Sheriff's Department Account Audit Presented To County Commissioners

Three representatives from Love, Hays and Reeger accounting firm in Tahoka presented an audit report of the Lynn County Sheriff's Department Operating Account to commissioners Monday morning, although the audit report was not listed on the meeting's agenda.

The audit, requested by Sheriff Jake Diggs following his appointment as interim sheriff after the resignation of Jack Miller, was for January through October, 1993.

Joe Hays, representing the auditing firm, read a "confidential" management letter to the court which listed transactions in the Sheriff's Dept. which auditors felt should be brought to the attention of commissioners. The auditing firm provided District Attorney Ricky Smith, at his request, a copy of the audit and letter.

According to County Judge J.F. Brandon, there was no discussion following the presentation of the audit and nothing was mentioned in the presence of the court about any unaccounted funds. Because the audit was not on the agenda, commissioners took no official action, noting that the audit would be considered at the next meeting.

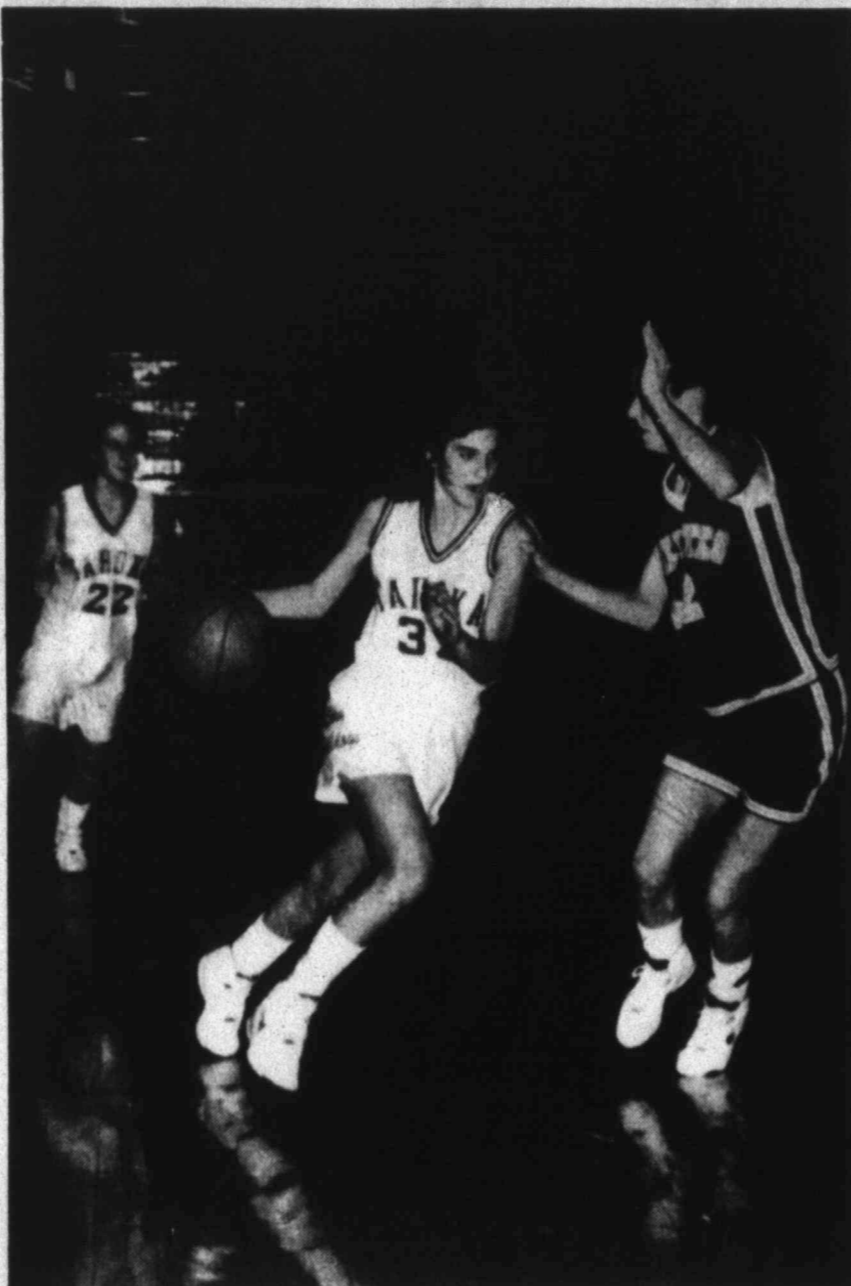

In other action, commissioners approved a contract with O'Donnell Fire Department and approved a payment of $10,184.50 to the Lynn County Appraisal District, which is one-half of the annual fee for contracting with the tax-collecting entity.

