Fire Department Makes Two Runs

People reporting fires should be careful to give exact location, states Chief Pat Patterson.

Monday Tahoka Fire Department was called to a fire at Lakeview, and the person calling gave the name Baker but no location.

Arriving at Lakeview store, no one there knew of any Baker in that community, telephone calls were made over the area to no avail. Finally, some Negroes drove up and informed the firemen one of them was the Baker who had the fire.

It seems the Negroes were blowing out a water pipe with butane, a very dangerous procedure, on a farm southeast of Lakeview, and the house caught fire. Fortunately, the Negroes had put out the fire and no one was injured.

Wednesday, the Fire Department made a run to Shamburger-Gee Lumber Co., where a grass fire threatened the building.

Mrs. Farris Durham was a medical patient in Tahoka Hospital from Saturday until Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Goad of Lubbock, formerly of Tahoka, were visitors here Tuesday.

WASHINGTON AND
"SMALL BUSINESS"
BY C. WILSON HARDER

Saul of Tarsus was quite a well known, efficient tax collector until one day he was struck by a blinding light and became Paul the Apostle.

Today over the land many employers are also seeing a light, and while not able to discontinue the role forced on them of being unpaid tax collectors, are becoming apostles of sanity.

Recently J. G. W. Harder, S. Kimmel, Sr., president of the Republic Electric Company, a Davenport, a 50 year old Iowa firm paid his employees their full check with no tax deductions, accompanied by a letter, which said in part:—

"I am letting you know this week how much you are really earning by paying you the full amount due you, not deducting the withholding tax or the social security tax. The extra amount given you this week will be deducted and spread over the next three week's checks."

A. G. Heinsohn, Jr., president of the Cherokee Mills in Sleversville, Tennessee, also recently brought home to his employees who pays for government extravagance.

He gave them their usual checks minus the deductions, but then handed them bags of silver dollars equaling the amount of the deductions, explaining this would be deducted from next three paychecks.

Million Dollar Program Planned To Protect Plains From Boll Weevils

Lubbock—The High Plains of Texas will carry out a million dollar program to protect the area from the costliest of all cotton insects, the boll weevil, beginning in September of this year.

The control program is known as "dispause control," and was officially adopted by the Area-wide Boll Weevil Eradication Committee when it met January 17 under the sponsorship of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. The committee is made up of one member from each of the 23 High Plains counties represented by Plains Cotton Growers, and the vote to adopt the program was unanimous. In the election of officers, John R. Pugh of Route 1, Lubbock emerged as Chairman of the Area-wide Committee, and Andrew Boggs of Kress was selected as Vice-Chairman.

Diapause is a phrase through which the weevil passes during the fall of the year when preparing to hibernate, and the control program's success depends on killing him before he completes that preparation, thereby greatly reducing the number of weevils emerging in the Spring to infest crops. Involved in the High Plains program will be the spraying of cotton acreage from the line of westward infestation back to where ranchland forms a natural barrier on the East. Present calculations indicate that some 160,000 acres of cotton will need to be sprayed at ten day intervals from about the middle of September until the cotton is killed by frost or by dissection. It is estimated that the average field will need spraying three times.

In addition to the million dollars that is to be raised on the High Plains, there are precedents for Federal participation in programs of this nature on a matching funds basis and it is believed that federal funds can be secured for this project.

Entomologists who are members of the Technical Advisory Committee and who have studied the High Plains problem estimate that spraying of extensive but delimiting acreages will be necessary for perhaps three years, after which only localized outbreaks will need to be patrolled.

Mitchell Williams scored 15 points for Tahoka while Allen Cox, Terry Harvick and Eddie Howard made eight each. Faulkenberry poured in 20 for Seagraves, Sansom 14 and Johnson 13.

The "B" game also saw Seagraves controlling the scoreboard from the beginning with quarter time scores standing at 14-6, 25-13, 35-24 and 49-32.

Wayne Thurman scored 10 and Mike Chandler nine for the local squad and Seagraves' Cullum and Coward made 23 and 12 respectively.

Home Economics Group Announces Dates For Meeting

College Station — The 55th annual meeting of the American Home Economics Association will be held in Detroit, Michigan, June 23-26, according to Mrs. Florence W. Low of College Station, president of the association.

Theme for the meeting will be "The Leadership Challenge." Mrs. Low, who is assistant director for home economics with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says.

