"We have come to the point where we are no longer discouraging production, but encouraging it. By the year 2000 our population will be doubled and we will be pressed to provide food and fiber for our own people.

Beauty Plans Get Approval

AUSTIN--The Texas Highway Commission today approved a program to beautify the state's highways in 86 counties by screening 154 junkyards with right of way landscape planting.

The 1967 junkyard screening program will be submitted to the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads for acceptance under the federal Highway Beautification Act of 1965. If the Bureau of Public Roads concurs the federal government will pay 75 per cent of the $664,300 estimated cost of the program.

Junkyards will be screened in 22 of the Texas Highway Department's 25 districts throughout the state under the 1967 program. The department initiated its junkyard screening program in January, 1966, with nine projects which were completed by its own maintenance forces.

In early 1966 the department also conducted an inventory of junkyard and roadside signs in compliance with provisions of the beautification act. The inventory disclosed a total of 1,220 junkyards, dumping grounds and other unsightly blight along the state's federal-aid highways which could be concealed by landscape planting or would require removal away from the right of way.

The beautification act provides that any state failing to cooperate in the junkyard screening and beautification program will sustain a 10 per cent reduction in allotments for the building of highways. The penalty for Texas would amount to about $20 million a year.

In approving the 1967 junkyard screening program, the highway commission observed: "It is the desire of the Texas Highway Department to cooperate with the federal government to improve the beauty and sightliness of the highway system."

"In this spirit of cooperation the State Highway Engineer is directed to proceed with the submission of projects to the Bureau of Public Roads for their acceptance and at such time as bureau approval is received, proceed with the program in the most feasible and economical manner."

The Texas Highway Department has won a world-wide reputation for its highway beautification programs. Wildflower and other landscape plantings were begun by the department more than 30 years ago. More than 800,000 acres of right of way are under cultivation at the present time and more than 1,100 roadside parks, safety rest areas and scenic turnouts have been constructed along the 68-thousand mile state-maintained highway system.

In February the department was the recipient of the first special Highway Beauty Award to be presented by the newly-organized Department of Transportation. The award -- which will be expanded to an annual nationwide competition -- was presented to State Highway Engineer D. C. Greer in Washington by Mrs. Lady Bird Johnson, wife of the President.

The department also has a 1966-67 state-wide beautification program which totalled $8.8 million on February 1.

Fashion Shaping Up For Spring

Fashion is shaping up for spring. Figure defining silhouettes emerge as the most important new look of the season in California designer collections, reports the National Cotton Council.

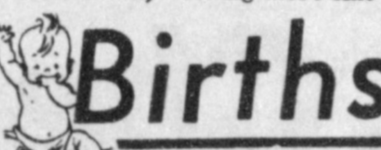

But, while the fashion line is more body-conscious than in seasons past, it's done with a softness and subtlety that's both feminine and flattering. The subtle shaping is achieved by darts and seaming, and in the cut itself. Skirts are easy . . . swinging from paneled fronts or slight flares. Waistlines move in closer . . . some merely hinting at a fitted look; others frankly marked by belts.

The costume remains all important for spring, turning up in both two- and three-piece interpretations. More often than not, dresses are paired with jackets or coats. In suits, the new shorter sleeve expresses the young mood of spring. The sleeveless suit also moves into its own, looking more like faces. These include the crisp, cool piques which come in an almost endless variety of faces; the handsome jacquards woven in bas relief patterns; the regal brocades; the sculptured-looking matelasses and thick-ribbed ottomans.

Colors of spring begin with a tender mint or apple green, blossom forth in buttercup yellows, sunny oranges, rosy pinks, sky blues, and lovely a two-piece dress than the conventional suit.

News, too, is in the fabrics-with more emphasis than ever on cottons with textured surmelons. Clear, strong pastels replace the "shock" shades of last season, while basic black, white, and beige remain in favor.

AAUW Convention Held in San Angelo

Four delegates from Muleshoe Branch AAUW, attended the Texas Division Convention of AAUW in San Angelo, March 29 thru April 1. They were: Mrs. Joe Costen, Mrs. Ed Johnson, Mrs. Hattie Boling, and Mrs. John Watson.

