Vaughn's JP
Records Show
THP Busy

A busy time for the two local Texas Highway Patrolmen is reflected in the records of Justice of the Peace Joe Vaughn. Since July 15, a total of 52 cases were handled by Judge Vaughn in his office.

Consistently, speeding heads the list with 16 tickets issued for that offense. Drunks and no operator's license each had four violations; no Texas registration and no railroad commission permit had three each; those having two violations were permitting unlicensed driver to drive; no motorcycle driver's license, over registered weight, ran stop sign, no registration papers and over gross weight.

One complaint was registered for each of the following violations: no valid Motor Vehicle Inspection sticker; over axle weight; failure to control speed; simple assault; minor consumption (of liquor); violation of driver's license restriction; over length of vehicle; no commercial driver's license; failure to drive in single lane and failure to yield right of way.

A 'Swingin' Piano

One of the Journal office gals said, "Now, that's what I call a 'swingin' piano.'"

She was referring to an outstanding 'catch' made by Joe Albro, Texas Liquor Control Agent; Ken Petree, Deputy Sheriff; and Joe Young and Gene Sisemore, Texas Highway Patrolmen, late last Saturday night.

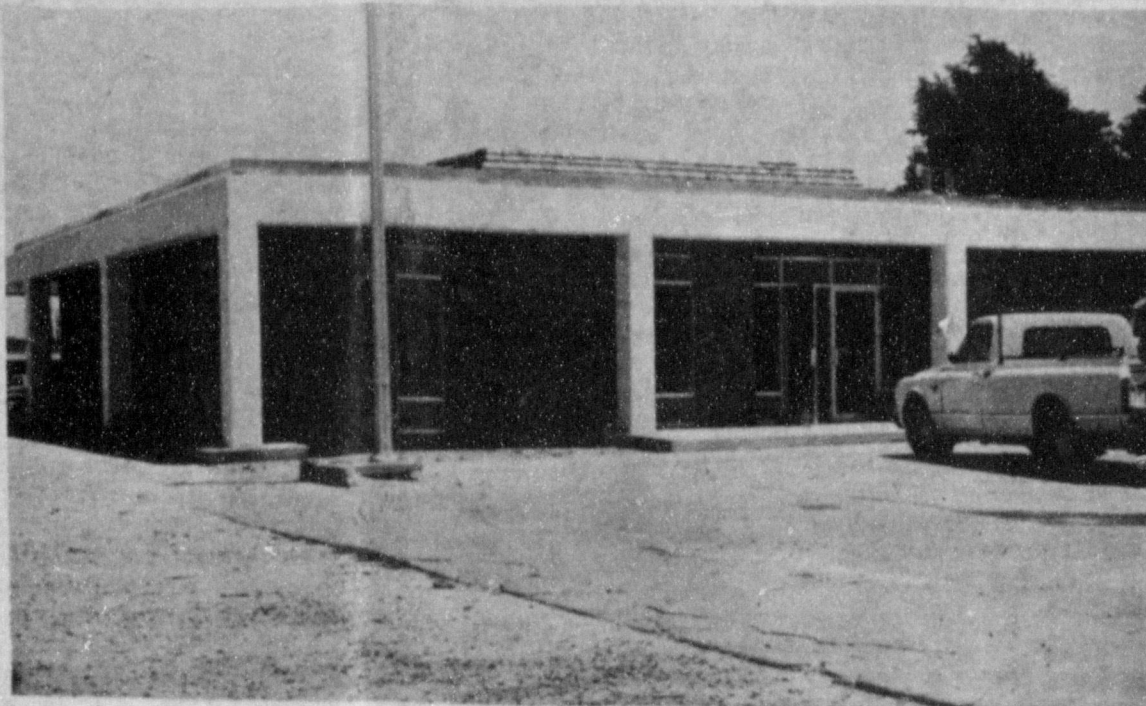

The quartet of officers got a search warrant and went to a house about three miles southwest of Muleshoe. For awhile they thought their search was to be futile, as they had found no contraband liquor on the premises.

Deputy Petree, who happens to be quite a pianist, walked up to a piano in the living room of the home. The 'lady' of the house was leaning against the piano when he reached down to touch the keys. "Don't do that," she said, "The piano isn't in tune."

After telling the deputy another time or two the piano was out of tune, he hit one of the keys. He heard a "plunk;" another key, another "plunk," and so on down the line. Opening the top of the piano, the officers found out why the piano was so out of tune.

Resting inside were nine pints of Tom Moore Whiskey; nine pints of Old Crow Whiskey; six one-half pints of Tom Moore; nine pints of La Copita Wine; 30-15 ounce cans of Coors beer and four pints of Hiram Walker Peppermint Schnapps.

W.C. Briscoe, who lived in the house, pleaded guilty Monday to a charge of bootlegging, was fined $100 and given a 10 day jail sentence which was probated for one year.

NEARING COMPLETION--The Bailey County Law Enforcement Center is nearing completion. Funds for the law complex were voted in a special bond election on September 10 last year and work began within a short time on the long overdue building which will house city, county, and state officers; the jail and a civil defense center. The building is expected to be fully completed and ready to use by September 1.

College Presidents Endorse Water Plan For Education

CANYON, Tex. --Four proposed Texas constitutional amendments, "vitally essential to the future development of the full potential of human and natural resources" in Texas, received endorsement by the Council of Presidents of State Supported Colleges and Universities recently, Dr. James P. Cornette, West Texas State University President said.

The council endorsed passage of the four amendments proposed in the special election Aug. 5, saying, "The endorsements were for those amendments which either are directly related to higher education or are of such general importance to the state as to require the council's consideration."

The proposed amendments endorsed are No. 2, providing for a Water Plan for Texas; No. 3, providing for a procedure for establishing higher salaries for the lieutenant governor, speaker of the house and members of the legislature; No. 6, removing constitutional interest rate limitations, subject to limits imposed by the legislature for bonds pursuant to constitutional authority; and No. 8, authorizing the legislature to provide for additional loans to students at institutions of higher learning under the Texas Opportunity Plan.

The Texas Opportunity Plan was patterned after one instituted at West Texas State several years ago and has proved highly successful.

Three local youths left Lubbock by chartered bus Tuesday morning to attend the annual high school student seminar on "Americanism" at Waco this week.

