Settlement Now Official; Wright Resignation Set

by JUANELL JONES

Jimmy Wright will resign his position as Lynn County Attorney at midnight on December 31, 1998, it was officially confirmed this week by Lynn County Judge J.F. Brandon. The resignation is included in a settlement agreement which was officially approved this week by The Honorable Judge Pat M. Baskin of Midland, Brandon said.

The terms of the settlement were reported last week, but Wright had not yet signed the document. As of Monday, the document had been signed by both parties (by Wright and by Lynn County Commissioners and Judge Brandon, who were petitioners in the case to remove Wright from office on grounds of incompetency and official misconduct), and

The settlement document also states that Wright (who has served as Napper could be officially appointed Lynn County Attorney since 1981) will not perform any further duties as office until the next general election.

County Attorney of Lynn County. His salary will be paid through Dec. 31, including health insurance premiums and retirement system contributions made by Lynn County. Commissioners agreed in the settlement to continue paying health insurance premiums on Wright at a rate of $218.69 per month under the county's health insurance policy through June 1999.

In signing the document, Wright agrees to waive any potential claim against the county under the Americans With Disability Act. The county, in turn, agrees to pursue no further legal action against Wright in relation to the current matter.

Commissioners recently named Lamesa attorney Jay Napper as interim county attorney for Lynn officially approved by Judge Baskin. County, through the end of December, to assist with legal matters. to fulfill Wright's unexpired term of

Eagles Roll On Into Class A Regional Football Final

The O'Donnell Eagles, already third period was scoreless and with more football victories in one O'Donnell added scores on runs by season than any other O'Donnell team Gutierrez and Bessire in the fourth, in history, will try to move closer to while allowing Gruver's Greyhounds the coveted goal of state champion as they face a tough Wheeler Mustang team in the Class A regional final game at Amarillo Dick Bivins Stadium at 7:30 p.m. Friday. It was in this same stadium that the Eagles mashed Gruver 41-14 last Friday afternoon to go 11-1 for the season, a victory for which the offensive line of Coach Kevin Spiller's team got a lot of credit, both from the coach and by running backs Tatum Bessire and Albert Gloria, both of whom gained more than 100 yards. Bessire had 160 yards in 23 carries and Gloria gained 141 in 20 efforts. Bessire scored on runs of 20 and 11 yards, Gloria scored on two runs of 12 yards each, and OB Manny Gutierrez scored on an 8-vard run and passed 47 yards to Manuel O'I Trevino for another touchdown.

SOMEWHERE in England, there's an artist who has been drawing an ancient brick wall for the last 13 years. And he still has a lot of years to go, because he's drawing the wall one brick at a time.

A British historical organization is paying this artist to draw the old wall a brick at a time so that all the details will be preserved for posterity.

On the face of it, this sounds like the dumbest project I ever heard of. And after I read more about it the other day, it still sounds stupid.

Unfortunately I can't tell you the name of the artist, the organization which is paying him, or how much, or the exact location of the wall, because I can't remember where I read the story (I kind of think it may have been in a copy of People).

I read the story because I once saw such a wall, at Chester, near the west coast of England, and I wondered if it referred to the same wall. The story never said, exactly, where the wall is, but it did say it originally was built as defense against Roman invaders, and that part fits the one I saw in the 1980s.

The obvious question which comes up is why in the world would they pay somebody to draw each brick to preserve all the details. Have they never heard of photography? The story answered that question poorly by saying that the artist could see details the camera wouldn't show.

I seriously doubt that. Really good cameras operated by expert photographers could easily do the job of preserving all the details anyone could possibly want, probably finishing the project in about a month.

Still, you have to admire this artist for getting someone to pay him for a lifetime of work. I wonder if he frames and signs each picture he draws, so they'll have an art gallery that's longer than the wall and even more boring. ("This is brick number 17,076. It is very similar to brick number 17,075 and all the ones prior to that. I am sick of drawing bricks, but hey, it's a living.")

SYNDICATED columnist Dave Barry notes that three years ago in November, Congress and President Clinton were unable to agree on a budget, resulting in a shutdown of the federal government that "caused massive traumatic nationwide disruption for maybe 80 ordinary citizens.

