What Chemistry May Do. It has been said that a century is the natural duration of the human body; that it decays earlier because it does not receive proper care in health and disease. In regard to this latter, here is a suggestion from a man who protests against so much research in electricity to the neglect of chemistry. He says there are seventy-two elements of matter capable of entering into an infinity of combinations and concludes therefore "that a form of matter must be capable of existence, and must therefore be within the power of chemical research to discover and prepare, which will possess any assignable or conceivable potency or influence over any form or species of matter, dead or living." If this be true, then it is possible to chemistry to find substances which will neutralize all the poisons generated by disease germs and kill disease the moment it is discovered .--Exchange.

The Omnivorous Korean.

The Korean is omnivorous. Birds of the air, beasts of the field and fish from the sea-nothing comes amiss to his palate. Dog meat is in great request at certain seasons. Pork and beef with the blood undrained from the carcass, fowls and game-birds intact-fish sun dried and highly malodorous—all are acceptable to him, Cooking is not always necessary. A species of small fish is preferred raw, dipped into some piquant sauce. Other dainties are dried seaweed, shrimps. vermicelli, pine seeds, lily buds and all vegetables and cereals. The excesses make the Korean martyrs of indiges-

Imagine how the poor woman is torn between her desire to display the necklace and the fear that when she wears it everybody will be counting the exercise it is necessary to walk the diamonds."

Touchiness.

There is a disease called "touchiness," a disease which, in spite of its innocent name, is one of the gravest sources of restlessness in the world. Touchiness, when it becomes chronic, is a morbid condition of the inward disposition. It is self love inflamed to the acute point. The cure is to shift the yoke to some other place; to let men and things touch us through some new and perhaps as yet unused part of our nature; to become meek and lowly in heart while the old nature is becoming numb from want of use .-Exchange.

The Charm of His Hamlet.

Concerning Hamlet as played by the late Wilson Barrett a little story is told in the greenrooms where the actor was known. One of the ancients was talking of the Hamlets he had seen on the stage. "Well," he said. "I've seen dozens of 'em, but of all the hactors wot played Hamlet give me Barrett. He was always done ten minutes afore any of the others."

Be Your Own Architect.

When Railways Were New.

It was in 1830 that the opening of the railway between Liverpool and Manchester was celebrated. The Duke of Wellington's ideas concerning the iron road are thus described by Chaplain Gleig: 'The Duke of Wellington was invited in his capacity of prime minister to take part in the opening journey. He declined, saying that no great or permanent good could come of the invention, because stagecoaches already traveled at the rate of eight or ten miles in the hour and if any attempt were made to exceed that pace the respiration of the passengers would become painful, perhaps impossible. The duke would listen to no remonstrances. He thought, as others did. that the experiment was risky and deas was promised, to twenty miles an hour. Even a twelve mile pace he re-

St. Andrew Undershaft.

In Leadenhall street, London, there is a church bearing the strange name of St. Andrew Undershaft, a name that would not be intelligible to any one without a knowledge of the history of the locality. It seems that some 400 years ago every May day a high shaft or pole was set up opposite the south door of St. Andrew's and adorned with which was therefore literally under the shaft. Now, there being several churches dedicated to St. Andrew, this one was further described as Undershaft to prevent it from being mistaken for any of the others. The old May pole having been denounced as an idol by an overzealous curate in the firewood. Thus is it that in the name

Sarah Bernhardt's Tact.

An illustration of Sarah Bernhardt's wonderful tact is shown in the following incident: During a performance of "Andromache" the hoots and hisses of many of the roughest men in the gallery led to their being ejected by the soldiers on guard. But, deaf to the objections of manager and secretary. Mme. Bernhardt insisted on the men being sent for between the acts. So, freed from the hands of the police, the disturbers, to their surprise, found themselves in the beautiful, electric lighted, cream and gold rooms, redolent of the perfume of flowers, and faced by the lady they had insulted, looking beautiful in the glittering gorgoous dress of the eastern princess. "Messieurs," said Mme. Sarah, with gracious dignity, "I have sent for you to say that the police are not to molest you. You are to go back to your places, and you are permitted to hiss as much as you like." The rough and motley crowd left the room in amazement, and storms of applause burst from the gallery when the curtain fell after the next act.

