Candidate For Land Office Is Tahoka Visitor

Wes Gilbreath, candidate for the Republican nomination for commissioner of the general land office, stopped in Tahoka Thursday afternoon on a vote-seeking tour of West Texas. Gilbreath, of Houston, was accompanied by his son, Brett.

A businessman with his own investment company, Gilbreath also is a former farmer and rancher, an accounting graduate of the University of Houston, a member of Lions and Elks clubs, founder of "the most listened to Christian radio station in America," a master electrician and founder of a heavy equipment construction company, and has been active in Harris County, statewide and national politics for the Republican Party. He also has been an overseas missionary worker and he and his wife, Pat, are parents and grandparents.

Gilbreath, opposed by two other Republicans for the nomination, directed most of his comments toward incumbent land commissioner Gary Mauro, who is unopposed for the Democratic nomination. He accused Mauro of repeated conflicts of interest and mismanagement of state funds in the operation of land programs in the state. "The general land office manages the leasing, development and revenue accounting of surface and mineral interests across the state. More than 22 million acres and ten billion dollars are under the guard of the land commissioner and the numerous boards he chairs," said Gilbreath.

"I assure you that I will accept no loans and take no campaign contributions from those who hold contracts

Many changes have occurred through the years around the courthouse in Tahoka—but one consistency that can always be found downtown is Jerry Guin, the ever-present and ever-pleasant manager of the Lynn County Abstract Company located in the basement of the courthouse.

Mrs. Guin has been working at the abstract company since 1964, when she started working for Beulah Pridmore. Ten years later, Mrs. Pridmore retired from the business and Mrs. Guin became the manager of the company, leasing the business from Mrs. Pridmore. Mrs. Guin received her original training in the abstract business when she worked for three years at the Lamesa Abstract Company.

Mrs. Guin married Homer Guin on July 12, 1958 in Tahoka and they have two children, Tommy and Claudia. Guin is a retired field inspector for the Southwest Cattle Ranchers Association with whom he was employed for 23 years.

Mrs. Guin enjoys working in the abstract business and she says having the company located in the basement of the courthouse make the job a little more interesting.

After she graduated from high school, she had problems finding employment—as many people did at that time because of an extensive drought. So she did what she says seemed like a good idea, becoming a member of the United States Air Force. While most young women at this time period were husband-shopping, Mrs. Guin was employed by Uncle Sam from February 1952 through February 1955 as a secretary at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Ala., and Offit Air Force Base in Omaha, Neb.

Mrs. Guin's duties at the abstract company consists of making copies of property titles, mainly for land, and supplying the copies to potential land and property buyers. Occasionally, she makes copies for oil companies, but this is not as common as it was in the past.

These copies are needed by prospective buyers to determine if the property or land titles are clear.

In fact, she can supply all the legal information on a specific property from the last 20 years. Mrs. Guin says her work is similar to being an investigator.

Now, after nearly, three decades in the business, Mrs. Guin is looking forward to retirement so she can "do just whatever she wants". Retirement would give "Sis" and "Son" as the Guins are known by townfolks, more time to spend on their five acres of land located just north of Tahoka.

Retirement would also give them more time to spend on their hobbies, watching television and taking care of their four horses.

A LOT OF people are running for governor of Texas, and most of them are busy telling people why they think they ought to get the job, and also why they think their opponents ought not to get the job.

Although politicians no doubt are aware that most voters cast their ballots against some candidate rather than for somebody, the candidates still spend lots of ink and paper telling voters how qualified they are (I have a background of successfully running businesses, I am a lawyer, I'm a good guy, I have a family, I have never been caught doing anything illegal).

I've not heard any of the candidates say, "I do an outstanding job of signing my name on proclamations," although this must be the main duty of the governor (and of mayors of cities), judging from the number of proclamations issued in a year's time.

