County Official's Paycheck Missing

The paycheck of a Lynn County official was reported missing from the official's office in the courthouse Monday. District Clerk Joy Laws told officers the check apparently had been taken from her desk between 11 a.m. and noon that day.

No burglaries or other major crimes were reported to officers during the last week.

In jail during the week was one person on two counts of assault and one of disorderly conduct resulting from a family disturbance investigated by Tahoka Police Dept., plus one person each on charges of revocation of probation, public intoxication and speeding plus no drivers license plus no insurance.

Fund To Benefit Horwoods Started

A fund to help the Bruce Horwood family pay expenses of fighting their battle with U.S. Immigration to stay in Tahoka has been started at First National Bank of Tahoka, and anyone wishing to help may contribute by making a deposit in the account styled the Bruce and Dorothy Horwood Fund.

The Horwoods this week were to confer with State Sen. John Montford seeking advice in the situation. The Horwoods have been ordered to leave the United States by July 4. They are natives of Great Britain, and have been living here for several years.

Reportedly they may have to move to Canada for a brief time, then return. The move alone is expected to cost several thousand dollars. The Horwood children, Jane, 21, and Andrew, 18, also would have to leave Tahoka.

Anyone who wishes to have their donation picked up, or who wants other information about the fund, may call Ted Ratcliff at 998-5100 or Carol Botkin at 998-5300.

WE HAVE received a tabloid publication called the Texas Notcho News, which has nothing to do with Mexican food, but relates to the Social Security "notch" of people born between 1917 and 1921 who get less money from Social Security than those born before or after those dates, even if they worked exactly the same number of years and received exactly the same salary total.

Congress did this a few years ago for some weird reason, and since there has been little effort to get it corrected, it hasn't been done. And besides, as the paper points out, Congress doesn't depend on Social Security for retirement.

A "Notcho" is a person who is unlucky enough to fall into this category. There are bound to be some people around here who were born during those years; there's one in my family.

Of course, if you were born before or after those years, its notcho concern.

School Workers Get Pay Raise

Salary increases of 6 percent were voted by Tahoka school board members last week for 37 non-teaching staff members at the school. Additional bonuses of $1500 were voted for six staff members.

The action was taken at the regular meeting of the board last Thursday with all members of the board present. At that meeting, the board also voted to hire Jerry Henley as math teacher and assistant coach and Ronald Roberts as high school science teacher.

Business manager Loretta Tekell reported a balance in all funds on May 31 of $1,804,798. She also said that on that date the 1986 tax collection totaled $593,308, or 93.1 percent of the total tax roll.

The board voted to send letters to each bank in Lynn County inviting the banks to submit bids on being a depository for school district funds for the next two years.

It was decided to leave the starting time of regular board meetings at 7:30 p.m., to participate in the school lunch and breakfast programs for the coming year, and to continue the same school and football insurance coverage.

Purchase of 12 "System 80" units used as visual aids in teaching elementary students was approved. The school has been leasing the units.

Board members present were Thalia Burks, Billy Davis, Terry

Montessori Method Offers New Educational Ideas In O'Donnell

By JUANELL JONES

"It's a very, very effective way to teach children," says LaRhea Pepper, the enthusiastic teacher who has introduced a little-known method of teaching in O'Donnell: the Montessori (pronounced Mahn-tuh-SAWR-ee) School.

Developed by Dr. Maria Montessori, an Italian educator in the early 1900s, the Montessori method is an educational system designed to help children learn how to learn by themselves. Montessori programs aim to develop positive learning attitudes and habits in children from about 3 to 8 years of age, an age when they are best able to form them, according to Mrs. Pepper.

She offers classes from a remodeled rented house in O'Donnell, The Christian Montessori Day School for Young Children. She has taught two one-week sessions this summer, and will teach one more session from June 22-26, for children ages three through third grade. The regular school term will begin in September.

Environment Stimulates Children

The rooms in the house are lined with shelves full of "learning activities" categorized into subjects such as science, practical life, geography, computer, etc. The day of this reporter's visit, the science room held objects relating to dinosaurs, fossils, volcanoes and weather; the practical life room had shelves full of objects children can stack, button, zip, take apart, put together, pour into, categorize, and otherwise "explore to their heart's content"; one class was being held outside in a tent which students and teacher crawled into to have discussions. "The environment stimulates and meets the needs in children," says Mrs. Pepper.

The main difference in Montessori and public school classrooms is obvious at first glance: there are no student or teacher's desks, nor an area designated as the front of the room. Students are encouraged to "float" or wander at free will in an environment specifically designed to interest and invite children to touch, smell, look, listen and discover as their interests and abilities lead -- to develop a lasting curiosity, positive attitude and early enthusiasm towards learning. The teacher moves about instructing children how to make use of their abilities, thereby gaining confidence in learning "how to learn."

