Life's Funny That Way

by MATT DORSEY

(Editor's Note: Guest columnist this week is Matt Dorsey, a syndicated columnist.)

THE WAY OF ALL STOMACHS

Eating Chili is like riding a bicycle. It may be true that once you learn how you never forget, but it's also true that you had better keep in practice or you're going to suffer a lot of pain from either activity as you grow older!

In the mythology of sports the conventional wisdom is that it's the legs that go first, but in real life it's the stomach. That's why, if you're not in training for chili, it would be advisable to give it up after, say, about age 50. It's one of those activities, like staying up all night, that are best left to young people.

That's because most kids have cast iron stomachs. But in their ignorance they think they can shovel any amount of garbage down the old feed bin, time without end, and revoke the natural law of the universe that you always end up paying for your sins. Take if from an old Pepto Bismol junkie, it can't be done!

Good hot, spicy Texas-style chili--not the bland, bean-laden glop with canned tomatoes in it (ugh!) served in places with names like "Ma's Home-Style Diner" is a true delicacy, which is why it is so difficult to swear off the stuff when the old stomach becomes cranky with age.

But a fair amount of the ingestion of hot, spicy foods is sheer grandstanding. This is particularly true, in my opinion, of people who claim to like those hot chili peppers. I don't believe them. There's nothing to like unless you're a pyromaniac. The only thing they're good for is to show off the excellent state of your digestive system and your ability to stand pain.

In my salad years I used to profess to like chili peppers, but I will now admit it was nothing more than exhibitionism. These days I wouldn't subject my stomach to one of those things if my life hung in the balance, which it probably would after-

There's also a category of spicy cuising that utilizes what I call the "catsup principle," which is that you can kill the taste of anything if you use enough cover-up.

This seems to be the guiding principle behind the much acclaimed Cajun cooking of the bayou country of Louisiana, where the idea is to use vast amounts of pepper to overwhelm all the other flavors of the food. It works fine if you like pepper that much, but to me it's like those breakfast cereals that claim they're delicious with fresh peaches or strawberries. Big deal! Dogfood would be delicious with fresh peaches or strawberries--or even with pepper, if that's your style.

Fortunately for the over-the-hill generation, man does not live by spicy foods alone. If he did, he would starve himself into an early grave as the years advanced and the lining of his stomach eroded. What's nice about chili is that it won't normally eat away your digestive tract. It just seems that way if you're not in practice!

Sales Tax Rebate Told

State Comptroller Bob Bullock sent checks totaling $35.1 million to 974 cities that levy the onepercent city sales tax.

"Our total payments to cities so far this year are still running about one percent behind last year," Bullock said in sending the July checks to the cities. "Texas was slow to enter the national recession and we are still lagging behind in the recovery. Most major Texas cities are beginning to show higher tax receipts than last year, but the border and oil and gas producing areas are still substantially behind."

The July checks were for taxes collected on sales made in May and reported to the Comptroller by the end of June.

Extra Mile Citation

The State Dept. of Highways and Public Transportation has approved a special certificate to be awarded to departmental employees who respond to an emergency situation and, in doing so, save a life or prevent significant damage of danger from occurring.

LYNN COUNTY NEWS, THURSDAY, JULY 21, 1983, PAGE 3 The Extra Mile Citation received the approval of the State Highway and Transporation mission earlier this year. The first award of the citation is to be presented in Lubbock during July of this year.

Nominees for the distinction are provided by the district offices located throughout the state as well as by the divisional offices located in the Austin headquarters of the department.

The impetus for the recognition was generated by many years of public letters complimenting employees for acts of hero ism, or of significantly important acts deemed far beyond the normal requirements of their job.

"Help!" sounded the call from the darkness. a tornado had struck in Lynn County on June 18. 1982, water was over the road and Phillip Barnett, a maintenance Technician for the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, Tahoka maintenance section, was out driving in the darkness with his working companion, Gerald Drager. another maintenance technician, to see what could be done to help traffic, to relieve the orad of debris, and to put up barricades for the safety of the public Barnett responded to that call for help, and is to receive an Extra Mile Citation to be presented by the DHPT on July 27 in Lubbock because of his bravery and courage in duty to help another human being. This is a new award the department is presenting to its employees, and Barnett will receive the first to be presented to any employee in

