Espinosa goes the distance

Saturday--May 11th--High Noon. The gun sounds and the runners take off. The race lasts only 15 seconds and when the dust cleared, Eric Espinosa has placed 4th in the State Track Meet. In an outstanding race, the best in the State of Texas met the challenge.

Eric, a senior at Sonora High School, ran a 14.8 in the 110-meter hurdles. "The winning time was 14.1, but I was late coming out of the blocks," said Espinosa in an interview Tuesday. "Last year I hit the last hurdle in the 300-meter hurdles to take 4th." Sometimes Lady Luck deals a hard blow, but this young man has nothing to be ashamed of. This was his second time at the state meet in as many years. On his way this year, he received many 1st place medals, a special honor as the Cactus Relays "Best All Around Athlete," and for the 2nd year, the Kerbow Track Award. Eric is the 1st track athlete at Sonora High School to receive this award twice.

When asked what the future held for him, Eric commented that he wants to go to college and become a football and track coach. "I'm not sure yet whether I will go to Angelo State University or Abilene Christian University, but I do know what I want to do," said Espinosa. "I would even like to come back to Sonora and coach, but I have to finish school first and then worry about where I go."

In a telephone interview with Coach Don Sessom, he stated, "It has been a real pleasure watching Eric run, but I'm also proud of the whole team. They really pulled together this year. As far as Eric is concerned, he showed real talent as he pulled up from 7th to 4th at the state meet."

We wish Eric the best in the future and know he will be successful at any endeavor he puts his mind to--Congratulations on a job well done!!

Peace Child: A big success

On Tuesday night, May 14, 1991, at 7:00 P.M., the Sonora High School Auditorium came alive with music and dancing as the 5th through 12th grade choir members performed the musical "Peace Child."

The case consisted of 48 students performing various numbers along with the play. "These students have been working for over six weeks to accomplish this production and I am very proud of what they have done," said John Zimmerman, Director of Choral Activities for the Sonora Independent School District. "They really deserve the credit."

Peace Child is actually a true story and though some parts of the musical are fantasy, most of the production is true. The original musical was the idea of David Gordon and has since blossomed into the production performed in Sonora. In fact, some of the students in Sonora's version have voiced an interest in performing with the international cast this summer. The Peace Child Foundation sponsors a tour each year of this production and others involving children from all over the world.

The students will be performing the musical again Thursday, May 16, at 1:30 P.M. in the Sonora High School Auditorium for the 1st through 5th grades. If you missed the first performance, please plan to attend on Thursday.

WHISPERS IN THE WIND

by Jim Fish

The Old Cowhand from the Rio Grande

Do you sometimes wonder whatever happened to those cowboy singers we once heard on the radio out of San Angelo, or from just across the border in Mexico? Well, one of 'em is right here in Sonora.

That's right. "The Roamin' Cowboy", "The Old Cowhand from the Rio Grande", "Cowboy Sam Nichols" has lived amongst us for years with only a few musicians and others knowing about his glittering career in the country music business. Having retired from singing in 1972, he came to this small ranching town and has remained almost twenty years. He worked for the Pool Company until retirement and now works at various crafts to keep his bank account in the black. Sam hand-tools some of the finest leather belts, purses, and wallets I've seen.

Sam Nichols was born in Eula (up around Abilene) on August 31, 1918. From there he moved with his family to San Angelo where he attended public schools and discovered a likin' for the old cowboy songs. His grandfather taught him the first songs he knew but went on to develop his own guitar and singing style. He was very popular in the community and could be found almost every Saturday in downtown San Angelo with his guitar strapped across his back, looking for a willing ear with a little money to spend. In the thirties, money was very hard to come by and five dollars a day from singing always amazed Sam. His daddy never could understand why he didn't get out there and work for a living, like regular folk.

Sam's professional career began in 1936, when he went to work for KGKL Radio Station in San Angelo for eight bucks a week. After six months he got a better offer from KNEL at Brady, $25 a day, and sang live for that station for about a year. Recalls Sam, "I didn't have to pay for hardly anything. My room was provided and taxi service was free, the station owner also owned the cab. Most of my meals were comped because we advertised for the restaurants on the program, and a lot of my clothes, too... I just couldn't believe all that could come from singing... Money was tight back then."