The seminar is being held at Baylor University and the youths are sponsored by the Bailey County Farm Bureau.

Those from Bailey County attending the seminar are Mark Dillman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Dillman, Babs Haire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Haire and Ed Mason, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mason.

Grain Sorghum 'Miss' Contest Slated Soon

DIMMITT (Special) -- Miss Grain Sorghum of the Nation for 1969 will be chosen in judging the night of August ninth in Dimmitt, Texas. There are several area girls in the competition. The winner of the title and crown will become the tenth girl to represent the grain sorghum industry for a year.

The general chairman of the show this year is Bo Bryant who said today, "We hope this will be the best of the pageants in the ten year history of the show. The chamber is looking for a number of girls to compete in the show."

The title was won in 1968 by a brunette from Richardson -- Karyn J. Hughes who now resides in Dimmitt. For the first time, the pageant in 1968 offered as a first prize, a one Cont. on Page 2, Col. 6

Committees Named To Market Products

NFO, the National Farmers Organization, is gathering for full steam ahead. At a Tuesday night meeting, two new committees were elected for the young county organization. Named to the grain committee were Joe Sooter, Leldon Phillips, Lewis Embry, W.T. 'Bill' Millen, Carl Bamert and John Young. Members of the Alfalfa committee are Loyd Stephens, Dean Hukill, Jessie Ray Carter, Troy Thomas and Gary Dennis.

Guy Austin, president of the Bailey County chapter of NFO, conducted the informational meeting. He said, "We are forming NFO and have formed NFO chapter in this county to bargain for a price for our products."

"Last Thursday night, there was one of the biggest breakthroughs in grain prices in recent years at an NFO meeting in Hereford," he continued. "The more than 800 members present heard about a major grain elevator contracting for 150,000,000 pounds of grain sorghum for $3 million. This is the first time I had gotten this much for my grain since 1954."

Austin emphasized that the farmer is important for area and regional business. He commented, "We are their customers, we need them and they need us. Farmers are leaving for cities and towns at the rate of more than 2,000 a day."

"It is estimated that in the not too far future, there will be only 550,000 farmers to supply the United States and much of the world with their food."

Don McDonald of the Farmer County NFO showed the more than 50 men present a film on "Blocking" grain. The slides showed what happens when grain sorghum farmers block together their grain and withhold it from the market.

The commentator on the film said that as an individual a farmer has no bargaining power, but when he bands together with a group, the group has the power to bargain with the grain market to secure a price for his product instead of accepting what the buyer has offered. This was illustrated last week Cont. on Page 2, Col. 6

Chow-Tex Feed Lot Expanding

With the big boom in cattle feeding on a commercial basis becoming more widespread, Chow-Tex Inc. of Muleshoe has almost doubled their capacity for cattle in recent weeks.

Nearing completion at the commercial feed lot are pens which will increase their capacity from 10-12 thousand to 17,000 head of cattle, according to Manager Bill Gable. The pens are of pipe and end cable construction with concrete bunks. Gable said they are expected to be completed sometime this week.

Operation of the feed lot at their location northeast of Muleshoe some 10 miles, began in 1957 and was formerly the Gable Feed Yard. Three years ago, Chow-Tex leased the feed lot from the Gables and retained Bill Gable as manager.

Another addition to the feed lot will be new cattle scales, which are expected to be installed within the next month. Chow-Tex has thus joined the expansion programs in Bailey County among the cattle feed lots. King Feed Lot and the Muleshoe Feed Lot have both undergone extensive expansion programs in recent months.

Crucial Bond Issue To be Voted Tuesday

All eyes will be focused on the State of Texas for the next several days. On August 5, Tuesday, voters will trek to the polls over the state to vote on nine amendments. One of the amendments is drawing special attention at this time.

Water has become the watchword in Texas and Amendment Two concerns water - water to provide the lifeline for the economy of the South Plains and in essence for the entire region.

Amendment Two would contain constitutional changes necessary to implement the Texas Water Plan. The Texas Water Plan was implemented to secure water for the state. Specifically, the amendment would (1) broaden the powers of the Water Development

