Today's MEDITATION from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

The Upper Room

Above all... put on love, which binds everything together in perfect harmony. (Colossians 3:14 RSV.)

In Sweden as I was going to church one Sunday morning, two missionaries asked where the church was. I invited them to go with me, for I was going to the church they wished to attend. On our way they told their story.

They had come from the East. They had gone through much hardship, and had been forced to leave their station and work. In Sweden, on their way home, they found ease and rest.

They had arrived the night before without knowing where they were to stay. They went to the police station, and were brought to the headquarters of the Salvation Army. "Here in this place we found Christian fellowship; we feel that God is in this country," they said.

Do we have the joy of Christian love in our hearts? Are we ready at all times to show kindness and Christian love to those we meet, especially to strangers who are in need?

PRAYER
God, our Father, Thou art Love. Make our love to Thee pure and holy. Strengthen the love of Christ in us. Help us by love to lessen the hardship and pain in our fellow men. In the name of Christ, who loves all mankind. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
Christian love makes the place where we live a blessed place. Cleophas L. Tobing (Indonesia).

Rural Mail Service Started In October 60 Years Ago

The Post Office Department's rural delivery service today serves more Americans than ever before in history.

This observation was made by Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield in calling the nation's attention to the 60th birthday of the service.

Experimental rural delivery service began October 1, 1896, with three routes at Charles Town, W. Va., and two routes at Halltown and Uvilla, near Charles Town.

These sites for the initial experimental routes were picked by Postmaster General William L. Wilson, a native of West Virginia.

Old records show that in its first week the three Charles Town routes provided for surprised farmers delivery of 214 letters, 290 papers, 33 postal cards and two packages. Previously, they would not have received this mail until they went into town to pick it up, often a matter of weeks or even months.

That was a far cry from today's mail load handled by rural delivery carriers. For example, in a recent 12-month period, nearly eight billion pieces of mail were handled for rural patrons.

Today, there are 31,888 routes serving 34,930,000 mail patrons over more than 1 1/4 million miles of routes that extend into virtually all the counties of the United States, as well as into territories and possessions of the United States. And, during the fiscal year ended last June 30 alone, there were 594,900 patrons added to rural delivery routes, while a total of 11,798 extensions of rural routes were made to provide more and better service.

There are 1,642 rural routes in Texas covering 90,000 miles and serving some 430,000 families, and service is being extended every day, according to Regional Director George A. Gray of Dallas.

Five routes serve 755 families through the Tahoka Post Office. This in an increase of 23 families over the last year.

Rural delivery was first officially suggested by Postmaster John Wanamaker in 1891.

The first bill authorizing rural delivery service was introduced in the House of Representatives on January 5, 1892, by James O'Donnell of Michigan, but it failed to pass.

A bill by Congressman Thomas E. Watson of Georgia became law March 3, 1893, appropriating $10,000 for experimental rural delivery. This, together with $20,000 appropriated for the same purpose on July 16, 1894, was not immediately used, the Postmaster General deeming the amount insufficient.

On June 9, 1896, another $10,000, together with the prior $30,000, was made available, and the first experimental rural delivery service was established the following October 1.

Many events in postal history have been marked by big ceremonies, such as when the Pony Express began between Saint Joseph, Missouri, and Sacramento, California, on April 3, 1860. But the West Virginia experiment was launched with little fanfare, and under a cloud of criticism. Critics said it would be impractical and expensive.

"They were certainly proved wrong," Summerfield noted.

"The effect the Post Office Department's rural delivery has produced upon the American scene in 60 years can scarcely be exaggerated," he said. "It stimulated development of the parcel post, and it aided greatly in the establishment of the American system of roads and highways.

"Moreover, its effect on commerce, as a vital link between industry and the American farm family has been tremendous, and it has a great cultural and social effect on American life, providing new vistas of communication for the rural family.

"Rural delivery service is still expanding today because increasing numbers of Americans are moving out of the more congested areas into suburban surroundings," Mr. Summerfield went on. "Thus, improvement of the rural delivery service also means better mail service for increasing numbers of suburban families," he said.

One of the five original "RFD" carriers, Mr. Melvin T. Strider of Charles Town, W. Va., is still living, incidentally, and a prominent citizen active in banking and business in his city, Mr. Summerfield noted.