In 1937, Sam went to work for the most powerful radio station of its time, XEPN (a 250,000 watt) out of Piedras Negras, Mexico. There he averaged $105 a day on a three-hour program. Sam was a star.

He compiled "The Roaming Cowboy", Volumes I, II, and III while singing for XEPN. These song books are collector's items today. Sam worked there for three years.

When World War II broke out, he volunteered for service in the Navy, as a photographer. During our interview, I was shown photos he had taken depicting the Japanese delegation at their surrender, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Admiral Nimitz and, of course, the devastation that brought about the Japanese surrender and the end of the war.

Sam was discharged after the war and stayed in California, except for a year in Seattle, and toured with his good friend Gene Autry while selling war bonds. It was during this time he was on the road with The Sons of the Pioneers, Ernest Tubb (who sang many songs written by Sam), and Bob Wills. "You know what Bob Wills used to call me?" reflects Sam. "A 'guitar plunker,'" and chuckles as a memory runs its course behind the distant look on his face. "That Wild and Wicked Look in your Eye", "Mississippi Gal", "Blue Bonnet Waltz", and "Yellow Roses" (a song made famous by Hank Snow) are only a few of the songs attributed to his productive singing career.

Several movie spots came his way when he played as an 'extra' in "Duel in the Sun" with Gregory Peck, "Tall Grass" with Spencer Tracy, and "The Incident" with Errol Flynn. It was signing with MGM Records which marked the biggest mistake of "The Roamin' Cowboy's" music career.

Nichols claims, "They (MGM) didn't get behind their singers like RCA did for Bob Wills, Hank Williams and Eddie Arnold. If you got records to a radio station, you had to send them, or take them yourself. In fact, when Bob Wills went with MGM he 'died'. They wouldn't allow him to do his call, 'Aawh haaw!', because they felt it distracted the listener. That was what people knew him by and when they didn't get behind him, promote his music, or allow his true style to come across like RCA had been doing, his music career ended."

"I've tried to find out how I can get back the rights to my music but I can't seem to locate anybody that has them or knows how I can do it."

"The Old Cowhand from the Rio Grande" sings no more, arthritis make it impossible to play the guitar, but he did not preclude a cameo appearance at the Covered Wagon Dinner Theater this summer; "If the situation is right", he says.

Note: If any reader knows how we might help Sam regain the rights to his music, please call or write The Sonora Observer at P.O. Box 247, Sonora, Texas 76950, (915) 387-5719.

Thanks

TO THE CITIZENS OF SONORA:

I am writing to thank every citizen in Sonora and the surrounding areas of Sutton County for all the support you have shown to myself and all of the U. S. Armed Forces throughout Operation Desert Shield/Desert Storm. It is comforting to know that during a time of crisis, people can pull together and show this kind of support. Even though I was not directly involved in Operation Desert Shield/Desert Storm, you took the time to let me know that you care. All of the gifts that were sent to me via my parents (Jack and Frances Moore) were received with my heartfelt appreciation. To all of you, a very special "Thanks." The stories my parents have told us during their stay in Germany only confirm my opinion that some of the best people in the world live right here in Sonora, Texas. On behalf of myself, my wife Bea, and my two sons Stefan and Kevin—Thank You. Sincerely, Darryl Moore and Family

Thanks

We would like to thank everyone for their cards, flowers, food and telephone calls during my illness, and most especially for your prayers on my behalf. Thank you. Pat Tyler and Family

Biscuits' Crumbs

The winner is...!

Quite a while back, I had this contest to see who could come up with the best way to call left-overs somethin' that sounded a mite more appetizin'. The response was overwhelmmin' in quality but underwhelmin' in quantity. I figger there's 3 ways to look at that: low-readership, a "so-what, who cares?" attitude, or you just couldn't come up with an idea. I reckon I'll take the last choice, all things considered.