More than 5,000 home economists from all parts of the country are expected to attend the annual meeting which will develop the "leadership" theme through program sessions on the psychology of leadership, educational leadership, community leadership and world leadership. The program is geared to the growing professional challenges facing the estimated 80,000 employed home economists in the United States today, Mrs. Low said.

Prior to the opening of the AHEA meeting, the home economists in business section of AHEA will hold a three-day pre-convention meeting, June 20-22, on "The Commitments of Leadership."

The American Home Economics Association is composed of professional home economists engaged in teaching, business, research, health, welfare, extension, international service and other career areas related to the well-being of homes and families.

Also affiliated are more than 5,000 home economists now engaged in homemaking, as well as 450 college chapters of undergraduate students preparing to be home economists. All members of AHEA are college graduates and many have advanced degrees.

David Bray Writes His Impressions Of England

(David Bray of Tahoka, Rotary Foundation student doing graduate work in Oxford University in England, at request of The News, is writing a series of articles on his impressions and travels in that country. The following is the second of the series.)

Two of the most outstanding qualities of the British people that I have noticed are their unique sense of patriotism and their great emphasis on personal volunteer service. Both qualities were extremely surprising to me because one normally associates them with a young vigorous nation rather than with an aged and mellowed nation.

For Americans who do not understand the British system of Parliamentary Democracy and the role of the monarchy, it is difficult to appreciate or comprehend the British patriotism. Indeed it often appears senseless or quaint to the casual observer. However, on the contrary, the average Englishman's love for his country, and for his queen are genuine and deep rooted, and provides the population with a unity that is envied the world over. This unity can be traced to three major causes. Firstly, Britain is an island, secondly, it is small in area and heavily populated; and thirdly, the British have always loved and preserved their national heritage and in particular, the monarchy.

The Queen remains the great symbol around which all Englishmen can unite regardless of political belief. She is aloof from domestic politics and therefore is never subject to current controversy. She represents the country to the people while the political party in power at the time represents the government. Therefore, it is possible for all Englishmen to be passionately loyal to the Queen even though vigorously divided as to politics. This represents a uniquely different situation from our country where we get great political factions and schisms with frequent confrontation to one's loyalty and patriotism. Our president is sort of combination prime minister and king to us; but because he does represent only one political party, these citizens of the opposition party may find their loyalty questioned when they express violent political criticism.

Outward manifestations of their deep patriotism are found all over England. At the end of every movie, the national anthem is sung. At the beginning of every Rotary meeting, a toast to the Queen is drunk. In every church service, a prayer for her is offered. There are also many moving public displays of their patriotism. Last November 10, the English Remembrance Sunday, I stood in Trafalgar Square in London along with thousands of Englishmen as military bands played and the Queen placed wreaths in memory of British war dead. As Big Ben chimed in the hour precisely at 12 p. m., the entire nation can unite regardless of po-

Lieutenant Governor Preston Smith Cites Record In Asking Second Term

Preston Smith of Lubbock today announced his candidacy for a second term as Lieutenant Governor. He called for "an intelligent and determined effort" to trim non-essentials from the State's 1965-66 budget.

"Texas is spending $3.2 billion this biennium, and the pressure will be on the Legislature to go much higher next session," Lt. Gov. Smith said. "If this happens, it will mean a tax increase. This we should make all reasonable efforts to avoid."

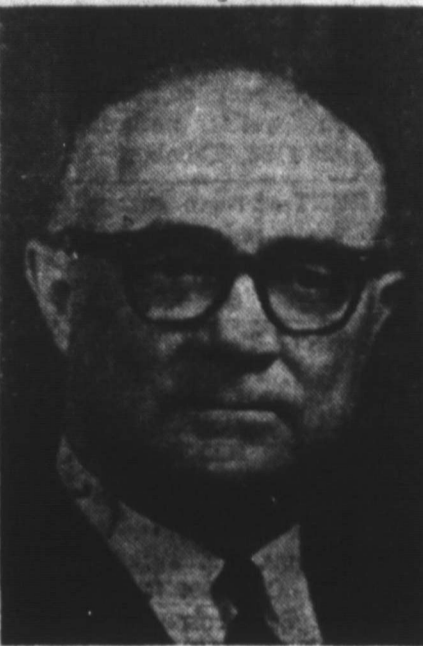

He cited President Johnson's economy drive at the federal level as a good example for state and local governments to follow.

"A dollar saved at the state-house or courthouse adds just as much to the private economy as one saved at Washington," he said.

Smith said he realized that necessary functions of State government must be adequately financed. A rapidly increasing population, he noted, places a growing load on both State and local governments, particularly for education.