Eagle Scout Tells Of Japan Trip

Willie DuBose, 17, Lamesa Eagle Scout who was one of 25 American Boy Scouts on the Asian Exchange Student Airlift last spring, told of his trip to the Pacific and Japan at Tahoka Rotary Club last Thursday noon.

He told of his group's flight in a C-47 plane to Hawaii, Wake Island, and Tokyo. He told of his stay in Japanese homes, their life, food, and customs, visits to the Imperial Palace. The crowd at a high school baseball game, he said was as large as that at most of our college football games.

Japan covers 147,000 square miles, and only 15 percent of the land is cultivated. Rice, of course, is the principal crop. He thought the land lives up to its reputation for being the most beautiful country in the world. The people are friendly, and seem anxious to please the American visitor.

He also told of the visit to the Islands of Hawaii, the big sugar and pineapple plantations. Pineapple, he said, is planted and harvested the year around because of the mild climate.

Willie was accompanied to Tahoka by his father, Ed DuBose, a Lamesa Rotarian, who is the district Boy Scout Camp chairman.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. Emil Prohl, who had present as special guests, E. B. Gaither, district Boy Scout commissioner, and "Pat" Patterson, assistant commissioner.

The two Junior Rotarians for the month are Donald Renfro and Haynes Howie, high school seniors. Renfro was introduced by

This was the tenth consecutive meeting of the Tahoka Rotary Club in which the attendance had been 100 percent.

Mrs. Minnie Parker was released from Tahoka Hospital Sunday where she has been for six weeks recovering from a broken hip on the right side and a broken pelvis on the left side.

Collier Speaks At Texas U.

Wynne Collier, president of the Texas Pharmaceutical Association, delivered a talk before the 515 pharmacy students at the University of Texas in Austin Tuesday from 1:00 to 2:00 p. m.

He said he told the pharmacy students some of the things their employer will expect of them and also told them of the work of the Texas Pharmaceutical Association.

In his audience were Billy Ware, son of Pete Ware, a senior in the School of Pharmacy who expects to graduate next June, and Harlan Cook, Jr., now of Lubbock but reared in Tahoka, who expects to graduate in February.

Wynne, accompanied by his son-in-law, Harry L. Short, flew to and from Austin the same day with Jack West, Plainview druggist, in the latter's four-place Bellanca private plane.

They left Lubbock at 8:30 a. m., and arrived in Austin at 11:00 a. m. On the return trip, they traveled a little faster because of a tail wind, leaving Austin at 3:00 p. m. and arriving back at Lubbock at 5:05 p. m.

Upstream watershed protection programs are complimentary to and not a substitute for needed downstream river improvement. At the same time, it is equally obvious that downstream river improvements cannot be a substitute for upstream watershed protection.—May 25, 1954.

Teachers Taking Course On TV

Two Tahoka teachers are among the 13 students, a new set of pioneers on the South Plains, who have enrolled at Texas Tech for the first college-level course ever given in this area through television.

They are Mrs. Larry Hagood and Charles J. Minter.

Although the course carries no academic credit, a person who has a bachelor's degree but no education courses can sign up for it and secure a temporary teaching certificate by completing the requirements of 26 lessons.

The small-watershed program provides the means for dealing with flood siltation and other problems in tributary watersheds on a border community basis than otherwise would be possible. And, to that extent, it is bound to contribute importantly to any major river basin development that it has undertaken.—June 3, 1954.

SQUIRREL PLENTIFUL, GEORGE NIXON SAYS
Mr. and Mrs. George Nixon spent last week end at their camp on the Concho River near Paint Rock. They report that there is about a 40 percent pecan crop and a one hundred percent squirrel crop. Due to no rain last July and August the pecans did not mature and as a result many pecans fell off and what is left is not of the size they usually are on the river.

New Benefits Offered By S. S.

Of importance to all women is the recent change in the law which permits those who have reached 62 years of age or older and would otherwise be eligible to receive social security benefits to begin doing so as early as November of this year.

This new law also affects women whose husbands are drawing social security benefits, dependent mothers and widows of insured persons, and women who have established their own social security earnings account by having worked in employment covered by the Social Security Act or operated their own business.

Benefits may be paid to these younger women beginning in November. However, they may make application for these benefits as late as November of 1957 and still not lose any payments, as they can be retroactive for as much as 12 months.

