County Office Candidates File

With only a day and a half left to file for the March 10 Democratic Primary in Lynn County, the busiest contest appeared to be the race for commissioner of Precinct 3, in which three persons have filed.

Sandy Cox, who was appointed to the job after the death of her husband, Commissioner Bobby Cox, earlier in 1991, is seeking election to the post. Also filing for that spot were Don Blair and Oscar Calzada.

Filing for the job of tax assessor/collector so far are Sherry Pearce and Deloris Short. The longtime officeholder in that job, George McCracken had announced that he would not be seeking re-election.

Others who had filed by noon Tuesday were incumbent Gerald Gerner for commissioner of Precinct 1, incumbent Jimmy Wright for county attorney, incumbent Jack Miller for sheriff, Virginia Thompson for Justice of the Peace Prec. 4 (O'Donnell), and incumbent Ricky Smith for district attorney.

Democratic Filing Date Ends Jan. 2

At close of business on Thursday, Jan. 2, is the final date to file for Democratic Primary.

Offices to expire are: District Attorney; County Attorney; Sheriff; Tax Collector/Assessor; Commissioner, Precinct 1; Commissioner, Precinct 3; and an unexpired term to be filled for Justice of the Peace, Precinct 4.

Citizens Urged To Take Trees To City Dump

Tahoka residents who have placed Christmas trees in alleys were encouraged to take the trees to the city dump ground, as the city does not plan to pick up the trees, according to City Manager Barry Pittman.

Pittman reminded residents that the dump ground is open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily and on a shorter schedule on Saturdays, for use of Lynn County residents only. It is closed, however, on all rainy days.

"The brush truck has been running occasionally in the summer, if we have extra help, but we are not able to pick up trees and brush now," he said.

Twins Take Over Key Positions At Newspaper

Juanell Jones and her twin sister, Vendell Wood, this week became the new principal owners of The Lynn County News, acquiring the majority of stock in Woodwork, Inc., which publishes the Tahoka newspaper and two smaller newspapers in Lamb County.

Mrs. Jones, who has been on the staff of the News for ten years, and Ms. Wood, who has moved to Tahoka from Dallas, where she was in the typesetting business, will have equal authority as publishers and editors of the newspaper.

The new owners are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Wood of Tahoka.

Wood, who has been publisher of the newspaper since April of 1979, has retained some stock in the business, and will continue on the staff of the newspaper.

"I'm just semi-retiring," he said, noting that he plans to be in the office most days, and plans to continue writing his weekly column "Woodwork."

The twins grew up in the newspaper business, graduating from high school in Slaton, where their father was part owner and editor of The Slatonite. Both then attended Howard College in Big Spring, and Vendell also attended McMurry College in Abilene.

THE AVERAGE American owns about 10 credit cards and owes $1,600 on them, according to the American Institute of Certified Accountants (a group of people who usually can afford to pay cash).

I opened my billfold and counted my cards, and sure enough, there were exactly 10, which would make me average, except that some of my cards are in a drawer at home because I don't use them that often.

However, I am pleased with the knowledge that I don't owe that much on them, although I did for many years. In more recent times, I have managed to keep the balances low.

Some guy I was listening to recently mentioned that his wife had lost her purse to a thief, and her drivers license, a little bit of money and all her credit cards had been missing for two or three months.

"I guess you canceled the cards and got replacements," said another person in the group. "No," he said, "I'm not canceling them. Whoever stole them is using them a lot less than my wife did."

I NOTICED that President Bush went quail hunting in Texas last week, ignoring the protests of some weird group which was hollering that it is wrong to shoot the little critters. I don't do any dove hunting or quail hunting myself, but it seems like a legitimate sport to me, especially if whoever shoots them eats them.

I doubt that George Bush eats the quail he shoots; I also doubt that Barbara would want to pluck one, or whatever you have to do to fix it for the table.

He really should eat a couple of them, so he can hold up the next one he bags and declare that a bird in the hand is not really as good as two in the Bush.

Investment Club Survey Reveals Success

A recent survey of the nation's investment clubs indicates their members are among the country's most successful investors. Of the sample tested, 61.9 percent of them earned as much or more than the Standard & Poor's 500 Index. That's a standard most professional investors work hard to surpass.

The average account in the survey had a compounded annual return of 14.9 percent. That's more than enough to double your principal every five years. Even more important, the average account in the study was eight years seven months old. The earning record was not just a one time flash in the pan, but a solid long time result.

North Texas Taxpayers Due Refunds From IRS

Almost three-quarters of a million dollars in undeliverable refunds is waiting for 1,728 North Texas taxpayers. According to Terry Green, Chief, Taxpayer Service Division for the Dallas District of the Internal Revenue Service, $746,064 is the total amount in refund checks returned to the IRS as undeliverable earlier this year.

