Micronutrients Topic Among Many Farmers

The use of micronutrients is a topic of much discussion among farmers and representatives of the fertilizer industry. There are six generally recognized plant nutrients in the micronutrient group, namely: iron, zinc, manganese, copper, boron and molybdenum. In addition to these, chlorine has been proved essential to plant growth, but deficiencies have not cropped up under field conditions.

Iron and zinc have been the problems. According to Dr. Charles D. Welch, Extension Soil Chemist at A&M, soil tests are available to determine whether or not a zinc deficiency exists. "So far, there are no suitable soil tests to determine if an iron deficiency exists," Welch said.

Iron deficiencies are most common on sorghum growing in alkaline soils. The deficiency readily makes itself known by causing a yellowing between the leaf veins. Sorghum is a better indicator crop than either soybeans or field peas or beans, two other crops that will show iron deficiency symptoms.

Severe deficiencies will

Feed Grain Outlook Told By Economist

Feed grain prices will be especially sensitive to crop prospect changes during the next several months due to the smaller stocks on hand, believes John G. McHaney, Texas A&M University Extension economist.

He expects prices to continue higher than a year earlier through this spring, but to perhaps advance less than in the summer of 1966 if the growing season is a favorable one.

If farmers carry out their March 1 planting intentions, they will plant just over 3 million more acres to feed grains than in 1966. McHaney says corn acreage will be increased by just over 4 million and sorghum grain by about 2 million if planting intentions are carried out. But, he adds, out cause yield losses. The most common and effective method of applying iron where needed is by the use of foliar sprays.

Corn is a good indicator crop to detect zinc deficiencies in the soil. Preventing or correcting zinc deficiencies is a less complex problem than is the case in iron deficiency. However, the need for zinc and iron should be established before applications are made. Zinc may be applied broadcast or in bands. Applications of zinc sulfate should be 10 to 30 pounds per acre. Chelated zinc compounds also are effective.

acreage may be down by 2 million acres and barley by 1 million acres.
A normal growing season this year could see feed grain production near 170 million tons, 13 million more than the near record crop of 1966. But, the economist points out, changes in farmers' intentions and the 1967 growing season could materially change these prospects.
The 1966-67 feed grain supply amounts to about 200 million tons while utilization during the present marketing year is expected to total about 175 million tons. The prospective carry-over into 1967-68 of around 25 million tons, plus the prospective production would give a total supply about equal to the 1966-67 supply but 22 million tons below the 1960-64 average.
McHaney says it is too early for forecasting exports for the 1967-68 marketing year. Exports of feed grains during the present marketing year are now expected to fall about 6 million tons below the record of 29 million tons exported last year.
Texas farmers on March 1 reported a prospective increase of 18 percent in sorghum grain acreage; Kansas 4 percent and Nebraska 10 percent. McHaney adds that the May 8 report from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service shows that sorghum planting is 52 percent complete compared with 45 percent last year.

Chamber Corner

Because your Congressmen vote is undecided on H. R. 8993, you have an immediate opportunity to help return to the State and local governments of America a large part of the central ever elementary and secondary education which has been taken from them by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Very shortly, the House of Representatives is expected to consider the Quie education bill, H. R. 8983. This bill will amend the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 by consolidating four separate programs to be financed by one block grant to the States. It will give State and local officials rather than Washington bureaucrats the power to determine how and where $3 billion in Federal tax revenues are spent.

The Office of Education attempts to administer 112 different special purpose grants-in-aid, which form a rigid and overlapping tangle of compliances and red tape that confuse schoolmen, public officials and taxpayers alike. Now at last, a bill is before the congress which will change not only educational legislation, but may herald the beginning of a new era in Federal State relations.

If this bill succeeds, it will reverse the trend of thirty-five years of Federal legislation. The proliferation of grant-in-aid programs may give way to broad block grants, to revenue sharing, and to tax credits, with State and local officials at last able to administer programs according to State and local needs rather than national plans.