He suggested, as examples, three areas in which legislation might help solve crucial problems without adding perceptibly to the State's tax burden:

1. A review of state laws relating to municipalities, aimed at bringing old laws up to date and possibly opening up additional revenue sources for hard-pressed city governments.
2. Cooperation of the Texas Employment Commission, Texas Youth Council, and possibly other state agencies with local authorities and private citizens in creating special employment opportunities for young people. He cited the successful "Youth, Inc." program at Wichita Falls as a sample of what can be done by interested businessmen to solve a community problem.
3. Passage of legislation to permit the formation of multi-county junior colleges, and other moves to make it simpler for eligible counties to use this means of alleviating the higher education crisis.

"We are rightfully concerned with the high standards and quality programs at state senior colleges and universities," Smith said, "but let's not forget the 80 to 90 per cent of our young people who for one reason or another will not be able to get a college degree."

Smith commented on responses to a questionnaire he sent to thousands of Texas citizens, asking them what issues they considered most pressing at state and local levels. The most frequently mentioned areas were: water, local control, fiscal responsibility, industrial development, education and employment.

The Lieutenant Governor recalled that the 1963 session of the Legislature was notable for harmonious relations between the two houses and with Governor John Connally's office. He said he expected this healthy relationship to continue.

Three nationally known speakers at the conference will be Dr. Fredrik Schoitz, president of the American Lutheran Church; Dr. Lowell Satre, professor at Luther Seminary in St. Paul, Minn.; and Dr. Stanley Schneider of Capital Seminary in Columbus, Ohio.

St. John Church is making plans for a Preaching, Teaching and Reaching Mission early in February, followed by a series of special Lenten services starting on February 12.

Eibert King will leave Sunday for Dallas for market and will see his son, John.

Former Citizen Dies Of Gunshot

Richard H. (Dick) Mitchell, 58 year old former Tahoka resident, died at 11:54 a. m. Saturday in a Big Spring hospital of a gunshot wound in the head after he was found on a ranch road about three miles northwest of Garden City, where he had moved with his family about 10 years ago.

Justice of the Peace Pete Underwood returned a verdict of "death by self-inflicted gunshot wound." A 22 rifle lay nearby when Mitchell was found beside his parked pickup at about 7:20 a. m.

His only son, Gary, 27 years old, was killed last week in an automobile accident near Odessa.

Norman Christie, 31, of Garden City, told officers he saw Mitchell's pickup truck pulling off the old Midland highway onto the rural road. He said he investigated and saw Mitchell but assumed he was dead. He went back to Garden City and notified Sheriff Royce Pruitt who found Mitchell still alive and took him to Cowper Clinic at Big Spring.

However, friends here say Mitchell was mortally wounded from a single wound in the head, and the time element probably made no difference.

Mitchell came to Lynn county in the middle 1940's and was a rancher here. One of his daughters taught in the schools here and his other daughter and his late son attended school in Tahoka. The family moved to Garden City around 1954 and he was a widely known rancher, merchant and a former county judge of Glasscock county. In addition to his ranching interests, he and his son had operated a feed and hardware store there.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon. Several Tahoka friends of the family attended.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Mrs. Winston (Mary Alice) Pritchard of Dalhart and Mrs. James (Kay) McCorquodale of Marble Falls.

MRS EMBREE HERE

Mrs. Warren Embree of Bovina, wife of the new banker at First National Bank of Tahoka, was down last week end to get acquainted with the town and said she was highly impressed with the friendliness of Tahoka people. Mr. Embree is "batching" here until end of the current school term, when his family will move to Tahoka. Mrs. Embree works in the bank at Bovina.

Every now and then we hear someone who has never been in business either seriously or jokingly take a crack at some business man for the "big 20 to 40 percent profit" he makes. If we here at The News could make 20 percent profit, we could get rich in a hurry. There's a big difference in gross profits and net profits, then net profits before taxes and net profits after taxes. The 1963 Statistical Abstract, just out, reveals that average profits of the nation's business institutions was 4.2 cents on each $1.00 sales.

A Tahoka grocer once told The News he could do exceedingly well financially if he could make two percent profit.

John Hegl, adding to his education by travel in Europe, sends a postcard picture of the barbed wire entanglements at "The Gate" between East and West Berlin, and writes: "This is exactly as 'The Gate' looked today, except everything was covered with snow. It's hard to imagine that this sort of thing really exists until you see it. Spent most of the day in East Berlin today. Have never seen so many police with machine guns; it's like they're fighting a war right now. There is no comparison between the East and West sides of the city. The East side is like a ghost town, while the West is as active as any large American city. Went over once with a tour and once by myself. I was scared to death the first hour I was by myself. Thank God we live in a free country."