Mayors always are being asked to pose for photos with some group or other and to proclaim this week (day, month) as Dill Pickle Week or Gopher Mound Week or whatever, urging all residents of this fair city to recognize the achievements of pickle workers in Bangkok (or wherever pickles are raised), and the hard-work ethic demonstrated by gophers who never stop digging.

Governors have to be able to sign their names to thousands of such proclamations. Just this week we received copies of eight proclamations signed by Gov. William P. Clements (he signed "W.P. Clements" to save time, no doubt). I'll bet he is glad his name is not Alexander Q. McGillicuddy III.

The proclamations are in favor of February as Community College Month, Health Awareness Month, Heart Month and Black History and Heritage Month. Also, Feb. 19-25 as Classroom Teachers Week, and March as Social Work Month, Nutrition Month and Women's History Month (I have a comment about that last one, but I decided not to print it. Ask me, if you're curious).

Babysitting Clinic Planned By FHA

A babysitting clinic is scheduled by the Tahoka chapter of Future Homemakers of America, from 5 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 24, in the Home Economics building at Tahoka High School.

The clinic is for girls in the fifth through ninth grades who want to start babysitting or who want to increase their chances of being employed to babysit, according to freshman Carrie Taylor, who is organizing the clinic.

More than 40 mothers of young children were asked to complete a survey about their children and their need for sitter.

"Many of the mothers said they would go out more if they knew how to call to babysit," Carrie said.

Clinic participants will view a video and a packet of materials, make a card file of mothers of young children who sometimes need babysitters, and receive a list of do's and don't's for babysitters, compiled by the participating mothers.

Participants also will get a meal of Mexican food.

"The unique thing about this clinic," said Carrie, "is that all of the participants will get their names placed on a list which will be mailed to at least 50 mothers of young children in this area. These mothers can use the list to help them find babysitters."

Any mother who did not participate in the survey but who would like the babysitter list, including phone, age, etc., may obtain one by calling Carrie Taylor at 998-5142 after 3:30 p.m.

"Response to the mothers' survey has been great. The mothers seem really excited about getting a list like this, and have really encourage me to do this project," Carrie said.

Local 'Characters' Enlivened Town

By: MABEL GURLEY

It would be most difficult to conjure up fictional characters that would exceed the escapades of our local personalities of past days. Tahoka, not always bustling with activity, relied somewhat on its innovative pranksters with a sense of humor to enliven the community. Not all comedy was pre-conceived, but often a result of individuals who were, to say the least, "unusual." Homespun humor did contribute a feeling of intimacy to our community.

The local post office crew was startled on one occasion to see a postal patron riding his horse into the post office lobby to get his mail. Then there was this customer waiting impatiently for his very special golf club order. When it finally arrived, the package was taken to the local coffee shop by the proud owner to allow friends and fellow golfers to see the new club. To his amazement, when the package was opened it contained not a golf club, but a large mesquite limb contoured somewhat like a driver. Culprits were soon identified.

An order for a pair of shoes from Neiman Marcus prompted a local woman to inquire repeatedly as to whether her shoes had arrived. When the package came at last, she smilingly agreed to open the box for the postal crew to admire the new shoes. A pair of run-down large sized men's shoes emerged from beneath the tissue paper, the right shoe having a hole to accommodate a corn, and the left with an opening to release a sizable bunion. (When new shoes were purchased from the next door Cobb's Department Store, sometimes the old ones were left in the store, and somehow this pair found its way into the Neiman Marcus box.)

There was a record high jump and select choice of words as one extremely excitable native reached into his mail box and encountered a small snake instead of a letter from "Aunt Maude".....Now should an informant feel it his moral duty to expose these federal violators, they are all deceased. But to compensate for these dastardly acts, no few accommodations were performed. On special occasions such as Christmas and Mother's Day, packages arriving too late to be picked up at the post office were gladly delivered to the recipients. And when bad weather was unsuitable for the elderly to get out, they often heard a knock on their front door and received special delivery of their mail.