Women interested should write their social security office giving their name and address, account number and number of their husband. They should also state whether they have been operating their own business and whether they have had military service or been employed in the railroad industry.

A representative of the Lubbock Social Security Office will be in Tahoka on Oct. 19, 1956 at 9:00 a. m. at the Courthouse and will be glad to assist in all matters pertaining to Social Security.

An incident of unusual interest occurred on a busy street corner in Berkeley, Calif., according to reports. Mrs. Margaret Wilson, blind since birth, was standing at an intersection waiting for someone to help her across the street. A man stepped up and asked, "May I go across with you?" "I would be very glad if you would," replied Mrs. Wilson, cheerfully.

After they had crossed safely, the man thanked her. Mrs. Wilson was surprised, for she was about to thank him. "You know," the man continued, "when one has been blind as many years as I have, it's a mighty big favor to have someone help him across the street."

Have you often wondered why Dean Wright's hair sometimes won't stay put? It's a secret, but I don't think he'll mind if I tell you in confidence. He's had several pictures made, you know, and considering the fact that he's so photogenic, it upsets him something awful when they don't do him justice. For instance, we've got one down here now that looks like something we saw at the zoo, and might sell it to the highest bidder. Now watch him pull his hair!

Speaking of pictures, we've been having trouble getting pictures for the society column in early enough to make the paper. If you want your picture in at the time of your wedding, engagement or anniversary, please bring it not later than Saturday before the issue in which you want it to appear. The picture must be sent off for a mat to be made and the process takes several days.

Tahoka Loses First Conference Game

Tahoka fumbled away the first quarter, Spur took advantage of Tahoka mistakes, and as a result the Lynn county boys came home from Dickens county Friday night with the small end of a lop-sided 48 to 7 score.

Tahoka's Bulldogs did everything wrong, especially in the first quarter, got behind and were humiliated by the alert Spur Bulldogs. Poor tackling, poor blocking, and poor timing contributed to the defeat.

Things went wrong for Tahoka on the opening kick-off, as the ball bounced over a Tahoka lad's head and into the end zone. He attempted to run it out and was stopped on the four. After making a first down on the 14, Tahoka fumbled and Spur recovered on the Tahoka 11. Two plays later, Spur QB Ray Powell scored.

Tahoka seemed started as Prohl went for 9, completed a sensational pass to McNeely, who caught the ball as he fell to the ground, and three running plays moved to the Spur 39, where the ball went over. But, Spur marched down field to score, FB Eddie Hagins going the last 9, and HB James Gordon kicked the extra point.

hoka lads, with Gordon going over from the 14 around left end, Gordon kicked the extra point. Score 41-0.

After two exchanges of the ball, Spur took over on Tahoka's 35, and six plays later, a 20 yard pass to End Heryest Wilson was good for a TD, and End Ronnie Cloude caught a pass from Gordon for the extra point. Score, 48-0.

Following the kick-off, Tahoka looked really good for the first time in the game, marching all the way for a TD, when Halfback Jimmy Harter, now playing at Quarterback, went the last 45 yards around right end on a keeper play to score untouched. HB W. H. McNeely bucked the line for the extra point. Final score 48-7.

To the credit of the Tahoka Bulldogs, they never quit trying. Their tackling, blocking and timing were all off, but they were still battling Spur to the final gun.

The Bulldogs had a good work out Monday and they seemed determined to get after Floydada this Friday.

New Home Loses District Contest

New Home Leopards have a chance to win a game this week end, as they are entertaining the Lorenzo Hornets, so far this season an impotent ball club.

Friday night the Leopards took a 26 to 0 licking at New Deal in the season-opener in District 4-B.

New Home put up a good battle, but the elusive New Deal backs got away on long runs for all four of their scores. Scoring was from 79, 12, 20, and 60 yards.

Ike Can't Make It Rain, But He's Still Best Man

The other day I asked a farmer if it was dry out his way. He said it sure was. "Looks like we just can't get any rain," he said. "Why, when Noah had his 40-day flood, we didn't get over half an inch."

There's no mistake about it, Texas is having itself a real drouth. Some of the farmers and ranchers in our county are in such bad shape that they may vote for Stevenson.

