Moonlight Sale Good

Tahoka merchants' Moonlight Madness Sale last Friday night was a big success with merchants and townspeople alike, Tahoka Chamber of Commerce directors were advised at the December meeting in Paris Cafeteria Tuesday noon.

Sponsored by the Retail Merchants Committee of the Chamber, the event had businesses staying open until 9 p.m., with Santa Claus visiting the stores, with most stores giving away prizes at drawings, and with special sale prices on merchandise. Almost all of the businesses reported sales very good and lots of people were downtown and in the stores.

The event was so good that several stores plan to stay open until 9 p.m. again on Friday, Dec. 16, for the convenience of Christmas shoppers. It was noted, although no drawings for free items are planned. The Retail Committee again will work with merchants who wish to take part in the Dec. 16 sale.

Chamber President Charlie Louder presided at the directors meeting.

Land Given To Cemetery Group

A half-section of land near the West Point community has been donated to the Tahoka Cemetery Assn., city council members were advised Monday night, as Cemetery Assn. representatives appeared to discuss with the council possible projects related to expanding the present facility to accommodate more burials.

Edward Bartley, Cemetery Assn. president, and Robert Edwards appeared before the council to request that the city include in its budget starting next year a set amount of money each year for developing a 20-acre plot of land which the city recently purchased next to the present cemetery.

It was announced that the half-section of land had been donated by Ruth Nevill Sparks of Lubbock, for the city and cemetery group to use to help raise money for the cemetery projects.

"This lady's really generous action will make possible the development of the cemetery as a facility which the city can be very proud of," Mayor Meldon Leslie commented.

A public hearing on a proposed sealcoating project at the T-Bar airport drew only one person, in favor of the action which already has been approved by the council, on a 75-25 funding basis, with the Texas Aeronautical Commission offering a 75 per cent grant.

Applications for three housing assistant grants from Community Development Block Grant funds were approved.

Council members also discussed a possible new liability policy for the city and appointed member Jim Solomon and City Manager Carl Reynolds to look into the situation.

Other members present were councilmen Tom Cooper, Richard White and Cap Wharton, Dalton Wood was absent.

Burglary Suspect Is Caught After Chase

Fast and determined action by Wilson area residents resulted in the arrest of a suspect in a burglary of one of the men's homes about 8 miles northwest of Wilson Monday morning.

Thomas W. Maeker and his father, Orville Maeker, encountered a black man carrying items from the Thomas Maeker home about mid-morning. They said the man threatened them and threw a coffee pot at Orville Maeker, then got into a vehicle and sped away.

The Maekers gave chase on a dirt road at high speeds, to FM 400, then north to Slaton, where they lost sight of the suspect's vehicle. They had obtained a license plate number, however, and gave this information to Slaton Police Dept. Slaton officers almost immediately arrested a suspect traveling toward Lubbock on U.S. 84.

Arrested and jailed in Lynn County was Michael Dewayne Cleaver, 23, of Lubbock. Bond on a charge of burglary of a habitation was set by Lubbock Justice of the Peace McKinley Shephard at $100,000. Cleaver remained in jail Wednesday.

Some of the stolen items were recovered, according to Lynn County Sheriff Stanley Krause, who praised the Maekers, the Slaton Police Dept. and the Criminal Investigation Division of Lubbock Sheriff's Dept. for their work on the case.

In jail during the week were Cleaver and one person for driving while license suspended.

Police investigated a fight that broke out at a restaurant here last Sunday night. One of the persons was taken to Lynn County Hospital and was treated for cuts and released. No one was arrested.

Also on Sunday night, police investigated another fight in the 1400 block of N. 4th that involved several people. No one was arrested, however.

Tractor Accident Kills Commissioner Blakney

Lynn County Precinct 4 Commissioner E.R. Blakney was killed last Saturday afternoon when he was run over by his own tractor after starting it on his farm near New Home.

Services for Blakney, 64, were held Monday, Dec. 5, at the New Home United Methodist Church with the Rev. Rick Wolfe, pastor, and the Rev. Jarrel Rial of New Home Baptist Church, officiating. Burial was in City of Lubbock Cemetery.

Blakney was in the first year of his second four-year term as commissioner of Precinct 4. County Judge J.F. Brandon said Monday it will be his responsibility to appoint someone to fill Blakney's post on the commissioners court until the next general election, which will be next November. At that time, Brandon said, an election would be held for the remaining two years of Blakney's term.

The judge said he wanted to discuss the situation with the other county commissioners before making an appointment.