Dr. Dora Dougherty was keynote speaker for the Convention. She said, "We are engaged in a war for the minds of men." "We have been at war with the Communist societies for many decades and it is just possible that we are losing that war. They are out-educating us. We have to use the brain power we have, and one of the greatest untapped human resources we have is the female mind."

Dr. Dougherty said that women today are enjoying more freedoms than ever before. They are free from drudgery and have unusual amounts of spare time. Women are free from confinement, thanks to the modern transportation improvements. Dr. Dougherty pointed out, too, that women are free from boredom, largely due to the mass media of communication, and free from slavery.

"Women need to fulfill themselves as individuals," the Fort Worth woman said. "There are many ways to do this. We can take on the promotion of the arts and humanities. We can, and need, to guide the youth of our country in their thinking and their psychological upbringing. We must meet the challenge."

The Chief of Human Factors Division of the Bell Helicopter Co. in Fort Worth cited several statistics to show that today's woman is living longer, marrying earlier, and thus providing herself with much more time to work. "It is this which makes it important that women gain advanced degrees in scientific or technological fields," she said. "We must find ways to discharge our duties of society," she continued. "We can do this by getting away from small talk, by disseminating information, and by promoting education. The American Association of University Women is doing just this. But we must go further, by example and involvement. We must become involved in our political issues and our community."

"With moral courage," she concluded, "women of America and women of the world can make their horizons unlimited."

Mrs. Marvin J. Pedlar of San Antonio was elected president of the Texas Division of American Association of University Women. The new president, former Texas Division fellowships chairman, has served on her Branch executive board in several capacities including the offices of president and vice president. She replaced retiring state president Mrs. J. J. Haslam of Orange.

Mrs. Pedlar has been active in the City Federation of Women's Clubs in San Antonio, the Young Woman's Christian Association, Cub Scouts and Church extension work. She teaches sociology at Thomas Jefferson High School in San Antonio.

Other officers elected to serve with her include Mrs. Percy J. Pace of San Angelo, first vice president; Mrs. Lester Justice of Cleburne, second vice president; Mrs. Roy C. Owens of Tyler, recording secretary, and Mrs. Ralph E. Brasse of Amarillo, treasurer.

Parents were honored Tuesday Night by the FHA girls, as one of their activities during National FHA Week.

Announcing Buick's new GS-340.

(The miniprice GS-400.)

If you read the papers, you know how great our now-famous GS-400 is. (It's the one in the background.) And you also know you don't get a GS-400 for peanuts. It's a great car. But it's just a little rich for some people. So we set to work and designed the GS-340. It has a smaller engine (but the whole machine weighs less). Its interior is clean and simple and tasteful. And it has its own ornamentation, paint job (see the rally stripe and hood scoops?), and, of course, all the GM safety features. So now you have a car that costs less than the GS-400, but one with its own special brand of excitement. How can you beat that kind of a combination?

TOP LIVING AT SAVOY
LONDON (AP) — The management of the Savoy Hotel allowed the foyer restaurant to be borrowed for a sequence in the film, "Life at the Top."

This is the first film shot at the Savoy since a scene from "Goodbye Mr. Chips" was filmed there in 1936.

The Savoy and top living have been synonymous for 80 years — from the time that D'Oyly-Carte built the hotel out of profits from operas, including Gilbert and Sullivan, which played so successfully at the Savoy Theater which adjoins the hotel.

TSCRA Convention Well Attended

Houston, Claude McCan of Victoria was elected treasurer and other officers were re-elected in closing sessions of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association here.

Ben H. Carpenter of Dallas is president, T.L. Roach, Jr. of Amarillo is first vice-president and Frank Lewis of Bay City is second vice-president. McCan succeeds Gus Holmstrum of Fort Worth.

Don C. King of Fort Worth, secretary-general manager of the Association reported that membership in the organization now stands at 10,578. He reported that during the past year TSCRA field inspectors working in close cooperation with state and local officers developed 64 cattle theft cases and that 48 cases were tried resulting in one life sentence, 75 years in prison, 82 years probated sentences and three years suspended sentences.

One of the primary topics for discussion was the minimum wage as it applies to the cattle industry, and the cattlemen passed two resolutions dealing with this subject.