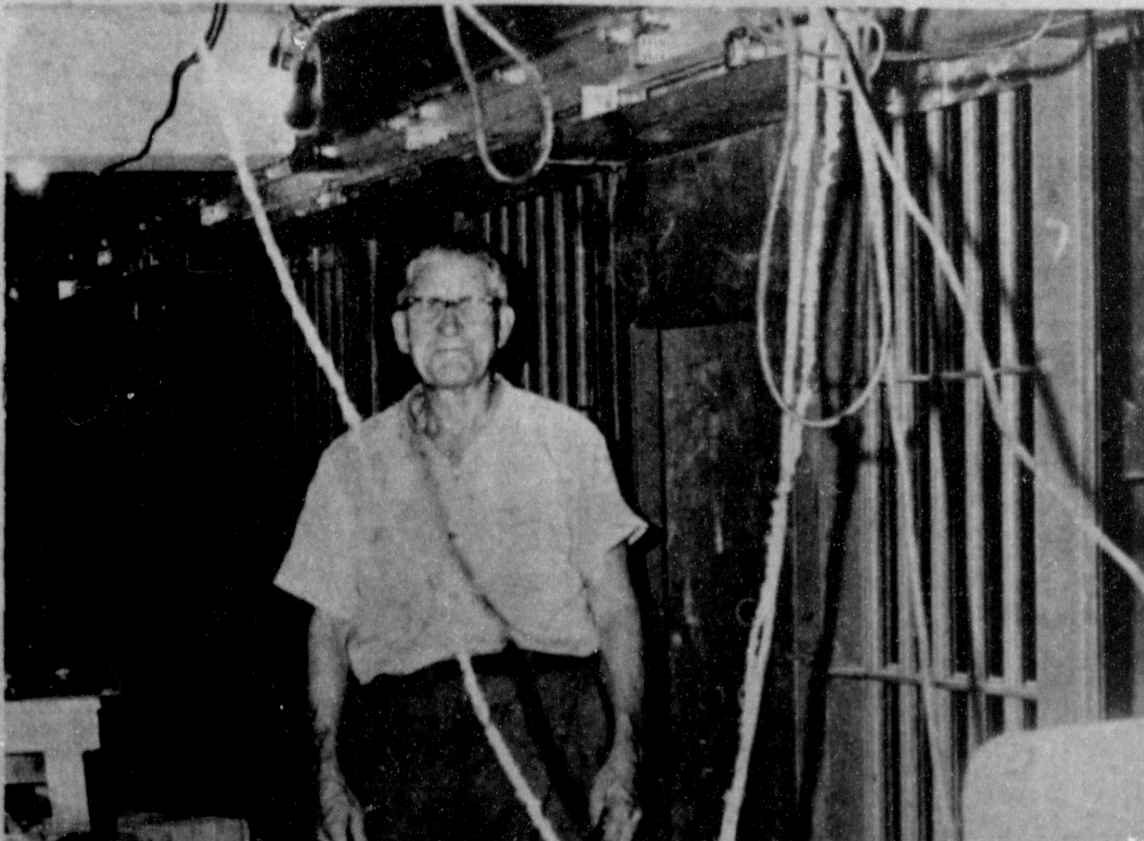

Board, permitting the board to participate in the development of all types of water resources; (2) increase the constitutionally-authorized amount of Water Development Bonds by an additional $3.5 billion, subject to the approval of a two-thirds majority of the legislature; (3) eliminate the present four percent interest rate ceiling on Water Development bonds; (4) eliminate the 1982 termination date for the Water Development Fund, which is derived from the sale of Water Development Bonds; (5) extend the maturity schedules for Water Development Bonds from 40 to 50 years; and (6) authorize the Texas Water Development Board under such provisions as the legislature may prescribe to receive grants and to contract with the United States, and other states, foreign governments, and others for acquisition and development of water resources and facilities and to secure such contracts by the general credit of the state.

The $3.5 billion water bond would underwrite the state's estimated share of a $9 billion, 50-year Texas Water Plan.

A heavy turn-out in the South Plains region is urged, as it is estimated that a heavy vote must be cast in this heavy agricultural area to carry the issue. Voters in other parts of the state may not be familiar or fully realize the water problem facing the vast South Plains region.

Conversations from over the state are fearful, and have banded together to fight the proposed plan on the basis that such a water importation plan would upset the balance of wildlife. At the same time, farmers and ranchers on the South Plains and the High Plains are faced with the problem of dwindling water supplies.

when more than 2,000 farmers 'blocked' the grain market to provide the 150 million pounds of grain to the Friona Elevator, Austin said there are 16 counties involved in the transaction, including farmers from as far away as Floyd County and Quay County in New Mexico.

McDonald said that NFO was not speaking about a five or ten cent raise in prices, but a reasonable price for their products. He said that farmers have their backs to the wall and said that statistics prove that for every 10 farmers who leave their farms for the city, on business in town closes up.

He also gave the statistic: "A farmer's profit amounts to less than three cents from every dollar he has invested. Compare this to industry. Industry profits amount to over 24 cents for each dollar invested. Farmers have 269 billion dollars invested in land, buildings and equipment. If the farmer received 100 per cent of parity he would have a profit of 23 billion. Actual cash profit to the farmer at this time is nine billion. Industry profits 92 billion from their 370 billion invested. This is nearly 25 cents of every dollar invested. It takes industry four years profit to pay for each dollar invested while it takes a farmer 33 years to pay for the money invested," he said.

Farmers at the meeting were told that farming is no longer an occupation, but is business and should be conducted in a business manner.

"It's your product," said Austin, "and you should be able to set your own price for your product, the same as any business to make a purchase, you do not tell the merchandiser what you will pay for the particular piece of merchandise, he tells you. This is what the farmer should be able to do with his own product, set his own price."

Water is the Future of Texas

GUEST EDITORIAL

It is gratifying to see the importance given to agriculture and its future water needs in the revised Texas Water Plan released in late 1968. If the plan is implemented as drawn up by the Texas Water Development Board, the continuance of agriculture as a thriving, potent force in the state's economy is assured.

The plan, an ambitious undertaking of unprecedented magnitude and carrying an awesome price tag of $10 billion, recognizes that agriculture is still a key industry in Texas—second in gross income only to the petroleum and petro-chemical industry. It further recognizes that any decline of agriculture resulting from a lack of water for irrigation would have detrimental economic repercussions reaching far beyond the producers involved. It would affect those involved in marketing, processing, and transporting agricultural products; financial institutions; suppliers of agricultural machinery, supplies, goods, and services; and ultimately, consumers themselves.

The Texas Water Development Board deserves commendation for developing a comprehensive long-range guide to meet water needs in all portions of the state. Besides protecting the projected water needs of citizens in eastern portions of the state, the plan also provides for the continued growth and prosperity of agriculture, industry, and municipalities in the western half. New Mexico's needs figure in the plans too. For details, see page 20.

There was no justification for anyone to believe that a comprehensive water plan to provide for the needs of all portions of the state would come cheap. Total cost is estimated at $10 billion, and it likely will go higher. That does not include costs for constructing irrigation distribution systems from storage reservoirs to individual fields. And the water itself will cost its users more than they now pay.

Time is of utmost importance. By 1980—a scant 11 years from now—depletion of underground water in the agriculturally important High Plains will begin requiring some cutback in irrigated acreage, with serious economic consequences. Other areas, such as the Winter Garden, already are feeling the pinch of declining water tables.

Clearly, if Texas is to grow to its potential in population, industry, and agriculture, its government and its people must act quickly and in unity. There is no time for bickering. Granted the Texas Water Plan will not please everyone. Specific portions of it may have to be revised. Provisions and procedures to make changes have been provided. The plan is a flexible guide, not a rigid blueprint, that will be constantly re-evaluated and revamped where necessary. Those who have a legitimate quarrel can and will be heard.

But the time must come when sectional and factional squabbling must stop and all must work together to secure the necessary legislation, appropriations, and agreements. In the days and years ahead, it would be well to keep in mind that the future of Texas and Texas agriculture in the 21st century depends on its supply of water.

meet the state's water needs to the year 2020 says Governor Preston Smith, who formed a "Committee of 500" to study the plan. Heading the Committee of 500 are former Governors Allan Shivers, Price Daniel and John Connally.

The Committee further says that although the sound of $3.5 billion in water bonds sounds frightening, the bonds would be issued only as they are needed over the next 40 or 50 years.

Water information meetings have been held over and over in the various towns and cities with water experts showing films, giving explanations and in general, conducting programs to acquaint everyone with the plan and what it is expected to do.

