I ALMOST TOOK A RIDE in a hot air balloon. Some of us were in New Mexico over the weekend, and the really pretty balloons were flying around everywhere, and someone in the party suggested that we all take a balloon ride.

The two women in the party emphatically demurred ("Heck, no, we won't go!"), but I was reminded that in the past I have said that a balloon ride looked like it would be fun. And my wife kept trying to get me to take a ride. I'm not sure why, but I have my suspicions.

When I said some time ago that a balloon ride looked like fun, that was just before some people were killed in a couple of balloon crashes last year. Those stories tempered my enthusiasm, but I didn't want to appear cowardly, so I said, "Well, it probably would cost too much."

But they kept after me to take a ride, so finally I suggested that we call and find out when we could go, and for how much. Somebody suggested that I might get a reduced rate if I told them I was a newspaper man (because of the extra hot air on board in case of emergency). So I thought to myself, "It can't be too dangerous...besides, I've lived a full life, and I did tell my wife where all the insurance papers are."

Last year when we saw a balloon over Ruidoso, the people were probably a couple of hundred feet up, and we could talk to them as they floated by. It really does look like fun, and I didn't want to admit that I was having second thoughts. (I think it was Jerry Clower who said he doubted that God would protect him on a flight. . . "Remember, the Bible says "Low, I am with you always.")

Anyway, we did call, and the price of a ride was prohibitive-$90 a person.

I sure was glad.

Local Students Win State Award In Substance Abuse Media Fair

Nine Tahoka fifth grade students have earned the opportunity to travel to South Padre Island next November to receive state awards through their Substance Abuse Media Fair project. The students made an environmental bubble and wrote and starred in video and audio scripts depicting the effects of drug abuse.

The fifth grade Gifted/Talented students, under the direction of sponsor Mrs. Suette Green, submitted the project in regional competition, winning first place and advancing to the state level, where they were awarded second place. Students involved in the project were Kyle Bucermann, Ryan Curry, Matthew Sanders, Casey Jones, Carrie Gregory, Klyssa Kelln, Kelli Whitley, Amada Aguilar, and Lezli Gandy.

Students began working on the project idea at the beginning of the 1993-94 school year, and actually put the video recording, audio tape and environmental bubble together in approximately two months. The bubble was made out of white plastic sheeting and tape, with two air ducts for electric fans to air up the bubble. Red and white balloons were freefloating inside the bubble to represent red and white blood cells of the human body. "It was supposed to feel like you were entering a healthy human body," said their sponsor, Mrs.

The environmental bubble would seat approximately a dozen people, who were then invited to visualize the human body. An audio and visual presentation about the effects of drug abuse on the human body was displayed on the walls of the bubble.

Prior to visitors entering the environmental bubble, student Kyle Bueermann sang his original song entitled "It Ain't My Problem" while accompanying himself on a guitar. The song placed second in regional competition. The sixth grade Gifted/Talented project, involving four students, placed second in regional competition. Cory Engle, Brady Raindl, Kassidi Andrews and Christie Garcia wrote and filmed a video recording entitled "A Friend In Need ... The Brad Pebsworth Story." The fictional story told about the effects of drug abuse on a young teenager. The finished video, approximately 10 minutes in length, took about three weeks to film, according to Mrs. Green.

UNIDENTIFIED FLYING PERSON - This unidentified flying person, and many others of all ages, can be seen flying through the air off the Tahoka City Pool high diving board as youngsters free from school take to the water for summertime fun. With temperatures already in the 90's, the city pool has been crowded to the gills. The pool is open Tuesdays (LCN PHOTO by Rachel Lehman) through Sundays.

Safe Driving Urged During Summer

School's out and children are running and playing everywhere. Major Lamar Beckworth of the Texas Department of Public Safety wants to remind citizens that, with the Texas schools letting out, the highway systems will be loaded with people taking their vacations and going to their favorite place of recreation.

Major Lamar Beckworth also reminds drivers that while driving in the city to be especially watchful for children. "With the excitement of playing, children seem to forget the rules of safety and sometimes dart into the street in pursuit of a misguided toy or ball. While driving in our residential areas be especially watchful for small children," he said.