Born Oct. 1, 1919, at New Lynn, Blakney graduated from Wilson High School. He married Nell Shadden Jan. 5, 1940, at New Home. He was a farmer and a member of New Home Methodist Church. He was a veteran of World War II.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Max Blakney of New Home; a daughter, Sharon Ince of Amarillo; his mother, Dora Blakney of Lubbock; two sisters, Florence Davis of Borger and Annie L. Gasper of Lubbock; a brother, Roger of New Home; and two grandchildren.

Pallbearers were Dick Turner, L.C. Unfred, Lit Moore, Frank Lisemby, Robbie Gill, James Johnson, Berry Loftian, Dr. John Hale.

Cantata Set Sunday Night

At 7 p.m. Sunday in the auditorium of First Baptist Church, Tahoka, the Community Choir will present the Christmas cantata "King of Love."

Director Carroll Rhodes said "The musical by Roger Strader and Bob Krogstad interprets for mankind and Christmas story through the fact that Christ came because of His love for mankind and that He is the Saviour of sinners and worthy of all praise and adoration. The cantata does not end at the manger but concludes with the statement that not only did Jesus come nearly 2000 years ago, but He is definitely coming again and we are to look with glad anticipation of His glorious and victorious return."

Soloists will be Beth Askew, Margaret Carter, Nell Cotter and Donald Webster. Dr. George Ray Jr., pastor of First Baptist, is the narrator. Diana Hawthorne has served as rehearsal pianist. Operating the sound will be Jerry Ford. The Community Choir, which is composed of singers from the various churches in Tahoka and the surrounding communities, is directed by Rhodes, Minister of Music and Youth at First Baptist.

Before the presentation of "King of Love," the handbell choir of First United Methodist Church, the "Joy Ringers," will present some Christmas carols. Under the direction of Bettye Green, they will ring "Ode to Joy," "O Come Rejoicing," and "Suite for Christmas."

Everyone is invited to this night of Christmas music which is free and open to the public. A nursery will be provided. Immediately following the presentation of "King of Love," there will be a reception for all in the fellowship hall of First Baptist. "It is the prayer of all involved that those who attend will receive a blessing from the music and be drawn closer to God," Rhodes said.

WOODWORK BY DALTON

LOOKING AT a picture of a small child decorating a Christmas tree the other day, one of our staff members said it ought to be called "...while visions of sugarplums danced in their heads." Later I got to thinking about that, and then I wasn't so sure it would be appropriate.

Of course, all of us over 40 or so remember Clement Clark Moore's famous poem (and none of us at any age can completely escape its parodies every year). When Moore wrote his poem back in the year 2 A.D., or whenever, maybe little kids could get visions of sugarplums, but nowadays neither the kids nor their parents have even a foggy idea of what a sugarplum looks like. It's pretty tough to visualize something you have never seen.

At our office, where everybody likes sweets better than nearly anything else, nobody seemed to know what a sugarplum is—until one worker found it in the dictionary. According to that book, a sugarplum is a "round or oval piece of sugary candy." Until we learned this, we couldn't decide whether it might be a ball of pastry, like a donut hole, a real fruit which grows on a tree, or what.

I have heard men call their wives (and secretaries) "Sugar Plum," but that's not the kind of visions little kids have at Christmas.

FAMILY WEEKLY is hereby notified that if they don't quit stealing my stuff, even before I write it, they're gonna be in for a heck of a big lawsuit. I have a witness who will (perhaps) testify that we were talking just a week or so ago about how in the world a person knows what to put at the beginning of a business letter these days. And I told him I might write something about it. But Family Weekly discussed it last Sunday.

Traditionally we have always started our business letters with "Dear Sir," or "Gentlemen." But with women holding more offices of authority in businesses, and with some of the militant women's groups making all kinds of noises about sexism, what is a poor writer to do? Family Weekly said last week that there are more updated, but awkward things to use, such as "Dear Sir or Madam," and I myself have been tempted to start a letter with "Gentlepersons."

Family Weekly reported that no matter what you start out with, it will irritate somebody, unless you know the name of the person who will be getting the letter and use that name.

I may just start all my letters with "Hi, There...."

Fireworks Not Allowed in City

City residents were reminded this week that city ordinance prohibits shooting off fireworks in the city. The ordinance prohibits either sales, transportation, possession or discharging fireworks inside the city limits.

"This is a law which has been too often violated here in the past," Police Chief Jack Miller said. With the Christmas season coming up, city officials want to forestall a repeat of some of the problems which occurred July 4th.

Fireworks are dangerous to persons around them, a nuisance to those who have to hear them, and a definite fire hazard, Miller commented.