I got a grand total of three letters, but they were really good. I was leanin' real hard towards Mike Street's idea of "Refrieds," 'til Barbara Earwood come up with "Twice Blessed." There's a world of thought in that name, especially if you do indeed say grace over meals at your table. I reckon there's folks who can say, "I don't like left-overs," but who out there is cold enough to turn down "Twice blessed food?" "Not I," said the cat! So Barbara Earwood wins the Grand Prize, but to the other two kind folks who responded, a real big THANK YOU, and a tip of ol' Biscuits' dusty sombrero.

Doin' this contest and gettin' less-than-flooded with responses reminds me of the story of the feller who was gettin' ready to go on his first trip in a aeroplane. He was all figdety and flustered 'til his best friend told him to quit worryin'. He said there wasn't no need to get excited, 'cause he'd either get where he was goin' or crash. If he got there, everthing was fine, and if he crashed, either he'd die or he wouldn't. If he lived, everthing was all right, and if he died, he'd either go to heaven or hell. If he went to heaven, he would be fine, and if he went to hell, he'd be so busy shakin' hands with all his friends, he wouldn't have time to worry.

With everone havin' one of them new-fangled microwave gadgets, it's easier'n ever to whip out twice-blessed food. If you happen to have some mashed taters left, try this:

POTATO CAKES

For 2 cups mashed potatoes, stir in a beaten egg
1 Tablespoon flour
salt and pepper
(German folks add a smidgen of nutmeg)

Form these into round cakes about 1/2 inch thick
Fry in a little shortenin' over medium high heat
'til slightly brown on both sides
Serve up good and hot

Don't throw food away. Be creative, then bless it a second time, and keep on cookin'.

Sheila Holland's smooth pitching helped the Jr.'s defeat the seniors in the mixed game.

A Shrine patients test of courage

Italian poet Conte Vittorio Allieri once said that often the test of courage is not to die, but to live. Fourteen-year-old Joe Philion, of Orillia, Canada, has been given this test of courage, and with the help of Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children, he has passed with flying colors.

Philion's test began in March, 1988, when he was seriously burned in a fire that ravaged his Orillia home. He sustained third degree burns on over 95% of his body. Joe was first rushed to Orillia's Soldier's Memorial Hospital, but physicians there had never seen a burn as severe as Joe's.

Because Joe was so severely burned, when he arrived at the emergency room, medical personnel were having difficulty in even deciding the best method of moving his terribly damaged body. But much to their surprise, Joe, in a demonstration of courage, got up off the stretcher unassisted, walked over to the bed and lay down on it. Joe was later moved to Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children, but doctors there decided that his chances for survival would be increased if he were transferred to the world-renowned Shriners Burns Institute in Boston.

When Joe arrived at the Shriners Burns Institute, he was close to death. And during his stay at the burns hospital, he almost died several times. But each time, while he was teetering between life and death, his will to live and courage pulled him through.

Today, after more than 400 days of hospitalization, after many surgeries, endless hours of physical therapy and rehabilitation, Philion is well on his way to recovery. But his road to recovery will be long and difficult. It is estimated that Joe's medical care at the Shriners Burns Institute to date has cost more than three million dollars. He will continue treatment at the Shriners Burns Institute, receiving surgeries and therapy when needed, all at no charge to his family.

Since the accident, Joe has been confined to a wheel chair, unable to walk because his feet were so severely burned that he could not balance. Doctors at the Shriners Hospital felt that Joe's best chance of ever walking again would be to amputate his feet and fit him with protheses. Last March, Joe was again admitted to the Shriners Burns Institute where he underwent surgery to have his feet amputated. After he recovers from the operation, Joe will be fitted with artificial feet and will begin a new challenge—learning how to walk again.

Linda Hawkins, Joe's mom, said she was glad that Joe had his surgery at Shriners. "I know they will do their best and they really give you hope," she said.

Joe's nightmare, and his courage to survive, was chronicled in a book published earlier this year. A special copy of the book was given to the International Shrine Headquarters located in Tampa, Florida. A message from Joe's mother, which was signed by Joe and his family, was written on the inside. The message said:

"As I look back over the last 2 years, without the help from Shriners, we dare not think of what would have come to be. Your organization has given a gift that could never be repaid in a monetary way—the gift of life. Thank you for saving Joe's future."

