Hospital Board Approves Updates For Bylaws

Lynn County Hospital District Board of Directors approved an updated version of the governing body bylaws during regular session last Thursday evening. The update included compliance with legal issues as well as dictating new policies for directors themselves for training sessions.

According to the update, new directors must complete orientation training within 30 days after being elected to the board, and all directors will be required to complete one training session annually. Prior to this year, directors were not required to complete any training, according to Hospital Administrator Louise Land-

In other business, Mrs. Landers reported to directors on the renovation project, noting that new windows were installed and screens were soon to be installed. The board reviewed one estimate for renovation of the parking area but decided to seek other estimates before making any decisions on seeking bids.

Directors also discussed updating the medical staff bylaws, and plan to look at these revisions at a later meeting.

Monthly bills and financial statements were approved.

Present at the meeting were directors Virginia Griffing, Peggy Morton, Boyd Barnes, Billy Tomlinson, Norman Ledbetter and Mike Rivas, as well as Mrs. Landers. Not present was director Jimmy

All-State Academic Tahoka High School athletes Micah Smith and Abby Wells have both been named AA All-State Academic Athletes by the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches. To receive this honor these athletes had to maintain a 90 average through high school, be a consistent starter during the past season, receive, All-District honors, and be outstanding leaders and role models in their respective athletic programs. "Micah and Abby have most definitely achieved all this and more and we are very proud of them," said Coach Cindy Gardner.

at the intermittent rain and trying to remember what it was that I used to do on a rainy day. That's too bad, because I really do like chili, Saturday was much colder than usual for this time of year, and chili tastes better in cold weather. Anyway, I heard that the O'Donnell department's chili was judged the best. Judges were three of the four county commissioners plus a couple of big eaters who happened to show up at the county barn and were drafted to help judging. There was no report on the condition of any of the judges the next day.

I'm assuming that men prepared all this chili, and although men generally are not as good at cooking as women, I heard that the chili was really good.

One farmer said he had a hand in it, which may have meant that he stuck his hand into the chili pot, or (hopefully not) that he slaughtered one of his farm hands and then did something really disgusting, similar to what I once saw on an Alfred Hitchcock

The judges were fortunate that I didn't have anything to do with cooking it, since my cooking efforts mostly have not produced edible food.

I refer to my chocolate pie, which stuck to the mirror I rolled it out on (mentioned here previously), some candy I made which wouldn't stick together (I always figured that if the recipe called for a cup of pecans, then two cups would make it twice as good), and some steaks I once cooked after starting the charcoal with kerosene. I even have trouble making toast and grilled cheese sandwiches, because I am always forgetting them until they are burned black and unfit to eat.

That's why, when my wife is not around to cook, I mostly eat

AFTER READING what I said about Lubbock traffic being so tough on out-of-town people, someone in Abilene wrote that driving is more confusing there because streets have a way of changing names in the next block, and because streets don't always run north and south.

Anyway, I was ready to revise my statement about the dangers of Lubbock traffic to say that it's especially dangerous when I am driving there. Mainly because I had a wreck there last week that was my fault, so I really don't want to discuss it any

Commissioners Approve Loader For Precinct 2

Lynn County Commissioners approved purchasing a loader for Precinct 2, rescinded a motion for the sale of county lots at a previous meeting, and went into closed session for about 30 minutes during the regular board meeting on Monday morning. After returning to open session, commissioners did not take any action, according to the minutes of the meet-

One bid was submitted from West Texas Equipment for a 914G Caterpillar with Case W14 trade-in at a cost of $66,147, and after some discussion commissioners approved purchasing the loader for Precinct 2. Monthly bills were also approved.

In other business, commissioners voted to rescind a motion that was accepted March 24 which approved selling county lots to Arlys Askew because the bid was advertised under an incorrect code number and therefore in error, according to the minutes of the meeting.

Present at the meeting were all four commissioners, including Sandra Cox, J.T. Miller, Mike Braddock and Don Morton, as well as County Judge J.F. Brandon and other county offi-

THURSDAY, MAY 1, 1997, LYNN COUNTY NEWS, PAGE 3 Producer-Driven 'AGCARES' Farm Helps Growers Cope With Changes

New ideas, new technology, new products and new regulations mean crop producers must quickly assess how well these changes could be implemented on their farms, and if they will, in fact, benefit their opera-

But few farmers have the resources to put new concepts to a thorough, extensive, sometimes expensive, test.

