OUR FAMILY (We're down to two at home these days) rarely goes to the movies. We almost always wait until they are shown on TV, so when people are making conversation about how good or how bad a new movie is, we are left out.

However, from conversation I have overheard at various places in recent weeks, I assume that the latest blockbuster movie being shown in theaters is something called "Fatman". I think it stars somebody named Michael Keaton. At least 85 per cent of all actors and athletes are named Michael. The story probably is all about the main character's titanic struggle with cholesterol.

Or maybe that was "Pig," or perhaps "Big," starring some other guy.

KNOTHOLES in the Woodwork: Passed along to me this week was a copy of an alleged newspaper advertisement, which read: "Wanted: A good woman who can clean and cook fish, dig worms, sew and who owns a boat and motor. Please send photo of boat and motor."... Talk about your long meetings—A story in the Amherst newspaper recently about a family reunion said "this reunion has been going on for about 50 years."

"Have you done anything else wrong, perhaps more recently?" asked the gatekeeper.

"Well, yes," said the candidate for admission. "A highway patrolman stopped me for speeding and was writing me a ticket. I really blew my top and spit on his boots."

"When was that," asked the gatekeeper.

"About 10 minutes ago."

MRS. JEFFREY LEE GREENE (nee MISTIE LAYNE COOK)

Cook-Greene Wedding Vows Exchanged At Ranch

Mistie Layne Cook and Jeffrey Lee Greene were united in marriage by Dr. Danny Curry, pastor of First Baptist Church, on July 8, 1989 at A Ranch.

The ceremony began with Aaron Miller of Tahoka singing, "Thanks Mom and Dad" a song he wrote. While he was singing, the mothers were ushered down the isle and lit their family candle. The couple arrived in a surrey owned and driven by Mr. and Mrs. John Edwards of New

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and father. Marriage vows were exchanged and the unity candle was lit while Aaron sang, "Forever Yours", also written by

The bride selected an elegant ivory gown, designed by Mary's. It was made with angel satin and edged in lace, pearls and iridescent sequins. The tight fitting bodice featured a sweetheart neckline accented with lace and adorned with pearls and iridescent sequins. The sleeves were bouffant ruffles with satin petal flowers and pearl sprays. A dropped waistline allowed the full skirt to fall gracefully. The train had exquisite satin bows with satin petal flowers and pearl sprays lined with lace insets. The bride wore camel lace up Justin ropers with her gown. She also wore her grandmother Cook's brooch for something old. "Something new" was her gown and she "borrowed" her mother's tennis bracelet and her garter was "blue."

The bride carried a freeform bouquet designed for her by her sister. The Bouquet consisted of Astermeria lilies, bridal and pink roses, yellow and purple status, daisies pixies, nerine lilies, leatrice, Killian daisies, and curly willow. Her attendants carried similar but smaller bouquets.

The bride's attendants were her sister, Dustie Cook and Cloey Smith of Tahoka. They wore tea length dresses made of a blue, mauve and cream floral cotton print. The dresses were fashioned after the bride's with bouffant ruffle sleeves and sweetheart necklines dropped waists. The dresses were made by the bride's

The flower girl was Raylie Taylor, niece of the groom from Southland. She wore a dress of the same floral print with dropped waist and ruffle sleeves, made by her grandmother.

The groom's attendant were Bennie Greene, brother of the groom from Las Vegas and Ronnie Mathis of Post. The wedding party was also joined by Trevor Cook, son of the bride and Jerod Greene, son of the Guests were ushered by Rusty Cook, brother of the bride of Tahoka and Ron Mathis of Post. They were ushered through a white lattice archway decorated with flat fern plumosa, English ivy and blue bows. The wedding party stood before an arch built of landscape timbers decorated with English ivy and Boston ferns with two fresh flower bouquets on wooden spools decorated either side, with the unity candle and giant grapevine heart adorned with blue bows in the center.

Registering guests was Teha Taylor, sister of the groom from South land. The registered table was covered with an ivory cloth with a floral

The reception was held at the Ranch under an awning, which was decorated with barb wire hearts and cream paper angels, horseshoes, and cream paper bows, and Boston ferns. The picnic tables were decorate with rope and mixed bouquets.

