Wilson Supt. Michael Norman employed as THS Principal

Tahoka ISD didn't have far to look for a new high school principal, this week hiring a man from neighboring Wilson ISD to fill the vacant position.

MICHAEL NORMAN

Michael Norman, 42, former principal and superintendent at Wilson Independent School District, was employed as Tahoka High School Principal at a salary of $69,000. Norman will begin his duties here on July 1.

Norman has been at Wilson ISD for two years, serving as WISD principal the first year and then as superintendent and principal this past year.

In other business at the Tahoka ISD board meeting held Monday night, assistant boys basketball coach Brandon Lee was moved up to head boys basketball coach. Last year was his first year with Tahoka ISD. A head girls basketball coach has not yet been hired, according to Superintendent Steve Burleson.

Two more teacher/coaches were hired at Monday night's meeting, including Ethan Inmon, who will coach girls cross country and track and teach high school science, and Brandon Hopper, a high school history teacher and assistant boys coach.

The Board also approved the superintendent's recommendation to move Curriculum and Testing Coordinator, Jenni McLelland, from an 11-month contract to a 12-month contract, and to adjust her salary proportionately for the additional days.

Two staff resignations were noted, including Kayla Overstreet, a high school science teacher and assistant coach. Emilia Garcia, secretary at Tahoka Elementary, resigned to pursue her college degree.

Reports from the principals and athletic director were given. The board went into executive session to discuss personnel and economic development plans for the district.

Trustees approved a contract of $10,000 with UMC Health System to provide athletic training coverage for the 2010-2011 school year. The Board also approved a financial consulting services agreement with Dr. Doug Karr for the 2010-2011 school year in the amount of $3,600.

A contract to improve the wireless network at the middle school and high school with Mandry Technology was approved in the amount of $21,326. The board approved the plan and cost of replacing the old Novell computer network system with the Microsoft Active Directory and Exchange network system. This Novell system is no longer supported. Mandry Technology will handle the purchase of the equipment, software, installation and training. The cost of the new network is $36,853.

Tahoka ISD enrollment through the end of May was 572 students enrolled in kindergarten thru grade 12. There were also 58 students enrolled in the federal Head Start program. The total enrollment for the two programs is 630.

The next regular school board meeting will be July 12, at 7:00 p.m.

Monday storm hits area

Lightning strike punctures gas line under home, winds cause damage

by JUANELL JONES

Lynn County News coverage of Monday afternoon's storms struck closer to home than publisher Juanell Jones would have liked this week, after a lightning strike punctured the gas line underneath her home in Tahoka, an incident which could very well have turned catastrophic but fortunately ended safely for her and husband Gary Jones in the 1800 block of North 3rd Street.

Rain, high winds, numerous lightning strikes and reports of possible tornadoes/gustnadoes abounded Monday afternoon, as the thunderstorm moved in about 2:30 p.m. in the Tahoka area, moving northeast across the county. Some pea size hail rained down briefly in the downtown area, but the high winds did some damage in the area and took out some electrical poles on Hwy. 87 eight miles north of Tahoka near the community of Wilsoff, cutting power to some homes in that area. Lyntegar Electric Cooperative reported they had restored power by 2 a.m. and were repairing several broken poles snapped at ground-level along Hwy. 87 Tuesday morning. Wind gusts of up to 85 mph were reported in the Wilson area, but there were no reports of damage other than downed tree branches and some debris.

At the Jones residence in Tahoka, Gary was home looking out the window when he saw a big flash of light and pieces of bark fly off a tree adjacent to the house at approximately 3 p.m. He reported numerous lightning strikes close by in the area, and discovered a breaker had flipped off power to a portion of the home. A home computer and dishwasher were the only electrical casualties within the home, and it was more than two hours later before Jones and his wife noticed an odor that alerted them to a possible gas leak. He immediately turned off the gas at the meter in the alley and notified Atmos Energy of the gas leak.