Kerosene Oil. A common kerosene lamp, with its chimney of glass, its varied forms of beauty, its shades modified to every grade of vision and of taste, suggests the relation of man to light. The oil, natural, cheap, brilliant and volatile, was long known to civilized humanity as a crude outflow from the earth. It was not until about 1845 that the iridescent scum seen floating on the surface of a stream near Pittsburg suggested to thoughtful men to dig for a greater supply. Indians came from a distance and soaked it from the water with their blankets, which they wrung out into vessels in order to secure a quantity for some secret purpose. It was not until 1860 that it passed into common use. Since that time it has driven every form of wax, grease, fluid. camphene and whale oil lamp from the poultry." common use of mankind.

Great Guns of Old,

We are accustomed to think of large cannon as a very recent invention. Yet as long ago as 1543 a certain Ralph Hogge of Buckstead, in Sussex, cast large guns, and a pupil of his, Thomas Johnson, in 1595 made for the Earl of Cumberland "forty-two cast pieces of great ordnance of iron." These weighed 6,000 pounds-three tons-apiece, and, we are told, showed very fine, smooth workmanship. All the smelting was done with charcoal, of which it took three tons to smelt each ton of is only moderately resistant. Exceptiron. Also all the ore was carried from ing the earthworm, all the worms showthe mine on pack horses, which took a ed a low degree of susceptibility. The load of about 300 pounds each. The immense amount of labor and consequent expense may be imagined.

The Horseshoe as a Mascot.

The superstition that associates the horseshoe with good luck is very old. It is said to prevail not only among English speaking people, but in all races of Europe and Asia., Antiqua-Gibraltar, the strongest fortress in ries are undecided whether its origin the horseshoe is made or with its shape. How Baraboo Got Its Name, Indians gave Baraboo its name, but the word is not Indian. Baribeau or Baribault was the name of an old Canadian French trader who at the age of seventeen sought the then wilderness of Wisconsin to secure pelts for the Hudson Bay company and later man's letters of ordination (the owner for the American Fur company. He established a post where the town of Baraboo now stands. Being the first white man in those parts, the Indians named the place after him, but as they had not had the advantages of a French education could not get the pronunciation of the name nearer than Baraboo, and Baraboo it remains to this day.

Lone Star States.

In the course of conversation at a club the other evening a man referred to "the Lone Star State."

"What state do you mean?" he was asked.

"Why, Texas, of course." "Well," he was told, "do you know that there are no fewer than five independent sovereign states which use a lone star on their national flags today? They are Turkey, Chile, Cuba, Liberia and the Kongo Free State."

A Black Eye.

In the treatment of contusions where there is extensive discoloration of the skin if olive oil be freely applied without rubbing the discoloration will quickly disappear. Absorbent cotton may be soaked in the oil and applied. If the skin is broken a little boric acid should be applied over the abrasion. A black eye thus treated can be made normal in a few hours, especially if the oil be applied warm.

A Story of Senator Vest.

On a certain occasion Mr. Vest had returned to the senate after one of his brief absences. Senator Hoar of Massachusetts, four years his senior, met him in the lobby and chided him good naturedly for not attending strictly to business when vital measures were being debated. "You're, a fine young man," said Mr. Hoar, "to absent yourself at such a time and leave us old fellows, Cockrell and me and the rest, to handle these matters."

"You'll never be as old as I," said Vest, "if you live fifty years longer." "Bless you, I was born in 1826 and was preparing for college before you came into the world," said the Massachusetts man.

"If you were born in 1726 you wouldn't be as old as I," said the Missourian. "You and Cockrell will see years, but you will never see age. You haven't lived as lively as I have, and I am wishing sometimes that I hadn't," he said, with a weary smile.-Kausas City Star.

Life In Virginia In 1648.

