

C'MERE, YOU TURKEYS! — Chamberette Judy Holden tries unsuccessfully to gain the confidence of these turkeys, who must know that Thanksgiving is just around the corner, and might not agree with her idea of a turkey and dressing dinner. However, these turkeys have nothing to fear from the Chamberettes, who have already purchased their turkeys in preparation for the annual Community Thanksgiving Dinner scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 10 at the Tahoka School Cafeteria.

Community Thanksgiving Dinner Set

The annual community Thanksgiving Dinner, sponsored by the Tahoka Chamberettes, is set this year for Sunday, Nov. 10 in the Tahoka school cafeteria. Chamberettes will begin serving the traditional meal at 12:00 noon. Tickets may be purchased at the door or in advance from any Chamberette. Adult tickets are $4.00 each, and children 12 years and under pay $2.00 each. Carry-out plates are available.

The meal will consist of turkey and dressing, cranberry sauce, green beans with mushrooms and almonds, sweet potatoes, fruit salad with whipping cream, hot rolls, cake, iced tea and coffee. "We urge all residents to take advantage of this Sunday dinner. It's reasonably priced and you won't have to wash any dishes when you're finished!" said a Chamberette spokeswoman.

OUT OF THE WOODS

By Juanell (Wood) Jones

MY MOM KNOWS how much I hate mice, so the other day she bought me a new kind of mouse trap she had found in one of the local stores. These traps are non-poisonous, have no springs, no snaps, and they are already baited.

Now according to the instructions, all you have to do is place the box-trap where a little mouse might mosey by, and he'll jump in and stick to the glue that's inside the box. I don't know how it kills them, because the box says "non-poisonous." Maybe you have to wait a few days til he starves to death before you throw him in the dumpster. I won't pick up a trap with a dead mouse in it, and I sure won't pick up a trap with a live mouse looking at me, even if all his little toes are stuck in glue!

Now I'm sure that in the beginning, God must have made cute cuddly little mice that Eve liked to play with in the Garden of Eden. But somehow through the passage of time, God must have had other things on His mind, because they got real ugly, and grew toenails that click on the kitchen linoleum when they chase unsuspecting housewives up on counters.

When we moved to this town a couple of years ago, we bought an older home that had been vacant for about a year, and I was sure that the neighborhood mice had "set up shop" underneath the house.

The first night in our home, we had finally gotten everything moved into the house, but I left all the kitchen stuff wrapped in newspapers and strewed around the floor. I got ready for bed, and my husband said he was going to take a nice, long bath to relax. I figured I would be asleep long before he came to bed, but shortly after he got into the tub I heard the first tell-tale rustle of newspaper from the direction of the kitchen.

Immediately all my senses screamed "mouse" to my brain, but I was a "full-grown mature woman" so I thought surely I could wait til my husband finished his bath before I "sicked" him after the little critter. I kept hearing that rustle of paper and began to think that maybe there were even two or three mice in there, but I gritted my teeth and kept glancing at the clock thinking surely he would be finished with his dumb bath in a minute.

Finally, after what seemed hours, he came into the bedroom, took one look at me and said, "What's wrong with you?" Hysterically I screamed that "there's a bunch of mice in the kitchen and I want you to get rid of them, now!"

He looked puzzled and said, "How do you know, did you see them?"

"I didn't have to," I explained. "I could hear them rustle through the newspapers every so often."

At this point, he turned and left the room and in a moment I heard the rustle again. "Did you hear that?" I shouted.

He came back into the room grinning sheepishly and holding a newspaper and said, "That was me. I've been reading the paper in the bath tub."

Alert Citizens Aid Capture Of Suspects

Alert citizens who noticed a suspicious vehicle in the vicinity of two rural Lynn County homes which were burglarized around noon Sunday were credited with action which led to the arrest of two suspects less than an hour after the crimes were committed.

Homes of Curtis Bruedigam and Alvin Buxkemper, both about five miles north of Wilson, were burglarized Sunday, but phone calls from citizens who observed a vehicle were given full credit for the arrest of two black Lubbock residents. The two were arrested in Lubbock County and returned to Lynn County jail later.

Bond was set at $50,000 each for the suspects. Charged with burglary of a habitation were Carlton Ray Edmerson, 33, and Jewell David Townsend, 45.

All of the items stolen from the Bruedigam and Buxkemper homes were recovered.

Two other rural homes were burglarized in the county during the last week. Items valued at more than $7,000 were stolen from the house of J.G. White, southwest of Slide community, last Thursday. Most of the stolen items were gold and diamond rings, jewelry and a watch. Similar items were stolen from the residence of Allen Sweet, 6 1/2 miles west of New Home on FM 211, also on Thursday. Total value of the missing items was not yet determined.

A 6-cylinder, 292 Chevrolet engine, valued at $800 was reported stolen from an irrigation well on the farm of G.W. Grogan, nine miles east of Tahoka, sometime during the last week. Crime Line has offered a $200 reward in the case.

