"I wondered why they didn't get an older person to speak,' quipped the 80 year old White, "but I guess they probably couldn't find anyone older."

White reviewed the early years prior to 1912 of education in Ozona. The first school was held in a tent. By 1911, Ozona had "growing pains", and Judge Charles Davidson urged citizens to build a new school. Oscar Ruffini, a famous architect from San Angelo, was contracted to draw the plans for the building. Walter Kyle, using a hammer, chisel and other simple tools, and Ruff Everett did much of the actual work on the building project. The rock came from the bluff behind where the school was

The Cubs' first score came late in the first quarter when Mingo Dominquez scrambled 35 yeards on a reverse. The PAT failed, but the Cubs led 6-0.

Great defense stymied Big Lake's offense, allowing only 24 yards total offense, causing the Owls to give up the football and give the Cubs numerous chances to score. The Cubs did just that in the fourth quarter, ending the second half stalemate that kept the score at 6-0, when Martin Urbino carried the ball for a one yard T.D. The play was set up after Danny DeHoyos recovered an Owl fumble. The two point conversion wa successful, making the score 14-0, Ozona. Defensively Jason Vitella managed six tackles, followed by Lonnie Martinez and Albert Talamentez, each with four tackles. There were numerous Cubs who had one tackle each.

Ozona's eighth grade football team is living up to every preseason expectation tabbed on them. Two weeks ago, the Cubs throttled Greenwood 39-0. Last week, Ozona took its budding powerhouse to Big Lake where the Cubs blasted the Owls 35-0.

"The first half was actually a tie," said Coach Payne, "In the second half, they finally just sat back. I feel we were in better shape and wanted the game more

The first, a two yard ramble by Roger Matrinez. The second, again Martinez as he motored 48 yards for the last T.D. of the game, making the score in favor of the Cubs 35-0.

4-H course teaches safety

The hunting season offers youth who have participated in the 4-H Shooting Sports program an opportunity to practice their skills, says Billy Reagor, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

With thousands of people enjoying hunting with friends and relatives, young, safe hunters can take the lead in avoiding accidents, he says.

Reagor reminds hunters that most accidents occur in and around private homes and vehicles. He urges youth and adults to review the following 10 commandments of gun safety and apply them at all times in all locations.

-- Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun. -- Watch that muzzle! Carry our gun safely. Keep the safety on until ready to shoot.

-- Unload guns when not in use, take down or have actions open. Guns should be carried in cases to shooting area.

Miss Vera attended Sellers Beauty School in Fort Worth. "I had to drop out after three months, because my mother was ill," she said. While her young daughter, Jean, stayed with her parents, she returned and completed the last three months of the six month program. "I was a member of the last class that did not have to take a state board examination in Austin.'

Not having to take a written test was a lucky break for Miss Vera who just did not like tests or books. Miss Vera moved to Ozona when she was 12 years old with her father, Frank Taylor. Taylor had ranched on the Beaver Lake Ranch near Juno for many years. "Papa helped me go to school, as my mother died before I finished.

When she returned from beauty school, Miss Vera went to work for Pat Brown in 1934. When I first started working for her, shampoos and sets cost $1.75. I worked for Pat for four years, and then she sold her business. The lady who bought the shop had her own operators. She told me to find another job. By that time, I knew I could make it on my own."

Three or four close friends called and offered to help Miss Vera go into business for herself. She decided against using their financial aid and opted instead to call the supply houses and see if they would extend credit. "The beauty supply places let me have credit.

The equipment has really changed over the years. "We started with the old type spiral wrap machine. Curlers were attached to the machine and were over head." The next innovation in the business was the crocono (waves were heated with things on a machine - they were clamped on with a pad, and the curiers would spew a chemical which would curl the hair.)

The cold waves now in use are much easier to use, she commented.

"I think when I started, there was a better chance of doing good. People were then anxious to look their best, and mothers often brought their children to the beauty shop for a shampoo and set. Now mothers do their children's hair at home," Miss Vera said.

The husband of one of her late customers, the late N. W. Graham, once told Miss Vera that done more for American women than almost anything. The late Mr. Graham felt that beauty shops had helped women have a better self image and be more self confident.

"Most of my clientele is older now. Many come to the beauty shop because it is hard physically for them to wash their hair. I have served up to five generations of the same family.'

The business woman and friend to her many patrons went into this profession because she had a young high school daughter, Jean, and she wanted to provide a comfortable life for both Jean and herself following the breakup of her marriage.

"It has paid off. I've worked long hours. I've never complained because of the hours. If someone needs something done, I'll find a place for them," Miss

"I owe all my success to my patrons. We have shared all our joys and sorrows together. I feel like I am a member of their family. When they go on a trip, and come back and tell me about it. I feel as if I have been on vacation with them. They are my dearest friends. They would help me if I really needed anything.

"We are like one big family. I miss them if they don't come. You learn who is your friend, and who isn't. I've loved all my customers," said the over 80 years young operator. She advises those entering the Programs develop family strength

Most children over the age of ordinated a series addressing the eight are occasionally left at home without adult supervision. In fact, due to the large proportion of households with all adults employed, coupled with the difficulty of finding after school care, many school-age children regularly spend time alone at home.

