"There will be fun and prizes for everyone," reports Wilson. "We'll have live vanda orchids, flown in fresh from Hawaii, for the ladies, free yardsticks and needlebooks and free balloons for the youngsters.

The new facility in Muleshoe is a continuing expansion program of Rasco stores. The 38-year-old company, headed by W.H. Dr. James E. Fite, a former resident of Muleshoe, died recently in Dallas. Funeral services were conducted at the First United Methodist Church in Bonham on Sunday, June 4.

Another Call For VEE Vaccinations

COLLEGE STATION -- Hot, summer weather is on the way and mosquitoes are becoming active. This could be bad news to horse owners who have not vaccinated their animals for VEE (Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis), the dreaded sleeping sickness spread by mosquitoes which killed so many horses last year.

"It's urgent that all horses, mules and donkeys that were not vaccinated last year be vaccinated as soon as possible," emphasizes Dr. James Armstrong, veterinarian with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Animals that were vaccinated during last year's massive vaccination program appears to last at least two years. However, if there is any doubt about whether or not the animal was vaccinated last year, by all means vaccinate again."

The Texas A&M University specialist hastens to add that there is one exception to the re-vaccination rule. "Foals that were vaccinated in 1971 when they were less than six months old should be re-vaccinated."

In high risk areas such as Texas, the U.S. Department of Agriculture recommends vaccinating pregnant mares and foals under two weeks of age during the mosquito season. Studies are presently under way to determine whether there is any danger to mares or unborn foals if vaccinated during pregnancy.

Also, contrary to some earlier reports, tests in several states have shown that the vaccine does not cause brain or spinal damage in horses.

"If you have animals that require VEE vaccination, contact an accredited veterinarian. Cont. on Page 3, col. 1

SW Public Service Completes New Line

Southwestern Public Service Company crews have completed construction on a new "East Muleshoe Substation, which is a new 69,000 volt transmission line from east of Muleshoe to provide power for this new substation, and new heavy conductor distribution circuits out of the new substation.

Located on the corner of Avenue B and East Sixth Street, the new substation will have a capacity large enough to furnish service to all of the city area presently being served by the City Substation. Normally, this station will serve about one-third of the area with the City Substation serving the other two-thirds.

The Company also built some new 69,000 volt transmission line and reconditioned a portion of an existing line located near the east edge of Muleshoe. This will be used to provide transmission line energy to the new East Muleshoe Substation where it will be transformed from 69,000 volts to 2400 volts which is a suitable voltage for urban distribution and which can conveniently be transformed into suitable voltages for the consumer.

There will be two new distribution voltage circuits constructed from this new substation and will be connected

Councilman King Speaks To Rotary On Highway Parking

At Rotary Tuesday, L.B. Hall had the program and presented City Councilman Max King who explained the council's position on the parking ordinance recently passed and the strict enforcement of such ordinance which will go into effect shortly.

He stated that upon the complete enforcement of the ordinance the highway will be marked from two lane to four lane with stripes and turn signals at the crossroads.

King further explained that "on March 7, 1972, the Muleshoe City Council passed an ordinance to stop parking within the right-of-way lines on State Highway 214 and U.S. Highway 84. There was much discussion between the council, the citizens involved and the Texas Highway Department before it was passed. It was not intended to place a hardship on anyone. The traffic flow through the town is very important to us all; not only for safety reasons, but also economic reasons. Statistics show that businesses suffer badly when a town

King continued saying "true, there will be some businesses that will need to do some changing and spend some money. Curbs (fixed and portable), barriers, signs or landscaping can be used to make sure their customers have a safe and convenient place to park that also conforms to the ordinance."

"We as customers must learn to comply with the ordinance. Some of us will have to break old habits of parking in the front door of a business just because it is 'handy'. We will have to learn to park in better, safer areas as they are provided."

