Woodwork...

By Dalton

I WAS GOING to start this off with a story about waving at an Aggie on a utility pole, but I got in trouble not long ago for an Aggie remark not appreciated by some A&M supporters, so forget I even mentioned it.

However, a reader in the Sudan area has sent me a story, copyrighted by its writer, Howard Mohr, and reprinted in a publication called Farm Show, entitled "Here's Some Advice on Waving in the Country."

This guy said, among other things, that waving at people in other vehicles, or at those standing beside their tractors or other machinery, is primarily a rural phenomenon, and I agree.

He says most waving involves people in vehicles meeting each other. He also says honking is forbidden, unless the other person has a new tractor or pickup. Besides, if you honk, somebody will think you're a teenager (He didn't say that; I did).

He says if you are on the ground changing oil or whatever, and a vehicle goes by on the road, the whole responsibility for starting the wave process is yours: "You look up or don't look up. If you look up then you will wave if you know the person and they know you. You may wave if you don't know the person, but only if the other person waves first. On rare occasions you may wave first at a perfect stranger going by in a Winnebago or a '64 Chrysler if they look like they need a wave. This is a 'good will' wave."

He says a lot of other stuff like you need to start evaluating another vehicle as far ahead as possible, to decide if it is someone you know and will need to wave at, and that you have to decide whether to wave right-handed or left-handed and you should not run off the road and/or hit a power pole because you waved. Also, if both vehicles are moving pretty fast, you need to time your wave late enough to be seen, but early enough to allow the other person to wave back.

Personally, I sometimes just incline my head in sort of a jerky motion in response to a wave, because my hands won't react fast enough. That way the person who just waved knows you are either reacting to his wave or you have some kind of nervous twitch.

He's right about one thing: people are friendlier in rural communities. Sometimes when I am driving through some rural area, I'll meet some guy in a pickup who gives a friendly wave, even though I'm in an area where I don't know anybody.

The only time I've been waved at by strangers in the city seems to be by people with their fists clenched.

Sock Hop Set At THS After Graduation

A Sock Hop for Tahoka High School students is planned at the school gymnasium Friday night following commencement ceremonies, with the dance to last from 10 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Following the dance will be "movies 'til dawn" for any students who wish to attend, according to High School Principal Charles Cate.

Seniors will be permitted to attend the dance free; all other students will be charged 25 cents each. After the sock hop, the movies—12 have been reserved—will be shown in the school building. Students will be allowed to leave the dance or movies at any time, but will not be allowed to return once they have left, Cate said. The movie tapes, of which six were described as dramas and comedies and the others as "blood and guts," are being supplied courtesy of Jolly Time Video and Star Video in Tahoka.

Burglars Take Cash Here

For the second week in a row, burglars struck Tahoka businesses, this time getting cash from two of three places burglarized. In the previous week, burglars had targeted Jennings of Tahoka.

Three businesses in the city were reported burglarized Sunday night. Aunt Becky's Place, 1812 Lockwood, was victimized after a west side window was broken with a shovel to gain entry. About $20 in change was reported stolen from a cash register and damage to a glass window pane was estimated at $50.

David Midkiff Dental Office, 1640 S. 1st, was burglarized, with entry there also gained by breaking a window. Two windows were reported broken and a set of keys were stolen.

Vaughan Farm Store, 1029 Lockwood, was burglarized as entry was gained through a back door and rear storage area. A safe was forced open and five American Bank of Commerce bags containing $450 cash were stolen. Items damaged included one overhead door, one safe door and a metal pole, with total damages estimated at $160.

Three Tahoka businesses had windows damaged on Friday, including Lyntegar Electric Co-Op, 1807 Main, the U.S. Postoffice at 1525 Conway and the vacant Summit grocery building at 2001 Lockwood, where a glass door was broken.

Tahoka Police Dept. Sunday investigated a family disturbance that resulted in damage to a trailer house door which had been kicked in. Another family disturbance reported involved an alleged assault by a man on his wife, but no charges were filed.