"Some of the problem is due to the increasing mobility of our population — people moving without giving the government a forwarding address," said Green. "Then, the human factor — illegible handwriting and our inability to read the taxpayer's address — plays a part." Green noted that marriages, remarriages, and divorces and the resulting name changes can also cause problems.

The largest refund check due to a taxpayer in North Texas is for $45,768, while the smallest on the list is for $1. The average refund amount is $431.75 as contrasted to the average refund issued during the filing period, which was more than $900.

Taxpayers who believe they were due a refund in 1991 which they have not received, should call toll-free, 1-800-829-1040, to learn how they may claim their undelivered check.

The average account in an investors survey had an annual return of 14.9 percent.

Texas Irrigation Conference, Trade Show Set In Lubbock

The biggest statewide irrigation event ever will be held Jan. 14-15 at the Lubbock Civic Center.

It will include a trade show with irrigation industry representative and suppliers, as well as technical conferences addressing water issues in Texas and all aspects of irrigation management.

The Texas Irrigation Conference and Trade Show is jointly sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the new Texas Agricultural Irrigation Association (TAIA). TAIA will conclude the conference with its first general membership meeting at 4 p.m. January 15.

The trade show will open at 5 p.m. Jan. 14 with a reception in the Civic Center mall area. On display will be the latest equipment and information for well drilling, pumps, engines and motors, supply lines and irrigation system components.

"This is a great opportunity for producers and irrigators to see what the market has to offer and spend time with equipment manufacturers and their representatives," said Dr. Rose Mary Seymour, agricultural engineer and irrigation specialist with the Extension Service.

The trade show will continue all day January 15, concurrent with the educational conference.

The technical conference will open at 8:30 a.m. January 15 with general sessions. Featured speakers will be from the Extension Service, Texas A&M University and the Texas Well Drillers Board. Technical workshops will run concurrently during the afternoon.

The first general session will deal with groundwater and well production. It will speak to a growing concern of many parts of Texas dependent on groundwater for irrigation.

Topics will include groundwater hydrology and well yield, proper well construction, and well treatments.

The second general session will focus upon economics and water policy. Topics will include the economics of irrigation, pumping plant efficiencies, and groundwater law and regulation.

The afternoon concurrent sessions will address center pivot irrigation, furrow irrigation management, drip irrigation, corn and sorghum irrigation management, chemigation, surge irrigation, cotton irrigation management, and irrigation water management.

Those attending the show and conference should register in advance by obtaining forms from their local county extension agents. Pre-registration must be received by the Texas Agricultural Irrigation Association, 1608-C North University Ave., Lubbock, TX 79415, by January 7 for registrants to receive a discounted early registration price.

Early registration is $20 for the entire event of $15 for the second day only. After January 7, registration will be $30 for the whole event and $25 for the second day only. The fees cover the trade show and conference, plus a catered lunch the second day.

The organization of TAIA has been developing during the past year through a committee of persons involved in irrigation. It is a non-profit association, the objective of which is to enhance agricultural irrigation in Texas.

TAIA is a member of the Irrigation Association, a national irrigation group. TAIA membership is open to individuals, firms and corporations active in agricultural irrigation.

Pantry Pests Can Annoy Homeowners

by James Knoll
CEA-Entomology
Dawson/Lynn Counties

There are a number of insects that will infest nearly any type of dried food. These pests often contaminate food pantries, and they annoy homeowners when they fly or crawl around indoors. The eggs or larvae of these insects may be brought in with the food when it is purchased. Adult insects may also be attracted to the food from nearby infestations.

Certain pests prefer to infest only whole kernels of grain. These include the Angoumois grain moth, grain weevils, and bean and pea weevils. In the home, these are most often found invading popcorn, Indian corn decorations, or seeds in dried flower arrangements.

Other pests have a tendency to infest processed, dried foods. These include a number of small beetles, as well as flour moths.

Three other pests may appear in the pantry if stored products become moist or moldy. These include grain mites, booklice, and mealworms.

The most effective control method for pantry pests is "search and destroy". Examine all susceptible foods, such as flour, dried beans, and cornmeal. Infestations usually develop in seldom-used foods and in the least-disturbed storage areas.

When searching through flour or meal, use a spoon to stir the food around the bottom and edges of the container. Look for adult insects, the larval forms, and for the skins that are cast from the larvae as they grow in size. Throw away any items that were found to be infested. The shelves should then be vacuumed and scrubbed with hot, soapy water.

If the infestation was heavy, an insecticide treatment should be considered. The empty cabinets can be treated with insecticides labeled specifically for this use. Of course, label directions should be closely followed, and the insecticide should not exceed the labeled rate recommendations.