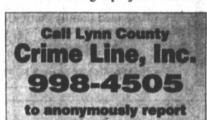

Helping fill the gap in the farmers' need to know is the Agricultural Complex for Advanced Research and Extension Systems (AGCARES), a 160-acre farm in Lamesa that is a joint venture of South Plains producers, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Operating for seven growing seasons, AGCARES is helping farmers understand and assess such questions as: What crop rotations are environmentally and economically sound? What are the best irrigation schedules for my soil and crop? Is drip irrigation feasible for row crops in sandy soil? How will a new herbicide affect my yields and crop rotation? How do cropping system and irrigation method interact?

The project began in 1989 when the Lamesa Cotton Growers, a producer organization, agreed to provide the land and additional support enabling the Experiment Station to conduct research on full-size fields which then serve as a teaching arena for educational programs by the Extension Service. The first crops were planted in 1990. In 1995, an adjacent 80 acres of dryland was used.

Producers serve on the farm's steering committee and help decide on research projects. Field days, demonstration tours and media visits help growers learn what the scientists find in their research.

Maintaining a project to obtain information on any crime

more than one year's data is an important part of the AGCARES effort, says Dr. William Lyle, Experiment Station professor of irrigation engineering and steering committee chair-

"Weather and growing conditions in West Texas vary so dramatically from year to year that you just can't put much stock in one year's

"AGCARES also has proven very helpful in explaining to regulatory agencies and non-agricultural organizations the farmer's concern and efforts at protecting natural resources," said Dr. Bob Robinson, South Plains District director with the Extension Service.

Research and demonstrations at AGCARES include low energy precision application (LEPA) and drip irrigation, comparison of five cropping systems, collecting evapotranspiration data to permit accurate and timely irrigation, fertilization studies, weed control in conservation tillage, evaluation and management of insect pests, techniques to help salvage weather-damaged crops, interseeding cotton with winter cover crops, and evaluation of economic potential for alternate crops.

DPS Kicks Off Parent-Taught Driver Education Program

Parents or guardians who want to teach their children to drive using a stateapproved course may pick up request forms at most DPS driver license offices starting Monday, April 7.

Previously, only schools and instructors certified by the Texas Education Agency could provide official driver training courses. The Texas Legislature amended state traffic laws in 1995, however, allowing parents to train their own children. The DPS developed administrative rules and curriculum materials to implement the new program. Successful completion of the course allows teenagers to obtain licenses at age 16.

Parents mus follow procedures and curriculum guidelines set by the DPS.

• The first step is obtaining a driver education packet request form at a local driver license office. For your convenience, please call the nearest office ahead of time to confirm request form availabil-

· Parents must fill out the form and include the address of the driver license office where the student will undergo testing, since a driver education certificate must be mailed to that office in the student's name

• The completed form must then be mailed to DPS headquarters along with a non-refundable $20 fee for the materials packet. The packet includes instructions, necessary forms, a Texas Drivers Handbook, a model curriculum guide and a resource list for textbooks and other materials. When other course curricula are approved, information about obtaining them also will be included.

Generally, requestors who pay the $20 fee should receive their instruction packets by mail within three weeks. however, delays may occur during the program's start-up phase. DPS will provide packets by mail only and will not sell them over the counter.

The approved curriculum requires at least 32 hours of classroom instruction and 14 hours of in-car instruction. Parents must use state-approved textbooks in addition to materials provided by DPS. The DPS packet includes a list of approved textbooks and sources for obtaining them. Parents should pay close attention to the copyright dates on the textbooks since newer editions haven't been approved for use in Texas. No special classroom or vehicle equipment is required.

At least six hours of classroom work must be completed before students may take the written drivers' test and receive instruction permits, which allow them to drive when accompanied in the front seat by a licensed driver at least 18 years old. After successful completion of all training, students may take the driving portion of the test and become fully licensed at age 16. Parents may choose to waive the driving portion of the licensing test.

Parents who have been convicted of criminally negligent homicide or driving while intoxicated or who are disabled due to mental illness do not qualify for this program. Children can begin the course at age 14 but must not complete the classroom portion and cannot take the written test until they turn 15.

It seems strange to be writing this letter as I have never written a letter to the editor before, however, sometimes in life w must stand up for what we believe is right. My dad was a school board member for many, many years and in the past two weeks his words have constantly been with me. He always told us, "When choosing school board members or any other community leader, be very careful not to choose a yes person". His definition of yes people was one who always goes along with the majority because it is easier than standing up. For you see, he believed you should always stand up for what you know is right even if you have to stand alone. In his life I watched him do this many times and my respect for him grew each time.