It's a boy!

Soil Survey useful management tool

Five soil scientists with the Soil Conservation Service will be in Sonora May 19 to May 20 working on the Soil Survey of Edwards County according to Lynn Loomis, with the SCS.

Wayne Gabriel and Lynn Loomis from Uvalde, Rex Cothran of Alpine, Dennis Williamson of Big Spring, and Tommy Lovelace from George West will be stationed in Sonora for a week to complete the soil survey of the Edwards Plateau Soil and Water Conservation District in Edwards County.

Many people ask us what a soil survey is. Loomis explained that "it is the most comprehensive natural resource information available to most rural residents, and a very useful management tool for ranchers." He added "a soil survey can be used to plan management of brush, grazing, pasture, cropland, wildlife habitat, and a host of other ranch management practices."

The soil scientists will be contacting landowners for permission to map the soils on ranches in the Edwards Plateau District. The scientists all have experience working on ranches and will be careful getting bitterweed washes before working on a ranch that is bitterweed free.

The soil scientists observe the geology, vegetation, landforms and other surface features as they traverse the network of ranch roads in half ton trucks. At selected locations they examine soil properties in small holes opened with hand tools or in cores obtained with a hydraulic soil probe. Loomis says they always cover up the small holes they dig.

Fieldwork for the Soil Survey of Edwards and Real Counties began in January, 1990 and is scheduled for completion in January, 1993. Five soil scientists working out of Rocksprings last June mapped 450,000 acres. Last year, the soil scientists completed surveys on 650,000 acres in southern Edwards County.

The survey crew will move to Rocksprings from May 27 to May 31 and June 17 to June 29. The scientists hope to complete 450,000 acres of soil surveys in May and June. Their goal is to survey most of what is left of Edwards County according to Loomis.

Ranchers in the Edwards Plateau District in northern Edwards County who wish to have a soil survey of their ranch should contact Virgil Poloczek at the SCS office in Sonora at 915/387-2730. Ranchers in the Upper Nueces-Frio District should contact Pat Cowser of the Rocksprings SCS office at 512/683-2125.

All Soil Conservation Service program and services are available without regard to race, color, national origin, religion, sex, age, marital status or handicap.

SMART GIFT IDEAS For Graduates

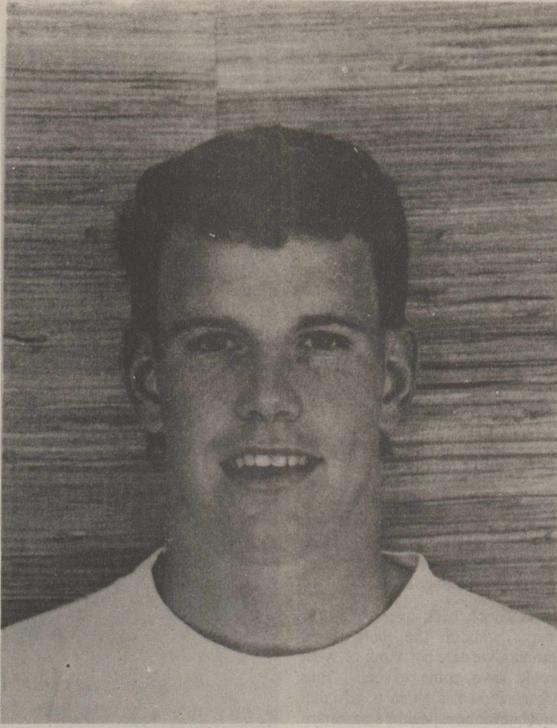

First Graders tour Experiment Station

The First Grade Classes of Sonora Elementary School had an exciting trip to the Texas A&M Experiment Station. The watched sheep shearing, a border collie at work, and they fed some kids and a lamb. They went through a greenhouse which contained native grasses and trees. The pigeons and chickens were fun to see. Each group took a guided tour through the lab facilities and Mr. Garza explained the changing properties of a base and an acid. The children watched the chemical reaction in the laboratory. They also enjoyed a sack lunch, visiting the resident javelina and playing games. Our thanks to Mr. Spiller, Mr. Garza, and all the Texas A&M Experiment Station employees for providing an education, as well as a fun-filled, outing.

