New Weapons In Anti-Drug War Cited By Gramm Here

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm visited Tahoka last Thursday afternoon to praise local law enforcement officers for their efforts in fighting drug abuse and to brief them on congressional efforts targeting the nation's drug problem.

The seriousness of the drug problem even in rural areas was pointed up by Gramm and local law enforcement officers who cited some county statistics prior to Gramm's talk to about 40 persons in the district courtroom of the county courthouse.

"There was a time when you moved to places like Tahoka to get away from drug problems, but sadly, drugs are everywhere today," Gramm commented.

The senator was meeting with the leaders of rural Texas communities this week seeking their evaluation as to the extent of the drug problem in their area. In addition, Gramm provided officials with details of the "Anti-Drug Act of 1988" which President Reagan signed into law last Nov. 18.

Gramm said the legislation will better equip everyone to wage and win the drug war. "For too long, law enforcement officials have had to fight a big battle with a small stick. I am pleased to say that the federal government is finally wading in and giving you a bigger stick."

The bill sets mandatory sentences for anyone convicted of selling drugs to minors and mandates the death penalty for those guilty of drug-related police officer murders. It also provides more federal funding to fight the flow of illegal drugs.

Although Sen. Gramm co-authored the bill, he said he still is convinced that more action by Congress will be required to achieve a drug-free America. He thinks steps must be taken to deal not only with the supply of drugs, but also with the demand for them.

He did say that one provision of the bill does provide for punishment for regular users of drugs, for the first time. To win the drug war, "we must ultimately cut off the demand for drugs," he said. "The idea is to tell the 23 million people who are regular drug users that we're not going to put up with it."

One thing Gramm said he favors is to put drug pushers in prison and leave them there, rather than letting them out in a tenth of the assessed time so they can resume selling drugs. He chided federal judges who, he said, have set quotas for prisons on the grounds that the prisons are overcrowded. "Many college dormitories are more crowded than our prisons," he asserted, adding that federal judges need to pay more attention to the rights of the public and less to the rights of criminals.

Tahoka Mayor Jim Solomon emceed the appearance of Gramm, and the program was led off by Tahoka Police Chief Jerry Webster, followed by DPS Trooper Larry Duncan and county sheriff's deputies. Deputy Elton Childress demonstrated the drug-sniffing abilities of two dogs.

Gramm has a Ph.D. in economics, a subject he taught at Texas A&M.

Good Crowd Turns Out For July 4th Celebration

Tahoka Chamberettes were pleased with the good turnout of local and area residents at the "Fantastic Fourth" celebration in Tahoka Tuesday. "We heard lots of good comments about the celebration, and folks here seemed happy with the activities offered at the park," said Juanel Jones, celebration committee chairperson.

Entertainment on stage was well-received by the crowd, as several musical groups and soloists performed. Tahoka High School twirlers and the tumbling classes of Robin Walker performed for an enthusiastic crowd, also.

Several people donated home made ice cream in the Ice Cream Freeze-Off, and ice cream sales were good during the evening. Children's games were well-attended and the volleyball, horseshoe and washer pitching games were kept going throughout the evening. A 42 tournament was also held, sponsored by Tahoka Senior Citizens.

Chamberettes served a July 4th cake to the crowd at 9 p.m. while Arron Miller sang "God Bless The USA," and several other musical selections. Other vocalists also sang several patriotic numbers on stage.

"The Chamberettes really had a good time with this celebration," said Mrs. Jones. "We hope everyone enjoyed the festivities, and we especially appreciate those who stayed late after the celebration was over to help clean up the park. We hope to make this an annual event for Tahoka," she added.

Detailed results of all the events will be given in next week's edition of the Lynn County News.

REMEMBERING:

The 1918 "Flu" Epidemic In Texas

BY: MABEL GURLEY

Before it ended, the "flu" epidemic that started in Europe was to kill twenty million people throughout the world, almost twice the number killed in World War I. In the United States 548,000 would die of the disease during its three month rampage.

The "Spanish" Influenza reached Texas around the first of October, according to history. Schools, churches, and most public places were closed; pleas were made for help by the Red Cross and for help in nursing the sick. To combat the disease, public health officials advised against sharing towels and drinking cups. Households were told to boil all articles coming out of the sickroom, and not to allow visitors.