Todd Henry met with the court representing the local troop of the Boy Scouts of America, asking for space on the courthouse grounds for the Boy Scouts to fly U.S. Flags on special flag days.

The Scouts are offering a Flag Membership Program for local residents, which places a flag stand at homes or businesses and provides flags on six holidays a year. For those who live in the country wishing to participate in the Flag Membership Program, Scouts will place flags around the Lynn County Courthouse as honorariums or memorials. Commissioners approved the request.

The court went into executive session to discuss personnel at the Lynn County Sheriff's Office, but took no action upon return to open session.

All commissioners were present for the meeting.

Icy Roads Are Factor In Wrecks On U.S. 87

Icy roads last Thursday evening and on Friday were a contributing factor in three accidents on U.S. 87, according to investigating Dept. of Public Safety officers.

About 7:15 p.m. Thursday a northbound 1988 Chevrolet pickup driven by Roosevelt Moore, 58, of Tahoka, overturned once 4.9 miles north of Tahoka on U.S. 87. Moore was not injured.

At exactly the same spot, but on the other side of the highway Friday morning, a southbound 1994 Freightliner truck-tractor pulling a semi-trailer jackknifed into the median. Again there were no injuries. Driver of the truck was Mario Alaniz, 44, of San Angelo.

About 7:50 p.m. Thursday a 1993 Ford pickup pulling an 18-foot trailer, struck the median of U.S. 87 about 10 miles south of Tahoka, causing the trailer to turn on its side. Driver of the pickup, which did not overturn, was Franklin McNabb, 26, of Canton.

A minor accident on Tahoka High School gym parking lot Friday evening involved a parked 1994 Ford pickup owned by Valton Stephens of Tahoka and a 1992 Chevrolet Blazer driven by George Jeffrey Young, 37, of Levelland.

A Tahoka woman treated at Lynn County Hospital emergency room for bruises and a slight concussion Sunday told Tahoka Police Dept. that her husband had knocked her unconscious and that she would file charges.

Sheriff's officers were advised by Donald Patterson, an auctioneer from Wolforth, that a utility trailer owned by his firm apparently had been stolen during an auction sale 11 miles northwest of Tahoka, probably on Dec. 30. It had not been reported earlier because it had been assumed that someone at the sale had borrowed to transport items purchased.

Rodrigo Rodriguez, 22, has been charged with attempted murder in the shooting of an O'Donnell man in O'Donnell on Jan. 16. Bond for Rodriguez has been set at $25,000.

O'Donnell Clinic Opening Set Feb. 14

Lynn County Hospital Administrator Louise Landers said this week that the planned opening of the new O'Donnell Clinic has been set back to mid-February, with Feb. 14th now the goal date for opening.

An Open House of the facilities will be planned for the public.

He remained in jail this week. Also jailed during the last week were one person for no liability insurance and failure to appear, and one for application to revoke probation on charges of aggravated assault and on forgery charges from Lubbock County.

Wilson Chamber Discusses Museum, Walking Track

The regular monthly meeting of the Wilson Chamber of Commerce was held Saturday, Jan. 8, in the Green Building. The funds for paving the walking track have been donated by the City of Wilson through funds having been donated to the city by the Wilson State Bank. The pouring of the asphalt will be delayed until April to give the ground more time to warm up and hopefully get a better surface.

It was decided to get a post office box for the Chamber and file for a tax ID number in order to open a bank account. Again, it was stressed that the Chamber does not want to become a money raising organization but funds will be necessary for incidental expenses. As always, the Chamber will gladly accept any donations.

The Museum was also discussed, with the group still trying to make contact with some person or organization that can help restore the old meat packing plant. Helen Stephenson will continue to make telephone calls to individuals in an effort to make that right connection. Contact her at 628-6413 to suggest any ideas for this project.

In years past, Wilson has been a stop on a bicycle trail for bicycling clubs. The Chamber will be trying to make contact with the organization to determine whether our organization can be of help in promoting their events and also to increase participation or attendance in an effort to bring in more traffic to Wilson.

The Chamber has been promoting the idea of getting a master landscaping plan for the city park and the city council is now considering such a venture.