William Z. Foster, former chairman of the Communist Party of America, on Dec. 24, 1963, said: "From capitalism to communism, through the intermediary stage of socialism; that is the way American society, like society in general, is headed."

Italy has billed the U. S. for taxes on a building we rent from which to dole out our taxpayers' foreign aid money which we send to the Italians. We Americans are plain stupid—or is it just stupid people we are spending our hard-earned dollars?

When our ancestors came to America from despotism lands, fleeing unjust taxation and seeking freedom, they found a fertile but hostile land. They fought starvation, lived under privation, and faced danger on every hand. They had to fight the British, the French, the Indians, to gain freedom, safety, and to hack out a place of abode in a wilderness. From this beginning, many giving up their lives for principles, has developed the greatest country in the history of the world.

The dark races have contributed little to this great achievement. Northern traders and shippers imported Negroes from Africa to our country to work as slaves in Northern factories and on farms. But, on finding them at that time unsuited for that type work, sold them to Southern farmers. In the period of a few generations, the Negro has made the most remarkable advancement of any race in the history of the world—for a comparable period.

But, still in this country, a man is what he is because he has made a place for himself in our society. We can not give a man success and position in life simply by law, whether white or Negro. This being true in a democracy, we believe the Negro must get to work improving himself. He must improve on his education, integrity, reliability, resourcefulness, morals, family life, and in participation in community affairs. The Negro race is handicapped, but the colored people must quit feeling sorry for themselves and quit waiting for the white man to set him up as an equal. More recognition will come with more effort in the right direction.

Here on the Plains we have a much more important problem locally—the Latin-American, or Mexican. The same applies to him. We need the Latin in this farming country, and he needs us. The time is approaching when we may have as many Latins in this area as we now have Anglos. In fact, right now, 60 percent of the children in the first four grades of the Tahoka schools are Latins. We need to encourage the Latins, like the Negroes, to get more education, improve their standard of living, take more interest in becoming skilled in their lines of endeavor.

Letters From News Readers—

To the Editor:
Yesterday our children witnessed the murder of a dear friend and constant companion. While the three were on their way to visit a friend, a man in a pickup, driving at high speed, on a dirt road, deliberately hit and killed a black dog leaving the three in a trail of dust.

An unexpected kindness was shown. The woman in front of whose house this occurred, a woman whom I do not know, brought the dead animal and the small masters home.

What do you say when a small boy says, "I didn't think anything like this could happen!" Not once but several times and in pain. When you have tried to teach love, gentleness and the value of life, is it to be refuted because of one evil act?

Our little girl called the driver a "dirty old Mexican." At any other time there would have been a reprimand, but this time the description was fitting. From among the children's acquaintances there is one from the Latin American race that they call friend—a good friend. As it should be, they are not aware that he is anything other than a friend. The driver of that fatal pickup, however, was something else again. He didn't know any of us, including Blackie. He had no call for a malicious act such as this; unless, of course, he was the prowler that Blackie drove away last summer, for now we are vulnerable to these nighttime intruders. (But this is speculation, and I can't really believe he knew any involved.)

At the grave site we were joined by others. One, a woman who has worked in our home many years and is thought of as a member of our family, picked up a shovel to help a small boy dig a hole for the body of his dog. On this cold, windy, January day, with tears on our cheeks and grief in our hearts, we buried a dog wrapped in a sheet and placed in a box with her only earthly possession still around her neck.

For COLDS take 666

Having been raised to believe that good comes from evil, I can't help asking, "What good can come of this?" Will the children be able to relate pain to an act of evil? But such an unnecessary act—and they are so young.

In time the cross will blow down, and the brick curbing will be moved. The ground will level off, and grass will grow there. To all the world there will be nothing to see. But in our hearts and minds will always be the memory of our black dog.

Lubbock Minister Is Speaker At Rotary, Rotary Anns Special Guests

Wives were guests of Tahoka Rotarians last Thursday when Dr. William Banowsky, minister of Broadway Church of Christ in Lubbock, brought an address on parallels between our present day trends and past history.

We should be able to learn from history, he declared. Since history repeats itself, the present trend of American life is a monument to stupidity.

