Kitty's Korner

by Kitty Montgomery

In an unusual show of independence, yours truly did not come to the office Saturday or Sunday. As a result of this new found freedom, most of Monday was spent opening mail, most of which went into file "13," the trash bin. With the paper shortage, I continue to be amazed at the tons of good paper we throw away weekly, all of which came out of our drawer at the post office. By far the largest part of our "throw away" mail comes from politicians, and with this being an election year it's really getting heavy. Sometimes there are two or three press releases a day from one political aspirant. Of course, I guess they need all the free publicity they can get, but since we are not a non-profit organization, we just frown on giving space away.

Then there are all the organizations and institutions who fill our mail box with all sorts of information. Very little of which we ever use. This weekly newspaper is devoted to local news and we are not trying to compete with any daily. So all this engraved, important stationery goes into the trash along with the drag-race circulars. Then there are the association periodicals, and it seems now that every association puts out a magazine a month at least. These, of course, of no value to this newspaper unless there is news of a local nature contained therein, and what old country editor has time to peruse all these looking for local interest news. Not this one.

There are all kinds of releases from all kinds of government agencies. To even scan over most of them gives the reader a case of mass confusion. So most of these go into the trash without so much as having their envelope slit with a letter opener. Another tremendous waste.

If we had the technical know and the equipment to recycle paper, we'd end our paper shortage inside of a week.

We had a preview of March Monday here in Ozona. Even some of the oldtimers had never seen the wind blow so. It was dangerous for a body to be out on the street in a car, much less afoot. I personally was in a head-on collision with a 40-gallon galvanized trash can as I turned into my drive at noon. It was traveling above the 55-mph speed too.

We were a little late this week. We lost the basketball team picture and spent two hours with the entire staff hunting for it. No luck.

If it had not been for some contributions from the outside world there is some doubt that we could have gotten the paper out this week. Bill Thornton gave us the clever head in the middle of the front page and Ted White brought his quarterly report.

Grocer Puts Runner In Pantyhose Crook's Plans

A hunch on the part of Bill Thornton, owner-manager of Jack's Super Market here, led to the arrest of an Italian man and the detention of his wife, an Argentine citizen, last Thursday afternoon here.

The man, Giuseppe Gurrieri, entered the store Thursday afternoon looking for the manager and representing himself as a pantyhose salesman.

Thornton noted that the man's description and accent was very similar to that of a man who had sold some bad merchandise to a store owner in Mason. The Mason merchant found that underneath two or three pair of high quality hose in a box, there were quantities of cheap, inferior pairs.

While Mrs. Thornton was examining the high quality sample which could not even be snagged with a pocket knife, Thornton went to the back of the store and called the sheriff's department.

When Deputy Sheriff Sam Worthington walked into the store, he would be salesman made haste to pack up his goods and get out, but was apprehended along with his wife and lodged in Crockett County jail.

Authorities discovered that the couple had visas, but that they had expired. They were then turned over to the U. S. Border Patrol and Sunday they were transferred from the jail here to San Antonio where they were deported to Argentina.

Gurrieri was identified on a federal unlawful-flight-to-avoid-prosecution warrant from Kentucky after a charge of theft by false pretext was filed there. A similar incident occurred in Big Lake Thursday and a charge of deceptive trade practices was filed against the man there. Other incidents were reported in several West Texas Counties.

Monies were refunded to those store owners calling the sheriff's office here before the couple was turned over to the federal authorities.

It was decided to hold a Poor Man's Supper toward the end of April to raise funds toward various projects.

The Club hopes to purchase an audio-visual machine for use in instructing the bands. This machine allows video playback as well as audio and is an important aid for students at all levels. This machine is in common use in many school systems in the area.

Other projects will be the keeping of a scrapbook, making tuba covers and berets for the tuba players and possibly a special uniform for drummers.

The next meeting will be held in the band hall on March 14 at 7:30 p.m.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

Meets Tonight Roping Club

The Ozona Roping Club will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Chamber of Commerce Building to organize for the roping season.

Plans will be made for the summer ropings which begin in April each year, and officers will be elected.

All members are urged to be present, along with anyone who is interested in joining the club.

High Winds The Cause of Fires And Damage

High winds, gusting to 50 miles per hour, all day Monday created chaos in Ozona, and sent volunteer firemen out on two grass fire calls which took the better part of the day to extinguish.

There was damage to trees and property, but of an undetermined amount. Around 100 feet of concrete brick wall was blown to the ground at a storage building site behind the Arco Service Station.