Everyone is encouraged to attend Chamber meetings on the second Saturday of each month and help with ideas of how to promote the Wilson community. The next meeting will be held Feb. 12 at 9 a.m.

WHEN I FIRST heard on the radio Monday that President Clinton had nominated William Perry to be Secretary of Defense, I thought Bill was getting smarter all the time, because The Refrigerator certainly should be a good choice to defend anything.

For you non-football types, William "The Refrigerator" Perry played defensive tackle for the Chicago Bears for several years, weighs more than 300 pounds and can throw people over tall buildings.

Later I discovered that the William Perry nominated for the cabinet post is not the one who played for the Bears.

That's a pity. I had visions of big old William Perry standing up in a meeting with people like Saddam Hussein, Boris Yeltsin and Fidel Castro and saying, "Look, guys, this is the way I think it ought to be. Do any of you have a problem with that?"

It would be nice to have a Secretary of Defense who could point a rocket launcher with one hand and whose opinions would rarely be challenged, except maybe over the telephone.

ALTHOUGH I am not really that old (old age is always 10 years older than a person happens to be at the time), I have outlived (1) many of my childhood friends, (2) some of the homes and buildings I've lived and worked in, and, according to my associates, (3) most of my usefulness.

Numbers 1 and 2 were brought to my attention this week when I attended the funeral of my great aunt, who died at the age of 93-plus, living the last years at Newport, TX, where I also lived until I was 8. I drove around this little town and the only thing I recognized was the old community church building where I remember standing around on first one foot and then the other, wishing the preacher would hurry up and finish his really long prayers. (I remember thinking how dumb the preacher was not to understand when people kept saying "Amen!", obviously wanting him to end his prayer, only he just kept on praying).

The house we lived in is completely gone. The few business buildings there when I was a kid were gone. My great-grandfather's big two-story house with the balcony he wouldn't let us kids play on was gone. The minister at my aunt's funeral referred to my great-grandfather as "David Wall." I never knew his name was David. I thought his name was Grandpa.

A few years ago we visited Newburgh, Ind., where I operated my first weekly newspaper. But the newspaper building, basement and all, was gone, leveled after it got too dilapidated for use.

I sure am glad they don't do that to humans.

A SENSE OF SIGNIFICANCE

It is a common practice for sailors to stand on the bow or fantail of a ship at off duty times and just stare. They stare at the vastness of the ocean and then stare at the expanse of the heavens. The sailor is practically lost into insignificance when he thinks of the tiny speck he occupies in such magnificence. It is seemingly impossible that God could even find him, much else care for him.

David was consumed with the same sense of wonder. He said, "When I consider Thy heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which Thou hast ordained; What is man, that Thou dost take thought of him? and the son of man, that Thou dost care for him (Psalms 8:3-4)? We may be but a speck in the reality of the universe but we are loved in the mind of God.

Each individual is significant to the heart of God: It was He who is grieved at the sin of each person. It was He who provided salvation to each individual through faith in His beloved Son because He "... desires all men to be saved ..." (1 Tim. 2:4).

We invite you to come worship with us. We are just insignificant specks of people who are loved by God.

Carbon Monoxide Safety Tips Offered

Energas Company would like to offer some safety tips regarding carbon monoxide, a tasteless, colorless, odorless, highly poisonous gas. It is formed by the incomplete combustion of any hydrocarbon fuel. Carbon monoxide can be dangerous in areas of high concentration in the home, particularly in the winter months.

The most common source of carbon monoxide is the exhaust of automobile engines. It is also produced by any gasoline-powered engine like lawn mowers, chain saws, lawn edgers. Such items as charcoal grills, wood stoves, fireplaces, and other similar equipment might also produce carbon monoxide.

To prevent carbon monoxide poisoning:

- Do not operate a gasoline-powered engine in a confined or enclosed space.
- Do not burn charcoal indoors or in a confined space like a garage.
- Provide adequate ventilation in your home when using wood stoves and fireplaces.
- Be certain that all flame-producing appliances are vented, installed, adjusted and operated properly.

If you're at home or in a motel, hotel or apartment with an unvented gas heater, always open a window for ventilation.

Carbon monoxide (CO) detectors are commercially available, and the prices range between $60 and $200. If you purchase a CO detector, make sure it meets the requirements of the Underwriters Laboratories (UL) 2034. However, the best precaution is to make sure all fuel-burning appliances and your furnace are operating properly.

Two studies suggest that the prescription drug Retin-A approved for acne treatment (though widely used as a wrinkle cream) may prevent cancer. It was also effective in pre-cancerous cervical conditions.

