I SURE HOPE the study of handwriting doesn't become widespread, because once that happens, most of us will have to quit writing things in longhand because we don't want everybody to know our hidden hangups.

There was a story in the Lubbock A-J Tuesday about a woman who is a certified graphoanalyst, which means she completed an 18-month course and has studied people's handwriting for some time. She says she can tell a lot about a person by looking at his or her handwriting, that there are ways to tell things by such subtle things as how the letters are formed, the slant of the writing, etc.

For example, she says, the letter t offers good clues about the writer. A long crossbar indicates enthusiasm. A bar that stops halfway indicates procrastination, and a crossbar with a loop suggests a persistent person.

(I guess crossing the t halfway means procrastination because "I'll finish crossing this t when I get around to it." Probably if you forget to cross the t at all, you are even more of a procrastinator.)

If you dot an i close to the letter it means you pay close attention to details, and if your dot looks more like a dash, you tend to be irritable. Slanted writing shows emotion, the more slant the more emotional the writer.

Many people believe handwriting reveals things about the writer, and most of us would just as soon not have our innermost faults revealed so readily.

If everybody knew all this stuff, I can imagine handing someone a handwritten note, such as someone's name and address, and they take one look and exclaim: "Oh, my. You hate your mother, and you're schizophrenic. Also, you're disorganized, too fat, and you covet your neighbor's wife, not to mention his car and his boat."

There should be a law against any study of handwriting, if there's really anything to it. Of course, most of us already know some things about handwriting. For example, if you can't read a single word someone has written, you usually can be sure that it is written by a doctor, a banker, my son, or a guy I know named Jack McNairy, whose handwriting is understood only by my daughter and the decoding branch of the CIA.

JUDGING FROM A REPORT by the U.S. Dept. of Health & Human Services, many farmers in the nation have died recently from entering manure pits. Since I had never heard of such a thing, I did some checking and found that these are used primarily on large stock raising farms and for feedlots. I don't believe there are any around Lynn County, but I admit I've never gone looking (or sniffing) for one.

I can think of several pertinent comments to make on the subject, but will refrain from doing so, in the interest of delicacy and good taste.

I am reminded of an old joke which went: "She was only a stableman's daughter, but all the cow manure." (... all the cow men knew her).

MRS. STEVE RENFRO (nee CARLETTA FITZ)

Fitz-Renfro Vows Exchanged In Double Ring Ceremony Here

Carletta Renee Fitz and Charles Steven Renfro exchanged wedding vows in a double ring ceremony July 3, 1993 in the First Baptist Church of Tahoka. Jerry Becknal, pastor, officiated.

Mother of the bride is Gladys Fitz of Texico, New Mexico.

The altar featured arrangements of white gladiolus, and a spiral candelabra adorned each side of the altar. A fan candelabra and the unity candle were placed in the center of the altar.

The bride was escorted by her brother, Ray Fitz, and wore a romantic gown of white taffeta and schiffle lace. The bodice, beaded with sequins and pearls, featured a rounded neck, Renaissance sleeves and a basque waist. The full skirt was accented with beaded hem lace and flowed to a cathedral train. To complete her attire the bride chose a floral clip accented with sequins and pearls and highlighted with a two tiered silk illusion veil.

She carried a bouquet of silk white roses.

Betty Stennett of Tahoka and Gail Bush of Burleson served as matrons of honor. They wore dresses of royal blue jacquard with a satin finish.

Sammy Pridmore of Tahoka stood up for the groom. Stanley Renfro, brother of the groom, served as groomsmen. Delton Fitz of Lubbock and Don Fitz of Clovis, N.M. brothers of the bride, were ushers.

Bethany Short, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a dress of royal blue jacquard with a satin finish.

Gail Bush sang "This Is the Day." Byron Norwood sang "I Will Be Here." They sang "Household of Faith" during the lighting of the unity candle. Diana Hawthorne was pianist.

Sandi Ramsey, niece of the groom, registered the guests.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the fellowship hall. The bride had a white cake adorned with mauve, country blue, and royal blue flowers of icing. Serving at the bride's table were her sisters, Pam Overstreet of Lahabra, California and Valerie Short of Urbana, Illinois.