The Texas A&M Experiment Station demonstrated shearing to first grade students.

Keller to attend leadership seminar in San Antonio

Shane Keller, a sophomore at Sonora High School will learn about "America's Incentive System" during an all-expense paid trip to the West Texas Leadership Seminar. The Seminar is affiliated with the Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation and will be held May 17-19, 1991, on the campus of St. Mary's University, San Antonio. More than 200 outstanding sophomores from throughout Central and South Texas will attend, each representing a different high school. The Seminar is sponsored by Optimist Clubs, Kiwanis Clubs, Greater Federation of Women's Clubs, and business establishments in the community.

During the Seminar, these future leaders will hear from today's distinguished leaders in business, government, education, and the professions, allowing them to leave the Seminar with a better understanding and appreciation of the American economic system and the democratic process. In addition, personal improvement skills will be developed and motivational techniques will be discussed.

The Foundation was established 33 years ago by movie and stage actor Hugh O'Brien in the belief that America's greatest resource is its youth. This is the ninth year for the West Texas Leadership Seminar to be held. The purpose of the Foundation and the affiliated Seminars is to seek out, recognize and reward leadership potential in sophomores.

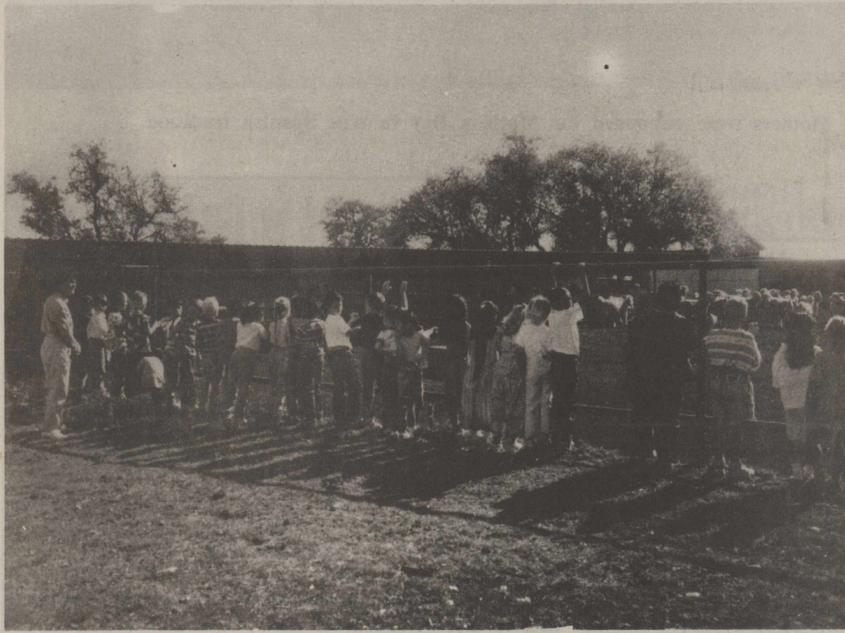

Shane is a member of the National Honor Society, Bronco Varsity football and track teams, J.V. basketball team, 1991-1992 elected Treasurer of the Sonora High School Student Council, and a member of the 4-H Club.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Warm Weather Tips

It's time once again to lug out the patio furniture, garden tools, fishing and camping gear and everything else that indicates fun in the sun. You may miss out on the fun, though, if these items come out of storage rusty, corroded, squeaky or malfunctioning.

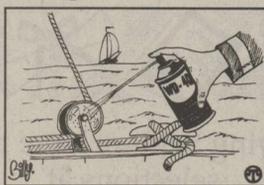

These problems can build up during the winter but can be prevented and/or alleviated with a quick spray of the multi-purpose lubricant WD-40.

