

Williams - Williams United in Marriage

Miss Colette Williams became the bride of Roddy Williams in a double ring ceremony, Saturday, Sept. 5, in the back yard of the groom's parents. Bill Looney of the 37th Street Church of Christ in Snyder officiated.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. L.F. Williams. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Williams, both of Tahoka. The couple exchanged vows before a brace arch trimmed with greenery and pink carnations. The pedestals on each side of the arch were trimmed in greenery and accented with an arrangement of white and violet mums.

Presented in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a traditional white gown of soft dacron organza fashioned in a Southern Belle style, having a high neckline of Chantilly lace with a deep yoke outlined in Chantilly lace. The full sheer sleeves were attached to a deep cuff of Chantilly lace. The full skirt fell in a Southern Belle effect with an apron outlined in beffled Chantilly lace overlaying the main skirt. The entire skirt had Chantilly lace along the hemline.

The finger-tipped, two tiered veil was outlined in Chantilly lace to match the gown. It was caught to a Chantilly headpiece covered in tiny seed pearls.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, pink sweetheart roses, daisies and baby's breath with white silk streamers.

Following tradition, the bride wore a string of pearls belonging to her mother for something old, something new was her wedding gown, she carried a borrowed lace handkerchief, and wore a blue garter.

Alma Hallmark served as maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of pink crepe satin with a capelet of pink chiffon.

Bryan Simpson served as best man.

Mrs. Hazel Bennett, presented the traditional "Wedding March." She accompanied Mrs. Vivian McAfee as she sang "Endless Love" and "The Wedding Prayer".

Ushers were Doug Barham and Benge Williams, brother of the groom.

Shelia Williams, sister-in-law of the bride registered guests.

The couple were honored at a reception following the ceremony. Serving at the bride's table were Suzy Lawson and Tami Pebsworth. Serving at the groom's table were Dustie Cook and Andra Draper. Casey Williams, nephew of the bride distributed bell-shaped rice bags.

The bride is a graduate of Tahoka High School and is attending Texas Tech University. The groom attends Tahoka High School.

The couple will reside in Tahoka.

THS School Pictures Made Today

Junior high and high school students in Tahoka will have school pictures taken today (Thursday) beginning at 8:45 a.m. in the high school auditorium.

Due to inflation and the soaring cost of picture processing, students must pay for their picture packets before they are taken.

Students will receive a full refund if they do not wish to keep their picture packet. Picture packets must be presented to the school within three days after they are received in the event a refund is desired.

Students will have a choice of three different packages with the size of pictures and amount of pictures included varying in price. Package A is $6; B is $9; and C is $12.

Payments will be collected at the door as students enter. Any student unable to pay today will have another chance to purchase a color packet when make-up pictures are taken. All students who do not prepay for color pictures will still have a black and white picture taken for the yearbook.

Anyone having questions concerning junior or senior high pictures should contact Leah Taylor at the school.

Yearbooks Available

Anyone desiring to purchase a 1981 Kennel, The Tahoka High School yearbook, is asked to contact sponsor Leah Taylor at the high school. Limited copies are available for $13.

BATTERY-POWER MOVES JET AIRCRAFT

This L-1011 wide-body jet gets a push-out from a fuel-efficient battery-powered tractor at a cost of only 21¢.

How much would you guess it costs to push out a wide-body jet from its departure gate: $210? $21? $2.10? 21¢?

The answer, if a newly developed battery-powered tractor is used, is 21¢.

Eastern Airlines, which has 36 of the new electric tractors in service, estimates it has reduced the average push-out cost for its L-1011s and A-300s by 90 percent. In addition, the initial cost of each electric vehicle is up to $137,000 less than for a comparable diesel-powered tractor.

Lower initial cost and reduced operating expenses are coupled with maintenance costs estimated by Eastern to be 50 percent lower than diesel- or gasoline-powered vehicles. Energy for the tractors is supplied by two batteries which can power a unit for two full days on a single charge. Another energy-saving feature: the electric vehicles don't depend on the operator shutting off the motor to save fuel because when the accelerator is released, the motors stop. And because electric vehicles use no oil, ramp cleanliness is improved. What's more, the tractors, designed by Figgie International's Kersey Manufacturing Company in Bluefield, Va., virtually eliminate air and noise pollution at busy airports.