The groom's table featured a chocolate cake with chocolate icing. Serving at the groom's table were his sisters, Janice Curry of Las Vegas, Nevada and Jamie Haynes of Lake Charles, Louisiana.

The bride is a graduate of Wayland Baptist University and is employed by Tahoka ISD. The groom is a graduate of Tahoka High School and is employed by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The couple will reside in Tahoka.

THE FORMULA FOR THE FUTURE

Look For American Cancer Society Sword Emblem When Donating

Organizations entering the cancer field sometimes exploit the good name and reputation of the American Cancer Society and other worthwhile, legitimate health organizations in order to raise money for questionable uses. Look-alikes are a major problem and should be closely examined before donating money. Always look for the American Cancer Society sword emblem in order to identify the organization as the true American Cancer Society.

Look-alike and sound-alike organizations adopt names similar to the American Cancer Society and other reputable charities, in the hopes that people will donate to their organization in the mistaken belief that they are giving to the American Cancer Society.

The American Cancer Society is the largest non-profit, voluntary health agency in the world and has been a leader in cancer control and patient service for 80 years. In 1991 alone, the American Cancer Society provided 3.4 million services to 718,231 patients. In Lynn County, services have been provided to 15 patients since September 1, 1992. Those services include 15 gift items, 22 equipment loans and additional information. Services provided free of charge to Lynn County patients in the last ten months had an estimated dollar value of $3,489.

The Lynn County Chapter has recently received a Quality of Life award from the American Cancer Society for serving more patients than ever before. Dayton Parker, Patient Services Chairman of the Lynn County Chapter, has information available to any Lynn County cancer patient and may be reached at 998-5531. All cancer patients are eligible for a variety of patient services and gifts at no cost to them.

Nine Lynn County Residents Attend Electricity Camp

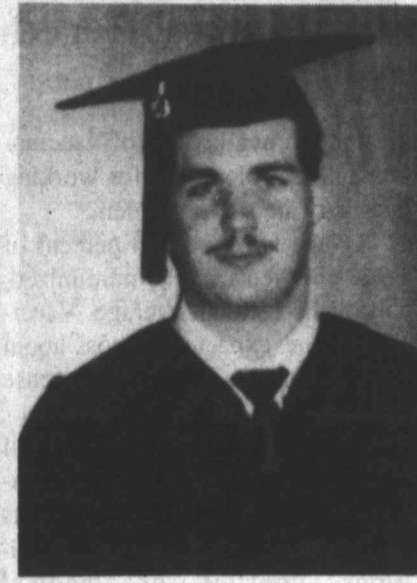

Nine Lynn County residents recently participated in an electricity camp sponsored by Southwestern Public Service Company. More than 954-H'ers from throughout the Texas South Plains attended the camp June 28-July 2 at Camp Scott Able, near Cloudcroft, N.M.

Lynn County participants were Cody Donald, Clay Taylor, Lee Rash, Felicia Davis, Keri Wied, Brandi Gickhorn, Jason Marshall, Jason Belew and county agent Rebecca Dimak.

Students had opportunities to build their own "hands-on" projects. They also participated in demonstrations and lectures on basic electricity, safety, wiring and electrical terminology.

County agents and SPS employees served as advisers and instructors.

Southwestern Public Service Company is a regional electric utility that primarily provides electric service to a population of about one million people in a 52,000-square-mile area comprising eastern and southeastern New Mexico, the South Plains and Panhandle of Texas, the Oklahoma Panhandle and southeastern Kansas. Corporate headquarters is in Amarillo.

Patch That Smoking Habit
About 2/3rds of the 45 million smokers in America have tried to quit. "More and more smokers are turning to their doctor to provide guidance and assistance, and the patch, along with simple counseling from their doctor, for many smokers (the nicotine patch) may be the means by which they are able to break free," says Michael Fiore, UW Medical School. He cites "consistent data that success rates were doubled... compared with those who don't use it..."