In the old days in this country farming and manufacturing were carried on together to a very large extent. A letter written from Virginia in 1648 gives the following picture of life on the plantation of a certain Captain Matthews, a leading citizen of the colony: "He hath a fine house and all things answerable to it. He sows yearly store of hemp and flax and causes it to be spun. He keeps weavers and hath a tan house, causes leather to be dressed, hath eight shoemakers employed in their trade, bath forty negro servants and brings them up to trades in his house. He yearly sows abundance of wheat, barley, etc. The wheat he selleth at 4 shillings the bushel. He kills store of beeves and sells them to victual the ships when they come thither. He hath abundance of kine, a brave dairy, swine great store and Snake Venom. The action of snake venom on cold blooded animals has been tested by Dr. Noguchi in a long series of experiments. Three venoms were employed -viz, those of the cobra, water moccasin and rattlesnake. Snakes and frogs succumb easily to cobra venom, but are relatively insusceptible to the other venoms. Turtles are more susceptible to all venoms than the foregoing, and fish are still more so. The grasshopper and some crabs are almost insusceptible, while the lobster venoms have little effect on the echinodermata; sea urchins succumbed. however, but starfish and sea cucumbers were not perceptibly affected .-London Nature.

Canada and the Canoe. Abolish the canoe and Canada might have a war every five years and then lose fewer young men than the great number that must go down to death in ten years of summer holidays. It is pitiful the mothers who weep, the fathers who mourn and the homes that are darkened simply because young people will take chances that they have no business to take. Death may part the young man from his cance. saints, but this connection is highly Good advice cannot. Russian Woman Proverbs.

If Russian sayings and proverbs are a true index the position of women within the czar's domains is not to be envied. Here are some adages: "The head of a woman is as empty as the purse of a Tartar." "A woman without fear is bolder than a goat." "If you beat your wife in the morning don't forget to do it again in the afternoon." "Hit your wife with the handle of your ax; she is no pitcher to break at the first blow." '"If you beat a fur it becomes warmer, and if you beat your wife she will be more true to you."

When a man carries his cotton back home from the gin, it can be taken for granted that he is able to hold it, hence is out of debt. If any one will go to his farm he will probably find that he has been planting other things than cotton, and that he has meat and bread and forage for his stock, all proceeding from diversification. Every man has the speculative spirit in him. It is sometimes called the "gambling instinct," but we all have it. To gratify it is no small pleasure. For instance, a man will give thought to a condition in crops and business and in many other things. His line of thought is in speculating as to the change that will occur in such conditions. He reasons and draws deductions, and then invests on his views, arrived at by the employment of his brain. It is that way with the grower of cotton. He considers the supply of cotton now and for the future. He calculates on the consumption. He arrives at the conclusion that cotton must bring a higher or lower price, and he holds or sells as he thinks most profitable to him. The man with the one crop, who is invariably in debt, can not enjoy the luxury of betting on the correctness of his reasoning. He must sell at once to make fair weather with the merchant who feeds him, his stock, his wife and children, from year to year .-State Press.

Savoy Star: The hog crop is unusually fine around here. You see the boll weevils have no effect

THE COURIER. was a shortage of hogs, for people did not want to feed a high-W. W. AIKEN, - Editor and Proprietor priced feed. This depletion continued, to a great extent, because the farmers, frightened by the failure of the corn crop that year, did not want to keep many hogs this last year, through the fear that they might be confronted with another bad corn year. The result is that hogs are scarce in the State, and now that the corn crop is good, the demand for them has commenced and will increase. The average farmer is learning that he does not have to depend upon corn to keep hogs. Sorghum, sugar beets, alfalfa and other things of that kind in the summer, and the wheat, oat and rape fields and patches in the winter will enable him to keep at all times a good herd of hogs. Of course the necessity for hog fencthe fence, ne man can hope to raise them in the prairie country of Texas. Keeping them in small pens or inclosures where they get no green food will cost, as much as they are worth, and they will inevitably become unhealthy. The man with a large green range for his hogs is rarely afflicted with loss by cholera and other diseases. -Galveston News.

