Cotton Classing Is Rotary Topic

Technological advances in classing cotton were discussed by Wayne Huffaker at the weekly meeting of Tahoka Rotary Club last Thursday in Paris Cafeteria.

Huffaker is an alternate member of an Agriculture Dept. committee to study standards and high volume instrument (HVI) cotton classing. He explained some of the difficulties in classing cotton samples and the advantages of the HVI system.

"For the more modern textile spinning methods, West Texas cotton is ideally suited," he said, indicating that he sees an increased share of the market for cotton from this area.

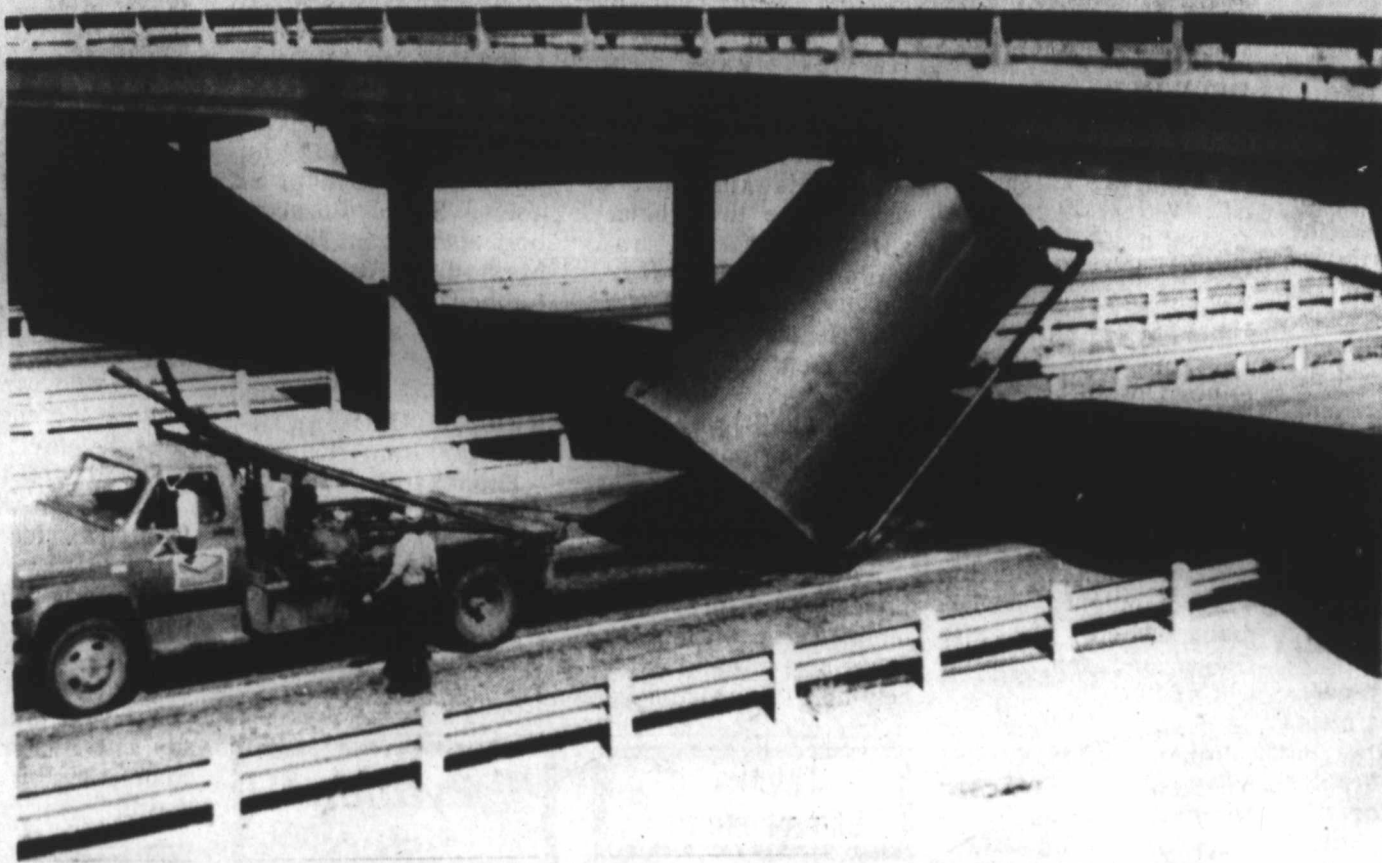

Two Accidents Listed In City

Tahoka police investigated a couple of accidents on Sunday including an accident at N. 3rd and Ave. J that involved a 1980 Chevrolet pickup driven by Nick Saldana Jr. of Tahoka and a parked 1982 Ford pickup owned by George Glenn Jr. of Tahoka. No injuries were reported.

A second accident occurred in the 1600 block of S. 3rd involving a 1976 Buick driven by Mona V. Carter of Tahoka. Her vehicle reportedly struck a wooden fence. Damage was estimated at more than $250. No injuries were reported.

Police issued two tickets for failure to control speed and one ticket for no driver's license during the past week.

In jail during the week were one person each for theft over $200 and under $750, theft over $750, and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

WEDGED IN--This oil tank which was being transported by a welding truck was just too tall to clear the South Hwy. 87 overpass south of Tahoka on last Wednesday morning. There was no damage to the southbound truck from Post, only a big dent to the tank. (LYNN COUNTY NEWS PHOTO by Terry Wood)

Persons and/or clubs interested in booths may contact Dot Roberts or Nadine Dunlap.

County Finances In Good Shape

Auditors making the annual check-up on Lynn County finances presented their report to commissioners Monday, and it was agreed that the county is in good financial shape, considering general economic conditions.

Presenting the audit for the firm of Love, Hays and Schaffner were Joe Hays of Tahoka and Kerry Musick and Bruce Gunning of Brownfield.