(We asked Mrs. Damron to write an account of the three-and-a-half week tour of Europe she and daughter, Dana took recently.)

BY ELAINE DAMRON

The first leg of our trip was a three-day stopover in New York City. Never having visited the City before, we found the mass of high-rise buildings on Manhattan Island very appalling. Highlights of our visit there included a visit to the top of the Empire State Building, the Statue of Liberty and the United Nations Building, along with some Broadway shows. We quickly decided, however, that we would not trade Muleshoe, Texas for all of New York City.

Our European tour got under way with our flight on KLM Royal Dutch Airlines to Amsterdam, Holland. The view of Holland from the air is like a patchwork quilt with the thousands of canals separating the green fields. Amsterdam is very quaint with its red-tiled pointed roofs and picturesque architecture—a beautiful city, extremely clean and well-kept. Over half the people there ride bicycles to and from work so it's quite a sight at five o'clock when everyone gets off work and the bicycle parade starts home.

From Amsterdam we flew to Hanover, Germany, and from there went by rail to a small town called Wobbel, the center of the country from where our ancestors came! We spent some time here getting acquainted with "far removed" relatives and visiting old family landmarks. We stayed in an old castle here, which is now a hotel-like establishment, but once belonged to our ancestors. It was very beautiful, peaceful, and quiet in this little village.

The country in this part of Germany, as in most of Germany that we saw, is made up of rolling hills covered with pine trees, except where the land has been cleared for farming. The countryside is the most beautiful color of green imaginable and the growth seems to be very lush. The flowers all over Germany are gorgeous, and every small house has a multitude of geraniums growing in window boxes all across the front. In this area of Germany, the architecture is very picturesque also—some of it several hundred years old, but perfectly preserved and in use today—for businesses as well as homes. Here, too, are bright red-tiled sharp gabled roofs, and the whole landscape looks like a picture. I've never seen things in such perfect order and so well kept; every tiny house is well-painted and has a beautiful flower and vegetable garden. This part of our trip was really the highlight of our whole tour and far too short.

We went from Wobbel to Cologne, Germany, a beautiful modern city on the Rhine River. This city was almost leveled during the War, but it is amazing how the people have rebuilt this city, as other German cities in these years since war. You see no ruins left from the War in Germany, like you do in Italy and England. They say the German people are so industrious and hard-working that they were able to recover much more quickly from the war than some of the other European countries. In fact, Italy still seems to be in pretty much of a financial slump, and many Italians are employed in neighboring countries as hotel help—we saw in Germany, Switzerland, France, and even England.

The great old cathedral in Cologne still stood through all the bombings, and it is one of the most beautiful examples of Gothic architecture that we saw in all of Europe.

From Cologne we took the train to Koblenz, where we caught a steamer for our cruise down the Rhine River. This lasted eight hours, terminating at Mainz, one of the oldest cities in Germany. The scenery on this cruise was spectacular; vineyards line the steep banks and there is one beautiful old castle after another the entire way. We also passed the famed Lorelei Rocks.

At Frankfurt the next day we joined an American Express tour for the remainder of our trip through Europe. It was well-planned and we saw as many things as possible in the short time we had to spend. Our tour guide was a lovely Swiss girl, who spoke six languages fluently and was extremely well-educated in all the history of the countries we saw. Southern Germany (Bavaria) and Austria were equally as charming as the rest of Germany we had seen. The country gradually became more mountainous as we went into the Austrian Alps. We spent a night in Innsbruck, Austria and visited the palace of the Hapsburgs there, one of the long-reigning Austrian families. This country is very reminiscent of scenes from "The Sound of Music".

On leaving Innsbruck the next day and climbing over Brenner Pass, we drove into a snowstorm, which was really "something" for us Texans in July. We proceeded to the Dolomites, the rocky-peaked Alps in Austria, and in the snowstorm, it was a fantastic sight. That night we spent in Venice, Italy and had the "expected" gondola ride among the canals. Venice is still very beautiful with its many palaces, reminiscent of the days when it was the wealthiest seaport on the Mediterranean, but today most of the Venetians are leaving to work in more industrial areas, and it is largely made up of tourists now.

Florence, Italy was a cultural highpoint of course with its many works of art and sculpture. You could still see signs of the terrible flood they had several years ago, such as the waterline in the lobby of our hotel.

Rome was the next city on our agenda and it was truly a fascinating one, as far as history goes. The marvelous ruins of the Roman Empire, dating back 2000 years show what a truly advanced civilization they had in their day. One of the highlights for us, though, was attending the opera "Aida" in the Roman ruins of the Baths of Caracalla. It was a spectacle presented as only the Italians can present opera, and in a setting we will never forget. St. Peter's Church, the largest in the world and the Sistine Chapel in the Vatican City were also very memorable.

A night was spent at Milan and then across the border into Switzerland. This was one of our favorite countries, again very clean, beautiful and picturesque. In tiny little Switzerland four different languages are spoken, the country is split up by the Alps and the people speak the languages of the bordering countries. Swiss people are industrious and progressive, and unemployment is practically non-existent. They are a very warm and friendly people as well. We spent several nights in Lucerne, on beautiful Lake Lucerne. We also took a breathtaking cable car ride to the top of Mount Pilatus, coming back down the other side by cog train, and finally ending the trip by taking a boat back across Lake Lucerne—a really spectacular trip.

Briefly we toured Geneva and then boarded our Air France plane for Paris. Paris is a lovely city with very wide streets—this in sharp contrast to Rome. The Eiffel Tower, Arc of Triumph, and Notre Dame are all as beautiful as you would expect. And of course we visited the Louvre Museum where we saw the Mona Lisa and Venus De Milo. Also we spent some time on the Left Bank of the Seine roaming the streets with the artists, students and "hippies" and having dinner in a sidewalk cafe.

From Paris we flew to London for three days. London to us was the most like the United States of all the European countries. Of course we did not get to visit rural England, but London is very "mod" and "way out" in their fashions and actions. We attended a show at the "Paladium" in which Des O'Connor starred—he is the Andy Williams of England and we thought he was very charming. Of course we saw Westminster Abbey, the Towers of London and the famous crown jewels with the largest diamond in the world in them, the British houses of Parliament, Big Ben, Carnaby Street and Piccadilly Circus.