Old Man Jones, from across the river, said he wasn't going to go to any such extreme. He said he needed rain as bad as anybody else. He claimed water was so scarce in his community that the preacher was baptizing new members with a wet handkerchief. But he was holding out awhile longer, anyway.

"I may be stubborn," said Old Man Jones, "but I just ain't been convinced that President Eisenhower is keeping it from raining."

He said he knew that Stevenson and Kefauver acted like they thought so, and they had a right to their opinion. Lyndon Johnson, he figured, knew better, but he was sticking with Adlai and Estes for the sake of unity. He said he didn't figure Mr. Sam Rayburn had known whether it was raining or not for the last 25 years.

"I hate not to go along with such a widely known crowd of weather observers," Old Man Jones said. "If there's anybody who keeps up with which way the wind is blowing, generally speaking, it's Stevenson, Kefauver and Johnson."

Then he went on to say that he realized the national farm program hadn't pleased everybody—including him. If he was in the White House, he would do things different, at least in our county. He allowed that the $61,000,000 spent by the Eisenhower administration for drought relief in Texas could have been doubled and still not made all the farmers happy and prosperous.

"But," said Old Man Jones, "I keep remembering that the main reason for our troubles, besides the drouth, is the fact that we are not at war. Now, if Adlai and Estes really want to jump on President Eisenhower, there is a real issue. They've sure got the goods on Ike in that respect. If he hadn't stopped that Korean War, farm prices would be higher, no doubt. I wonder why they never mention that."

Old Man Jones was kidding a little, of course, in his usual way, but I think he had something there. We have got to adjust to peace-time, which is taking awhile but President Eisenhower is working at it. And meanwhile our boys aren't fighting and dying on foreign soil. It's worth thinking about.

Yours truly,
Tex

Odd Ends

(By E. I. The Elder)

Stampede is definitely a pioneer name, but an unusual and expressive name even out on the frontier. It is so unusual as the name of a creek or a community that I have never heard of it anywhere other than in the central Texas valley of which I have been writing. It certainly denotes sudden and uncontrolled action in the midst of quietude and serenity. It denotes confusion, fright, and rebellion. It means anarchy and chaos in the animal world. When a frontiersman hears the word, he hears in his imagination the tremulous, roaring sound of the thundering herd. It is a stampede of the buffaloes that is the most dreadful. The stampede of a herd of cattle on the vast prairies is often just as terrifying as the stampede of buffaloes. The stampede of horses is the most unusual and the most unexpected of all, but it was a stampede of horses and buffalo and defeated frightened Indian at a point on Stampede Creek that gave the creek its name, according to the story of the event related by Lieutenant George B. Erath to his friends and comrades soon after the stampede occurred. He was there when it occurred. So, I am going to give you his version of the event and of the struggle between a company of whites and Indians at Bird's Creek just west of the outskirts of the present city of Temple a few days before the stampede occurred.

To make the matter perfectly clear to you, it is necessary to remind you first that this Bird's Creek fight occurred in 1839, nearly three years after Sam Houston and a body of untrained soldiers had won the battle of San Jacinto and had set Texas free. But even before the Texas Revolution was begun, the Indians had become very belligerent and were constantly giving the white settlers much trouble. It was in 1836, you will remember, that the Comanches made their raid upon the barricaded camp of the Parker family at Groesbeck, gained entrance into the camp by deceit and stealth, killed a number of the adult occupants, abducted two or three of the women and carried them to the far West stole 8-year old Cynthia Ann and her little brother Johnnie, and took Cynthia Ann to the upper reaches of the Pease River and little Johnnie to the Rio Grande area and reared them as Indians. The Comanches and the Cherokees and some other tribes made frequent raids upon white settlements and continually kept the whites in a state of fear and uncertainty as to where the Indians would strike, and when. But now I am going to tell the story in his own way, interposing explanations here and there as they may be needed.

"The fall of Parker's Fort and Indian depredations kept the country unsettled above a place called Nashville, where the International Railroad now crosses the Brazos," Lieut Erath begins his narrative.