THE LANGUAGE OF GIFTS

Gifts talk. What a man chooses as a Christmas gift for a woman is often more eloquent than words. Perfume...he thinks she's exciting. A cashmere stole...he wants to take care of her. Brandy...an invitation to share a nightcap. A cedar chest says, "I want to spend the rest of my life with you."

Steeped in the romance of centuries, cedar chests have a genealogy that reaches back to early Egyptian civilizations. In Renaissance Italy some of the greatest artists were commissioned to decorate the elaborate carved chests of the period. Even the immortal Leonardo da Vinci is said to have lent his genius to the love chest of a wealthy nobleman's daughter.

Cedar chests came to America with the early colonists, says Linda Dalton, historian at the Lane Company, makers of the cedar chest. Here in the New World it became a traditional gift love for a man to give the girl he was courting—a custom that's still going strong.

For young people who live in a small apartment short on storage space, there are now chests that double as a cocktail or coffee table. For the entrance hall of a house, there are magnificent oak chests, some long and low, others tall and imposing. Among the 100 different styles of cedar chests, there are chests with upholstered tops to provide extra seating, and chests to store blankets in at the foot of a bed or flank with lamps behind a sofa.

And who says cedar chests are only for brides-to-be? It's a great way to tell a wife of 10 or 20 years that romance is still alive and well. Into cedar chests have gone lovers' dreams and onists, says Linda Dalton, hopes for more than a score historian at the Lane Company, makers of the cedar chest. Here in the New World it became a traditional gift love.

How To Buy Diamonds For Christmas

Now's the time when many people set out to capture that seasonal sparkle by buying something for all seasons: dazzling diamonds, glittery gold and other spectacular gems. More jewelry, particularly diamonds, is acquired during December than in the other 11 months combined, according to a survey of professional jewelers.

With a truly brilliant array of jewelry gifts to choose from this year, you don't have to be wealthy to make this Christmas special, say experts.

If you're stumped when it comes to deciding what to buy in diamond jewelry for Christmas gifts, here are some tips from Bill Harris, vice president and director of marketing for the Zale Jewelry Division of Zale Corporation, the world's largest jewelry retailer:

- Examine the lifestyle, tastes and characteristics of those who will receive the gift. Says Harris, "A large diamond cluster ring wouldn't be practical for a woman who uses her hands a lot. A woman with short fingers may be overpowered by a wide ring band."

- A popular new design for both men's and women's rings is the "channel-set" mounting, in which a row of diamonds is wedged cleanly into the setting. The diamonds may cover only a portion of the mounting or completely encircle the band. Not only does this design show the diamonds sparkle, but it also alleviates the need for prongs which can catch on clothing. This mounting style also serves well as an anniversary ring, with one diamond marking each year of marriage.

- Some stocking stuffers: men's diamond jewelry in understated masculine designs that reflect flair, not flash. Earring jackets, from simple to ornate, can change the look of a single pair of diamond or colored gemstone studs.

- Always buy from a reputable jeweler.
- Choose a piece because of the stone. Settings are faddish and can hide chips or other imperfections. Keep in mind a diamond's four key qualities: Cut—refers to the shape and to the skill and precision of cutting the rough stone to reveal its ultimate beauty. Color—it is the absence of color that makes one diamond more precious than the other. Carat weight—indicates the size of a diamond. Clarity—refers to a diamond's freedom from flaws.

- Ask questions. Your jeweler is more than happy to help. You'll find that unlike Christmas ornaments, fine jewelry "ornaments" can be enjoyed all year long.

Don't use rubber gloves when polishing silver and don't store silver with rubber bands. Rubber darkens silver.

KEEP HOLIDAY PARTIES SOCIABLE BUT SOBER

Many holiday party hosts think serving alcoholic drinks demonstrates their hospitality. Yet for their guests on diets or medication or those who want to be sociable without drinking, alcohol can cause problems. For guests with a drinking problem and especially those who drive, alcohol can bring disaster, says Dr. Mary Ann Huesner, a health education specialist. According to figures recently released by the Texas Commission on Alcoholism, 11 percent of Texans have drinking problems. And it's obvious that most party guests will drive home, whether they are sober or not. If alcoholic beverages are served, a host can show true hospitality by serving alcohol with food, not pushing drinks, monitoring the consumption of alcohol, and not letting a guest who has overindulged drive home, says the specialist.

A Visit With Your County Agent

By Stanley Young

Farmers and ranchers have only a few weeks left to make decisions that could affect their 1983 income tax situation. Year-end planning can help save tax dollars. Such planning mainly involves decisions to adjust income or expenditures so as to come up with a more favorable tax situation.