In one, they commended the House Committee on Agriculture for their resolution calling the attention of the American people to the fact that the prices received by farmers for what they produce now are actually eight percent below what farmers for what they produce now are actually eight percent below what they were in 1947. Increased funds were asked for the Packers and Stockyards Division, and the cattlemen recommended that the Texas Legislature appropriate sufficient funds for research for control and eradication of mesquite and other noxious brush species.

The Association voiced its opposition to legislation where the vested rights of land owners in riparian waters would be altered and to legislation which would grant the power of eminent domain to Soil Conservation Districts.

Pointing out labor shortages in the ranching industry, the cattlemen urged the Congress to support legislation which would allow employment of nationals from nearby countries and shifting the responsibility and administration of such a program from the Department of Labor to the Department of Agriculture.

The cattlemen requested that the interstate back-tag proposal adopted by the United States Livestock Sanitary Association be deferred until the completion of the authorized research into this important problem.

The cattlemen were told that it takes at least $140 to produce a calf which will sell for $100 to $125 today. The statement was made by Kenneth Anderson of the Anderson Cattle Company of San Antonio.

"The price of choice carcass beef today is a disgrace," Anderson said. "It should never be below 41 cents and should be 45 or 46 cents." The price of beef of this kind was 36 1/2 to 38 cents per pound in Chicago the previous day.

Other speakers expressed dissatisfaction with the present method of gathering livestock statistics, pointing out that the recently announced revised cattle numbers estimate had been a considerable factor in the depressed cattle prices.

Increasing the price of beef products was pointed to as the only way to solve the financial problems cattlemen are facing.

Once nematodes get at your cotton, yields go down and so do profits. But with FUMAZONE® 86 soil fumigant applied at only 1 to 2 gallons overall an acre, you can take care of root-knot, sting, meadow and other nematodes—those microscopic, worm-like soil pests that attack plant roots, suck away profits.

FUMAZONE 86 soil fumigant increases yields up to 1/2 bale an acre. Many High Plains farmers just like yourself tell us that's exactly what happened to their yields after their soils were treated with FUMAZONE 86. It can be applied right from the drum. No mixing, no diluting, no nozzles clogged with foreign material. You can use the chisel method, the plowsole method or inject FUMAZONE 86 into your irrigation water. Could you ask for greater flexibility? Sure you could. So here it is. Apply FUMAZONE 86 before planting, at planting or after planting. It's the only type of soil fumigant that can be used on living plants. Ask your Dow farm chemicals supplier about it.

The Latest Escalation

In spite of the wails of doves and the proposal of Senator Robert Kennedy that bombing of North Vietnam be ended, President Lyndon Johnson has gone ahead with a plan put forth by the military to increase the pressure on North Vietnam.

The President and many supporters feel the North Vietnamese must be further punished before they will agree to compromise. The President also feels the North Vietnam Communists were offering the United States nothing with their vague proposals to talk-if the United States halted the bombing.

The hope and the plan is that tougher military action and the promise of even tougher action will result in modifying intransigence in Hanoi. If the added pressure, continuous escalation, produces a compromise, President Johnson will have shown himself more far-sighted than critics and cooler in the face of tremendous pressure. And he will have proved his point in what became a bitter disagreement with Senator Kennedy.

The present escalation is another calculated gamble which currently seems to have better chances of succeeding than before the rift in Red China and the purge of Communists in Indonesia. The President is turning the screw, with the hope of ending the fighting later this year or next. If he does that, he will come into the 1968 presidential election with a foreign policy triumph that has eliminated the greatest single controversy surrounding his policies.

Charlie and China

PERHAPS it is petty, but Americans can hardly help chuckling at the troubles that De Gaulle is having with his Red China policy these days.

When le grand Charles announced his decision to recognize Red China's government three years ago, he declared that France was taking a lead in restoring Peking to the community of nations. It was also, of course, a direct slap at the U. S. and its policy on nonrecognition.

The Gaullists scorned suggestions that the Red Chinese would use the French decision for their own purposes, at the expense of French interests. Their need to show that France was asserting new leadership in Asia was just too great for them to heed warnings from former allies.

The Red Chinese were overjoyed with the propaganda coup furnished them by the French recognition. In addition, they used it as a steppingstone to get diplomatic posts in former French colonies in Africa, posts which became headquarters for a campaign to subvert new African governments.