"In the fall of 1837 a battalion of rangers was organized, and one company under the command of Captain T. H. Barron, was stationed at the falls of the Brazos; of this company the writer was a subaltern officer. We were ordered early in the year 1837 to establish a fort at Waco village. We were there three weeks coming up having found it necessary to cut a road and build a bridge over the Cow Bayou (a stream some 12 or 14 miles south Brazos). We expected to occupy of Waco running east toward the fort permanently. Waco was in the possession of buffalo, and only a short time before had been vacated by Waco Indians; corn stalks were found in the fields they had cultivated, and peach trees were growing where the city now stands (1876). We built some shanties for barracks near the big spring on the river, but only remained there three weeks, when an order came from the Secretary of War (under president Lamar) to return to the falls (of the Brazos) as we were too far out to do good service. We went back, calling the place Fort Fisher, 1838.

"A few families were settled at the falls of the Brazos, and on Little River, and a few on the Colorado, six miles below where Austin is now situated. There were no settlements between the Brazos and the Colorado rivers as far down as Washington county, and Indians killed travelers from Washington to La Grange. In July, 1837, (During the first administration of Sam Houston as President of the Republic of Texas) a cessation of hostilities was brought about, and General Houston effected a partial and temporary treaty with the Indians. Troops were now disbanded. The land offices opened the first of February, 1838. It was thought that surveyors would give protection to the frontier without expense to the Republic."

"Robertson county was now divided," Major Erath continues, "The part of it east of the Brazos river retained the name of Robertson county and the part west of the river was called Milam county."

"Troubles with the Indians continued . . . Early in 1839," Major Erath reminds us, "the Cherokees in Eastern Texas and a combination of Indians on our frontier, who were instigated by a Mexican named Cordova, prepared to make a descent on the settlement (Whether at Waco or at the Falls is not clear) in concert with Mexican troops. —President Lamar (second President of the Republic of Texas, ordered several companies of Rangers in the field. I had command of one company from Milam county; two companies took post between the Brazos and Trinity rivers, which were from Robertson county; Captain Bird from Fort Bend county, occupied Little River Fort; and Lieutenant Daniels from Houston, with about thirty men, was stationed at the falls of the Brazos.

"The plan of the Indians was to concentrate on the Bosque and wait for the return of Cordova, who had gone to Mexico, accompanied by several Indian chiefs, to bring back commissioners, presents, and ammunition. They intended on his return to close the alliance and make a general descent on the whites; but their designs became fully known to us, and were frustrated.

"After their attempts were defeated, they again concentrated on the South Bosque with their families, where Mr. Bland now lives, 1876. (Evidently somewhere below the highway that extends from Moody to McGregor.) "From their tents and general signs," Major Erath declared, "I judged their number to be at least 5,000. Restless, they commenced depredations before Cordova returned, and the rager parties were on the alert.

"Captain Andrews, stationed on the Colorado, about the 1st of June 1839, intercepted the party from Mexico, killed some of them, took their plunder, ammunition, and presents, and most of their horses. Before the Indians (on the South Bosque) became aware of this loss on their part, they attracted the attention of Captain Bird (stationed at Little River) who, being impelled by the eagerness of his men, was drawn from his position by the retreat of the Indians; receiving reinforcements from his camp fifteen miles off, he stopped for a fight. The gallant commander fought in a ravine (thereafter known as Bird's Creek) surrounded by nearly 1,000 warriors, his own force numbering not more than fifty or sixty men. Captain Bird and four others were killed on the ground. The others retreated to the fort eight miles distant, (Fort Griffin on Little River) and carried with them one of their comrades, who was mortally wounded.

The lieutenant sent parties to the other companies, and the companies stationed on the Brazos came to the rescue.

On the 4th of June four companies of Rangers came together near the fort (Fort Griffin on Little River just below Three Forks and passed the battle ground (at Bird's Creek) the following day, on the trail of the enemy (the Indians) who hearing of the defeat of their party on the Colorado, and seeing a larger force (of whites) approach them, fled, and made their escape under cover of the night.

"We camped near where the Indians had buried their dead and hid others, covering them with bushes among the thickets. On their route down (from South Bosque, I presume) they had driven the buffalo ahead, and had killed large numbers of them, so that the whole country was covered with their carcasses; the stench from which, together with that of the bodies of the Indians, terrified our horses at night, and caused a stampede, by which we lost a large number. This occurrence gave the name of Stampede to the creek where it took place, and which heads in McLennan county and flows into the Leon River in Bell county. This catastrophe broke up the expedition, as the time of (service of) the companies expired on the eighth. I returned, however, directly afterward and during the summer reviewed the ground.