An aged woman on a rural route left a note in her mail box, requesting the carrier to pick up a hat she had long admired at Robinson's Ready-to-Wear which was now advertised for sale. It was easily identified by her descriptive note—a pink hat with guinea feathers. Duly gift-wrapped, the hat was delivered at Christmas.

Bridegrooms were sure-fire targets for local pranksters. Chaining the recent groom to the Main Street fire plug to sell a given amount of toilet tissue was a standard treatment. Another common ordeal for the unfortunate newly-wed was to be driven several miles from town, stripped of outer clothing, and be obliged to walk back to town. He rarely was able to catch a ride.

A local man brought his bride home from New York, where she was employed as a nurse, never having lived anywhere except the East. She became enthralled with the "Wild West" immediately and made every effort to adjust to our customers. "Drop-in" company, expecting to dine, was ordinary in those days. This eastern lady's two brothers-in-law appeared one morning with a "mess" of mesquite beans, requesting that she cook them for supper, and stating they would be back. Half the day was spent trying to shell them, and the remaining daylight hours trying to cook those inedibles. She was later victimized into cooking a sand-hill crane (declared to be a goose), which was brought in by a friend.

It would be difficult to imagine a local female character who changed her attractive appearance into a most unsightly hick-town individual, unless one witnessed her transformation and performance. The local dentist obliged by making a set of buck teeth that literally changed her facial features. She also acquired a wardrobe befitting the character she portrayed. Appearing unexpectedly at formal wedding rehearsal dinners or proper occasions with prominent guests was her specialty. The claim that she was a cousin of the host or perhaps a member of the party preceded the information that she had just arrived on the bus. Gaping, embarrassed guests attempting to be nonchalant and cordial were the results of her invasion. Many local people, too, were unable to identify her. You had to be there!

The traffic light just installed on Main Street didn't deter one elderly gentleman from driving right through, red or green. Accosted by the local law officer, he stated in no uncertain terms that he had arrived in Tahoka long before that light was erected, so he'd just drive as he always did!

There were several members of one family that were reputed to be quite absent-minded in regard to trivial matters. One day the bank got a call requesting that someone step outside and check on the car the caller had parked at the bank to see if he had left the motor running. They checked. It was. The man had called from O'Donnell where he had casually ridden down with a friend, forgetting all about his own car.

The same man and his brother were driving from Post when they suspected they had a low, if not flat, tire. The driver suggested that his brother check the tire, and the absent-minded passenger just stepped right out while the car was chugging down the road. He rolled over several times, and when the driver stopped the car and backed up he said reprovingly, "Why, brother, you could get hurt doing that!"

In the very early days of this community when the town had basically only one street, a man and wife each owned a new auto—practically the only cars in town. They ran into each other.

A most conservative couple—the husband particularly so—had argued over and over as to the need of buying new curtains. One day the husband came in, and seeing curtains of a different color, inquired, "Ma, did you 'Rit' the curtains?" "Yeah," she replied, "I writ a check for them."

A registered bull was purchased by a local man, and unfortunately he was viciously gored in the shoulder by its horns. The family soon noticed that every time it rained, this individual reached for his shotgun and proceeded outside. It was then learned that damp weather aggravated the rheumatism in his injured shoulder, so when the pain became severe he went out to the lot and peppered that bull with buck-shot. He didn't want to kill his prize animal, but he sure got even!

Doubtless, laughter is the best medicine—a commodity to relieve tension. "Tranquilizer" was an unknown word in those days.

We are fully aware that these writings are not literary gems, nor recordings of monumental history, but rather our effort to preserve memories for those that were there, and portray life in our community for those too young to remember "the way it was."

NOSE DROPS - IMPOTENCE

Long-continued use of nose drops for relief of nasal congestion can result in impotence. Modern Medicine reports. Nose drops cause 'vasoconstriction', narrowing the blood vessels in the nasal membranes—and in other areas of the body as well, if continued use of nose drops causes enough medication to be absorbed into the blood stream. Vasoconstrictor nose drops should always be used sparingly.