In jail during the week were one for forgery by passing, one for writ of attachment on child support, two for public intoxication, two for burglary, one for driving while intoxicated, third offense, and one DWI second offense.

Tahoka ISD reported to police that someone broke into the high school by cutting a chain on a door next to the band hall between 6 p.m. on Tuesday night and 7:35 a.m. Wednesday the board, Bill Esler, SPS president and chief operating officer, and J.B. Austin, SPS vice president of personnel, were to present the service awards.

morning. Reported damaged were three Arrow doorknobs, two solid wood oak doors, one chair and reported stolen was one tray that contained several sets of keys.

Tahoka Dairy Queen reported to police on Wednesday that someone had broken into their business between 6 p.m. on Tuesday night and 5:35 a.m. on Wednesday and entry was gained by breaking out a drive-in window valued at $50 and one set of keys was reported stolen.

Police also arrested two Tahoka men for DWI and one Tahoka man was arrested for public intoxication during the past week.

FRUSTRATED AGAIN—Tahoka came close again last Friday at New Deal but couldn't quite go over the hump to victory. Here the Dogs try for a first down late in the game, but were just short. The only Tahoka player visible here is Rusty Jennings (71).

Dogs Lose Close One To Lions, 7-3

With the top two teams in the district the only games left on Tahoka's schedule, the Bulldogs badly needed a win Friday night at New Deal, but the Lions held on to win 7-3 in a tight defensive struggle.

This week the Bulldogs host Shallowater, which already has beaten Morton and Seagraves, the Mustangs will be heavy favorites. It is the final home game of the year for Tahoka, and perhaps coaches, players and fans can take heart from such games as Texas-El Paso beating 7th-ranked Brigham Young U. last weekend and realize that anything is possible on a football field.

New Deal had only 7 first downs and Tahoka had just 8 as neither team could generate much offense Friday. With 9:09 left in the second quarter, New Deal scored after a long drive which included all five of the Lions' pass completions for the night. The touchdown was on a 2-yard pass to End Shane Boyd and the extra point made it 7-0.

Tahoka took the kickoff after the New Deal TD and drove from the Bulldog 20 to the New Deal 8 yard line before bogging down. At that point Johnny Morin kicked a 25-yard field goal to narrow the margin to 7-3.

Early in the fourth, New Deal took over at the Tahoka 30 after a miscue on a punting effort, but Todd Nance intercepted a pass at the Tahoka 14 to stop that threat. Tahoka's next best chance to score was also in the fourth, after Scott Isbell blocked a New Deal punt and Tahoka took over near midfield. The Dogs went down near the 30, but on a fourth down and 3, running effort gained just 2 and New Deal took over and ran out the clock.

In addition to kicking a field goal, Morin ran 25 times for 70 yards in the game. Nance gained 26 yards in 9 efforts, and on defense intercepted two passes. Andrew Chapa also intercepted a pass, but Tahoka lost the ball three times on fumbles to even things out. Doug Lawson was credited with 13 tackles.

Amendment Vote Slated On Tuesday

Voters in Lynn County will join other voters throughout the state Tuesday in casting ballots on 14 proposed constitutional amendments. All voters in Lynn County will go to the same ballot boxes as usual, except for those in voting Precinct 6, which has been changed from the Production Credit Assn. office on Lockwood to the Robert Harvick Insurance Agency office on N. Main St.

In West Texas, the most attention has been given to amendments 1 and 2, which are supposed to provide funds to be borrowed for water development. This amendment generally is heavily favored in West Texas and is supported by most of the media, including the Lynn County News.

Also endorsed by the Lynn County News is Amendment 11, which is supposed to eliminate dismissal of criminal cases on technicalities.

A brief statement of all the proposed amendments is being printed again in this issue of the News.

Payments To Fire Departments Okayed

Payments from Lynn County to four city fire departments in the county for answering fire calls outside city limits and inside Lynn County were increased in action by the county commissioners Monday.

The commissioners approved a 50 per cent annual increase in the amounts paid to departments in New Home, Wilson, O'Donnell and Tahoka. The increases will be applicable to seven months of 1985 and full years thereafter.

Paul Kiser was named as the county's representative to the Lynn County Appraisal District board. Kiser also is representative for the City of Tahoka.

Bids on remodeling the courthouse to accommodate handicapped persons were discussed, but no action taken. Several contractors bid on the projects which include three phases. One is installation of a ramp to allow access by wheel chairs to the courthouse; another is remodeling basement areas for restrooms and new meeting areas; and the third is installation of an elevator in the courthouse. Money for the project will be taken from the general fund. All commissioners and Judge J.F. Brandon were present Monday.

Bids are to be opened on a new dump truck for Precinct 3 and a new patrol car for the sheriff's office at a called meeting of commissioners at 9 a.m. today (Thursday).