The bride's table was covered with a blue cloth and lace overlay. The bride's cake was a three tier ivory cake decorated with fresh flowers with a cowboy and his bride on top. Punch was served with the cake.

The groom's table had a cream cloth with lace overlay. The groom's cake was chocolate, with a double horseshoe decoration. Champagne was also served on the groom's table.

The servers were Monica Stephens, JoAnn Thomas, Bridgette Miller, Kathy Long, Wilma Gemer, all of Tahoka, and Delcy Mathis and Angel Shut of Post.

A rehearsal dinner was given by Billy and Louise Greene at the A

The bridal courtesy was June 24, at the bank room of the First National Bank of Tahoka. Hostesses were Helen Jacquess, Connie Hallmark, Wilma Gerner, JoAnn Thomas, Tiny Lee McNeely, Retha Pittman, Gilda Taylor, Monica Stephens, Rachel Huffaker, Cathy Ross, Polly Jackson, Ma Hill, Kathy Long, Sandra Siven and Susan Tipton.

Dietary-Medical Quackery

Quackery in the U.S. today costs more than $25 billion. These unsound dietary-medical treatments can prevent consumers from seeking proper treatment.

To recognize the dietary-medical quackery device, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and the Council of Better Business Bureaus provide these personal protection tips: 1. Be wary if a product's label of advertising promises immediate, effortless or guaranteed results.

2. Be wary of testimonials in ads or on labels from satisfied users. They rarely can be confirmed.

3. Don't be taken in by a "moneyback guarantee." A guarantee is only as good as the company that backs its. 4. Be wary of promises that a product is effective for a wide variety of 5. Be wary of promises of complete relief from pain. 6. Don't be taken in by promises that a product offers a "cure."

7. Watch out for claims that a treatment or product has been approved by the FDA. Federal law doesn't permit mention of FDA in any way that suggests marketing approval for any drug or medical device.

8. Don't give too much importance to the term "natural ingredients." The definition of "natural" is elusive, and the word is often abused.

9. Look out for other misleading words such as "amazing," "secret," "miracle," "special,", "vanish," "painless,""discovery," "breakthrough," "exclusive," "instant," "immediate," "quick," or "fast."

10. If the product sounds too good tr true, it probably is.

LUSCIOUS TOMATOES ENRICH A SANDWICH

Fresh, fully-ripe tomato slices make a big difference in sandwiches. Tomatoes from Florida, available now through mid-June, may need further ripening at home. Keep them at room temperature (do not refrigerate-cold kills tomato flavor) until they're bright red and slightly softened.