Beginning in fiscal year 1969, H. R. 8983 would consolidate ESEA funds for school districts with children of low-income families for library resources and instructional materials, for supplementary educational centers, and for State departments of education, totalling well over $3 billion. Under the Quie bill, funds would be distributed in a block grant to each State by a formula based on State income per child of school age, with a minimum of Federal strings attached. Three points to remember:

- no State would receive less than it receives under ESEA in fiscal year 1968.
 - cities would continue to receive Equitable treatment.
 - private schools are guaranteed as much assistance as they now receive under ESEA.
- As an interested citizen you can play a vital role in the success of this bill by asking your friends and neighbors to..... wire, call or air mail your congressman promptly

John Tower

I have heard a great deal of discussion recently which laments the claimed fact that the United States does not have any help in confronting communist aggression in Southeast Asia. I have even heard it claimed that a American action in Vietnam is "unilateral."

This is simply not so, and I think it would be useful for us to review the assistance the United States is receiving in facing this challenge.

As General Westmoreland said when he addressed Congress: we must remember that Korea, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand and the Philippines all have military forces fighting and working with the South Vietnamese and Americans -- that more than 30 other nations are helping provide non-combat support -- and that the whole of free Asia opposes communist expansion.

I think we need to remember, too, that a vast majority of all the governments in the free world are sympathetic to our efforts in Southeast Asia and would be alarmed were we to fail.

My three recent trips to Asia and my study of the situation from here at home, convince me beyond a doubt that the free nations of Asia are very deeply concerned, indeed, about the security of their part of the world. And, they are in the forefront of those nations contributing military assistance.

In addition, many countries of Europe and the Western Hemisphere, and several countries in Africa and the Middle East are providing the Republic of Vietnam substantial economic, technical, and humanitarian assistance.

Even the United Nations has several assistance programs operating in Vietnam--despite the fact that the Soviet Union's veto power prevents the U. N. from taking major action to contain communism either in Asia or anywhere else in the world.

More than 50,000 troops from Asian nations now are in Vietnam fighting along side Americans and South Vietnamese, and more troops are pledged by these nations this year.

Other nations around the world are sending doctors, nurses, teachers, agricultural advisers, engineers and other technical personnel to work in the cities and rural areas of Vietnam in our pacification program designed to deny haven to communist guerrillas.

For example, 23 medical and surgical teams from a dozen nations are providing care in provincial hospitals.

Other nations which have not been able to send personnel have helped in Vietnam by sending substantial material help, including medical supplies, textbooks, construction materials, construction equipment, refugee-relief supplies and foodstuffs. They also have provided generous scholarship aid to Vietnamese students so those students may obtain vitally needed training which will enable them to participate effectively in building a free and prosperous South Vietnam.

Because we tend to forget just how much help we have in Southeast Asia, I want to list those nations for you:

Australia, Japan, Korea, Laos, Malaysia, New Zealand and the Philippines; Thailand, Greece, Iran, Israel, Pakistan, Turkey and the Republic of China; Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Ireland, Italy and Luxembourg; Norway, Spain, Switzerland, Great Britain and the Netherlands; Argentina, Brazil, Canada, Ecuador, Guatemala and Honduras; Uruguay, Venezuela, Liberia and Tunisia.

And, although there is not time to list what each of these nations is doing to help, I'd like to give you at least a few examples:

Australia provides more than 6,000 combat troops, a destroyer and bombers. The Republic of China provides surgeons, agricultural experts and a psychological warfare team.

South Korea already has sent nearly 50,000 troops.

Malaysia is training Vietnamese police officers.

New Zealand sends artillerymen and combat engineers.

The Philippines sends military engineers.

Thailand is sending a ground combat force.

Greece sent medical supplies.

Iran contributed 1,000 tons of petroleum products.

Belgium, Denmark and Germany provide medical supplies and train future Vietnamese leaders under scholarship programs.

Argentina sent 5,000 tons of wheat.