Police investigated an accident last week on the U.S. 87 west access road at N. 5th, involving a 1989 Ford driven by Jacquelyn J. Mitchell of Tahoka and a 1981 Chevrolet driven by Sherry Beth Paschal of Tahoka. The driver of the Ford was treated at Lynn County Hospital for minor injuries and released.

Maryland Espinoza, Rt. 1, Wilson, reported the Espinoza residence on FM 212 about 2.5 miles north of FM 211 was burglarized sometime Friday after a glass was broken out of a back door to gain entry. Only item reported missing was a J.C. Penney VCR valued at $300.

In jail during the week were two persons for application to revoke probation on charges of driving while intoxicated, two for disorderly conduct and one person for public intoxication plus disorderly conduct.

Carriker Rural Health Initiative Passes Senate

A bill designed to stem the tide of rural hospital closings by pumping millions of federal dollars into the state's suffering rural health care system was passed unanimously by the Texas Senate on Tuesday.

Senate Bill 1107, sponsored by Senator Steve Carriker, D-Roby, modifies the authority to prescribe non-narcotic drugs under physician supervision. The legislation would benefit medically underserved rural areas by allowing rural doctors to take advantage of the Rural Health Clinic Services Act passed by U.S. Senator Lloyd Bentsen.

"I'm very pleased that the Senate

took this important step today toward solving our deepening health care problems in rural Texas," Carriker said. "I believe the overwhelming support shown for this bill indicates the very real concern that exists in the Legislature regarding the future of vitally important rural health services."

Minor changes in state law made through the Carriker bill allow for a number of advantages under the federal Rural Health Clinic Services Act, including substantial increase in the amount of Medicare and Medicaid funds rural doctors could receive for treating Medicare patients.

The bill for the first time will also allow for a doctor to establish a remote health clinic staffed by a trained nurse practitioner or physician assistant working under his supervision. This could bring primary health care to thousands of rural Texans who currently have no access to rural health care.

Dear Editor:

It has been over three weeks since the Fun and Food Festival; however, looking back at that activity Tahoka and Lynn County has to have some of the best people in the State.

There is a tremendous amount of work necessary before the "Big Day." If it were not for the Hospital Auxiliary and volunteers helping to set this thing in motion, there would not be such an event.

The merchants were great to donate items to be auctioned off. Several of these merchants had already made substantial donations to the ambulance fund. Local people were outstanding bidding on the many items available.

Two unsung heroes were Dan Taylor and Jerry Ford (fire men) who help cook the fish and potatoes. Without these two men the cooking would have been a huge ordeal.

The County and Hospital District should be very proud of the new ambulance. It is paid for in full, and TWIRLING CONTEST WINNERS—These three Tahoka girls were big winners in twirling contests in O'Donnell last week, sponsored by the National Baton Twirlers Assn. and a part of the Top of Texas Memorial Day Pageant in O'Donnell. Terri Solomon, right, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Solomon, competed against girls from other West Texas cities and won first in her division with a solo routine she will be performing at the state UIL contest in Austin Monday. Also competing for state honors at Austin Monday will be Jackie Jo Hays, THS senior and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hays, who will compete in UIL trombone solo. The other twirlers shown here won trophies at the O'Donnell event in their age groups. They are Eden and Georgia Williams, daughters of Glenda Williams of Tahoka. Eden, left, won the large trophy for scoring the most points of any girl in her age division, 13-14. She also won first place in four events, best costume, best appearing, basic strut and two-baton twirling, plus second place in beginner solo, and second in novice solo. Georgia won first in best appearing for her age group, second in costume and solo and third in military.

provides a good service to the citizens of Tahoka and of the County. There were no tax dollars spent directly toward its purchase. A little over a year ago, Lynn County EMS had a dream about a new ambulance. The Hospital Auxiliary helped tremendously in making this dream come true ($26,000) worth.

I would personally like to thank each person who donated funds or memorials to the ambulance fund. There is one business in Tahoka that donated money in form of a check three different times. Isn't that great! There were donations from $1 and up. One dryland farmer and family donated $1,000. Another person who is retired, donated a total of $1,500. We do appreciate all donations, large or small. This type of support rebuilds faith in mankind!