The primary purpose of year-end tax planning is to level out taxable income from year to year to avoid jumping through several tax brackets from one year to the next. With lower tax rates expected during 1984, producers may be in a dilemma about their income tax situation this year.

Many may feel inclined to shift some taxable income into next year to take advantage of the lower tax rates, particularly if this year's taxable income will be above average.

The main thing producers need to avoid is a net operating loss (NOL) because for many that could mean a loss of the tax benefits from personal deductions and exemptions. These add up to at least $5,400 for a couple with no dependent children and $7,400 for a family of four.

Social Security retirement benefits also will be affected by low net earnings in preretirement years. And contributions to a Keogh or IRA retirement plan may be affected if taxable income falls too low.

The first step in year-end tax planning is to calculate your 1983 taxable income and to project 1984 taxable income. The IRS is presently mailing 1983 income tax tables and schedules along with forms and filing instructions. For a rough estimate of 1984 tax rates, figure taxes at 5 percent less for the same taxable income as in 1983. Remember that the maximum capital gains tax on the sale of land, machinery or other investments is 20 percent.

If it is determined advantageous for a cash basis taxpayer to shift taxable income from 1984 to this year, several steps can be taken. Certain cash purchases can be postponed until next year or payments can be delayed until after the first of the year. Certain soil and water conservation and land clearing expenses can be capitalized and depreciated rather than taking them all this year. Some tax and interest payments might also be deferred until after year-end. Shifting capital assets bought before 1981 from a rapid method of depreciation to straight line depreciation can postpone deductions.

1983 income may also be increased by receiving payment for grain and livestock sales before year end, through assignment of PIK entitlements to someone else, and by receiving advance diversion and deficiency payments through participation in the 1984 farm program. Certain assets might also be sold this year that would be eventually be sold anyway.

However, if the decision is to shift taxable income to 1984 to take advantage of the lower tax rate, a producer may avoid receiving income from any 1983 sales (especially crops) through a deferred payment agreement with the buyer. He may also delay counting PIK entitlements, crop insurance proceeds, and income from forced sales of livestock from federally designated drought areas.

Stepping up deductions can also postpone 1983 income. This could include paying for and taking delivery of equipment and supplies before year-end as well as prepayment of such items as leases. Year-end tax benefits associated with farm machinery purchases (such as ACRS deductions investment credit or the $5,000 expensing option) may enhance the payoff of such purchases. And contributions to a Keogh and an IRA retirement plan are deductible as long as they are made before the tax return is filed.

If a producer does all he can to reduce his 1983 taxable income and still finds his earnings much higher than in past years, Young suggests income averaging. If this year income will be 20 percent above the average taxable income for 1979 through 1982 plus $3,000, then income averaging may save tax dollars.

Producers are advised to check with their tax consultants for further information on year-end tax planning.

Extension Office Serves Many Areas

The Extension Service is an educational branch of land grant colleges of the United States. Cooperative Extension is arrived from the cooperation of the county, state and federal governments all who play a role in the function and financing of the programs.

Stanley Young, Tamara Overcast and Greg Henley are the professional employees of the Lynn County office and Nancy Monk is office secretary.

Guidance of the local education programs are received from the Lynn County Program Building Committee and four area committees which include crops, livestock, family living and 4-H.

The program building committee composed of citizens of the county, coordination and leadership in areas of concern that are not encompassed by the area committees such areas are community development, crime prevention and lawn and gardens.

The area committees provide leadership in the fields of which they have main interest.

Another service which the Extension Service provides is Extension Homemakers. Extension Clubs were organized in most counties in the United States around 1914 and 1915.

Extension Homemakers clubs now have the largest number of women in one national organization in the United States. The three basic goals of Extension Homemaker clubs are to promote education, inspiration and recreation.

The Lynn County 4-H is made up of four community clubs consisting of approximately 250 members. These members take part in a wide variety of educational projects, ranging from the single individual projects at home to larger group projects held at school or other locations within the county. Some of these projects include beef, swine, horse, poultry, foods, clothing, vet. science, safety and many more. These projects not only provide educational experience, but they also teach 4-H'ers to work with others and to develop a sense of responsibility.

Adult leaders are always encouraged and are a large part of the 4-H program. Lynn County has a 4-H Parent and Adult Leaders Assn. with approximately 85 parents taking part.

The US Cycling Team—Champs in '84?

Many Americans are supporting the US Cycling Team's efforts to become world champions at the 1984 Olympic Games.

