Pickup flips in city street; driver unhurt

A distracted driver of a pickup that struck another pickup parked on a busy Tahoka street last Thursday apparently was not injured when his own vehicle turned over on its side.

Paxton Blake McCleskey, 17, told police he had reached down to get a cap from the floorboard as he was driving south on Ave. L between N. 3rd and 4th streets. He said when he sat back up, he realized he was about to hit the other pickup, attempted to avoid the collision and over-corrected.

McCleskey was driving a 2009 Ford pickup. The parked 2003 Ford pickup is owned by Donnie Walton of Tahoka.

On July 1, Steve Miller advised sheriff's officers that someone had stolen some tractor pins from a location on County Rd. O. And on that same day, Wilson volunteer firemen responded when a pickup caught fire on a turn row in a field 3 miles north of Poka-Lambro.

On Friday, a minor accident with no injuries was reported in Wilson. On Sunday, a TV and other items reportedly were stolen in the burglary of a home in O'Donnell.

Lynn County Jail was holding 36 persons early this week, including 20 for Ector County, 3 for Crosby County and 1 for Dawson County. Violations bringing recent arrests included driving while intoxicated, possession of marijuana less than two ounces, criminal trespass, abandoning endangered child, and public intoxication.

In June, dispatchers at Lynn County Sheriff's Dept. processed 319 calls, including 117 for the county, 104 for City of Tahoka, 21 for City of O'Donnell, 48 for animal control, 22 for EMS ambulances, and 7 fire alarms.

In the Tahoka area, there are at least four local beekeepers that are ready to relocate those pesky bees that may be swarming around your property. Jack Scott, Tim Pledger, John Wilson and "newbie" Paula Womack have been busy the last few weeks, collecting and removing bees from one location and moving them to new hives.

They all have different vocations - farmer, banker, builder and retired nurse - but all believe that bees are good and necessary for agriculture and for the ecosystem. For them, beekeeping is more than a hobby - it's being a good steward to the land. Bees play an important role in pollinating flowering plants, and are the major type of pollinator in ecosystems that contain flowering plants, including the area cotton crops, and food gardens.

According to Wikipedia, it is estimated that one third of the human food supply depends on insect pollination, most of which is accomplished by bees, especially the domesticated European honeybee. Pledger believes most of the local bees he finds are Italian honeybees (based on body type and coloring), and he is pleased to relocate them to his, or others', hives. In recent weeks, Tahoka citizens have reported seeing more bees than usual, and all four of the local bee charmers have been 'busy as bees' (pun intended) collecting bees from properties where the owners don't want them, and relocating them to new hives. They each have their own equipment, but basically they use a vacuum cleaner and hose to gently suck the bees through the hose and into an enclosed collection bucket, shooting for a time when the bees are usually the most calm, such as at dawn or dusk.

Pledger and Wilson spent several hours collecting bees at the city cemetery in Tahoka a few weeks ago, where bees had been reportedly buzzing near an underground valve box for the sprinkler system. They arrived near dusk, wearing their bee suits and headgear to prevent the bees from stinging them, and used a generator-fed vacuum cleaner with gentle suction to pull the bees into a specially-made collection bucket. They collected the honeycombs and placed them in Wilson's hives outside his home in Tahoka, then released the bees into their new hive. Because the queen bee is moved into the new hive, the worker bees will return to their new hive after foraging.

Lynn County News staff noticed a swarm of bees underneath an awning on the back side of their block, and notified Pledger, but by the time he arrived to collect them the swarm had moved on. Some bees have been reported at the courthouse building as well, but Pledger says they are too high on the three-story building to allow easy access for collecting them.

"The bees are definitely swarming," he said. Swarms are usually about the size of a football, and can (See BEES, page 3)

Bees are disappearing around the world

Beekeepers first sounded the alarm about disappearing bees in the United States in 2006. Seemingly healthy bees were simply abandoning their hives en masse, never to return. Researchers are calling the mass disappearance Colony Collapse Disorder, and they estimate that nearly one-third of all honey bee colonies in the United States have vanished. The number of hives in the United States is now at its lowest point in the past 50 years.

What's causing Colony Collapse Disorder?

Researchers think this Colony Collapse Disorder may be caused by a number of interwoven factors:

Global warming, which has caused flowers to bloom earlier or later than usual. When pollinators come out of hibernation, the flowers that provide the food they need to start the season have already bloomed.

Pesticide use on farms. Some toxic pesticides meant to kill pests can harm the honey bees needed for pollination. Many pesticides banned by other countries because they harm bees are still available in the United States.