"In order to make this an accident free summer vacation, drivers need to take a more mature attitude towards safe driving. All drivers should slow down a little and live a lot by driving defensively each and every day this summer while school is out," he added.

Cloud Seeding Study Conducted

Data obtained from a series of cloud-seeding experiments conducted near Big Spring, during portions of the summers of 1987, 1989, and 1990 is providing new insights into the impact of seeding summertime convective clouds with silver iodine (Agl).

"The evidence points to cloudseeding as having increased rain volume primarily by including several larger, longer-lasting cells, which showed a greater tendency to merge with neighboring cells. Seeding affects a number of important dynamic and microphysical processes in West Texas clouds which ultimately leads to increased precipitation," says George W. Bomar of the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission in Austin.

The cloud seeding was performed using aircraft which flew above growing cumulus clouds - that met the rigorous experimental criteria for "seedable" cloud systems- and dropped flares of silver iodide into them. The seeding was done in random fashion which involved seeding some candidate clouds and not seeding others.

Both seeded and unseeded clouds were measured using radar located near Big Spring. Data from a total of 183 convective cells (93 seeded and 90 unseeded) was collected during the three summers of experimentation.

The analysis of the data revealed that seeded convective cells lived 36 percent longer than the unseeded variety, and that the rain volumes of seeded cells exceeded that of unseeded cells by 130 percent. Also, the seeded cells merged with surrounding clouds twice as often as the unseeded cells.

declined an average of 1.09 feet in 1993 in 76 privately-owned wells in the observation well network maintained by the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 in its 571,613 acre service area within the county. This represents a decrease of 93,458 acre-feet of water in storage in the Ogallala Aquifer last year in the portion of Lynn County within the Water District service area.

It should be noted that the data for the average annual change in ground water levels for the ten-year period (1984-4994), the five-year period (1989-1994), and the one-year period (1993-1994) refer only to preannexation water levels. Ground water levels within the Water District's Lynn County service area increased 0.89 feet during the 10-year period from 1984 to 1994. An average annual increase of 0.12 of a foot was recorded during the five-year period from 1989-1994.

Ground water levels in the Ogallala Aquifer within the 6.7 million acre Water District service area had an average decline of 1.46 feet from January 1993 to January 1994. This is a net decrease of about 1,467,300 acre-feet of ground water in storage in the Ogallala Aquifer within the Water District service area.

A zero average annual change in ground water levels was recorded for the first time in the Water District's history in 1985. Depth-to-water measurements revealed an average ground water level rise of 0.50 of a foot in 1986; an average rise of 0.90 of a foot in 1987; an average decline of 0.51 of a foot in 1988; an average decline of one foot in 1989; an average decline of 1.06 feet in 1990; an average decline of 0.73 of a foot in 1991; and an average rise of 0.14 of a foot in 1992.

A network of 1,174 privatelyowned observation water wells is used to determine the annual change in the quantity of water in storage in the Ogallala Aquifer within the High Plains Water District, The depth-towater measurements are taken in January and February of each year in order to allow water levels to stabilize from the pumping during the previous growing season.

By comparing the current depthto-water measurements with those taken the previous year, McReynolds says Technical Division staff members can determine what changes have occurred in the ground water levels.

Of the 15 counties or portions of counties making up the High Plains Water District, only Cochran County recorded an average rise in depth-towater levels in 1993. The counties with average declines in depth-towater levels in 1993 were Armstrong. Bailey, Castro, Crosby, Deaf Smith, Floyd, Hale, Hockley, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, Parmer, Potter, and Randall Counties.

Public Notice

On March 23, 1994, GTE and Contel ("The Companies") filed applications with the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUC") to restructure the Companies' Switched Transport rate category and reduce the Carrier Common Line (CCL) charge of its Switched Access Service. The tariff sheets in GTE and Contel's applications, if approved, will bring the Companies' state access tariffs into structural parity with their interstate tariffs for the Local Transport rate category, which became effective on December 30, 1993.

GTE and Contel propose to implement the new tariffs on a revenue neutral basis. The Local Transport category of GTE and Contel's Switched Access Service is primarily for interexchange carri-

Persons who wish to intervene should file a motion for intervention with the PUC by June 17, 1994 with reference to Docket No. 12866 (GTE) and/or 12865 (Contel). Requests for further informa-tion should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creel Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, or call the Public Utility Commis-sion Public Information Office at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

Quick, tell me the word I'm looking for ... here's a clue: You chew it ... uh ... before a football game! It gives you energy!