The challenge of making the US Cycling team the best in the world is being met, thanks to superb riders and technology that's putting those riders on the swiftest, most aerodynamic bicycles ever made.

The riders we'll be sending to the 1984 Olympics, sports experts say, have never been in better condition, physically or mentally, thanks to highly sophisticated and effective training programs. What's more, the bikes they'll be riding on are state-of-the-art—finally matching and surpassing the high standards of bicycles used by European and Soviet athletes.

At the United States Cycling Team Technical Development Center in Dayton, Ohio, built by Huff Corporation and Raleigh Cycles, space age materials and equipment for building and testing the latest design concepts in competition bicycling have been created. Wheel hubs and rims have been narrowed to eliminate wind resistance. Spokes have been redesigned to cut down on drag. Helium is used in tires instead of regular air for greater speeds. Wind tunnel tests examine everything from individual cycle components to composites of cycles and riders.

Victory in track and road racing events at the upcoming Olympics won't come cheap, however. The U.S. team, and the United States Cycling Federation's Elite Athlete Program, which identifies and trains promising young US riders. In addition to improving our bid for Olympic medals, Charter Patrons help the US Cycling Team represent America in such events as the Pan American Games, World Championships and major international competitions.

Tax deductible contributions may be sent to the U.S. Cycling Team/Huff Corporation, Patron Program, Box 1204, Dayton, Ohio 45401. You can help the US Cycling team break new ground in racing.

Who's that man and what's he doing in our alley?

It could be Larry Monk from Energas' Tahoka office.

You are apt to find him in a lot of places. His job is to check out gas equipment and lines to assure you of a dependable, safe supply of natural gas. Like in your alley. Besides carefully reading your meter, he checks for leaks and for any needed repairs or replacement.

So, when you see an Energas man in your alley . . . or in the heart of town, you can be sure he is there for a good reason.

Energas people can do and want to.

In the thick of the 1983 harvest, many cotton producers on the Plains have not taken the time for a hard look at all the details of the 1984 cotton program.

"But those of us who have," say PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson, "are sharply critical of both the program in general and of two features in particular that appear to be especially designed to make things difficult for High Plains producers."

Looking just at the big picture, Johnson states, the 25 percent voluntary acreage reduction program, with no provision for payment in kind or other means to reduce the adverse effect of the limit on payments, doesn't offer enough incentive for producer participation. "Without a payment in kind program or other paid diversion, we are concerned that producers will plant too much cotton, add 800,000 to a million bales or more to the 1984 carryover, and push the industry right back into an oversupply situation."

This lack of participation incentive is the program's major shortcoming, Johnson continues, the ill effects of which he expects to fall on the entire Cotton Belt with more or less equal force. "Although PCG is making the effort," Johnson says, "in all honesty there appears to be little if any chance that the basic program can or will be changed. And about all we can do in that regard is hope that our assessment of the potential for overproduction is wrong."

There is still hope however, the PCG executive believes, that something can be done to change two of the mandated procedures for 1984 that otherwise will serve as definite disincentives to program participation on the High Plains.

Johnson refers first to the Department's ruling that for 1984 reduces the floor under farm payment yields from 90 percent of the previous year's yield to 80 percent. This change, he explains, will result in a serious loss of payment yields on the High Plains where yields already have been depressed by repeated weather-induced crop failures in recent years.

"Reduced yields mean reduced program benefits," Johnson points out, "and that means even more of our producers may be tempted to ignore the acreage reduction program and plant every available acre, hoping to recover from the market what this ruling would take away."

The other program feature that hits hard at the Plains, PCG is telling the Department, involves program sign-up rules. In previous years, producers have been asked to "enroll" in programs early in the year, but were given the option to withdraw at any time before July 15.

But in 1984 USDA in effect has made the early sign-up (January 16 to February 24) irrevocable.

"Our producers can't possibly know in February what management decisions will best fit the conditions that exist at planting time in May or June," Johnson states.

And special hardship could fall on producers with both cotton and feed grain bases, he continues, explaining that if such a producer signs up in both programs and loses his cotton late in June, he will be denied the opportunity to replant failed cotton acreage to grain sorghum without paying prohibitive damages.

"So," says Johnson, "there's a real possibility that producers with this potential problem may opt to go outside the program on feed grains and possibly on both commodities."

MICROWAVE MENUS

MAKE IT MEXICAN

By Rita Marie Schneider

Main dish casseroles, desserts, vegetables and sauces are among the delectable foods that can be quickly and easily cooked in the microwave oven. It's one way to leave time for enjoying family and friends without being tied to the kitchen.