Many people talk about fuel-efficient, battery-powered vehicles in futuristic terms. For Eastern Airlines, the future is now.

Scanning Social Security

Social Security Administration

Today's column concerns the change in color of U.S. Treasury checks. For people getting Supplemental Security checks in September 1981, the checks will be gold colored on the front, and the back of the checks will be bull colored with orange printing.

This change in the color of the reverse side of government checks will make it much easier for the Treasury to increase its effectiveness in microfilming checks.

The change will not cause any problems, we anticipate, because banks and financial institutions have already been notified and did not express any problems with the new color scheme.

Starting in late 1981, or in early 1982, the regular social security checks, now green in color, will have the same color reverse side as the SSI checks - buff with brown printing on the reverse side.

Nobody needs to contact the Social Security office to ask about the checks.

MAKE-BELIEVE

DID YOU KNOW...
...that God is just around the corner?

Wait just one minute! I know that God is everywhere and the He is not limited to any one place. But to many people in life God is just around the corner.

Recently a national poll was taken of the "un-churched American" by Princeton University and the Gallup poll people. This poll showed that 60 million Americans have no real church association. It also showed that 60% of those people believed in God, Jesus, and the word of God as the literal word of God. To those people I say, "God is just around the corner."

Speaking of Jesus Paul says in Ephesians 1:22,23: "And hath put all things under His feet, and gave Him to be head over all things to the church, which is His body, (Colossians 1:18) does it not stand to reason that anyone who believes in Christ must also believe in His body the church?

God can be in your life and not just around the corner if you are part of Christ's body the church.

So, "un-churched American" will you build on that good belief in God, Jesus, and the Bible by becoming part of the body of Christ, His church?

This note provided by Christians who are concerned about you. Come and join in on our assembly this Sunday morning at 10 a.m. to 12, 2320 Lockwood, Tahoka.

NEWS IN PICTURES

Under a demonstration program initiated by the U.S. Department of Energy in 1978, some 75 companies, universities and government agencies are taking part in a nationwide project that could provide an alternative to conventional gasoline engines. They're operating about 1,500 vehicles driven by battery-powered electric motors.

The leading non-governmental participant in the program is General Telephone & Electronics Corporation (GTE). Ten of its telephone companies are operating a total of 170 small battery-powered pickup trucks, vans and two-door sedans.

The program is designed to do several things. By putting vehicles similar to the electric vans above on the roads, the government hopes to increase public awareness of electric vehicles as an alternative to gas-consuming cars.

In addition, the program is helping the government evaluate the technical and operational characteristics of electric vehicles to determine how well they meet the needs of business, academic and government organizations.

The program is expected to involve some 10,000 electric vehicles by its completion in 1986. It's estimated that more than 2,000 electric autos are now in service in this country, exclusive of those taking part in the Energy Department's program. The program is being conducted under the Electric and Hybrid Vehicle Research, Development and Demonstration Act of 1976.

New Oral Drug Treats Valley Fever Effectively Without Side Effects

The first effective oral drug to treat Valley Fever without serious side effects is now available for the estimated 85,000 cases that occur each year in the United States, nearly half of which are considered life-threatening.

A fungal disease prevalent in the Southwest—mainly among blacks, Filipinos and Latinos—Valley Fever produces symptoms that include headache, backache, flu, chills and chest pain. The fungus infection often starts in the lungs and spreads to the liver, spleen and other vital organs. Sometimes the disease turns into meningitis.

Until the breakthrough oral drug Nizoral™ became available, treatment for Valley Fever has required intravenously-administered drugs that can cause kidney and liver damage, and phlebitis. Despite the known risks, doctors have had no alternative to these medications. Now after 20 years of painstaking research by Janssen Pharmaceutica, a Johnson & Johnson company, a breakthrough drug Nizoral™, in easy-to-use tablet form, has been developed to effectively treat Valley Fever without pronounced side effects.