A large apricot tree at the corner of Ave. G and second street was snapped at the ground and broken.

Firemen were called to assist with a grass fire on the Rocker B Ranch near Barnhart about 12:30 Monday. One truck and crew was dispatched and returned around 5 p.m. after the fire had consumed some thirty sections of grass land. The fire was finally contained by a dry creek bed and bulldozers.

The truck remaining in Ozona was called out before 5 o'clock to the James Childress ranch west of Ozona where a grass fire was burning out of control. Assisted by a truck from Sheffield they finally contained the fire and returned around 8 p.m. No estimate on the amount of pasture burned was available. However, there was evidence of arson. Firemen found two places on the highway approximately a mile apart which showed evidence of deliberate fire being started.

Dirt, dust and trash blew tree-top high all day long with flying cans creating a potential hazard.

Representing every state and the District of Columbia, the 51 Betty Crocker Family Leaders of Tomorrow, together with a faculty advisor, will gather in Washington, D. C., in April, for an expense-paid educational tour of the capital city and Minneapolis, Minn. During the tour, personal observations and interviews are added to state level judging which results in the selection of the All-American Family Leader of Tomorrow, who receives a $5,000 college scholarship. Second, third and fourth place national winners receive scholarships increased to $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000 respectively.

Other new officers who were introduced at the banquet include Jimmie Lott, executive vice president; Dr. Gary Vannoy, second vice president; Jerry Hill, third vice president; J. W. Johnigan, fourth vice president; and Dorris Haire, secretary-treasurer. New directors include Vannoy, J. W. Johnigan, W. R. Baggett, Jr. and Hill. Holdover directors are Claude Montya, Rev. John Berkley, Jack Baggett, Brown, Harold Shaw, Haire, Glenn Burns and Lott.

Results of the election of officers at the Ozona Country Club were announced this week by Sonny Kirklen, secretary for the organization. Ballots were mailed out last month and the return was counted last week.

New officers are B. W. Stuart, president; Dick Webster, vice-president; John R. Humnicutt, John Childress and Jack Baggett, directors. Holdover directors are Joe Williams, Freddie Nicks and Douglas Moore.

Dr. Andrew Edington, retired president of Schreiner Institute, delivered a humorous address.

Dr. Joe B. Logan, outgoing president of the Chamber of Commerce, reviewed some of the organization's accomplishments during the 1973 year, reporting on tourists and the chamber's hunting program. He noted that rental inquiries jumped 50 percent during the year and attributed the increase to oil activity in the county.

Dr. Logan introduced the new president, J. D. Brown, who spoke of plans for the coming year. Future plans include a women's division or auxiliary, a defense program and the possibility of a welcoming committee.

THE COST OF NATIONAL DEFENSE

The most fundamental responsibility of any government is to provide for the defense of the nation against possible external attack. The latest Pentagon budget — $85.8 billion — is a sober reflection of the continuing high cost of meeting that responsibility.

The peril against which this sum is stacked is, of course, the immense and growing military power of the Soviet Union.

Back in the euphoric days of the mid 1960's when the U.S. still enjoyed clear strategic superiority over the Soviet Union, then Secretary of Defense McNamara argued that the Soviet Union would not even try to match the U.S. missile for missile. When events caused this happy hypothesis to fall on its face, the argument was modified to say that the Soviets would surely be content with equality, if only the U.S. did nothing to increase its own forces. With this hope in ruins the U.S. signed the SALT treaty which froze Soviet ICBM quantitative superiority to the extent of 1,618 vs. 1,054 for the U.S. The new philosophy was that the Soviets might finally be satisfied with that and call a halt to the arms race.

Not so. Since May 1972, the Soviets have tested four new land-based missiles. Three of them, the SS-17, SS-18, and SS-19, have been tested with Multiple Independently Targeted Warheads (MIRV). Moreover, the SS-19 and SS-17, though theoretically "light" ICBMs, have two or three times the lifting capacity of the roughly 1,000 older SS-11 missiles they might replace.

If the replacement missiles were deployed for the entire Soviet force, which is legal under the SALT treaty of May 1972, the Soviets would have a 5-to-1 advantage over the U.S. in missile weight lifting power in the 1980's. Such is the assessment of the current U.S. Defense Secretary, James Schlesinger.