Phebe K. Warner Study Club met Oct. 22 in the home of Grace Huffaker with Mary Belew as co-hostess.

Lois White introduced the speaker, Stanley Krause, Lynn County Sheriff, who gave an interesting and informative report on the Neighborhood Watch Program, Operation Identification and Child Abuse. He told how crime prevention may be aided through the citizens' awareness program. This may be done by watching property while neighbors are away; by reporting strange events on the block or actions of suspicious people. He stressed the importance of marking possessions with TX and drivers license number.

Things commonly stolen are guns, jewelry, microwave ovens, TVs, radios, stereos and tools.

Crime Line has been very helpful in solving many crimes here and also in larger cities.

The trip to Girlstown was changed to Nov. 3.

First Baptist To Host Fun Fair

First Baptist Church of Tahoka will sponsor a Fun Fair, Thursday, Oct. 31, from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. for children through the sixth grade. There will be games, prizes, refreshments and a movie, "Lazers From Space" will be shown at 7 p.m.

Costumes are not required and there will be no admission charge.

SHOPPING FOR A MANUFACTURED HOME--A manufactured home can be the most expensive consumer product you buy, next to a conventional home. Before buying, check out the reputation of the dealer, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service housing specialist Dr. Jane Berry. "The dealer's assistance, service and care -- or lack of it -- will have a great affect on your satisfaction with the manufactured home." As you look at homes, price will be important, but financing should also be considered, says the specialist. "Dealer financing is often the quickest and easiest, but comparison shopping among the dealer, your bank, savings and loan association or credit union for the best financing option can save you money in the long run," she says.

QUALIFY FOR LOWER HOMEOWNERS' INSURANCE--Installing locks can qualify you for a 5 per cent reduction in homeowners' insurance premiums. According to Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service community development specialist Dr. J. Fred Cross, a number of burglary prevention measures are required for the insurance reduction. They include having metal or solid wood exterior doors, dead bolt locks and other security measures. Cross says your local law enforcement agency can provide information on the steps you must take to qualify. After a law enforcement officer who is certified as an inspector examines your home security measures, the State Board of Insurance will be notified that you meet the requirements, and you will receive a certificate from the board to take your insurance agent for the premium reduction.

Use Of Social Security Card As Identifier

Despite the widespread use of the Social Security number for identification purposes, there is no intention of making it a national identifier, as some have suggested. Neither does its use outside the Social Security program represent a threat to the confidentiality of Social Security records, as others have speculated.

Use of the Social Security number is largely a matter of convenience in a society in which just about everybody has one. The main use for the number is to record Social Security covered earnings and to control subsequent benefit payments.

The Social Security Administration has assigned about 295 million 9-digit numbers since 1936. Because no restriction was placed on use of the number by private organizations, it has been adopted as a readily available identifier for a broad spectrum of uses.

Many Federal agencies also use the number. The food stamp and aid to families with dependent children (AFDC) programs require each member of the family to have a Social Security number. The Internal Revenue Services mandates use of the number as the individual taxpayer identification number for all tax returns and for records of income-producing activities, such as bank accounts or investments. The Department of Defense uses the Social Security number as the identification number for military personnel.

The information in the Social Security record the number identifies is confidential. When the law specifically authorizes the Social Security Administration to do so, it may release the Social Security number to specified government agencies. When there is no law authorizing such disclosure, information from Social Security records can be released only with the written consent of the number holder.

The growing illegal and fraudulent use of Social Security numbers resulted in changes concerning its issuance. Since 1978, all applicants for Social Security numbers have been required to present documentary evidence of age, identity, and U.S. citizenship or lawful alien status when they apply for a number. As a result of a 1983 change in the law, new cards are now printed on counterfeit-resistant banknote paper.

People who lose their Social Security card should apply for a duplicate as soon as possible. Many employers are reluctant to hire a person who attempts to provide a Social Security number from memory.

Pet CARE investment assures owners that pets receive proper care

COLLEGE STATION — Pet CARE Inc., a nonprofit organization that cares for pets whose owners die or enter retirement homes, plans to construct a facility here, with funds above the cost of operating the center being used to support animal health studies at Texas A&M University, said a spokesman.

Investment in Pet CARE assures owners that their pets would receive care in spacious facilities, affection, special diets and exercise, said Dr. Ned Ellett, project coordinator and a Texas A&M professor.

Complete medical and surgical requirements will be provided for each animal, and, if needed, special expertise at the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine is available, he explained.

Under the plan, each owner establishes a charitable trust with the Texas A&M Development Foundation with the foundation as remainder beneficiary. Interest from trust investment by the foundation would be used to care for the pets of donors as long as the animals live, he explained.

The Pet CARE brochure is available on request from Pet CARE Inc., Drawer AQ, College Station, Texas 77840.