Beeville Bee: There are lots of things imported to Bee county that might as well be raised at home. For instance, Irish potatoes from Colorado are retailing for $3 per bushel in the local market. Certainly the Bee county gardener could not lose much money on them by raising them for that. Then there is a little hauled back home by farmers, matter of onions. The odorous who are not disposed to sell below | bulb is selling at 5c per pound; 8,000 and 10,000 pounds to the acre can be grown in Bee county soil. It occurs that local farmers might not lose more than a dollar or two to the acre in raising them for 5c per pound. Another item is peanuts, which sell at 4c. Not many are consumed in the local market, but still a few, and they come all the way from George and Virginia. The boll weevil is not responsible for all the financial depression among farmers, and especially those in easy reach of town,

> The lecture given above is merited. It is discouraging to some people to feel that farmers of the State refuse to budge an inch forward, as indicated by the above. But we ought to find consolation in the fact that we have advanced greatly, though to many of us the progress appears extremely slow. When we look back ten or fifteen prises. We need them. years and remember that the farmers bought not only their potatoes, onions and such things as that, but all their bacon and flour, we can see that the distance between what we were and what we are is great. Last year hundreds of carloads of potatoes were raised in and shipped out of Texas. Southwest Texas kept the papers full of information as to the great other markets. We are getting along, but to the man in a burry it looks as if our gait were that of the snail.-Galveston News.

Only Way to Make Prosperity Per-

The News believes that the only way to make the prosperity of Texas cities permanent is to build and operate in them manufacturing establishments of various kinds, to afford employment and wages for the people. Unless the "factory policy" is adopted and pursued, crops may fail, cattle may go down, business fall off, and then there may be nothing to do for half the population of some of the towns.

If there were factories to convert the cotton into finished prod ucts these might run on, in spite of a short crop, and keep the employes busy throughout the winter. So it is of other factories. It takes time and money to convert raw material into finished products. Texas produces the raw material. es must be considered. Without Why not make prosperity doubly secure by adopting a policy that will save to the State the money now paid to the manufacturers of other countries? What the Memphis Scimitar says of Memphis may be said with truth of Texas cities:

> Memphis is the only large city in the entire Southland where there is not at least one mill conducted on a paying basis. Memphis, the statistics show, is the greatest inland cotton market in the world. More than a million bates of the staple come to this market every season. All of this cotton is shipped to other points to be manufactured. Now, in the name of common sense, why is it that a progressive municipality permits such a state of affairs? There is not, in our opinion, a sound reason why at least a portion of this cotton should not manufactured here. Many woodworking plants have been induced to locate in this section because the city's advantages have been brought to their notice. All agree they have reason to congratulate themselves. Half a hundred concerns select Memphis each year as a most advantageous point, but in the lists furnished by the Industrial League and Business Men's Club the name "cotton mill" is conspicuous by its absence. Meridian, Greenwood, Columbus, Holly Springs and other small cities in Mississippi handling a handful of cotton as compared to Memphis, are the homes of one to four great mills. The city's business and industrial organizations could not do a better work than to start the ball rolling for half a dozen or more of these enter-

The News does not believe in stopping with cotton mills. Other manufacturing concerns should be built and put in operation. We get along without them in prosperous years; but, just as sure as the crops fail and the price of cattle goes down and other accidents happen to us, the towns and cities without factories are going to feel the pressure, and quantities of onions sent out to rise and fall in their prosperity as they have done in the past .-Galveston News.

Cause of Lockjaw.

Lockjaw, or tetanus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be de-stroyed and all danger of lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is ut maturation and in one

Sharpest of All the Thrusts.

Judge Parker accepts the challenge made by Candidate Roosevelt. It will be recalled that Mr. Roosevelt has attempted repeatedly to make great capital of his service pension "order." In his letter, for example, he says: "It is easy to test our opponents' sincerity in this matter. The order in question is revocable at the pleasure of the executive. If our opponents come into power they can revoke this order and announce that they will treat the veterans of '62 and '70 as presumably in full bodily vigor and not entitled to pension. Will they authoritatively state that they intend to do this? If so, we accept the issue." Judge Parker quotes this and adds:

This suggests the suspicion, at least, that the order was made to create an issue—that it was supposed to present a strong strategic position in the battle of the ballots. But as the making of that order was, in my judgment, an attempted, though perhaps unwitting, encroaching upon the legislative power, and, therefore, unwarranted by the Constitution, the challenge is accepted. If elected, I will revoke that order. But I go further and say that, that being done, I will contribute my effort toward the enactment of a law to be passed by both houses of Congress and approved by the executive that will give an age pension without reference to disability to the surviving heroes of the Civil War; and under the provisions of which a pension may be accepted with dignity because of the consciousness that it comes as a just due from the people through their chosen representatives, and not as largess distributed by the chief executive.

