Lynn County Hospital District is hosting a reception honoring Dr. Bruce Fried this Friday, June 15, from 10 until 11 a.m. in the hospital's meeting room. All area residents are invited to attend.

two and a half years ago as the third physician at the Lynn County Hospital Clinic, has accepted a position in Mannheim, Germany. His job there will be as the number two person in charge of the largest outpatient clinic in Germany, an Army installation including about 20 doctors and nurse practitioners. Dr. Fried has been in the Army reserve, and will return to active Dr. Fried, who came to Tahoka duty. His rank is Colonel.

"We hate to lose Dr. Fried off the staff at the hospital," said Hospital Administrator Dan Powers, adding, "We wish him well in his new assignment."

Thefts, Traffic Accident Reported In County

An 18-wheeler carrying a load of Ector County. wire rolls overturned about seven miles south of Tahoka on U.S. 87 Tuesday afternoon and the driver was treated at Lynn County Hospital emergency room for apparent minor injury.

Juan Manuel Diaz, 52 of Edinburgh was taken by O'Donnell EMS ambulance to the hospital.

A 52-year-old Big Spring woman and a 33-year-old Lubbock man were arrested for theft of candy, food and a baseball cap from Town and Country convenience store in Lubbock.

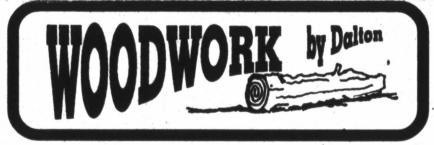

A Tahoka woman reported being raped by her live-in boyfriend, but

PER

A 17-year-old Tahoka youth was jailed for running from a police officer, and a 16-year-old was accused of taking $30 cash from a 22-yearold Tahoka woman.

In jail during the week were six persons on warrants from Lubbock County, including one each for speeding, theft, and three counts of failure to appear, failure to display later declined to file charges.

I FINALLY broke down and paid half of $39 for a book called "The Doctors Book of Food Remedies-The newest discoveries in the power of food to cure and prevent health problems. from aging and diabetes to ulcers and yeast infections."

The reason the book is so expensive is because they had to print all that on the cover.

I paid half of the book's price because my brother-in-law said he had been thinking about ordering it because the teaser mail he got made it sound as if it would be interesting reading. So I said, "sure, get it and I'll pay half the price and we can both read it."

Published by the editors of Prevention, the book lists what you should and should not eat to help prevent or maybe cure a bunch of things, including all those things listed on the cover plus many others, such as high blood pressure, asthma, arthritis, cancer, depression, headaches, hemorrhoids, kidney stones, Alzheimer's, kidney stones and even gas (buy a car which gets 40 miles per gallon?).

Having had diabetes ever since the doctors lowered the maximum sugar level at which you can enjoy food so that everybody over 50 has it, I was interested in that section. I read some interesting things, but quickly I could spot some areas of confusion.

In the first place, you have to decide which of these ailments give you the most trouble. Well, let's see; I think I have most of those ailments listed in the book, and scanning it I quickly learn that what they say you ought to eat for one thing is bad for the other.

 Also, some of the terminology is not written for dummies. For example, it is suggested that diabetics should eat more carbohydrates. Or maybe less carbohydrates, depending on the individual situation. What, I wondered, is a carbohydrate? Can you go to the supermarket and say, "I'd like a package/can of carbohydrates? And give me a half pound of cholesterol and a half gallon of triglycerides.

Only rarely will they name a real food; like "eat lots of oranges and legumes."

I know what an orange is, but what, exactly, is a legume? I had been watching the French Open, and thought maybe it was a French tennis player. ("Henri Legume just lost in straight sets to Andre Agassi").

"What's a legume?" I asked my daughter, "A small body of water," she answered promptly. I don't tawk real plain and she thought I said, "lagoon." After we got that straightened out, she looked it up and learned that a legume is a bean or pea or some variation thereof.

That's what I thought all the time, but why didn't the book just say "eat lots of oranges, beans and peas"?)

Anyway, the book is pretty good. But I wish for each ailment it would just say, "eat this," and "don't eat this."

John, Hancock Named Coach, Player Of The Year

Tahoka High School Coach Brent further than the area round in the John and junior Blandon Hancock capped off a great season for the Tahoka Bulldog baseball team by being named Coach of the Year and Player of the Year, respectively, for the 2001 Lubbock Avalanche-Journal All South Plains Team for class 2A. Brandon McCord was named First Team Catcher while Michael Garcia earned First Team Utility Player honors.