To learn to appreciate and to use your microwave properly, here are a few tips:

- Choose the proper size container and utensil. Allow space for the expansion and bubbling which take place in microwave cooking.

- Lightweight utensils, such as those made with Udel polysulfone, make microwave cooking simpler. They're lighter in weight, they're transparent to microwaves to cook more quickly and foods don't cook onto the dish, making for easy cleanups.

Try this recipe for a quick main dish.

1 pound lean ground beef

3 tablespoons taco seasoning mix

1 package (10 oz.) frozen whole kernel corn, defrosted

1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce

Plans For Homeowners

HEAT PUMPS COOL EFFICIENTLY

Most people this time of year are concerned about cooling their homes and saving energy. One way you can cool yours efficiently is with a device that also can heat it: a heat pump.

What is a heat pump? It is a machine that provides central heating in the winter and central cooling in the summer by transferring — pumping — heat from where it is to where it is wanted.

How It Works

In winter, the heat pump's refrigerant absorbs heat from the outdoor air and releases it indoors. In summer, the heat is collected inside the house and released outdoors to make the house cool.

A heat pump, say experts at General Electric, is not a furnace. It does not burn fuel to make heat.

Economy

A homeowner with a 10-year-old central cooling system that delivers 6.0 SEER (Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio) can cut cooling bills substantially by replacing it with a GE heat pump that can deliver 8.5 SEER. That is about a 30 percent increase in efficiency, which means it uses less energy.

Come winter, the heat pump can gather heat from the cold outdoor air because even at 0°F there is 89 percent as much heat in the air as there is at 100°F. This ability to capture outside heat in winter makes it possible for the heat pump to save up to 60 percent on electric heating bills, depending on geographic location and the equipment used.

Heat pumps can be added to gas or oil forced air systems, and an accessory called a Hot Water Bank even turns waste heat from the heat pump into hot water for household use.

Facts From the Forest Service, U.S. Dept. of Agriculture

MAKING MORE AND BETTER USE OF OUR TIMBER

Wise use of our nation's timber resources... in ways that will save us all money. These are goals likely to find approval with most Americans. They're not an impossible dream, either, according to the experts at the U.S. Forest Service.

Already, they say, much is being done to brighten the picture. Further improvements in getting more products from the wood we have are within reach if proper steps are taken.

For instance, recent studies show that unused wood residuals, once considered waste, at primary wood-product plants declined significantly from 1970 to 1976. The reason? A major rise in the use of these residuals in pulp and particle board production. Such wastes are also being used for fuel to help power wood product plants.

Wood being wasted in the forest is also getting attention. The National Forest Management Act of 1976 has made possible some improvement in removing dead and defective timber on National Forest land. However, new techniques and equipment are needed to allow removal at lower costs than now possible. Some new techniques being developed will allow rapid collection and onsite chipping for fuel and pulpwood from whole stems of trees. Aerial logging systems are being improved to reach trees not accessible by roads.

Improved lumber and plywood processing technology can extend timber supplies substantially, the Forest Service contends. In particular, they emphasize cost-effective systems of manufacturing lumber from small diameter logs and short logs. These, too, were formerly considered of little value.

Proper use of preservative-treated products, insecticides to control termites and careful application of water-repellants could greatly extend the useful life of most wood products and reduce demand on timber resources.

Using our resources wisely can ensure our future as a wood-rich nation.

Then there's the importance of proper maintenance and renovation of our existing structures. If practiced extensively, this could significantly lower demands for timber and other materials as well, so the volumes needed for new and replacement structures would be readily available.

These are just a few of the steps that might insure our future as a wood-rich nation. Without tapping such potentials, we could run short of wood, according to Forest Service predictions.

Recent IRS Ruling Allows Investment Switching
Long term investors may now accumulate money while exercising greater control over how their investments are put to work. A recent ruling from the Internal Revenue Service has resulted in an offering from a major life insurance company of a tax-deferred wraparound variable annuity giving buyers the option of switching their funds among different investment portfolios. A previous ruling stripped the tax-deferred status of interest and dividend income from most multi-fund variable annuities permitting the transfer of money among different mutual funds. The variable annuity issued by Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, has been favorably affected by the newest ruling. Now, even buyers of non tax-qualified contracts can switch their money among four investment portfolios. Marketed under the name Panorama, the annuity offers money market, intermediate-term bond, long-term bond and common stock portfolios. Similar annuities were "wrappers" around separate mutual funds whose investment dollars were not controlled by an insurance company and were generally available to other investors as publicly traded securities. The IRS considers earnings of such funds as taxable income to the purchasers. The portfolios offered in Panorama, on the other hand, are available only to the annuity buyers and the company retains ownership. Purchasers may direct that their investments be made in any of the four portfolios

Dear Mr. Wood: I would like to comment on how our town Tahoka is growing. I feel that everyone is really proud of the new Allsup's that is being built. I know that when I stay over to my friend's house, we always want something sweet to eat; but all the stores are always closed. Now that the Allsup's is being built we can always go out and get what we want. Sincerely, Sabrina McGriff

Special Plates Honor 150th Birthday

Travel and Information Division
State Department of Highways and Public Transportation

AUSTIN—Around this time next year, you'll be able to buy those special red, white and blue license plates that commemorate the Texas Sesquicentennial.