The French, on the other hand, received few returns. Until recently, that is. The "Cultural revolution" has now given the French some very unpleasant returns on their investment of trust in the Chinese Communists.

Several weeks ago, Red Chinese students in Paris tried to march on the Soviet embassy, and, when police turned them back, stirred up an anti-French fracas.

In Peking the Red Guard mobbed the French embassy, roughed up a French diplomat and his wife and called on all loyal Chinese to "bash in the heads of the French thugs."

De Gaulle now sees his political opponents making hay out of the situation.

A conservative newspaper declared, "This is the inevitable result of the senseless policy on the Far East conducted by (De Gaulle's) Fifty Republic."

On a recent radio panel show, one of De Gaulle's cabinet ministers was reminded of the anti-French outbursts and asked, "Doesn't this prove that the results of the recognition of (Red) China by France are, for the present, rather negative?"

The answer would seem to be rather in the affirmative.

Use of 'Horse Sense' Has Not Injured Town

Hereford came in for some national publicity last week when The Wall Street Journal carried a lead article centered around the fact that the community has been successful in securing several industries. The same article was reprinted with permission in The Sunday Brand.

Some people were happy about the publicity, while others seemed to feel that it was a slap at the town. All in all, we thought it was fairly accurate, including the editorial opinion which ran throughout the article.

When one eyes the Hereford situation carefully, it is obvious that we have not always followed cut and dried paths in hunting industry. This, in a measure at least, accounts for the fact that we have been successful where others have failed. Hereford's "horse sense" approach is tailored to each individual situation, and it includes nothing more than the individual situation merits. Industry does not grow large by being foolish, and any successful business knows that subsidies are in the long run, going to be paid for by the new industry as well as by the existing ones.

If the Wall Street Journal article missed the boat, it was in the inferred opinion that Hereford had nothing or, at best very little, to offer. While this is possibly true if we were attracting automobile manufactures, textile factories, and several other lines, it does appear to us that Hereford's entire industrial development has centered around local products, thus affording several advantages to the manufacturer which he would not find elsewhere.

Take the new Texas Meat Packers plant, and the proposed Wilson and Co., plant, for instance. These people will save thousands of dollars each month by being located adjacent to the huge feeding lots which dot the area. Holly sugar, likewise, finds itself in the center of a vast beet production area. The chemical and feed manufacturers have a two-way advantage since they are located in the midst of necessary resources, and are still neighbors with one of the nation's most tremendous markets.

Whether the article will tend to attract other new industry to Hereford remains to be seen. However, it certainly is not likely to create any damage, and it might catch the eye of some group interested in expansion.

When you boil it all down, the worst thing of which we were accused amounted to the term, "Yankee Ingenuity" — and most industrial tycoons would give their eyeteeth to get a little bit of this very thing within their own organization. We admit, in these days of socialistic trends, that it is a bit rare — but history records that it is also the one big factor which established the United States of America as the greatest producing nation in the history of the world.

time personnel. "Don't forget," she says, "all our meals must be served hot to bed patients at about the same time, and we have to strive for variety and some taste appeal since most sick people aren't particularly hungry anyway."

What does it take to be a hospital dietitian? Some colleges offer a B.S. degree in foods and nutrition, while in others, the would-be nutrition specialist can major in home economics. In either case, a year's study is required in an approved dietetic internship program. Mrs. Brock received her training at Tech and the Veterans Administration Center, Los Angeles.

"Nutrition is one of our most important considerations in the day-to-day care of patients. On an average day almost half of our patients are on special diets. Our diet department has developed a complicated system of tray cards to make certain that each patient receives the kind of food his doctor has specified. The patient, of course, assumes when he receives his tray that he may eat any or all of its contents. Mistakes could have serious consequences."

"Yes," Mrs. Brock confirms, "We must operate like a hotel with the fussiest clientele in the world. Even our dishwashing is done by a formula to make certain that no germs survive the process. Every dish is washed for definite periods at specified temperatures. Our cupboards are full of specially processed low-sodium, low-sugar or low-fat foods. Because our menus do not show prices, many people forget that the price of hospital care must include food that is more times than not prepared under rather special conditions.