We remember our parents chuckling over a big, black headline (news-papers being the only general means of communication) which bluntly stated: "Keep The Bowels And Windows Open." Some communities were ordered to wear gauze masks, made by the Red Cross and sold at drugstores for 10 cents each. Fines of $10 were assessed to non-wearers. An article in one paper described a wedding in which the groom kissed the bride through gauze masks both were wearing. The minister also had that 5x8 cover over his mouth.

Our mother's ability to sew influenced war-time brides-to-be to engage her to make their wedding gowns. One such, a hand beaded, tucked creation near completion, was never worn by the young girl who succumbed to the disease.

Some of the admonitions for safety served a valuable purpose to this six year old "nurse", whose entire family—brother, sister, and both parents—became desperately ill with the dreaded disease. Our plight, though young, was to tend family members who became ill. People were afraid to come near infected families. How ours survived is yet puzzling. Looking back, our efforts were both clumsy and at times hazardous.

Remembering some of the warnings, we tied a handkerchief around the mouth and nose in the sickroom, and those windows were open. The weather was bitterly cold, so more quilts were piled on.

Mama always had a supply of dried fruit (the fresh variety being seldom available). There were dried apples, which she dried herself, apricots, and prunes. This was a simple menu to serve. A can of citric acid in lieu of lemons was kept to make lemonade. Adding sugar and water to two teaspoons of acid improvised a good substitute for lemonade. To change the fare, we knew that baking sweet potatoes required no recipe. We baked and baked those potatoes, burning our fingers in the oven, and one exploded on our hand, necessitating use of that ever healing remedy, "Mentholatum". Until this day, a wide circle is made around the yams when in the grocery market. By the same token, we believe fresh air in the bedroom and a daily consumption of fruit is conducive to good health. Mastering the art of baking yams, we attempted to boil rice, pouring the entire contents of the sack into a small pot of water. A white mountain of rice poured over the stove and half the kitchen. Doubtless such disasters were the motivation needed for our mama to be the first family member to recuperate. Thinking back, why was the coal skuttle by the big coal stove never empty? We were admonished not to let the coals go out, as starting another fire involved lighting kindled under the coal. Some of the memories are vague, but lifting that heavy iron stove lid with the lift handle is distinctly recalled. A teakettle of water was always warm on the stove top. It seemed a fairy godmother was with us, but rationalizing now, the doctor who came by with the quinine tablets and advice must have refilled that coal skuttle.

It wasn't until the last of January that the flu epidemic was officially over. However, deaths continued.

Church services resumed, which had previously been held outside. Doctors many of whom were victims themselves, would now limit their days, some formerly being as much as 18 hours long and follow a regular schedule.

Intermingling history and personal experiences is our way of remembering indelible past times. How lucky we are having earth and space technology to combat such disastrous occurrences today!

Jewelry Stolen From Home Is Recovered

Eighty-five dollars in cash and diamond rings and a necklace valued at a total of more than $5,000 were stolen from the residence of Norma Wagner east of Tahoka last Wednesday and recovered the next day by Lynn County Sheriff Jack Miller, who located the stolen items at a trailer home in Shallowater.

Miller and Lubbock County officers traced a man who had been working at the Wagner home on the day of the theft, and found the items. No charges were filed in Lynn County, as the Lubbock officers are using the data to seek revocation of the man's probated prison term on a charge of burglary.

A 38-year-old Lamesa man, Melvin Samuel Dunbar, was charged with felony driving while intoxicated after he was arrested for the third time on DWI charges and jailed in Lynn County.

Paul Garcia of Tahoka reported to police that someone had thrown a rock at his 1985 Ford Monday while it was being driven in the 2000-block of Lockwood. The paint was reportedly chipped. Police also arrested one person for DWI during the last week, and checked out a report from Dan Garcia of 1129 Ave. N that someone had damaged a storm door at his residence.

County officers also were called to control traffic at the scene of a fire at a residence east of New Home Tuesday afternoon, when the house and most possessions of the Ignacio Gonzales family were destroyed. New Home and Tahoka volunteer firemen answered the alarm, but were not called in time to save the home. The fire reportedly started in the attic of the frame house.

In jail during the week were two persons for DWI, one for DWI second offense, and one for DWI third offense, plus another person for public intoxication.

Producers Invited To Second Insect Scouting Workshop

Cotton, sorghum producers in Lynn county are invited to the second part of the annual High Plains Scout Training Workshop to increase the effectiveness of managing the insect and mite pests on their farm.