The Hospital Auxiliary also donated $1,500 to O'Donnell EMS for a new engine for their ambulance. It is good to know that O'Donnell EMS is covering the southern part of the county. Without them, our ranks would be stretched very thin.

Memorials for loved ones will still be accepted by Lynn County EMS. There is a Lynn County Volunteer EMS fund at the First National Bank. These funds will be used to upgrade equipment and for continued education hours. All memorials will be acknowledged. Thanks again from Lynn County EMS to everyone for your support for Better Pre-Hospital Care.

Dear Editor:

My name is Jerry Lee Butrum, I am an indigent inmate incarcerated with in the Indiana State Prison. I am writing to you with hope that you're able to help me with this bad predicament I find myself in. I've incarcerated since October 1982, since I've been here I've come to realize the importance of receiving mail. That vital contact with the outside is necessary for men in places such as this more specially myself. I haven't anyone writing or visiting me. It seems the friends I once had were not the type who looked upon friendship as any sort of lasting differences to them. In the past 6-1/2 years I've written to different people anyone who I felt might remember some of friendship. Although night after night, prayer without any response. I've been forgotten and it hurts. Loneliness is a sad thing yet this is the position I find myself in. Quite frankly, this is a terrible place. And seeing other men around me getting letters and visits from friends, deprive my more and puts me in some sad moods sometimes. I am lonely and it would really mean alot to me if I had a friend to correspond with.

I have attended Heating and Air Conditioning School, also Welding School at Tech since I've been here. I am also an active member of the Indiana North Western Jaycees. I am taking every opportunity to better myself. I am trying to put my life back in proper perspective.

Respectively Yours,

Remembering: Boys and 'Critters'

By: MABEL GURLEY

The difference between Noah and his ark full of creatures and three boys and their "critters" was that old Noah was on a great expanse of water, whereas our boys operated on five city lots. Thankfully, the boys acquired God's furry, feathered, and slick-skinned creatures only a few at a time.

Summer evenings, sitting on a quilt on the front lawn, boys had imaginative ways of making animals out of fluffy white clouds. Possibly this was the prelude to how it all began. Lightning bugs streaking through the darkness suggested that if they be crossed with mosquitos, one could see those "biters" coming. Tying June bugs' hind legs together and watching them zoom around was almost as exciting as turning a hornet toad on its back and stroking its stomach until it became mesmerized into a deep sleep. Long tailed green and yellow striped lizards rarely escaped captivity, just long enough to be admired. Regretfully, our environmental conditions have eliminated so many of the creatures of those days—even colorful butterflies are rare.

Veterinarian instincts were born when a baby hawk fell out of a pear tree with a broken leg. Our young orthopedic surgeon taped a popsicle-stick splint on the injured. This unique pet healed and grew, following its benefactor around in gratitude, and ate with the cats, never realizing that it was a bird.

A gaggle of geese being herded in a field near Artesia, New Mexico, for the purpose of ridding the field of Johnson grass, was so intriguing to the boys that the owner insisted that they take a goose home. This proved to be the noisiest trip ever taken by the family. In those days, when passing a vehicle on the narrow roads which had no white center stripe, honking the car horn was standard practice. Each warning horn challenged that goose to follow suit. On reaching home that hot summer day, our feathered friend complacently spread herself out and sat on the cool spray of the water sprinkler. Later Mrs. Goose found herself an egg-shaped rock and sat on it at intervals for three weeks, waiting for it to hatch! So many feathered friends were tamed, even to a lowly sparrow, trained from pin-feathered stage to ride on a lad's shoulder. Our little friend Jim Norman attempted to tame a woodpecker, but it simply peaked its way right out of the box to freedom.

At Easter time, a kaleidoscope of color be seen at Dale Thuren's Farm Store. After threading one's way through the kids, one could see dozens of pastel dyed baby chicks—purple, pink, green—take your pick. Sadly, these colorful chirpers grew into faded, feathered fryers. To quote an old adage: "Never eat anything that has a name"—but luckily these three chicks were never labeled.