"Pride of ownership is a very important incentive to improve a business," stated King. "Each person wants his business to be attractive, convenient, and as safe as possible for his customers. This could be the re-

Armstrong reminds horse owners to also vaccinate their animals against western and eastern strains of the sleeping sickness. This should be an annual vaccination. All vaccinations can be given during the veterinarian's single visit.

"Texas is still under federal quarantine for VEE," adds the veterinarian. "Thus horses must have been vaccinated for VEE at least 14 days before being allowed to move across the state line. A vaccination certificate must accompany the animal."

horse owners check their animals regularly for any signs of illness that might be a indication of VEE. At the onset of the disease, the animal loses its appetite, is depressed and has a fever. If any of these signs appear, a veterinarian should be contacted at once so that an accurate diagnosis can be made.

The veterinarian also recommends that horse owners spray their animals, especially those in stables or in confinement, for mosquitoes and other biting insects.

The Texas Highway Department has assured us all their cooperation in creating all the lanes necessary to handle the traffic when compliance with the ordinance is a reality. Miss Stockard, Warren Pledge Double Ring Vows

A candlelight ceremony in the First Baptist Church on Thursday evening, June 8, united in marriage Rickie Lou Stockard and Richard Neal Warren, Rev. Glen Harlin, pastor of the West Camp Baptist Church, read the double ring vows at 7 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. S.P. Stockard and Mr. and Mrs. James Warren, all of Muleshoe.

The couple stood before an altar centered with a Swedish wrought iron spiral candelabra holding blue hand dipped tapers, flanked by a three tiered Swedish candelabra. The candelabra were accented with Jade and leather leaf fern. The memory candle was set amidst an arrangement of blue tipped carnations and blue tapers used by the bride and groom in lighting the memory candle. Pews were marked with blue candles and hurricane lamps, accented with leather leaf fern and blue satin.

Musical selections, including "My Cup Runneth Over," "Until the Twelfth of Never" and "The Lord's Prayer," were presented by Barbara Gilbert of Kennard, organist, and Jan Sokell of Dumas, soloist.

Becky Sain of Muleshoe attended the bride as maid of honor. Lee Ann Yerby and Donna Howard, both of Muleshoe, were bridesmaids. The attendants were attired in blue crystalline traditional Empire waist gowns featuring standup collars and long puff sleeves with wide cuffs accented by self covered buttons. Embroidered lace encircled the waists of the gowns. The maid of honor wore a blue hat, the bridesmaids wore white hats. The attendants carried white baskets filled with long stemmed blue tipped carnations, star flowers and leather leaf.

Candlelighters were Tommie Clements and Kevin Tucker, both of Muleshoe.

Lonnie Ferris, Kevin Tucker, Kenny Kitrell and Tommie Clements served as ushers.

Groomsmen were Randy Burrows and Perry Stockard, brother of the bride, both of Muleshoe. The groomsmen wore black tuxedos with light blue shirts and black bow ties.

Tom Glass, cousin of the groom, from El Paso was best man. The best man and groom wore white tuxedos, light blue shirts and black bow ties.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional Empire gown of silk chiffon over taffeta. The gown featured a standup collar of embroidered lace accented with silk ribbon. The long puff sleeves had wide cuffs edged with matching lace and tiny self covered buttons. Embroidered appliqued flowers were scattered over the dress and chapel length train. Her short net veil was attached to a headpiece of embroidered roses edged with seed pearls. The bridal bouquet, carried atop a white prayer book, was "Blue Glow," a triangular arrangement of cymbidium orchids, tipped blue carnations and star flowers, accented with seed pearls.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's serving table was covered with a white hand drawn lace trimmed linen cloth over an underlay of baby blue. The table was accented with a white candelabra of wrought iron entwined with an arrangement of blue tipped carnations, baby's breath and leather leaf fern. Blue candles and cascading streamers of blue and white completed the arrangement. The three tiered wedding cake was trimmed with pale blue roses and topped with wedding bells. Pineapple punch and cake were served from crystal appointments by Martha Jane Chapman and Linda Warren, sister of the groom.