But most important of all, we were able to witness the American astronauts landing on the moon from our hotel room in London over British television. There was quite a mass of Britishers watching it on a huge television screen set up in Trafalgar Square and believe me, they were as excited about it as we were. It made us realize what an earth-shaking event it was and it made us proud to be Americans. We had a wonderful trip, but the best part is always in "coming home".

A Hardship

Early log cabins must have been unbearably hot in summer, since often there were no windows for the installation of air-conditioners.

Wright Patman, member of the House on tax reform:

"There is a groundswell of sentiment in this nation today—resentment against imposing on the little man, to the benefit of the big man."

Square Thru's Start Lessons

BY GAIL WILCOX

The Square Thru's met July 22 at the Legion Hall to start a new group of lessons on square dancing. Club Caller Eddie Gannels started the new lessons off with a "Bang". He is a fine teacher and these students are just great pupils. They went through some 24 to 25 basic steps of square dancing...."CHEER-UP! THERE'S MORE, STUDENTS!" By the end of lesson number one, these people looked as though they had several lessons behind them. There is still time for anyone wanting to get in on these lessons. Just meet with us at the Legion Hall Tuesday, July 29 at 8:30 p.m. Eddie will help anyone there for the first time. He does this by reviewing over the first lesson. There's always room for more, more people, more fun! so gather up all your friends and come on out for real fun... It will be a "Blast".....

The Square Thru's have gone "banter mad". The whole club has been struck. Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Presley, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stoneham, Mr. and Mrs. Monty Dollar, Mr. and Mrs. Curby Brantley went to Portales July 16 and brought home their banner. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Don Seales, and Mr. and Mrs. Ike Wilcox paid a visit to the club at Cannon Air Base

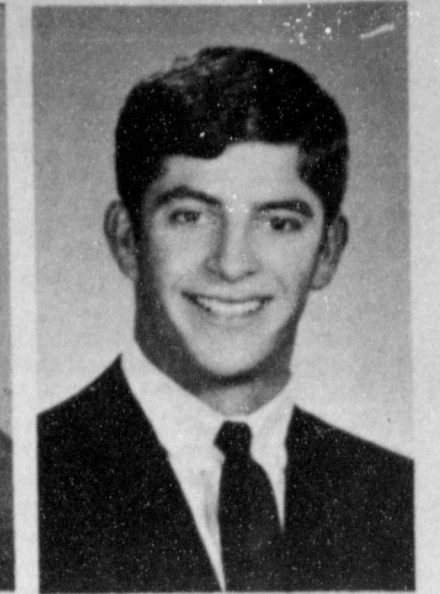

July 19 and brought home their banner. We are issuing fair warning, all area clubs, "Watch out for the banner mad Square Thru's. We will be coming after your banner." To get a banner, a club must take a square (eight people) to another's club dance, at least two-thirds of the dance period while there. To retrieve our banner which has been taken by another club, such as the Merry Mixers of Lubbock did the other night, we will have to take two squares to their dance to be able to get our and bring theirs home, also. This we shall do, come their next dance.

The Littlefield club is having a special dance July 31 at the community center, starting time is 8:30 p.m. This is a costume square dance. They tell us to come as a Hippie or just plain ole tacky. However you go, just go. This sounds like loads of fun. Let's make plans to go. The caller for this will be Roy Johnson.

Those beginning lessons last Tuesday were Rhonda Stevenson, Terry Gunter, Brenda Scott, Belinda Nickels, Jerry Scoggins, Jeanne Freeman, John Birdwell, Ronald Scott, Lizann Gunter, Sheila Hunt, Tim Wheeler, Jimmy Wisian, Terry Wheeler, Kathy Pena, Joe Dan Briscoe, Jana Bruns, Stephanie Brantley, Benetta Roming, Tami Murrah, Jo Roming, Sherman Presley, Mike Wisian, Billy

Music director will be Roger Edwards, a sophomore at Wayland Baptist College. He is member of Phi Mu Alpha, Symphony, plays trumpet in Pioneer Band and is married to Bennie Edwards, who is also a student at Wayland.

Young Homemakers Attend Workshops

Young Homemakers of America Club members have attended area workshops on college campuses this summer as part of their planned program.

Attending a workshop at Texas Tech June 19 were Mrs. Eugene Buhrman, Mrs. Kenneth Powell, Mrs. J.C. Gatewood, Mrs. Jimmy Black and their advisor, Mrs. Roland McCormick.

Topics on family money management were taught by Dr. Ilse Wolfe of Texas Tech; time management and work simplification were taught by Mrs. Jan Womack of Texas Tech. A review of the books "Too Busy Not To Pray" and "Bless This Mess", written by two Lubbock housewives, were reviewed for those attending. A buffet luncheon was served, with a fashion show by models from Hemphill-Wells Co.

July 24 Mrs. Robert Hunt and Mrs. Ken Angeley attended a workshop in Amarillo.

The fitting of pants, by Miss Barbara Truitt of Amarillo College, and a review of coordination of accessories for a wardrobe was given. Dr. C.L. Kay of Lubbock Christian College spoke on "The Challenge of 1969".

At both workshops, the Muleshoe chapter furnished door prizes as usual, and Mrs. Powell won a prize at the Tech workshop.

Cub Scouts Enjoy Outing

Cub Pack 622 recently enjoyed their monthly activity, this time a picnic at the Jim Shafer farm, which was followed by a marshmallow roast and singsong around a campfire. Thirty seven persons were present.

The same date six dads and their sons enjoyed an overnight campout and breakfast cookout at the Shafer farm.

Texas Water Plan Endangered

GUEST EDITORIAL

FORWARD-LOOKING Texans, regardless of geography, should know that the Water Plan, which faces the electorate in the form of a Constitutional Amendment on August 5, is in danger of being turned down.

West Texans, especially, should face up to the possibility and be certain that they cast their votes for the plan.

The word in Austin, based on reports from the Houston area and Northeast Texas, is that opponents of the plan are busy and, to a surprising extent, are "making hay." They are especially active in attempting to win older citizens to their views, cynically noting that "the old folks ain't gonna be around to gain anything from the plan"; and from so-called "conservationists." The latter are fearful that the plan will interfere with their hunting and fishing, although expert testimony to the contrary has been widely documented.

In our view, no more important issue has faced the people of Texas during the present century.