Most parents are concerned that this time be spent safely, confidently, and constructively. Many children fix their own snacks, answer the telephone, do homework, chores, and entertain themselves until their parents arrive from work.

For this reason, the Extension Home Economics Committee of the Crockett County Program Building Committee has coresponsible after-school-self-care for children. Parents and children are encouraged to participate.

The series will be held September 23 and 30, 7:00 - 9:00 p.m. at the Civic Center.

On September 23, Joy Isier, Texas Department of Human Services representative from San Angelo, concentrated on personal crime prevention, door and telephone safety techniques. Dee Keilers and Dorris Haire, Crockett County firemen, discussed first aid and fire prevention for families. EMT Doug Meador spoke on preventative first aid measures for the family.

On September 30, Kathryn Russell, Ozona Primary School teacher, will address loneliness, boredom and leisure time. Jan North, Ozona High School Home Economics teacher, will demonstrate nutritious snacks and meals for children. Ken Harrison, Methodist pastor, will concude the series with a session handling household responsibilities (chores).

Primary goals of the "Families Working Together" series are to develop a sense of security, independence and accomplishment in children, to develop in children skills necessary for responsible self-care routine as well as emergencies, and to help parents and children develop common sense guidelines for responsible self-care.

Yarborough has enthusiasm for basketball

By Cynthia Harrell Hodges

"I really wasn't interested in making a change," Rhonda Yarborough, girls' head basketball and track coach, said recently. "Coach Rip Sewell asked me for that time, he talked about how nice the people were in Ozona, the end of the one minute talk, I was interested in the job.

Miss Yarborough had coached for 10 years in Goldthwaite, leading the varisty to a 276-49 winning record. The junior varsity under her direction had a 122-38 record, and her junior high teams had a 288-37 record.

'The girls work hard here.

There is real good team leadership," says Miss Yarborough. "They have shown a willingness to change, both the way they do things on the court and their overall attitude.'

"I have not been disappointed one minute of my time. During since I moved here. My sister and brother-in-law teach in Andrews and kept telling me how wonderabout the wonderful teens, and at ful the people of West Texas

Miss Yarborough graduated valedictorian of her 1973 Lometa High School class. The 1975 summa cum laude graduate of Howard Payne University was named the Outstanding Female Physical Education Major of 1975. Her teams in Goldthwaite were winners of eight district basketball championships, four bi-district championships and two area basketball championships. Miss Yarborough also teaches health and coordinates all girls' athletic programs in grades 7-12. The health course includes more than nutrition. It covers child abuse, drug and alcohol abuse and teen suicide. The goals of the course are to "improve the students' self-image and help them through all phases of their development.

House Bill 72 has really hurt the athletic programs. The organizer of the Goldthwaite National Honor Society feels it is unfair to hold a person out for a six-week period. This can wipe out an entire season." Grades must be kept up, "but the probation period should be evaluated on a weekly basis."

The Junior Class sponsor was named Central Texas Girls' Coach of the Year in 1977, 1979, 1980 and 1982. She also taught English and speech of 10 years at Goldthwaite.

"This is a very competitive district which includes Crane, Coahoma, Sonora, Colorado City and Ballinger. Rene Shultz and Martha Sims, who coach at the elementary and junior high levels, give the younger girls excellent training," says Miss Yarborough.

Bless the Lord, oh my Soul

By Connie Marroquin Church of God of Prophecy

Psalms 103:1

You know, we are living in times that we are so busy doing so much. We are working so hard; we are coming and going, doing this and doing that, and before we know it, the day is over. But in our busy day we didn't take time to praise the One that has given us life. We forget that without God we are nothing. We forget that it's the Lord that has given us all that we have.

So, don't you think we should take a break each day to thank Him and to praise and bless Him with all our souls; thank Him for loving us so much that He gave

His Son to die on the cross for us; for the priviledge of knowing that in Him we have everlasting life; for healing our bodies; for our families and loved ones, our friends, our churches. Oh, there are so many more wonderful blessings that He has given us.

Don't you think that our God is worthy of our praises? Yes, He is indeed!

Take a few minutes before you start your day and just bless Him and praise His sweet, holy name. Tell Him how much you love Him and appreciate Him.

Enter into His gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise. Be thankful unto Him and bless His name. Psalms

May the Lord richly bless you is my prayer.

Center provides quality care for children

"I've learned a lot of patience North and Gary Vanoy. Each and to really understand the needs of children." Patti Coates. director of the Ozona Day Care Center, said recently.

The Day Care Center has three major fund raising events each year to supplement its operating budget. This past Friday, a spaghetti supper which served 215 persons was held prior to the Big Lake - Ozona football game at the Civic Center. Other fund raisers this year included a Mother's Day dinner in May and an ice cream booth at the Blue Grass Festival in July. "We average approximately $300 per event," Lou Haire said. "We out for the spahgetti supper. A big thank you to all who helped," Ms. Haire said.

The purpose of the Day Care Center is to provide quality care for young children. It is open from 7:45 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. The fee is $48 per week for the first child and $34 for the second child in a family. There is a $5 registration fee to help defray the cost of supplies.