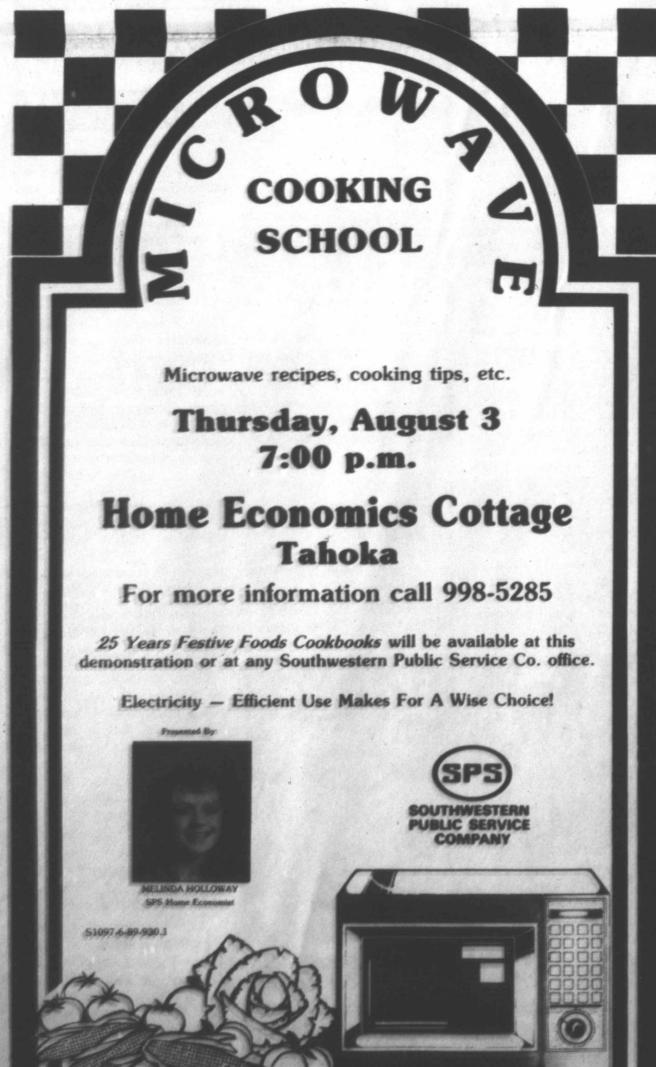

Here are some tomato tips for sandwiches: Add chunks of tomato to chicken or tuna salads-it'll help you cut down on

Spread thick slices of pumpernickel bread with cream cheese; top with tomato slices and thinly sliced red onion, and sprinkle with ground black pepper. Make your usual egg salad, adding lots of chopped fresh dill. Spoon onto rye bread and top with tomato slices

When having a turkeyburger or hamburger on a roll, slip in a few slices of tomato for moisture plus extra taste.

CTN Loan-Making Project Expands To All Counties

Cotton producers across the nation will soon have the option of transmitting bale loan data via computer to county USDA Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices.

The bottom line: by sending data on the National Cotton Council's Cotton Telecommunication Network, ASCS' workload will go down, loan processing will speed up and producers will get checks in hand

"ASCS has notified us the they will expand the CTN loan-making pilot project to all cotton county ASCS offices beginning with the 1989 crop," said Joe Wyrick, the Council's Information Systems director who manages the CTN project. "We're looking forward to the challenge of providing this service to producers in all Cotton Belt states."

Although the loan pilot was limited to 80 counties in eight states last season, nearly 2,000 government loans involving more that 100,000 bales were secured from ASCS offices via the CTN. Now, the potential exists for all of the nation's 38,000 cotton producers in 800 counties across 18 states to get loans by computer. USDA crop productions loans are available to producers following the harvest and ginning of the cotton. Wyrick said CTN loan transactions are faster than the conventional form A loan which requires a producer to go to his county ASCS office, fill out the loan form and leave his bale class cards and warehouse receipts with the county office. The data on the paper loan form has to be keypunched by ASCS personnel which slows loan processing so that a

Extension Agent Brett Cypert Lynn County Extension Office

Cicada Killers Have Arrived A very large wasp, the "cicada killer" is making its annual summer appearance on the South Plains, said Brett Cypert County extension agent. This wasp is the largest in our area, being about 1-1/2 inches in length.

This wasp is much more interested in stinging Cicadas than people. They can often be seen dragging or flying and carrying paralyzed cicadas back to their nests.

At suitable nesting sites, the wasps excavate a tunnel into the soil at an angle for a distance of one to three feet. The main tunnel ends in a number of branches and cells. The burrows may be dug during the day or night. The excavation will often result in a large mound of dirt. The burrow entrances are left open during provisioning of the nest and may never be closed except when the wasps' entire job is completed.

Depending upon their size, from one to four cicadas are provisioned in each underground cell. The female lays an egg on the last cicada she places in a cell. As many as four females may provision a single nest simultaneously although only one of them made the initial excavation.

The wasp larva which hatches from the egg has a cicada meal waiting. After consuming the cicadas provisioned in a cell, the wasp larva remains underground until the following July when the adult wasp emerges again to repeat the cycle.

Cicada killers are not aggressive and seldom attack humans. The males are not capable of stinging. Only the females can sting.