Commissioners voted to accept the audit report, which showed that in 1983 the county took in $1,090,740 from various sources, with the largest amount being $334,126 collected in property taxes. During the year the county spent $1,011,094. Those figures did not include revenue sharing funds.

Musick pointed out that at the end of the year, the county had about $760,000 in unreserved funds which could be used for whatever purpose the county deemed necessary.

County Treasurer Cynthia Bryan reported on a revenue sharing seminar she attended in Dallas earlier in February.

Commissioners were advised by Judge J.F. Brandon of a meeting regarding a lawsuit filed against the county tax appraisal district by Wilson State Bank and First National Bank of Tahoka, regarding the values set on bank stock. The group also voted to revise the revenue sharing budget.

Commissioners Boyd Barnes, Eldon Gattis and Bart Anderson were present. Commissioner Nell Blakney was absent.

Studies Support Proposition Zero

"A convincing proposal" is the conclusion made by researchers about the property tax relief plan called Proposition Zero.

"The movement to fund education with a state sales tax that exempts food, medicine and utility bills is a sound approach to the school funding problem," said Randy Lyon, researcher and assistant professor of Economics at the University of Texas in Austin.

Lyon sees the proposals contribution as "addressing the potential inequities associated with locally funding education through the property tax."

The Texas Real Estate Research Center at Texas A&M University studied the effect of Proposition Zero on affordability of homeownership. "The average Texas household in 1981 could qualify for a home which costs about $800 to $1400 more under Proposition Zero. And, the housing payment savings (from reduced property taxes) is equal to a $400 to $500 annual pay increase insofar as loan qualifying ability." concluded the Research Center.

In addition to these studies, Proposition Zero's legislative staff has documented the effect of the plan in every Texas school district. These studies project that Proposition Zero will insure that no school district loses any current funding. At the same time, the plan insures that at least 80 percent of all districts will gain additional funding.

Staff studies of the stability of the sales tax as a revenue source have shown that the revenues grow about 15 times faster than pupil population in Texas.