Payments will be based on a rate of 13.1 cents per pound. Producers who participated in the price support and production adjustment program may have received advance payments of 8.56 cents per pound, leaving a balance of 4.54 to be paid in cash. Those who did not request advance payment will get the entire amount.

Because the 1989 calendar year national average market price of 60.3 cents per pound is above the loan rate of 50 cents per pound, the deficiency payment rate is the difference between the target price of 73.4 cents per pound and the national average market price.

Seafood And Coronary Diseases

You may have been brought up on the old adage that "fish is brain food." Current research indicates that more nutritionally smart people are increasing the amount of seafood in their diets, both to stay in shape and to reduce the risk of coronary disease. Three major areas of concern are calories, fat content and sodium levels.

Americans are becoming increasingly concerned about fats in their diets, and well they should be, since coronary heart disease accounts for approximately 50 percent of all

Economist Says Cotton Farmers Face 5 Key Issues In '90 Farm Bill

Discussion is heating up on possible provisions in the 1990 federal farm bill, and cotton producers should watch proposals which could affect five major issues, an agricultural economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service says.

The 1985 farm bill, as a whole, did what most of the involved parties wanted it to do and will act as a base for the 1990 legislation, said Stan Bevers, extension economist here. He made prediction during meetings conducted at Anson and Vernon by the Extension Service and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station to update Rolling Plains cotton producers.

News stories already indicate the new farm bill will probably address such things as market orientation, budget balancing under the Gramm-Rudman-Hollins Bill, environmental concerns, flexibility of base acres in commodity support programs and international competitiveness, Bevers said.

Marketing loans will be one of the major issues for cotton farmers, Bevers said. "Specifically, for cotton, we have to find ways to improve the marketing loan," he said. The marketing loan is based on the international price and is designed to make U.S. cotton competitive in the world market.

The second issue, Bevers said, is to find ways to reduce the adverse impact of supply management strategies on agribusiness, the consumer and rural communities. "For the most part the government hasn't managed the supply of stocks the way it should have," he said. He said the government would like to keep the cotton stock under four million bales. Cotton farmers' third concern, the economist said, is for the new farm bill to find ways to reduce costs while maintaining price and income support at a politically acceptable level.

Environmental concerns, including pesticide use, is a fourth area of the new bill of vital interest to cotton growers, Bevers said.

"The last thing, we're going to have to increase flexibility in planting, thereby allowing producers to respond to market-allocating signals," Bevers said. That means allowing flexible base acres in crop support programs, he said.

"If we've got so many acres in cotton, and we decide that the wheat market looks more attractive to us than cotton does at this point, is there a program that will allow use the flexibility to change our base acres from cotton to wheat?"

It's a good idea that could work, but would be difficult to police and very difficult to administer, the extension economist said.

of heart attacks. The higher the fat level of the fish, the better its effects on lowering cholesterol. Fish such as tuna, salmon and herring actually do a better job than leaner fish. Mackerel is probably the best source of desirable polyunsaturated. These fish contain large amounts of eicosapentanoic acid (EPA) and docosahexanoic acid (DHA), the fatty acids that seem to be most effective in reducing the risk of heart attack.

Fish and seafoods are high in proteins and yet are very low in calories. A 100-gram (3-1/2 ounce) portion of lean fish such as cod or haddock contains about 80 calories, while the same portion of a high-fat fish such as bluefish or mullet contains about 120 calories.

The role of sodium in the diet is of particular concern to those individuals with a tendency toward high blood pressure or hypertension. Both freshwater and saltwater fish are low enough in sodium to be particularly good for strict low-sodium diets.

If you are concerned about your health and well-being, seafood should play a major role in your diet because:

*Most seafoods are high in protein and low in calories. Use lemon juice and fresh herbs instead of heavy butter sauces.

*Recent data indicate that certain polyunsaturated fats found in fish oils actually lower serum cholesterol and reduce the risk of atherosclerosis.