There are still Americans who would gamble the future of the country on the comforting idea that none of this is sinister. Soviet military policy, they say, is the prisoner of the Soviet marshalls, who are only acting like military men always act. If we simply sit tight and do nothing, the "softliners" in the Kremlin will eventually prevail, bring the marshalls to heel, and agree to meaningful disarmament.

For our part, we don't believe this is how the Soviets operate, and we think history bears us out. If we want to ease the arms race, we must first demonstrate that we don't intend to lose it. The new U.S. defense budget is not a bit too high. Its only fault is that it may already be too little and too late.

THEY'RE AT IT AGAIN

Ever since the House of Representatives voted overwhelmingly, years ago, to set up a committee to protect this country from subversive activities, efforts have been made to destroy it.

Each year, as regular as clock work, the Communists and other groups and individuals who would like to see our government fall have attempted to kill the committee. We can thank our lucky stars that so far they have failed. The present House Committee on Internal Security and its predecessor have withstood these attacks due to the fact that a majority in the House have always realized the great necessity for this Committee to continue its work.

Its accomplishments have been many. It has delved into the devious machinations of subversive organizations and brought to light information that has been used by law enforcement officials all over the country.

Now a new tactic is being tried to get rid of the Committee. The Bolling Committee, set up to reorganize the House, has formally decided that its functions should be transferred to the Judiciary Committee. However, no provision has been made to transfer the Committee staff or files. A full Committee with a full staff is still desperately needed.

There is too much work to be done. For instance, the Committee is authorized: "to make investigations from time to time of (1) the extent, character, and objectives within the U.S. of organizations and groups, whether of foreign origin, their members, agents, and affiliates, which seek to establish or assist in the establishment of a totalitarian dictatorship within the United States, or to overthrow, alter, or assist in the overthrow or alteration of, the form of government of the United States or of any State thereof, by force, violence, treachery, espionage, sabotage, insurrection, or of any unlawful means (2) the extent, character, objectives and activities within the United States of organizations or groups, their members, agents and affiliates, which incite or employ acts of force, violence, terrorism, or any unlawful means to obstruct or oppose the lawful authority of the Government of the United States in the execution of any law or policy affecting the internal security of the United States (3) all other questions... relating to the foregoing that would aid the Congress or any committee of the House in any necessary remedial legislation."

We submit it would be dangerous at this time to stop this work. We call upon all loyal Americans to support the continuance of this Committee.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights
by Bill Boykin
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN, Tex. — Long before the Constitutional Convention completes its work, serious thought is being given to when revision of the basic laws should be scheduled for a statewide vote.

At the same time, a group of lawmakers (probably in the minority) is agitating to recess along about the middle of next month until after the primary election.

Convention President Price Daniel Jr. favored a May 4 vote initially — on party primary ballots. With legal difficulties in sight and uncertainty over convention completion date, he indicated he could go along with a November 5 (general election) vote date on the revision proposal.

Daniel felt the election should be called while interest in the convention's product is hot — and still sees some points in favor of a special election before November.

Proponents of November balloting argue time is needed to develop public understanding of the revision document and to refute opposition attacks. Lawmaker-delegates backing a recess until after the primaries feel more objective voting on revision can be assured after election campaigns are behind them.

Others contend a shorter recess is advisable so delegates can see what they have done and take the pulse of voters back home on revision proposals before a final, irrevocable vote.

Daniel insists there is still grounds for optimism about completing work of the convention by early April — with or without a recess of just one week.

ENERGY BILL HIT — Top Texas officials claimed provisions of a federal energy emergency bill would give the U.S. Secretary of Interior control over oil production traditionally reserved for states.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby Jr., House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., Atty. Gen. John Hill and Railroad Commission Chairman Jim Langdon called on the U.S. Senate to recommit the bill to Conference Committee.

They complained the measure would give the secretary power to set monthly maximum efficient rates of production. Another provision would allow the official to call for production in excess of maximum efficient rates for 90 days or more.

GAMBLING REFERENDUM SOUGHT — A campaign is under way to force a statewide referendum at May 4 primary elections on legalizing horse race gambling.

Enough signatures have been obtained to get a place on the Republican ballot, but supporters of the referendum are far short of the 110,000 signers needed for a Democratic vote.

Heads of Texas Citizens for Parimutuel Horse Racing reported they have collected 40,000 signatures on petitions. Texans last voted on the issue in 1968 and rejected it in both primaries. Democrats turned it down 764,173 to 664,859 and Republicans nixed it 55,525 to 50,837.

Such a referendum has no binding effect on the legislature.