I am proud to say his granddaughter inherited these same qualities. I am referring to the hearing for Mrs. Rebecca Ingle. I was so proud of all the children who testified. Their honesty was refreshing! For you see, not one of them answered with the brhases we had heard so much that night. It never occurred to them to say "I don't really recall", "That was a long time ago and I'm not sure I recall" or just sit in silence for minute after munute when a question was asked. The children hadn't been schooled on how to avoid a question instead they just spoke from their hearts with honesty. Some of their answers may not have helped, but all they remembered was that they had sworn to tell the "whole" truth. Since the hearing, many of the children have been criticized by some adults and yes many have called to tell them how much they respect and admire them for standing up. My own daughters remarks to me the day of the hearing were, "Mom, we are guaranteed freedom of speech in our country and someone has got to be brave enough to stand up and tell the truth about how things really are at school". I sat in awe as I looked over at this child that God had lent to me while on this earth. With a thankful heart I had a much better understanding of the phrase from the Bible which says, "And a little child shall lead them". Sincerely,

Lynn County Included In Cloud Seeding Program

The High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 Board of Directors has unanimously approved a $432,460 contract to Weather Modification Incorporated of Fargo, North Dakota, to operate a precipitation enhancement program within the Water District's 15-county service area this spring and summer.

The program's target area includes all of Bailey, Cochran, Hale, Lubbock, Lynn, and Parmer Counties, as well as part of Armstrong, Castro, Crosby, Deaf Smith, Floyd, Hockley, Lamb, Potter, and Randall Counties.

Precipitation enhancement, or cloud seeding, is an attempt to encourage clouds to generate more rainfall than they would otherwise by introducing seeding agents, such as silver iodide. The silver iodide provides additional condensation nuclei which can allow more cloud moisture to be converted to large raindrops that can survive the fall through the dry subcloud layer and reach the ground as meaningful rainfall.

"The Water District Board of Directors considers precipitation enhancement to be a tool to help enhance the surface and ground water resources of the area," said Board President James P. Mitchell of Wolfforth. "Certainly, any additional rainfall generated as a result of this program would help reduce ground water pumpage, increase natural recharge, and extend the life of the Ogallala Aquifer."

The Water District conducted meetings last week in each of its five District Directors' Precincts to inform the public about precipitation enhancement and to obtain feedback regarding participation in such a program.

"About 96 percent of the attendees at these meeting indicated support for the program," said a Water District representative.

Weather Modification incorporated was awarded the precipitation enhancement contract based upon the type and performance of aircraft to be used; silver iodide flare unit cost; and their previous performance record.

Under the contract, Weather Modification Incorporated will operate the precipitation enhancement program using its own pilots, meteorologists, and three aircraft mounted with silver iodide flares. The contractor will also

TO THE CUSTOMERS OF THE TAHOKA PUBLIC WATER SYSTEM: MANDATORY HEALTH EFFECTS LANGUAGE FOR NITRATE

The Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (TNRCC) sets drinking water standards and has determined that nitrate poses an acute health concern at certain levels of exposure. Nitrate is used in fertilizer and is found in sewage and wastes from human and/or farm animals and generally gets into drinking water from those activities. Excessive levels of nitrate in drinking water have caused serious illness and sometimes death in infants under six months of age. The serious illness in infants is caused because nitrate is converted to nitrite in the body. Nitrite interferes with the oxygen carrying capacity of the child's blood. This is an acute disease in that symptoms can develop rapidly in infants. In most cases, health deteriorates over a period of days. Symptoms include shortness of breath and blueness of the skin. Clearly, expert medical advice should be sought immediately if these symptoms occur. The purpose of this notice is to encourage ents and other responsible parties to provide infants with an alternate source of drinking water. Local and State health authorities are the best source for information concerning alternate sources. of drinking water for infants. TNRCC has set the drinking water standard at 10 parts per million (ppm) for nitrate to protect against the risk of these adverse effects. TNRCC has also set a drinking water standard for nitrite at 1 ppm. To allow for the fact that the toxicity of nitrate and nitrite are additive, TNRCC has also established a standard for the sum of nitrate and nitrite at 10 ppm. Drinking water that meets the TNRCC standard is associated with little to none of this risk and is considered safe with respect to nitrate.