Guatemala sent 15,000 doses of typhoid serum.

Venezuela sent rice and doctors.

Even tiny Costa Rica sent an ambulance; and Luxembourg, blood plasma.

We are not alone in this world in our recognition of the need to control communist expansion. We are not alone in our desire to preserve world order. We are not by ourselves in the belief that stopping the Reds today will save lives in the future.

Certainly, we are the free world's leader. As such, special demands are on our shoulders. But we have many friends in this world, and they are doing what they can in gratefully following our leadership.

WHEN SHE DIDN'T FOLLOW
HOWARDSTOWN, Ky. (AP) — Mrs. Sudie Howard, a widow since her husband, Sam, died more than 30 years ago, made this observation on her 100th birthday: "I guess Sam's wondering what's happened to me. He probably thinks I've died and gone to that other place."

Careful Cleaning Helps Retain Diamonds Brightness

"The good thing about diamonds is they always look new," said Miss Lorelie Lee, the gentlemen-preferred blond of book and Broadway. She was right. Even diamonds centuries old look new if they are kept clean. When doing your spring cleaning, include your precious jewelry. Your engagement ring especially may need attention since it is worn so frequently.

Here are three safe and effective cleaning methods for diamond jewelry:

The Detergent Bath -- Prepare a bowl of warm suds, using a mild liquid detergent. Let each piece of jewelry soak a few moments. Using a tiny eyebrow brush, gently clean the diamonds and the mounting, being sure to brush thoroughly under the gems. Transfer to a wire tea strainer, rinse under warm running water and pat dry with a soft lintless cloth or a piece of gift wrapping tissue.

The Cold Water Soak -- Make a half-and-half solution of cold water and household ammonia in a bowl, and soak the diamond jewelry for half an hour. Lift out and brush gently but thoroughly. Swish in the solution once more and drain on tissue paper. No rinse is needed.

The Quick Dip -- To give diamond jewelry a quick shine-up before a party -- this especially applies to the newly engaged girl whose ring will be an object of special attention -- use a prepared jewelry cleaner. Read the label carefully and pick the cleaner most useful to you. Most having a dipping tray inside the jar. If the one you pick doesn't, use a bobby pin to dangle the jewels in the liquid.

Of course, you can't dunk a diamond wristwatch at all in liquid and paste or powder might work its way inside. However most department stores and jewelers sell a treated cloth which you can use to polish the diamonds and the metal in your watch. When you take your watch to be regulated, the jeweler can clean the case and diamonds thoroughly. Whether you have one diamond ring or quite a bit of jewelry, it's yours--and it's precious.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights by Vern Sanford

AUSTIN, Tex. -- Final minutes are ticking away in the biennial legislative game of "beat the clock." Obviously, the wind-up of the 60th session will be a cliff-hanger.

As lawmakers move toward the May 29 finish line, the major jobs they came to Austin to accomplish remain unfinished.

THE BUDGET

It went to conference committee, following an unsuccessful attempt by Gov. John Connally and Speaker Ben Barnes to sell the Senate on accepting the House Appropriations bill without the traditional conference to adjust differences.

House Bill calls for $448,300,000 in general revenue; Senate Bill, $437,700,000.

REDISTRICTING

A Senate Congressional

Redistricting Bill would save all incumbent congressmen the agony of having to run against a colleague. But the House Judicial Districts Committee has drawn different lines. So this issue must go to conference committee for an 11th hour compromise. State House of Representative districts also must be redrawn. But the Senate has little interest in that. Judicial redistricting appears to be impossibly snarled once more.

SCHOOL TEACHER PAY

Both houses agree there must be a raise. Major problem is to determine the amount.

Although revenue in sight from the Comptroller's last official estimate won't cover the budgets drawn by either house, plus a teacher pay raise of the magnitude sought, legislative leaders still insist adjustments will make the money possible without a tax bill.

Speculation is widespread that the lawmakers can't finish the job on schedule but top leaders are hopeful they can avoid a special session by covering the clock for a few days.