Manufactured housing may be next industry taken on by the Japanese

COLLEGE STATION — When it comes to manufactured homes, the house that Jack built may not be able to compete with Tanaka's efforts, says a Texas A&M University architect.

Apparently the Japanese aren't content to out-compete only the U.S. electronics, steel and auto industries. The billion-dollar U.S. manufactured housing industry may be next to feel the effects of a very competitive Japanese product, says Charles Graham, a researcher and lecturer in the College of Architecture and Environmental Design who has conducted an extensive study of the industry.

One-third of all houses built in the United States today are wholly or partially produced in a factory. Most of the 300,000 manufactured houses produced in the U.S. each year are purchased by residents of California, Texas and Florida.

"The introduction of Japanese manufactured housing in the U.S. would mean a fairly significant upheaval and shakeout in the industry. We may be seeing another industry like the steel industry struggling for survival," said Graham.

Human beings are the only animals that can blush.

Voters Should Not Ignore Issues of Local Importance

By Secretary of State Myra A. McDaniel

Controversial issues like the state's proposed water package incite people to take a stand and to vote, but sometimes issues of equal importance surrounded by little or no controversy can be overlooked by the voting public.

Two such issues among the 14 proposed constitutional amendments to be voted on in the Nov. 5 general election could have an effect on the pocketbooks of the state's private property owners.

Proposition 4 suggests that proceeds from the sale of permanent school fund land be used to acquire other land for the fund. Currently any money acquired from the sale of permanent school fund land must be automatically deposited into the principal of the school fund.

Those backing the change in policy say it's part of a quiet revolution to make more money from state land. Almost one million acres of permanent school fund land is non-productive and earns little income for the school fund. The intention is that unproductive school fund land will be sold to buy productive land which can be leased or sold for a higher price to increase the treasury of the school fund.

Those in favor of proposition 4 say the change will allow the permanent school fund to take advantage of a changing real estate market to maintain or increase the value of the permanent school fund.

Proponents say an increase in the amount of state school funds means counties could receive more money per pupil for the support of public schools and that an increase in state funding for schools could result in lower property taxes.

When the legislature was debating the issue opponents argued that the liquidity of the permanent school fund, which might be essential in certain investment climates, may be jeopardized if the percentage of the fund that is invested in real estate is increased. It was also argued that purchasing new land for the fund may not result in any income earned until the land is sold.

Another proposed amendment which could affect the amount of jingle in the pockets of property owners is proposition 3. It's approval would authorize the legislature to permit municipalities to spend public funds for the replacement or relocation of water laterals on private property. Water laterals connect properties to main water lines.

The property owner would be given five years to pay the city back for the cost of relocation or replacement at an interest rate of 10 percent a year. The city would hold a lien against the property until the full amount was paid.

Last year an identical amendment was passed dealing with the relocation or replacement of sewer lines. Those in favor of granting similar authority as to water laterals, say the relocation or replacement sometimes costs thousands of dollars, an amount that some private property owners, especially low and middle income families, can't immediately afford to pay. This proposal would reduce their financial hardship.

Proponents also say that allowing the city to contract collectively for the work will result in a better price than if each property owner contracted separately.

Opponents say more time is needed to determine how the program is working as to sewer lines before expanding it to include water laterals. Another argument is that individuals other than the truly needy will take advantage of the five year pay plan and cities may end up acting as lending institutions.

Those against proposition 3 also say that because of its availability municipalities will abuse the program instead of searching for more innovative and less expensive means of repairing the mains and laterals.

Information about voting in the Nov. 5 general election can be obtained by calling your county clerk or elections administrator. Voting information and the explanatory texts of the 14 proposed state constitutional amendments are also available by calling the secretary of state's elections division at 1-800-252-VOTE or 1-800-252-8683 (Voice/TDD).

Voting involves some tough decisions. Make a tough decision. Decide to vote.

PUT SOME LIGHT ON THE SUBJECT

Never, never, take ANY medicine in the dark!— Always turn on a light so you can see what you're doing and check to make sure that you're taking the right medication. A lot of medicine bottles are similar in design and can be easily interchanged with one another if you're not paying attention to what you're doing.

It never makes sense to take unnecessary chances and avoidable risks. In fact, it's downright foolish! Today's drugs are potent compounds, and accidentally taking the wrong one instead of the right one can lead to serious—and perhaps fatal—consequences. You can't be too careful when it comes to using medicines, and we hope you will exercise the necessary precautions.

Shaking The Salt Habit

LOW SODIUM COLD WEATHER BREAKFAST

When a cold wind seems to cut right to the bone, nothing starts off the day better than being warm on the inside. A warm breakfast treat becomes even more welcome when it is low in sodium, like the Breakfast Baked Apple suggested here. Because commercial sausage is high in sodium, this recipe begins with fresh ground pork. Seasoned with onion, orange peel, fennel seed, cinnamon, NoSalt salt alternative, and served in a baked apple, it becomes a pleasing alternative to high sodium breakfast meats.