The new drug also has shown remarkable effectiveness for a broad range of other internal fungal diseases, exciting the medical profession and giving hope to millions that simple oral therapy may now relieve their difficult-to-treat infections.

The Food and Drug Administration, in approving the new drug for treatment of Valley Fever and several other internal fungal diseases, has called Nizoral™ "a new molecular entity representing an important therapeutic gain." Doctors now have a new weapon with which to combat the health scourge of the Southwest—Valley Fever—and possibly a wonder drug for all fungi.

Acreage Cut Program Due For Wheat

Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has announced his intentions to implement a 15 percent "reduced acreage" program for the 1982 wheat crop to offset the effects of record supplies and depressed wheat prices.

Program operating procedures will be issued after pending farm legislation is enacted into law.

"Wheat supplies in the United States are 14 percent above last year," Block said. "The carryover next June is expected to exceed 1 billion bushels, the highest level since 1977-78. The reduced acreage program will strengthen prices by reducing the 1982-83 marketing year supplies."

The program will be voluntary so producers can decide for themselves, based on market conditions, whether they want to participate. Program benefits, however, will be tied to participation.

Letter To Editor

Dear Sir,
You call yourself a newspaper? I would be ashamed of that title if I were you. You can't even print a two paragraph article so it can be read. Third graders can proofread better than you.
If you ask what I'm basing my accusations on, take a look at the Wilson News in the September 3 edition.
This is not the first time I've seen this happen but it really proves my point.
I believe that if you want to be known as a newspaper you better shape up your act.
A concerned citizen,

P.S. I also believe that if you're going to be called a "county" paper you need to have a better representation of county activities.

Migrant Reading Plan Due

Texas Migrant Council is planning to begin a Reading is Fundamental (RIF) program for migrant children, age 2 1/2 to 6 years, starting Oct. 12. The program is designed to promote reading by allowing the children to choose and keep books they like.

WHAT TO DO IF THE POWER FAILS OR IF THE REFRIGERATOR OR FREEZER QUILTS:

For Refrigerated Foods:
*Keep your refrigerator door closed. Opening the door lets precious cold air out. Never open a refrigerator or freezer "just to check on how the foods are doing."
If it looks like it will be out for more than a few hours, add regular ice to the refrigerator. The more ice you use, the longer the food will keep cold. Put in some pans to catch the melting ice.

*If the refrigerator will be out for an extended period of time, try transferring refrigerated foods to the freezer. The products already frozen will keep the refrigerated foods cold longer even with no additional power. Do this only as a last resort.

For Freezer Stored Foods:
*Keep the freezer closed. Open it only to add dry ice or refrigerated foods. If you must open the door to take food out or put some in, do it once. A fully loaded freezer will keep foods frozen for 2 days. A half-full freezer will only keep food cold for a day.

25 pounds of dry ice added to a 10 cubic foot fully loaded freezer will keep foods frozen up to 3 full days. Handle dry ice carefully with tongs or with protective gloves. Dry ice burns bare hands. Provide adequate ventilation, since vapors can be harmful. Put heavy cardboard directly on the packages of frozen food and then put the dry ice on top of the cardboard. Find out in advance where to purchase dry ice and how much you may need.

*When electric power is restored, be sure to check your foods and determine the extent of thawing. Get rid of any food that is off-color or that has an off-odor. Never taste suspect meat or poultry or other foods. Meats that still have ice crystals present or have maintained a 40 degree or lower temperature (for less than 2 days) may safely be refrozen. Some quality may be lost, but the product should still be wholesome and safe to eat. Use refrozen food quickly.

C-C Event Attracts Crowd

About 100 persons attended the Tahoka Chamber of Commerce membership meeting at First United Methodist Church Tuesday at noon and heard reports on activities of the Chamber and Chamberettes, a Crime Line program being organized, and current status of city affairs.