An Atmos representative came to the home within an hour and verified the gas leak, and went through the home with an electronic "sniffer" to try to determine an area where the gas was most prevalent, and the equipment emitted high-pitched shrieks indicating the presence of gas in the hallway between two front bedrooms, adjacent to the water heater closet. He said the leak was most likely inside the wall or below the house in that area, seeping up into the walls and into the house.

"It's possible," the Atmos serviceman told Jones, "that when lightning struck the house it arced over into the adjacent gas line and punctured a hole in the line." The gas was left off for the night and all windows were opened.

A local plumber located the leak the next morning underneath the home near that same area, replacing a piece of corrugated stainless steel tubing that (See LIGHTNING, page 8)

Surf's up? ... A trampoline, bent in half and looking more like a surfboard, was discovered in the 2100 block between North 6th and 7th street, following the heavy storms and high winds that passed through Tahoka on Monday afternoon. The trampoline upended and folded over a guy wire. Other damage in the area included downed electrical poles, a metal roof torn from its moorings, fences laid flat, and a semi-truck knocked over on Hwy. 87. (LCN PHOTO by Pam Elrod)

PEOPLE DO a lot of things, which really aren't necessary, wasting valuable time which could be put to better use. For men, one of those things is shaving every day, and one day recently I started thinking about all the good things I could be doing while I'm trying to get hair off my face.

Let's see - if a guy spends 10 minutes shaving every morning for 50 years, he has spent 182,500 minutes shaving in that time, or as I have it figured, about 3,042 hours. If you figure these are daylight hours, and there are roughly 12 hours of daylight each day, that's about 253 days (skipping nights, when you are supposed to watch TV, read or sleep, while your beard grows).

So if I hadn't shaved for 50 years, I would have had about 8 months of daylight hours in which I could have written a novel, climbed Mt. Everest, become an astronaut, been a missionary, or some other great thing, which I never accomplished.

Of course, I probably never would have done any of those things, but I would have had the time.

I have a son-in-law who feels like he has wasted much of his life waiting for traffic lights to change.

I also know a man who probably hasn't shaved in 40 or 50 years. He's well known and respected, but I don't know exactly what he has accomplished with all that extra time.

Women, of course, spend more than 10 minutes getting presentable every day, but I sure wouldn't be the one to suggest they skip doing whatever it is they do, because I appreciate the way they look. Most men, on the other hand, look pretty ugly to me, especially after they get over 50, so skipping the shave wouldn't matter. Most of us look like nine miles of bad road, no matter what.

Unless your name is John Wayne or Dorian Grey.

APPROPRIATE to the above comments is the old Burma Shave sign cluster which read:

Approaching school zone?
Please drive slow.
Let our little Shavers grow.

Just taking a stroll ... Traffic stopped along Ave. L to watch this group taking a stroll Tuesday morning, as Angle Hall (standing far right), owner of Home of Hearts Daycare in Tahoka, took advantage of the cool weather to walk to the grocery store. The children seemed to be enjoying the outing, stopping to smile happily for the photographer. Also pictured with the children are Carlissa Hall (left) and McKenzie Mannis.

First Aid Tips for Pet Owners

Dr. Mark Stickney, Director of General Surgery Services at the Texas A&M University College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences says "It is absolutely necessary to know if your veterinarian has an after hour emergency service and if not, who they recommend calling. It's also imperative that you can call your vet for advice on what to do to help your pet until you can get it to the clinic."

The two most common emergency situations that a pet owner should be prepared for are poisoning and trauma.

"If you suspect that your pet has eaten something toxic, contact your vet. They may tell you to make it vomit by feeding it hydrogen peroxide," states Stickney. "While hydrogen peroxide is generally harmless there are some poisons that will actually make things worse if the pet vomits so it is important that you contact your vet first."

More pets will be affected by snake bites during summer months. Dogs are especially curious and tend to get bitten the most on their noses, faces and front legs.