ECONOMIC STUDY ORDERED — Research has been authorized to reduce harmful economic effects of closing military bases at Laredo, Mineral Wells and Weatherford.

Texas Industrial Commission will direct the research, which is financed by a $195,050 Economic Development Administration grant. Laredo hopes to make its air base a business and commercial center. Industrial promotion and water resource analysis are planned for Mineral Wells and Weatherford.

Washington News Letter

by Congressman O. C. Fisher

A $100-million federally financed public corporation to run a nationwide legal services program for the "poor" has been approved by both the House and Senate. It now goes to a conference committee to iron out the differences between the two versions.

Approved by the House last year, this expanded project is to take the place of one OEO launched during LBJ's time. It now has some 2,500 lawyers on the payroll, drawing up to $25,000. The new version vastly expands the total outlay. It adds up to more federal bureaucracy.

Traditionally, local bar associations made arrangements among members to represent the poor, where needed. But under this program lawyers on this payroll have an incentive to promote business, mostly against Uncle Sam, some seeking lawsuits for forced busing, "prisoners' rights," abortion and higher welfare payments, and "class action" litigation.

Boiled down, it may help "poor" lawyers more than it will help "poor" clients.

I'm opposed to any pay raise for Congressmen, federal judges, cabinet members and some others included in a salary increase proposal of a commission created to make periodic recommendations on the subject. In fact, I voted against the last increase, some six years ago, the last raise for those in this category. In these times when we need to be tightening our belts such raises set bad examples.

Although the Energy Agency thinks Daylight Saving Time saves as much as 100,000 barrels of fuel each day, this estimate remains unproven. The saving is probably less. I have introduced a bill to repeal the law on the subject which Congress enacted in December. In fact, I was one of those who voted against the December enactment.

WHERE THERE'S A WALL

Parts of Hadrian's Wall, which was finished about 127 A.D. along a line not far from what is to this day the border between England and Scotland, are still well preserved. It ran, according to the Teacher's Scotch Information Centre, from sea to sea and was built by the Roman emperor Hadrian.

The Romans invaded Britain in the 1st century A.D. They added southern Britain to their empire as the province Britannia. But they were unable to subdue the fierce Scottish tribes to the north.

To keep them from invading Britannia, the Romans built a massive wall across the island.

They called the land north of the wall Caledonia; and they called the people Picts (from the Latin pictus, meaning "painted") because they painted their bodies.

The great feat of labor and engineering was completed in about five years, the work being almost entirely done by the soldiers of the three legions regularly stationed in Britain. Many inscriptions have been found built into the wall, showing that the job was divided up into short sections and assigned to small military units.

Hadrian's Wall is one of the most striking monuments to the perseverance and engineering skill of the Roman legions who built it and to the ambition and authority of the emperor who planned its construction.

All in all, it was a job well done.

Spring On The Pecos - - - -

By—Ted White

Spring wants to come, even before winter is over, and in spite of no rain since last October. When spring gets ready it is hard to hold back. Green is showing in some of last year's grass—not the green, green, but a token gesture. A few green weeds are hugging the ground as though they were afraid to venture far from their dear mother.

On February tenth we heard the cooing of a white wing dove. Thousands of mourning doves have descended upon us, but they are not mourning audibly yet. Some black birds are cackling amongst the reeds along the Pecos River. Rousousided towhees are flitting from bush to bush. We sighted one lone phainopepla on the fifth of February. He is a very small black bird with a top knot on his head, and he shows a white spot underneath each wing as he flies overhead. Bird books list this beautiful bird as very rare in Texas. We failed to see one last year at this time. Only last year I have failed to see one over toward the west mill in February since I first was introduced to the mysteries of the book. I'm a confirmed bird watcher now; sometimes with rifle in hand.

Two bushes are already adorned with green leaves at this early date—the elbow bush and another of lesser note. The agrito leaves are taking on some color. It has got to rain.

We turned two little cut-back lambs into the horse trap last fall after shearing time. They were of neuter gender at the time and had a not too bright future. They huddled together for protection and companionship, such as it was.

They were two lonely pot-bellied little creatures, cut adrift to fend for themselves. No telling what they talked about all winter, since neither knew very much about anything. They struggled through the lean winter together—sharing board and bed. One little fellow sprouted two tender horns, of which sister was inordinately proud.