The groom's table was covered with an ecru linen embroidered cutwork cloth and was centered with a large copper and brass tray of fresh fruit, German chocolate cake and coffee were served from a copper and brass service. Presiding at the groom's table were Karen Mayhugh and Mrs. Jim Warren, sister-in-law of the groom.

Sammie Vinson registered the guests. Out of town guests registering were from Lubbock, Amarillo, Kennard, Houston, Andrews, Hereford, Dumas, El Paso, Levelland, New Orleans, and Missoula, Mont.

For a wedding trip to Six Flags Over Texas, the bride chose a white embroidered linen pant suit complimented by an orchid corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will be at home at Route 5, Muleshoe, where the groom is engaged in farming.

The bride graduated from Muleshoe High School in 1971 and received a certificate in business from West Texas State University.

The groom is a 1972 graduate of Muleshoe High School.

A bridesmaids luncheon was held in the home of the bride's parents on Wednesday, June 7. Mr. and Mrs. James Warren, parents of the groom, hosted a rehearsal party at the Corral Restaurant on Tuesday, June 6.

Library News

By Anne Camp

The library received a nice gift this week—Two new flags for the flagpole at the entrance. We are proud to fly the Texas flag along with the U.S. flag, and appreciation for this very nice gift goes to Lester Howard of Needmore—who served on the first Library Board of Trustees. The U.S. flag which was given has flown over the capitol in Washington, D.C., according to a letter from John Tower, which accompanied the gift.

The Summer Reading program is going along real well, and records show that we have checked out 2,691 books in the 13 days since Summer began. Some 200 are now working actively in the Club. AAUW members have been doing volunteer work during this busy time, and we are grateful for their help and interest in the library.

The large bulletin board at the library has been sectioned off, so that there is a space for local announcements of interest to the public. If anyone has announcements of a Club or Church meeting or activity, we would be happy to put it on the bulletin board.

We are excited about a collection of Art and Crafts booklets we have just received... there are 65 in all about every conceivable craft from Bread Dough Artistry to Cloth Mach' Sculpture. Copies of the list of these will be available to anyone interested. Hobby Club members should like these.

A book is being put on the shelves for each of the following recent memorials:

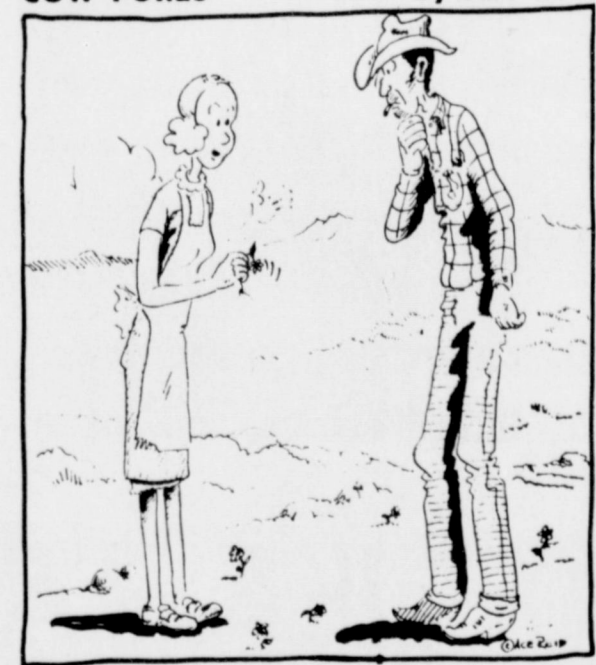

Given in Memory of Mrs. Opal Boothe, by Mr. and Mrs. H.A. Douglas, Jr., Epsilon Sigma Alpha, Dr. and Mrs. B.O. McDaniel, Mrs. Snow Davis and Mildred Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Derrell Oliver; Given in Memory of Mrs. Reid by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hooten & family;

For those who say the railroads are at the beginning of the end, here's a progress report from Santa Fe that says it's much, much more like the end of a beginning.