Only twice before has the state allowed slogans on vehicle license plates, once in 1936 to commemorate the Texas Centennial and again in 1968 to recognize the HemisFair.

In honor of Texas' 150th birthday, the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission directed that approximately 7.5 million sets of plates be produced during the next biennium bearing the Sesquicentennial slogan.

When the Sesquicentennial license plates are ready, they will be issued for new vehicles and for out-of-state vehicles being registered in Texas for the first time. In addition, they will be issued at the time of registration if current plates are at least five years old and the owner wants new plates. The special plates will also be issued as replacement plates and annual license plates.

Individuals who wish to get personalized Sesquicentennial plates for the year 1986 can order them beginning August 1, 1984.

Plans for the state's 150th birthday celebration began in 1979 when the 66th Texas Legislature created a special commission to coordinate the observance. The highway commission approved the issuance of the special plates at the request of the Sesquicentennial Commission who appeared before them last August.

GREG HENLEY

A five-year, $50 million nationwide campaign has been announced to double private support for 4-H, the nation's largest out-of-school youth educational organization.

The campaign seeks support for 4-H in five major areas; enriching educational experiences for youth by expanding recognition programs; updating curriculum and educational materials and developing pilot programs; updating curriculum enhancing leadership development of adult and teen leaders and professional staff; increasing public awareness; and improving conference and training facilities at the facilities at the National 4-H Center in Chevy Chase.

Robert B. Gill, vice chairman, J.C. Penny Company, will serve as chairman of the campaign committee that includes corporate and civic leaders nationwide.

The campaign is a cooperative effort between state 4-H programs and the National 4-H Council, a non-profit organization, says Greg Henley, county agent. It will not only build upon traditional support from the corporate community but also will seek expanded support from foundations and individuals.

4-H, the youth program of the Cooperative Extension Service of state land-grant universities and the U.S. Department of Agriculture, has nearly five million members in every state plus the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands, American Samoa and Micronesia. These young people are led by a cadre of more than 620,000 volunteer leaders, backed by professional Extension staff.

4-H programs emphasize a learn-by-doing approach to a broad range of subject areas, from traditional projects in agriculture and home economics to programs in computers, ecology and career education. Members participate in 4-H through clubs, camps and special interest groups. Programs are geared to youth needs and community resources. Since its inception in the early 1900s, more than 40 million people, from rural and urban areas, have been involved in 4-H.

4-H is a prime example of the public-private sector partnership, says Henley. Throughout its history, 4-H has received strong private support to motivate young people by recognizing achievement and excellence to provide citizenship and leadership training for adult volunteers, youth and staff, and conduct international exchange programs with 82 countries having similar youth programs.

Born Sept. 15, 1934, in Runge, he was raised in O'Donnell and had been a resident of Shallowater for the past 31 years.

He was a farmer and he served on the county committee of the Farmers Home Administration for two years. He was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Lubbock.

Survivors include his wife, Rachel; a daughter, Margie Ramos of Shallowater; two sons, Ronnie and Richard of Shallowater; five brothers, Jesse of Azle, Noe Jr. of Irving, Johnny of Fort Worth, Rudy of Abilene and Dionicio Jr. of Anson; and three grandchildren.

Pallbearers were Gabriel Ramirez, Bernardo Pauda, Roberto Lugo, Jose Davila, Gonzalo Amaro and Hulin Fowler.

HOLIDAY GIFTS FOR THE ELDERLY-- The holiday gift you give an elderly relative or friend may send an unintended message, says a specialist on aging. "Many of the common stereotypes about the elderly are reflected in the type of gifts they receive from younger family members," says Judith Warren, a family life education-aging specialist. For example, if you always give grandpa a pair of pajamas or slippers, you could be telling him that you think he doesn't do anything more than sleep, she explains. The object is to give something that relates to that person and provides pleasure or delight. "Consider the elderly person's life now, or past related experience for a clue to gift ideas," says Warren. Elderly persons may be less physically active, yet mentally active - thinking and reminiscing about the things they have been interested in throughout their lives. Many gifts can stimulate this cognitive activity and thus provide pleasure for the older person says the specialist.