"The president announced that he was sending home 800,000 'nonessential' federal employees (Al Gore was halfway to Tennessee before he found out that this did not include him), with 'nonessential' being officially defined as: 'any federal employees whom you can observe at work for several weeks without detecting a single clue as to what his or her job is'."

I love it.

SOME OF YOU more intellectual types may not want to read this last item. It will be of interest mainly to weekend golfers (a vast number of folks who mostly make a living doing things unrelated to golf) and to people who believe strongly that newspaper writers are totally honest and trustworthy and incapable of lying (a really tiny group consisting mainly of mothers of newspaper people).

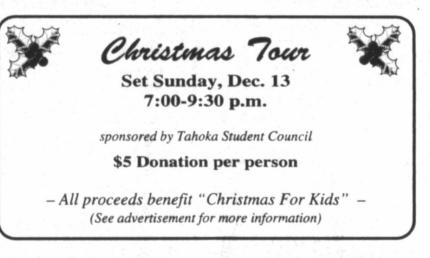

Anyway, I realized a golfer's dream and nightmare all at once Saturday. I made a hole-in-one (the dream). I was playing alone and there were no witnesses (the nightmare).

Of course, if there are no witnesses, it really doesn't count with other golfers or the PGA (I guess). After I hit the shot, I looked around to see if anyone saw it. Only person near was a young man on a tractor. I drove over to him and asked if he saw me make a hole-in-one. He's seen me play before, so I expected him to fall off the tractor laughing in derision. But he just said no, he was too busy moving dirt to see anything else.

I put it in this newspaper anyway, listing no witnesses. I was empted to put down Kenneth Starr and Linda Tripp, although Elvis is more likely to have seen it than they.

Anyway, I'm now awaiting the sneers and jeers of all the golfers I know, who will say unkind things like, "Yeah, sure. If I had a newspaper. I could report a hole-in-one for myself about every two weeks."

There may be others who suggest that I'm not being holey truthful.

Jury Call Postponed

Jury duty for Monday, Dec. 7 has been postponed until Wednesday, Dec. 9, according to Lynn County District Clerk Sandra Laws. Lynn County residents who received a letter from the Lynn County Sheriff's Department to serve in the 106th District Court of Lynn County on Dec. 7 at 10 a.m. as a petit juror should change the date to Wednesday, Dec. 9 at 10 a.m.

Petit jurors may hear criminal or civil cases.

O'Donnell jumped off to a quick 353 20-0 lead in the first quarter, with 61 Gutierrez running for 2 points after 2-2one of the three touchdowns. Gruver 3-3 scored its only points in the second, 2 and it was 28-14 at halftime. The 7-6 no points in the last half.

Wheeler (10-2) beat Sudan 28-27 in overtime last week, which means the Eagles will have a big task ahead this week. Sudan is the only team to beat O'Donnell this season.

Meanwhile, the Eagles have soared to lofty heights in this football season, with more wins already than any other O'Donnell team, at least as shown in records of seasons listed in the Eagles football program this year. Only one other team, the 1991 Eagles coached by Odis Summers, had double-digit wins. That team was 10-2

The 1934 team of Coach Fletcher Johnson with a 9-0-0 record, is the only unbeaten team listed.

Sponsors, Donations Still Needed For "Christmas For Kids" Program

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas, and that means sponsors and donations are needed to help provide Christmas gifts for needy Lynn County children. The "Christmas For Kids" program, a volunteer non-profit program which ensures that needy children in the county have a Christmas gift to open on Christmas Day, provided gifts for 213 children last Christmas and it looks like this year's list may be close to that.

As of Monday, Dec. 1, 161 children have been placed on the list, with only 41 "adopted" to provide gifts for. Donations of money, new clothes, or new toys are still being accepted for the program, which provides gifts for needy children in Tahoka, Wilson, New Home and O'Donnell.

Lynn County Treasurer Janet Porterfield, who heads up the program, says that any organization, individual, Sunday School class or business interested in "adopting" a child or family of children should contact her soon, at 998-4055.

For those who aren't adopted, Mrs. Porterfield and others go Christmas shopping with the donated funds, and try to provide each child with one garment of clothing and two small toys

Some organizations provide annual fund-raisers for the "Christmas For Kids" program, such as Tahoka High School Student Council's "Christmas Tour," scheduled this year for Sunday evening, Dec. 13. The Wilson Lions Club also helps with the program, collecting money and new, unwrapped toys which they bring to Mrs. Porterfield at the Lynn County Courthouse.