JULY 15 1993

The WILSON News
by Buster Abbe
628-6368

The Wilson Fire Department answered an alarm on Tuesday, July 6, at about 3 p.m. to a grass fire on the Dan Cook farm, which is north and east of Wilson on FM 211. A scrapper was cleaning up some junk and in the process, a spark or whatever caught the grass on fire. With the wind being up and lots of grass, the fire spread. Additional help was called for and the Tahoka Fire Dept. answered with 3 units. Several local people showed up with water trailers full of water and one local farmer brought a tractor and tandem, to cut a fire line and keep the fire from spreading. Most of the CRP grass on the farm was burned but very little damage was done to any other items. Several pieces of farm equipment, fuel tanks, and irrigation well meter loops were protected and kept from harm. There were a few anxious moments when the thick smoke choked down one of the fire trucks and stalled it, but the crew was able to restart the unit and get out of harm's way. All was over and the crews went back home about 8:30 p.m. that evening. The Wilson Fire Dept. would like to thank several individuals for providing assistance in fighting this fire. Elmer, Ty, and Jimmy Blankenship, who live right next to the farm, rigged up an irrigation well so that the trucks could fill up with water without having to return to town. Kendall Wilke brought his tractor and tandem to cut fire lines. John Earl Fields and several others brought nurse tanks full of water to refill the trucks.

Thanks go to the Lynn County Sheriff's office for traffic control and assistance with radio communications.

A special thanks to all of the members of the Tahoka Fire Dept., especially the driver who thought enough to bring drinks for the firefighters on the line.

Ag teacher, Billy Henry, and two of his students are in Corpus Christi this week for the State FFA Convention. Those students are Daniel Clark and John Lehmann.

The Wilson School Board met last week and went through a routine agenda. Mrs. Traci Sievers was hired as high school science teacher. She will also be girl's basketball coach.

Wilson ISD summer maintenance program continues with several projects to repair and clean up the school property. The two story house, known as the CELEBRATING THE END OF SUMMER SCHOOL- Staff and students involved in the summer school program at Tahoka Elementary celebrated the end of classes with a swimming party at the city pool. Summer school ended the last part of June.

Coaches house, has been repainted, and necessary repairs done just in time for Coach Lane and his family to move in. Several of the other school houses have been or are in the process of being cleaned up and made ready for use by various faculty members.

The new barn behind the ag building is slowly being completed. Most of the siding is in place and it looks like the trim is all that is left to finish the walls and siding. This still leaves quite a bit of inside work, but it will get done.

The City Council met in regular session and plowed through a regular agenda. They approved the independent audit of the city records and finances.

Shorty Moore had visitors this last weekend, from Lubbock. Ms. Phyllis Atnip-Randolph and one of her friends came for a few hours.

Mrs. Edna Nolte had house guests for a few days. Her daughter and son-in-law, Kathy and Kenneth Wentland and their two sons Aaron and Kyle from Ft. Wayne, Indiana are visiting for a few days.

St. John Lutheran Church is in the middle of their annual Vacation Bible School this week. They will be having a short closing service at 8 p.m. Friday, July 16, at the church. All parents and friends of those participating in the school are invited to attend this closing ceremony.

St. Paul Lutheran Church will be hosting their annual Vacation Bible School, beginning Monday, July 26. This school will be an evening school from 6 p.m.-9 p.m.

Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church will be holding their annual "Jamaica" on Sunday, July 25 beginning at noon. There will be food booths and game booths which will include bingo, a dunk tank, and many others. At this time four bands are scheduled to perform at the event at various times during the day: Pete Morales, Juan Casarez, Grupo Oro, and Grupo Peligro. Radio station KTLK-LA Tejanita, located at 1460AM will be doing a live remote broadcast from 2-4 p.m. All proceeds from this event will go to the church for its various programs.

Most of the farmers in the area have received some rain in the last few weeks and due to this, the crops are beginning to look nice. Yards and flowerbeds in town are greening up and blooming and the sound of lawnmowers fills the afternoons and evenings. Makes me glad I don't live along the Mississippi or in the northeast.