Do not allow these insecticides to come into contact with any food items or cooking utensils. The insecticide can be applied with either a sprayer or a paint brush. Be sure to treat around cracks and crevices in the woodwork.

After the insecticide has dried thoroughly, cover the shelves with clean paper or foil. Be careful to avoid further spillage of flour, meal, etc. As a further precaution, store processed or dried foods in containers that can be sealed tightly.

TELCOT[®] Report

A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF COTTON MARKETING NEWS

For The Week Ending December 26

In the week Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev resigned as leader of a former Communist empire, the cotton market resigned itself to the lulling effects of the Christmas holiday, a rain-delayed Texas and Oklahoma harvest. Added to this was a general lack of fundamental news to steer the market through continued indications of slow export demand and developments in the U.S. economy and world political arena.

Trading over TELCOT seemed to take everything in stride, as demand throughout the week remained steady despite a significant increase in bales listed in firm offer and continued producer resistance to low prices. As if awakening from a holiday slumber, trading over TELCOT on December 26 surged to 16,626 bales, making it the most active day of the week.

Volume traded over the electronic marketing system in the holiday-shortened trading week totaled 41,373 bales, down from 59,123 bales the previous week. The average prices received throughout the week ranged from 46.64 cents per pound on December 20 to 47.31 cents per pound on December 24. Average gross premiums over the week's adjusted world price (AWP) ranged from a high of 1244 points on December 24 to a low of 1203 points on December 20. Bales listed in the season's firm offer at the close of trading on December 26 totaled 177,948 bales.

Also on December 26, USDA for the sixth consecutive week set the AWP in effect through January 2 at 44.07 cents per pound. That makes the producer option payment (POP) for the same period

Cold, rainy conditions throughout the week continued to foil harvesting efforts in Oklahoma and Texas, as harvesting still remained behind schedule. According to the state's agricultural statistics service, in the week ended December 21, 88 percent of the Texas crop was harvested compared with 95 percent last year and a five-year average of 90 percent. USDA reported that excessive rains reduced the quality of unharvested cotton, and said many modules left in fields also began to show signs of deterioration.

In its latest cotton ginnings report, USDA reported cotton ginned in Texas as of December 15 totaled 3.5 million bales, behind 4 million ginned at the same time last year, but ahead of 2.7 million in 1989. Oklahoma ginnings stood at 152,000 bales, behind 337,000 last year and 164,000 in 1989.

Industry sources attributed the slowdown in ginning to the same weather conditions which have delayed harvest activity, contributed to low yields and resulted in additional abandonment.

As a result, many players in the industry expect USDA to further reduce its estimate of the Texas cotton crop by 300,000 to 500,000 bales. However, they say any decreases should be offset by increased production in California and the Mid-South.

Futures trading remained slow throughout the week, with most contracts closing higher on December 24, and across-the-board gains on December 26. Industry sources said this partially was a result of an upturn in the latest U.S. economics news which included new lower interest rates, a bullish U.S. stock market and a weaker U.S. dollar.

For the U.S. cotton and U.S. textile industries, these developments are welcome. Lower interest rates mean decreases in carrying costs for textile manufacturers, which encourages textile capital expenditures. A weaker U.S. dollar increases the marketability of U.S. cotton in a highly competitive global market.

But these positive developments are counterbalanced by bearish indications on the other side of the coin. Among these are the earlier mentioned indications of a large overall U.S. crop, as well as continued sluggish demand for U.S. cotton overseas. Traders in Japan said firms there bought only small amounts of cotton in the week ended December 24, as spinners awaited firm indications prices would not decline further. Export sales of U.S. cotton were quiet around the Christmas holiday, according to U.S. exporters. Traders continued to note stiff competition from low-priced Pakistani cotton as well as styles grown in the former USSR.

The dissolution of what was the USSR creates concern in the industry over the ability of those countries to move cotton into marketing channels and plant future growths. On the other hand, increased carryover resulting from low domestic consumption could put existing stocks at a competitive price level, with former Soviet republics aggressively marketing these stocks because of a need for cash.

Propane Gas Heats Up The Winter Season

Propane gas does more than fuel your backyard barbecue grill. Clean-burning propane gas can also efficiently heat your home, and for less money, than other energy alternatives.

If you're one of the country's eight million homeowners enjoying propane's comfort in spite of winter's cold blasts, take a moment to review these energy saving tips. These practical hints from the National Propane Gas Association (NPGA) will help you conserve fuel and decrease your heating costs even more.

Fill up your propane tank now and get a head start on the coldest winter months coming up. Also, ask your local propane gas dealer about a "Keep Full" program. This service takes the worry out of winter because your propane gas dealer will check your tank periodically and fill it automatically when needed.

Review your annual fuel usage and if you have been adding gas appliances, you may have outgrown your storage capacity. Your propane dealer can quickly analyze your storage requirements and offer solutions for your energy needs.

