Lynnwood Now Allowed To Have More Residents

Lynnwood Assisted Living facility has been approved for a maximum of 30 residents, and soon should be allowed up to 40. Lynn County Hospital Administrator Dan Powers told the district's board of directors Tuesday night.

Young Women Jailed After Fight Here

Two young women were arrested and taken to jail Saturday night after fighting on the parking lot of a business in Tahoka, and one of the two, age 26, was also charged with possession of marifuana

David Willis of New Home told sheriff's officers Tuesday that someone had used one of his checks to purchase an item for $427.65. Investigation was continuing.

Several old cases were cleared up by Lynn County sheriff's department Tuesday as they were submitted to district court, where some were dismissed. Sheriff Jerry Franklin indicated the cases were mostly routine and said they dated as far back as

Jailed during the last week were the two women for fighting with one also charged with possession of marijuana, two persons for driving while intoxicated and one person for evading arrest. Jail population as of Wednesday totaled 43, with 19 of these held for Lubbock County

The state originally approved a limit of 22 residents for the 20-room facility, and Lynnwood has been at that capacity recently, with several persons on a waiting list. For the assisted living facility built next to the hospital to have 30 residents or more, more couples would have to be accommodated in some of the rooms. The facility managed by Susie Sosa received very high marks of approval from a state licensing agency which recently made an inspection

Powers also advised the group that the annual Fun and Food Festival is scheduled for April 16, and the district's chief operations officer, Jimmy Morris, advised the board that a new time clock system is about to be implemented.

The board voiced its support for a legislative bill involving Sen. Robert Duncan which would require all members of hospital boards to attend a specific number of meetings and also would stipulate that any member of such a board would have to be current in his or her property taxes.

Approved by vote were a resolution to allow Lynn County Appraisal District to purchase a build ing and move its main office, an annual assessment of community needs, and a semi-annual on status and quality of all hospital district operations.

Billy Tomlinson presided. Others attending were Powers, Morris and board members Jerry Ford, Joan Knox, Virginia Griffing, John Hawthorne and Dalton Wood. Member Mike Rivas was absent.

AMERICAN SCHOOLS have changed a lot since our grandparents went to school, with many improvements, along with some things which would have been better left alone. For some reason I recently was thinking of the old song "School Days," and its words which illustrate how different school life is today from what it was when that song was written.

No, I couldn't find out when it was written, but it must have been around 1920 or before, judging from the words. I also couldn't locate a copy of the words, but from my admittedly unreliable memory, it goes something like this:

School days, school days - Dear old golden rule days.

Reading and 'riting and 'rithmetic - Taught to the tune of a hickory stick.

You were my queen in calico - I was your bashful barefoot beau. You wrote on my slate, "I love you so" - When we were a couple of kids.

What this brief song tells me is that things sure are different since those words were written.

Dear old golden rule days-As I recall, the golden rule is "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," and since this comes from the Bible, vocalizing such a rule in the classroom would probably violate some federal law. Sadly pupils these days are too often taught to do unto others whatever you can get away with. Taught to the tune of a hickory stick-Presumably this refers to being punished with a big stick if you misbehave in school. Now it's a no-no, and grounds for lawsuits by many parents who would rather get money out of the school system than have their kids learn discipline or anything else. You were my queen in calico; I was your bashful barefoot beau-Nobody goes barefoot in school anymore. Even when I was a kid, they made us wear shoes at school, which I didn't mind, because my feet already were incredibly ugly. But I really got off on a tangent thinking about "my queen in calico." First I asked a few women if calico is a color or a fabric, and I got answers supporting each view. One mature lady, though, assured me it was a fabric, usually with printed colors. She said you still can buy it, but they don't call it that any more. She was right. I looked it up in my encyclopedia, which described calico as "one of the oldest cotton fabrics...originally made in Calicut, India. It was highly valued in Europe for its fine texture and the beauty of its block-printed colors. Eventually the name calico was used to indicate most plain-woven cottons...Today, the name often means lightweight, narrow-width cottons, either printed or of a solid color, made into such items as aprons, curtains, blouses and skirts.

I guess little girls wore calico dresses to school way back when. My grandmother once told me that little girls' dresses often were made from flour sacks.

I remember a nursery rhyme about a gingham dog and a calico cat. I don't recall the exact words; it may have been a story instead of a rhyme. I do remember that these were stuffed animals which sat near each other and that they "ate each other up," which may explain why I couldn't find them in my internet search of nursery rhymes. They are not around any more.

You wrote on my slate. If the kid singing this song had his own slate, I must assume that each student had a slate, which must have been like a small blackboard, supposedly to do classroom exercises like math on. If each kid had a slate instead of a tablet, I wonder if they had to turn these in to the teacher for grading. If so, I'll bet she never took that armload of slates home with

I couldn't find anyone who remembered using individual slates in school, or who even remembered their parents or grand parents talking about it.

There is no slate in the Tahoka Museum. I don't know about O'Donnell or Wilson. Did you hear about the cross-eyed school teacher who couldn't control her pupils?

Overall December was slightly warmer than normal with an average temperature for all stations 1.4 degrees above long-term averages, according to the National Weather Service. Despite the mild air during most of the month, the most memorable weather event for the month started on the 22nd when artic air poured in from the north. This artic front brought the coldest temperatures in 14 years, since December 1990, and also blanketed the area with 2-6 inches of snow, which lasted for 3 to 4 days. Temperature remained below freezing from 2 a.m. on the 22nd until late afternoon Christmas Day, thus providing the area with a white Christmas.