*Seafoods are naturally low in sodium, an important consideration in the dietary regulation of hypertension.

Some Simple Safety Tips From Your Friends at Energas

Natural gas is one of the safest, cleanest, most efficient and economical forms of energy known to man. For any heating job in your home, you know that nothing beats natural gas for convenience, reliability, and cost-efficiency.

Here are a few reminders from your friends at Energas on the safe and responsible use of natural gas in your home year-round.

Your furnace needs an annual check-up.

Every year before cold weather hits, your furnace should be thoroughly inspected by a qualified professional heating contractor. Your natural gas furnace is so reliable that once it's been checked over, it should require very little attention the rest of the winter.

A closet isn't always a closet.

Your water heater or furnace is probably in a closet all by itself. And that's the way it should stay. As tempting as it may be, don't use the space around a water heater or furnace for storage. Even if these major appliances sit in the open, the space around them should be kept clear to insure adequate air circulation.

If you smell gas.

If you smell gas near an appliance, it may be just a pilot light out or a burner valve open slightly. You can easily correct this type of problem yourself. But if a gas odor persists, or you cannot determine its source, call Energas at once. We'll check out the problem at no cost to you.

While waiting for one of our service representatives, don't strike a match, flip light switches or use any other electrical equipment in the area. If the odor is strong and getting stronger, leave the premises immediately. Call from a nearby phone as soon as possible.

Follow manufacturers' instructions.

When lighting gas appliances, always follow the instructions of the manufacturer. Always light the match before turning on the gas. Installation, service, repair, and disconnection should always be handled by a qualified person. When moving an appliance, be sure the gas supply is shut off. Make certain every gas appliance has an adequate supply of fresh air.

Use the right appliance for the job.

An appliance should be used only for the purpose for which it was designed. For example, use a range only for cooking, not for heating a room.

Properly used, natural gas from Energas is the safest, most cost-efficient energy you can bring into your home. And your safety is the most important thing in the world.

The Young at Heart group will resume their meetings this Thursday, Feb. 22 at St. John Lutheran Church. This is a time of fun and fellowship for those wishing to participate. The meeting begins at 1 p.m. in the education building.

PTO needs recipes. They are putting together a Wilson community cookbook and need recipes turned in as soon as possible. The books will go on sale in April for $5 and will make great Christmas and birthday gifts. Please send your recipes to the elementary school or one of the following PTO officers: Nan Wied, Donna Fields, Pam Williams, Carol Holder, Merri Wilke, Tonda Kirk or Lessia Clem. You may send in as many as you like.

PTO had its regular night meeting on Monday, Feb. 12. The PTO would like to thank the kindergarten and 3rd grade classes for doing a wonderful job for the PTO program last week. They acted out several Mother Goose nursery rhymes for the program and did an excellent job. The 5th grade again won the party for having the highest average of parents at the meeting. The kindergarten and 3rd graders came in 2nd with 1 percent less than the 5th grade. Other business included the cookbook to be sold in April, the book fair in May, and the election of new officers. Donna Fields, Merri Wilke, and Reda Abbe were elected to the nominating committee to help select new officers. These officers will be voted on at the April meeting.

Several students from Wilson Elementary school entered the Lynn County Soil Conservation poster contest this past week. There were 472 posters entered from the four schools in Lynn County. The following students won ribbons for their posters that had the theme of soil conservation: First grade- Ryan Smith 1st; Third grade- Joel Garza 1st, Kevin Abbe 2nd, Carlos Garza 3rd, Lori Guzman 4th, Brenda Castillo 5th; Fourth grade- Kenny Follis 1st, Michael Ancira 2nd, Artemio Gomez 3rd, Eric Arellano 4th, Cassie Short 5th; Fifth grade- Jodi Wied 1st, Amy Clein 2nd, Lora Yowell 3rd, Christina Garza 4th, Jeremy Raley 5th.