After the gifts are collected, the Lynn County Courtroom is turned in to "Santa's Workshop" with a frenzy of activity, where volunteers meet to match gifts with the children on the list, and then there is the flurry of paper, scissors, tape and ribbons as the packages are wrapped. If the list is close to 200 children, that's approximately 600 packages to wrap ... give or take a box or two.

Mrs. Porterfield says they'll take all the help they can get, whether volunteers want to wrap packages (call 998-4055 and she'll tell you when to come), donate gift wrapping paper or boxes, scotch tape, batteries for toys (mostly size AA or 9-volt), or donations of new clothes (for any size child, male or female, up to age 14), or new toy. Money, of course, is always appreciated - and it all goes for the children.

They can also use volunteers to help deliver the packages to the families, she says. This year, she hopes to begin delivering gifts by Dec. 15.

Mrs. Porterfield works closely with the Department of Human Services to determine that the children are truly needy, and gifts are provided only for those age 14 and under.

To donate, or for more information about the "Christmas For Kids" program, contact Mrs. Porterfield at the County Treasurer's Office of the Lynn County Courthouse, at 998-4055.

Thieves Take Diesel Fuel From Tanks

Gary Wayne Houchin, who lives about 3 miles west of FM 400 on County Rd. 15, told sheriff's officers Nov. 21 that someone had stolen about 800 gallons of diesel fuel from two tanks on his farm. The missing fuel was valued at $550.

Other activity by the sheriff's department and Tahoka Police Dept. during the last week included calls to family and neighborhood disputes and violence, and one incident in which a man said his brother stole some farm equipment from him.

A 42-year-old Tahoka man and his 38-year-old wife both were arrested last Friday for assault/family violence after he struck her and she pushed him down and he hit his head, and then she reportedly tried to run over him with a car.

In jail during the week were three persons on assault charges, two on a Lubbock warrant for theft of services, two for driving while intoxicated, with one of these also charged with possession of marijuana, one for carrying a prohibited weapon and one for possession of marijuana under two ounces.

In November, dispatchers at the sheriff's office answered 210 calls, including 97 for the county, 75 for the City of Tahoka, 15 for O'Donnell, 13 for EMS ambulance and 10 calls to fires.

Tahoka poet Ken Turner was informed this week that his original poem, "Flickering Light" will be published in The National Library of Poetry's forthcoming anthology, scheduled for publication in Spring 1999. The Selection Committee has also certified his poem as a semifinalist in their North American Open Poetry Contest, to be entered into the final competition held in winter 1999.

As a semi-finalist, Turner has a chance of winning one of 70 cash or gift prizes, including a $1000 grand prize.

It is the fourth time this year, Turner says, that he has had his original poetry accepted for publication in different anthologies. The National Library of Poetry is headquartered in Maryland. Turner's other poems were published in anthologies in California, Lubbock and New York.

by Rebekah Curry Tahoka FHA

In 1945 Future Homemakers of America began as the only youth led organization with family as its central focus. Currently there are many young men and women involved in FHA/HERO. Leadership is emphasized and developed through FHA/ HERO. Students develop leadership skills by becoming involved, attending conferences, and contributing to the community. There are two FHA/ HERO chapters at Tahoka High School. Patti Rambo sponsors the Tahoka Chapter, and Donna Stone sponsors the Madeline Hegi Chapter.

"Future Homemakers of America has changed in many facets over the years. Young men and women not only learn how to become quality family and community members but also learn extraordinary leadership abilities that are not learned elsewhere. Being able to utilize verbal, written and electronic communication is a major focus of our FHA/ HERO leaders. These skills are developed and nurtured as officers and competitors in this organization. FHA/HERO members are our leaders for tomorrow's world," said Mrs. Rambo.

Students develop leadership through participation in their local chapters. Students can hold offices, conduct meetings, and develop ideas for projects. Each class in the Home Economics curriculum has its own officers. The classes conduct meetings of their own and decide in which community activities they would like to participate.

FHA/HERO Programs help members to become actively involved in their community. "Families First" helps young people become strong family members and leaders for today and tomorrow. This program also helps to strengthen the family as the nection" helps young people explore what is important to them in a career and start to prepare for that career, introduces young people to a career development process they can use throughout their lifetimes, and helps young people understand and prepare for the interactions among careers, families, and communities.

