Season opener is Friday

12 returning lettermen to lead Bulldog squad

ith 12 returning lettermen, including 8 starters on offense from last year's highly successful season, the 2013 Tahoka Bulldogs football team will open its season at Crosbyton Friday night.

Head Coach John Cornelius, starting his fifth season at Tahoka, sees a "very tough" schedule ahead, but is counting on a balanced offense and athletic defense to lead the team to success again, after tying for the district championship and going two games deep into the playoffs last season.

"We have all our playmakers back on offense," he noted. "We have our leading tackler (all-state linebacker Ray Parmer) and our guy with the most tackles for losses and sacks back. Depth will be a major factor, though."

Trystan Hilger, first team all-district quarterback last year, who passed for 11 touchdowns and 1043 yards last season, is back, along with leading receiver Kordell Baker, who caught 30 passes for 414 yards.

"Hilger is our starting quarterback, but Preston Hammonds will play quarterback in our wishbone package," said Cornelius. Hammonds was a first team all-district utility player last year.

Senior running back Ke'Shawn Hood, who scored 18 touchdowns while rushing for 1,339 yards last year, returns for his fourth season after making first team all-district for three seasons already.

The offensive line will average better than 230 pounds. Although only four starters return on defense, Tahoka's defense again will be led by Parmer, who has been all-state, all-South Plains, all-district and just about all-everything

4-cent increase proposed for county tax rate, to 81-cents

Property tax rates in Lynn County will most likely increase four cents this year, according to information released this week by Lynn County Commissioners in a notice of a public hearing on tax increase (see advertisement in this issue).

Commissioners voted 4-0 to propose a property tax rate of 81-cents per $100 of property value, which is four cents higher than the current rate of 77-cents. The effective tax rate is 80-cents (0.801116 per $100 of taxable value), which is the rate that would bring in the same amount of revenue as the previous year. If the county adopts the proposed tax rate of 81-cents, total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll would increase by one percent from the preceding year. The amount of taxes imposed on the average home would increase about $27, from $339.31 to $366.55, based on an average home value of $44,065.

Commissioners voted to adopt the proposed 2013-2014 budget at Monday morning's regular session, after weeks of budget talks with all county officials. The proposed budget includes a three percent increase in employee salaries across the board, with the exception of two positions that are capped out at top salary. Predicted total expenditures for all county offices is $4,585,773 and total revenue is predicted at $4,597,925 (at the proposed tax rate of 81-cents). Excess revenue over expenses is calcu-

Commissioners set two public hearings to hear input on the proposed budget and tax rate, with the first on Sept. 5 at 9 a.m. at the basement courtroom in the Lynn County Courthouse, and the second hearing at 9 a.m. Sept. 9. A proposed date to officially adopt the budget was scheduled for a commissioners meeting on Sept. 19.

In other business at Monday morning's meeting, commissioners approved a $5 increase in fees for recording documents in the District Clerk's Office, with all funds to be used for records management and preservation, which was approved by the state legislature for all counties in Texas.

Allen Gaines presented information to commissioners regarding LegalShield, which is an insurance program made available to county employees for legal assistance, prevention of identity theft, and other issues. Sheriff Jerry D. Franklin reported on his department's activities, and monthly bills were approved.

County Judge H.G. Franklin led the meeting, with commissioners Keith Wied, Don Blair, Danny Martin and Mike Braddock present, as well as other county officials.

O YOU BELIEVE in flying saucers, supernatural experiences, unexplained mysteries, or even ghosts? I don't completely rule out any of those things, because I have an open mind (don't listen to those people who say that's because I have a hole in my head).

Many people have had scary or unexplained experiences, although some are reluctant to tell about them for fear of being ridiculed. Ghost stories are always interesting, though, and maybe this newspaper will hear some from readers who are willing to fascinate the rest of us.

The ladies who own the newspaper are asking that anyone with a good story about ghosts or unexplained happenings write down all they remember about the event and send it to the newspaper, where it can be revised into story form and printed near Halloween. So far, no one has responded, but I have heard of a couple of interesting stories that need to be told.