FACTS & FIGURES

(NAPS)—Here are some surprising statistics that could help you save time and money: It may now cost less, in many cases, to send a document by fax machine than by mail.

As postal rates have gone up over the past ten years, the cost of sending a letter via fax machine has gone down.

According to fax experts Hewlett-Packard, this appears to be leading to the increasing use of faxes instead of the mail. In fact, AT&T says 32 percent of business calls today are actually facsimile transmissions.

During regular business hours, it now costs 25 cents or less to send a two-page letter from coast to coast. The time to transmit is generally under a minute. If a fax is sent at an hour when phone costs are reduced or if discount services are applied, it costs even less. With many newer fax machines it is possible to store several documents in memory for transmission when rates are lowest for even greater savings.

Electronic mail is also vying with the postal service, but the fax market is actually ten times the size of e-mail and growing at twice the rate.

Sending facts by plain-paper faxes can not only be faster but less expensive than using the mail.

For further savings with a fax machine, consider:

- The transmission speed of your fax machine—Faster transmission means lower phone bills.
- A fax with memory—Then faxes can be held to be sent when phone rates are lower.
- Plain-paper fax machines—To eliminate the need to photocopy. Plain paper is also less expensive and won't curl, yellow or fade.

Hewlett-Packard is a producer of plain-paper, inkjet facsimile machines. To receive more information about HP plain-paper faxes, call 1-800-222-HPFAX.

TELCOT® Report

A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF COTTON MARKETING NEWS
For The Week Ending January 20

The cotton market was characterized by serious uncertainty this past week as a near-critical world supply situation seemed to draw a tighter noose around some segments of the industry. As a result, activity was disorderly at best during the five-day trading period.

The most serious development during the week came from Pakistan where the Ministry of Commerce announced the temporary suspension of cotton exports in an effort to relieve pressure on domestic prices resulting from a production shortfall. USDA, on January 12, estimated the Pakistani crop at 6.5 million bales, down from 7.3 million estimated in December.

The suspension, which took effect January 18, apparently means export contracts for the 1993-94 crop will not be loaded for shipment. According to trade sources in Japan quoted by Knight-Ridder Financial News (KRFN), only 120,000 to 130,000 bales of the original 500,000 bale quota, have been shipped to various destinations, leaving merchants around the world holding the bag for as much as 380,000 bales of commitments to mills.

Obviously, merchants counting on Pakistani cotton to fill sales orders will be forced to look elsewhere in the world for cotton that is becoming more scarce by the day. Compounding the situation is India where a similar production shortfall and rising domestic cotton prices has forced the government to cease further export sales. One trade source estimates approximately 133,000 bales of Indian cotton will not enter world commerce this year. Some reports also indicate India is considering authorizing imports to placate domestic textile mills that are complaining about rising cotton prices.

Cotton prices have continued to react as expected in a tight-supply/strong-demand situation. The weekly Adjusted World Price (AWP) has increased from 40.55 cents per pound to 55.33 during a 10-consecutive-week run. Cotton futures have tried to keep pace with the rise in world prices as contract highs were set during six consecutive trading sessions ending January 19, despite occasional technical setbacks on the closes.

One positive technical development occurred January 17, when the March contract pierced a psychological barrier of 70 cents per pound. Heavy trade buying, probably a result of mill fixations, helped offset declining speculative positions in March, and the contract seemed willing to not look back at the 70-cent barrier. Also noted during the week was strong options-trading activity.

Perhaps even more notable is the fact that all three "old-crop" months (March, May and July) have exceeded the 70-cent level for the first time since early August, 1991. One trade analyst notes that "prices have an uncanny habit of remaining strong all through the Spring," adding this could be a market "that runs from a Summer low to a late Spring high," a scenario that has occurred twice in the past four years.

In 1991, the July contract ran up to 94.45 cents per pound, and May went from 74.50 to 87.45 during a 17-week period. A similar run occurred in 1990 when prices reached 93.90. Just how far prices will go in 1994 is anyone's guess, yet there is little doubt the market will be forced to come to grips with how cheap cotton prices have been for the past couple of years.

The rising prices have cast a cloud of uncertainty on U.S. farm program payments on the 1994 cotton crop, especially the target price deficiency payment. Based on the current trend, the payment could fall as much as 10 to 12 cents per pound this year. The maximum possible deficiency payment rate for the 1993 crop was 20.55 cents per pound. However, heavy marketing activity and significant increases in weighted average prices received by producers during November and December undoubtedly will drive down the final payment rate for 1993. USDA will announce the 1994 payment rate prior to sign-up for this year's program.

