Newspaper Sponsors Coloring Contest

The Lynn County News is sponsoring a coloring contest for children in three age divisions: 4 to 6 years, 7 to 9 years, and 10 to 12 years of age. A first prize of $10 and a second prize of $5 will be awarded in each division.

The contest is open to all area children within the specified age limits. The picture, which appears in an advertisement in this edition of the News, may be artistically decorated in any manner. Participants may enter only one picture.

Entries must be received at The Lynn County News office by 5 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 18, and will be judged on the basis of originality and neatness.

The pictures will be displayed in the front window of the News office. Winners will be announced in the Christmas edition of The Lynn County News, and may contact the News office for their cash prizes.

For picture and entry blank, see the "Coloring Contest" advertisement in this edition of the News.

Police investigated an accident cers. Police also arrested a 22-year-old Tahoka man for DWI during the past week.

> Police investigated an accident on Thursday at 1700 Main and N. 1st that involved a 1974 Ford pickup driven by Danny Ray Wright of Rt. 4, Tahoka and a 1973 Pontiac driven by Lonnie Dean Rogers of Tahoka. No injuries were reported.

Tickets issued during the past week include one each for failure to yield right of way resulting in an accident, violating license restriction code, one ticket for no driver's license, unsafe backing and no liability insurance, one ticket for no driver's license in possession, one citation for failure to control speed and one ticket for no driver's license and no proof of liability insurance.

Jimmy Autry, 22, of Tahoka, pleaded guilty before District Judge George Hansard in Lamesa this week of a felony charge of driving while intoxicated and was assessed a fiveyear prison term, probated. Also charged with felony DWI in the last two weeks were Delvin Lance Buchanan, 37, of Tahoka, and Raynaldo Banda, 38, of O'Donnell. Both posted bond. And Juan Vasquez, 26, of Wilson, was sentenced to three years in prison for felony DWI, and was sent to prison this week.

Also in jail during the week was one man for bond forfeiture on DWI, plus possession of marijuana, plus three counts of

SOME OF THE traditions of Christmas are suffering a little around our house, but we're still planning on having just as good a Christmas holiday as ever. After all, the main thing is that the family gets together at this time of the year.

The exchange of gifts is one thing that has changed a bit in the last two or three years. Among the immediate family-we and our children and their spouses--we decided to draw names. The reason is so that instead of buying 10 gifts for different people at $10 each, we can get a nice $99 gift for whoever we draw. Of course, each husband and wife still gets something for each other, and kids under the age of 10 or so will still get something from nearly everybody. And I sneaked my own name into the hat four times. But drawing names does cut down the numbers on the gift list.

Another tradition that hasn't really changed yet, but is coming under close scrutiny, is Christmas trees. For years we fudge this year, unless I bought a nice tree and decide to make some myself decorated it, and it looked one of these nights after she fine, and after Christmas we hauled it off or threw it over the fence into the neighbor's yard. (This, we were told, was not a neighborly thing to do).

Then we tried an artificial tree, and I sort of like that, because you put it into a box and use it again the next year. Then, for several years in a row, we bought live trees to be replanted after Christmas, put all the gifts on the tree with big balls of mud and goo on the bottom of them. These look good and give you a real sense of something living and vibrant, and also a hernia, when you move them around.

We considered not having a tree at all this year. We thought we might just decorate a table all Christmasy and put the packages around the table, but my wife said "the kids would think we were awful, if we didn't have a tree." I agreed, so we wound up with a tree anyway, a live one, with mud and goo and so forth, but small enough to place on top of a table, if we can find one strong enough to hold it.

Making homemade candy is another tradition that has vanished. For years, my wife and one or more of her friends would get together for a candy-making day and have all sorts of goodies cooked up, especially chocolate ones. Now she says she doesn't need the hassle of fixing it and I don't need to be cramming it into my mouth with both hands every 30 minutes. As usual, she is right, so no homemade has gone to sleep.

We stopped sending Christmas cards a few years ago, except to some folks we don't see very often. This was partly economic and partly because we never did get around to sending them until Dec. 24. We do enjoy receiving Christmas cards, however.