Some critters foreign to West Texas were brought home; for example, an opossum was brought in by the tail. Its early escape was disappointing, as the rarity of a marsupial that carried its young in its pouch would have been interesting, and obviously Mrs. Oh Possum's production was imminent.

Puppies, then large dogs, were next on the agenda. Two fondly remembered were Marmaduke, with the sad eyes and big feet, not unlike its namesake in today's comics, and then Mongrel—aply named, with no ancestral pedigrees, yet an intelligent, lovable boy's dog. After too many sad, back-lot canine funerals, it became apparent that town was no place for dogs without a backyard enclosure. One "stray" that presented no problem was a terrapin with its name painted on its hard shell, which reappeared year after year. The only animal not successfully tamed was a young coyote, which with no regrets was returned to its habitat in the "breaks" of the caprock.

Cute kittens which, alas, grew up to be cats, were numerous. There was old Geraldine, that prolific feline which taught our son the trauma of motherhood. A box was prepared for her confinement (complete with a jelly glass of wild flowers at one end) awaiting the various species and colors. One by one, the kittens were duly identified on birth certificates.

Cats, not being of a monogamous nature, always presented surprises. One little unfortunate snow white kitten experienced a dye job at the hands of Mike and Mary Jane. After being dunked in a tub of water into which our bottle of Mrs. Stewart's Bluing had been added, this heavenly blue creature stunned old Geraldine into a reluctant acceptance of her off-spring.

Thorough surveys were made for acceptable homes for extra kittens. Jess once facetiously placed an ad in the Lynn County News advertising, "Kittens for sale—10 cents each or three for 25 cents"—and listing Borden Davis' telephone number. Minnie was said to have been perplexed as to why, since they had never owned a cat.

One night scampering sounds on the vinyl floor of the boys' bedroom merited an investigation. Those rascals, freeing six found squirrels from their cage, had bedded them in an opened drawer of the chest. During frantic attempts to recapture the little critters we were shocked by the fact that if they were caught by the tail, it slipped right off, as do those of guinea pigs! This amazing discovery prevented deserved punishment. The next day remorse for the previous evening's was assumed, as the boys called to that my bath water was run. Reaching for a towel, a side glance in the tub revealed two bulging eyes connected to a huge green toad frog. Life was never dull!

An unmistakable "baa-ing" led us to the back door one day, to encourter a milk goat, tugging at a rope around its neck. The plea, "I found him—can I please keep him?" was familiar. Hopefully, that goat got from whence it came in time to be milked.

Rabbits, non-poisonous snakes, and on-and-on, but this narrative does have a moral. Give old Noah the respect and sympathy he deserves, but also, we're certain that boys who love and care for critters never grow up to be cruel men.

Spider Mites—Tiny Pests Cause Big Problems

Spider mites are tiny, but they can cause big problems in home gardens. These pests prefer tomatoes, beans and peas but will attack many other crops. They do most of their damage in hot, dry weather.

Spider mites, also called red spiders, are only 1/60-inch in length and vary in color from white to green to red.

The tiny pests can build up quickly and completely defoliate plants. Eggs laid on the underside of leaves hatch in four to five days. A complete life cycle takes three weeks, and as many as 20 overlapping generations can occur in a single year.

Mites spin a thin web which often can be seen on heavily infested plants. They feed by inserting their mouth-parts into plant tissue and sucking juices. While feeding, they inject toxic substances into the plant.

Infestation of spider mites can be identified by tiny white spots on plant leaves. Heavy infestations cause bleaching or yellowing, first along the main leaf veins and then throughout the plant. Heavy infestations cause plants to shed buds and small fruit. Spider mites can completely defoliate a plant if not controlled.

Control of spider mites is often difficult and requires two to four applications of insecticide at five to seven-day intervals. Check plants frequently for spider mites since the pests can build up rapidly.

Insecticides registered for controlling spider mites in gardens are diazinon, kelthane and malathion.