If you said "pasta" you were absolutely right. My partners, however, in the Taboo game the other night, didn't even come close, if you can imagine! For those of you who've not had the opportunity to play the game of Taboo, go and get you one immediately - it's a guaranteed laugh, especially if you let me and my family play.

The game is sort of like Password, where you have a word; that you try to get your teammates to guess by giving various clues. Making the game interesting, however, is a list of five of the most obvious words you cannot say as clues, such as "eat." spaghetti, Italian, noodles, rigatoni" for the word "pasta". You: see my dilemma.

Being the kind of person who thinks really well under pressure (you have a timer for each turn) I thought, "Well, my son says that spaghetti or any other kind of pasta is the bestkind of food for athletes to eat the night before athletic events, because it gives them energy." What I actually managed to say in a panic was "You chew it ... uh ... before a football game! It." gives you energy!"

Unfortunately, my son wasn't playing the game with us, and everybody else just looked bewildered and said dumb stuff like "chewing gum" and "hot dogs". Helpfully, I said "no, no, no ... it gives you energy ... you know!" while looking appropriately frustrated.

But we had fun anyway. It was all part of the long holiday weekend, when we visited with friends, watched movies, barbecued on the grill in the back yard, played games, shopped and just generally had a little mini-vacation.

It was also, for me and another female whose name I hesitate to mention because she's supposed to know stuff like this, the first time ever in our whole lives to actually make, by ourselves, homemade ice cream. You'd think a homemaking extension agent would know how, wouldn't you? As for myself, I know there is just no possible excuse for a woman my age, with a husband, two children, a dog, and a mortgage, not to know how to make homemade ice cream. And

I would have, except for the fact that (a) I don't have an ice cream freezer, (2) my mother, who lives just a few blocks away, always makes homemade ice cream, and (c) her ice cream is really really good. Really. This past weekend, however, she was really, really gone ... and her ice cream recipe is in her head, which she didn't leave behind, necessitating some research on my part as to how to make ice cream, and a quick search of her house to find the ice cream freezer.

The freezer I found easily enough, but after looking in several recipe books I decided to call a friend and ask about her recipe. This was a local phone call, mind you. My other friend (the one who is making the ice cream with me) is also looking for a recipe, only she calls her mother ... long distance ... to get one. Geez, wasn't there a recipe in the whole town of Tahoka that would have worked?

She gets, not one, but three recipes from her mother on the phone ... long distance ... taking forever to write it down. So which recipe do we use? The one I got from my friend. See, I figured, if the ice cream wasn't any good or if it made us sick, the local friend could at least come see us in the hospital.

So, we made ice cream. Scads of readers, if they've made it this far, are now wanting to know if it was any good. Well, I'm not writing this column from a hospital bed ... and if you want the secret recipe for the best ice cream you ever put in your mouth, you'll have to call me. Possibly even long distance. I may even tell my mother.

Better Business Bureau Report

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission and Casablanca Fan Company out of California jointly announced in December 1993 the voluntary recall of 3,264,000 Casablanca brand ceiling fans manufactured from 1981-1993. The fans can separate from the canopy on which they are mounted to the ceiling. If a fan separates from its canopy. it will fall and possible inure a bystander. In addition, a fallen fan may leave exposed wires in the ceiling possibly posing an electric shock hazard. The affected fans have a ball and canopy mounting system and were manufactured and sold nationwide from January 1981 through September 1993. The retail prices for the fans vary by model and time period sold. The prices generally range from $200 to $2500. A fan subject to the recall will say "Casablanca" on the nameplate. Also the second letter of the serial number will be A. B. C. O. P, R S, P, U, V, W, X or Y. If you have one of these fans, you should call 1-800-390-3131 to receive a retrofit Savers Alliance of Fort Worth opened up a sales office in Lubbock in February and has mailed postcards to South Plains residents claiming "final notice" and to call an 800 number. We have found that the company sells membership in a buying club for $995 with a $40 yearly renewal fee. Since opening in Lubbock, your Bureau has received many inquiries. The company is too new in our files to issue a customer experience report; however, the Bureau in Fort Worth reports that the company has an unsatisfactory record due to itsfailure to eliminate the basic cause of complaints brought to its attention by the Bureau. We suggest that consumers compare prices and services of the club to retail prices and services to the reported discount prices the club offers. Understand the contract as well as yours and the company's obligations before you sign. Of course your Bureau does not endorse, recommend or disapprove of any company, product or service.