This is the sharpest thrust of all; but who, knowing the law and the manner in which it has been violated by the man sworn and expected to enforce it, will deny that the thrust is merited?—Ex.

Better Than Pills.

The question has been asked-In what way are Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is-They are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle and so agreeable that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then they not only move the bowels, but improve the appetite and aid the digestion. For sale at 25 cents per bottle by B. F. Chamberlain.

Coddle Themselves Too Much. Old people often make the mistake a physician in What to Eat. Thus they cause a weakening of the vital forces before the advance of age has done so. Nature never intended that a man should be put into a hothouse at sixty and kept there as a delicate plant. Too much solicitude about the health of such a person may be the actual cause of death. The vitality of the person may be somewhat lessened at sixty, but the man or woman whose health has received a fair amount of attention is not by any means ready to be shelved at that age. All that is required is a little lessening of the burden of life and a little

For over 500 years the red cross on England, and when in fullness of time timepiece which stood on a mantelthe emblems of the neighboring kingdoms of Scotland and Ireland were joined with it the union flag came into being. But for nearly 200 years the union flag bore upon it two crosses only, the red cross of England and the white cross saltire of Scotland, "according to a forme made by our heralds," as King James said in his proclamation. The white saltire of Scotland was simply surmounted by the red cross of England, but this latter had to be "fimbriated" bordered-that is, with a narrow white edge, owing to the strict heraldic law that color cannot be placed upon color nor metal upon metal.

The Sunflower.

It has always been said, how truly we do not positively know, that the sunflower turns its face ever toward There was no disputing the earnestthe sun; that it bows a genial welcome to the king of day when that monarch first lifts the curtain of night and peeps over the horizon upon an awakening world, and that it follows the imperial visitor in his majestic march across the heavens and nods a good night to him as he passes with his retinue of golden beams and silvery shadows behind the western slopes. This may be an exaggeration of the sunflower's conduct, but we believe it is at least partially true, and that the Kansas flower does respond in some degree to the attractions of the great luminary. Anyhow, the thought of this handsome product of the prairies turning its frank, open face ever toward the light and responding to the ardent wooing of the sun with reciprocal affection is inspiring, isn't it? It is a symbol of the ideal soul-the soul that loves the light, that glows in the presence of things that are lovely, the receptive soul, the soul that is responsive to truth and beauty-in a word, the sunflower's soul .- Marion (Kan.) Record.

Old Time Extravagances.

We hear a great deal about the luxury and extravagance of the age; but, when you think of it, a great many of our most reckless fashions date from past centuries. In the fifteenth century, for instance, the feminine wardrobe was magnificent, with its garments weighed down with laces and embroideries in guipure, points coupes, Milanese and Venetian, not forgetting the gold embroideries worked with precious stones, etc.

For several centuries women wore white shoes in kid and ordinary leather as well as dainty chaussure in embroidered satin for dancing the pavane and minuet in. In the time of Louis XIV. the women wore most sumptuous lingerie and dessous made chiefly of what used to be called les dentelles d'ete, a kind for the petticoats and was also worn for the hanging sleeves which used to show the arms so prettlly .- Paris Fash-

The Lost Chord.

He was a young man in lodgings, and he was learning to play the cornet. ness and perseverance of this embryo cornetist. Every evening during the late heat wave he threw his window open and blew away at the "Lost Chord." It was ever the "Lost Chord."

In the commercial room of the hotelopposite the "knights of the road" sat scribbling off their orders and hurling anathemas at the head of the young man player. Finally they held a council of war and determined on his destruction. Cutting off a window cord, they rang for the boots and ordered him to take it across to the musician, with the following note:

"Dear Sir-Make no more trouble over your 'Lost Chord.' We send you substitute, which we hope you will find long enough. We will arrange with the coroner and guarantee a decent burial."