Give your gas appliances a tune-up to make sure they are running at top efficiency before the inevitable heavy use during the winter season. Members of NPGA offer customers a tune-up program called GAS Check®, or Gas Appliance System Check. Certified dealers inspect each element of the propane gas system starting at the tank and ending at the appliances.

Lower your thermostat to 65 degrees during the day. At night and when you're not home, lower the thermostat to 55 degrees. Install an energy-saver thermostat that can be programmed to raise and lower your heat automatically.

On sunny days, open your drapes or blinds to solar heat your home. When the sun goes down, close them to reduce heat loss.

Place air deflectors in your home that direct heated air away from cold windows and walls.

These energy-saving tips will help insure propane gas consumers a warm, economical heating season.

NOTICE OF FLUORIDE LEVEL IN WATER

The City of Wilson has been notified by the Texas Department of Health that the water being supplied by our system exceeds the maximum constituent level for fluoride established by the department's "Safe Drinking Water Act."

The samples of water from the Wilson system contain 4.1 milligrams of fluoride per liter, and the department requires the city to notify all customers. There is no immediate health hazard for drinking water containing fluoride at this level except that it could cause mottling (brown stain) on the teeth of children under 14 years of age.

All the dentists in this area are aware of the fluoride level.

The City will continue to search for alternate sources of supply and will investigate any available treatment techniques to lower the level of our fluoride if they are affordable at all.

Bottled water is available for families with children under the age of 14 years at the City Office at no cost.

Presenting the medal in ceremonies at Dyess AFB, Abilene, on Dec. 7 was Charles Stenholm, congressman from the 17th district, which includes Lynn County. Cotter was a seaman on the USS Maryland at the time of the attack.

'Area Senior Companions Recognized With Luncheon

The South Plains Senior Companion program had a recognition luncheon and meeting on Dec. 18 in Levelland. Companions from the eight counties came together to celebrate the season and the 10th anniversary of the Companion Program in this area.

Special recognition for service to the program was given to those who have been with the program seven years or more. Lamb County residents Mrs. Henry Bill Brown of Amherst, Carrie Selsebee, and Earl Williams and Hockley County resident Ferrell Echols celebrated 10 years with the program.

Nine years of service were celebrated by Lamb County's Bula Humphreys and Gracie Smith. Hockley county residents Josie Guerro, Adolfo Martinez, and Opal Shipman; Lamb County residents Ruby Chamberlain and Charlotte Woollever, and Trudy Scuknecht of Lynn County are among those who have completed eight years with the program. Those recognized have a total of 150,336 hours of service to adults in their home counties.

A total of 75 companions were recognized for their contribution of service ranging from a few months to ten years. Each companion works up to 20 hours a week with any adult that has a physical, mental or emotional need and yet wishes to retain independent living.

The Companions in Lynn County are Audelia Caserez, Dora Hernandez, Buclah Hubbard, Dorothy McCullough, Trudy Schuknecht, and Edith Wallace.

The Senior Companion program is sponsored locally by South Plains Community Action. The program is federally sponsored by ACTION which was established as an outcome of the Domestic Volunteer Act of 1973. To help celebrate the tenth anniversary of the program in this area, a cookbook was produced by the companions. The 100-page cookbook is on sale through the companions for $5. Proceeds will be used to benefit the companions.

The staff of the program expressed thanks to the area merchants and individuals who contributed to the success of this year's recognition luncheon through donations or items to be used for door prizes.

Families Needed For Exchange Students

ASSE International Student Exchange Programs (ASSE) is seeking local families to host boys and girls from Scandinavia, France, Italy, Spain, Germany, Holland, Great Britain, Switzerland, Japan, Canada, and New Zealand, 15 to 18 years of age, coming to this area for the upcoming high school year. These personable and academically select exchange students are bright, curious and anxious to learn about this country through living as part of a family, attending high school and sharing their own culture and language with their adopted host family.

Students speak English and are sponsored by ASSE, a nonprofit, public benefit organization. The students arrive from their home country shortly before school begins and return at the end of the school year. Each ASSE student is fully insured, brings their own spending money and expects to bear his or her share of household responsibilities, as well as being included in normal family activities and lifestyles.

Those persons interested in obtaining more information about becoming a host family or an exchange student should call 1-800-473-0696 or contact ASSE's local representative, Shelia Butterfield at 806-794-9194.

PREVENTIVE MEDICINE

Preventive medicine can avoid illness, just as preventive maintenance on an automobile can avoid major breakdown and repairs. Regular health examinations by your doctor are important, even though you feel entirely well. By discussing your diet, work, anxieties, etc. with your doctor, you may expose harmful practices which, if not corrected, could lead to serious illness.