If Texas' future water supply is not assured, the State "has had it" — not only in industry, but in agriculture, too. The only sure way to safeguard the State's growing position is to pass the Water Plan.

It is not by accident that Texas' last three Governors — Allan Shivers, Price Daniel and John Connally — as well as Gov. Preston Smith all urge passage of the plan. Neither is it an accident that practically every business, agricultural, industrial and civic leader in Texas is in the forefront of the effort.

If you're going to be out of town on August 5, vote absentee. Don't fail to record your vote for the Water Plan.

APOLLO II MOON LANDING

This week, I shared the elation of all Texans over the successful completion of the most epic adventure in man's history.

Since man first crawled out of the primeval ooze, he has progressed over the latitudes of time and space to this high-water mark of his striving. We can all feel a great sense of pride that our technology has caused us to accomplish what few thought possible such a short time ago.

There is no item in the American inventory of accomplishment that has afforded us more prestige and respect among the other peoples of the world than our achievements in space. The state of the art in space exploration has advanced from its beginnings at a dizzying pace. Even as the dramatic story unfolded before our very eyes through the miracle of television, we could hardly believe that we had placed two men on the moon, recovered them, and brought them home safely. Texans can be justly proud that they played such a major role in this scientific and engineering triumph.

There are still those who question the wisdom of our spending hundreds of millions of dollars in this effort and it is impossible at this early moment for us to assess just what practical value our probes of planets and outer space might have.

The distinguished oceanographer, Maurice Ewing, was once asked why he probed the depths of the sea — what was the practical value of this scientific puttering? He responded that anyone who asked the question would not understand the answer. The pursuit of knowledge for knowledge's sake has historically proven itself to have great practical value. The Greeks invented the steam turbine 300 years before Christ

"We need your vote for Amendment No. 2 on Aug. 5."

All letters to the Editor of reasonable length are welcome and will be published. Letters to the Editor must be signed, however, names will be withheld upon request.

and it was regarded as a scientists' plaything for 2,000 years until man found a practical use for it and what a significant find it was.

There is reason to believe the moon has valuable resources that would be useful to an earth people who are rapidly depleting their own. It may well be that, with the population explosion all over the world, in due course, the earth alone will not sustain the life of its people. It may be that the only way that man can survive is to move outside his earthly sphere.

But, beyond that, man grows by reaching out for knowledge of that of which he is ignorant.

Now of those gallant men who brought to fruition this magnificent effort of countless thousands of men: Virtually unknown a few short weeks ago, the names of Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin, and Mike Collins, will be indelibly stamped forever on the minds of the human species. In the future, their names will tumble from the lips of school boys assuredly and as often with as great awe as those of Columbus, Magellan, Peary, and Byrd. Many great acts of heroism will pale before that of those who faced the terror of the unknown.

It is given to few to fully appreciate and understand the challenge, the exhilaration of flight, of space that makes man's spirit soar. It is well expressed in the Airman's Poem by Jno. Gillespie Magee. If you will indulge me in setting a precedent by reading a poem to you in my report, and, after all, more important precedents have been set this week, I should like to read it to you now:

HIGH FLIGHT
Oh, I have slipped the surly bonds of earth
And danced the skies on laughter-silvered wings;
Sunward I've climbed, and joined the tumbling mirth
Of sun-split clouds...and done a hundred things
You have not dreamed of... wheeled and soared and swung
High in the sunlit silence, Hov'ring there,
I've chased the shouting wind along, and flung
My eager craft through footless halls of air.

Up, up the long, delirious, burning blue
I've topped the windswept heights with easy grace
Where never lark, or even eagle flew.

And, while with silent, lifting mind I've trod
The high untrespassed sanctity of space,
Put out my hand, and touched the face of God.

You've Come a Long Way, Baby

BY PAUL HARVEY

President Nixon said it: "As I look around the world I find that India has a woman prime minister, Ceylon has a woman prime minister, Israel has a woman prime minister. Certainly in the next 50 years -- and maybe much sooner -- we shall see a woman President of the United States."

As the song says, "You've come a long way, baby." Fifty-some years ago it was women who were demonstrating, sometimes violently demanding "equal rights."

Women organized (the suffragettes) and demanded voting rights. They got 'em. Aug. 18, 1920, the 19 Amendment to the Constitution was ratified.

Today we do have a few women in Congress and a handful have been governors. With their vote, women doubtless helped shape history, but they did not -- as antisuffragettes ominously predicted -- "destroy us all."

Indeed, women remained "segregated" socially and "discriminated against" in employment, in unions and in the courts. In 1963 came the federal equal-pay-for-equal-work law. In 1964 came civil rights legislation which specifies that there may be no discrimination in employment based on race, color, religion or sex.

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission was formed to implement that law.

Yet nobody can seriously contend that women do receive equal pay for equal work. In my own profession, a woman must be many times more capable than a man to receive any recognition at all. Even then she is excluded from membership in the all-male National Press Club.

In 1964 Congress was told that the median income for women in each general job category is about half that of men. There is little evidence of much improvement in that ratio in the five years since.

The EEOC has been forced by the physical requirements of some jobs to concede that the 1964 Civil Rights Law must be compromised. Now, under specific guidelines, employers are allowed to advertise for "Men Wanted."

Similarly in Russia, the law provides for women equal pay for equal work and equal opportunities in all careers. Yet what the book says and what happens are two different things. Prof. Nina Orlova, a doctor of law in Moscow, is spokeswoman for a powerful women's organization of 40 million Russian women representing membership in professional organizations, trade unions and those on state and collective farms. She says women must continue to fight for every consideration for the simple reason that "the nature of man is to consider himself superior."

Worldwide, and especially in the United States, women are measurably, probably better off than heretofore. Whether they are happier than heretofore is another question.

But women are discovering -- as others seeking equal rights must -- that evolution, at its most accelerated pace, is agonizingly gradual.

You've come a long way, baby, but you still have a long way to go.

From Congressman BOB PRICE

STATEMENT OF CONGRESSMAN BOB PRICE ON THE REDUCTION OF THE OIL DEPLETION ALLOWANCE

Congressman Bob Price today announced he was totally and unequivocally opposed to what he termed the "unprecedented action" the House Ways and Means Committee took when it voted to slash the oil depletion allowance from 27 1/2 percent to 20 percent.