Habitat loss brought about by development, abandoned farms, growing crops without leaving habitat for wildlife, and growing gardens with flowers that are not friendly to pollinators.

Parasites such as harmful mites.

HIS MONTH is the 36th anniversary of the date my family and I moved from Slaton to become owner and publisher of this newspaper.

Well, it really is not, but it would have been if I had written this in April, so I am three months late getting it done, which is sort of the way I do things. I like to think I am a good planner, and that's why it frequently takes me awhile to get started on whatever project is ahead, but some who know me well have unkindly hinted that I am just lazy and slow to motivate.

I once heard someone mutter, "He's good at procrastination," and I was pleased until I looked up the meaning of the word.

Anyway, like Scarlett O'Hara, who said something like, "I'll think about that tomorrow," I tend to delay things.

I remember one time years ago my wife and I decided to install some ceiling tile, something we had never done. We had bought the one-foot squares and other needed things, and I climbed up on a tall ladder and studied the ceiling, trying to decide whether to start in the middle or at the edges, and she wanted to know why I was sitting up there looking at the ceiling.

"I'm thinking," I said.

"Well, get busy and start putting up these things or we'll never get done," she exclaimed. I should explain that when she has a job to do, she tackles it immediately, gets it done right, and goes on to something else. She is still that way, the most energetic worker I know.

On the other hand, I try to figure out how it's done before I start, but often my projects still don't end up well. That ceiling was pretty ugly when I finished, and I have learned that every minor plumbing job I ever tackled wound up leaking water all over the place.

Over the years of writing columns, it has been suggested by several people (actually three—two relatives and some guy from the State School for the Blind) that I write a book. I have saved columns for the last 20 years on my computer, thinking I would someday compile them into a book, but so far have not done it.

I may get around to doing that one of these days.

The swarms are not generally dangerous or aggressive, although one shouldn't get too close

"Bees swarm when a new queen is born in the hive. A hive can only have one queen, so the virgin queen will take about half of the males, or drone bees, and about half of the worker bees, and move on in a large group, or swarm, seeking a new place for a hive," Pledger explained.

He says that only about 10 percent of the hive's population is comprised of the drones (males), and that these drones usually die in the winter. Why is that?

"Because they're males and they're lazy," Pledger says with a laugh, adding, "Drones have one purpose only, and that is to mate with the queen. Drones can't sting, and they only mate with the queen during flight. In colder months the bees remain months. So in the winter, the drones just lay around doing nothing and are really useless, and the other bees basically quit feeding them," he said, adding that new males are born into the hive each year.

Pledger became interested in beekeeping after discovering bees in a shed in the back vard of his home in Tahoka. "I wanted to do something with them instead of killing them, so I began researching it and, a year later, I'm really into beekeeping!" he said.

He has researched the subject thoroughly, and is committed to preserving the bee population in the area, not only for the ecosystem but also for collecting the raw honey that has so many beneficial proper-

Let us in ... A few bees swarm the vacuum canister trying to get to their queen bee, which Jack Scott says they can scent that she has been sucked through the hose into the collection canister.

O'Donnell man named Eugene Vasquez worked bees at an abandoned farm house in the county, collecting bees and 26 gallons of honey from the three hives they found there.

"When they forage, bees usually stay within a 2-4 mile radius of their hives. So, basically, my bees forage from all the flowers in Tahoka," said Pledger. He has recently begun selling the raw honey he collects, and says he can sell it faster than he can collect it.

"It tastes great, has a floral scent to it - you can't believe how good this honey is," he said. Raw honey that is collected locally may be good for those with allergies, because the bees getting are the nectar and pollen from right here. Raw honey contains traces of pollen and can help pollen fight allergies, according to some sources.

The bottom line, however, is that bees are benefitting the ecosystem, and produce honey that's good to eat. So 'bee' kind to the bees, and don't kill them - call a bee charmer instead.

of raw honey

Raw honey is honey that has not been heated, pasteurized or processed in any way. The differences between raw and pasteurized honey are substantial. Raw honey is an alkaline-forming food that contains natural vitamins, enzymes, powerful antioxidants and other important natural nutrients. These are the very nutrients that are destroyed during the heating and pasteurization process.