Coach John led the Bulldogs to the District 4-2A championship with an almost perfect 7-1 record. The Dogs swept Eldorado and Coahoma in three game series before bowing out to Olney in the regional semi-finals. No Bulldog team had advanced program's seven year existence. Hancock, hitting cleanup, finished the season with a .418 average and led the team with 40 runs, 36 RBIs and nine homers. Nineteen of his 33 hits went for extra bases and he was close to perfection in stolen bases, swiping 19 in 20 attempts.

Catching all of the Bulldog's games, McCord posted a .506 average, 42 hits, nine doubles, and 25 RBIs.

In his last year of high school, Garcia was the lone senior starter for the Dogs. He hit .338 with eight doubles and four home runs as well as leading the Bulldogs from the mound, going 9-2 with a 3.91 ERA and 61 strikeouts.

FM 400/Cemetery Bridges Closed Beginning Monday

Contractors will close several overpasses next week in Tahoka to complete work on bridge decks over U.S. 87, according to the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT).

The FM 400 overpass on the north edge of Tahoka and the cemetery bridge on the south edge of town will both be closed for two to three months while workers lay concrete on bridge decks and install traffic rails. The overpasses will be closed on Monday, June 18, and work will begin on Tuesday. Main lane traffic is already detoured to frontage roads, but cross traffic will need to find an alternate route.

TxDOT will also close two lanes on the south side of the Hwy. 380 overpass, with cross traffic reduced to one side of the bridge. Both east and westbound traffic on Hwy. 380 will have access to the overpass, but lanes will be moved to the north side of the bridge. Drivers are urged to use caution in all construction areas, and to obey speed limit reductions.

The closings are part of a 4.6-mile construction project that includes rehabilitation of U.S. 87 main lanes from the north city limits to the south city limits. This $8.1 million project is expected to be completed in January 2002.

Tahoka Police officers were checking out the theft report when they were advised that the suspects' vehicle had been stopped by a DPS trooper south of Tahoka. The stolen items were valued at $50.43. Some of the items were recovered from the vehicle. The woman also was held on a warrant for parole violation out of drivers license, failure to control speed and failure to leave information. Six others were jailed on charges including theft, theft by check, parole violation plus theft and forgery, hindering apprehension. driving while license suspended and driving while intoxicated, second offense.

Financing Hits Snag On New County Jail

a snag Monday morning regarding financing of the proposed renovation of facilities for the Lynn County Law Enforcement Center, when financial consultant Vince Viaille informed them that one of the local banks had withdrawn their portion of certificates of obligation (CO's). The withdrawal of one of the three local banks - Wilson State Bank, and First National Banks of Tahoka and O'Donnell - will delay the financial aspects of the project for at least another two weeks.

"Wilson State Bank has withdrawn their portion of CO's because of a refunding issue," said Viaille, of First Southwest Company, a financial advisory firm which is representing the county in the financial aspects of the jail remodeling venture. He explained that the bank withdrew due to a lack of a commitment from the county to refund the issues if they lose their tax-free status, noting that the Attorney General's office would not allow commissioners to make such a commitment which would affect future commissioners courts.

Viaille told commissioners that he would renegotiate selling the issues (CO's) and present a proposal at the next commissioners meeting, on June 25. Local banks will again be able to participate if they so desire, he noted.

The county is seeking $2.4 million in certificates of obligation, to be paid off over a 20-year period, to finance the renovation of the former S&K Implement building on Hwy. 380 into a 48-bed jail facility which would also house county and state law enforcement offices. Commissioners hope the facility will pay for itself, with revenue brought from homing other state and federal pris-

Lynn County Commissioners hit oners, as well as savings realized from no longer having to pay for inmates which could not be housed here in the current 14-bed jail.

The general obligation certificates would be paid annually, first from revenue raised from the facility. However, if that revenue does not meet the loan payments, commissioners are obligated to pay the CO's from tax revenue, and can, if needed, raise taxes to meet those obligations without incurring a rollback election. In other business, the county received a clean audit report presented by Jim Kingery, CPA, which commissioners unanimously approved.

Commissioners voted to assist the Lynn County Pioneers Senior Citizens Center, which is in need of funding in order to continue operating. Each commissioner voted to give $500 apiece from each of the four precincts, and County Judge J.F. Brandon said the general fund would match precinct funding, for a total of $4,000 for the Senior Center.

WE ALWAYS WELCOME

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

I am not one that usually goes back on a decision once my mind is made up, however, due to the overwhelming support that I have received this last week, I feel I must make an exception.