As always, read and follow label directions on all insecticides.

PAIN — YOUR BODY'S CRY FOR HELP

There has never been a generally satisfactory definition of pain or even a good method to measure it. Some rare individuals have an inborn immunity to pain which is called "Congenital Analgesia." Others are so sensitive that they feel pain at the slightest instance. But, pain is your body's personal alarm system and should not be ignored.

Once your physician has pinpointed the condition causing the pain symptom, he can act to give you quick relief. We stock the medicines he prescribes in our prescription laboratory. We have the modern pain killers and medicines that attack the cause of pain symptoms.

Planting Pecan Trees Properly

One of the keys to growing pecans, whether in the backyard or in a commercial orchard, is to plant the trees properly so that they get off to a good start, said Cypert, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Tree planting time is at hand—and here are a few guidelines.

To begin, select a tree 4 to 8 feet tall as soon as nurseries get supplies. Plant as soon as possible, using care not to let roots dry out or freeze.

Dig the hole only as large as the tree's root system. If the hole is too deep, the tree will settle and this can cause poor growth or death.

The taproot should sit in the bottom of the hole. If the hole cannot be as deep as the length of the roots, cut back the taproot to fit the hole.

Pack original soil around roots as tightly as possible. Packing the soil in 2 to 3-inch layers is better than watering to pack the soil. Use adjacent soil to complete filling the hole, not light soil, sand or potting soil. The tree can drown in rainy weather if light fill soil is used on clay land.

Plant the tree at the same depth it grew in the nursery row. Look at the colors to determine the soil line: the bark is gray and the root is dark brown.

Cut off the top half of the tree at planting to balance the stem and roots and to force growth close to the soil line.

Wrap the lower 18 inches of the trunk with aluminum foil to prevent side shoots, sun scald and rabbit damage. On large plantings, use a mixture of white latex paint and water (one part paint to three parts water).

Build a basin around the tree to hold water and give each tree five gallons of water immediately after planting. Make sure trees do not go longer than 14 days without water.

These are some basic steps in planting pecan trees that can lead the way in getting them into production in a few years, said Cypert.

Is this good advice for children and teenagers? Probably not. Most children and adolescents now get 30 to 40% of their calories from fat and medical authorities believe it should stay in the range.

The American Academy of Pediatrics is concerned that a lower fat diet may have detrimental effects on the growth and maturation of healthy children. Fat is a concentrated source of energy needed for normal growth.

In addition, the benefits of low fat diets for children have not been established. Most research studies have been conducted on an adult population and the results may not apply to children.

The Academy also questions whether a low-fat diet can meet the calorie needs of teenagers during the adolescent growth spurt. Reducing fat intake in teenagers also means decreasing the amount of protein they get from meat, eggs, and dairy products. Yet these foods are needed for normal growth.

Farm Bureau Officials Hit Clements Decision

A group of Texas Farm Bureau officials, including FB state director Leland White of New Home, was in Austin last week lobbying unsuccessfully against a committee report which resulted in legislation which would continue the Texas Dept. of Agriculture.

Farm Bureau and other farmers organizations in the state were hoping to see the TDA eliminated as this is the year of "sunset" consideration for that department. Every 12 years the TDA is supposed to come up for a sunset vote to determine if the department's operations should be continued, FB officials said.

S.M. True of Plainview, state Farm Bureau president, and two other state directors met with Gov. Bill Clements last Wednesday to tell the governor he would veto the sunset legislation, which would continue the TDA, but which purportedly would weaken some TDA authority by establishing a new Agricultural Resources Protection Authority relating to pesticide use in Texas. But the nine-member panel would be headed by the agriculture commissioner and would include officials from universities (including Texas Tech), state agencies and an agriculture producer and consumer from the private sector appointed by the governor.

At the same time True and his group were meeting with the governor, White met with state representatives Jim Rudd of Brownfield, Pete Laney of Hale Center and Delwin Jones and Buzz Robnett of Lubbock. However, after Wednesday's meeting, the legislation passed the house and Gov. Clements announced he would sign the measure. True immediately issued a statement of response, which said in part:

"Farmers and ranchers are deeply disappointed at Gov. Clements' decision to sign the bill re-authorizing the Texas Dept. of Agriculture without restructuring the leadership of the department.