Frank Barrow, C-C president, mentioned accomplishments of the chamber this year to date, and expressed appreciation to Winston Wharton for promotional work. Chamberette President Vicki Summitt detailed some of the plans for the upcoming Harvest Festival. Gerald Huffaker said the Crime Line project is about to get underway, with a special phone set up to take calls. He said donations to the project now are being accepted at the bank.

Door prizes were drawn, and one unusual result was drawing of Mrs. Bernice Phipp's name as a winner of a prize from Genny's in Tahoka. Mrs. Phipps operates a competing dress shop. Other prize winners were Danny Moore, Mike Flanagan and Tommy Lawson. Prizes were given by Genny's, Fisher Fabrics, and Bray Chevrolet.

ENERGY UPDATE

A broad-based coalition of both energy producers and energy users has announced a nationwide series of activities dramatizing available solutions to energy problems. The week-long event will be held next March 15-21 under the banner of American Energy Week (AEW).

AEW will focus on four major messages:

- Development of domestic energy resources and technology can provide a solid foundation for continued economic and social growth, and for national security.
- A well-balanced program of developing domestic fossil fuels, nuclear and synthetic fuels, renewable sources and technically efficient conservation can reduce dependence on foreign oil.
- Energy sufficiency is a reachable goal.
- The promise of a strong future can be restored by national dedication to mobilizing technology and energy resources.

"The economic consequences of our reliance on foreign oil are growing more ominous each day," said Don McCammond, executive vice president and managing director of AEW. "But yet the nation's consciousness of the available solutions to the problem is muddled by lack of knowledge, partial information and general skepticism. 20036.

"The goals of American Energy Week are larger than a single week can presume to accomplish," he commented. "A continuing concerted national expression of commitment to meeting these goals can awaken Americans to the task of winning the energy battle. A week devoted to the cause is only the beginning."

FANCY THAT!

Deregulation of the airline industry has turned out to be a "bitter pill" for many congressmen and consumers to swallow. Instead of trimming costs as billed, deregulation has seen the cost of air cargo rise by 40 percent and a cutback in insurance and liability.

THE FIRST IMPRESSION

By Tom Hopkins

To influence or persuade others, it is vital that they have faith or belief in you. And there is no more important time to establish that trust or confidence than at the first meeting.

In the seminars I conduct throughout the country, and in my book, How to Master the Art of Selling, I teach four ways to help make a favorable first impression.

1. Smile almost to the point of grinning. A smile radiates warmth and is almost always a necessary first step to instilling trust.

2. Look in their eyes. Those who look away from, or past the other person, or are shifty-eyed, suggest a lack of honesty in their hearts.

3. Greet them properly. For starters, learn three different greetings: 1) a formal, respectful greeting, 2) a friendly greeting and 3) a happy-go-lucky greeting. Study each person for an instant and then select the greeting you think best suits his or her personality.

4. Let them determine whether to touch. Some people don't like to shake hands, so don't initiate the contact. However, if the other person puts out his hand, you should of course take it.

Practice these four suggestions and do them with confidence and you are bound to make a fine first impression on others, and be on your way to "selling" them your ideas, product or service.

Phebe K. Warner Study Club Meets

The members of Phebe K. Warner Study Club met Tuesday, Sept. 8, in the home of Mrs. Harold Green. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Dorothy Kenley and Mrs. Velma Carter.

The President, Jill Warren, presided over the meeting. The program chairman, Sherry Etheredge, handed out the yearbooks for the new club year.

Treasurer, Dorothy Draper, reported that $225 was donated to the City-County Library in June for the purchase of new books. The club members voted to pay for enlarging, coloring and framing a picture of Lady Stewart and a plaque to be placed in the library.

The members also voted to buy an ad in the high school annual. Each member was asked to contribute $7 to the purchase of supplies for Girlstown.

Phebe K. Warner Club will participate in the Harvest Festival October 3rd with a soft drink booth.

After the members answered roll call by "naming something a grandparent said to you that you've always remembered," Mrs. Glo Hays gave a book review of "The Education of Little-trace" by Forrest Carter.

The Lynn County News

"Getting anything through Congress and past the President's desk this year that might lead to increased government expenditure — as the Bible says about the rich man getting into heaven — is about as easy as squeezing a camel through the eye of a needle."