"Power of One", a program that focuses on self-improvement, has five modules students can complete. A Better You, Take the Lead, Working on Working, Family Ties, and Speak Out for FHA/HERO are the five modules. A Better You encourages students to better themselves. Take the Lead encourages students to learn about careers and how to be successful in an occupation. Family Ties encourages members and their families to become a closer family unit by participating in various activities together. Speak Out for FHA/HERO encourages students to educate other people about FHA/HERO and how the organization has affected their lives

Families Acting for Community Traffic Safety (FACTS) encourages students and community members to become more aware of traffic safety. Members can conduct bicycle safety clinics to teach children how to be safe when riding their bikes, or promote seat belt safety. Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) and Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) are organizations that work with FHA/ HERO members to teach awareness of the dangers when combining drink4 ing and driving.

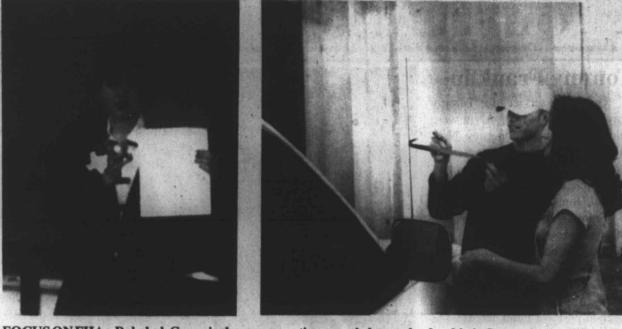

Youth Exchanging with Seniors (YES) is another of the FHA/HERO programs. Students choose to interact with the elderly. Many choose to decorate the Tahoka Care Center. Sara Alvarado, Chris Craig, Debbie Garcia, and Casey McCallister make holiday greeting cards each month for the residents at the Tahoka Care Center.

FHA members in the Community Service class have participated in many projects. During Red Ribbon Week students tied red ribbons on the cars at school to promote drug awareness. Members of the class also worked in the Child Welfare Board booth at the Lynn County Harvest Festival selling raffle tickets to benefit the children in Lynn County. Each student volunteers twice a week during class. Rebekah Curry, senior, volunteers at the Church of Christ Clothes Closet and food pantry. She sorts and organizes food and clothing that help people in the community. Tancy DeLeon, senior, volunteers in Mrs. Wuensche's kindergarten class in Tahoka Elementary School. Mario Luna, senior, and Amie Lopez, junior, help with the children at Small Wonders Headstart pre-school. Bradley Rangel, senior, devotes his time to the Meals-on-Wheels program. He delivers meals to people that otherwise might not get lunches. Melissa Pedroza, senior, assist the county judge. She files and types documents. Jose Garcia and Markey Valdez, both seniors, volunteer for Mrs. Williams in Tahoka Elementary School. Valerie Lopez, junior, volunteers at the Tahoka Care Center.

"I love working with the kindergartners," said Tancy. "They are enthusiastic and fun to be around. I learn something new every time I work with them. They are so cute!"

The Diversified Career Preparation Class donated clothes to the Church of Christ Clothes Closet. These students also cleaned the closet, hung up clothing, and sorted clothing at the Clothes Closet.

Students can also compete for office on a region or state level and participate in STAR (Students Taking Action for Recognition) events. Tahoka High School has had officers for the past eight years. Rebekah Curry, a senior at Tahoka High School, is presently in her third year as an officer. Rebekah's offices included Region I Vice President of Public Relations, State Corresponding Secretary, and Region I National

Cotton Producers Receive New Ballots For Dec. 9 Regional Boll Weevil Vote

Last week, the Texas Depart- midnight Dec. 9, in order for it to be ment of Agriculture (TDA) announced that due to a printing error, new boll weevil referendum ballots were being mailed to all eligible cotton growers in the five-count Western High Plains (WHP) Boll Weevil Eradication Zone. Since identification of the error, TDA has taken immediate action to rectify the problem.

O

"The growers out here have worked hard to get to this point, garnishing tremendous industry and grower support. Fortunately, TDA recognized the mistake and acted quickly giving producers every opportunity to cast their vote," said Don Parrish, Yoakum County cotton producer and Foundation board representative.