DRIVERS LICENSING CHANGE DUE

Major changes in Texas drivers license laws have been approved by both houses.

Bill increases minimum age for license from 15 to 16 for those who complete approved driver training courses and to 18 for those without such training. Hardship licenses are permitted for 15-year-olds where there is a licensed adult driver in the front seat. Motor scooter and motorcycle operators must be at least 15, and for commercial licenses, 17.

Present licenses will be replaced by a plastic card with a color photograph of the driver. New ones will be good for four instead of two years and will cost $6 instead of $3. Drivers may be required to take a new competency examination when they apply for a new license. However, re-examination is not compulsory, as proposed in the original bill.

License suspension period for violations was increased from six to 12 months for the first offense and from 12 to 18 months for repeat offenses, subject to the court's discretion. Driving while license is suspended will be punishable by fine up to $500 and a maximum of six months in jail.

HORSE RACING

Voters will be given an opinion on whether Texas should legalize horse-race betting, if the House agrees with the Senate to put the question on the ballot in the Democratic and Republican primaries next May.

Senate passed the bill by V.E. Berry of San Antonio, long an advocate of horse-race betting, and sent it to the House for its concurrence. Actually the bill, as passed by the Senate, would not require the parties to put the question on the ballot but would permit and encourage them to.

AIR BASE PURCHASE O.K.'D

Both houses have agreed that James Connally Air Force Base at Waco should be purchased by the state for $5,200,000. The 2,100-acre base with 1,141 buildings now is under lease for a state vocational and technical training institute. Money for its purchase is expected to be written into the final version of the 1968 appropriations bill.

ELECTION CODE CLEANED UP

Although the Legislature approved general terms of a major election code overhaul, the two houses differed over provision to permit counties to employ low-cost electronic vote recording-counting devices.

Senate struck the electronic machine section from the original bill, but the House put it back in and returned amended measures to the senate.

Major features of the redrawn code will standardize the ballot form; change city election dates to the first Saturday in April; raised maximum pay for election judges and clerks to $1.25 an hour; permit new state residents to vote in presidential elections before they have resided in Texas a year; allow consolidation of election precincts for minor elections; and substitute senatorial district conventions for county conventions in counties having multiple districts extending beyond their own boundaries.

$100 property tax by 1977 if Texas voters give their approval at a constitutional amendment election in November, 1968.

Proposed amendment received the necessary two-thirds vote of both houses for submission. This event though opponents warned that the $48,000,000 in lost revenue will have to be made up from other tax sources -- and that local governmental units will snap up the additional leeway on property taxes.

State levy on property would begin declining in 1969. Remaining 10 cents of the present tax would be retained for college building purposes.

OIL PRODUCTION LINE HELD

Railroad Commission set June oil production allowable at 33.8 per cent. This is the same as May although demand for Texas crude is expected to increase next month.

June allowable factor will permit a maximum production of 3,046,218 barrels daily. Factor dropped four straight months before last week's hold-the-line order. Prior to the January peak of 37.5 per cent, it was increased four successive months.

U.S. Bureau of Mines predicts that the June demand for Texas crude oil will increase 50,000 barrels. But the Commission feels that stocks throughout the U.S. are excessive now.

ATTORNEY GENERAL RULES

Legislation providing for cancellation of permits on dredge shell or mudshell in certain areas is constitutional, says Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin in a recent opinion.

Other opinions issued by Martin include the following: Calhoun County is not prohibited by law from withdrawing surplus funds from the county depository and investing the money in authorized U.S. government bonds and securities.

A district clerk in Cass County may accept an appointment as a receiver in a civil case pending in the court which he serves as a clerk without mitting experimental 10-month school programs involving 50,000 Texas students in selected districts.

Interim committee on faculty compensation -- which made some recommendations to the current Legislature -- will get another two years of existence, under a resolution adopted by the Senate and sent to the House.