Our next move might be to without wrapping them. Sometimes the wrapping costs more than the gift.

"Grassroots" To Be Distributed At Tahoka Museum

"Grassroots Upside Down, a History of Lynn County, Texas" will be distributed at Tahoka Pioneer Museum Monday through Friday, Dec. 15-19, according to co-author Pat Hill Jacobs.

Those who purchased the book early are urged to come by during regular business hours, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. next week to pick up their copies. Mrs. Jacobs will be at the museum to autograph those and others purchased.

Copies so designated will be mailed or shipped UPS.

The book will continue to be on sale at $46 that week, including sales tax. Following this period, "Grassroots" will be priced at $55, including tax.

The history may the be purchased at the museum and City-County Library. If mailing is required, copies may be ordered directly from Mrs. Jacobs.

Lynn County's extensive record begins with pre-history and follows its progress through. 1950. One division is an almanac of facts through 1985, and another tells the stories of the pioneers who arrived here by 1910.

Early history was gathered for 60 years by Frank P. Hill, former publisher of the Lynn County News. Following his death in 1983, the project was continued by his daughter.

The book is a culmination of extensive research, interviews with pioneers, and news reported in the county's oldest business institution still in existence.

Foreword is by Dr. David Murrah, archivist of the Southwest Collection, Texas Tech University. Mrs. Mary Jane McCord Jenkins, formerly of Tahoka and now of San Angelo, illustrated the publication.

"Grassroots Upside Down" is expected to be placed in bibliographical indexes of Texas History, a distinct honor to the authors and Lynn County.

Anyone who can slice, chop, stir and pour can be a great Arriental chef in minutes thanks to this "Classic Cantonese Stir-Fry" recipe and new bottled Kikkoman Stir-Fry Sauce. The hardest thing you have to do is decide whether to use beef, chicken or pork. The rest is a snap! What makes a good stir-fry great is the sauce. And, there's no measuring, mixing or thickening needed for this great tasting sauce because it's already been done for you. Kikkoman Stir-Fry Sauce is a delicious blend of naturally brewed soy sauce, sherry wine, garlic, oyster extract and other carefully selected seasonings that gives virtually everything you stir-fry an authentic Oriental flavor every time. Serve this classic with hot, fluffy rice and taste why stir-frying is becoming one of the most popular cooking methods in America.

CLASSIC CANTONESE STIR-FRY

3/4	pound boneless tender beef, lean	2	small zucchini, cut crosswise into ¼-inch
	pork or chicken		slices
1	tablespoon Kikkoman	1	onion, chunked
	Stir-Fry Sauce	12	cherry tomatoes,
2	tablespoons vegetable		halved

Unsupervised TV Viewing: A Solution

If you're one of the many parents who worry about what your children may be up to when you're away at work, you may be glad to know they can still "view" the benefit of your wisdom when you're not there to give it.

One of the activities children engage in after school is watching television. Most parents don't mind it for an hour r two. When the viewing may include unsuitable programs parents tend to worry. Now parents can block out those channels they don't want children to watch. It's created it. The remote also easy with the Parental Control feature available on eight . cassette recorders and most new Magnavox color televi- cable boxes.

A&M counseling program proves successful treating bulemia, anorexia

COLLEGE STATION - An innovative university counseling program for young women suffering from anorexia and bulimia has proven successful in treating the disorders in which the death rate can reach as high as 21 percent.

Dr. Kerry Hope, associate director of Texas A&M University's Student Counseling Service, said the program's success is due to earlier identification, general improvements in treatment of the disorders and the innovative treatment program at the center.

Bulimia is a psychological craving for food which results in uncontrollable eating, known as bingeing, often followed by purging. It usually affects college-age vomen. Anorexia, willful starvation in the pursuit of slenderness, is most often found among young adolescents.

Hope said counselors have found that the most effective therapy for students with eating disorders is group therapy, which is also the most inexpensive longterm treatment for students. That is an important advantage in these times of shrinking budgets, Hope said.