Using the tragedy of the great American ship Titanic in April, 1912, as an illustration, he said this boat on its maiden voyage was supposed to be the ultimate in perfection, a symbol of American posture, believed to be unsinkable, and therefore carrying few lifeboats. With its five compartments below the waterline, it was believed almost nothing could happen that would cause all five compartments to be punctured and sink the ship.

Even after the ship hit the iceberg, one-seventh above the water, the crew and passengers failed to take into account that the six-sevenths part of the iceberg below the water surface could rip the five compartments.

The ultra rich on A deck, the medium wealthy on B deck, and the third class tourists on C deck went about their merry-making for hours while the crew down in the bilge fought for life and death to save the ship. Finally, on the upper deck when the people became aware the ship was sinking the band switched from "Alexander's Ragtime Band" to "Nearer My God to Thee."

While one-seventh of the surface may be optimistic, the speaker said, we need to look at signs of erosion below the surface. As the Titanic went down, our country can go down from erosion of democracy.

Every nation in the history of the world which has followed our present trend has gone down to destruction. Water-tight compartments are essential.

There were five reasons for the fall of the once-great Roman empire: 1. Moral decline, which is in evidence on every hand in America; 2. Confiscatory taxation

Bray Writes . . .

(Continued from page 1; Sec. 2) tion came to a standstill for two minutes in silent remembrance. Cars, buses, and trains stopped as every man, woman, and child paused. It was a most impressive display of patriotism.

Another aspect of British unity and patriotism is even more amazing. The British people do not have a written constitution, and yet they have this amazing harmony and preservation of their basic writ liberties. I think this is a fine tribute to the viability of their democracy. Particularly so when one stops to think that we have a written constitution and still can't agree about its interpretation.

The other quality of the British people which has impressed me is their emphasis on personal volunteer service. Charities and charitable organizations are even more numerous here than in the States. The British are a generous people, not only with their money but with their time as well. Each citizen seems to feel an individual responsibility for his unfortunate neighbor. Men, women, and youth alike spend great amounts of time in activities ranging from visiting hospitals, nursing homes, orphanages, and old age homes to personal solicitations for all sorts of projects. Housewives take an afternoon off a week and go read to the blind or the aged. Businessmen take time off from their work to take orphans or underprivileged children to sporting events or cultural events. The youth do odd jobs or run errands for those persons unable to do so. It is wonderful to see the amount of self-sacrifice these people make for each other. They give that which is most valuable—themselves. I cannot emphasize enough how much volunteer service goes on over here. No need goes unnoticed for long.

Patriotism and personal volunteer service are only two of the many favorable aspects of British life. In my next article I will discuss some of the shortcomings I have noticed and the lessons we might learn from them.

I think often of the good people of Tahoka and will be glad to be back this summer. I must apologize for my poor correspondence, but the British Rotarians are making heavy demands on my time.

"Buried Colts" Is On Sale In City

The News now has on hand for sale at $3.57 per copy of the historical novel, "Buried Colts" by Harley Smith of Odessa, former Lynn county boy. Scene for the story is based partially in Lynn county, and drew much of his material from stories told by his late grandfather, Brooks Smith.

Harley, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Smith, is in the Postal Service at Odessa and has served as a police officer at Lubbock and Odessa. He expects to have two more books off the press soon.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Smith, who now live at 3822 Bowie Avenue in Odessa, were here this week visiting their daughter, Mrs. Roy Blevins, and family of Petty.

Mrs. Smith is operating Lessie Smith's Doll Hospital at the above address in Odessa, and says she has turned an interesting hobby into a nice business venture.

She not only makes any and all repairs on little girls' dolls, but she makes any kind of doll to order, makes doll dresses, and caters to people who have doll hobbies.

Preston Smith . . .

wherein fiscal experts have declared 35 percent of gross income is the breaking point and ours in the U. S. now stands at 32.4 percent; 3. Brutalization in sports, as we, like the Romans, seem to glory in such sports as prize fights and wrestling and are leaning away from the aesthetic values; 4. Reliance on military might as sole defense of the nation, as we seem more afraid of Khrushchev than of God; and degeneration of religion, as there are many signs we are turning away from true religion.

"The first four of these compartments are already water-logged," he emphasized, and "if we are to survive we had better take a stand."

The speaker was introduced by the club president, Don Browning.

On behalf of the Salvation Army, Rev. Aubrey White presented a certificate of honor to Mrs. Lillian McCord, local school nurse, for her faithful service to the community in furnishing clothes and medical attention to needy children of the area and for her help in taking some of these boys and girls to the Salvation Army summer camps.