BREAKFAST BAKED APPLES
(Makes 4 Servings)

- 2 large baking apples (8 ounces each)
- 1/2 pound ground pork
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 teaspoon grated orange peel
- Scant 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon NoSalt salt alternative
- 1/8 teaspoon fennel seed
- 1/8 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms

Preheat oven to 375°F. Cut apples in half; core. With spoon, scoop out apple leaving 1/4-inch shell. Chop removed apple pieces.

In skillet, brown pork with onions, orange peel, pepper, NoSalt, fennel seed and cinnamon. Stir in chopped apple and mushrooms. Cook until mushrooms are tender; drain off any excess fat. Spoon mixture into apple shells; arrange in shallow baking dish. Add 2 tablespoons water to dish. Bake 40 minutes or until apple shells are tender. If desired, drizzle each apple half with 2 teaspoons reduced calorie syrup.

New Select Committee Begins Review of Higher Education

By Governor Mark White

AUSTIN--The newly appointed Select Committee on Higher Education received its charge last week to make long-range plans for Texas' higher education needs into the 21st Century.

Two and a half years ago, we came to the troubling realization that our elementary and secondary public school system was in trouble. Texas schools were lagging at the bottom of the national list in students' scholastic performance and the salaries paid teachers.

Out of our concern for this problem came a year-long Select Committee study chaired by H. Ross Perot and, ultimately, House Bill 72--one of the most far-reaching public education reform packages adopted by any state in the nation.

Fortunately, there is no such crisis confronting Texas' higher education today. Texans can take justifiable pride in the growing national reputation of its public universities.

But higher education confronts new challenges that are best addressed with foresight and advance planning. As Texas confronts declining oil and gas resources, we see more clearly that educated minds are the oil and gas of the future.

Former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare John Gardner put it another way: "Modern societies run on talent." And if Texas is serious about its commitment to research and economic development, our state can make no sounder investment than in its institutions of higher learning.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, House Speaker Gib Lewis, and I appointed the Select Committee members, and I designated Larry Temple, an Austin attorney and chairman of the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, as its chairman.

I have asked this committee to address such complex issues as how to eliminate costly duplication of programs, how to attract more minority students, and how to measure educational quality at Texas colleges and universities.

Are entrance requirements high enough? Is it possible to set minimum statewide entrance requirements without seriously threatening our commitment to make a college education accessible to our young people?

What can we do to keep faculty salaries competitive on the national market? How will we allocate increasingly scarce state dollars to get the most for the money?

Are present higher education funding formulas fair and equitable or can they be improved?

Over the next 15 months, the Select Committee will address these and other questions that do not yield themselves to easy answers--questions of leadership, quality, vision, and allocation of scarce resources.

I am confident that the Legislature will benefit from the work of the Select Committee and will take whatever steps are necessary to improve the quality of higher education in Texas.

POSSIBLE BAN OF SULFATES ON FRUITS, VEGETABLES--Use of sulfates as a preservative on fresh fruits and vegetables may be on the way out, says a food technologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Food and Drug Administration is proposing a ban on sulfates due to growing public concern about possible health risks. The proposed ban pertains not only to fruits and vegetables intended to be served or sold raw, but also includes those fruits and vegetables that may not actually be fresh but are presented to the consumer as fresh, such as thawed frozen fruits and vegetables.

WINDSTRIPS ON TERRACES--Has become a major conservation practice on the High Plains, due to high winds and sandy soils. Planting strips of vegetation on terraces has helped control both wind erosion and terrace maintenance. Planting wheat and forage sorghum on terraces has helped farmers on the high plains to maintain the life span of terraces. Another new practice is planting terraces to permanent grasses. Jose Wheat, Weeping Love, and Fall Switch grass are just a few examples of grasses that have been used on windstrips. ASCS will allow an exception to their rule on set-aside land of one chain wide and five acres in size if permanent vegetation is used.