Breast Cancer Detection Unit Scheduled Here

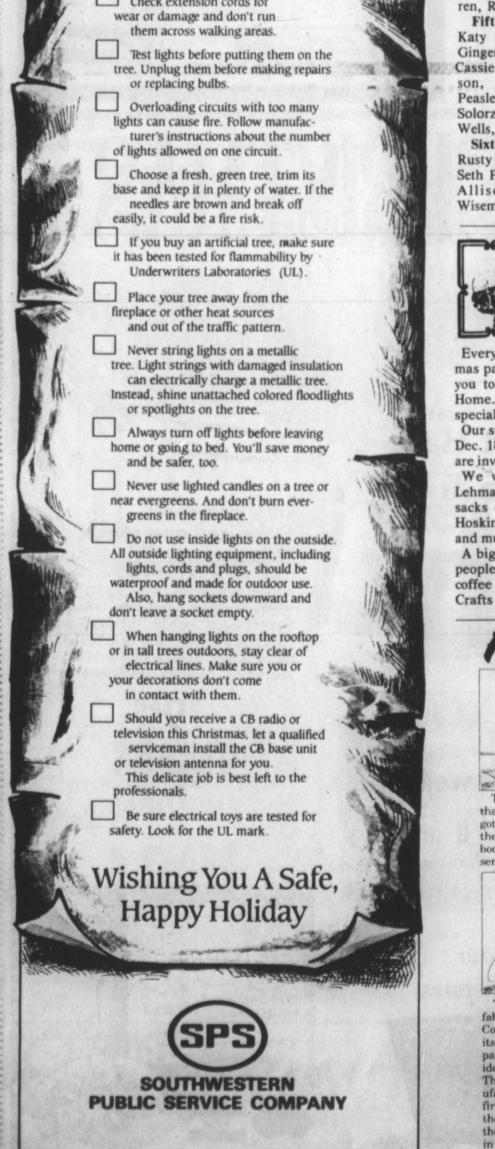

In an effort to find cancers at the earliest possible stage and prevent unnecessary deaths, the Regional Breast Care Center will provide a mobile breast cancer detection unit in Tahoka on Thursday, Dec. 18, from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. at Lynn County Hospital. Appointments may be made by calling 998-4533. For more information call the Regional and Children's 'Hospital (915) 334-8888.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of every 11 women in the United States will develop breast cancer sometime during her lifetime. Every year over 37,000 women die as a result of breast cancer which is the number two cancer killer of women.

According to a spokesman from the Regional Breast Care Center at Women's and Children's Hospital in Odessa, "The death rate from breast cancer could be drastically reduced if women would have mammograms done before a problem exists." By using modern state of the art can be found when they are aqbout the size of a grain of rice and well before the cancer can be felt. A woman who is diagnosed with breast cancer at this early stage has a 90 to 97 percent survival rate. However, women who are not diagnosed until a lump can be felt has approximately a 50 per cent survival rate in five years.

Cotton Man New Textile Negotiator: William H./Houston III, former Tunica, Miss., cotton producer, has been named the chief U.S. textile negotiator. He replaces Charles Carlisle, who will become deputy director general of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade in Geneva.

Houston earlier this year was appointed deputy assistant secretary of commerce for textiles and apparel. Before entering government service, Houston held prominent leadership positions in the cotton industry having served as a National Cotton Council vice president, Cotton Foundation president, and Cotton Council International director.

Textile Imports Still Climb: Imports of textiles, apparel, and varn during the first 10 months of 1986 reached an all-time high of 10.8 billion square yards, reflecting a 19 per cent rise over the same period last year and only one-half percent away from total imports for all of 1985. October textile and apparel imports totaled 996.4 million square yard equivalents, marking the highest import level of any October in history. Cotton yarn, fabric and apparel imports were 13.3 percent above a year ago--reaching the equivalent of about 315,300 bales.