"My objective in teaching the Montessori method is to allow a child's learning experiences to occur naturally and joyfully. I believe the goal of early childhood should not be to fill a child with facts, but rather to cultivate his or her own natural desire to learn" offers Mrs. Pepper. "Little children are naturally curious ... I don't want to stifle that curiosity with a lot of rules and regulations. I have two rules the children must obey; one is, they may not interfere with another child's learning process, and the other is the children must play nicely with each other." She adds, "If a child is doing something he shouldn't, I simply re-direct him to another activity."

The children in Mrs. Pepper's summer session classes do indeed seem to enjoy their "learning" as they feel free to handle objects and ask questions. Even the little three year olds are allowed to handle all objects, including the two computers, with correct supervision. Montessori method encourages classes with mixed ages, claiming it allows younger children a higher level of models for observation, and the older ones to reinforce their knowledge by helping the younger children.

"I do group the younger ones together and let them 'float' to different activities together, but the children are allowed to select at free will from the activities and learning aids offered in the area," said Mrs. Pepper.

Less Lecturing, More Discussion

The children, incidentally, all call their teacher by her given name, La Rhea, and are continually claiming her attention to ask questions or give opinions. They group around her as she demonstrates an activity, and ask questions freely, without raising hands for permission. "The noise level is sometimes quite loud," laughs Mrs. Pepper, "but you get used to it. I don't like to stand and lecture children ... I get them something they can handle and then we discuss it together."

Adult volunteers help with the summer session when Mrs. Pepper's classes are larger, but she will only allow herself 11 children for her regular school term. "I don't want to stretch myself too thin. There are times when a child needs lap time and hug time, a little love and encouragement, and if I have too many children they might not get all they need. I'm allowed by the state to have as many as 17 children, but I choose not to," Mrs. Pepper explained.

The Montessori method is little-known in the United States. "You can't get a certificate for teaching Montessori at any col-

Program of the evening was early but impressive, commemorating Flag Day. Teddie B. Kelley read the story of the flag. Darlene Gurley gave a reading on the meaning of allegiance of "Old Glory" which is what it is sometimes called. She noted that Flag Day is June 14.

Rev. Landers Resigns Pastorate At Sweet Street

Rev. L.C. Landers, pastor of Sweet Street Baptist Church, has resigned his pastorate and he and his wife, Mary Lou, have moved to Desdemona where he will pastor a new church in a small community located between Dublin and DeLeon.

Rev. Landers has been pastor of Sweet Street Baptist Church for almost six years.

VACATION TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS—When packing up the car for a summer vacation, don't forget to add first aid supplies and some extra precaution. These may keep you from becoming a statistic in Texas traffic fatalities. "Traffic accidents always increase during holiday seasons," says Dr. Mary Ann Heussner, a health education specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service. "There are more people on the road, often not driving as well as they should be; and summer is one long holiday.

According to the Texas Department of Health, 3,823 people died in Texas traffic accidents last year; 1,053 of these deaths occurred in the summer months of June, July and August. In July alone, 374 deaths were recorded. "There are ways to decrease the chances of being involved in a traffic accident," said Heussner. "Plan the trip ahead of time, leave plenty of time for travel, make sure the car is in good working order, wear seat belts, and bring along a well stocked first aid kit just in case."

LEARNING THE MONTESSORI WAY — La Rhea Pepper, far left, teaches her students about the origin of rocks in a summer session at The Christian Montessori Day School For Young Children in O'Donnell. Mrs. Pepper has adopted the Montessori method of "teaching children how to learn by themselves" with "positive learning attitudes" in her classes. Students

leges or universities in the United States," says Mrs. Pepper. She received her training in a correspondence course with a Montessori school in England. "The Montessori schools for children are prevalent in England and Europe, and more common in the United States on the east and west coasts. Because of the cost of the school, it is mostly children of the upper class who attend (in Europe)," claims Mrs. Pepper. There are a few Montessori schools in some of the larger cities of Texas, including Dallas, Amarillo, and San Antonio.

The summer sessions at Mrs. Pepper's school cost $45 per child, per week, with classes from 9-11:30 a.m. During the regular school term from September through May, the cost is $160 per month, with regular school holidays observed. Students attend from 7:50 a.m. until 4 p.m., with morning and afternoon snacks, and lunch provided. Mrs. Pepper is licensed by the State of Texas to operate a day care facility, and she has her teaching certificate for early childhood. In fact, Mrs. Pepper taught Kindergarten in Lamesa and O'Donnell for a few years before she became interested in teaching the Montessori method "on her own."