"He has not followed through on his commitment to change the structure of the TDA, which was, and still is, the main issue... We know what he promised to the agriculture community and we now know the disappointing outcome of that promise.

"We appreciate the support of legislators who helped us in the effort to restructure the department."

Lynn County Merchants Appreciate Your Business!

Out of the Woods

by Juanell (Wood) Jones

ACCORDING TO my 7-year-old son, there are 283 orange/black barrels on Highway 87 between Tahoka and Lubbock. That's the count he got when we were traveling that scenic route this week. Isn't amazing what one will do to while away the time while riding in a car? When we were kids we counted telephone poles until our eyes started blurring and we started getting dizzy. That's probably why we all wear glasses today. That's Mom and Dad's fault, though. We really thought they wanted to know how many telephone poles there were between Texas and Arkansas, when all they really wanted was for us to keep out of their hair.

Because now is the time when all good Americans start planning their vacations, I thought I'd give a few travel tips to help make your trip go smoother. Follow these instructions carefully, and I guarantee your trip will go... uh, go... well, it will go.

- Packing: Don't pack too early. If you do, you'll just have to get something out to use it or wear it before you are ready for your trip anyway. The best time to pack is from midnight to 2 a.m. (sometimes known as the wee hours of the morning) on the night before you plan on leaving at 6 a.m.

- Leaving: Don't leave at 6 a.m. It's too early. Sleep in, eat a big breakfast, and if you get away by 10:30 you're doing terrific.

- Pillows: Never leave any pillows at home. Take 'em all and load 'em inside the car. That way the children have something to hit each other with, and Mom has one to bury her head in so she can sleep while Dad drives and tries to ignore the kids. Don't take feather pillows. If they bust, flying feathers will fill the interior of the car, Dad will have a wreck, and everybody will have to go to the hospital, which is not a fun place to spend a vacation.

- Cokes: You can never take enough Cokes. Even if you fill the trunk with 16 cases of Coca Cola, you will run out before reaching your destination. Solution: stop at every other McDonald's or Dairy Queen between home and your destination. Caution: this could be costly. Be sure to take credit cards with high dollar limits.

- Dogs: Some do and some don't (travel, that is). Ours, unfortunately, does. If your dog travels, be sure to take all the essentials: Puppy Chow, water dish, dog biscuits, chew toy, rubber ball, rawhide bone, sleeping rug, flea and tick spray, leash... and don't forget the dog. If there's any room left, you can take a suitcase for yourself.

- Children: Oh, this is a tough one. Not only must you pack a suitcase full of clothes for these pint-size humans, but you must also pack (in separate bags, please) coloring books, colors, cards, books, games, snacks, pencils and pens, notepads, and anything else in the toy closet that will fit in a bag. If you have more than one child, please check your inventory carefully to insure each child has exactly the same thing in his bag as the other child. Otherwise, World War III will erupt in the back seat when these lovable youngsters start comparing items and making a checklist. We should send pre-school children to do inventory at major businesses. They would do a terrific job and only demand Oreo cookies and Cheetos as payment.

- Speaking of Food: Take plenty. Raid the kitchen cabinet of everything that has absolutely no nutritional value, and your trip will go smoothly. I'm speaking of such empty-calorie foods as chips (all kinds), cookies, candy bars, (you can't take any ice cream, sorry), crackers and peanut butter. I guess you could appease your conscience somewhat by taking along a few apples. You'll have to sneak 'em to your kids, though, by telling them "Don't eat these until I say so." In my experience, that's the quickest way to get 'em to sneak a bite.

- The Car: If at all possible, rent a limousine with a window that rolls up to separate the back seat from the front seat. This will help Mom and Dad to get to their destination and still smile fondly at the children. Our limo, unfortunately, shrunk to the size of a Chevrolet Nova and the only glass windows are the ones separating you from Mother Nature.