The department has sent each WHP eligible voter a new, official ballot printed on cream-colored paper. Producers should discard any original white ballots sent with green envelopes, and use the official creamcolored ballot only.

Cotton producers who have already returned a white ballot must recast their vote using the creamcolored ballot, postmarked before counted. White ballots will be considered invalid in this referendum and will not be counted.

Eligible voters in the WHP boll weevil eradication zone should have already received the new official cream-colored ballot, accompanied with a postage-paid return envelope and a letter of explanation and apology. Producers in the zone who planted cotton this year, but did not receive the cream-colored ballot should immediately contact the TDAat (512) 463-7593 or 1-800-TELL-TDA (1-800-835-5832).

To ensure proper election confidentiality, balloting is strictly carried out by the state of Texas through the TDA. The Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation acts only as the entity established to carry out boll weevil eradication activity once growers in a zone have voted and approved a program, and does not participate in official referendum activity.

The WHP Boll Weevil Eradication Zone consists of approximately 875,000 acres in Andrews, Gaines, Yoakum and parts of Terry and Lynn counties.

CRP Sign-Up Ends Soon

The 18th Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) sign-up period will run through Friday, Dec. 11. Any contracts that expired prior to 1998, or will expire Sept. 30, 1999, as well as land not under contract may be bid if the land meets the eligibility criteria.

The Conservation Reserve Program is an excellent opportunity for owners to retire marginal cropland that is only producing minimal returns. By bidding their marginal cropland into CRP, producers can concentrate their inputs on their more productive land, where their opportunity for return is greater.

Producers are reminded if the current farm bill legislation is not changed, producers will only receive farm program payments for the next four years. In addition to making more efficient use of their inputs, the Conservation Reserve Program provides a guaranteed income from these acres for ten years.

The new CRP program is designed to target the most environmentally sensitive land. The primary goals of CRP are erosion reduction, water quality improvement, and wildlife habitat enhancement. All eligible offers will be ranked using an Environmental Benefits Index (EBI). The index is used to evaluate all offers based on the potential environmental benefits. The criteria that will be used to determine the EBI ranking include: wildlife benefits, erosion control, water quality, air quality, and cost. Producers, who bid their land, and whose bid is accepted into the Conservation Reserve Program, will sign a lease with the United States Department of Agriculture. The bid rate is determined by the relative productivity of the soil types on the acreage offered.

Owners who are interested in bidding their land into the Conservation Reserve Program, or have any questions about CRP, should contact the local Natural Resources Conservation Service at 998-4507, the Farm Service Agency at 998-4501, or come by the local USDA Service Center Office at 1603 S. 2nd in Tahoka.

Producers should not wait until the last few days to schedule an appointment with the Farm Service Agency if they plan to bid land into CRP. If producers wait until the last few days of the sign-up to schedule an appointment, it may not be possible to get all the documentation completed before the deadline.

EW AT THE LEBRARY I'll Be Watching You by Victoria Gotti

Rose Miller is a best-selling novelist with a seemingly perfect life: a wealthy husband, adorable daughter, and a country mansion. But Rose has something else too - a shadowy stalker who sends her blood red roses with threatening notes that hint at Rose's hidden past...a life she thought she had buried forever.

Terrified, Rose enlists the help of a veteran detective, John Falcone, who begins to uncover a shocking pattern of threats and violence, all of which seem to center around the beautiful celebrity author and her powerful, wealthy family

When Rose's best friend is murdered in a bizarre ritual drawn from a scene in one of Rose's own novels, Falcone's suspicions about her "perfect life" become even deeper, and the terror Rose thought she could hide begins to spin out of control.

Full of menace of long-hidden secrets, and the darkness of the human heart, I'll Be Watching You is a chilling tour de force by Victoria Gotti, author of the critically acclaimed legal thriller The Senator's Daughter.

This year's winners from Lynn County were Casey Donald of Wilson, and Klyssa Kelln of Tahoka. Donald, a beef production exhibitor, is the son of Lonnie and Connie Donald. Kelln, whose expertise is in method demonstrations, is the daughter of Jay and Karen Kelln.

Four-H is a youth development program sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, an arm of the Texas A&M University System (TAMUS).

