marks the end of vacations for the Stockman staff. I spent a week getting over my vacation, and now it looks like I'll have to spend next week getting over the type-setter's vacation. She's gone this week and I've been forced to do the honors. Please don't mention any typographical errors, should there be any, of course.

Speaking of vacations, if your spouse wants to live it up and you just want to relax and rest, I would suggest you take separate vacations. Indeed, go in different directions if possible. Our together-type vacation was an absolute disaster. We drove thousands of miles, even ried Albert Bailey December through deserts and bad roads. We went west, to get away from traffic and the population Sanderson. explosion. Well, it seems that everyone else in the United States had the same idea. I've never seen so much traffic in my life, and all pulling something except for the motorcycle tourists. We headed for the mountains, and made the tip of the Panhandle, Texas that is, the first night. We were joined where the museum is located for dinner by a drunk we had never seen before (don't know if it would have been any more expanded and the Baileys bearable if we had seen him before). He picked us out of a crowded restaurant. My Weight Watchers dinner was ruined, and Tom is still scratching his head. We left the next morning without coffee. Couldn't get served in the only restaurant open in town. Tom said we'd get coffee "down the road." Well, 1954 with "Madye's" as the we did, but it was 140 miles "down the road." I ordered a 4-minute boiled egg and it sent the cook into a rage. We a corporation with headquarters finally got to the mountains. spent one night on the third floor of a quaint lodge, no elevator. By 6:00 a.m. the next morning, my hyper-active Madye Jo Humphreys of Shelspouse was ready to move on. He rattled papers until I got my weary bones out of bed.

We toured Indian reservations, Indian jewelry shops, artists' haunts, you name it, we did it.

I was sure we'd spend the night in Santa Fe, but the streets were too narrow and congested, so we moved on. Tom is a wide-open-spaces type, and believe me, that's all we saw from there to Roswell. Not a tree in sight. I was ready to come home, but the next morning we lit our motel and we lost at the races. After the second day, we left immediately after the fell to compensate. last race and headed for Ozona. We got home at 4:00 a.m. Saturday morning.

The Labor Day weekend will find me at home. I'm the one who wanted to rest.

Screwworms In County Increase

Crockett County ranchmen reported 28 cases of screwworms this past week to the Screwworm Eradication Program, according to County Agent Pete Jacoby.

Jacoby said the county has had 98 cases reported up to the first of the week and he received 10 postive notifications Labor Day Tuesday.

A large refrigerated box was trucked in from Mission Monday and set up at the Crockett County Airport for the purpose of holding sterile flies until they can be picked up by the ranchmen who have confirmed screwworm cases. Plans call for sterile flies to be flown in once a week from Mission to the local airport.

Ranchmen are being asked distribute sterile flies areas where screwworm cases were found. In addition, sterile flies are being dropped from airplanes for three weeks on ranches with confirmed screwworm cases. All ranchmen should report all cases found by sending in all worm samples, says the county

Enrollment Set For 4-H Club Food Projects

Enrollment for the 4-H Club food and nutrition project groups will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 3 and 4, at the Ozona Community Center from 7 until 9

Mrs. Herculano Delgado and Mrs. Pete Zapata will be enrolling the youths.

To be eligible, a youngster must have reached the age of 9 years on or before January 1, 1974, to participate as a junior 4-H member.

Senior members must have reached the age of 14, but must not have passed their 19th birthday by Jan. 1974.

Fees are the same as last year: $8,75 for a combination resident hunting and fishing license, $5.25 for resident hunting, $4.25 for resident and non-resident fishing and $37.50 for a non-resident hunting license. This year's fishing license will be valid for one year from the date of purchase.

Three turkey tags are on the new hunting licenses and must be used much the same as are deer tags. New licenses are printed on a special paper which is resistant to tears and water--something which should prove useful to both outdoorsmen and game wardens trying to decipher licenses dunked in water and otherwise roughly handled. Both deer and turkey tags are easily separated from the rest of the license by perforations and there is also a perforation on the edge of each tag where a string or wire can be inserted for attachment to harvested game.

Sept. 1, 1974, is the date when new hunting and fishing licenses will be required.

GOVERNMENT CAN STOP INFLATION

Americans have expressed near unanimous approval of President Ford's announcement that he intends to tackle inflation as the nation's Number One problem. And, although many have expressed doubt that the Government can do anything very effective to curb inflation, the fact is that the Government does have that power - the very power of Government which has, in fact, fed the fires of inflation.