Supplies of Texas/Oklahoma cotton available for sale continued their inevitable slide this past week, however, producers holding remaining bales took advantage of escalating prices. A total of 29,315 bales were sold on the TELCOT electronic marketing system during the five-day trading period, compared to 27,175 the previous week.

Early Friday morning, USDA announced the AWP for the week ending January 27, is 55.33 cents per pound, up from 52.38 the previous week. The department's export reports were scheduled for release later Friday afternoon due to the devastating cold weather gripping the Eastern U.S.

Better Business Bureau Report

The mail solicitations for National Cancer Research Center appear to present a win-win situation. They say that recipients can help the fight against cancer and register to receive a large cash award at the same time. But, according to the Philanthropic Advisory Service of the Council of BBBs, consumers and cancer sufferers alike may be better off if the emotional appeals are disregarded. The parent company of National Cancer Research Center, Walker Cancer Research Institute has been the subject of lawsuits by numerous states alleging that the sweepstakes appeals were "misleading, deceptive and fraudulent."

The organization signed consent agreements to discontinue or change the misleading solicitations, make payments to certain charities and/or return money to consumers in all cases, except a pending suit in California. LUBBOCK, Friday, January 21, 1994
By Shawn Wade

Producers and researchers got together Thursday, January 20, at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center north of Lubbock to hear progress reports on projects funded through the State Support Program of Cotton Incorporated (CI) and the Texas State Support Committee (TSSC).

According to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG) the CI program was set up to provide 5 percent of CI's annual operating budget to producers in cotton belt states to fund cotton related research and promotion activities.

Projects presented for review during the day-long meeting received funding in 1993 through the TSSC. A total of 25 projects were reviewed that seek to find answers to a number of important questions facing the cotton industry.

Reports were presented on projects ranging from efforts to remove gossypol from cottonseed to developing improved pest management and cultural strategies for cotton production.

TSSC Vice Chairman Larry Nelson, a cotton producer and ginmer from Edmonson, Texas, notes that several of these projects were also approved by the committee for ing you from making a large purchase or obtaining a loan, there may be steps you can take to get back on track, but establishing a new credit identity should not be one of them. The BBB reports that there are credit repair companies that, for a fee, will establish a new credit identity for you if you have an unfavorable credit record. Although it may sound like a fresh start, this scheme, called credit file segregation is illegal. If you are tempted to get involved in a credit file segregation scheme, the Internal Revenue Service warns that it is a federal crime to make any false statements on a loan or credit application. Also, it is illegal to knowingly misrepresent your social security number or to obtain an Employer Identification Number under false pretenses. Don't assume because of your poor credit record that you will not be able to receive credit.

further funding in 1994 and are therefore only partially complete. He adds that TSSC members will be meeting in the near future to select projects for funding in 1995.

Funding requests totaling close to $600,000 were approved for 1994. Of that total, $160,000 will fund projects specific to the High Plains and $340,000 will go to projects of interest statewide. The remaining funds will be divided among other cotton production regions to fund additional regional projects.

A number of outstanding opportunities to hear about what is going on in agriculture and the cotton industry on the High Plains will present themselves January 25-26 during the Caprock Cotton Conference. The conference will be held at the Pioneer Memorial Museum in Crosbyton.

Plains Cotton Growers officials note that producers and other interested parties who attend the conference will have a chance to hear Texas Commissioner of Agriculture Rick Perry, Congressman Charles Stenholm and others discuss issues facing agriculture on the first day of the conference. Extension Cotton Specialist Kater Hake and a number of other researchers from the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will speak on the second day and discuss a variety of production and insect management issues.

For information about how to register for the conference contact the Texas Agricultural Extension Service office in either Floyd County at 806-983-2806 or Crosby County at 806-675-2003.

COUNTY OF LYNN

Before me, the undersigned authority, on this day personally appeared Jake Diggs, who after being by me duly sworn deposes and says:

After the herein described estray was impounded, I made a diligent search of the register of recorded brands in the county where said estray was found. The search did not reveal the owner of said estray.

The dates of such advertisement were January 27, 1994, and February 3, 1994, and a duly verified printed copy thereof is returned herewith.

I also posted a copy of the Notice of Estray and the Notice of Impoundment of Estray on the public notice board of the courthouse of the county in which the estray was found.
