FRIDAY, MARCH 3, 1893

CLEVELAND's capacity for unearthing unknown and hidden talent is marvelous.

THE legislature! did you say? Why they are drawing their per diem with unprecedented promptness and the most exalted self-satisfac-

THE meeting of merchants and farmers at Crockett, a couple of weeks since, has resulted in organized action throughout the cotton growing section. Arkansas and other cotton growing states have called conventions to meet on March 10th and a general convention of all the cotton states is to come off at Vicksburg on March 20.

THREE members of Cleveland's cabinet are distinguished for their ability. They are Carlisle of Kentucky, Gresham of Indiana and Herbert of Alabama. Who ever heard of Lamont except as Cleveland's private secretary and as president of a New York Elevated Railroad; or of Bissel except as Cleveland's former law-partner? And who eved heare at all in any capacity of Hoke Smith, Mortin and Olney?

we Thought So.

We have been expecting some member to introduce some kind of a legislative proposition on the threatened invasion of crinoline and we have it at last. We must confess to no little surprise and gratification at finding that the measure doesn't constitute the alleged offense of wearing hoopskirts a felony. Representative McLe-More has introduced the foilowing:

Whereas, this country is menaced with an invasion, second in importance to the coming of cholera, and which threatenes to destroy many of our most pleasant illusions; therefore be it

Resolved, by the house of representatives, That this body strongly disapproves of the fashion of wearing hoopskirts, and calls upon the ladies of Texas-to drive back the French freak to its flome beyond the Atlantic.

Dithyrambic Ode to Hoke.

Hail, Hoke, Hillarious Hoke Smith! Quaint joke, Godsend to the jokesmith. What broke When Grover did poke Smith And spoke "Come up here, you Hoke Smith?"

O! what a Cabinet Will this one be! Not a stick nor a slab in it. Not an atom of gab in it, Not a blather nor a blab in it, Can any one see. From the State Secretary To Hoke of the Interior, As viewed from the exterior. There's not one inferior Each one is superior, Very, very, very!

All hail to Ho're! From the land of the moke He cometh ! He hummeth, Doth Hoke!

From the melon-land. And the cotton-land, From the goober-land And the 'possum-land Where the weird Withlacooche Chimes with cheerful Chattahoochee And the alligator Is the chief spectator Of the doings of natur', Cometh our Hoke, With needles of loblolly pine And persimmon seed fin In his luxuriant hair, With tar on both his heels And an exalted stare When he feels

That he's got there! Hoke ! Gee whizz ! We admire thy phiz. Thou holdest the odds By all the gods In the Pratheon! Light of the Interior! Joy of the exterior.

Georgia's Georgeous Hail! Oh, Hoke!

eral wells at Elkart and will take charge on April 1st next. Will seems to be a decided success as "Mine Host" Corn planting will be the order of the day next week, the weather permitting, nearly every one is ready, willing and waiting. The question before the Literary Society for discussion next Friday is: "Resolved that the legislature should establish a uniform sys-tem of text books."

goods and we are justified in say-Mares coming from a distance ing that we have learned, in that will be carefully attended to until time, how and where to buy goods. that goods are not what they .used to be. The reason for this state of affairs is easily given. Before the war we had not one manufactory where we now have 'a hundred. Men in those days took a pride in making goods that reflected credit on their skill, and made their names household words. But now things are changed. Every day witnesses the opening of new factories. The only way in which these new men can enduce retail merchants to quit their old friends and buy from strangers is by cutting on prices. To do this they must sacrifice quality and the result is general dissatisfaction among consumers. Our long experience has rendered us familiar with the houses which can be depended on, and we confine our purchases exclusively to them. Consequently we are in a position to know the quality of the goods we haudle, and/when we know the good will justify it, we are not afraid o warrant them. We propose shortly to open a first-class Millinery and Dressmaking Deartment, under the management of experienced artists, and we intend to keep a class of goods, that have never before been pened in this town

THE PATH OF PEACE.

And tortured with love's latest agony;
When to myself I solemnly had sworn
To walk life's way alone, you come to me
With those big eyes, mysterious and strange,
And sad, sweet face, as solemn as the grave,
What I had thought the end was but a change;
And I find myself a woman's slave.

But do not frown—don't take away those eyes Whose slightest look seems to intoxicate. Must leave me now? Yes, yes; the hour flies, But thou hast brought me nearer heaven's Tay gentle hand—thy loving hand has led

Has taught my falt'ring feet to tread
The path that leads to peace—I walk alone