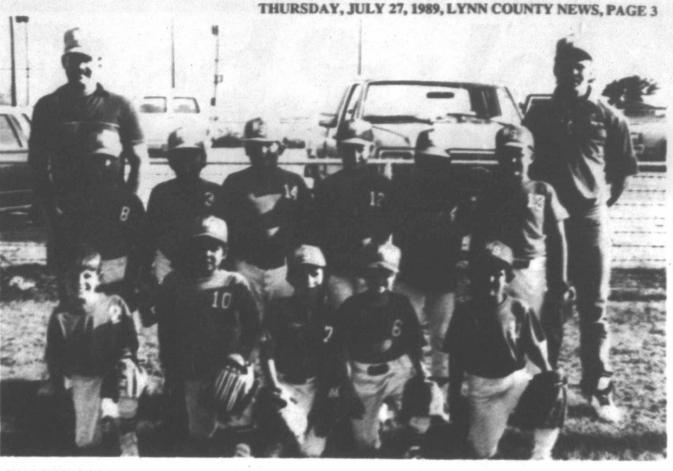

Cicada Killers are considered beneficial insects because they prey on cicadas. However, they can be present in sufficient numbers as to be a nuisance. For control, you may use one of the outdoor aerosol sprays containing pyrethrum or dust the nest entrance with sevin, the extension agent said.

Postal Pointers

Facts From The United States Postal Service Sending A Parcel?— Pack It Right!

By Ann McK. Robinson Consumer Advocate United States Postal Service

Proper packaging and addressing of parcels is the best way to prevent parcel damage and loss. Mail order companies have determined the best materials and procedures for shipping their products. With practice, you, the consumer, can prepare your parcels with the same degree of expertise. Here are some helpful guidelines: Select a container

tect contents during handling. Fiberboard containers are generally strong enough to ship material of average weight and size. These are the common boxes which are readily available in the home, supermarket, hardware store, etc.

 High-density items require a stronger box than do average items. We define "high-density" items as those which exceed 15 pounds per cubic foot, such as hardware or auto-

 The container should be large enough to hold the contents plus adequate cushioning to prevent damage, but not be so large as to permit shifting of the contents. Liquids should be sent in leak-proof interior and exterior containers. Items which have an odor should be placed in a container which is impermeable to the contents. · Take stens to protect the contents. Cushioning distributes and absorbs shocks and vibrations while preventing contents from shifting. When several items are packaged in a container, they should be separated. Even single items packaged alone should be cushioned for safety. Many types of suitable cushioning materials are available including polystyrene, shredded or rolled newspaper, "bubble" plastic and fiberboard inserts. · Wrapping paper is not necessary if the box itself is an adequate shipping container. However, wrapping paper equivalent to the strength of the average grocery bag may be used if required. Filamentreinforced tape should be used to close and reinforce parcels. Avoid using twine and cord because they tend to catch and bind in mail processing equipment.

 Clearly mark the address, including ZIP or ZIP+4 Code, of both the sender and receiver on one side of the parcel. If possible use an indelible ink which will not smear if and the receiver inside the package. This will help in the delivery of the parcel in the event that the outside address become illegible.

· Special markings on the outside of the parcel alert Postal Service employees to the nature of the contents. Markings such as FRAGILE, PERISHABLE, and DO NOT BEND will be applied by your post office window clerk at your request.

But today, school systems and professional educators are stressed beyond belief. Classroom sizes across North America average 17 to 25 students, making it all but impossible for teachers to provide individualized attention.

Yet the National Commission on Excellence in Education (NCEE) tells parents, "You have the right to demand for your children the best our schools and universities can provide."

But giving children an education that will equip them to compete in a global job market involves more than merely dropping them off under the porticos of their schools.

The NCEE report warns, "As surely as you are your child's first and most influential teacher, your child's ideas about education and its significance begin with you. "You bear a responsibility to participate actively in your child's education. You should encourage more diligent study and discourage satisfaction with mediocrity."

Your participation is most critical in building your child's fundamental skills. For instance, you can have a profound impact on his or her reading skills, the foundation to all learning processes.