In a recently published pamphlet written by Wesley H. Hillendahl, Vice President and director of business research for the Bank of Hawaii,* the role played by government spending is dramatically illustrated. Statistics show that for many years the combined spending of federal, state and local governments amounted to just over 20 per cent of personal income; in 1947, government spending equalled close to 23 per cent. However, by 1950, the figure had crept to 27.7 per cent; in 1955, to 32.4 per cent, and on up through the years until the last available statistics, for 1973, shows that the government spent 43.3 per cent of all personal income in the United States. This means that for over five months of the year, you are working for the government - since government can spend only that which it first takes from people.

To make matters much worse, however, Congress, while voting to spend more and more, has failed to increase taxes to pay for the government's bills. As a result, government has gone further and further into debt; and as government has gone into debt, interest rates have skyrocketed so that in addition to paying taxes on spending, the wage earner is further taxed to pay interest on the national debt.

Ironically, although the self-described "liberals" who have fostered huge government expenses say that they are doing so because of their desire to "help" the poor, the downtrodden, the aged, retired, sick, etc., these are the very people who suffer most from the resulting impact of inflation. Retirement funds, savings, and the modest income of the retired shrink in value, and the standard of living they expected to enjoy vanishes like a cloud of

Mr. Hillendahl clearly points to the solution. "A first step in this direction (of killing inflation) would be to bring down the rate of growth of combined federal, state and local government spending to parallel the growth of personal income. Having stabilized this relationship, long range targets should be established to gradually bring total government spending down to 25 per cent of personal income as an upper limit." Hillendahl then goes on to set forth a step-by-step program to obtain this

Unfortunately, the "liberals" in Congress are, at this moment, proposing that the "way out" of our national financial crisis is to repeat the same error and call for more government spending to "solve" the problem - such as, for example, the proposed new government bureau to be called the "Consumer Protection" Agency," which would cost millions of dollars to operate and will increase the burdens already carried by the business (money producing) segment of our economic system.

Let's hope that President Ford is successful. Let us further hope that the American people will demonstrate sufficient sophistication in economics to demand that the battle against inflation begin right where inflation began: in Washington, D.C.

* The title of the pamphlet, by Wesley H. Hillendahl, is. "Big. Government's Destruction of the American Economy." It would be well worth your while to write for a copy.

BIG BROTHER BUCKLES UP

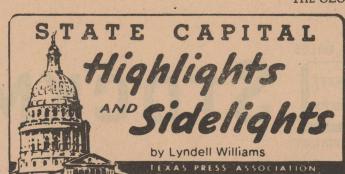

A strong move is underway in Congress to repeal the Federal regulation requiring the interlock seatbelt and buzzer system in new cars. This blatant example of "big brotherism" at its worst has generated more constituent mail than almost any other recent issue, according to some members of Congress.

"I personally believe every driver should use seatbelts and I believe they should be encouraged to do so," said Sen. Thomas Eagleton (D-Mo.) in a recent speech, "But I do not believe that the Federal Government has a right to order an individual; in a matter that concerns only himself, to do something that it thinks. is in his best interest."

Eagleton, along with Sen. James Buckley (Cons. R-N.Y.) and 13 other Senators, has introduced a bill which would require auto manufacturers to continue offering such equipment, but would leave its purchase by car buyers optional. The bill, already passed by the House, would repeal a regulation in effect less than one

The interlock and buzzer system - annoyingly familiar to. Gen. John Hill held. anyone with a 1974 car - is not the safety panacea that its sponsors claim if to be. There is a potential danger of attempting to restart a stalled car quickly in moving traffic when a belt is not fastened. And, at any rate, a recent study by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety concluded that only 18 per cent of drivers of buzzer-equipped cars use seatbelts, as compared to 16 per cent without buzzers.

Beyond the questions of the merits of seatbelts, however, is the more important philosophical question involved. In the words of Senator Eagleton, the current regulation "is a direct intrusion" on the right of any individual to make a free and responsible judgment, on his own, for his own self-protection ... for every owner of a 1974 car, this buzzer and interlock system is a daily reminder of where the Federal Government has run amok."

AUSTIN, Tex. - Battle lines are drawn for the State Democratic Convention here September 17.