I would like to thank everyone for all the pep talks, phone calls, and especially you folks that went out of your way to stop by and express your anger, frustration and disappointment.

After carefully weighing all the pros and cons, I can not let down so many people that have put so much confidence in me even with my reservations. Thank all of you that donated money to be added to the reward fund, and even though I don't believe it will be necessary but a special thanks to everyone that has offered to stand guard outside my yard. At this time I am going to try again. However, should you drive by on any given holiday and notice that there is no tribute displayed then you will just know our little vandal struck again. I have updated our security/ surveillance system as well as taken some good advice on little boobytraps. The reward is still growing for anyone that would like to help us and put a name to the person we have on tape. Just come by anytime after 5 p.m.

Again, thank you all from the bottom of my heart for all the support, and I hope that I will be able to continue entertaining you for many years to come.

> Sincerely, Starr Bray

entine for Secondary Science.

Two girls coaching positions still remain to be filled, and trustees authorized the superintendent to fill those vacancies due to time constraints.

A salary schedule presented by Supt. Parker for salary increases for teaching assistants, secretaries and other district positions was approved by trustees, and a $1000 stipend for all secondary science teachers was approved.

Three Tahoka High School seniors were presented their high school diplomas at the board meeting, including Phillip DeLeon, Patty Nino, and Ramon Rivera.

And, trustees approved a change in calculating senior grade point averages in order to determine class ranking for valedictorian, salutatorian and honor graduates. Beginning the next school year, grades will be calculated at the end of the fifth sixweeks period, instead of the end of the sixth six-weeks period, for ranking purposes only. The final sixweeks period will be included in grade point averages on students' high school transcripts, Board President Greg Henley told The News.

"This is something that most area schools have been doing for quite some time, and it should save the district a lot of that last-minute scrambling to determine grades for ranking purposes," Henley said. A local policy change was also adopted regarding senior commencement exercises, stating that students who have not completed all state and local requirements for graduating would not participate in commencement exercises, but would instead receive their diplomas at the school business office after all requirements were met. In previous years, some participation in the commencement exercises was allowed.

The board again selected Bolinger, Segars, Gilbert & Moss, L.L.P. to conduct the district's financial audit for the 2000-2001 fiscal year, and approved a contract renewal with Four County Shared Services Arrangement for special education/ resources.

Pending further information, action was tabled on two agenda items, including establishment of a policy for the use of school facilities by the community and other civic groups and private citizens, and consideration of changes to a local policy regarding approved absences for professional personnel.

The next board meeting was scheduled for Thursday, July 12 at 7 p.m. in the Harvick Building.

All seven trustees, Supt. Parker, and other district staff were present, as well as several visitors. The board met in closed session for an hour and a half during the 3-1/2 hour meeting, adjourning at 10:35 p.m.

Will Tahoka Become A Ghost Town?

If you spend your money out of town, it will!

Our local economy is fragile. Shopping locally is a vital part of our growth and prosperity.

Why send locally-owned, hard-earned dollars out of town to support someone else? Money spent in Lubbock or other surrounding towns does not support our community, our school, or our hospital. The local businessman pays the highest percentage of local taxes. Everytime a business goes under, local taxes will go up in order to have the same tax base. That means homeowners and remaining businesses will inevitably pay more in taxes. So please, think before you shop out of town -- if prices seem cheaper elsewhere, are they really going to be cheaper in the long run? What will happen when you can no longer buy what you need in our town and there are no businesses left?

And all local businesses especially appreciate it when our taxing entities -our school, county, hospital and city -- spend the taxes they collect from us in our own town.

Spend your money locally -- help save your community.

PAGE 4, LYNN COUNTY NEWS, THURSDAY, JUNE 14, 2001 Lynn County Ground Water Levels Show 1.23' Decrease In Year 2000

Lynn County ground water levels decreased an average of 1.23 feet in 2000 in 82 privately-owned wells in the observation network maintained by the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 in its 571,613 acre service area within the county.

Ground water levels within Lynn County declined an average of 0.60 of a foot annually during the 10-year period from 1991 to 2001. An average annual decrease of 0.90 of a foot was recorded during the five-year period from 1996 to 2001.

Ground water levels in the Ogallala Aquifer within the 6.8 million acre Water District service area declined an average of 1.14 feet during 2000. This decline is 0.46 of a foot more than the 0.68 of a foot decline recorded for 1999.