Proposition Zero would exempt the first $100,000 per unit of value of multi-family homes, and personal automobiles from the operation and maintenance portion of school property taxes. An additional one-cent sales tax will be levied to replace the revenues lost by the property tax exemption and enhance education funding. Revenue from the sales tax will be disbursed from a

WOODWORK

BY DALTON

IN THE NEXT booth at a restaurant the other evening we overheard some parents exaggerating to each other about how long their teenagers monopolize the bathroom.

One father said he and his wife left the house to go some place and their daughter was in their bathroom doing something to her hair. "When we came back later she still was in the bathroom," he grumbled. Another father said his daughter could stand under the shower "forever" and another parent said their son always stood under the shower for 45 minutes or until all the hot water was used up.

This would not be any big news to any parent of a teenager, because every one of us has had the experience of having no hot water left when it finally came our turn. I also remember the woman of the house complaining that one of ours used to fill the tub up to the brim for a bath, and then dip into it for about 30 seconds. However, if your youngsters did nothing more serious than use up all the hot water, you're fortunate.

AFTER reading in the Lubbock newspaper the other day that somebody thinks they may have discovered a cure for the common cold--dissolving a zinc tablet in the mouth--I decided to try it. I had the flu, like nearly everybody else, and so far as I know, the flu is just a cold gone berserk. And I just happened to have on hand some zinc tablets, a vitamin supplement.

The story said you couldn't just take the tablets; you have to let them dissolve in your mouth. So I stuck one in my mouth and wallowed it around awhile.

I have not tasted anything so terrible since the time I took a big bite of turnips, thinking they were potatoes. Licking a zinc tablet would gag a maggot; it just about made me sick. If it gets rid of the cold, though, it would be worth it, but just barely.

At this writing, I can't say if it works or not. If it does the next step would be to make the zinc tablets more palatable.

(To update the above, 24 hours after the experiment, the writer still had a cold and a bad taste in his mouth).

IT SEEMS TO ME that I read somewhere that knowledge has increased more in the last 25 years (or some such period) than it has in all of recorded time before that. Certainly things are possible now which boggles the mind.

What I mean is, we have computers that do fantastic things, robots, laser beams, men moving around in space without being tied to the spaceship, and all kinds of miraculous things invented by man to make life more luxurious or just easier to live.

But the great minds of our time still have not done some of the things that need to be done in the worst way. For example, no genius has yet figured out a way to take all the calories out of good food, so we can enjoy eating abundantly (pigging out) without feeling guilty because we know we are ruining our health, not to mention our shapes.

Another thing badly needed is for someone to invent something a man can smear on his face and never have to shave. Of course, nowadays many men just quit shaving, but not all of us want to look like Wolfman Jack.

I wish somebody smart would get on these things right away.

JUDGING from the reports on Tuesday night's Grammy Awards, it appears that Micheal Jackson is getting more votes than Jesse is getting. I haven't heard Michael (or Jesse, either) sing, but I guess he must be pretty good.

One of my co-workers said I could buy one of the Micheal Jackson records the same time I get my T-shirt with his picture on it.

I can hardly wait.

One-Third of Texas Counties Eligible For Disaster Loans

At the end of January, 87 of the state's 254 counties were eligible for the USDA-Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) weather disaster loans, the agency's State Director, J. Lynn Futch, said.

Most were designated because of 1983's severe drought and other adverse weather conditions, such as the arctic freeze in the Rio Grande Valley. Farmers with qualifying losses in the designated counties are eligible for low-interest loans for up to 80 percent of their weather-related losses.

Futch said that by mid-January, 222 weather emergency loans, totaling $15.6 million, had been made since the beginning of the fiscal year on Oct.

the state's 1983 assigned dollar goal of $244,700,000.

In Lynn County, sales of Series EE Bonds amounted to $1,527 during 1983, R.B. Hegi, Volunteer County Chairman, said. Total year's sales of $1,800,602 represent 53 per cent of the County's 1983 assigned dollar goal.