Jodi Wied was awarded first place in the county for her poster for the fifth grade. Kenny Follis was also awarded first place in the county for the fourth place. His poster then was chosen as one of the two that will be sent to state competition from Lynn County. They will be recognized in March at the annual banquet for the winners for the poster contest. All the winners from Wilson will be given ribbons at the end-of-the-year awards assembly.

The Wilson ISD Board of Trustees met Monday night, Feb. 12, in regular session. The board approved the re-employment of Norman Clement and Associates as auditors for the 1989-90 school year. Board training hours completed by current board members were announced and a call was made for an election to be held Saturday, May 5, 1990, for the purpose of electing two board members to three-year terms and one board member to the unexpired one-year term vacated by Jerry Dickson. The board appointed an election judge and clerks.

In other action, the board approved new contract forms for teachers and principals. Superintendent David Williams reported on State and federal funding. In further reports by the superintendent, the board was informed of public school week, the expected arrival date of the new bus, current milk prices, tax collection, UIL alignment, Ti-In board training schedule, and the attendance, accounting period and enrollment.

The Board in executive session discussed principal's contracts. After convening to open session, the board gave two-year contracts to Mr. Randy Moczygomba and Mr. Ted Dockery, principals, for the 1990-91 and 1991-92 school terms.

The Wilson ISD Board of Education called school board elections for Saturday, May 5, 1990. The three-year terms of Surpy Benavidez and Bobby Lee expire this year. Qualified persons desiring to become candidates for one of these terms may apply for candidacy at the administration office during regular office hours. Applications for those positions will be taken through Wednesday, March 21. The unexpired term of Jerry Dickson will be for one year. Qualified residents of the district may apply for a place on the ballot for this unexpired term through Wednesday, March 21. A candidate cannot apply for both the three-year term and the unexpired one-year term.

Any person who meets the following requirements is qualified to apply for a position on either of the ballots:

- (1) A U.S. citizen.
- (2) 18 years of age or older on the first day of the term to be filled at the election.
- (3) have resided continuously in the state of Texas for 12 months and in the district 6 months immediately preceding the filing deadline.
- (4) have not been finally convicted of a felony from which the person has not been pardoned or otherwise released from the resulting disabilities.
- (5) have not been determined mentally incompetent by a final judgement of a court.
- (6) must be a qualified registered voter of the district.

The spring Attendance Accounting period for Wilson schools began Monday, Feb. 19. It will continue for the four-week period ending Friday, March 16. Parents are reminded of the importance of their child's attendance during this four-week period for State funding. Each day that a child is absent during this period results in a minimum loss to the district of state monies of $99.50. Attendance is taken around 10 a.m. Students who are present when attendance is taken are counted present for accounting purposes. Therefore, it is important that if your child must be absent for part of the day due to appointments that he be present until 10 a.m. Please make appointments after that time.

If the district has 99 percent attendance for any of the four weeks, the principals have announced that school will be dismissed early one day between Spring Break and the end of school. The principals will be announcing the day for early dismissal whenever we reach 99 percent attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Fields of Commerce, formerly of Wilson, were honored with a dinner on Saturday, Feb. 10, marking their 50th wedding anniversary. Hosts were their six children: Sue Webb of San Marcos, Mae Cleeckler of Georgetown, Earlene Smerud of Lubbock, John Fields of Wilson, Linda Fields and Pat McCormick, both of Commerce. Fields and the former Ruby Hornsby were married Feb. 8, 1940 in Dennison. He is a retired farmer. They have 15 grandchildren and 4 great-grandchildren.

Role Of Small Firms In Economy Due Study

The Texas Rural Economic Development Commission will conduct a public hearing on Monday, Feb. 26, at the offices of South Plains Assn. of Governments, 1323 58th St., Lubbock.

Purpose is to get information from the public about recommendations the commission will make to the legislature. Some areas of interest listed include revitalization of rural areas, expansion of agribusiness, the role of small businesses in the state and area economy, and specific regulations which inhibit small business.