"The area where the pet was bitten will swell up very quickly," states Stickney "Just because there is no visible puncture wound does not mean that your pet did not get bitten."

"If you think your pet was bitten by a snake, stay calm and take it to the vet immediately. Do not put a tourniquet on the pet as this will limit the blood flow too much and cause more harm than good."

"If you are able to kill the snake take it to the vet with you. If they can identify it they will have a better idea of how harmful the bite is," recommends Stickney.

"Trauma can be deceiving. Most of the time it looks better than it actually is and there is usually a lot of damaged tissue," explains Stickney. The first thing to do if your pet has been injured and is bleeding is to put pressure on the area to slow the blood flow. Hurt dogs tend to bite so it is a good idea to have a muzzle on hand to use in this type of situation.

"Your pet might be your best friend, but when dogs are hurt they may not remember that," notes Stickney. "If you have a big dog, I would also recommend that you have a dog stretcher. They make it much easier to move large injured animals."

Less severe incidences such as minor cuts and scrapes are fairly common and can be handled much like you would treat yourself.

"Make sure that the cut is as clean as possible," states Stickney. "I would not recommend putting antibiotic cream anywhere your pet can lick it off. This just causes more germs to get in the wound. If the cut is on an area they can't lick than something like Neosporin will be fine."

Commissioners set hearing for reinvestment zone

Lynn County Commissioners met Monday morning to consider county business, including setting a public hearing for June 28, from 8:30 a.m. until 9 a.m., for designation of a reinvestment zone. Reinvestment zones are part of the considerations of wind energy farms. A legal notice in this issue of The News details the areas included in the zone. The hearing will be held at the county courthouse.

In other business, commissioners approved a lease agreement with the Texas Health and Human Services Commission and monthly bills were approved. Sheriff Jerry D. Franklin reported on his department's activities.

Commissioners Mike Braddock, Keith Wied, Don Blair and Brad Hammonds were present for the meeting, led by County Judge H.G. Franklin.

While volunteering is personally rewarding, at times it can also lead to stress and frustration. One day a friend shared her concern that I was on overload. This led me to stop and think? Why am I volunteering? Is it because I can't say "no?" Or is it something deeper inside, such as the need to be needed and noticed? Have I been serving just to receive the affirmation of others? I've since learned to pull back some and to spend more time in prayer and reflection. In neglecting my inner being, I was becoming spiritually unbalanced. In serving and doing for others, I wasn't waiting on the Lord for strength and direction. I'd forgotten what Jesus said: "Apart from me you can do nothing" (John 15:5). No one was more pressed into doing for others than Jesus. The crowds gave him no relief. So it was necessary -- even for Jesus -- to draw apart and pray for strength and wisdom in serving others. Power makers ... Lyntegar Electric Cooperative employees worked quickly after Monday afternoon's storm to restore power to 225 meters in an area west of Wilson, after high winds snapped five electrical poles off at ground level along Hwy. 87 eight miles north of Tahoka. Lyntegar employee Charlie Engle is pictured at right in the bucket truck here as he works on the lines. A Lyntegar representative said power had been restored by 2 a.m. and that the company had reports of five more poles down in other areas after the storm. He estimated that about 70 percent of the 225 meters in the Wilson area power outage were to irrigation well systems, with only a few homes suffering power outages.

TIMELESS TREASURES COOKBOOK

Italian Zucchini

- 4-5 medium zucchini
- 2 large tomatoes
- 1/2 c. chopped onion

- 1/2 tsp. dried or fresh basil
- 1/8 tsp. black pepper
- 3 tbsp. olive oil

LETTER to the EDITOR

Thankful for Food Ministry

The need for food to assist families has increased greatly in the past few months. Our Food Pantry has become strained to meet the need. Although we are able to purchase food from the South Plains Food Bank it does become costly. It is very helpful when we receive help from the community.

We received a very good gift of food from the Pack the Pantry food drive recently. We are very grateful for the help. Some of the food has already been given to local families. 100% of the food will be used within Lynn County.