Nationally, 1983 sales of Series EE Bonds totaled $3,897 million, an increase of almost 20 per cent over 1982 sales, representing 111.3 per cent of the nation's $3.5 billion goal. December 1983 sales amounted to $326 million, the highest sales for the month since 1979. Redemptions for the month were 10 per cent below last years, and the lowest for any December since 1973. Savings Bonds held by the public amounted to $71.48 billion as of Dec. 31, 1983. Increase in the amount outstanding in 1983 was $3.1 billion.

Spring has come early this year for crawfish lovers. Because crawfish are now being 'grown' on farms, this seafood is becoming available earlier this year, says a Texas A&M University Extension Service fisheries specialist. In past years crawfish haven't been on the market before April or May, but this year they will be readily available in the major Texas cities and the southeast section of the state by early March. The price of crawfish should run about $1.50 per pound.

Farmers In Area Conserving Water

The rate of depletion of the Ogallala aquifer in the 5,216,600 acre, 15-county area served by the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District has dropped by 54 percent during the past five years (1979 to 1984) as compared to the previous five years (1974 to 1979). Depth-to-water level measurements made annually in a network of 948 wells in this 15-county area were used to make this observation.

The average annual change in water levels in the area served by the Water District for the past ten years (1974 to 1984) has been a decline of 1.40 feet per well. In the first five years (1974 to 1979) of this ten-year period the average annual change in water levels was a decline of 1.90 feet per well. During the past five years (1979 to 1984) the average annual change has been a decline of 0.88 of a foot per well. This indicates a 54 percent reduction in the rate of depletion. In 1983, the average change in water levels throughout the Water District's service area was a decline of 0.56 of a foot which is 40 percent of the ten-year average.

In the southern part of the Water District (Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Crosby, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock and Lynn Counties) the average annual change in water levels during the five-year period 1974 to 1979 was a decline of 1.52 feet per year. The average annual change during the period 1979 to 1984 had been a decline of 0.45 of a foot per year. This indicates a reduced rate of depletion of 71 percent for the past five years as compared to the previous five years.

The following are examples of the conservation techniques that area farmers have utilized which have resulted in the reduced rate of depletion of the aquifer. Irrigators report that through the installation of furrow dikes to capture and hold precipitation in place until it has time to soak into the soil they can annually save an average of three inches of irrigation water per acre. Pumping rainfall runoff of three inches of irrigation water per acre. Pumping rainfall runoff water which collects in the playa basins instead of pumping ground water has resulted not only in ground water saved for future use but has also reduced fuel costs by 50 percent or more.

Replacing open irrigation ditches with surface or underground pipeline has resulted in reduced water losses of 10 to 20 percent per 1,000 feet of replaced open ditch. Through modification of existing irrigation systems utilizing technical assistance provided by the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) and the mobile field water labs provided by the Water District, 10 to 20 percent improvements in water use efficiency have been attained. This in turn has also reduced pumpage from the aquifer. Utilizing soil moisture information provided by the Water District and the SCS to determine pre-plant soil moisture needs and using soil moisture monitoring devices during the growing season to determine the quantities of water which need to be applied to the plant soil root zone has resulted in reduced over irrigation this saving water for future use.

Selection of crop varieties which require less water as well as switching to crops such as grain, sorghum instead of corn has also helped.

Cotton Today

Cotton Consumption Up: U.S. textile mill consumption of cotton in January jumped to an annual rate of 6.5 million bale equivalents.

This is the highest since April, 1980, the National Cotton Council said, and an increase of 11.4 percent from December's rate.

For 1983, domestic mill consumption totaled 5.9 million bales, 12.6 percent above 1982.

(Continued from page 1) dedicated fund on a per student basis. "Unlike other proposals to fund education, Proposition Zero also provides a measure of tax relief where it is most needed," said Ellen Covert Cohen, Executive Director of Proposition Zero.

Studies and supporters back Proposition Zero as being the most politically desirable proposal to solve the current situation which is pitting an overburdened taxpayer against the funding needs of Texas schools. Already two dozen state legislators have signed on to this proposal, which will be entered in the next Texas legislative session.