MORE POWER

We're adding 52 new giant diesels and rebuilding 50 older units to provide a locomotive fleet producing over 3,850,000 horsepower.

MORE CARS

1910 additional cars are coming in 1972, including 100 giant refrigerated hopper cars for in-bulk movement of potatoes, oranges and other perishables.

MORE TERMINALS

Santa Fe's new million dollar rail and truck terminal has now been completed at Houston, Texas to meet expanding truck, Piggy-Back and container traffic.

BETTER SERVICE

Run through trains with connecting railroads link —east, west, and southwest and save hours moving through Santa Fe's electronic classification yard in Kansas City.

BETTER PIGGY-BACK

We're expanding Piggy-Back and container service all along the Santa Fe to handle increasing domestic and international shipments.

BETTER IDEAS

An expanding microwave network linked to our data system for car tracing and locomotive utilization, and plans for the development of a unique coaxial train for moving containers are just a few of the new ideas at work on the Santa Fe.

MORE and BETTER are key words at Santa Fe. What we're doing, is why we're saying, rail service is still one of the most efficient ways to move freight. What we're spending says so too: over $100 million this year in railway capital expenditures. One billion in the last 10 years. Two billion since World War II.

The railroad industry and the Nation need sensible transport regulatory policies—administered with an even hand. We can take it from there—into a new era of railroading. Still think the railroads are at the beginning of the end? For Santa Fe it's more like the end of the beginning!

Santa Fe—The complete transportation company moving by rail, truck, air freight, pipeline and land development.

NECK PAINS

Dr. C.L. Goodpasture, D.C.

Did you ever wake up with a pain in your neck? More than likely that means you have a subluxation (misplacement) of a vertebrae in the neck. Other symptoms will also surely follow because the spinal cord is involved and all the nerves in the body are a part of this spinal cord in this area, some of which are undoubtedly impinged.

A subluxation (misplacement) at the base of the skull causes not only headaches and neckaches, but indigestion, constipation and disorders, because the nerves supplying all organs are a part of the spinal cord. Adjustment of the subluxation is the only logical way to correct the cause of disease.

Humphrey-McGovern?

Supporters of Senator Hubert Humphrey, for the Democratic nomination, are currently calling for a Humphrey-McGovern ticket, which they argue would be the strongest possible Democratic combination in November.

Senator McGovern, of course, wouldn't admit any inclination toward acceptance of such an idea when currently in such a strong competitive position. To do so would undercut his own effort.

But it's not unrealistic to suggest that either McGovern or Senator Edward Kennedy would be leading prospects for second place on the ticket if Humphrey were to win the top nomination again. While Kennedy's name is thought to mean votes, McGovern's would supposedly bring the nation's youth and militant left into the fold—while Humphrey appealed to labor and the center, plus the old left.

The other possibility, whoever is nominated, is that a Southerner will get the second-place nomination. This has often proved a winning combination in the senior major party, the late John Kennedy having used this strategy as well as the late Adlai Stevenson. Harry Truman chose a Kentuckian in 1948 and Franklin Roosevelt unseated the Republicans in 1932 with a Texan, John Garner. Either Terry Sanford of North Carolina or Governor Ruebin Askew of Florida are prime Dixie prospects.

Without some Dixie electoral votes, it's difficult to see a Democrat unseating President Nixon. It's also hard to imagine much of the South voting against Mr. Nixon unless the Democrats offer some special appeal.

NEWS REPORT FROM WASHINGTON

McGovern's Victories—The Next Step—1300 Votes? A First Ballot Win?

Washington, D.C.—Senator George McGovern's momentum continues to propel him toward the Democratic nomination; many now feel his California and New Jersey wins make it possible for him to obtain the nomination on the first or second ballot at Miami.