"When I taught in public schools, I incorporated to some degree the Montessori method of hands-on teaching, but of course teachers aren't allowed the freedom of choosing curriculum and must adhere to strict state regulations," she explained. "I enjoy teaching, and I love little children, but I felt the Montessori method offers so much more.

Children are naturally curious, and I didn't like telling them to sit still in one place, doing certain curriculums for a set amount of minutes, etc.," she said. "When a child is interested and enjoys something, let him keep at it, whether it is for 5 minutes or 45 minutes. That's joyful learning, and gives the child positive reinforcement."

Non-Competitive Atmosphere

The teacher adds, "I try to have a non-competitive atmosphere, because children work individually with separate materials and activities. Their work is not compared with that of another child's, but rather with their own previous work. Dr. Montessori believed competition in education should be introduced only after the child has gained confidence in the use of basic skills, and was quoted as saying, 'Never let a child risk failure until he has a reasonable chance of success.'"

Mrs. Pepper was introduced to the Montessori method when she was a high school student in Riverton, Wyoming, and as part of her class assignment in a home economics class, observed small children in a Montessori school. She was impressed then with the training methods, but had not considered learning the method until just a couple of years ago.

"My husband and I were dissatisfied with the attitudes and characteristics our own children were showing, when we left them at a child-care facility and went off to work all day," she remembers. Mrs. Pepper and her husband Terry have two sons, 2 years and 4 years old. Terry farms some land east of O'Donnell. "We felt they were not being given a challenging environment for developing their learning attitudes, and rather than gripe about it we decided to really do something about it. I took correspondence courses to learn more about the Montessori method and to receive my Montessori teaching certificate. I've had a year's training, but I plan to take another course this year to continue my education," she added.

The Montessori method, though little-known to the public, is recognized by the State of Texas education system, and students can transfer into a public school from a Montessori school easily, according to Mrs. Pepper. "The O'Donnell ISD is aware that I plan to teach my own children before mainstreaming them into the public school system," Mrs. Pepper taught a full Montessori school term last year, but all her children were 2-4 years old, not yet eligible for public school.

"I'm not a baby-sitter, and I'm not running a play school," Mrs. Pepper emphasizes. "I'm encouraging children to enjoy learning, and to develop attitudes about being able to learn by themselves, and within themselves, that will stay with them through their entire lives."

"I think this method of teaching will become more and more popular in the United States in the next 10 years. The public is just now becoming aware of what the Montessori system can offer and its positive influence on children," claims Mrs. Pepper.

Private Education Costs Prohibitive

The major drawback, obviously, to the Montessori school is the cost of attending, which is comparable to tuition fees of other private schools. Many parents cannot afford the fees of private education. Mrs. Pepper said some of the schools in the larger Texas cities are more expensive than what is offered in O'Donnell. In San Antonio, for example, the cost is $263 per month to attend the Montessori school.

In O'Donnell, the Montessori system has been met with mixed emotions. "The parents who have brought their children have been delighted with the format," says Mrs. Pepper. "However, some persons feel like my venture here shows I didn't think the public school system was 'good enough.' That's not true... I just wanted something different than what was offered, and felt it was time to do something about it," she concluded.

Study Shows Tax Appraisals More Accurate In 1986

AUSTIN--Property tax appraisals in Texas were more accurate in 1986 than in previous years, according to an annual study performed by the State Property Tax Board (SPTB).

However, the agency's Property Value Study also shows a 1.5 percent drop in the property tax base of Texas school districts from 1985 to 1986, led by a sharp decline in the taxable value of oil and gas reserves.

According to the study, a typical property in the state was appraised at 93 percent of its actual market value on Jan. 1, 1986. These appraised values formed the basis for 1986 tax bills. By comparison, tax appraisals were at a 90 percent level in 1985 and 81 percent in 1983.

The study estimates the total taxable value of the 1986 school district tax base stood at $691.9 billion, down from $702.3 billion the year before.

"Troubles in the oil and gas industry were the main reason for the drop in taxable value," said Ron Patterson, SPTB's executive director.

Patterson said the study's appraisal level findings indicate that most appraisal districts are doing a better job of appraising property.

Farmers Co-Op Plans Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the members of Farmers Co-Op Assn. No. 1 will be held Friday, June 19, at 7:30 p.m. at the Tahoka school cafeteria. A meal will be served and directors will be elected.