One involves strange events at a house in Tahoka years ago, and the other is about a house near Wilson. I had heard the last one years ago from our son-in-law, who lived in the Wilson area house as a child and recalls the spooky events, as does his mother, who now lives in Slaton.

I can't personally recall any strange experiences, except for the many times my car keys, cell phone and wallet have suddenly vanished from where I put them, only to reappear later in odd places like under the seat of my car, in the pocket of some garment in my closet that I don't remember wearing since Harry Truman was president, or on a shelf at the office next to some things I didn't even know we had.

Anyway, I hope you who know some good ghost stories will go ahead and send them in, to be published in October. Send them in without fear of rejection; don't be a Hallow-hings that go bump in the night. Odd noises that can't be explained. Lights that should not be on. Ghostly shadows that move, or items that get moved from one place to another.

These are the stories of unexplainable incidents that most every family can share, if not from their own experience then name when we print the story from another family member. If it takes place in Lynn County, or happened to someone from Lynn County, or is in any way connected to the county, then we want your story. Share your story and make our spines tingle - it's all in good fun, and we know the stories are out there!

Send us your story by email (LynnCoNews@poka.com), tell us on the Lynn County News facebook page, or write us a letter (P.O. Box 1170, Tahoka, TX 79373). We will gather all the stories for a special spinetingling "ghost edition" of The Lynn County News on October

Share your stories with us - if you are okay with us using your name for submitting the story, great! If you want to submit the story but don't want your name published, tell us and we will withhold your - but you will miss the fun of enjoying the "notoriety" of telling "your" story. Either way, we want your tales of ghostly lore. If you have a photo to submit with the story, that's even better - that shows the place of the event, or the person telling the story - anything at all will be appreciated.

Alright then, start your "ghost story" tales at the dinner table, generate some fun family conversations, and then write it down and share it with us - the sooner the better. Don't wait, submit your stories to us now and we will start compiling out special edition.

Former Tahoka man inducted in 2013 American Quarter Horse Hall of Fame

Kenny Hart, "one of Tahoka's own," was inducted into the prestigious American Quarter Horse Hall of Fame in March 2013, according to information from the Amarillo Globe News sent in by Lynn County News readers A.G. and Cherri Cook of Logan, NM. Hart reportedly is a Lynn County native, attending school in Tahoka and growing up on a ranch near here. He is currently a resident of Ruidoso Downs, NM.

Hart was a winning jockey of American Quarter Horse racehorses for 35 years. He rode his first match race in 1962 and, in 1977, he became the first jockey to exceed $1 million in annual AQHA champion jockey, as well as the leading jockey by money earned and by races won. In 1979, 1981-83 and 1985, he was the leading jockey by races won.

A decade after his retirement, Hart remains the fourth all-time winningest American Quarter Horse jockey and the fifth alltime money-earning rider. Since 1970, when AQHA began keeping records on jockeys, Hart's mounts earned $28,940,309.

Hart now serves as a steward at Ruidoso Downs, where he has been inducted into the track's hall of fame. Hart and wife, Shirley, have two children and seven grandchildren.

in his first three years. Last year he was credited with 198 tackles, and is described by his coach as a "tough ball hawk." The defense also welcomes back alldistrict defensive end Mikkel Garza, who had 99 tackles and four sacks last season, plus alldistrict safety Baker and junior all-district cornerback Dillon Trevino.

On the caution side, five of the 10 teams on the Bulldogs' schedule are ranked among the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal's pre-season Top 25 teams on the South Plains, which includes all classifications of teams. Crosbyton, Ralls, Roosevelt, Post and New Deal are on the list.

But the Bulldogs have lots of weapons and determination, and are not expected to roll over for anybody, and could be instrumental in helping to revise that list.

Thanks for letting me get the word out!

Dee Dee Pridmore Local pastor is proud of church member's accomplishments

(Editor's Note: Gethsemane Baptist Church Pastor Ynes Aleman submitted the following letter in praise of the accomplishments of Rick Saldana, a Tahoka native, who is now the Lubbock-Cooper ISD Police Chief. He was mentioned in a recent article in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal when the Lubbock-Cooper ISD Police Department added a low-profile vehicle - the first of the school's "stealth" unit - to help patrol the district's expanded facilities.)