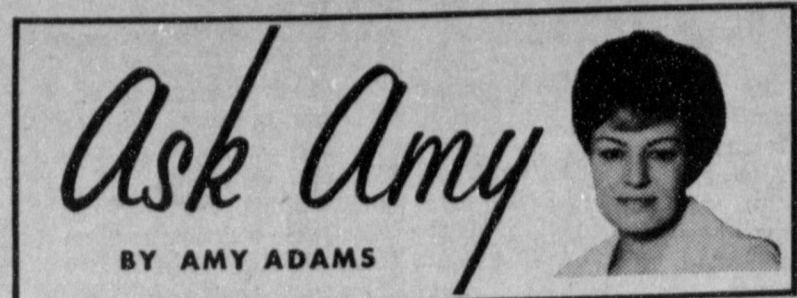

Despite the magnitude of her job, Mrs. Brock does not complain. "I constantly read in nutrition and medical journals articles on the importance of diet both for health and recovery from disease. I'm glad doctors recognize the importance of proper food. That's the satisfaction of this job: helping to make people get well," she said.

Q -- My annual income questionnaire gives Philadelphia as the address where it should be returned. Since my records are in Buffalo, N.Y., could this be a mistake?

A -- No, there's no mistake. This year the VA has set up eight regional centers which will process these questionnaires. Your center happens to be Philadelphia.

Feeding its patient population is the second largest item in West Plains budget, according to Mrs. Brock, and requires the services of eight full and part

A FINAL TRIBUTE

Dear Readers:

By the time this column was put to bed, my desk was stacked with hundreds of letters pertaining to Mr. Rainey's problem: "Where do you bury a dog?" I thank you all sincerely for coming to the aid of a fellow reader.

Since it is impossible to list all the cemeteries and crematories mentioned, I suggest to others with a similar problem to check the yellow pages of their telephone directory under "Cemeteries-Pet". I also have been informed that some pet cemeteries accept horses, parakeets... and even turtles.

The following poem which warmed my heart was sent to me by Mr. Lohotay of Cleveland, Ohio:

A FINAL TRIBUTE
A friend that really was a friend—my dog will always be—and though it didn't speak a word, it meant so much to me—for nothing seemed to ease my mind and warm my lonely heart like the friendship of my dog and all it can impart—when I chance to pat its head—it looked into my eyes with knowing and deep understanding that never died thru thick and thin—it was by my side—I never heard it groan—for it was most contented with a biscuit or a bone—a God-send for this world of ours—to help us as we plod—for if you will reverse its name—the letters will spell God.

Dear Amy:

I became engaged to a girl back home in May of 1966 and in July of 1966 I was shipped to Viet Nam. I was only over here four months when she wrote and said she was tired of sitting around the house and that she was going out.

She said we could still write, and when I come home, things would be the same again. I love this girl very much and I keep writing her hoping things will work out. But I've only received four letters since October.

Do you think I should forget her or wait till I get home?

As far as the neighbors are concerned, I agree with you. But I beg to differ on the subject of entertaining a man anywhere ALL NIGHT. A divorcee or a widow unfortunately lacks that all-important piece of paper which makes a world of "difference" depending on the entertainment you have in mind!

WASHINGTON BUREAU NEWS REPORT FROM WASHINGTON

Long War Ahead! The Cost—The Casualties—The Kennedys—

Washington, D.C.—The somber, official view in Washington is that the Communists are determined to continue the fighting in Vietnam and the United States cannot lure them to the conference table at the moment without making major concessions—which it would not be wise to do.

Unless some change of heart takes place among leaders in Hanoi, or unless circumstances force a change of strategy, the war now seems likely to continue until after the 1968 election because Communist leaders are hopeful the people of the United States will tire of the war and that they can win by being patient, biding their time until we, as a nation, grow impatient and are ready to make concessions to end the war.

China, meanwhile, is strongly opposed to a truce and sees another two years' fighting as a precious period in which to build nuclear stocks and grow stronger in the missile field—so that a showdown with the United States in Asia would be a highly risky and costly one for America when it comes.