The deleful notes of the "Lost Chord" were not heard in the street afterward.-London Globe.

The Mirror Galvanometer.

Some interesting tales are told of Lord Kelvin's discoveries and how the ideas of them came to his quick mind. For instance, this is said to have been the way in which he found the mirror galvanometer. He was puzzling over the difficulty of perfecting the ordinary telegraphic apparatus used on overhead wires, which was not suited for the varying current passing along cables. The lagging of the electric currents had the effect of making them run together into one bottom current, with surface ripples which correspond to the separate signals of the message. The problem was how to invent a means of interpreting clearly and easily all the delicate fluctuations. One day Lord Kelvin's eyeglass fell off and swung in front of the magnet, reflecting its movements, and instantly the idea of the mirror suggested itself. So a monocle has had a direct effect on science.

"Boots and Saddles."

The well known call of "boots and saddles" is really a corruption of the old French signal boute-selle-"put on your saddles"-from bouter, to put or place, and selle, saddle. Five kinds of day are recognized, and it has been said that the word "day" bas no real meaning without an adjective defining what kind of a day is theant. There is a civil day, the astronomical day, the apparent solar day. the mean solar day and the sidereal day. The civil day begins at the milnight preceding mean noon and consists of twenty-four hours counted after 12 o'clock. The astronomical day begins twelve hours after the civi day, or at the mean noon of the corresponding civil day. These hours are reckoned from 0 to 24. It will be seen, therefore, that while 10 hours 12 minutes Jan, 1 astronomical time is also 10 hours 12 minutes Jan. 1 civil time. yet 22 hours 12 minutes Jan. 1 astronomical time is also 10 hours 12 minutes a. m. Jan. 2 civil time. There are many anomalies growing out of this use of the civil day, and there are many arguments in favor of using the astronomical day. A Sensitive Tenor. Roger, the celebrated French tenor, was exceedingly proud of his profession and was apt to take offense at the least slight, whether intended or not. On one occasion he was engaged for the sum of £60 to sing at the house of a rich financier who thought it the correct thing to have the principal singers of the day at his house parties. Roger sang his first song magnificently, but not the slightest attention was paid him, the guests talking their loudest. Presently the host thought that it was about time for another song and sent for Reger, but he could not be found and was seen no more. On the following day Mr. Plutus was surprised to receive from Roger notes to the amount of £80, with the following words: "I have the honor to return the £60 which I received for singing at your party, and I beg to add £20 more to make up for having so greatly disturbed the conversation of your guests."-- London Tit-Bits,

The Bird of Paradise. Probably no famous bird has a smaller habitat than the bird of paradise, whose beautiful feathers are so highly prized in the millinery trade. No one knows why the varieties of this beautiful bird are confined to the island of New Guinea and the neighboring coasts of Australia. There are many other islands not far away where the conditions would seem to be equally favorable to their existence, but they are not found among them, and if we should ever see a hunter of the bird of paradise we would know that he was a native of New Guinea or the neighboring mainland of Australia or had visited those regions.

The Courier receives some complaint from the eastern part of the county from subscribers who fail to get their mail from Crockett promptly. The Cour-IER leaves this office on the afternoon train every Thursday and should be in Kennard City every Friday morning. If it is delayed it is in transit and we do not know how to remedy the matter. However, we will do everything we can in the future to get the paper to our readers on time.

Our Grapeland correspondent mentions an item that is of special interest. He says three car loads of hogs were shipped from that point last week. Grapeland farmers who have fat hogs to sei are not burt very much by the shortage of the cotton crop. Fat hogs, cattle, mules and horses will relieve the cotton grower's e nbarrassment to a considerable extent.

Houston county's delegates to the Beaumont good roads convention received important recognicay. tion and were placed in a position to get in close touch with the good roads subject. The street from the public square to the Big Store corner is being clayed and gravelled this week. Further out on the same street there is a gap where the street needs to be widened, clayed and gravelled. When this is done, that street will be complete nearly to its intersection with Grace street, to which latter street we understand there is some probability of the work being extended.