Study Narrows Yield Decline Causes: Herbicide buildup and the use of heavier farm implements have both been exonerated from contributing to the leveling of cotton yields by a just completed three-year study. Funded by a Cotton Foundation grant from FMC Corp., Deere and Co., and Du Pont, the study was prompted by a concern that yield trends were not improving even though growers generally were using better management practices and improved cotton varieties on better soils.

Researchers earlier ruled out rainfall patterns and climate changes as culprits, but found that increasing levels of ozone, which diminish the cotton plant's ability to use sunlight, may have been a factor. A summary of the study's findings will be presented at the Beltwide Cotton Production Conference, Jan. 5-6 in Dallas by Dr. Bill Meredith, Jr., USDA/ARS geneticist, Stoneville, Miss. ----Beltwide: Memphis cotton mer-

STANDING STALKS HELP CONTROL EROSION--Standing stubble that is left in the field after the grain has been harvested is very important for moisture and erosion control. When snow blows across an empty field it accumulates in the bar ditch leaving very little moisture to be filtered in the soil for future use. But stubble stalks catch and hold blowing snow so that the moisture will stay in the field. Stubble stalks also helps control erosion during the blowing season by acting as a barrier. (SCS Photo) chant and National Cotton Council vice president William B. Dunavant Jr., will discuss the U.S. and world cotton outlook at the Beltwide Cotton Production Conference Jan. 5-6 in Dallas. Other speakers will include Dennis T. Avery, State Department senior agricultural analyst; Dr. Carl Anderson, Texas Extension cotton marketing specialist; and Dr. David Graves, legislative assistant to Sen. Thad Cochran

Dr. Zerle Carpenter, Texas Agricultural Extension Service director, will preside over the opening session. Bruce Brumfield, Inverness, Miss., cotton producer, and conference general chairman, will preside at the Jan. 6 morning session and Clifford Hoelscher, Garden City, Tex., producer, will preside in the Crop Estimate Lowered Again: USDA's Nov. 1 crop report forecasts 1986-87 cotton production at 9.9 million bales, down 1 percent from October estimate and 26 percent below last year's level. Upland cotton production is put at 9.7 million bales, and American Pima at 188,000. Harvested area is estimated at 817 million acres, 15 percent below last year, while per-acre yield is forecast at 546 pounds, 13 per-million bales, unchanged from October but 28 percent below last vear.

National Cotton Council officials said cotton harvesting is nearly complete in all areas except the Southwest, where it is less than 50 percent complete because of the lateness of the crop and numerous weatherrelated delays.

Of Nutsedge and Numbers: A symposium on nutsedge and a conference on cotton economics and marketing will be among many topics of major interest to growers at the 1987 Beltwide Cotton Conference scheduled Jan. 5-8 in Dallas.

The Weed Science Research Conference Jan. 7-8 will devote a half-day session to nutsedge, with papers focusing on ways cotton growers across the Belt are trying to cope with it through biological controls or use of thiocarbamate herbicides. Allen York, Extension weed science specialist at North Carolina State University,

Raleigh, will chair the session. The Economics and Marketing Conferences Jan. 7-8 will include some 32 presentations ranging from economic forecasts to a glimpse at cotton options, futures, and trading. Other topics of special interest will include microcomputer use in machinery management and cost calculation, a look at international cotton market, implications of the new tax law, and the pros and cons of renting and leasing cotton machinery. Dr. Carl Anderson, Texas A&M state Extension economist, College Station, will be conference chairman.

Check That Label: December has been officially designated as "Made In America" month. The resolution making it official was passed by Congress and signed recently by the President.

It is hoped that the observance will help focus consumer attention on where products sold in the United States were manufactured. The resolution passed by Congress warns that the continuing flood of imports could permanently reduce the nation's manufacturing capacity.

Museum Board Has Meeting

The Board of Directors of the Tahoka Pioneer Museum met Monday, Dec. 8, at noon at the Tahoka Lake Ranch. Mel Leslie invited the board members to view the actual site of the Mural, painted by Bill Craig.