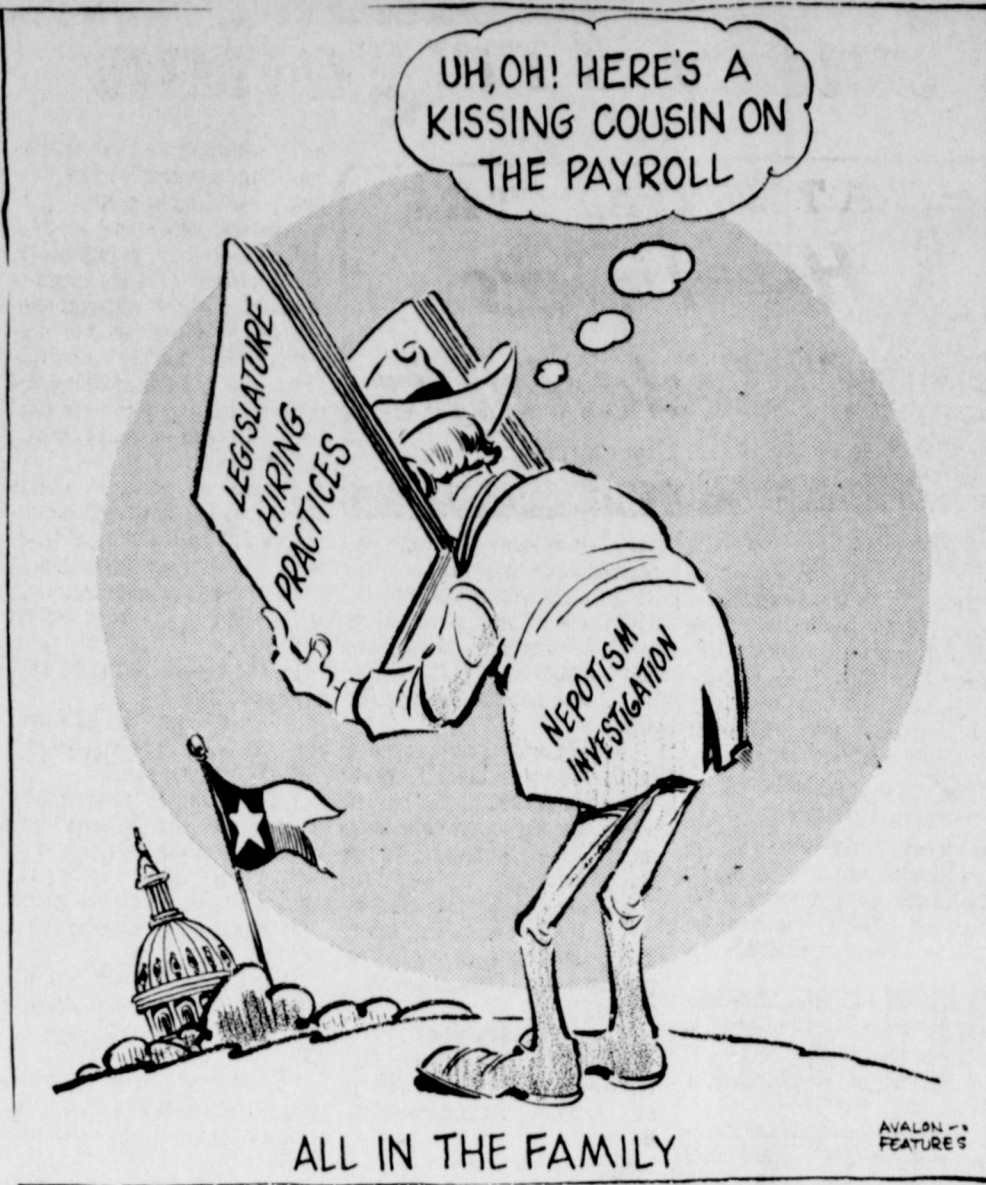

California was the big win, of course, New Jersey of vital importance also. And New York, on the 20th, is set to be the crowning achievement of the South Dakotan's campaign. He is well ahead there and with this added triumph McGovern will head for Miami with a considerable psychological edge over his rivals.