That's what Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, told ginners and guests at the 1981 annual meeting of Plains Ginners' Association September 12. He was referring to PCG's inability to get greater producer price protection into the 1981 farm bill now under consideration in Congress.

PCG's legislative policy, adopted by the organization's 50-man Board last January, calls for a higher cotton loan level, retention of the disaster program, authority for paid acreage diversion and other provisions to shield producers against unavoidable crop losses and severe price pressures "such as those we are seeing right now," Johnson said.

"But all these measures would involve the possibility of additional cost to the government, and with the current Administration's determination to cut the budget no matter who it hurts, I feel no real need to apologize for our failure to get these policies into the new bill."

The Senate Agriculture Committee bill expected to reach the floor in the week of September 14, Johnson explained, would set the minimum cotton loan at 55 cents, continue the current loan-setting formula through 1985 and for all practical purposes eliminate the disaster program. It would set target prices for 1982 at 71 cents per pound (about the same as this year), at 76 cents for 1983, 83 cents for 1984 and at 89 cents for the 1985 crop.

These price support levels are woefully inadequate, but chances for improvement at best are not very good, Johnson told the group.

Consequently, he continued, PCG is exerting its major efforts toward either eliminating or at least minimizing the effects of another Senate provision known as the "Heflin Amendment."

That provision, introduced and pushed by Senator Howell Heflin of Alabama, would remove all flexibility from USDA's procedures in setting grade, staple and micronaire discounts in each year's loan schedule. It would require that the Department set discounts equal to a simple one-to-one average of recent spot market discounts and the previous year's loan discount.

This mandate in the law would be devastating to future High Plains prices, especially those received on forward contracts where loan discounts are applied directly to the price.

"Working with Texas Senators Bentsen and Tower," Johnson went on, "we are doing our best either to get that provision out of the law or to add other language which would reduce its effect on cotton from our area."

On other subjects, Johnson appealed to the ginners for understanding and support of the organization's recent increase in producer-ginner dues, and discussed the increasing importance of instrument classing in cotton marketing, advising that ginners and producers begin now to become more familiar with the system.

Tax Reform Act Explained By Speaker

The new Federal Recovery program advocated by President Ronald Reagan and passed by Congress was explained in several of its areas by Joe Hays, Tahoka accountant, at the Rotary Club last Thursday noon.

Tax cuts supposed to reach 25 percent, he explained, will amount to only about 1.75 percent the last months of this year, but a 10 percent cut will come in July of 1982 and another 10 percent in 1983 and the remainder in 1984.

On large incomes, the 70 percent bracket will be cut to 50 percent.

Beginning in 1985 the tax index will be based on the consumer index, and the tax will be determined so as to parallel with inflation.

He also explained benefits to be gained by changes in the capital gains tax. Also, there will be a reduction in income taxes of a couple, both of whom work.

He said people with small incomes will benefit under the new program.

John Deering of O'Donnell Rotary Club, special representative of District Governor John R. Seay, brought greetings from Seay, who will meet with the Tahoka Club Sept. 23-24.

Harold Green was in charge of the program.

Hospital District Sets Tax Rate

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of Lynn County Hospital District Sept. 8, the tax rate for the Hospital District was discussed and the Board of Directors and Administrator agreed to try to operate the hospital next fiscal year without an increase and the Directors voted to leave the tax rate at .15 per $100 valuation.

Members present who voted not to increase the tax rate were Larry Hagood, Roy Lynn Kahlich, Leland White, Joy Bragg, R.A. Doss and Jesse Dorman. Absent member—Billie White.

Scientists join forces to combat agricultural pests

COLLEGE STATION—An army of scientists from 16 universities throughout the country has gone to war against weevils, worms, weeds and diseases in a combined effort to defeat the pests that destroy millions of dollars of American agriculture every year.

Supported by $9 million from the Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the assault is being directed by Texas A&M University and commanded by Dr. Perry Adkisson, deputy chancellor for agriculture of The Texas A&M University System and Dr. Ray Frisbie, the program's executive manager.