Raw honey has anti-viral, anti-bacterial, and anti-fungal properties. It promotes body and digestive health, is a powerful antioxidant, strengthens the immune system, eliminates allergies, and is an excellent remedy for skin wounds and all types of infections. Raw honey can stabilize blood pressure. balance sugar levels, relieve pain, calm nerves, and it has been used to treat ulcers. Raw honey is also an expectorant and anti-inflammatory and has been known to effectively treat respiratory conditions such as bronchitis and asthma

Raw honey purchased from a local source is an excellent way of treating seasonal allergies. Local honey is preferred for treating allergies because the likelihood is great that it will contain small amounts of the specific pollens an individual may be allergic to.

Raw honey is also an effective treatment for acne. A small amount placed on blemishes and acne nightly will often clear the skin in a short period of time Raw honey's antibiotic properties are effective in treating colds and sore throats. Raw honey coats the throat and reduces irritation.

Texas Land Commissioner George P. Bush launched Texas Coasts, a Web-based app to help vacationers find the perfect beach, picnic, park, or RV park for their next outing. Texas Coasts' responsive design fullyintegrates across all platforms for an easy user experience whether using a desktop, laptop, tablet or smart phone. TxCoasts. com allows users to sort by multiple filters to find the perfect place for their next outing.

"Texas Coasts is the onestop digital app for anyone who wants to enjoy Texas' amazing coast," Texas Land Commissioner George P. Bush said. "It's a great app for families, fishermen, spring breakers, anyone anywhere who wants to find the right Texas beach or boat ramp for their summer fun. Texas Coasts is also an economic development tool, since the coast is one of our state's top economic engines."

Texas Coasts provides a location-enabled mapping function with turn-by-turn directions to each of the more than 600 destinations along the Texas coast. The application integrates with both Facebook and Twitter for users to share vacation plans with friends and family.

Users can search for destinations with multiple filters to find a variety of amenities and activities at each location including: Boat docks, Boat ramps, Camping, Hiking, Kayaking, Canoeing, Mooring, Picnic tables, Restrooms, RV access, Showers, Swimming, Wildlife viewing, Beach Watch Program, ADA Compliant

By clicking on destination

LCHD Board awaiting CEO's final decision

Lynn County Hospital District Board of Directors met in special session last Wednesday, July 1, with five of seven members present and voting unanimously to table any action regarding acceptance of a letter of resignation from Chief Executive Officer Stace Holland, who had submitted the letter announcing he would resign effective July 17.

"The Board officially voted to table any action until after Holland returns from visiting Kentucky this week, where he is considering accepting an administrative position with a hospital there," Board President Jannis Childress told The News this week. "We [the Board] asked him to reconsider his resignation, and we have not accepted it at this point.

"When he returns later this week, I will call another special session for consideration of this issue," added Childress. "We anticigate that at this special session, CEO Stace Holland will have made his final decision about whether to stay or go, and at that time the Board may take action," she said.

LCHD Directors present at the July 1 meeting included Jannis Childress, Sharon Isham, Jerry Ford Jr., Robbie Autry and Manuel DeLeon. Absent were directors W. Calloway Huffaker and Rebecca Childress.

The Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS) is encouraging residents to renew their license or identification card online if eligible. The summer months tend to be one of the busiest at driver license offices, and many Texans are eligible to skip the trip to the office completely via online renewal of their license, identification card or change of address at Texas.gov.

Licenses must be renewed in person every 12 years, so an updated photo can be taken and eyesight can be tested. If residents need to come into the office to renew, they can do so within one year prior to the expiration date, which means they can pick a time that is convenient for their schedule.

When the card is renewed, the expiration date on the new card will be six years after the current card's expiration date, whether customers renew early or not.

Requirements for renewing online are available at Texas.gov. Customers can also renew by phone at 1-866-357-3639.

Flood Insurance Program call center is staffed with specialists who can assist Texas policyholders with servicing their claims, providing general information regarding their policies, and offering technical assistance to aid in recovery.

To speak with a flood insurance specialist, call 800-621-3362 between 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. (CDT) Monday through Friday. Call center staff are available to answer questions; such as "How do I file a flood insurance claim? What type of documentation is needed? Can I still obtain disaster assistance even though I have a flood policy?" Staff can also answer more complicated insurance questions about the extent of coverage and policy ratings. The call center serves disaster survivors who have general questions about the National Flood Insurance Program.

For Texans who prefer to put their concerns in writing, a "Request for Support" form is posted at www.fema.gov/ national-flood-insurance-program, which can be filled out and emailed to FEMA-NFIP-Support@fema.dhs.gov or faxed to 540-504-2360.

This sale will be conducted to satisfy the judgment(s) for delinquent property taxes and accrued penalties and interests . due on the properties described herein, and for all costs of court and sale.

