Items valued at a total of $460 were reported stolen during the week from the residence of Lois Weathers, who died on Aug. 22. Missing from the house in the 2300-block of N. 2nd were dishes and other kitchenware and an antique teapot, according to Mrs. Weathers' niece, Toni Neal of Lubbock.

A 27-year-old Tahoka man was arrested and charged with assault on a family member after his wife re-near Shallowater Monday was involved in a collision with a truck. David Todd Wright of Tahoka first was listed in serious condition, but was improved Wednesday.

In jail during the week were four persons for driving while intoxicated, two of these second offense, and one each for public intoxication, possession of a controlled substance, application to revoke probation on charges of failure to provide child support, and possession of marijuana under two oúnces.

I READ THE OTHER DAY that the People Who Find Weird Things (or some such organization) have found the mummified heart of Robert the Bruce, a Scottish king in the 15th century who was the subject of the movie Braveheart (I think .. I saw the movie and liked it, but already I have forgot most of it, utilizing my famous short-term memory to its top potential).

I do remember that a bunch of guys in short skirts and leather straps and such ran around whacking each other with swords. And it seems to me that the main character in the story was Robert the Bruce. Or was it Bruce the Robert?

The story I read in a daily newspaper said that archeologists or some people think they have discovered the heart of this guy who, they said, had his bones buried elsewhere. This is a heck of a thing to do to anybody, much less a hero. Imagine burying pieces of him here, there and yonder.

What I'd like to know is how they know whose heart they found. Apparently there is no inscription on this mummified heart, like "This is what's left of the great Scotsman, Robert the Bruce, a great warrior who one day will be known as Braveheart." How do they know it's not the heart of one of those guys who ran away like mad when the enemy appeared, later to be known as Chickenheart. ?

Anyway, burying somebody in several different places seems like a bummer. When I go to that big newsroom in the sky, I want all of my parts buried together unless, of course, one of my parts would save somebody's life.

I doubt that anything inside me would help anyone else very much. Unless someone needs a transplant of taste buds. I have excellent taste buds.

The Lynn County Democratic Party this week named Don Morton as the Democratic nominee to be placed on the ballot in the November general election for Lynn County Precinct 1 Commissioner. The seat was vacated by the recent death of Commissioner Jacky Henry, who had sought re-election and won the primary in March.

Morton, who owns Morton Manufacturing in Wilson, was selected from among six candidates who applied for the position.

> Firemen's Fish Fry Set This Saturday

Area residents are invited this Saturday evening to the annual Tahoka Volunteer Fire Department's Fish Fry, held in the Tahoka Mini-Park. Tickets for the meal are $5, available at the park or in advance from any fireman.

The meal of fried fish, fries, hush puppies and cole slaw will be cooked and served in the park by the volunteer firemen. Firemen are usually reading to begin serving the meal at 6 p.m.

The annual event raises funds for training and equipment for the local volunteer fire department.

a.m. with games for children and booths opening, with merchant drawings beginning at 11 a.m. and continuing on the hour throughout the day. Princess and Queen contests will be held in the afternoon, and the Tahoka Man and Woman of the Year presentations will also be in the afternoon.

"Bandgora," a country dance band, will perform on stage during the day as well as for the Street Dance from 8 p.m. until midnight.

Lots of prizes will be given away during the day. Something new this year is a chance to win $1000 cash and a Zenith 46" Big Screen Color TV from the Harvest Festival Committee and Ray's TV & Appliance. Tickets are being given to the first 200 people to donate $20 to the Harvest Festival, and two winners will be drawn from among those 200 tickets. The first name drawn may choose the TV (valued at $2000) or the cash, and the second name drawn will receive the remaining prize. Tickets are available at The Lynn County News or Balloons and Flowers in Tahoka.

Another big prize giveaway will be from Queen ticket sales, which contestants are selling now. One winner will be drawn from among those tickets for a trip for two to Mexico, including airfare and hotel accommodations. Queen contestants must sell at least 100 tickets to qualify for the finalist round of competition, but will be judged on poise and personality in interviews to determine the winner. She will be crowned during afternoon ceremonies at the festival.

Princess contestants are selling tickets for a chance to win two bicycles or a Texas Tech game package, which includes game tickets to the Tech vs. Texas football game and a suite at the Holiday Inn Civic Center in Lubbock. The princess contest is based solely on ticket sales, with the high seller being crowned princess at the Harvest Festival.