The scientists say they are looking for a combination of controls against insects, weeds and plant diseases that will integrate biological agents, pest resistant plants, better farming practices and less dependence on chemical controls.

"The world food crisis, compounded by the energy crisis and a genuine concern for maintaining a healthy environment, has placed an enormous stress on our agricultural system," Frisbie said.

Bermea Receives Promotion

Lydia (Lillie) Bermea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel J. Espinoza Sr., has recently returned from a two year tour in Wiesbaden, Germany and is now stationed at Reese AFB. On Sept. 1, she received her 3rd stripe, promoting her to the rank of Senior Airman. She has also been selected for the Reese AFB Honor Guard.

Lydia is a 1974 graduate of Tahoka High School and joined the Air Force in 1979.

Despite flooding, Texas still faces water shortages

COLLEGE STATION—Recent heavy rains covering most of the state may alleviate some surface water shortages, says the director of the Texas Water Resources Institute, but Texas still faces a water crisis that could be more severe than the present energy crisis.

"The lack of rain last year has reduced the amount of surface water available and ground water supplies are being used up faster than they are being replenished," said Dr. Jack Runkles. "This presents problems to cities and municipalities, the energy industry and particularly in agriculture."

While the developing water crisis will affect the entire nation, it will be most severe in Texas and the Southwest as the population continues to grow, said Runkles, who predicts by the year 2000 Texans will be consuming 24 billion gallons of water a day, up from an estimated 15 billion gallons a day currently. Part of the Texas A&M University System, the water resources institute conducts long-range studies on water use and technology to improve the efficiency of use.

Driving Down Car Costs

A new car is coming out this year that can not only save its owners money when they drive it—it can save them some money when they can't drive it.

The car is a fuel-efficient front-wheel drive small car that seats six. It's designed to be easy—and therefore less expensive—to maintain.

Youthfully-styled, this quality-built vehicle is available as a two or four-door sedan or a station wagon. It is made with galvanized steel and other anti-rust materials to assure long, corrosion-free body life. Self-adjusting features in the engine reduce the need for maintenance. The engine compartment is open and accessible, making it easier, faster and less costly. The scheduled maintenance jump on inflation.

A new little car, the Dodge Aries, can go a long way toward saving its owner time, gas, money and trouble.

intervals are longer, too, saving owners time as well as money. This new car is called the Aries. It is built by the Dodge Division of the Chrysler Corporation. This new car has been called the right car in the right place at the right time.

A car that can cut down engine compartment is open and accessible, making it easier, faster and less costly. The scheduled maintenance jump on inflation.

The Scientists Tell Me... Computers Provide Shortcut For Beef Industry Improvement

By Robert L. Hancy
TAES Science Writer

Computers at Texas A&M University, fed a steady diet of facts about beef cattle capabilities and ranching options, say Central Texas ranchers could improve their productivity, marketing, and profits.

By using breeding and management systems to develop a herd of large frame cows with light milking ability and a management system that would consider owning cattle all the way through the finishing stage, these ranchers could increase their net profit.

This was but one of the findings of Drs. T. C. Cartwright and D. E. Farris who were part of a team that used the "TAMU computer beef herd model" to evaluate brood types and feeding systems.

"Computer models", as these scientists use the term, doesn't mean the actual computer but rather the information fed into it.

So, a "computer model" to these scientists is actually a mathematical representation of animal capabilities and their response to production factors, linked to an economic study of risk management that includes a vast array of possibilities.

Since breeds of cattle and types of feed can be used in a wide variety of combinations, these researchers are using computer capabilities to economically find which of the many combinations produce desired quality at lowest cost.

For example, their computer model can include the varied pasture and feed situation for an area and the relative costs and prices.

A computer, fed this information together with facts about capabilities of today's cattle breeds, can provide estimates of which type of cattle is most profitable for each management and marketing system.

The TAMU Beef Cattle Production Systems Model was used to simulate producing herds of nine different breedtypes that included heavy, medium and light-framed types; each of these was represented by heavy, medium and light milkers.