"Texas 4-H involves kids who care - kids who have a lot of energy, a lot of enthusiasm, and a lot of fun," said Allison Davis, Extension 4-H program specialist.

"They get involved in their communities and many different skillbuilding activities. In doing so, they make a big difference in the lives of people they know.

"More than 575,000 youths participate in the Texas 4-H program. That's more than 13 percent of all Texas kids between five and 19 years old," she said.

The annual South Plains 4-H awards banquet is sponsored by Bailey County, Caprock, Deaf Smith, Dickens, Lamb County, Lea County, Lighthouse, Lyntegar, Midwest, South Plains and Swisher electric cooperatives.

The 38 Gold Star winners received their awards from Dr. Kathy Volanty and Jett Major, District II Extension directors.

Boll Weevil Eradication Program Offers Producers New Proposal

by Greg Pierson Texas Tech Journalism Student

Lynn County farmers are taking a close look at a new boll weevil eradication program and now have an opportunity to vote on their decision in a new ballot which cotton producers recently received. New ballots for the proposed boll weevil eradication program have already been mailed to Lynn County producers, so they can vote for or against the new program. Ballots are due by Dec. 9

Due to an error by an Austin printing company, ballots with incorrect farm numbers and acreage were mailed to some producers in the area. The incorrect ballots were sent with a green return envelope.

Producers should discard the white ballot and green envelope initially sent to them. Cotton producers who have already returned a white ballot in the accompanying green envelop to TDA are urged to recast their vote utilizing the cream-colored ballot.

Note that no white ballot will be considered valid in this referendum and will not be counted. Completed cream-colored ballots must be postmarked before midnight Dec. 9 to be counted.

The proposed program will cost producers $12 per acre on irrigated cropland and $6 per acre on dryland crops. The main question area farmers are asking themselves and each other is, "Can we afford this amount?"

Most of Lynn County's producers have been included in the Western High Plains Zone, one of four in the South Plains. The Western High Plains Zone includes parts of Lynn and Terry counties and all of Yoakum, Andrews and Gaines counties.

"The zones made under the new program cause me to have farms in three different zones. This makes it difficult when regulations are different in each zone," says Lynn County producer Jeff Nance.

If the Western High Plains Zone votes in favor of the program, it will be the fourth zone in the state under the new eradication program. The Southern Rolling Plains Zone, Rolling Plains Central Zone and the Gulf Coast Winter Garden Zone are the three zones currently in the new eradication program.

Each zone has a steering committee, which consists of two members from each county in the zone. The steering committee puts the plan together for their respective zones. Lynn County representatives are Kenny Heathington and Larry Moore. Ricky Bearden of Yoakum County is the chairperson of the steering committee.

During a speech in Brownfield recently, State Senator Robert Duncan, R-Lubbock, and State Representative Rob Junnel, D-San Angelo, announced that during the next legislative session they will sponsor legislation that would enable the state to bear part of the financial burden for the boll weevil eradication program.

Under this plan the state would share the costs of the program statewide. It would also call for the state to pay a portion of boll weevil eradication expenses already incurred by Texas cotton farmers.

The plan will be introduced to the Texas Legislature when they convene Jan. 12.

Bearden says, "The partnership with the state is here now and the surplus funds are here now ... this surplus of funds and partnership with the state might not be available in the future."

The program would consist of several program employees, constantly monitoring trap counts. Each trap would be labeled with a bar code, which would ensure proper organization of the traps and that the traps were checked at least once a week. Bar codes are read by hand-held computers and at the end of the day the information gathered in the hand unit. can be downloaded onto a main computer for records, according to Bearden.

Once a field needs to be sprayed, according to trap counts, contracted planes will spray ULB Malathion at a rate of 12 ounces per acre. All the planes that would be contracted must be equipped with a GPS guiding system, Bearden says.

I would like to say goodbye to all the customers and friends that I have known and done business with the last several years. I have decided to retire from Terra Industries at this time.

I have really enjoyed being associated with all of you, whether it was for business or personal. I will miss seeing you, but I have decided that this is a good change for me.

Terra will still be in full operation at Tahoka with Kenneth Scott, Jim Wells, and Alicia Stephens to serve your needs. I am leaving this location in very capable hands. They have learned the fertilizer and chemical business very well.

Thank you all for letting me be a part of your lives. I hope to see you all later!