After the California victory it was claimed McGovern could see about 1300 delegate votes, but the estimates came from supporters and friendly counts in the past years have often been high. If indeed McGovern has that much delegate support, it's hard to see anyone heading him off at the pass at the convention.

If he comes to Miami with a lesser number, such as 1,000, it may still be possible, for over 1500 votes are needed to nominate. But a McGovern vote of over 1300 on the first ballot would surely set off the switching process, with various delegates and delegations eager to get the credit for putting McGovern over the top.

Thus the fascinating thing to watch on the first roll call will be whether McGovern's delegate total rises to the 1250 or 1300-level. If it does, he is almost surely in. And if that happens the big question at the convention will suddenly

John Tower United States Senate COMMITTEE ON ARMED SERVICES

The recent summit meetings between our President and the leadership of the USSR concluded with a 5-year agreement designed to limit nuclear weapons while we continue more Strategic Arms Limitation Talks. What was achieved is the result of more than two years of negotiations.

When the President initiated entry into the SALT discussions, I supported his efforts for I join in the desire to achieve mutual restraint in the arms race.

We entered SALT with the view that no matter how much we desired an arms pact, our nation could never accept an agreement which placed us in a position of nuclear inferiority to the Soviets. To do so would be to allow our national security and that of our allies to be seriously endangered. Now rather than inferiority, we set nuclear parity as a minimum acceptable relationship to be agreed on.

Also, we recognized that the success of the first SALT negotiations and our hopes for further, even more significant negotiations, rested upon our ability to negotiate from a position of strength. We've learned from years of negotiations with the Soviets that they will reach agreements and abide by them only when it is in their own best interest to do so. So long as we are strong, it is in the interest of the Soviets to work for peace, but we cannot be fully assured of their cooperation if we are weak.

The Safeguard Anti-Ballistic Missile System points up the wisdom of our renegotiating from a position of strength. Because we are proceeding with the Safeguard system, the Soviets are willing to agree to an arms limitation on offensive weapons. Had we heeded the voice of those who wanted to eliminate the ABM, our SALT negotiators would have been in a much weaker position. We must not forget this lesson.

I have some doubts as to whether the arms limitation agreement signed in Moscow meets our original determination that we should maintain at least nuclear parity with the Soviets and that we must preserve a position of strength from which to further negotiate.

In terms of quantity, we did not retain parity. The Soviets are allowed one-and-a-half times the number of land-based Inter-Continental Ballistic Missiles that we are allowed. Among these are some 300 of the giant SS-9 missiles capable of delivering a high 25-megaton warhead, compared with our one-to-two megaton Minutemen. In sea-based missiles, the Soviets are allowed up to 950 missiles based on some 60 nuclear submarines, compared with our limitation of 710 missiles aboard 44 submarines.

At present, we do maintain advantages in manned bombers and technology which allows us to place Multiple, Independently-targeted Re-entry Vehicles aboard our missiles. These advantages provide us with sufficient defense to assure our national security. It may be, that when these advantages are considered, parity is preserved for the immediate future even with the SALT agreement.

But we must remember that nothing in the agreement prevents the Soviets from developing and deploying a MIRV system or from acting to negate our manned bomber advantage, or both. Should the Soviets do this, and if we should fail to take appropriate countermeasures, we would then be militarily inferior to the Soviets and very much at their mercy.

I look forward to an extensive Congressional examination of the SALT agreement to determine whether parity has in fact been preserved.