It was around 10:30 p.m. when the tornado hit the north section of Lynn County. Hail, water and thick fog had rendered it almost impossible to see in the area. Hail was about a foot deep for a mile in the section just south of the Lubbock-Lynn County Line. Hears Cry

Barnett said he heard the call from the darkness, and drove around to the next crossover on the highway and came back to see from where it came. He stopped and told Gerald Drager, his companion, to wait in the truck er, helped to carry her out while went to investigate the call. He found Mrs. C.E. Babbitt, standing out near the road screaming for help. She took Phillip into her house. A tornado had struck the house of Paul and Mary Lang, her neighbors, and torn it in two. Mrs. Lang was laying on a bed propped up with a pillow. Phillip describes her as being "scratched, black and blue and swollen" from the damage received when the tornado picked her up and threw her into the orchard in the back vard. Her husband found her there and carried her into the Babbitt's house because their own

Barnett said he examined Mrs. Lang to see if there were any injuries. He found there were no broken bones, but she was frightened and in a state of shock. According to Phillip, he took the pillow away and had Mrs. Lang lay flat. Phillip said he also examined the others present, Babbit and Lang, and they had no apparent injuries. He returned to the truck and asked Drager to radio for an ambulance. He radioed the Tahoka SDH & PT maintenance Office and Roy Jolly called for an ambulance from the Lynn County Hospital. Phillip then returned to the house, wading through water waist deep.

Carries Nurse

Phillip said when the ambulance arrived, he helped get the stretcher into the house and carried the nurse in on his back to keep her from having to wade in the deep, ice cold water. He then helped put Mrs. Lang on the stretchand then carried the nurse back on his back. Phillip said Drager, persons from the Tahoka Fire Department and Lyntegar Electric Co-Op had also arrived and helped carry out the stretcher. Mrs. Lang was then taken in the ambulance to a hospital in Lubbock for emergency Phillip said, "I then went back to check on some more road washes. almost ran into a high line wire. Then we went on to where we started out to go three or four hours earlier. It was just something I was doing that I was supposed to do. They needed help and so we helped them. The fire department, sheriff's office, everybody was helping. Radio helps communication.'

Drager confirmed Barnett's story, and said they had to wade deep water. "It was a job we were doing," he said.

In an interview in November, 1982, Mrs. C.E. Babbit, the Langs' neighbor, said, "The tornado had struck the area at 10:49 p.m., because the clock was stopped at that time." She declared the work of Barnett was "Just exceptional. It was above and beyond.

Mrs. Babbit said, "We brought Mary Lang in and stripped her and wrapped her and got her into bed. Hundreds of cars came by. I stood out on the front porch and I saw several trucks with lights on. Finally, I went screaming for help. Phillip was the one who stopped on the highway. I said, "We need help. We need an ambulance." Phillip waded the water. I offered him dry socks and a flash light. We couldn't make any coffee, but he stayed with us. He called for Gerald to get an ambulance. He made Mary talk to him to see if she were coherent. Then the ambulance got there and they took her into Lub-

Confirms Story

"Phillip brought the nurse in piggy back," Mrs. Babbitt "Water was knee deep out there and he brought her into the house. He brought the stretcher in. It took eight to carry the stretcher back to the highway across the water...we have been pleased with our Highway Department....we have a wonder ful Highway Department here." Mr. and Mrs. Babbitt and Mr. Lang confirmed her story.

Mrs. Lang says. she doesn't remember much of what happened on that night. "I was pretty much out of it," she said. She found she had a concussion and a cracked vertebrae when examined at the hospital in Lubbock. She remembers Phillip the State Department of had to get to the hospital right away. She describes Highways and Public Transportation on June 1, him as being very gentle 1977, when he was only and concerned and brave. She said that her neighbor, Clem Babbitt, died in

TDA Warns Consumers

The Texas Department of Agriculture wishes to warn consumers about the marketing of a product which may mislead them as to its effectiveness in killing fire ants. TDA has placed a stop sale on Fire Ant Special Ant Liquor, manufactured by Hide International of Longwood, White, Florida. Ron TDA's assistant deputy commissioner for regulatory programs, said the order was placed on Fire Ant Special Ant Liquor because of the company's failure to provide any information about its effect on fire ants and to otherwise register the product under the Texas pesticide law.

"Skin cancer is the most prevelent of all cancer types," stated Dr. Richard White in a talk at Rotary Thursday. "But, skin cancer in 90

persons seeking to get a