Mary Louder reported that a moth preventative had been used on display of woolen materials and that pest control will be monitored to prevent any damage to displayed materials. Pat Jacobs, daughter of the late Frank Hill, and co-editor of the "Grass Roots Upside Down" History of Lynn County, will be at the museum Dec. 15-19 to autograph copies of the book.

Mildred Abbe reported that the photographer had taken the necessary transparencies to have post cards made of the Tahoka Lake Mural and that final arrangements will be made and the post cards will be ordered in the immediate future. Winston Wharton extended thanks to the City of Tahoka for putting up the lights on the windmill and said there was still a need for quite a few more strings of outside lights. The Garden Club is collecting strings of lights and the museum has authorized the purchase of additional strings to properly light the windmill. Fern Leslie, hostess, was also a guest at the meeting. Board members in attendance were Harold Green, Lottie Joe Walker, Mabel Gurley, Auda Norman, Madeline Hegi, Mary Louder, Winston Wharton, Mel Leslie, K.R. Durham, Jim Solomon, Bill Craig, Weesie Carroll, and Mildred Abbe. Not attending were Sonny Roberts and Maurice Huffaker.

Introducing the new Smith Corona typewriter with Spell-Right."

Incredible is the word for the new Smith Corona electronic typewriter with Spell-Right I[™] dictionary. Because that's just one of the 50,000 words you won't spell wrong. Inside this sleek exterior is a complete correction system that catches your typing boo boos before you do. Better still, before anyone else does. Sure it's advanced. But it's easy to use. While you type, your spelling is constantly proofread by a built-in dictionary memory. It beeps the instant you misspell or even mistype a word.

The Find feature locates your error anywhere on the line. And if you've made several mistakes, it finds them, too.

Next, WordEraser™lifts the whole word off at a touch. Just touch twice for two words.

There's more technology at a touch: Full Line Memory Correction, Automatic Relocate, Auto Return, Auto Centering and Automatic Underline.

You get Dual Pitch, Programmable Margins and Tabs and electronic end-ofpage warning.

And with optional Messenger module your typewriter becomes a 10 cps letter-quality printer when you hook it up to a computer.

Best of all, you get this letter-perfect portable at a perfectly affordable price. Which makes the Smith Corona with Spell-Right one really good buy.

such a word), some of which have yet to be invented.

Anyway, here goes... Dear Santa, I have been a good girl for blankety-blank years now, and it has been some time since I have requested a present from you, so I figure you owe me some pretty highquality stuff. First of all, (you're going to have to put your elves to work on this one) I want a self-cleaning bathtub, two self-cleaning commodes, and ever-pretty, ever-clean kitchen linoleum.

If there's any room left in the sleigh, you can stick in some self-cleaning work clothes for my husband and an electronic back door which will eye-ball his boots to see if they are muddy before permitting him to enter the house.

Oh yes, for my children, I would like some toys which automatically pick themselves up and march to the toy closet after play-time. And for their goldfish, would you please invent a self-cleaning goldfish bowl?

Let's see now, have I left anything out? Oh yes, this is the best one of all: could I please, please have an extra bedroom to attach to our house?

Well, that should do it. You can just leave the stuff in the house if you can't find us my husband and I will probably be in the garage putting the bicycle and toy kitchen together that your elves forgot to assemble.

Oh, I almost forgot. If you can't invent all these things, just leave me one small, simple gift. A big diamond ring ought to do it.

Shawn Kreger Receives Scholarship

Shawn Kreger, 1985 graduate of New Home High School, sophomore at Western Texas College, Snyder, was awarded a diesel mechanics scholarship this fall upon the recommendation of the DM instructor, Jerry Dennis, and also received a scholarship in his freshman year.

In high school Kreger was a member of the National Honor Society and a class officer. He lettered in basketball and golf and operated the video equipment during football season. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn A. Kreger.

Dr. Jim Tully, WTC Director of Financial Aid, said, "I invite any student interested in scholarships or other types of financial aid to contact my office for information and the sooner the better because of the paper work involved." WTC will hold spring registration Jan. 19-20 and begin classes on Jan. 21.