Output from the model was then used to analyze the productivity and profitability of nine different breedtypes of cattle and the management options available to most producers.

The beef cattle production systems model was developed to account for genetic, nutritional, and managerial effects on the total production system. Unlike most livestock computer simulation models, this model does not assume a performance level and then calculate the requirements; rather it calculates performance based on the production conditions.

That is, the simulated cattle herds are designed to respond to a set of pasture, supplement, management, etc. conditions as a herd of actual cattle of a given breedtype would respond.

The production-marketing model, programmed for Central Texas production conditions, mentioned earlier, showed that during the 1972-79 period those ranchers that were in a position to own their cattle all the way through the feedlot, using the standard stocker-feeder system in Texas, could have made $16 per head more profit.

This profit could have increased $14 more per head using the model's flexible marketing strategies or $22 more per head using the most efficient system among the several alternatives considered.

Keeping in mind that these results were simulated and are in effect predictions, and that a restricted set of management and production conditions were examined, it appears that larger, lighter milking breedtype herds are more productive and more profitable for the production resources simulated. Additional research, both actual experimentation and simulation, covering other production practices, such as crossbreeding, is underway and being expanded to cover all major production areas of the State.

This new technology developed by Experiment Station scientists is expected to result in making the very best use of beef cattle production resources in all parts of the State during this decade and help assure continued supplies of beef to consumers at reasonable cost, with fair returns to the producer.

The Scientists Tell Me...

Computers Provide Shortcut For Beef Industry Improvement

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

Computers at Texas A&M University, fed a steady diet of facts about beef cattle capabilities and ranching options, say Central Texas ranchers could improve their productivity, marketing, and profits.

By using breeding and management systems to develop a herd of large frame cows with light milking ability and a management system that would consider owning cattle all the way through the finishing stage, these ranchers could increase their net profit.

This was but one of the findings of Drs. T. C. Cartwright and D. E. Farris who were part of a team that used the "TAMU computer beef herd model" to evaluate breed types and feeding systems.

"Computer models", as these scientists use the term, doesn't mean the actual computer but rather the information fed into it.

So, a "computer model" to these scientists is actually a mathematical representation of animal capabilities and their response to production factors, linked to an economic study of risk management that includes a vast array of possibilities.

Since breeds of cattle and types of feed can be used in a wide variety of combinations, these researchers are using computer capabilities to economically find which of the many combinations produce desired quality at lowest cost.

For example, their computer model can include the varied pasture and feed situation for an area and the relative costs and prices.

A computer, fed this information together with facts about capabilities of today's cattle breeds, can provide estimates of which type of cattle is most profitable for each management and marketing system.

The TAMU Beef Cattle Production Systems Model was used to simulate producing herds of nine different breedtypes that included heavy, medium and light-framed types; each of these was represented by heavy, medium and light milkers.

Output from the model was then used to analyze the productivity and profitability of nine different breedtypes of cattle and the management options available to most producers.

The beef cattle production systems model was developed to account for genetic, nutritional, and managerial effects on the total production system. Unlike most livestock computer simulation models, this model does not assume a performance level and then calculate the requirements; rather it calculates performance based on the production conditions.

That is, the simulated cattle herds are designed to respond to a set of pasture, supplement, management, etc. conditions as a herd of actual cattle of a given breedtype would respond.

The production-marketing model, programmed for Central Texas production conditions, mentioned earlier, showed that during the 1972-79 period those ranchers that were in a position to own their cattle all the way through the feedlot, using the standard stocker-feeder system in Texas, could have made $16 per head more profit.

This profit could have increased $14 more per head using the model's flexible marketing strategies or $22 more per head using the most efficient system among the several alternatives considered.

Keeping in mind that these results were simulated and are in effect predictions, and that a restricted set of management and production conditions were examined, it appears that larger, lighter milking breedtype herds are more productive and more profitable for the production resources developed by Experiment Station scientists is expected to result in making the very best use of beef cattle production resources in all parts of the State during this decade and help assure continued supplies of beef to consumers at reasonable cost, with fair returns to the producer.