Stripper Modification Reduces Barky Cotton

A harvesting problem which cost High Plains cotton growers an estimated $15 in penalties in 1983 can be greatly reduced by a simple modification in brush roll strippers, specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and USDA Cropping Systems Laboratory here believe. The problem is high bark content in the stripper bur cotton, explained Dr. James R. Supak, Extension cotton agronomist. "It is hard to predict the bark content from season to season, but in the past, when we have had wet falls we have had a high number of barky bales, Supak noted. Brush roll strippers have been the accepted method of harvesting cotton in Texas and Oklahoma since the early 1960s, said Dr. Alan D. Brashears, USDA agricultural engineer. It is highly efficient and more economical than other systems, but picks up a good deal of foreign matter from the plants. However, in stripper tests conducted since 1982, Brashears has found that reducing the width of the rubber paddles to half an inch and synchronizing the rollers to align them brush-to-brush and paddle-to-paddle has dramatically reduced the amount of foreign material picked up by the stripper. The paddles are normally 1 1/2 inches wide. Brashears said they can be trimmed with a band-saw. "The paddles are the most aggressive part of the mechanism" and the part which picks up most sticks from the plant, he noted. "This (modification) doesn't eliminate barky grades, but has reduced the number of barky grades by as much as 60 percent in some studies." In the tests he has conducted, Brashears said, the half-inch paddles have reduced the sticks by as much as 25 percent. Meanwhile, the harvesting efficiency dropped only two percent, from 98 percent efficiency with 1 1/2 inch paddles to 96 percent with the half-inch paddles. If the foreign matter isn't removed during harvesting and ginning, the producer may receive low grades on the ginned lint. In 1981, Brashears noted, 64 percent of the cotton in the High Plains was classified as barky; in 1983, 50 percent was classified barky.

"The 10 year average for this area is 20 percent barky bales," Brashears said. "It has been estimated this is a loss of $20 to $25 a bale" because of penalties to the grower, he said. Brashears said research has shown that a variety of factors affect the bark content of stripped cotton. These include environment, plant size and condition, row width, harvest date and the design of the stripper.

"The producer should allow the plants to condition for 10 days after applying a desiccant, or after a killing freeze," Supak stressed. This allows the plant to dry properly and the bark to tighten around the stalk, and helps reduce bark collection during stripping. Once the plant is dead, if it stays in the field a long time before stripping it begins to deteriorate, and more trash is picked up by the stripper, he said. "Under either of these conditions, especially the latter, the stripper modification developed by Brashears could be of help," Supak said.

The apple parer was invented in 1803 by Moses Coats.

Heavy Rains Leave Plains

The heavy rains that covered the Plains from mid-September retreated. Harvesting resumed Tuesday where soils could support equipment, according to Mack Bennett, Area Director for USDA's Marketing Services Office.

Some unharvested fields sprayed with harvest-aid chemicals before the rains have second growth. These fields will give growers more problems, Bennett continued. Some sprayed with desiccants and others will wait for a killing freeze.

USDA's Lubbock office classed 186 samples during the week ended Oct. 24. This brought the season's total to 1700 and compares with 12,000 classed by the same date last year.

The week's predominant grades were grade 42 at 39 percent followed by grade 52 with 38 percent. About 4 percent was reduced one grade because of bark.

Predominant staples were staple 33 at 29 percent, staple 32 was 28 percent and staple 31 accounted for 22 percent. The average was 33.0 thirty-seconds of an inch.

Micronaire 35-49 amounted to 62 percent, 33-34 was 22 percent and 30-32 accounted for 11 percent. The average was 36.

HVI breaking strength averaged 24.7 grams per tex at Lubbock during the week ended last Thursday.

Growers sold some 1984 crop Commodity Credit loan equities at $5 to $10 per bale, mostly $5. Not enough new crop cotton has traded to establish a market.

Gins paid growers $40 to $55 per ton for cottonseed, mostly $49 to $50, basis as is.

Most new crop trading in other parts of the cotton belt centered around cotton ineligible for CCC loan at prices 100 to 300 points below loan rates. Much of the eligible cotton entered the loan program.

TIME MANAGEMENT REQUIRES SEASONAL ADJUSTMENTS--In an effort to gain better control of their time, people often make daily or weekly schedules, only to be frustrated when so many things come up that were not in the original schedule. "We sometimes make unrealistic schedules, but often the problem is simply forgetting to make seasonal adjustments," says Mary Clayton Nance, a resource management specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service. Before giving up on a time schedule, she recommends checking to see if you have made allowances for seasonal activities. If you plan to clean the house every Saturday, but spend fall Saturdays going to football games, you need a revised plan for the season.

New Rules Set For Signs Along Rural Roads

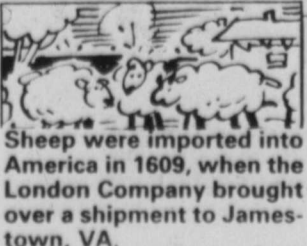

Persons who own a sign, or plan to erect a sign along a rural road in Texas, must now register the sign with the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, according to a law that took effect in September.

House Bill 1330, recently enacted by the Texas Legislature, gives the highway department responsibility for ensuring that all signs along 200,000 miles of rural roadways meet certain spacing, height, size and wind resistance standards. Also, the department is required to create and administer a system of annually renewable permits for new rural signs, and for registration or removal of signs in place before Sept. 1.

"There are two distinct provisions in this law that people need to be aware of," said L.E. Clarke, SDHPT right-of-way engineer. "First, as of Sept. 1, no off-premise sign may be erected along any road outside the corporate limits of a city or town without a permit issued through one of the department's 24 district offices. Secondly, signs that were in place before Sept. 1, and are along a rural road, must be registered with a district office no later than Dec. 30."