President Lyndon Johnson has, as a result of this interpretation of the situation, tightened the screw another notch in the war, expanding the bombing of the north and escalating the ground fighting. As a result, casualties in mid-March reached a figure of over 2,000 a week, with more than 200 Americans killed. Viet Cong casualties were estimated at more than 2,600 killed in the same week.

The cost of the war in dollars is also growing and the prospect of a long war, of increasing costs, is posing a dilemma for Washington. President Johnson continues to ask Congress for expanded Great Society programs but as the grim picture confronting us in Asia is appreciated by legislators there is less and less enthusiasm for additional, heavy domestic spending for Great Society programs.

The prospect of a long war also figures in political plans and speculation. The action of Massachusetts Senator Edward Brooke in reversing himself and announcing his support of the Johnson Administration policy in Vietnam is a major development which somewhat offsets the actions of the Kennedy Senators.

The Massachusetts Negro Republican had favored a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam but after a two-week trip to Vietnam recently changed his mind. His decision came as Ted Kennedy was about to join his brother Robert in calling for heavier stress on negotiations for a settlement and possible concessions. Brooke's "far from easy" position change and several recent polls reflecting public support for the President's policy make it questionable whether the Kennedys will, after all, gain politically from their efforts. Probably time alone will tell.

HUNTING-SEASON WIDOW
KANSAS CITY (AP) — "Lost one husband named Thad, ole bird dog, $5,000 worth of hunting equipment, dirty Buick. Missing since hunting season opened. If found, I'll sell shotgun, ammunition, dog, and possibly husband cheap," said the ad in the Kansas City Star.

Mrs. Janet May simply signed the ad with her first name, omitting her address and telephone number, so the only responses were from acquaintances. Although she received no cash offers, she did receive tentative offers of trades.

"It's been a blast, real fun," she said. "It helped while away the time while Thad was away hunting."

LUBBOCK--There are at least four good reasons why cotton producers in 1967 will want to use every tool at their command to get a uniform stand of strong, healthy seedlings from first plantings, according to Donald A. Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers.

First, there is an unusually short supply of good certified planting seed this year, and growers who fail to get or retain an acceptable stand from first plantings will in many instances be forced to replant with undesirable seed.

Second, because of weather conditions in 1966, vigor of available planting seed is far below average this year.

Third, increased discounts in the Government loan schedule on lower quality cottons will at least in some instances mean lower prices to the farmer, increasing the relative importance of additional production costs incurred by replanting.

Fourth, the reduction in cotton carryover and increases in world consumption levels indicates a much stronger demand and better prices for quality lint this year.

And Johnson says growers cannot hope to get crops off to a good start or produce quality fiber without good seed. For this reason, he says, all planting seed should be tested for germination and vigor to determine their value.

"Only with a Cold-Vigor Test, which will show the percentage of seed producing vigorous sprouts in seven days at 65 degrees Fahrenheit, can a producer know which planting seed can be counted on to emerge and grow off satisfactorily," Johnson stated. He added that this test can also be an aid to determining the right number of pounds per acre to be planted.

being done by the Texas Department of Agriculture, P. O. Drawer BB, Austin 78711, and by the Pope Testing Laboratories, P. O. Box 903, Dallas, 75221. A one pound seed sample and a reasonable fee for making the test are required by both.

The official germination test, which is conducted by the State Agriculture Department unless otherwise instructed by the producer, tests seed at 68 degrees for 16 hours per day and 86 degrees for 8 hours per day for a 12 day period.

Johnson says this is a poor indicator of vigor or the ability of seed to produce a uniform stand of healthy vigorous plants when the average temperature is less than 74 degrees during the first two weeks after planting. Average emergence from seed which register 80 per cent germination under official test conditions is only 50 per cent when average or mean soil temperature is 70 degrees Fahrenheit.

On the other hand, a stand of healthy, vigorous plants can usually be secured by planting as soon as possible after the average soil temperature reaches 65 degrees if Cold-Vigor tested seed are used.

Seed are considered to have "passed" the Cold-Vigor Test when they produce 50 per cent or more normal, healthy, vigorous sprouts, 1-1/2 inches long or longer, after seven days in the germinator at 65 degrees.

This means that seed which has passed the Cold-Vigor Test can be successfully planted when the average soil temperature is about 5 degrees lower than seed which has only passed the official germination test.