If we are to preserve a position of strength from which to negotiate further, more long-lasting, arms limitation agreements, we must not allow the Soviet advantage in the quantity of nuclear arms to be amplified by an advantage in quality as well. To insure our national security and to preserve the strength from which to further negotiate for peace, we must proceed with qualitative improvements in our weapon systems. It is the Trident submarine program proceed. Since we have agreed to have fewer missile-carrying submarines than the Soviets, it is obvious that we must guarantee their survivability.

The road to peace is not an easy one. As much as we would like to be so, peace is not guaranteed by treaties, for they are, at most, symbols of a common interest. Peace exists so long as it remains in the apparent best interest of potential enemies on both sides to avoid war.

If we become so militarily weak that the Soviet Union is led to believe that its interest can be served by war, then we shall have lost our fight for peace.

We have come this far toward peace because we have been able to negotiate from strength. If we fail to maintain that strength, we can have no reasonable prospect for insuring a more lasting peace.

Applause

During the President's recent visit to Moscow Americans were puzzled by the scarcity of applause given Mr. Nixon in his public appearances. In his first appearances the President received no applause. Gradually the Russians began to applaud when the President appeared.

Toward the end of his Moscow stay an American questioned a Soviet official about the initially cool reception. He was told the Russian people wanted to know about the talks, the work and the accomplishments of the meeting, before they applauded. "The Russian people never applaud for nothing," he reportedly answered.

Obviously, the Russians haven't been conditioned by American television MC's, who nightly receive ovations just for coming onstage (for which most are already overpaid).

Corn Depends On Timely Irrigation

Timely irrigations on corn can mean extra bushels at harvest and can help hold water applications and pumping costs to a minimum.

"Corn irrigations that are applied with the plant's seasonal water-use efficiency," says Leon New, area irrigation specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. He explains that irrigation during stages of growth with high water requirement normally gives corn yields a good boost, while only minimum increases are obtained from irrigations during growth stages requiring less water.

Corn water requirements increase rapidly after the plants have eight to 10 leaves. During the following four to five weeks, the plants are likely to grow four to five feet. At the same time, adequate moisture is important for tassel and ear development inside the plant. Moisture requirements are high in growing this quantity of vegetation.

"Demand for moisture is particularly high just prior to tassel," he emphasizes.

Highest plant water needs of the season usually occur during silking and pollination; afterwards, the primary plant function is to produce grain. Moisture stress during the eight- to 12-day silking and pollination period to normally quite costly. Good moisture is especially important for complete pollination. Water requirements are likely to be three to four inches in 10 days. The specialist suggests that water applications in alternate furrows may help wells to keep pace with peak plant demands, especially in loam and fine sandy loam soils.

Moisture requirements remain high during the early stages of grain development, often described as the blister and milk stages. Grain develops and rapidly increases in weight. New reminds that adequate moisture must be available during the three to four weeks following pollination for high grain production.

"By the dough stage, water requirements normally begin to decrease. However, moisture stress while the dough is soft will limit grain filling," he says. As the grain matures, corn moisture needs decrease rapidly. Area soils on which corn is produced will normally supply adequate moisture for grain to properly mature if they are irrigated August 15 to 20.

Irrigations applied earlier than when six to eight leaves have unfolded have given only minimum corn yield increases. Adequate moisture for optimum growth is important during this stage when water needs are low, but a larger plant may be the only result of early irrigation. Except for corn ensilage, this can be an unnecessary waste of valuable ground water, New cautions.

The roundup of figures on the 1971 Texas cotton crop, just released by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, show 1,279,150 bales (480 pounds net weight) produced in the 25 weather-plagued High Plains counties represented by Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

Production was from 2,322,400 harvested acres for an average yield of only 264.4 pounds per acre, the lowest since PCG began keeping records in 1958. Average per-acre production on the Plains for the 13-year period since 1958 has been 453.6 pounds.

The TCLRS acreage figures, compiled from records of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service, reveal that 2,499,700 acres were planted to cotton on the Plains in 1971, highest since 1965. In 1965 the Plains produced 2,170,400 acres and produced 2,300,000 bales for an all-time high per-acre yield of 519 pounds.