To register a sign erected before Sept. 1, the owner must pay a registration fee of $25 which is nonrefundable. Yearly registration renewal will be $10.

To permit a sign put up after Sept. 1, the owner must pay a permit fee of $200 which is nonrefundable. A renewal permit will cost $100 per year, which is nonrefundable.

Sheep were imported into America in 1609, when the London Company brought over a shipment to Jamestown, VA.

CURB TOO MANY TREATS--

Halloween treats may seem more like "tricks" to parents who want to keep their children from filling up on candy. Mary K. Sweeten, a nutritionist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service, offers some suggestions on how to keep the holiday treats safe and curb your child's urge to overeat sugary foods. Encourage your children to save some candy by suggesting that they eat one or two pieces a day, at snack time and as a dessert following a meal. Along with the sweet treat at snack time or dessert, offer the child some milk or juice to drink. Suggest alternate snacks such as fruit, sandwiches, or cheese to the children instead of sweets. "Even if you rarely allow your children to have sweets, try to take a casual approach to having them around during this holiday," says Sweeten. "Your relaxed attitude will help keep your child's attention from being focused on having sweets to eat."

MONEY TALK BETWEEN GENERATIONS--

More middle aged people are finding themselves "sandwiched" by financial obligations to both their elderly parents and their college-age children, says family economics expert Nancy L. Granovsky. "Saving for a child's college education has become a part of financial planning for many middle-income families, but these plans can be sidetracked by the impact of a parent's unexpected medical expenses or need for financial assistance," says the Extension specialist. "Some good, honest money talk between adults and their aging parents about assets, debts, insurance coverage and money management can help the entire family plan for the future," advises Granovsky.

Assert Your Power... Vote Nov. 5

By Secretary of State Myra A. McDaniel

"They (the people of Texas) have at all times the inalienable right to alter, reform or abolish their government in such manner as they may think expedient."

Article 1 Section 2 Texas Bill of Rights 1876

The Texas Constitution created in 1876 states emphatically that "all political power is inherent in the people."

Constitutional amendment elections give the voters of Texas the opportunity to assert that power.

Since 1879 a total of 436 amendments to the constitution have been proposed. So far 269 of them have been adopted, but only because a majority of Texans voted their approval of the amendments.

Yearly, Texas voters are given the opportunity to alter the most powerful document in the state, to decide what is best for the future of Texas, themselves, and their families. The constitution directly affects everyone in this state and yet voter turnout for the proposed amendments in off-year general elections is a disappointing 12 percent or less.

This means that of the nearly eight million registered voters in the state, less than one million take advantage of a right that affords more authority to voters than to the governor or even the legislature. It is only the people who have the power to change what is written in the constitution. Fourteen proposed constitutional amendments will be on the ballot Nov. 5. Especially significant are the proposed water amendments. This is the third time Texas voters have been faced with a proposed solution to the state's water problems.

A myriad of other issues are also touched by the proposed amendments. The state of Texas prisons has been much publicized. Proposition 6 speaks to that issue.

Funding to continue established state programs and to create new ones is addressed in the proposed amendments, as is the use of permanent school fund monies and reapportioning of judicial districts.

Information about voting in the Nov. 5 general election can be obtained by calling your county clerk or elections administrator. Voting information is also available by calling the secretary of state's elections division at 1-800-252-VOTE or 1-800-252-8683.

The future of this state is in the hands of all registered voters. Make a tough decision. Decide to vote.

Devotional

By Rev. Hazel House

SCRIPTURE: Luke 16:1-13

Jesus was a friend to everyone who wanted to listen or to be with Him, and this parable is one that He told about a man who was a rascal — in fact, there were in this parable a whole group of rascals. It sounds a little like "Watergate" or some other happenings in our day.

The steward, the number one rascal, was a slave, but nevertheless in charge of the running of his master's whole estate — and he had followed a career of embezzlement. The debtors were also no good. No doubt that what they owed was rent.

The steward knew that he had been caught embezzling and had been told that he would lose his job, so he had a brilliant idea. He falsified the entries in the books so that the debtors were debited with far less than what they owed. This would have two effects: First, the debtors would be grateful to him, and secondly, much more effective, would be the fact that he had involved the debtors in the crime and if worse came to worse, he was now in a great position to exercise a little judicious blackmail.

The master himself was some kind of rascal, for he actually praised the steward for accomplishing all this.

One thing this parable means is that, if only the Christian was as eager and ingenious in his or her attempts to attain goodness as the man of the world is in his attempt to attain money and ease, the Christian would be a better person. It has been said that our Christianity will only become real and effective when we spend as much time and effort on it as we do on our worldly activities.

And in verse 9 the lesson for us is that material possessions should be used to make friendships wherein the permanent value of life is. It could be done as it effects eternity. A man's true wealth is not in what he keeps, but in what he or she gives away. Another way to use material possessions is to be done as it effects this world. A person can use his or her wealth selfishly, or can use it to make life easier, not only for himself but for his friends and his fellowman. For Jesus said, "As you have done it for the least of these..."