'It is a challenge to make sure that everything runs smoothly,' said Mrs. Coates. She has been with the center since it first present position when Barbara Rice moved to Alaska.

"There is a big demand for the center. If we did not have the him welcome are sisters Melissa, center, who would watch the age 8, and Abigail, age 6. Proud children? The children easily adapt to the routine here," Mrs. Coates said.

Belinda Wilkins is in charge of the three and four year olds; Wendy Tambunga has the toddlers' class; Martha Montgomery has the after school group; and Susie Harrison cooks.

The Ozona Day Care Center is a non-profit organization, related to the Ozona United Methodist Church. It is governed by a board of directors. Serving on the board are: Lou Haire, chairman; Lupe Sanchez, Beth Boyd, Elizabeth Upham, Becky Childress, Jeanette, Robinson, vice-chairman; Vickie Stokes, Helen Bean, Jan board member serves for a two year term. Four rotate off the board each year. Patti Coates and Rev. and Mrs. Ken Harrison attend the board meetings, but are not official members of the board. This board oversees the policies of the center.

The center is licensed by the Texas Department of Human Resources. Donna Baker is the licensing agent for the Day Care

The center will accept donations of books, toys, games, puzzles, records and "dress up" clothes, Mrs. Coates said. The Ozona Woman's League has were very pleased with the turn- recently donated a merry-goround, and "we hope to get a slide in the near future."

The center will soon have a safety program, teaching the young children to "never talk to strangers".

Mrs. Coates is married to Fleet Coates and is the mother of nine-year-old fourth grader Mindy and six-year-old kindergartener Andy.

"The young men dress like women -- children now love luxury, have bad manners, contempt for authority, show disrespect for their elders, and love chatter in place of exercise. Children are not tyrants, not servants of their households. They no longer rise when elders enter the room. They contradict their parents, chatter before company, gobble up their dainties at the table, cross their legs, and tyrannize over their teachers.'

When children start coping during a soap opera and see if with their feelings, they often feel in control of their lives. This leads by watching the characters interto more productive problem act. Name their feelings. solving in children.

Another positive result of recognizing and dealing with ness of feelings. It is a good idea problems is that families learn to to read these books. Read them to solve problems more effectively. When family members feel like someone is paying attention to be sharing an activity, as well as their feelings and responding to learning about understanding their needs, there is a greater feelings. willingness to work at solving problems that may exist within the home.

Children often rebel when they feel that no one is paying attention to their needs. They may feel they have to go to extremes to get some of their needs met. However, when kids see parents paying attention to how they feel, there is often a willingness to compromise or at least talk things over - solutions are arrived at more quickly when one feels a solution includes him.

When parents begin to really "hear" what their children are saying, family dynamics change. Often family interaction becomes much more pleasant. If children learn that they can contribute to the family conversation and others are really listening, there is an increased willingness to do the same. Using positive communication techniques also teaches children to listen for and play attention to the needs of others. If parents are using this form of communication, children begin to use it, too, and they begin to listen for parent's feelings, taking them into consideration.

As kids learn to recognize and respect others' feelings, they take more responsibility for their behavior. Paying attention to the feedback we get from others is extremely important, not only for children within the family but within other groups. It is a key element in helping kids find and establish meaningful friendships. This ability to communicate effectively one-on-one allows kids to form solid friendships within their families, within their peer groups and with other adults. It is this friendship support network that can help an adolescent weather rough times.

When kids learn to express themselves openly to their parents and parents listen, there is support, care and companionship - basic family functions. This lessens the risk of children at any age falling under negative influences.

There are a number of ways parents can learn to recognize feelings, many depend on the ages of the children involved. With young children, play games that illustrate various feelings. Look at pictures in books and magazines and name the feelings, or try to have the child

College entry tests Oct.22

This fall the nearly 1.5 million students across the United States who take the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/ National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) will have a special opportunity to familiarize themselves with the testing format also used on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT).

This year, the PSAT/NMSOT will be offered Tuesday, October 22, at Ozona High School. Students need to see Mr. Williams about taking the test. The cost will be $5.00.

Through the PSAT/NMST, 11th grade students are selected for the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Program, which enables talented students to compete for scholarships. Hispanic students are considered for the National Hispanic Scholar Awards Program, funded through a $2.1 million grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Founda-

In addition, students can use the test as a guide to see how they ranked nationally among other students.

As preparation for the 100minute, two-part test, students receive Student Bulletin containing a complete sample test with an answer key and scoring instructions.

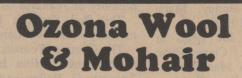

After taking the actual test, students will receive a booklet, About Your PSAT/NMSOT Scores, a descriptive explanation of test results. Students will also be able to compare their individual answers with the correct answers by consulting the Report of Student Answers, another valuable guide. Actual test booklets will also be made available to allow students to spot mistakes and work out answers correctly.

The College Board provides additional services for counselors and school personnel to better understand and interpret PSAT/ NMSQT scores to students and parents. These services include summaries of student answers, profiles of academic characteristics and career interests of students who have taken the test, and a publication for inclusion in the regular guidance program.