Warm weather invites vacation, and travel by car requires car maintenance and checkup. Some of the items needed for a quick check are a rag to check fluids, tire gauge to determine pressure and a can of WD-40 to loosen stuck wheel covers or rusted lug nuts, clean and protect battery terminals, cables and radio antennae.

Going camping? A shot of WD-40 will free stuck zippers on sleeping bags, backpacks and tents. It also loosens pump handles on portable stoves and cleans out clogged propane holes on lanterns.

If you intend to do some fishing, regular applications of WD-40 will lubricate and protect rods, reels and lures. The product displaces moisture and prevents corrosive damage and rusting on metal parts. Hundreds of fishermen also claim that WD-40 works as a fish attractant on bait and lures.

WD-40 maintains other sporting equipment as well. Product uses range from softening baseball mitts to lubricating motorcycle cables. It creates a protective coating on moving parts as well as chrome surfaces. WD-40 doesn't contain silicone, so it won't become sticky or attract dirt and dust.

If setting out for a short sail or a long cruise, be sure to take WD-40 along. A spray of WD-40 will lubricate winches and blocks to keep them turning smoothly, as well as loosen up rust and salt-frozen turnbuckles, shackles and other fittings.

For the avid golfer, WD-40 cleans and protects golf club surfaces, lubricates squeaking wheels on golf carts and protects equipment. By spraying WD-40 on the problem area your gear will be in good working order.

WD-40 can also increase the life of your bicycle by spraying your hubs, cranks, pedals, chain, derailleur and any squeaks with the lubricant.

If you have additional uses, traditional or unusual, please send them to Louis E. Repaci, WD-40 Company, P.O. Box 80607, San Diego, CA 92138-9021.

Then it was followed by a dramatical poetry reading by William Haltom. As the program proceeded, the song of the

The class was rewarded with delicious Mexican food that the fourth grade mothers prepared.

The mystery of socks

by Tommie Holley

I think someone should invent disposable socks, but make them inexpensive, of course. The reason being is that you won't have to spend an hour after doing laundry trying to match up socks. You can almost bet that 99% of the time, you are going to end up with 3 or 4 that have no match. Some people blame the washing machines, but I'm not sure. Sometimes, I end up with socks that I've never seen before. Since I wash at a laundromat, I wonder (if indeed, it is the machine) that perhaps the washer picks one or two at random and then puts them back in someone else's wash.

There is something else I don't understand--boy's socks. How do they end up looking the way they do? You know, when you're sorting clothes and you come up on something that resembles a sock, but not quite. Course, normally, it is turned inside out, and you have to stick your hand inside and pull it apart. I say, pull it apart--actually, you kind of have to peel it. What do they do? Do they wear them outside their shoes? I watch all the commercials on detergents. I've tried them all. I also discovered that you can use a lot of bleach, and they may look clean, but the problem is that when they put them on, they disintegrate. The only solution I can come up with at this point is--I'm going to buy 20 pair of socks, all one color, one size fits all. This may seem like a desperate act, but at least I may be able to match them. Then when I pull one from under a bed or out of a shoe that looks like it has been there for 3 years, I won't have to worry.

Golf scramble results

Sixty golfers gathered at the golf club on Thursday, May 9th, for the weekly scramble. The large, enthusiastic group might be attributed to the beautiful weather, as the previous week's play was rained out. The relatively calm winds and bright sunshine were a welcome change.

It was also a good day for former Sonora High School golfers to shine, as the winning score of 7 under par was turned in by the team led by Edward San Miguel with team members Joe Turner, Randy Sparks, Mike McBride, Juanita McBride, John N. Casparis, and Jesse Ortiz. Edward was an outstanding member of the Sonora Bronco golf team this year, and is graduating next week.

Another former Bronco golfer on the 1990 team was the leader of the second place group. Jason Donaldson and his teammates, Willie Gutierrez, Richard Gonzales, Savell Shannon, Freddy Garza, Brad Brevard, and Donny Went shot a 6 under par.