The Texas Republican charged that, "the unwarranted cutting of the oil depletion allowance was motivated and inspired by individuals and groups in our country who fail to understand the economic conditions accompanying the locating and producing of oil. Rather than examine the true facts and circumstances, these parties have yielded to emotion and misconception, and have erroneously attacked percentage depletion as a tax haven and a tax subsidy."

Price declared, "It has become quite fashionable for eastern big city Congressmen to attack the oil depletion allowance -- they think the issue has a lot of political sex appeal with city dwellers who forget how much of their individual well being and material comforts depend on continued oil production and distribution at stable price levels."

Price related that the fact of the matter is the full depletion allowance is needed to maintain the vitality of the oil extractive industry, an industry in which only 1 out of 9 drillings produce some oil, while merely 1 out of 45 is even profitable. As a natural consequence, net return on the investment in the petroleum industry is lower than the net return on investment of half of all the industries in the United States.

Price warned that tampering with the oil depletion allowance will signal the end of the independent oil industry. Without the full depletion allowance, an independent oil producer would have less incentive to assume the risks of the oil business, and many independent companies which help to keep the petroleum industry competitive would be forced out of business or absorbed into the giant oil corporations. The major oil companies in turn, could counteract the loss in the depletion allowance by increasing the price of their products sold to the general public.

The Texas Republican also warned that the national security of the United States would be impaired by any reduction in oil production caused by a cut in the depletion allowance. Price declared, "Critics of the oil depletion allowance contend that we can supply our petroleum needs from abroad. However, I believe that the situation in the oil-rich Middle East is too uncertain and too volatile for the U.S. to rely on the area as a prime source for oil supply."

Price stated that the value of the full depletion allowance over the last four decades is clear. "It has been the most effective procedure yet devised for maintaining the vitality of the petroleum industry while at the same time providing a fair and equitable industry tax base. Its fairness is evidenced by the fact that the petroleum industry pays 5.1 cents tax for each dollar of gross revenue, while mining and manufacturing corporations pay 5.4 cents, and U.S. business corporations pay 4.5 cents."

Price announced he will reiterate the true facts surrounding the oil depletion allowance to his colleagues. He believes this is a matter too important for partisan or regional politics. He declared, "The retention of the full oil depletion allowance is a matter of national security and individual well being."

The Texas Water Plan

(Explained by Texas Representative Bill Clayton)

I have read many articles about the Texas Water Plan and have studied the effects of the Plan on the future of Texas. The thing that concerns me most is letters to the editors which express non-truths about the Texas Water Plan. Of course, I realize there are those who would like to turn out state back to the birds, animals and barren lands, but I think most Texans are more concerned about human needs. The Bible teaches that God created all things and his highest creation was man. To man he gave the charge to "Be fruitful and replenish the earth, and subdue it." I hope we do not forget these commands and principles when we try to provide for man's needs.

The Texas Water Plan is big and will be costly, but the benefits Texans and their economy will receive from implementation of the Plan will be much, much more than the cost. Our cities and industries will continue to grow if provided ample water supplies and our agriculture land will be able to feed and clothe the increased population of the future. The actual financing of the plan will be the expense of the users of the water. Constitutional Amendment No. 2 on the ballot August 5 would authorize an additional $3.5 billion in bonds to the Water Development Board Fund. This fund has already helped more than 60 cities in Texas by lending them money at interest to provide water facilities for their people. The $3.5 billion will be a continuation of this program with additional loans being made to political subdivisions for meeting their water needs for municipal and industrial use in the years ahead. However, it will all be coordinated and incorporated in a state-wide plan. The plan also considers fresh water inflows for the bays and estuaries to provide an ecological balance in those areas. The enhancement to fish and wildlife will be tremendous as well as refreshing and scenic to the tourist along with all the recreational benefits. Water for agriculture is provided in the plan, but this water will be furnished in cooperation with the Bureau of Reclamation and the Corps of Engineers. Before projects can be approved by Congress, the Bureau studies must show that benefits will exceed cost and the government will be paid back by water fees under user contracts.

The 3.5 billion bond program would be for a period of 40-50 years as need arises. The bonds could not be placed on the market until approved in increments by a 2/3 majority vote of the legislature. This, in effect, assures flexibility in the Texas Water Plan by assuring that the needs of the people are being taken into consideration each time the legislature is asked to approve an increment of bonds for issue. The program financing is similar to the Veterans Land Program and the Texas Opportunity School Loan Program which will not cost the State of Texas because they are loans at interest that are being paid back by veterans and young Texans who borrowed money to finish their college education. Planning and providing for future water supplies will cost approximately 1/4 that spent on highways and about 1/8 that spent on education per year. Without water supplies there would be no need for highways, schools, cities, industry, churches, etc. Water is one element essential to all.

The greatness of Texas and Texans will depend on how we plan and provide for the future. In Proverbs it says that "Where there is no vision, the people perish." Texans have vision and will prove it August 5 by approving Amendment No. 2. If we as a people can split the atom, put a man on the moon, and transplant a human heart, we can -- we must -- and we will provide for our future water supplies.

An Open Letter to the People of Texas...

The availability of an adequate supply of water has always made the difference between prosperity and want--between plenty and famine. For these reasons, water has played a major role in the Texas story--has been the essential element in placing a State known for wide open spaces in the position of sustaining--

- * The Nation's third largest population by 1985;
- * A high rate of growth in business, industry and finance;
- * The Nation's third largest agricultural industry.

Our State's growth projections in these areas nearly defies imagination, and yet experts tell us that these projections and future prosperity cannot be realized unless giant steps are taken now to assure Texas' future water resources.

The Texas Water Plan was developed to make maximum use of the available water in our State and to provide for additional out-of-state water as needed. This work has taken place during all of our administrations as Governor of Texas. The Plan comes to its first real public test on August 5, 1969, when you, the voters of Texas, are being asked to approve Constitutional Amendment No. Two, which will authorize the Texas Water Development Board to sell up to $3.5 billion in additional bonds over a 40-year period, in amounts as needed--money that will eventually be repaid by water users.

We urge you to vote for Constitutional Amendment No. Two on August 5. It may be the most important vote this generation of Texans will cast.

Sincerely,

Sorghum Needs Water to Boost Yields

Top grain sorghum yields are in the making, reports county agricultural agent J.K. Adams, but good water management is required to maintain maximum production potential and at the same time make efficient use of irrigation water.