Governor Connally delivered his first veto of the 60th Legislature when he killed the bill to give West Texas State University its own Board of Regents, removing it from the control of the Board of Regents, State Senior Colleges.

White-Wing Dove Effort Continued: Meet Upcoming

AUSTIN --- Just three months away from the first shot ordinarily fired on the wildlife harvest front, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department staffers are approaching showdown time in the pre-season developments.

Arrangements are being completed for the key June county meetings to plan regulations for both game and fish during the next year. Each of these sessions in the more than 180 counties under direct regulatory authority of the Parks and Wildlife Commission will be attended by a wildlife man, a fisheries man and a state game warden.

Results of the discussions will be used as a basis for setting season dates, bag limits and other details when the Commission meets in Austin in July.

Meanwhile, Department personnel are concluding their dove census. The accumulated data will be used to recommend the annual "mourners" shoot that usually opens September 1 in the northern zone.

Efforts continue to implement the popular white-winged dove season in the Rio Grande Valley and in some far Western counties along the Mexican border. These efforts include providing nesting, roosting and feeding areas to sustain 450,000 to 500,000 white-wings in Texas. Such programs are designed to offset the substantial number of doves raised in Texas but harvested in Mexico by persistent U.S. hunters.

Emphasis at the June county meetings in the big game areas again will concern the means of controlling the bulging white-tail numbers to keep the population in balance with the food supply.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm does some house cleaning this week, he claims.

Dear editor:

I was cleaning out a stack of old newspapers which had accumulated in a corner of my work room out here and while I was at it the thought occurred, why not clean out some of the old ideas which have stacked up in a corner of my mind, so I thought I would, I will send them to you and you can stack them in some corner somewhere around your office, or throw them out entirely, I'm through with them. For example, here's one: man is taking the long way around to blow up cities. Instead of developing missiles that'll hurtle halfway around the earth and come down on top of a city, why not drill holes through the earth to fire rockets through and let them explode underneath? Avoid air pollution that way.

Or, why hasn't some insurance company come out with a policy to insure you against not being able to make enough money to pay for the policies you already have?

Los Angeles now has 7 million people and 4 million cars. It's predicted that in a couple of decades it'll have 14 million people and 28 million cars. Ought to be a fine place to find a second-hand car. I heard a politician in Washington on "Meet The Press" say he was just a country boy trying to get along. Don't city boys ever try to get along?

Casius Clay says he'd rather farm than fight. I'd advise him to wait till his first crop is in before he decides permanently.

How do you get in touch with the company that makes phonograph records to pay off your debts with?

Since every President nowadays has to have a Presidential Library erected when he retires, have you ever stopped to think how many libraries this country will have 10,000 years from now?

If we get two tax increases for every tax cut, how long will it take a frog to get out of a well?

I could go on, but I'll finish my cleaning some other day.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Veterans Q's and A's

Q-- My father received a small pension from the Veterans Administration until his death four years ago. My sister, through an accident that occurred when she was a child, is unable to earn a living. I would like to know if she is entitled to a pension, as she has never worked and will never be able to do so?

A-- The Veterans Administration considers a "helpless child" as one who became permanently incapable of self-support prior to age 18. If this is your sister's case, you should submit medical evidence to the VA to support this claim.

Q -- I was in service from Jan. 2, 1964, to Aug. 23, 1966. During my period of service I received an injury to my right foot. I filed a claim with the VA and was granted 0-percent service connection on my foot. Would I be entitled to National Service Life Insurance? If so, what steps should I take to apply for the insurance?

A-- You may be. You should file an application, VA form 9-4364, within one year from the date VA established service connection, if you are in good health except for your service connected disability, you may be issued up to $10,000 National Service Life Insurance.

Q--I received VA death pension of $64 per month in 1966 because my income was below $600. I completed my income questionnaire in January, 1967 and noted that my income for 1967 will be $900 from Social Security which started January 1, 1967. However, when I received my January check it was still $64. Will I have an overpayment for the month of January?