"Little Kid becomes 18 H a Policeman"

Rick Saldana, one of 13 in the Saldana family, is a member of Gethsemane Baptist Church, Tahoka. His mother, Leonor Saldana, who has passed away, brought many of her children to Sunday School at Gethsemane Baptist and Ricky was one who came to church with his mother. As a teenager he wanted to be a law man. He graduated from high school in Tahoka, and studied law after school, and now is the Police Chief at Lubbock-Cooper ISD.

A few months ago he visited our worship service here in our church, and at the end of the service after the invitation he came forward and said, "This is my mother's church, I remember when I used to come here, and I want to be a member of this church. The Lord is working with me. I even dream about Pastor Aleman (who was Ricky's pastor in the 1980s) and also I want to preach the gospel so I made this decision too."

The church accepted both decisions and we gave him a license to preach the gospel. I, as a pastor, am very proud of Ricky Saldana as also our congregation is very proud of him. With him we have three laymen who have done the same. The Lord is blessing our church in a very special way, Glory be to His name.

Record-breaking $17.3 billion paid in crop losses nationwide last year

Extreme weather forced the Federal Crop Insurance Program (FCIP) to pay out a record-breaking $17.3 billion in crop losses last year, much of which could have been prevented using water-smart strategies, according to the Natural Resources Defense Council. Payments made to farmers during the 2012 growing season to cover losses from drought, heat and hot wind alone accounted for 80 percent of all farm losses, with many Upper Midwest and Great Plains states hit hardest.

With extreme weather conditions such as drought expected to become more common, record-breaking insurance payouts will likely continue to increase. However, widespread adoption of crop-loss prevention methods that build soil health and improve water management on farms can limit these losses. From 2001 to 2010, crop losses averaged just $4.1 billion a year, making the 2012 record-breaking FCIP paying $974,548,606 outs even more staggering. Soil Matters' analysis reveals the key causes of the staggering crop insurance payouts by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Risk Management Agency

(RMA), and examines the systemic flaws in RMA's program, which fails to account for risky farming practices that create extreme weather vulnerabilities and ignores the risk-reducing value of healthy soil. The report outlines solutions for a crop insurance reform pilot plan that would build soil health to help climate-proof American farms, and would reduce government and taxpayer costs by encouraging farmers to become more resistant to weather-related risks. The pilot, which would not require legislation, would offer reduced premium rates to farmers who adopt proven soil-building management practices that sustain productive crop yields and result in greater water infiltration, less farm run-duce the worst effects of climate change, and rein in the skyrocketing costs of this program," said

"The Federal Crop Insurance Program has failed farmers and taxpayers by ignoring water challenges," said Claire O'Connor, NRDC Agricultural Water Policy Analyst. "The program was designed to be a safety net, not a subsidy for increasingly risky practices and less sustainable food production. We need to empower farmers to invest in low risk, water-smart practices that are proven to reduce crop losses." NRDC's study, Soil Matters:

How the Federal Crop Insurance Program should be reformed, includes a new interactive crop loss and weather map at www. nrdc.org/water/your-soil-matters detailing crop losses county-bycounty in all 50 states in 2012, when more than 80 percent of agricultural lands nationwide suffered drought.

The report finds that American farms, particularly in the Upper Midwest and Great Plains, were primarily impacted by three major forms of extreme weather in 2012: drought, heat and hot wind, all of which are expected to increase in the future. The top ten states with the largest overall crop insurance payouts due to drought, heat and hot wind were:

• Illinois: 98% of all crop losses were caused by drought, heat and hot wind, costing $3,011,443,799

· Iowa: 97% of losses, costing $1,924,444,160

· Indiana: 97% of losses, costing $1,130,302,660

· Kentucky: 96% of losses, costing $454,380,256

· Missouri: 95% of losses, costing $1,098,310,111

· Wisconsin: 94% of losses, costing $372,479,370

• South Dakota: 93% of losses, costing $1,029,780,352 · Kansas: 93% of losses, costing $1,273,662,944 · Nebraska: 92% of losses, costing $1,427,738,976 • Texas: 75% of losses, cost-