Liberal delegates, although apparently outnumbered, asserted their intentions at a recent meeting in San Antonio to claim their share of convention

- First, they made clear, they will fight for proportional representation on the State Democractic Executive Committee, the party's policy-making and house-keeping body in Texas.

— Second, they are demanding their share of the 76 delegates to the national Democratic mid-term miniconvention in Kansas City next December.

- The liberals also made preparations for expressing their views on the party platform, resolutions and rules.

— Finally, they indicated they may challenge Gov. Dolph Briscoe's choice for SDÉC chairman and other committee officers. Choices of incumbent governors for these posts traditionally have gone unchallenged where they have majority control of conventions.

The "open party" Democrats at the San Antonio session adopted a platform committing themselves to a state party organization that will support Democratic candidates and principles at all levels rather than "promoting the policies of incumbent governors Bob Bullock of Austin, Democratic nominee for comptroller, is being urged to oppose incumbent SDEC Chairman Calvin Guest of Bryan, Governor Briscoe's choice for a second term.

Meanwhile, the national Democratic charter commission broke up in anger when party regulars and reformers clashed over reform measures in the proposed Democratic constitution.

The recent light showers here in town gave us a respite from daily watering for a few days, but we are still hoping for that good soaking rain. August doldrums, summer listlessness, and vacations may tempt us to lessen gardening activities, but this is a critical time for shrubs, trees, and other plants. A lack of moisture now will weaken these plants, making them less resistant to winter, only a few months away. Peonies should be moved as seldom as possible, but if your plants seem to be crowded, and flowering has diminished each season, now and on through October is the time to move them to a new location. If planning for new peony plants this fall, start preparing holes for them now. They should be 18"x18" deep and wide. Give them rich soil in a sunny spot and plant so that eyes on roots will be one and one-half inches deep. Check your old clumps also to see if they have been covered deeply, for this causes a flowering failure. Dig and separate each clump to be moved into several divisions, each one should have at least three to five growth buds or "eyes" on the root crown.

Another perennial that needs to be divided about every four years is the day lily. This will allow plants to become established before winter and assure bloom for next spring if cared for properly.

For late fall and winter geranium blooms indoors. start cuttings now. Healthy cuttings taken at this time will grow and mature into blooming size plants to enjoy during the winter.

Perhaps you have noticed how the crepe myrtle likes summer heat. As the temperature increases, many garden plants lose a good bit of their enthusiasm, but not crepe myrtle. Heat seems only to stimulate this plant to better flower production. They are easy to grow and have few insects and disease problems. Give them sun, good drainage, moderate water and reasonably good soil and they present a colorful spot. Plan to put one or more in your landscape next year.

> The reluctance to separate himself emotionally from home and parents--especially from mothers--is a typical feeling for many 5- and 6-year-olds. Mastering this separation experience is a necessary step in the growing-up process for all boys and girls. It is important for parents to recognize the difference between separation feelings and separation problems or symptoms. Most children experience separation feelings.

Usual feelings about separation which are normally expressed by young children are sadness, fear and anger. The child may feel sad and not know why. He may be fearful of being with people he does not know well. He may feel angry at his mother for letting him go to school, leaving him and exposing him to a new-and perhaps unpleasant world.

Some children express dirseparated from parents. They talk about their feelings, cry, or invent reasons for not going to school. Other children express their concerns indirectly. ABOUT OUR

DODGE RAMCHARGER CLEARANCE!

FACT: IT HAS NEW FULL-TIME FOUR-WHEEL DRIVE.

Ramcharger was built for people who like to get off the beaten path but don't want to be bothered shifting in and out of four-wheel drive or getting out to lock or unlock the front wheel hubs.

FACT: IT HAS ELECTRONIC IGNITION.

Like all our American-built cars and sport/utility vehicles, Ramcharger comes with money-saving Electronic Ignition.

FACT: IT GIVES YOU A WIDE CHOICE OF OPTIONS AND ENGINES...EVEN TOPS.

Your new Ramcharger can have power steering, AM/FM radio, automatic speed control, air conditioning, clock or tachometer, and more. You can get a fourspeed transmission with three different V8s (including the standard 318 V8). Ramcharger has a choice of tops, including one with a power-assist liftgate that practically lifts itself. In short, Ramcharger has it all, and that's a fact.
