CHEWING INSECTS---The Beet Armyworm, classified as one of the chewing insects, has damaged castor beans and cotton in the area and a check reveals that they are also among other crops. The Beet Armyworm is closely related to the Fall Armyworm and has similar habits. It commonly attacks corn, grain sorghum, cotton, castor beans, alfalfa, vetch and clover. The larvae is striped, about one and one-fourth inches long, and varies from light brown to almost black. Perhaps the most distinguishing characteristic is the presence of a dark spot on the upper area of the middle thoracic segment. Thrips range from 1/25 to 1/10 inch in length and vary from yellowish to dark brown to black. They have slender bodies pointed at each end and most are winged or wingless, but others may possess nonfunctional wings. The insects puncture the leaves, tender stems, flowers and fruit from which they suck sap and cause the formation of white splotches on the leaves. Fruit frequently fails to set or

Invade Crops Castors Hardest Hit: Thrips Damage Cotton

Weed and insect control has become the concern of many farmers as mid-June approach-

The Beet Armyworm has become a localized problem in some areas and considerable control work has been done. County Agent J. K. Adams said "I feel that the Thrip problem to cotton farmers is of more concern than any other

"Some cotton is failing to produce normal leaves as Thrips attacking the plants have the young leaves curled down in a tight ball. "When this situation exists on an average throughout a field, farmers usually use control measures," Adams said. He also added that the dryland crops were fairly free of Thrips and other insects, however, the irrigated sections are not so fortunate. Concerning the Beet Armyworm, Adams said "The farmer, in examining his crops, decides whether or not the small worms would eat enough to ruin the stand or destroy the crop and if either condition exists, then Beet Armyworm control should be used. He also pointed out that crops located nearer to soil bank land or native pasture land or wheat is more likely to become infested by insects.

Bulletins for control of insects, including the Beet Armyworm, are available at the County Extension office, Adams

Lyndon K. Almand, area entomologist with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, has been working with the South Plains 'hot spots' on Beet Armyworms and other insects and spent one day in Bailey County checking fields for the Isolated infestations were found and some farmers report heavy to medium damage, while others have not been visited by the Armyworm. The Extension Service has been sounding warnings since June 2, locally, with the release of the Beet Armyworm story which appeared in that issue of the Bailey County Journal. Farmers have been reminded of both the weed control and the insects which are posing now as the problem, where these situations now exist. Reports come from just south. Lazbuddie area and others from the West Camp community as well as Goodland. Considerable damage has been reported by Jack Schuster who farms eight miles south on Highway 214.

Schuster said "The Beet Armyworm has arrived on my farm in full force. They are hard to kill ... they eat more than any insect I have ever seen and really live up to the old saying "they eat you out of house and home." Schuster said they were in castors, cotton and maize, especially those crops which were three to four weeks old. They have not invaded the younger crops yet. To date, Schuster said the damage to his cotton was running about 25 percent with some strips dead and about one-third of his castors were damaged. The second application of insecticide was being applied Tuesday and Schuster said if that did not put the insect under control, then the results would remain to be seen as to damage extent.

Lewis Scoggin, who farms on FM 1760, reports a much less severe infestation of insects with some carelessweed worms and corn worms.

Morgan Locker, owner of Muleshoe Flying Service, has been checking fields almost ed today. She is Vicki Henex- constantly since the leading son. She is the daughter of edge of the insect infestation reached the surrounding area.

Locker said the insects were first noticed some two weeks ago and after an inspection of fields, he and County Agent Adams have the same experience in finding that the Thrip in the cotton is presently causing more of a problem than the Beet Armyworm.

Locker said the worst infestation of the Armyworm he had found was in castor beans on the Kenneth Nesbitt farm southwest of Muleshoe some four and one-half miles.

"The castors seem to be their favorite dish," he said. close observation of the fields from inspection to inspection, he said that if a field has some grown Armyworm, in scattered amounts, he would not suggest spraying as they will

Dear Turnrow Tunkel...

Why do you suppose the President asked Congress for a 10 percent surtax instead of some other form of tax increase? He didn't want to leave any loopholes. People can avoid taxes on tobacco, alcohol, and gasoline by quitting smoking, drinking, and driving. A surtax is a tax on taxes, and there's no way a person can swear off.

A Washington society columnist says she expected the Johnsons to serve typical Texas cooking at the White House during their administration; instead, the food has been excellent. What did she mean by Texas cooking?

Beats me, unless she was referring to the famous Texas seven-course meal -- a hamburger and a six-pack.

Did you read where black students at Northwestern University are demanding that turnip greens be served in campus

I can't imagine anyone being that fond of turnip greens. As far as I'm concerned, if a food item can't be improved with ketchup, and the dog won't eat the leftovers, it's not fit to eat to start with.

President Johnson recently said our State Department needs a drastic reduction in size. Don't you think they could start by weeding out all the people who place the interests of other nations ahead of the U.S.? That might be a little too drastic. There wouldn't be anyone left to mind the store except Dean Rusk and the janitor.

What do you think of the current fad of American men wearing "love necklaces?"

No wonder every two-bit country in the world thinks it can kick Uncle Sam around. We are getting so sissified that for us to try to police the world is about like Tiny Tim trying to break up a barroom brawl.

What do you think of President Johnson's plan to teach at Texas University when he leaves office?

I figured he would be ready for a rest. If he still wants action, he should join the faculty at Columbia. After dealing with communism, riots, and crime as President, he would feel right at home.