Irrigations applied during the high water use periods of booting, heading and grain filling are consistent high yield boosters, says Adams. Three to four irrigations as required to supplement rainfall during these growth stages when adequate moisture is essential normally maintain maximum production potential.

Yield increases from a single application emphasize the value of an individual irrigation. Yield increases from an application at 15 inches tall, heading and the milk stage of grain filling were obtained in grain sorghum research at the U.S.D.A. Southwestern Great Plains Research Center at Bushland.

In a three-year study at the Center, irrigations applied at heading increased yields an average of 1,925 pounds per acre while the increase from milk stage applications boosted yields an average of 1,740 pounds. Increases from irrigations when the plants were 15 inches tall averaged 630 pounds. However, in 1964 when early rainfall was below normal, yields were pushed up 1,100 pounds by this irrigation.

In other irrigation research at the Center, grain sorghum receiving two irrigations, one at booting and one at grain filling, yielded within 1,100 pounds of grain sorghum that received four irrigations. These included the same two irrigations plus one prior to booting and one between booting and grain filling.

Soil moisture removal for grain sorghum is about three inches during the 15 days just prior to booting and four and one half inches during the next 15 days when booting and heading occur, explains Adams. Another three and one-half inches are used the next 15 days which will include the milk stage of grain filling. Eleven to 12 of the 22 to 24 inches of useable water required during the growing season are used during this critical 40 to 45-day period.

Water use rates may even exceed these amounts during hot dry weather such as that had recently on the plains. Another 3 to 4 inches of water are then needed during the rest of the grain filling stage for good grain development.

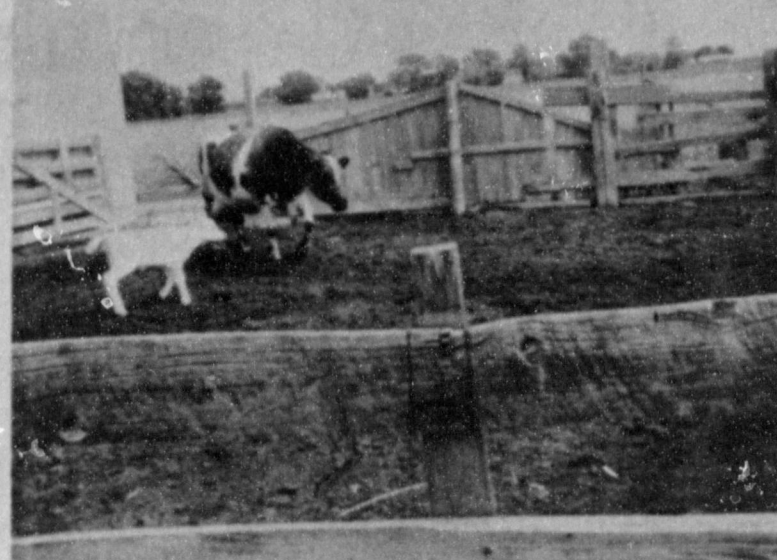

Research has shown that the grain sorghum plant can tolerate moderate moisture stress during early vegetative growth and responds well to water applied beginning at the boot stage. Maximum water use efficiency can be obtained from irrigations applied at this growth stage and at the heading and grain filling stages, contends Adams.

He has not learned the lesson of life who does not every day surmount a fear.

Old Fiddler Contest Slated

LUBBOCK--The second annual old time fiddlers' contest has been carded as a special feature of the 52nd annual Panhandle South Plains Fair, slated here Sept. 22-27.

The contest, offering $425 in cash premiums, is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. on the final day of the weeklong show. The premium list has been boosted by $110 from 1968, according to Cecil Caldwell, contest chairman.

Contestants will compete in an open bracket for fiddlers of all ages. Another optional division for persons 55 years and older also has been established, Caldwell pointed out.

Final competition and championship fiddling will begin at 7 p.m. on Sept. 27.

Approximately 76 invitations are being mailed to area fiddlers, but persons who do not receive an entry blank and desire to compete may write to the Fair Association, P.O. Box 208, Lubbock, Texas 79408. A record number of entries is expected.

Other contest committee members include A.J. Mears, Walt Edney, Nate Stephenson and Mrs. Edith Walker, secretary. Judges will be announced at a later date.

Premiums totaling $37,235 --an all time high-- will be offered as the regional exposition unveils its 52nd annual production.

A country and western variety spectacular will highlight stage entertainment in Fair Park Coliseum.

Due here are Marty Robbins (Sept. 22-23), Charley Pride (Sept. 24-25), and Buck Owens and his Buckaroos (Sept. 26-27). Emcee Roy Clark, television's "Gentle Ben" and his playmate Peggy Ann Nielsen, comedian Mike Caldwell and The

Spectacular Musical 'Texas' Draws Crowds

More than 20,000 people have seen the "TEXAS" production which plays each evening in the Palo Duro Canyon. It is a spectacular musical drama by the Pulitzer prize-winner, Paul Green, and tells the story of the Plains in song and story, dance and light and sound, bringing to the audience the conflicts, the storms, the drought and the prairie fires. Audiences in this fourth season, 1969, have averaged more than a thousand people an evening, and they have come from nearby and the ends of the earth. For tickets, write to Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015.

To discover who made up the audiences, and where they came from, the staff made a survey during this second week of performances. They found one man who had seen the show three or four times. They encountered one visitor who rode a horse in the first production ever given in the theatre who had brought his children and grandchildren down to see the place and the show. The found students from Sweden and the Avon manager from the British West Indies, a business man from Chile and a coach from Perth, Australia, a doctor and an electronic engineer from New York and a librarian from Long Island, housewives from the panhandle and North Dakota and Louisiana, a photographer from Mississippi and a sanitarian from Arlington, Texas, a glass worker from Houston and a rubber worker from Akron, Ohio, a mechanic from New York who heard about the show on a plane, a farmer from Follett and several ranchers from the area and a nurse from Hobart, a pilot from Irving and a computer operator from Detroit, Mich., a suburban developer from Hereford on his fifth visit, auto dealers, beauticians, businessmen, ministers, bankers, factory workers, telephone men, well servicers, advertising men and secretaries, railroad men and truckers, roofers and oil field workers, barbers and chemists, professors and auditors, teachers, and a New Mexico museum manager and the TOPS Club from Amherst.