The last of two workshop sessions will focus on mid-and-late season pests and will be held Monday, July 10, at the Mabee Regional Heritage Center (Llano Estacado Museum) on the Wayland Baptist University campus in Plainview. Brett Cypert, county extension agent, said.

The first workshop, in June, covered early to mid-season crop pests.

The workshop, conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, was first held in 1973 to train scouts in the pest management programs conducted by Extension Service, part of the Texas A&M University system.

The workshop will begin at 8:30 a.m. with Dr. Jim Leser, extension entomologist, outlining the scope of the training and explaining general concepts. Mike Blanton, extension agent-entomologist at Farwell, will then open the corn pest section with information on Southwestern corn borers. Spider mites and other corn pests will be discussed by Greg Cronholm, extension agent-entomology at Plainview.

The cotton session will include a discussion of cotton fleahopper and bollworms by Mark Brown, extension agent-entomologist at Crosbyton. Jim Leser will provide information on armyworms, aphids and other cotton pests and Craig Forbis, extension agent-entomologist at Lamesa, will discuss beneficial insects. Greg Cronholm will discuss greenbugs in sorghum. Dr. Pat Morrison, extension entomologist headquartered in Lubbock, will conclude the morning sorghum session covering sorghum midge, headworms and panicle feeding bugs.

The daylong workshop will conclude with a field session in the afternoon which participants will identify pests and beneficials and practice scouting techniques.

Counts Co-Sponsors Development Bill

Rep. David Counts (D-Knox City) is working to pass a bill during the special session that will allow cities to lease land and facilities, purchased with city bonds, to private and public entities. The bill is a completion to legislation carried by Rep. Parker McCollough (D-Georgetown) during the regular session which allows cities to engage in economic development programs.

If this measure passes, cities across Texas will have the opportunity to use bond money for acquiring land and facilities to attract new businesses to their area. The authority for such bonds was passed in the 1987 legislative session and approved by the voters in the November 1987 election. Currently the legislation is used by the state to attract business to Texas. This measure will clarify a municipality's ability to do the same.

"This bill will provide another option, not currently held by our local cities, to enhance rural economic development," said Counts. "Competition to lure new industry to West Texas is steep. Allowing the cities another negotiating tool only increases the chances of obtaining the industry or business that is so badly needed in rural West Texas."

Tuesday Bridge

T-Bar Country Club Duplicate Bridge winners on June 27, were: first place: Jerry Renfro and Bitsie Wells; second place: Betty Taylor and Ruby Miller; third place: Lottie Jo Walker and Marge Maddox; and fourth place: Catherine Barham and Jeanie Norris.

Farmers in the 25 counties represented by Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, have contracted to take 1.412 million acres of program crop bases out of production under the 10-year conservation reserve program (CRP) established by the farm act of 1985.

That's 17.5 percent of the 8.07 million acres that would otherwise be allocated to production and/or other acreage reduction programs for cotton, corn, grain sorghum, wheat, barley and oats, say PCG officials who compiled the totals from county figures supplied by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Covered is the acreage enrolled in the CRP through eight completed sign-up periods, held from early 1986 through February, 1989. A ninth sign-up is scheduled July 17 through August 4 this year.

Cotton accounts for 723,017 acres and over half the CRP acreage on the Plains, which is equal to 15.4 percent of the area's 4.685 million total base cotton acres.

Farmers are obligated for 10 years to devote the idled acreage to conservation uses such as permanent grasses. USDA agrees to pay half the cost of establishing grass or other approved conservation measures, and pays an annual fee to compensate producers for loss of crop production income. Rental amounts are determined by bid. The maximum bid accepted by USDA in the High Plains area has been $40 per acre.

To avoid excessive damage to the economy in any given area, except under special circumstances the law prohibits enrollment of over 25 percent of the available cropland in a county.

The accompanying chart shows county total base acreages of the six program crops, CRP acreage from all bases, total cotton acreage bases and cotton bases in CRP.

INDEPENDENCE

Each year, as we grow older, we will lose about 1% of muscle mass, unless we exercise to prevent it. Walking at 3mph is the limit of endurance for most 70 to 75 year olds. At 80, most can hardly rise from a sitting position. However, if we exercise regularly, we can strengthen our thigh muscles by 10% and postpone the loss of our independence by 10 to 20 years. A daily 3-mile walk and a workout of 30 minutes, 3 times a week should do the trick.