Here are some helpful ideas:

· Read to your preschool age child. Invite his participation by discussing stories and accompanying pictures. Encouraging him to link sounds to words and letters will help him learn the connection between reading and the written word. Such sessions should be frequent; limited by his attention span; and enjoyable for both you and your child.

· Relate what you've read to life around the preschooler. Opportunities abound everywhere you go.

 Listen to your older child read. Be helpful, but don't read for him. Positive support and reinforcement are critical.

 Discuss what is read with your young reader to facilitate comprehension and retention.

Support your child's reading activity. Be willing to take him to the library. Urge him to participate in reading programs; foster reading as a leisure-time activity; and limit television viewing as a substitute for reading. Emphasize that reading is for fun, as you reinforce the need to become more efficient in reading classroom assignments.

Encourage appropriate study hebits and lovingly monitor his progress in school. Developing good reading skills is essential to proper study habits.

Helpful Facts From Experts At COMEX

Q. Is there a way to trade in gold without physically owning the metal or investing in mining shares?

A. Yes. Trading in gold futures. This offers a direct investment in gold, through a flexible margin system that allows investors to control a significant amount of the metal for just a small portion of its total value. Since it opened for trading in 1974, COMEX gold futures have emerged as a valuable trading vehicle for both commercial investors and private investors.

To help investors master the opportunity of precious metals options and futures, there are a number of free catalog, you can write to: Commodity Exchange, Inc., Marketing Dept., Room 7451, Four World Trade Center, New York, N.Y. 10277-

If casual entertaining is uppermost in your mind, here's a supremely good nacho appetizer made with California avocados. They'll add a festive, fun touch to any entertainment setting and they taste like no other nachos you've ever eaten-thanks to the nutty flavor of the avocados. Be prepared to share this recipe with your guests -they're sure to ask for it!

Fiesta Nachos

3/4 pound lean ground beef. cooked and crumbled 1/4 pound chorizo Mexican sausage (casing removed) cooked and crumbled (optional) 1 medium onion, finely chopped and cooked

1 teaspoon garlic salt 1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce, or to taste

1 can (30 oz.) refried beans 1 can (4 oz.) chopped green

1 cup sour cream can (7 oz.) green chili salsa

1 to 2 green onions, sliced 2 tablespoons sliced olives, drained 1 cup shredded Cheddar

1 cup shredded Jack cheese 2 ripe medium California

Tortilla chips

Mix meat, onion, garlic salt and hot pepper sauce. In a large flat 13- to 15-inch heat proof platter, layer beans, meat mixture, green chili, sour cream, green chili salsa, green onion, olives. Cheddar and Jack cheeses. Bake at 350° F for 10 minutes, or until mixture is hot. Before serving, seed, peel and slice the avocados. Arrange the slices in spoke fashion in the center. Makes 1 large platter for appetizers.

Serve with tortilla chips.

Presently, in terms of planted acreage, Texas ranks third nationally in vegetable crop production. About 260,000 acres of these crops directly contribute an estimated $450 million to the state's annual income, with an economic impact of more than $1 billion.

Historically, Texas has emphasized fresh market vegetable production, with about 90 percent of the state's vegetable acreage allocated to the fresh market. More than 20 vegetables make up this category. Rising production costs, labor shortages, fluctuations in market availability and the perishability of fresh produce help provide incentives for expansion of the state's vegetable-processing industry.

In addition, the nearly year-round production of several vegetable crops and geographical advantages make Texas an attractive area for expansion or relocation of processing facilities. Although geographic and climatic factors encourage yearround vegetable production, these same environmental conditions often create severe production problems, poor quality and low yields. The Texas vegetable industry, as with most other state agricultural industries, has undergone some difficult times in recent years. Consequently, methods to improve overall production efficiency and improved marketing strategies are needed to ensure survival of this vital industry. Current vegetable research by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station concerns improved yield and quality, reduced impacts of environmental and biological stresses, effective marketing strategies, improved production technologies, postharvest handling and processing techniques, decision aids for risk management and alternative vegetable crops.

An expanding population should offer vast new future markets for the vegetable industry if producers capitalize on their advantages and fully use the developing technology.
