most sensational and most important oil well that had ever been brought in anywhere in the world. Other spectacular gushers were brought in at Spindletop soon thereafter, and that field became the first great oil field in Texas. Great Oil fields have been developed also in California, Oklahoma, and Louisiana, but I do not know whether any of them preceded the Spindletop Field or not. Numerous other fields have been developed in Texas since Spindletop was brought in, but my decision to include a narrative of this world-famous wild outburst of "liquid gold" from the bowels of the earth early in January fifty-five years ago, was suggested to me by a television reproduction of the marvelous display in my home and in the homes of many other families in this area, no doubt, on Sunday afternoon, July 19.

The ominous rumbling of the ascending column of oil as it rushed up the casing in the well with seeming tornadoic speed could be distinctly heard for a few moments before the spray of oil mist shot out at the top of the well and ascended high above the derrick like a furious storm-cloud or a miniature volcano in eruption. Scientists did a marvelous thing when they invented and developed the television.

It took a long time for the world to find out the value of petroleum, from which, by refinement, we get kerosene oil and gasoline. The ancient Babylonians and Ninevites used to see it as a scum on the waters of the Euphrates and the Tigris and other, no doubt, were provoked by its presence, but they had no idea that some day it would drive powerful locomotives over their rich valleys and plains and mighty steamers from Calcutta and Bombay through the Arabian Sea and the Indian Ocean around the southern point of Africa and out into the unknown waters that lay beyond, Herodotus, the greatest of all Grecian historians, who lived and wrote four and a half centuries before the birth of Christ, discovered this same kind of scum on some of the islands of the Mediterranean, but he never dreamed that the time would come when it would be used to drive great merchant ships out through the strait of Gibraltar into the terrors of a trackless ocean and finally unite the Old World with a New One in bonds that would draw them closer together than the eastern and western shores of the Mediterranean. Petroleum was known to the ancient Egyptians, the Romans, the Carthaginians, and without a doubt to the ancient Phoenicians, who from time immemorial had been carrying on commerce with all the known nations of the Old World, even with the heathen peoples that then occupied the island of England and other northern lands. They traded in gold and silver and many kinds of raw materials and every article of commerce throughout the known world, and they must have known of the existence of petroleum but never dreamed that it would ever have a commercial value.

The discovery of the possibilities of petroleum as an article of commerce was due indirectly to the use to which it was put by the aboriginal Indians of North America. White men who first settled in what is now Western Pennsylvania a few centuries ago, coming in contact with friendly Indians in that region, found that the Indians were in the habit of rubbing their bodies with an oil that was coming from the springs of that area, believing that the oil made them strong and enabled them to win foot races, says the World Book. Occasionally the Indians would ignite this oil in their religious ceremonies, holding it in a sort of sacred awe, for they regarded fire as an omen of evil, connected in some beneficial way with the presence and work of evil spirits. They did prize its alleged medical qualities, however, but the white men at first detested the stuff, for it appeared often in the wells of water which they dug and ruined it for drinking purposes. But finally, it occurred to some of those shrewd Pennsylvania yankees that they, like the Indians, might collect this oil in bottles and sell it as a remedy for rheumatism. In some instances, however, the supply of oil was so plentiful that the inhabitants permitted it to flow into streams and thereby form a heavy scum of oil on sizeable rivers. The World Book says that white men once set the Cumberland River in Kentucky on fire just to get rid of the oil. There was one old New Yorker who conceived of a better way than that to get rid of the offensive oil. His name was John D. Rockefeller. He was born in 1839 in a little country town in New York but removed with his parents to Cleveland, Ohio, in 1851. Other shrewd yankees as early as 1829 had learned how to refine oil and they drilled a commercial oil well, the first one ever drilled in America, on a little creek near Burksville, Kentucky, in that year; and began selling the refined product as a "cure-all" for rheumatism and kindred aches and pains. By 1858, John D. Rockefeller had grown up into a youth 19 years of age. He had heard about that Kentucky oil well and had learned that the oil was being refined and sold as a medicine. He kept his mouth shut and in some way had won the confidence of business men. He went to a bank or possibly to some other opulent capitalist and borrowed One Thousand dollars, formed some business connections that proved highly successful, and in 1862 went into partnership with a man named Clark, then took in another partner, who was a successful oil refiner, and the three organized the first oil company and oil monopoly ever organized in this or any other country. That was the beginning of the Standard Oil Company, a company through which John D. Rockefeller became reputedly the richest man in the world.

I am old enough to remember when practically every household in Texas was lighted with little brass lamps or with upright oil lamps burning Rockefeller's "brilliant" Standard oil. I had one exciting experience with "Standard Oil" that will never let me forget the episode. I may have told this story in this Column before but not in recent years.

My father was a farmer, a black-land cotton farmer living in the Stampede community in Bell county, then the cotton frontier of Central Texas. There was one cotton gin in Stampede Valley and only one at the time about which I write. Farmers picked their cotton and piled it up in the field or sometimes in some room in the dwelling house. When they had a sufficient number of bales ginned, they would take it to the nearest cotton market to sell it. The farmers of Stampede Valley would usually take their cotton to Waco, some thirty miles away, to market it, and they would usually go in groups, using one day or a little more on the trip to the city (?), one day to market the cotton and do their shopping for supplies, and the third day for the journey home.

On one day when I was about five years old and two older brothers and a sister had just started to school at Stampede, my oldest brother, Jim, who was about 13 years old, brought home a history book, Quackenbos' History of the World, so-called, but many of the stories in it were merely legendary. But it had pictures in it. One of them was a picture of a legendary battle in which the wicked and ambitious Queen Semiramis, who reigned over both Nineveh and Babylon, had undertaken to conquer and destroy the rich and powerful king of the land of the Indies. Hearing of the plans of Queen Semiramis, the king of the Indies hastily got ready for the conflict. He not only gathered together a great army of soldiers but also a herd of elephants which he had trained for furious warfare.

Semiramis had no elephants but as a counter defensive and show of strength she had 3,000 brown oxen killed, skinned them, and had their hides sewed together in such fashion as to resemble elephants, and when placed on camels they did rather strikingly resemble elephants, it is related, and so Queen Semiramis was foolish enough to go into battle with the aid of these beasts against the King of the Indies with his real elephants.

This battle is pictured in that history book showing the India elephants routing the hosts of Queen Semiramis and tossing soldiers into the air like leap frogs and trampling them underfoot like so many grasshoppers. It is a picture to attract any five-year-old boy's excited interest. Well, Jim got into that cotton room with that book and with a little brass lamp filled with John D. Rockefeller's "brilliant" kerosene oil, and with us kids crowded around him to see that battle picture and others almost as interesting, and I accidentally knocked that lamp over. A flash of fire ran over that big pile of cotton in a split second, and there was pandemonium in that home quicker than a one of us could bat an eye. Mother and Jim could a quilt into a bucket of water and threw it onto the burning cotton. Tinie and William ran to bring other buckets of water, but quicker than a cat could skin up a tree I was out in the front yard dancing like a Comanche Indian and screaming at the top of my voice.

Honestly, I doubt if Queen Semiramis was more excited when those India elephants stormed over her men and oxens and with their trunks began pitching men into the air than I was when I turned over that little brass lamp of Rockefeller's Brilliant Standard Oil and set that cotton pile afire. Mother and Jim and Tinie and William finally put that fire out but I still remember it as if it had happened just last night.

In spite of its description as "prairie wolf," the coyote is much smaller than the true wolf and more closely resembles the jackal. A native of the North American continent, it is a familiar item in cowboy song.