"The Indians, immediately after the fight, went to the Brazos and disbanded. I ranged over the ground for a year and continued to find dead bodies of Indians; their loss must have been at least fifty."

J. W. PEARSONS, 510 ANGELO CIRCLE, CARLSBAD, N. M., say:

They point out that a busy home requires husband and wife to share in the household duties. As Mr. Pearson says, "My wife is so busy with the children that I do a lot of the cooking. And I enjoy our electric range because it is quicker and a whole lot cleaner. Our electric range gives us a complete selection of controlled heat for any size pan, which is a big help for any cook." You'll notice the difference, too, when you start cooking electrically.

The Pearsons heat their water electrically, too. Mrs. Pearson says, "With a family of 5, including a baby, which sometimes requires as many as 3 washer loads of clothes a day, our water heater is economical, less than 10 cents a day to operate. It's completely safe, even for small children. In fact, we have put it in an open alcove in the hall." Notice in the picture, Mrs. Pearson fixes her daughter's shoe while daughter and mother obviously feel no wasted heat coming from the electric water heater. And that's because an electric water heater has no flame, and so is insulated on ALL sides.

Start now to live better electrically in your home. See your Buddy Kilowatt dealer and let him show you the wonderful electric appliances that contribute so much to modern electric living.

Odds & Ends

So this is the account of Bird's Creek fight just west of the present city of Temple and of its aftermath on Stampede Creek, as given by George B. Erath, noted surveyor, and Indian ringer, who was one of the first white men to visit this entire area of Central Texas. The reader will note that Erath and the companies of Rangers who went in pursuit of the fleeing Indians, were driving a large number of horses. Most of the horses, of course, were those captured by Captain Andrews who intercepted that Mexican, Cordova, and his band of Indian Chiefs who were returning from the Colorado River with a bunch of horses and a lot of plunder on June 1.

The dead bodies of the Indians which Major Erath says that he continued to find for a year after the fight were the bodies of those who were mortally wounded at Bird's Creek but died after reaching Stampede Creek, where they had camped and killed their buffalo on the way down from South Bosque, before the Bird Creek fight, as I understand Major Erath's account of their movements, the Indians at the time knowing nothing of the defeat of Cordova and his party of Indian chiefs on the Colorado, and at that time having no idea that such a catastrophe was about to overtake them.

Now my wife, the former Mrs. Eva Daniel Eakin, who has spent most of her life in Falls county, has a history of Falls county in book form, and that history is so closely associated with the history of Bell county that it too gives an account of the Bird Creek fight. While it greatly reduces the number of Indians who engaged in this fight as compared with the number given by Major Erath, yet it has some additional information about the fight and such a graphic account of it, that I am going to quote most of it here, though it makes no specific mention of the Stampede Creek episode. Now I quote:

"In May, 1839, rangers were on the move, and a company of thirty-one arrived at the Falls (Fort Milam) under the command of the intrepid Captain John Bird, who had been stationed at Little River. The company arrived late in May, well mounted and equipped against depredateing Indians, known to be toward the west. The expedition was destined to be of decisive importance to the Falls county area, for after it ended people of this area were freed of major depredations of Indians, who had waged war against them ever since the first white man arrived.

"By 1:00 p. m. Captain Bird and company arrived at Fort Griffin, four miles west of the present town of Little River in what is now Bell county, and there learned that Indians were near. Five miles from Fort Griffin they found a freshly made trail, followed it, and came upon twenty-seven Comanches, busy skinning buffalo. The rangers charged and the Comanches fled in every direction. The rangers pursued the main body and, after three miles, came upon the same Indians who had converged at that point and arrayed themselves in battle order. The rangers charged again and the Indians fled again. The rangers horses were jaded and the pursuit was abandoned. Retracting their steps about a half mile, the rangers came to a small creek (later named Bird Creek) and found themselves surrounded by forty Indians, who began shooting their arrows in deadly persistency. The rangers took shelter in a small ravine where there was a spring of water, although the Indians tried desperately to prevent it.

"While a council of war was in progress, the rangers saw a large group of Comanches approaching, making three hundred savages in all, led by the famous chief, Buffalo Hump. The Indians arrayed themselves in battle order, hesitating long enough for the rangers to count them, although one ranger remarked afterwards, 'Thar warn't no time for countin' Ingins'.