- The Trip: Relax and enjoy. Rules are made to be broken. Naps don't have to be taken (except in Mom's case). If the kids want hamburgers every night, let 'em have 'em. If Mom wants a candy bar for breakfast, who are you to argue? If Dad wants to quit shaving every morning and looks like a scrounge from under a rock, what difference does it make? That's the whole glory of a trip: Nobody knows you! Live a little.

- Money: Take all you got. Well, that about covers it. Be sure and let me know if these tips help you at all. No thanks are necessary. I do this for the fun of it.

Time Running Out For Writing Conservation Plan

Lynn County Farmers need to contact the Soil Conservation Service in Tahoka to make an appointment for writing a conservation plan, if they have not already done so. The conservation title of the 1985 Farm Bill states that each farm that contains at least 50 acres (or 1/3 of the field acres) of highly erodible soil have a conservation plan by Jan. 1, 1990. The highly erodible land determination will be made by SCS personnel. The producer must begin actively applying the plan in crop year 1990. If a plan is not written and applied by the deadline, the producer will not be eligible for any USDA benefits.

Some changes have been made in the plan alternatives available to Lynn County farmers. Farmers who have already written their plans may want to contact SCS personnel to inquire about these changes.

The SCS office is now scheduling appointments for writing these plans. If you would like to make an appointment, or if you have any questions, you may call the SCS office at 998-4622 between 7:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

At last. Something farmers can control.

You can't control prices, the weather or your banker. But you can do something about your health insurance costs.

Communicating for Agriculture understands how hard it is for farmers to buy health coverage. That's why we came up with our own health insurance plan for our members.

Our plan helps our members control their health insurance costs through a cash deductible concept* - no matter how many claims they file. It's available only to CA members.

Take control of your health care costs.

May Is Foster Care Month

There are many children in our society today who have lost their parents due to death, illness, divorce, or desertion. Others have been abused or neglected. These children dream of having a real home and normal family life. The answer for many of these is foster care.

Foster care is substitute, temporary care. The foster family is one that is willing to nurture and provide the needs of a child placed in their home until the child's biological family is restored. The ultimate goal of foster care is to reunite the children with their biological family if at all possible. Children are removed from their homes only in life-threatening situations or when it is absolutely necessary.

There is a great need for foster parents in our community. They along with case workers and community agencies (such as the Child Welfare Boards), work together as a team to provide the best possible care and living arrangements for those children. They are willing to open their homes to our children who have no other place to go. Foster parents are very special people who possess a tremendous amount of patience, understanding, and love. The removal of a child from his/her home is very traumatic, and the foster parent must support the child through this difficult time, and help him/her adjust.

There are no strict limitations on who can be a foster parent. Some have natural children of their own, others have none. Both parents may work, as long as licensed day care is provided. Some foster parents are single adults or single parents.

The only income requirement is that foster parents be able to meet their own financial obligations. Foster parents are reimbursed a standard rate of $11.00 per day per child in their home. Most of the children in care also qualify for Medicaid.

Foster parents may care for more than one child, depending on the number of natural children and space in the home. No more than six (6) children under the age of 18 may be in the home, including the foster parents' natural children. The foster child may have a room of his own or share with another child of the same sex. Every effort is made to keep sibling groups in the same home, however, this is not always possible. It is therefore important to have the children placed in foster homes which are at least in the same town. The length of stay depends on the particular needs of the child at the time.

The foster care program is in great need of foster parents. Foster parenting is not an easy job, and for this

Motorists Urged To Watch For Children In Summer

Once again, school is out. Major V.J. Cawthon, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety, wants to remind all motorists that they must change their driving habits this summer.

We must be more observant for children playing in or near the street, especially at night, because some children will be allowed to stay up longer and will be playing outside in the dark.

Major Cawthon said, "Now that school is out for the summer many families will be making their vacations and I urge all motorists to use extra caution in and around recreational areas and roadside parks. Parents can also do their part by keeping a watchful eye on the younger children who may not know the safety rules."