This fact enables producers to get a crop started about a week and sometimes two weeks earlier by using seed with cold tolerance and vigor. And research on the Plains has shown that high yields and best quality cotton are normally produced from early stands of healthy vigorous plants.

Data compiled by C. B. Spencer, Agricultural Director of the Texas Cottonseed Crushers Association, Dallas, indicates that seed with 80 per cent germination, based on the official test, usually produce a stand when planted during the week of May 17-23 in the Lamesa, Seminole, Brownfield and Lubbock areas, and during the week of May 24-30 at Plainview, Hereford and Muleshoe.

Seed which has passed the Cold-Vigor Tests, by comparison, may be planted successfully during the week of April 26-May 2 at Lamesa, Seminole and Lubbock; May 3-9 at Brownfield and Plainview, and May 10-16 at Hereford and Muleshoe.

These dates were calculated on the basis of the 30 year average mean temperature in the areas used, but they point up the earliness advantage of Cold-Vigor tested seed.

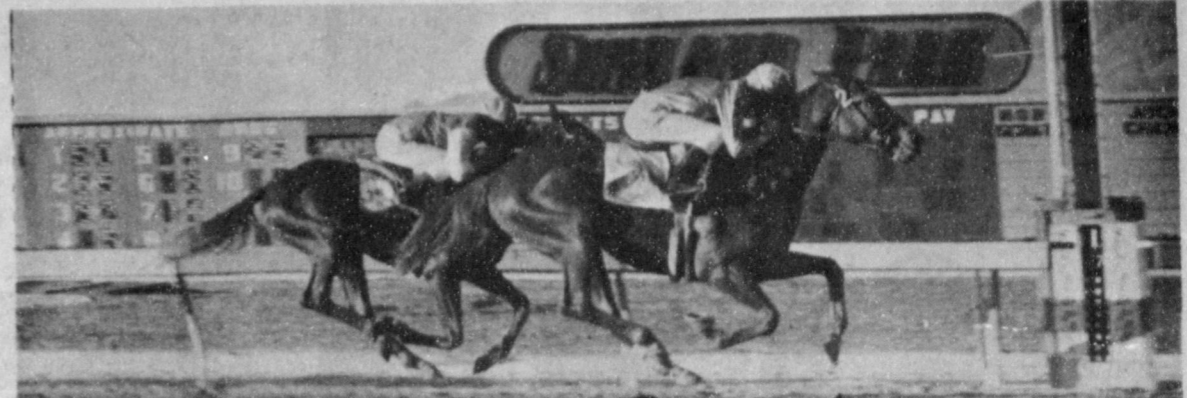

Still on the subject of quality fiber and its relationship to earliness, Johnson also said it is important that plants get a balanced supply of each essential plant food nutrient. Without this balance being available to plants from the day of emergence, bolls are usually shed within ten days after bloom drop, he said.

At least 80 pounds of nitrogen, 40 pounds phosphate, and 60 pounds potash, must be made available to produce a bale per acre crop. Larger amounts must be available for higher yields, and about 70 per cent of the seasonal requirements for water and plant food should be available during the bloom period to prevent excess shedding.