"The Comanches charged, their wild war whoops mixing with gun fire and the din of battle, but they were repulsed with heavy loss. Three times the Indians charged and were driven back, their last charge bringing them very close to the ravine, and the rangers being almost surrounded. The intrepid Bird fell early in battle. Six other rangers fell, killed or wounded, and the survivors neared exhaustion. It seemed the twenty-five remaining men (the whites) were doomed, when James Robinett, upon whom the command had devolved with Captain Bird's death, swore to his comrades he would kill the chief on the next charge.

"He did not have long to wait, for Buffalo Hump came, dressed in full uniform, with an immense head-gear of buffalo horns and mounted on an American horse, presenting a most ludicrous and formidable appearance. Taking deliberate aim, young Robinett fired, and, sure enough Buffalo Hump fell. Ten or twelve Indians surrounded him and carried him away. After one more luckless charge, the Indians retreated to a hill with heavy loss of men and horses.

"The rangers stayed in the ravine all night, and next morning, not seeing Indians, went back to Fort Griffin in double-quick time. When the story of the battle got around, a large force of volunteers collected and went to Bird Creek, gathered the bodies of Captain Bird and his comrades in a huge coffin and carried them to the banks of Little River and buried them near the site of old Fort Griffin.

On the site of the battle of Bird Creek near Temple, the Centennial Commission in 1939 placed a Memorial upon which are inscribed these words:

BIRD CREEK INDIAN BATTLE
MAY 26, 1839

THIS MARKER COMMEMORATES
The Death of
CAPTAIN JOHN BIRD
SERGEANT WILLIAM WEAVER
JAMES E. NASH, H. M. HALL
THOMAS GRAY

And the heroic and successful Battle of a Ranger Force of 34 Against 240 Indians.

While the number of Indians in the Bird Creek fight might have been overestimated by Major George Erath, yet the number stated on the above marker was far too small, according to other data available. Whatever the actual number might have been, "Historians agree that the Bird Creek Battle, in which the chief, Buffalo Hump, was killed, was decisive in ending repredations in this section."

The Stampede Creek aftermath of the Bird Creek fight is vaguely referred to but not specifically

Claude Thomas' Get Deer, Antelope

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Thomas and Mrs. R. B. McCord returned last week from Colorado and Wyoming, where they visited relatives and went hunting. They visited Mr. and Mrs. Jim Looker at Idaho Springs, Colo. and Mrs. McCord visited them for two weeks while the Thomas' went on to Wyoming. Mrs. Looker is Mrs. McCord's daughter and Mrs. Thomas' sister.

The couple, along with several couples from Snyder, made up the hunting party, and Mrs. Thomas reports that she got a buck antelope, which was much larger than the one her husband got. However, he also got a 10 point deer. Everyone in the party got his game.

mentioned by the Falls County writer. But Major Erath has given us a graphic account of that episode, and I expect soon to have a picture of Stampede Creek at the point where the stampede occurred.

As heretofore stated, 250 residents and ex-residents of the Stampede community attended the August home-coming celebration staged at the Church and on the old school grounds adjacent thereto, but I doubt if there was a single person present who knew the full story of the naming of the Creek and the community.

Hundreds of people who had attended school in that community and hundreds of others who had once lived there were not present. I might add that all ten of the children of my father and mother had attended school at Stampede. The writer's present wife, then-little Eva Daniel, attended school there for several years. She lived at the foot of the Haunted Hill in the Valley for two years, a way down on the Creek for two years near the point where the stampede had occurred sixty years previously, two other years at a different place in the community, and three or four years in Moody, where one of the prongs of Stampede Creek has its head. So, you see she is a genuine Stampeder too. Enough for this time. Good bye, Stampede.

Mr. Farmer

Let us store your 1956 cotton and keep it at home as long as you have any equity in it. We have the facilities to do this.

When you send your cotton to us, it furnishes some Lynn county citizen work, and he spends his wages here. We are sure your ginner will deliver your cotton to any compress you request.

So, why not help home industry by keeping your cotton at home. Such helps all of us by building a bigger payroll in Tahoka and Lynn county—instead of building a payroll in an out of county town.