This weather event was also particularly noteworthy in that by Christmas Eve the extremely cold air had reached the Texas Coast and triggered an extremely rare snowstorm along all of the Texas Coast. The city of Brownsville at the southern tip of the state received 1.5 inches which was their first measurable snow in 105 years, and provided them with their first white Christmas on record.

TMS Students Earn Accolades For Behavior

On Thursday, Jan. 20, 107 Tahoka Middle School students traveled to Lubbock as participants in an incentive trip. Students had been told they would get to go bowling if their class raised at least $50 for the tsunami victims and if they had all their school assignments turned in. Students met the requirements to go on the bowling incentive trip and got to choose their teammates for this

"Students behaved wonderfully! They followed school rules as well as bowling alley rules," said Glo Hays, TMS Principal.

The owner of Brunswick Bowling Lanes, Mr. McLain, said, "These must be your very 'top' students." When informed that the entire middle school campus was bowling, Mr. McLain said, "I've seen a lot of students this age come to our bowling alley, but I don't think I've ever seen a better behaved group of students. Their parents are to be commended for teaching them to be-

Tahoka Middle School was a "Recognized" campus last year because of the results of student TAKS scores and dropout and attendance records. "I'm pleased when our students perform well on standardized tests. However, I'm also very pleased when our students behave appropriately!" said Mrs. Hays. "I agree with Mr. McLain that this exceptionally well behaved!"

Adrian Webster posted the highest student bowling score and Amy Hoch posted the highest staff member bowling score.

Question: Do our loved ones fall to the bottom of our priority list? There is nothing wrong with wanting to give our families prosperity -- but are we so consumed with having better or more, that we hurt or neglect the very ones we want it for? I have sadly stood by and watched happily married men and women fall apart at the seams because of the pursuit of more material things. I have known women who left a husband who loves them for careers, freedom, and their own space. Well, I have also known men who pushed their wives to work more for more material things. I have watched children act up, just for any attention -- even if it's bad attention. To the unsaved world this is not a way of life that Christians should be living. God has instructed women to bring Him first, then husbands and children next. Men are to bring God first, then wives and children. We as women are to esteem our husbands with high regard and respect. We are to make our husbands feel secure in our love for them. There is to be no human who should be allowed to hurt our marriage. Men should respect, love and cherish their wives. They are to love her like Christ loved the church. There is to be no infidelity. We are to love, nourish and care for our

The Society By: Michael Palmer

At the headquarters of Boston's Eastern Quality Health, the wealthy and powerful CEO is brutally murdered. She's not the first to die-nor the last. A vicious serial killer is on the loose and the victims have one thing in common: they are all highprofile executives in the managed care industry.

Dr. Will Grant is an overworked and highly dedicated surgeon. He has experienced firsthand the outrages of a system that cares more about the bottom line than about the life-and death issues of patients. As a member of the Hippocrates Society, Will seeks to reclaim the profession of medicine from the hundreds of companies profiting wildly by controlling the decisions that affect the delivery of care. But the doctor's determination has attracted a dangerous zealot who will stop at nothing to make Will his ally. Soon Will is both a suspect and a victim, a pawn in a deadly endgame. Then, in one horrible moment. Will's professional worlds are destroyed and his very life placed in peril.

Parents Must Report Student's Illness Category When Calling In School Absences

ing the school campus office to report their child will be absent due to an illness - but a new request from the Texas Department of Health is prompting Texas schools, including Tahoka Independent School District, to ask parents what type of illness the child has. That information will then be entered (without individual names of students) into a TDH surveillance database called Rapid Syndrome Validation Project (RSVP).

What this means in real terms, according to TISD School Nurse Carol Miller, is that parents will be asked to report what type of illness is preventing their child from attending school. There are four categories of illnesses which Mrs. Miller will report to the database:

Parents are accustomed to call- formation, Mrs. Miller notes. The RSVP will allow the school nurse to access a graphic view of their school district's absenteeism due to illness and the illness syndromes related to the illness. TDH will monitor these reports daily and will provide information to the school nurses/administrators of infectious diseases occurring throughout the region, in accordance with HIPPA requirements.

The Texas Dept. of Health has received mandated initiatives to increase surveillance for infectious diseases due to biological and natural infectious diseases such as influenza, pertussis and shigella. The information being sent by school nurses to TDH is on a secured web based site, from a computer provided to the school by TDH.

"Again, we stress that no individual health information is included in these reports, and no child's name is included - it is strictly numbers of students in each category that will be reported," said Mrs. Miller. "We ask parents to please cooperate when asked about their child's illness so that we can cooperate with the TDH," she added.

Face The Nation By; Bob Schieffer

With his critically acclaimed memoir This Just In, Schieffer proved himself a natural storyteller, a gifted writer able to capture the workings of television news with remarkable wit and insight. Now Shieffer focuses his keen reporter's eye in 50 years of Face the Nation's live broadcasts and the historic moments the program has captured. From it's 1954 debut, an interview with Senator Joe McCarthy the day of the Senate Debate that would condemn him, to the broadcast's 1957 groundbreaking interview with a candid and controversial Nikita Khrushchev; from the brilliant analysis of communism made by guest martin Luther King Jr. to the sometimes stunning, always revealing interviews with each sitting president; from the heroic and moving coverage of the terrorist attack of September 11, to the revolutionary coverage of the war in Iraq, Schieffer shares unforgettable anecdotes about the guests, the stories and the events captured by the venerable public affairs program.

Marked by the author's candid personal observations and wise, good humor, and featuring a special companion DVD of broadcast highlights created by CBS News for this edition, Bob Schieffer's look at 50 years of Face the Nation shines an entertaining and nostalgic light on America's presidents, culture, foreign policy and domestic affairs.