Four teams shot a 5 under to tie for third place. A putt-off was held to determine the winner. Albert Bosmans came through for his team--Matt Davis, John Barker, Joe Bob Ragsdale, Pete Maldonado, Charlie Oren, and Steve Short, as he put his putt closest to the hole to break the tie. The other teams involved in the putt-off were Steve thorp, Bunk Galbreath, Ed Price, Frances Tackel, Bill Savell, Harvey DuRussell, and Harvey Sanchez. Also, Ray Don-Roe, Gregg Tedford, Virgil Burge, Shelly Shannon, Manuel Munoz, and Tommy Shephard, as well as the team of DeVoe Smith, Jim Covington, Frank Gamboa, Rick Day, Jerry Northcott, and Orlando DeHoyos.

The other three teams coming shot a 4 under. They were Primo Gonzalez, J. T. Hill, Papo Sanchez, Wes Henson, Tressa Henson, James Barton, and Kathy Davis. Also, Erasmo Lumbreras, Lance Latherwood, Harold Martinez, Benita Martinez, John D. Casparis, Brent Pool, and Jason Sullivan. Also competing were Bobby Taylor, Allan Prather, Joe Ramirez, John Adams, Santiago Ybarra, and Rodney Synder.

Club Activities Director, Virgil Burge, would like to remind everyone who plays in the scrambles, to please be signed up no later than 5:15 P.M. each Thursday afternoon, as it takes quite some time to divide entrants into teams. If you are from out of town and cannot get here by 5:15 P.M., have a friend sign you up, or call the clubhouse at 387-3680 and have your name put on the list.

Essentials of newspaper studied by 5th graders

Mrs. Barlemann's reading class is studying a unit on "Introduction to the Newspaper." In this unit, students will develop interest in reading the daily newspaper, and they will become aware that news is relative to their lives. Students are leaning to handle the newspaper and become familiar with parts of the newspaper. They are making a booklet illustrating each part of the newspaper to have hands-on experience in learning the parts of the newspaper.

The five W's of newspaper writing are studied. This is called the inverted pyramid style. They study an article of news and pick out the who, what, when, where and why of an article. These are often found in the first paragraph.

At the beginning of each class period they are given ten minutes to read any section they wish. Mrs. Barlemann is amazed watching them turn to different parts of the paper. The teacher is encouraging each student to read the newspaper often during the summer.

How can you prevent skin cancer?

Even though overexposure to the sun is the leading cause, it isn't necessary to five up the outdoors in order to reduce your chances of developing skin cancer. Just use good sense and simple measures whenever you work or play in the sun--repeated sunburns are particularly risky.

Cover up with a wide-brimmed hat, and a bandana for your neck; wear long-sleeved shirts and pants the sun can't penetrate.

Use sunscreens to help prevent skin cancer, as well as premature aging of your skin. You'll want a sun protective factor (SPF) rating of 15 or higher. Women can get a little added protection by using a tinted opaque cosmetic foundation along with a sunscreen. Apply sunscreen at least an hour before going into the sun and again after swimming or perspiring a lot. Don't use indoor sunlamps or tanning pills.

Know the ways of the rays for your best protection. You can get burned on a cloudy day. The rays can reach down into three feet of water. Try to stay out of the direct sun at midday, as the sun's rays are strongest between 11:00 A.M. and 2:00 P.M. Be aware of high altitudes--there's less atmosphere to filter out the ultraviolet rays.

Skiers should remember that snow reflects the sun's rays, too.

Know your skin. Whatever your skin type, do a monthly self-exam of your skin to note any moles, blemishes or birthmarks. Check them once a month and if you notice any changes in size, shape or color, or if a sore does not heal, see your physician without delay.

Protecting Our Environment

Food For Thought

People concerned about our environment may give a warm welcome to the policies promulgated by one fast-food company to slow down the earth's ecological entropy.

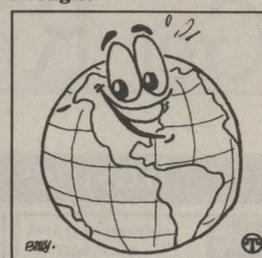

Although studies show fast food restaurants contribute less than one third of one percent of total U.S. landfill volume, Jack In The Box, the nation's fifth largest hamburger chain, is taking steps to reduce its waste by 15 percent or more over the next three years.