A-- There is no overpayment, but your monthly benefits will be reduced to $48 effective February 1, 1967.

Uniform Fiber Is Major Cotton Marketing Problem

One of the major problems in marketing cotton produced on the South Plains is the lack of fiber uniformity -- within the bale and from bale to bale. Fiber uniformity can be improved through block ginning; and thereby, create a greater market demand for the area's cotton.

What is block ginning? This concept is the ginning of cotton from a single variety and with similar fiber properties in large lots (40 to 50 or more bales). One variety gins or communities would be classified, of course, as block ginning. However, this program can be carried out without all farms within the community being involved or even the total acreage of the participating growers.

The cotton grouped within a block should be not only of the same variety but also produced under similar conditions -- soil type, irrigation practices, planting date, etc. Hail, insect or disease damage should be considered, it should be remembered that the main objective is to obtain bales of uniform fiber quality to better supply and meet the demands of the market.

Advantages to be gained in block ginning

As a result of uniform fiber quality, several advantages can be realized under this program. A few are listed below:

1. By approaching the market with a large supply of uniform fiber, the producer is in a better position to market cotton from a quality standpoint.

2. The fiber properties -- length, strength, etc. -- can be represented to the mill with a good degree of reliability.

3. The movement of two-sided bales into market is avoided.

4. Ginning in large lots enables the producer and ginner to meet mill demands. Specific markets may be attained through variety selection, production control and custom ginning.

5. As a group, quality problems which may arise between the producer and the mill can be solved more effectively. Also assistance from county agents, specialists and other agriculture leaders can be furnished more effectively under such programs.

6. The production of good planting seed is simplified. Varietal mixtures of seed are avoided by ginning in large lots.

7. Group action by producers can accomplish better insect and disease control in the area.

ducers Groups to Initiate Block Ginning

1. The producers must investigate the market potential of the variety to be considered in the program. This and the environment at hand -- soil, insects, diseases, availability of irrigation water -- should be used as the basis for selecting the variety.

2. Producers under this program must agree on the major cultural practices to be conducted on their selected variety. This involves a similar planting date on similar soil type. The participating growers should agree on an irrigation schedule -- timing and the amount of water. Particularly, a starting and cut-off date for irrigating should be set.

3. Planting seed must be of high viability and varietal purity and from a reputable source.

4. Cotton subjected to damage from hail, insects, diseases, or late-planting which may lower fiber quality should not be included in the block program with undamaged cotton of any other variety in order to market a uniform, high quality product.

6. Each producer must be encouraged to use the best cultural and management practices.

The block ginning program will demand close cooperation between the producer, ginner, mill and the merchant, in order to meet a common goal, that of marketing cotton fiber of uniform quality.

Management Can Cut Loss To Mighty Midge

Robert Garlington

GRADUATE-- Robert Allen Garlington, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Garlington was graduated from West Texas State University, Canyon, in ceremonies held at 4:30p.m. Sunday, May 21. He received a B. S. degree in Art. Garlington was a member of Phi Delta Theta Fraternity. He is to enter the service in the near future. He was a 1962 Muleshoe high school graduate.

UNCAPTURED

Only two Confederate state capitals remain uncaptured during the Civil War. These were Tallahassee, Fla., and Austin, Tex.

GOOD MANAGEMENT CAN CUT MIDGE LOSSES. Extensive damage inflicted by the sorghum midge on South Plains grain sorghum in recent years can usually be avoided by planting the right variety at the right time, says J.K. Adams, county agricultural agent.

Grain sorghum that blooms no later than the first week in August will usually escape serious midge damage, Adams points out. Research at the South Plains Research and Extension Center has shown that significant midge damage usually does not occur in grain sorghum was planted prior to May 15.

Adams suggests adding four or five days to the known blooming date of a variety to adjust for weather conditions which may slow maturity.

Generally, midge damage has been light on the South Plains since 1964. Adams feels that this is primarily due to farmers avoiding late planting.