For instance, how many a poor scholar is forever grateful to a rich person who gave or left money to make it possible for the student to have the education necessary for his or her career. Possessions are not in themselves a sin (it is not the money that is the root of all evil, but the love of money) but they are a great responsibility, and the person who uses them to help others has gone a long way towards fulfilling that responsibility.

Letters to the Editor

Letters to the editor do not necessarily express the views of this newspaper. All correspondence must be signed, and in good taste before it will be published, and the name of the writer must be published also. Letters to the editor may not be more than two double-spaced typewritten pages.

To the Editor:

I am deeply concerned that there may be widespread misunderstanding of Propositions 1 and 2 (State "water amendments") to be voted on at the Nov. 5 general election. Based upon questions I have received, many voters are apparently under the mistaken impression that approval of these two proposed Constitutional amendments would authorize expenditure of more than a billion dollars of State funds for water projects. This is emphatically not the case.

The programs that would be authorized by Propositions 1 and 2 are loan programs, to be financed through the issuance of bonds, not through the appropriation of tax dollars, and the loans made are to be repaid to the State with interest by the borrowers. This means that projects financed with State assistance under these programs will be paid for by the beneficiaries of those projects, which is as it should be. The benefits to the citizens of the state would be that funds will be available as needed to help communities throughout the State meet their needs for water supplies, wastewater treatment facilities, and drainage and flood control works, and those funds will be available at a lower interest cost than would be the case if the bonds were issued by individual subdivisions of the State.

It is extremely important that the regional and local governments in Texas have access to low cost financing to help meet their water resource needs. Propositions 1 and 2 offer the means for this to be accomplished without placing any additional tax burden on the State's taxpayers.

Carson H. Hoge, P.E.

Dear Editor:

Now that the first public school grading period is over and Texans are assessing the value of the new "pass-play" rule, I would like to take this opportunity to stress the gains we are making in the classroom.

Approximately 85 percent of varsity athletes statewide passed all their courses, while the overall pass rate was considerably lower. What this means is that our athletes are winning on and off the playing field. Why is their percentage pass rate higher than average? Because the coaches, whose own performance is evaluated each week when their teams compete, worked with their players in tutorials and helped them make the grade. My office advocated this kind of teamwork in a "play book" mailed each Texas coach, and I think we have found a winning formula that produces results.

As parents, teachers, coaches and students, we can improve the pass rate during the second grading period if we extend the same attention and "scholastic coaching" given our varsity athletes to every child experiencing difficulty in the classroom.

Discovering this key to academic achievement is no less significant to Texans than the discovery of the Spindletop oil gusher. Educated minds are the "oil and gas" of Texas' future, and we must work harder -- and encourage our young people to work harder -- to better prepare for the challenging jobs of the future. The real issue for our children and grandchildren is not going to be "no pass-no play". The real issue is going to be "no learn-no earn".

This is no time to retreat from education reform. It took courage to raise the standards, and it's going to take courage to stick to them. I think the vast majority of Texans want this state to have the best schools, and I remain committed to seeing Texas achieve that goal.

Yours truly,
Mark White

Governor of Texas

COTTONSEED FOR LIVESTOCK FEED--With the winter season approaching, cattlemen looking for a bargain in livestock feed should consider whole cottonseed, says a livestock specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Cottonseed is high in energy and is readily available at low price due to a large cotton crop this year. It is currently selling for about $3 per hundredweight, representing almost a $2 savings over a like amount of meal-sorghum mix. Cottonseed can be fed alone or combined with other ingredients and may be used to make up as much as 20 percent of the total daily ration of beef and dairy animals.

CONTROL PASTURE WEEDS NOW--Weeds rob bermuda grass pastures of a lot of grazing and hay potential each year, and producers can correct this problem with a fall herbicide application. Use of a preemergence herbicide to control annual weeds can release the true potential a pasture or hay meadow has for producing top quality forage. Applying simazine (Princep 80W or Caliber 90) before weeds begin to germinate in late fall and winter, will eliminate 80 to 95 percent of the weed problems next spring.

FIRES FROM DIRTY CHIMNEYS--Chimneys with heavy creosote deposits are a leading cause of home fires in the United States each year. Chimneys should be inspected annually for creosote buildup, and now is a good time to do so, says a safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Creosote is produced when wood burns, moves up the chimney in the form of smoke, and condenses on the inside of the chimney. It is highly flammable and can burn at temperatures up to 3,000 degrees F. A strong up-draft can lift burning creosote out of the chimney and onto the roof, possibly spreading the fire to the rest of the house or even to neighboring houses. Special brushes are available for cleaning a chimney, but often the job is best left to a professional--a chimney sweep.