It's doing so in several ways:
•It's reducing waste in both its own packaging and that which comes from suppliers. Reducing the weight of its carryout bags, for example, saves more than half a million pounds of paper a year and preserves over 4,250 trees.

•By eliminating and modifying materials used to manufacture its soft drink cup cases, Jack In The Box already has cut more than 2,000 pounds of packaging per year.

•It's installing high-efficiency gas fryers and grills to reduce gas use by some 30 percent.

Darren Blass, the company's manager of Environmental Affairs,

A major fast food chain is protecting our environment several ways.

states that, "By modifying the ingredient packages we receive, we have prevented 600,000 pounds of material from entering the waste stream."

Jack In The Box refuses to buy beef from any country where rain forests are destroyed for cattle grazing.

It would seem this is one restaurant chain with an environmental protection policy that really has some teeth in it.

INTRODUCE YOUR DOG TO FRISBEE-CATCHING FUN

Is your Labrador a true retriever? Do you have a springy Springer Spaniel? If so, he or she is a perfect candidate for the 1991 Come 'N Get It Canine Frisbee® disc Championships, the premier athletic competition for dogs and their owners.

1990 World Champions Lou McCammon and "Scooter."

Canine Frisbee disc-catching is an American tradition. It's also a great way for dogs and their owners to have fun and stay fit. Sponsored by Come 'N Get It dry dog food, the event is also known as the Ashley Whippet Invitational, in honor of the legendary dog who won the first three competitions, 1975 to 1977.

The event welcomes beginner and veteran competitors, and dogs of all sizes. More than 100 community competitions will take place throughout the summer, and six regional finals will be held in Houston, Jacksonville, New York, Detroit, Los Angeles and San Francisco. The winner and runner-up from each regional get an expense-paid trip to compete in the World Finals in Washington, D.C.

There is still time to practice for the best "doggone" event in the country. To help you and your dog perfect your form, Come 'N Get It offers an official training manual. It incorporates the Ashley Whippet Training System developed by Alex Stein, Ashley Whippet's owner, with insights from other champion trainers. The five-point system outlines:

1. Familiarization with the disc
2. Basic on-the-ground training
3. Bringing the disc back
4. Mid-air catches
5. Establishing a routine

Even if your dog is just a casual catcher, the manual can show you how to have more fun through Frisbee play. The manual even outlines throwing tips to improve technique and enhance your dog's catching ability.

For a free manual and money-saving coupons for Come 'N Get It dry dog food, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Come 'N Get It Training Manual, P.O. Box 5862, Kalamazoo, MI 49003-5860.

All competitions are free to participants and spectators, and registration is on site. For a schedule of competitions send a self-addressed stamped business-size envelope to: Canine Frisbee Championships, 4060-D Peachtree Road, Suite 326, Atlanta, Georgia 30319.

ACS Cookbooks available Purchases credit $10 to unit Crusades

Did you know that with the help of the American Cancer Society Cookbook you can become the prime determinant when it comes to maintaining your own good health? Scientists estimate that as much as 80 percent of cancers are caused by environmental and life-style factors and are therefore-theoretically-preventable.

An important protective factor against cancer-along with proper exercise appears to be proper nutrition. The American Cancer Society advocates a diet high in fiber, low in fat and rich in vitamins A and C. The American Cancer Society Cookbook helps you take care of yourself with more than 200 recipes (from appetizers to desserts), assuring you of a delicious healthy feast every meal of the day. Grams of fat and calories per serving as well as fiber rating follow each recipe.

Your copy of the American Cancer Society Cookbook is available for $17.95 (plus $3.14 postage and sales tax) from the Texas Division office. You cannot buy this cookbook through your district or Area offices, but $10.00 per book sold is credited to the purchaser's unit Crusade income. The cookbooks also are available at bookstores, with a portion of the sales contributed to the American Cancer Society. Ask any volunteer.