The Church of Christ Food Pantry provides needed food assistance to any family in Lynn County. That is a big responsibility for a small congregation. So again, we say thank you for the help.

he brought up to show the homeowners. A small hole was punched from outside to inside the tubing, with burn marks around the inside edges.

"He said he had never seen anything like it," Jones said. "And one of the Atmos representatives said he had heard of this happening only one other time, at a home in Lubbock, when it was suspected that the gas line was struck by lightning ... and that home burned to the ground. We were very lucky, and are now counting our blessings that everyone is safe and our home is still standing. The other things can be fixed," he added.

News Channel 11 reported a 32,000-pound semi-truck knocked over by high winds on Hwy. 87 north of Tahoka. The driver, Clint McCoy, was quoted as saying "it only took a couple of seconds for hurricane-strength winds" to knock his big rig over, after he had pulled over on the side of US 87 because of poor visibility in the pounding rain. He had been traveling from Odessa to Amarillo, and he reportedly survived the incident without a scratch.

Haney Wells officially reported 3.26 inches of rain fell in about a two-hour period Monday afternoon in Tahoka, and another two-tenths during the early morning hours Tuesday. A Wilson resident said she had measured about an inch of moisture from Monday afternoon's storm, and another three-tenths during the night. O'Donnell and New Home areas also reportedly received about an inch of rain.

No reports of crop damage were turned in to The News, although one farmer said some areas east of Tahoka had young cotton crops badly beaten in the storm that may possibly recover, and several low-lying areas submerged in water.

Pleasant Grove Baptist Church, at North 7th and Ave. D in Tahoka, had the metal roof torn from the building and pieces of roof twisted around nearby trees. Nearby, the Tahoka Warehouse compress building also suffered wind damage, with a gaping hole in the wall where sheet metal had been peeled aside by high winds. A fence at the compress was blown over, as was a nearby fence at the home of Adolph Chapa. No injuries were reported in these incidents.

Tahoka Drug, which has a west-facing front door, was forced to lock their front entry for a short period Monday due to extreme high winds, and reports of fences blown over and branches knocked off trees were coming in Tuesday to the News office. Several sections of a 6-ft. wooden fence at the Gardner home in the 2500 block of North 3rd Street was laid down to the ground after high winds bent the steel poles down at ground level for an estimated 30-40 feet.

In addition to the damages that occurred in Monday's weather, the Tahoka area is still recovering from recent hailstorms that damaged many roofs and vehicles in late April, and thunderstorm season is still in full swing.

Con. Randy Neugebauer launches "The Empowerment Project" initiative

WASHINGTON, DC - Congressman Randy Neugebauer (R-TX) released the following statement announcing the launch of "The Empowerment Project," a new initiative aimed at advancing empowerment and reducing dependency on government.

"Over 200 years ago, our Founding Fathers gathered to create a government of the people, by the people and for the people. America was founded on the principle of empowerment, and today I still believe that government should empower individuals and small businesses to be successful in the economy rather than create policies that make them more dependent on the federal government.

"The message of The Empowerment Project is simple. To get America back on track, we must restore our Founders' principle of empowerment by relying on a more limited government, increased personal freedom and responsibility, and greater choices and opportunity.

"The goal of the Empowerment Project is to serve as a virtual clearinghouse of tools to empower America. Through regular web videos and other new media tools, the Project will promote the initiatives of other Members of Congress and ideas from policy experts that empower families and small businesses to prosper and 'disempower' the federal government. You can access these videos and more information on The Empowerment Project by visiting the Empowerment section of my website at www.randy.house.gov.

"As we have seen, all too much in recent years, the federal government has gone down the road of advancing entitlement at an alarming pace. The American people are fed up with a rapidly growing government intruding in their lives and massive federal deficits as a result. I hope you will join me in The Empowerment Project. With your ideas, input and support, we can reverse government dependency and put America back on the path of empowerment."