· Cover crops: crops grown with the specific purpose of build-irrigation scheduling:

ing soil health and increasing biodiversity on farms focused on growing major commodity crops. Farmers who used cover crops in 2012 averaged higher yields than farmers who did not, according to one recent USDA survey. The yield benefit from cover crops was most pronounced in the areas hardest hit by the drought, demonstrating the importance of cover crops to drought-proofing fields. · No-till farming: a soil moisture management method when farmers plant directly into the stubble from the previous year's crops, rather than plowing up this residue. The protective stubble serves as mulch that retains soil moisture, suppresses weeds and increases a field's capacity to grow high-yield crops. In 2010, corn farmers who used no-till were 30% less likely to file a crop insurance claim than conventional tilling corn farmers.

· Improved irrigation scheduling: a simple altering of often fixed irrigation times, whereby farmers apply adaptive irrigating schedules based on frequent examinations of soil health. This improved efficiency could help farmers avoid some supply constraints that cause losses during dry years; in 2012, irrigation supply failures accounted for more than $14.7 million in indemnity payments.

Over 282 million acres of cropland - making up at least 70 percent of the nation's total cropland - are insured under the Federal Crop Insurance Program, a public-private partnership between the RMA and 18 private insurance companies. The FCIP is the most expensive farm subsidy program, and serves as the primary risk management tool for farmers to prepare for poten-

Crop Losses and Extreme Weather in Lynn County

Texas has more than 15,264,752 acres of crop planted and last year received $1,282,798,049 in federal aid due to crop losses.

Lynn County's top planted crops are: Acres Planted Crop Cotton 336,200

Sorghum 22,500 10,300 Wheat Grand Total 369,000

In 2012, the farms in Lynn County, Texas lost some of these key cash crops due to extreme weather. The total amount of Federal Crop Insurance claims money paid out to Lynn County farmers was $37,151,180 of the $17.3 billion in total crop losses nationwide. Drought, hot wind, and heat impacts caused at least 77% of crop loss in Lynn County, totaling $28,710,580.

Overall, out of 50 states, Texas had the 18th highest percentage of crop loss caused by drought, heat and hot wind, with 75% - or $963,432,464 - of the state's total crop insurance payouts resulting from these extreme weather impacts.

These were the total claims paid out in Lynn County for the various weather-related causes of loss on the crops:

> Indemnity Paid Cause of Loss $26,369,171 Drought Wind/Excess Wind $3,893,206 $2,757,277 Hail Hot Wind $2,139,441

The frequency and intensity of these very costly types of extreme weather events are likely to worsen with climate change Nationwide, the Federal Crop Insurance Program paid out more than $17.3 billion in crop losses in 2012, one of the hottest, driest years on record in U.S. history. And nearly $8.4 billion of crop loss payouts were funded by taxpayers.

Tractor Drive to arrive in Tahoka in October: FFA 'Tractor Drive' to end food insecurity

More than 15 percent of households in rural America face food insecurity, which amounts to an estimated 3 million families, according to Feeding America, the nation's largest domestic hunger relief organization. With the help of Monsanto, AgTexas Farm Credit kicked off its inaugural Tractor Drive August 16 to help end rural hunger across the state of Texas.

Twenty-six local FFA chapters will take turns driving a tractor along a 23-county route, stopping along the way to raise awareness about rural hunger and host fundraising events. The tractor will arrive in Tahoka sometime in October, according to Tahoka FFA teacher, Rich Hannum. All proceeds benefit the Texas Food Bank Network and the FFA Chapter that raises the most money will, win the

"Monsanto wanted to join forces with AgTexas Farm Credit to combat rural hunger," said Heather Wolfe, customer advocacy manager at Monsanto. "We are committed to strengthening America's farming communities and this innovative. initiative does just that.'

AgTexas Farm Credit estimates the tractor will travel approximately 1,000 miles during the drive. The Texas Food Bank Network will be using the funds to purchase food for the local food bank pantries. Funds raised within a county will stay in that county, benefiting its neighborhood food banks.