Cow Patty Bingo, a popular event each year, is once again being spon-, sored by the Tahoka High School Junior Class. These tickets are being sold for $5 each, with a chance to win $250 and $100 cash, according to the cow's discretion at depositing ... er , solid and liquid waste on numbered squares on the street.

City Tax Rate, Water Fees To Remain Same

City taxes and water and sewage rates are expected to remain the same, and sanitation rates are anticipated to rise only slightly, according to Tahoka city officials this week.

Mayor Jim Solomon told The News that the Tahoka City Council anticipates holding taxes to the same rate-currently 62.284 cents per $100 of property valuation - and holding the same rates for water and sewer services. However, sanitation rates are expected to go up slightly, $1 per month for residential customers and $2 per month for commercial customers

"This raise in sanitation rates is due to rising landfill costs," said Mayor Solomon, explaining that the city contracts with Waste Management.Inc., who in turn contracts with the Lubbock Landfill to deposit city garbage.

Mayor Solomon said city residents are encouraged to attend the next City Council meeting on Monday, Sept. 9 at 7 p.m. at City Hall to give comments on the tax rate, water, sewer and garbage rates, and other budget matters. He anticipates the council will approve the budget at that meeting.

"We are real positive about our budget, and don't anticipate any increase in the tax rate or in water and sewer rates," the mayor commented. "However, we want to give our citizens the opportunity to comment on the budget before it is approved," he added.

PAGE 2, LYNN COUNTY NEWS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1996 Fundraisers Getting Underway For Life Enrichment Center

by JUANELL JONES

Area residents are getting excited about the prospect of building a new life enrichment/community center in Tahoka - and they are getting creative in planning various fundraising events for the project.

"We are wanting to involve people of all ages, from kindergarten and elementary, to middle school and high school kids, adults and senior citizens, and people from all ethnic backgrounds and socio-economic levels," said Project Director Retha Pittman. "And the response we have had has been tremendous - everybody wants to give a helping hand," she added.

Various fundraising events are in the planning stages, including a community gospel singing event, a penny-collecting project for elementary youth, pledge letters to area businesses and organizations, an aluminum can drive, challenging ex-graduates to purchase windows to recognize THS graduating classes, and a

The $218,886 proposed life enrichment center has already received over half of the necessary funding, with $100,000 grant promise from an anonymous West Texas foundation and over $29,000 promised in "in kind" volunteer services. The other $89,000 remains to be raised, through local fundraisers and donations, and other grant proposals which have been sent for consideration.

Already, $3,050 has been donated locally to the Life Enrichment Center fund, which has been opened at the First National Bank of Tahoka. Pledge cards have been sent to various organizations and businesses, and other fundraisers are in the planning stages.

Myrtle White of Tahoka approached Mrs. Pittman expressing an interest in planning a community gospel "fiesta" fundraiser, and Tahoka Elementary teachers are planning a penny-collecting project to involve elementary youth and middle school youth may head up an aluminum can drive.

"What a precious fund-raising event, to hear God's praises sung," said Mrs. Pittman about the gospel fiesta. "And what wisdom there is in our local teachers requesting that the children be an integral part of the fund-raising. This facility is first and foremost being designed and built to better the avenues of education outside school for the children. It will be well appreciated if their hands help build it," added the project director.

The project committee is also planning to have a booth at the Harvest Festival on Sept. 14 to give away informational brochures and pledge cards, and will also have a children's duck pond game and penny-guessing contest. The committee may also have an auction item for the Harvest Festival. "We are also issuing a challenge to ex-graduates of Tahoka to consider purchasing a window in the facility," explained Mrs. Pittman "There are ten windows in the design, and we are challenging the ex-THS classes to purchase a window at a cost of $250, and we will place a plaque recognizing that class underneath the window," she said.

"We are excited about this project - it's going to happen," said Tahoka Mayor Jim Solomon. "This is something the entire community can use, and we are going to work very hard to make it a reality."

The facility would be owned and maintained by the City of Tahoka, and will include a multipurpose ac-tivity room, workshop/classroom, kitchen, storage and restroom facilities, the city/county library, and a foyer to display local artwork. One wall inside the building will display small plaques recognizing everyone who donated funds and/or services to the project.

The high school she attended was S.H. Rider in Wichita Falls. In high school Mrs. Sikes describes herself as "extremely studious." She didn't participate in any sports but was on the school dance team. She graduated from Texas Tech University.