Recently a rift has come up between these two forlorn little creatures, who didn't belong in any particular pasture or to any specific bunch of sheep. Bucky Boy's voice has changed slightly. Nature has suggested that he can learn a lot more by following some big bucks that have been introduced to the horse trap. These big bucks, including yearlings and older, have finished their fall pursuits and are segregated into a tight and strictly masculine conclave. They are telling stories that interest Bucky Boy no end.

A couple of days ago as I rode my dainty little sorrel bronc across the horse trap I heard plaintive and incessant bleating. The lonely little ewe lamb was searching vainly for her companion—her friend. From my vantage point I could see Bucky Boy, head down, grazing along with the big bucks. He was in easy hearing of little sister, but he didn't bother to answer or look up. The big bucks were grazing, and he was grazing too. The little ewe lamb could not see him on account of the sotol and low brush, so she continued to run about, crying as she went. I bleated a couple of times—a feeble imitation—which appealed to her immediately. She came running, only to find that I was not the one. She continued to run about, voicing her frustration and grief.

Bucky Boy ignores her now, but the shoe will be on the other foot next fall when the first cool breezes blow in from the north. Sister will have green grass to eat all summer, and she will grow fat and shy. Her eyes will be soft and her voice will be low and fetching. With a brighter outlook, she may forgive and forget the cruel rejection of long, long ago.

TRASH OF ALL KINDS piled up at the fence at Powell Field here Monday afternoon. Newspaper tissues and the like caught on the top part of the fence while heavier objects lodged at the bottom. Tumbleweeds blew from all over town to add to the disarray. County maintenance men had their work cut out for them Tuesday morning as the clean-up began.

"To save energy and money this summer... cool your home with Gas Central Air Conditioning.

You save with a gas system because it's a more efficient energy user than its electric counterpart. It's more efficient because gas, unlike electricity, is a direct source of energy. You don't have the energy loss that occurs in electrical generation and transmission.

We help you save in another way, too.

In addition to determining the exact cooling requirements of your home, our cooling specialists also check your attic insulation. If it's insufficient, insulation is added and included as part of the job. Proper insulation saves energy and money for both cooling and heating. So, beat the summer rush.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

Beauty in a garden can be yours if you continue your plans now. Fulfill your dreams with spring and summer beauty and celebrate the brilliance of the fall season.

Beginning now fall-planted bulbs are coming into bloom to make a spectacular show. Also, plans now will bring a more colorful spring for many years if you plant peonies next September or October. To send in your order soon will assure you of a better selection and grade of peony roots. These lovely garden perennials are known to have lived many years without being moved. I have had them to bloom the first year, but once established you can expect beautiful blooms each year, if properly planted and cared for.

For this area, select the early varieties that will bloom before it is too hot. If you mounded your peonies in the fall and they are beginning to show new growth, remove the excess soil very carefully. After buds are about 6 inches high, make a circle 6 inches away from the crown and apply an annual top dressing of bulb food (about 1 cup) or (5-10-10) fertilizer. Dig it in lightly and give a thorough soaking. Should your old peonies fail to bloom you may have them planted too deep. Only 2 inches or less of soil should be directly above the eyes or buds of the tubers. Geranium cuttings can be successfully rooted most any time of the year, but the most cuttings can be snapped off or cut right at or just below a node. Remove lower leaves and stick them immediately into clean sand for about an inch. Shade cuttings lightly. They should be rooted in about 15 days if bottom heat is provided. If you have Chinese holly, it can be cut back as severely as desired. New growth will come from dormant buds. This should be done late this month or just before new growth begins, which may be now.

A low, attractive evergreen shrub that does well here is the Indian Hawthorn (Raphiolepis indica). Its glossy, leathery leaves make it an attractive choice for background plantings, informal hedges, low dividers, or accent plants. With little pruning it can be kept at 3 feet almost indefinitely. For bushy compact plants, prune them when planting, if not already pruned, and pinch back new growth immediately after flowering. For open growth, let the plant develop naturally and thin out occasionally. Cut back vertical growth to encourage branchings. Pinch side branches to promote upright growth. From late winter to spring plants are covered with white flowers tinged with pink.

WIND OF FAITH

Old-timers used to rely on this mill. This mill used to depend on the right wind. Despite man's most valiant efforts the wheel was frequently at a standstill. What then? Waiting, waiting, waiting! What patience they must have learned—only faith sustained them. The wind would blow again. The patient life also requires a foundation of faith. It can come early or late, slowly or fast. If you lack the necessary faith to fulfill your life's needs, turn to the Church. The wind will blow again.