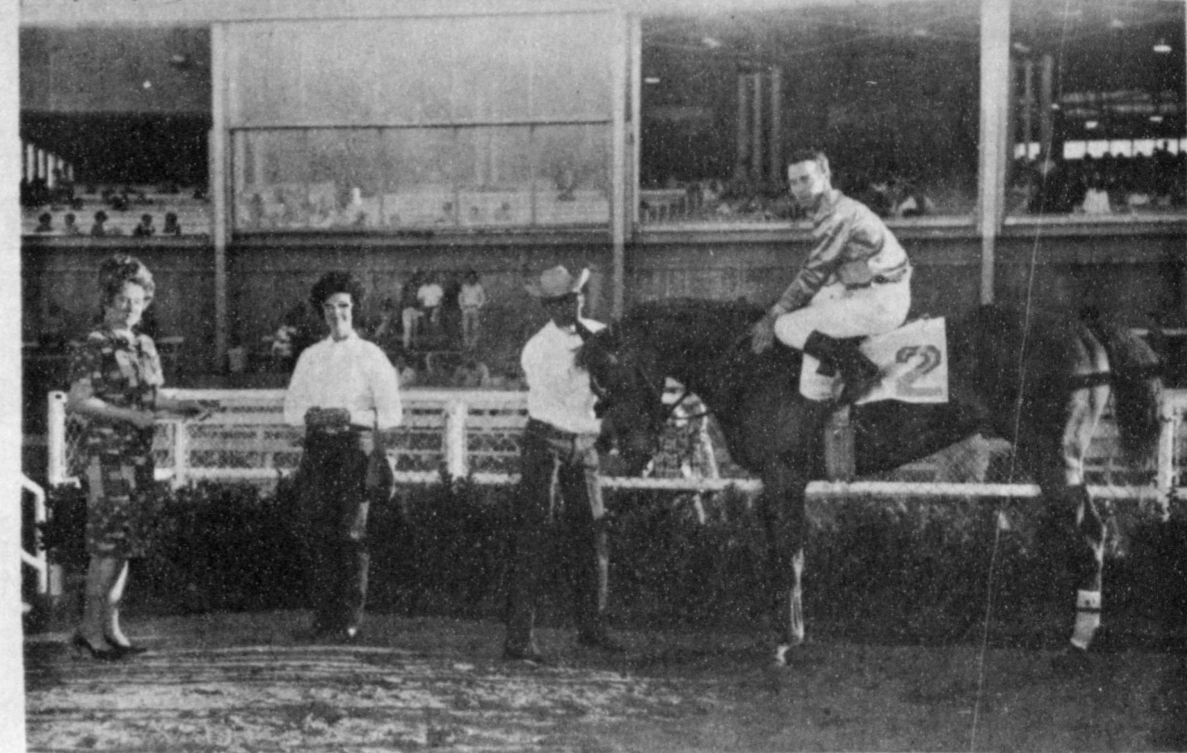

Johnson pointed out that soil tests show over 60 per cent of the soils on the Plains are low in available phosphate, and this causes excessive shedding of early sprouts, delayed maturity, weak fiber, and low micronaire.

When available, irrigation is a potent factor in the production of an early quality crop. Irrigation facilities should be utilized, when feasible, to prevent plant stress and shedding.

When moisture is limited, transportation of plant food is slowed, bolls are smaller, and the fiber is shorter.

For each bale produced on an acre of properly fertilized soil, 10 to 15 inches of moisture must be available when needed. Twice as much moisture or 20 to 30 inches is required to produce a bale on unfertilized soils low in organic matter and in poor physical conditions.

Nutrition and the Cow Herd

COLLEGE STATION--With spring around the corner, most Texas beef producers are in the midst of calving season. Now is when the nutritional requirements are most important due to the effect they will have on the 1968 calf crop, points out Uel D. Thompson, Extension animal husbandman at Texas A&M University.

Breeding season chores will soon be taking most of the producer's time and energy, and could well be the most important season of the year for him. The first question producers should answer before attempting to plan a breeding program is when should the calves be born. No one can give a recommendation that is agreeable to all beef cattle producers, but keeping the best marketing dates in mind is very important. For slaughter steer producers, their animals should be ready for market prior to June. Stocker cattle producers should plan for an October market. All cows should be bred in a 90-day period, says Thompson.

During this same period, cows have to feed their offspring, maintain their own body, and carry on the reproductive function. It's just common sense that this much extra body activity will require more total nutrient intake to get the job done. First-year heifers have the added burden of growth, and should be fed separately from the mature herd. Breeding back could be quite a problem if these animals are not fed the best feed available, Thompson cautioned.

Beef cows can be rebred in about 60 days following calving. Some may settle in less time provided nutrition is good and disease is present. Each producer should be sure his bull power is good enough to insure a profitable breeding season. A good rule of thumb for mating stock is one mature bull for 25-30 cows. Yearling and two-year-olds should have no more than fifteen and twenty-five cows, respectively.

The bull battery should be subjected to a semen check prior to turnout time to eliminate any sterile bulls. A watchful eye is a good precaution against a calf crop loss after breeding occurs.

Whether first-calf heifers should be bred to calve as two or three-year-olds is a perennial question. Much depends on their growth and development. They should weigh at least 700 pounds prior to breeding, explains Thompson.