I do hereby verify that true and correct copies of the foregoing Joint Notice of Sale have been delivered by United States - Certified Mail, Return Receipt Requested, and by regular mail, to each of the Defendants named in each of the numbered and styled causes.

Firehouse Subs foundation awards grant to local EMS

Firehouse Subs Public Safety Foundation has awarded Lynn County Hospital District EMS a grant for a Stryker Electric Cot valued at $13,500. This cot will be used in the new ambulance to help the EMS better serve the Lynn County communities.

"This cot will have a great impact on our patients and my crews. The 18 volunteers of Lynn County EMS appreciate all you do for others," said EMS Director John Baker.

The Firehouse Subs Public Safety Foundation is excited to be able to assist our organization and ultimately improve the life-saving capabilities of our communities," said Kathy Grant, LCHD Marketing and Public Relations officer.

In 2005, Firehouse Subs created the Firehouse Subs Public Safety Foundation with the mission of providing funding, life-saving equipment, and educational opportunities to first-responders and public safety organizations. Through the non-profit 501(c)(3), Firehouse Subs has given more than $14 million to hometown heroes in 43 states and Puerto Rico, including more than $975,588 in Texas.

Texas State Historian to present "Gunfighterology" in Post

Bill O'Neal, author and Texas State Historian will be at the Heritage House in Post, Tuesday, July 14 at 6:30 p.m. to present one of his most popular programs, "Gunfighterology." There is no charge for the event. O'Neal's presentation will include a vintage gun demonstration as well as information from his most recent book, "Texas Gunslingers." The event is sponsored by the Caprock Cultural Association.

Now serving his second two-year term as State Historian of Texas, O'Neal is the author of more than 40 books, including the locally popular "The Bloody Legacy of Pink Higgins" and "The Johnson-Sims Feud." Both of these books contain Garza County historical events. Copies of these books as well as "Texas Gunslingers," will be on sale following the presentation. O'Neal is the recipient of the 2015 Distinguished Author Award of the West Texas Book Festival. In 2012 he received the Lifetime Achievement Award of the Wild West History Association, and has been named True West Magazine's Best Living Nonfiction Writer.

The historian and educator has appeared on television documentaries on TBS, The History Channel, The Learning Channel, CMT, and A&E. He taught history for more than four decades at Panola College, which recently named its newest dormitory "Bill O'Neal ß

AgriLife Extension debuts Living with Texas Fire educational videos

Texas prescribed fire aficionados now have a series of free educational YouTube videos tailored specifically for the Lone Star State, the project's leader said.

Dr. Morgan Russell, Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service range specialist at San Angelo, coordinated the project and garnered funding from the Texas A&M Institute of Renewable Natural Resources to produce the series of 20 short how-to educational clips on everything from planning a burn to transporting a drip torch.

To access the series go to: http://agrilifeextension.tamu. edu/solutions/living-with-texasfire/.

"The Living with Texas Fire video series is meant to showcase the various aspects of both prescribed burning as a costeffective means of rangeland noxious plant management and for lessening the damage caused by wildfire, known as wildfire mitigation," Russell said. "The underlying project goal is to empower and encourage Texas landowners to become fire-ready.

"The videos should also be a vital visual resource for the Prescribed Burn Alliance of Texas, prescribed burn associations and prescribed burn schools, AgriLife Extension agents, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department personnel and landowners seeking specific fire behavior and resource information on prescribed fire, but also on wildfire mitigation and wildfire community readiness." Russell said the idea for the series stemmed from the lack of _ Texas-specific resource materials currently available.

"From personal experience and from talking to commercial and agency fire professionals across the state, it's clear that there just wasn't much out there that was current and Texas specific, especially West Texas specific, when it came to fire video educational resources," she said. "Most of the material used for classroom work here in Texas comes from Oklahoma State University and Kansas State University. And while these materials are beneficial, they don't accurately portray fire work here.

"Specific fire behavior, fire knowledge and fire weather information oriented toward Texas vegetation types and our state's mostly private land ownership all factor in to implementing a successful prescribed burn or when mitigating wildfire risk throughout the state. So, this project directly addresses the state's unique ecosystem, its climate variability and land ownership cultural issues."

The project, which started last August, targets specific vegetation types within West Central Texas, the Rolling Plains and Southwest Texas. The videos, which mostly run three to five minutes, delve into the operational and logistical aspects of fire management through the eyes of professional fire ecologists and area producers, Russell said.