Mrs. Sikes lives in Lubbock with her husband, Bruce, whom she has been married to for three years and three months. She is not only a teacher at Wilson, she also takes part in the Junior League of Lubbock, and she is the advisor of a sorority at Tech.

Mrs. Sikes decided to become a teacher because two years after graduating from college she was working for her husband and started substituting. She loved working with the high school kids, so she decided to use her degree in teach-

She decided to teach in Wilson because she likes small communities. Mrs. Sikes felt there would be a tighter knit community, and it would be easier working with the students. After her second week at Wilson, Mrs. Sikes says she loves it.

Mrs. Sikes' advice to young people is to "Further your education and stay in school." Her goals for the future are: as a teacher, to better herself and the students; and in life, to be more understanding.

If Mrs. Sikes won the lottery, she would "pay off her car, put windows in all the classrooms, pay off all her bills, and go shopping." Her most embarrassing moment was when she was on her first date with her husband. They were walking from her apartment to her car when she tripped and fell flat on her face on a level sidewalk. The person Mrs. Sikes considers to be her best friend is her grandmother because she feels she is very wise. She has looked up to her for everything. Something Mrs. Sikes would like people to know about her is she is fun and caring, she thinks science is fun, and she likes to be involved in everything she

Wilson homecoming is just around the corner, and plans for the parade and the class floats are in the works. Homecoming is scheduled for Friday, Sept. 27, when the Mustangs play Amherst.

Community Story Time will be held again this year the first and third Thursday of each month. Story Time gives children birth to five years of age an opportunity to listen to stories, participate in special literature activities, and check out books to read at home. Please ioin us Thursday, Sept. 5, at 10:30 a.m., in the Home Economics building (temporary library).

School pictures will be taken Friday, Sept. 6. Envelopes have been sent home. All students will have their pictures made. If you wish to purchase a package of pictures, they must be paid for by Friday.

Wilson Elementary School is in need of volunteers to help with UIL events, Accelerated Reader, Publishing Center, class parties, materials preparation, and special events. We need volunteers willing to work at home or school. Projects Day will be every Thursday. Please contact Mrs. Hirt at 628-6261 if you are interested.

The Site Based Committee will meet for the first time on Thursday, Sept. 12, 1996, at 6 p.m. in the Elementary school. The role of the committee will be discussed, as well as the district improvement plans.

Two days of intersession will be held on Sept. 9 and 10. Students meeting the criteria will be required to attend. Those students who are not required to attend will have a school holiday. Intersession hours will be 9 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. Lunch will be served and buses will run. Remember: only those students who meet the criteria will attend.

Current Situation: Rains continue to fall across the area, however, much of the area received more than ideal amounts for finishing the cotton crop; totals ranged from two to seven plus inches through Aug. 29th. In areas which received received two to three inches should be in good shape but those areas which received four or more inches need to be concerned with possible regrowth. This regrowth sets us up for several possible problems: delayed maturity/harvest, hardier plants to try and kill for harvest and extends the vulnerable food supply for worms, weevils and aphids to maintain their presence.

and the second the second second second

The last effective date for a white bloom to contribute significantly to the final yield and maintain quality standards is Aug. 20th in the dryland cotton and Aug. 25th in irrigated cotton production. These dates are based on a bloom tag study conducted over the past three years in Dawson and Lynn counties. Keeping these dates in mind and knowing the bolls are relatively safe once they are 15 days old will help you determine when to field basis depending on the crop condition

Boll Weevils: Boll weevils are continuing their mass migrations and are becoming more readily found across the area. Punctures from weevils range from zero in most fields in northern Lynn county to 80 percent in fields just south of Lamesa. There is a field in the Wilson area that we found 22 percent punctured squares and adult weevils.

Boll Weevil Spray Program: It seems many producers were unsure as to whether there would be a spray program this fall due to the pending litigation. The Plains Cotton Growers Boll Weevil Steering Committee had a meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 27th and voted to proceed with a spray program this fall. The major problem is the lack of funds paid by producers up to this point. Producers are encouraged to make their payment by Sept. 4 or 5 to allow the committee to conduct as complete a program as possible with the funds available.

The plan for this year is to conduct a three-spray program including ground-rigs around sensitive areas

Cotton Bollworms: Bollworms continue to remain at low levels for the most part. If your cotton is still lush it needs to be closely monitored for worm activity. These cool cloudy humid conditions are ideal for worm establishment and survival.