A network of 1,215 privatelyowned observation water wells is used to determine the annual change in the quantity of water in the Ogallala Aquifer within the High Plains Water District. The depth-towater measurements are generally taken in January and February of each year to allow water levels to stabilize from pumping during the previous growing season. Once collected, these data are compared to the previous year's measurements to determine the change in ground water levels.

Two counties within the Water District recorded water level increases of less than one foot last year. Nine counties showed average annual water level declines of more than one foot, while four counties had average annual water level declines of less than one foot.

Maps showing the location and well number of observation wells in each county or portion of a county have been published in the Water District's free newsletter, The Cross Section. This issue includes tables listing observation wells in each county within the District and the water levels at one year, five year, and 10-year intervals.

Copies of the Cross Section are available by contacting the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No 1, 2930 Ave. O, Lubbock, TX 79405-1499 or by calling (806) 762-0181

Wilson Volunteer Fire Department Tip of the Week: Pets are special people also and proper care should be taken with them. If they are house pets, they should have one spot to sleep in so that owners will know where they are if a fire occurs. Many times, pets will be the first to sense danger and they will alert the homeowner to the danger which will "allow the family, including the pet, to escape the fire. If the pet is an outside pet that has an outdoor pen or run, make sure that the pen or run is far enough from the home so that the pet will not be trapped close to the burning structure.

Severe Storms Batter South Plains Crops

Hail, high winds, and blowing sand from four severe storms dealt a heard blow to South Plains crop producers from mid-May to early June, according to information released this week by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. As a result, the region may lose more than half a million acres of its irrigated cotton crop and several thousand acres of other crops.

Warm temperatures and good soil moisture potential spurred many cotton producers to begin planting in late April and early May. By May 25, they had planted almost 95 percent of the region's irrigated cotton crop. A 20-county area surrounding Lubbock comprises the South Plains, and annually produces roughly one-half of the state's five- to six-million acre cotton crop. High winds and blowing sand damaged several thousand acres of young cotton in eight counties on May 20, and a May 26 storm hailed out several thousand additional acres in western Dawson County. The largest storm occurred May 30 - rolling northwest to southeast, and leaving crops, livestock, barns, houses and equipment in nine counties damaged in its wake. A June 1 storm then caused considerable damage in three

It is still too early to tell the exact extent of crop damage from these storms, but preliminary estimates from county agents, Extension specialists, and agribusiness point to a projected loss of 360,000 to 500,000 acres of irrigated cotton and more than 10,000 acres of crops such as sunflowers, wheat and hay.

Early reports from USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) offices across the region point to a dollar loss of more than $77 million in crops, equipment and buildings, but the exact total is not yet known. These reports are often used to help federal and state officials designated "disaster areas" after severe weather events.

The value of cotton losses from the low estimate of 360,000 acres is estimated at more than $60 million. When economic multipliers are factored in, the total regional economic impact could rise to more than $180 million, according to TEAS information. Economic multipliers are often used to account for the ripple effect of currency spending as it passes through a regional or state economy.

"For many producers, the latter storms came right on top of the final cotton planting date for crop insurance coverage," said Randy Boman, Even producers with no weather losses are facing a tough year. Higher input and energy costs, low market prices, and the prospect of higher costs for pest control could stretch producers' crop budgets dangerously thin.

"Economically, it is a bad year to have to nurse a sick or damaged crop along," Boman said. "In that situation, your crop can rapidly become a money pit."

During the next week, many producers will have to make crucial decisions on acreage abandonment, replanting or switching to another crop entirely, he said.

Producers can get information and assistance in assessing crop damage. and in making crop replanting decisions, from their local county Extension office.

seem to attract the worst when it comes to repair companies. Homeowners need to watch out for the fly-by-night roofers and repair contractors. Don't hire the first contractor to come by without checking their history and be sure to get several references and prices or bids. Be sure to check with the references and you might even call the Better Business Bureau for more information. Most important of all, never pay any money in advance to the contractor (especially in cash). Remember, you already have storm damage - you don't want to get burned on the repairs as well.

Extension cotton agronomist-Lubbock. "They may not be able to replant an insured crop. Those farming south of Lubbock have a little more leeway. Their crop insurance planting deadline ranges from June 10 to about June 20.

Even though the South Plains' year-to-date rainfall total is well above average at slightly more than 8 inches, many dryland producers are still waiting for a rain to provide planting moisture or to get their planted crop up.

If that rain doesn't come, the region's lost or abandoned cotton acreage (irrigated and dryland) could exceed one million acres, says TAES.