Have you lost money or failed to receive a product because the company you patronized went bankrupt? Although it takes some time and effort on your part, and you will be in line with many other secured and unsecured creditors, you may be able to recover some compensation. If you are dealing with a company that has filed Chapter 11 bankruptcy, the company legally can continue to operate while restructuring its debts.

On the other hand if the company files Chapter 7, the company's assets are liquidated to pay outstanding debts and it must cease operations. In either case, you may be able to recover money owed to you that was paid either in case or by check. You must file proof of the claim with the clerk of the federal Bankruptcy Court. If you paid by credit card, you may dispute the charge under the Fair Credit Billing Act, which says you are allowed 60 days from the time you are billed to notify the card issuer of the problem in writing.

Weed Control Needed On CRP Contracts, Says SCS

Participants with land in the Conservation Reserve Program should be thinking about a weed control for their contracts, says a representative of the local Soil Conservation Service (SCS). The recent rain received by the county was a definite benefit to the grass stand, but it also started the weeds growing.

Those contracts with a good stand of grass, probably will not need a weed control. Contracts that have a weak stand of grass or had a weed problem last year will probably need at least one weed control this year to aid in the establishment of the grass.

Weeds compete with the grass for nutrients and water, which retards the growth of the grass. Producers can have rent payments reduced or even withheld for not controlling weeds. "Also, friendly relations with your neighbors could be lost if their crops are damaged by your lack of timely weed control," says an SCS representative.

Weed control can be done by either chemical or mechanical methods. Chemical control can be the most effective method, if the proper chemical is applied in accordance with label requirements and under favorable climatic conditions. The best results with the chemical control are achieved when weeds are 2 to 4 inches in height.

This same principle applies to shredding also. Shredding when weeds are 3 to 4 feet high is too late.

Participants with land in the CRP are responsible for controlling the weeds on their CRP acreage. When participants signed their contracts they agreed to maintain their CRP acreage (including needed weed controls) for the length of the contract.

Participants should inspect their land and use good judgement in the maintenance of their contract. A good weed control program is needed to get the grass established and it is up to the producer to see that needed weed controls are carried out in a timely

Dr. West is the daughter of Mrs. W.J. West who resides nine miles north of Tahoka and has been reared in this county. She took her Freshman work in Baylor University and then attended the Texas Tech one year. She was the first Tech student to afterwards receive a degree in Medicine. She took Medicine courses in Baylor Medical School, graduating in Medicine in that institution in 1930. She did her intern work in Baylor Hospital in Dallas in 1931 and during this time she was the only woman intern in Texas.

She has now located here to practice her profession and will have her office temporarily at her mother's residence.

So far as we know, Dr. West is the only woman physician anywhere on the plains outside of Amarillo. She is certainly the first and only one in Lynn County.

excerpt from a story in the Feb. 25, 1932 issue

Matthews Friend Of "Pretty Boy"

"When I saw that picture of 'Pretty Boy's' little son in the Star-Telegram a short time ago, I recognized it at once," Fred Matthews of Grassland confided to the News Monday. "He is just like his daddy."

"Pretty Boy," you know, dear readers, is that notorious Kansas bank

Then Fred told us this story. When he and "Pretty Boy" were each seventeen years of age they worked for a period of two months as: employees of the Western Union Telegraph Company out of Amarillo along the Sante Fe lines. "Pretty Boy" wore that nickname then, Fred; says, due to his sporty dress and appearance but he exhibited no criminal tendencies whatever. "He was just a boy like the rest of us," Fred stated. - March 3, 1932

First Baptist Church of Wilson will have a special service on Sunday, June 5 at 1:30 p.m. This will be a special music service with the music being presented by several different lay persons.