Making Food Dollars Count

SHOPPING TIPS

Here are a few tips to help you and your family enjoy a nutritional diet on a low food budget. The key is shopping wisely.

Before going to the supermarket, plan meals for the week and make a shopping list.

Try not to shop when hungry, tired or in a hurry. Buy the "large economy" size if you can store and use it conveniently.

Avoid overbuying, of perishable foods especially. Try store brands and generics. They usually cost less than name brand products.

Be flexible. Substitute good buys you find at the store for similar foods in your meal plan.

Compare cost and quality of convenience foods with those you can make from scratch. Some convenience foods are bargains but most frozen combination dishes, seasoned vegetables and dinners and ready-to-eat bakery products cost more than home-made counterparts.

Buying Vegetables and Fruits
Fresh ones are often cheaper when in season. Watch for specials on these. Plain frozen and canned ones are cheaper than those with butter and sauce.

Buying Breads and Cereal Products
"Day old" breads are often available at a savings at supermarkets and bakery outlet stores.

"Instant" and quick cooking rice costs more than regular, enriched rice. The addition of seasoned and flavored mixes makes them much more costly.

Buying Meat
The best buys are cuts and types of meat, fish and poultry that "provide the most lean meat for the money. To compare costs, divide the price per pound by the number of servings a pound provides. Servings will differ from four servings from a pound of meat with little or no fat or bone, such as flank steak, to one serving from meats with large amounts of fat, gristle and bone, such as spare ribs.

Eggs, peanut butter and dried beans and peas are good sources of protein and many other nutrients found in more expensive meat.

Buying Milk and Milk Products
Non-fat dry milk is usually the least expensive form of milk, especially when bought in large boxes. Skim fluid milk is usually a bargain, too.

For a booklet with menus and recipes that can help your family cut food costs, send 50 cents to Making Food Dollars Count, #405L, Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, CO 81009.

Airlines could have anticipated problems from deregulation

Airlines that were operating when the industry was deregulated in 1979 could have anticipated the problems they're experiencing today, says a Texas economist and specialist on the effects of government regulation.

"Any time there is a change from regulation to deregulation, someone is going to lose, but society must weigh the costs versus the benefits. In this case the pilots, stewardesses and ground maintenance people employed by the established lines will be the losers," said Dr. Charles Smithson of Texas A&M University's Economics Department.

"The new airlines aren't paying union wages and aren't offering all the services the more established lines offered during regulation," he said.

HEALTH FACTS

Nearly five million Americans have an incurable disease — and don't even know it. The disease is diabetes, which affects nearly 12 million people in all in this country, and while it can't be cured, it can, in many cases, be controlled.

Some two million people are controlling it with insulin injections. This takes a lot of dedication, time and money. Diabetics dependent on insulin injections must keep a close watch on the level of sugar in their bloodstream in order to control their disease. When sugar level goes up or down the prescribed regimen of diet, exercise and insulin must be adjusted depending on the type and severity of each case.

Now, many doctors have a way to help some of their patients test their own blood for sugar. The test is highly accurate and can be done anywhere — at home, on vacation, in an emergency or operating room. Even youngsters can do the test. It is made simple by the Chemstrip bG test strips, developed and produced by Bio-Dynamics, a Boehringer Mannheim company. Many diabetics are consulting their doctors about the test.

Doctors say it may cut down on some of the complications which may develop as a result of diabetes.

Honor America Independence Day Fourth of July

Here comes the parade with bands blaring, flags waving, fireworks bursting! It's a typical lively American Independence Day celebration enacted by generation after generation. In this simple, democratic style, Americans express gratitude for, and faith in, their country's well-being.

John Adams, one of America's founding fathers, understood the significance of celebrating the Fourth of July. In a letter to his wife, Abigail, the young patriot wrote: "This great anniversary festival ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations from one end of the country to the other, from this time forever more."

Now, it is up to us, all of us, to honor America by participating in our local Independence Day observances on this Fourth of July week-end.

The American Historic and Cultural Society encourages all Americans to take an active role in area programs. Public gatherings, activities and celebrations are planned to honor America in an appropriate manner. With the support of patriotic citizens throughout the land, the real spirit of John Adams' thoughts on celebrating America's anniversary of independence is still alive and flourishing. "from one end of the country to the other" for all to see and hear.

"A favorite theory is a possession for life."