The biggest fresh water fish ever recorded as having been caught with a rod and reel was a 468-pound sturgeon caught in California in 1963.

ty. "Appraisals as a whole are getting closer to market value and our figures indicate that appraisal levels for individual properties are more uniform," he said.

The Texas Property Tax Code gives property owners the right to protest the appraised values of their properties if they can prove that their properties are valued unequally compared to the median level of appraisal of other property in their appraisal district. "However," Patterson cautioned, "the appraisal levels shown in our 1986 study may not provide valid evidence for a taxpayer protesting a 1987 appraisal, especially if the appraisal district has reappraised all property in 1987."

4-H Housing Project Offers Life Skills

Housing is an area in which today's young people are all involved. Each of them are and will be making choices for themselves that relate to furnishing their bedrooms, college dorm rooms, first apartments or homes.

Learning to view alternatives and to practice making choices today will have young people better prepared for society in the '90s. The 4-H housing project covers areas from elements of design to careers.

The housing project not only helps 4-H youth with decisions and choices, but with being more aware of their surroundings and resources available to them. It is rare that young people would have the opportunity to participate in another educational project that could involve the practice of as many life skills.

In a 4-H housing project, young people learn and apply principles of design and function to make the home more attractive, convenient and comfortable within the family's resources.

They plan home living spaces in keeping with the needs of family members and experience satisfaction from a home that expresses personal creativity and family lifestyle.

Each 4-H'er can develop an appreciation of and skill in the care and preservation of old and new housing, furnishings and accessories.

4-H'ers can develop skills through quality workmanship and recognition of quality products for making changes in the home. They become aware of community housing situations, opportunities and responsibilities.

Federal Land Bank Lowers Interest Rates, Enters Phase II

Officials of the Federal Land Bank of Texas recently announced plans to extend their new fixed rate, purchase money loan program.

Favorable response to the Land Bank's fixed-rate loan program in May prompted the bank to initiate Phase II of the program. Phase II offers qualified purchasers a 9 3/8 percent interest rate for the purchase of farms and ranches and a 9 5/8 percent rate for the purchase of rural residences. Each program has a 1 point closed loan fee to the bank.

"The bank's Executive Committee reviewed the overall benefits of the program and determined that the program would be beneficial to our stockholders by helping stabilize the rural land market in Texas," says Don Rogge, president of the Federal Land Bank of Texas.

Rogge noted that during the first 30 days of the program, 298 applications totaling $47 million were submitted to Federal Land Bank Associations across the state.

The program fixes the interest rate for 10 years and converts to the bank's variable rate at the end of the 10 years. Purchasers must qualify under the Land Bank's usual credit standards and use the money for new purchases only. Those interested in more information should contact their local Federal Land Bank Assn.

Dear John:

John Deere Answers Your Lawn and Garden Woes

What's Up, Doc?

Dear John: Dwat those wabbits! They're keeping my vegetable plants from getting to my salad bowl. What can I do to control these furry creatures?

Dear Bugged-By-Bunnies: Given half a chance, those cute animals become sneaky varmints who feast on the green vegetables growing in your garden and keep them from getting beyond the early stages of growth. To save your salad greens for two-footed nibblers, put up a 3-foot-tall fence made of 1-inch mesh chicken wire. Bury the chicken wire into the ground about 6 inches deep so bunnies can't burrow under the fence and steal your juicy greens.

Dear John: How can I tell if insects are homesteading in my lawn?

Dear Grass Rancher: The best way to find pests claiming squatter's rights is to look very closely at your lawn. Two of the most common troublemakers are sod webworms and white grubs. To spot sod webworms in action, look for them after sundown on grass blades near the soil line. You can find the critters by carefully breaking apart the damaged areas with your fingers. Another way to bring sod webworms to the surface is to drench a square foot of grass with 1 gallon of soapy water.

To discover a grub problem, pull up a piece of turf. If it lifts easily, like a carpet, grubs are probably at work and the lawn should be treated. Flocks of birds feeding on the lawn also may indicate that sod webworms and white grubs have decided to set up camp in your lawn.

Dear John: Is it necessary to fertilize my flower garden in the summer?

Dear Flora Culture: It's not required, but fertilizing during the summer and throughout the growing season will give your garden a healthy boost. Apply an inorganic fertilizer with a 2-1-2 ratio of nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium under the drip line—the area beginning about half an inch away from the line of leaves and flowers. If fertilizer accidentally lands on any foliage, brush the fertilizer off quickly. Be careful not to overdo the fertilizing—too much of a good thing can be harmful. An overdose of fertilizer can burn roots and force your flowers to grow too quickly, producing weak stems and few, if any, flowers.

Applied properly, the nutrients will be carried down to the plants' roots each time you water the garden.