Those scheduled to participate include Kevin Bartley from Midland, David and Rita Prewett from New Mexico, and Myrtle White and family from Pleasant Grove Baptist Church in Tahoka.

Mr. and Mrs. Prewett will also be singing during the regular Sunday morning worship service. This service is open to the public and anyone is invited to attend.

The Wilson Lions Club is working on plans for the annual 4th of July "in the park" community get-together. This year's event will be on Monday, July 4, beginning at 5:30 or 6 p.m. Organizations and groups wishing to have food or game booths are asked to contact Donald Klaus or Lynda Williams.

The Wilson Lions Club has received news that the blood drive scheduled for June 16 has been cancelled. United Blood Services is now prevented from conducting blood drives outside of their permanent facility in Lubbock. Citizens wanting to donate blood may do so at the United Blood Services main office 2523 48th Street, which is located behind Plains National Bank Motor Bank on 50th and University.

The Wilson Lions Club, along with other Lions Clubs are collecting used eyeglasses for distribution to those who cannot afford glasses. In addition, used hearing aides, and other devices such as Braille watches are also being accepted. Any Lions Club member will be glad to accept your donation of these items.

Clarence Moore and family visited the Mercantile this past week. Clarence, who now lives in Kerrville, used to live with his parents, the Tom Moores, just west of town.

Shorty Moore, Lucille Clary, and Lottie Carpenter spent an afternoon in Lubbock this last week with Hazel Walker. After lunch, the foursome spent most of the afternoon visiting. Hazel is now residing in "The Cottage" retirement community located at 1111 Frankford Ave. in Lubbock. Hazel would love a visit from all her friends whenever Several members of the Wilson band went to Austin/San Marcos this past weekend to participate in the state band concert. The 22 member ensemble group earned a III rating. Audra Young and Lora Yowell both earned a II rating on their baritone solos. These ratings are excellent at the state level of competition.

I am attempting to find a picture of the group of Wilson students who won the various major awards at the UIL banquet. This would be the group photo taken after the banquet. I would like to borrow it for a couple of weeks so that these students may receive some recognition in the local paper. Thank you.

The library is launching a reading program that encourages children and families to discover the world of information, entertainment and adventure at their library and in books.

"Reading Is a Magic Trip" is a free, noncompetitive reading program which begins June 13 at the City-County Library.

Children who participate will receive free personal reading logs to record the titles of books they read and the adventures they have had in reading. At the end of the program, children will receive a reading certificate from Ms. Frizzle.

"We think this program will help children and families learn to love reading and to better use all the resources of the library," said Shirley Draper, director. "Learning to enjoy reading as a child sets the stage for a lifetime of learning, enjoyment, and success."

HOW ARE YOU DYING?

A young boy wrote his grandfather and asked, "How are you dying?" Of course, he meant to say, "How are you doing?" However, the original question is a good one for us to ponder while we are yet alive.

The Hebrew writer states, "Just as man is destined to die once, and after that to face judgment." (Hebrews 9:27). We all have to face our ultimate end. Now is the time to consider your end. Now is the time you can do something about it.

The question of one's end may be very frightening or very consoling. If a person is not in obedience to the will of God, the outlook is frightening. For example, Peter said, "...He (Christ) is patient with you, not wanting anyone to perish, but everyone to come to repentance" (2 Peter 3:9). If you are obedient to His will for you to repent, as well as the entirety of His will, there is no problem. If you are not obedient, you are looking to judgment for your disobedience.

How are you dying? If you are obedient to God then you are dying fine.

We invite you to come worship with us. We are a group of Christians who love the Lord and who seek to die fine.

SENSIBLE ADVICE FOR SUN WORSHIPPERS

Unless you use a good protective lotion or cream you may get a serious burn or an aging skin. Start now, before the sun reaches its higher intensity. Liberally apply one before exposure. Do not rub it in forcibly. Pat it gently on the skin so that the sun screening chemical, good products contain, remains on the skin's surface to ward off the ultraviolet Wear good sunglesses to protect your eyes. After sun exposure apply a nourishing cream to replace the natural oil your skin loses.

We are sun protection experts. We carry complete stocks of your favorite brands, but have also studied this problem and will gladly give you our informed opinion of the effectiveness of any product.