The 177,300 acres planted but not harvested on the Plains in 1971 represent an abandonment of slightly more than 7 percent, which is near normal but well above the 4.5 percent abandoned in 1970.

Lubbock county again produced the top volume of cotton on the Plains, with 155,900 bales, and was followed by Dawson's 116,000. In per-acre yields the area was led by Midland, Martin and Howard, where respective yields were 372,338 and 333 pounds per acre.

The almost 2.5 million acres planted in the 25 counties was about 137.5 percent of the area's final 1971 allotment of 1,818,195 acres.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Bill Boykin
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN, Tex.--"Leadership is hell."

That quote from a political leader came to mind during the 64th annual National Governor's Conference in Houston last week.

It's darned tough to serve as a public official these days.

Not just presidents, vice-presidents and candidates for presidents have their lives threatened--but governors and candidates for governor face physical threats these hectic days in America's political history.

This fact was brought to mind by the extremely tight security measures at the host hotel for the National Conference for state chief executives.

Security police, Texas Rangers, and state patrolmen almost outnumbered the governors, aides, newsmen and guests who were allowed to observe the proceedings at the important annual function of state heads of government.

Mrs. George Wallace, wife of the Alabama Governor, had six security men surrounding her when she moved around the corridors of the hotel.

When Vice President Spiro Agnew arrived, Secret Service men were all over the place. Even the hotel employees wore photo identification badges--reminders of defense plant and Navy installation days of World War II. We heard no complaints--except from one elderly hotel janitor who kept picking up walky-talky conversations between the security police on his hearing aid.

The three-day program of the state's chief executives was an "economic war" of sorts.

Principal topics of the conference revealed that financial problems are their top concerns--as they reviewed revenue sharing with the Federal government, financing of elementary and secondary education and funding the "war" against crime and drugs.

Host Governor Preston Smith and his staff and a hospitable Houston made the serious problems easier to study with a well-rounded entertainment program for the Governors, their families and staffs. An outdoor pool-side Texas western party, (appropriately by the world's largest swimming pool, according to the hotel staff), an excellent transportation organization delivering guests to all Houston entertainment and tourist facilities--and a formal ball with Duke Ellington's Orchestra completed the lighter side of the serious meet.

Other important topics of interest to Texans covered at the Conference were: diversification of industry to rural areas, a resolution requesting the appointment of a farmer as next Secretary of Agriculture of the United States; a NASA economic impact report for the states and the role of the states in national growth patterns.

National political intrigue made the Conference more interesting with visits from Sen. George McGovern and Sen. Hubert Humphrey--and the appearance of Mrs. Wallace.

SPECIAL SESSION MEETS-- The Legislature convened in special session at midweek under lame duck leadership in both houses and the governor's office.

Gov. Preston Smith, defeated in his bid for re-election, pledged to offer a 1973 budget which would require no new taxes and, indeed, to allow no consideration of taxation.

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, also defeated for governor, said Smith should show lawmakers how he proposes to trim appropriations.

House Speaker Rayford Price was defeated in his home district as was Rep. Bill Finck of San Antonio, chairman of the budget-writing House appropriations committee.

Legislative Budget Board--which includes Barnes, Price and Finck among its members--calculated that even a "tight" 1973 budget would require $89.3 million in new revenue.

After a day-long session, the Board concluded its staff would just have to get together with Smith and see what he had on his mind.

The LBB staff-drawn budget called for $828.2 million in spending during the next fiscal year--or $89.2 million less than the revenue forecast.

Virtually certain to land on the special session agenda is new state officials' code of ethics legislation. Barnes said he will press for such a bill, and a House committee prepared its own version.

LEGISLATURE ALTERED-- Primary elections assured a drastic shakeup among rank and file members of the legislature as well as the top leadership.

There will be at least 76 new members in the House of Representatives--a majority. The turnover rate is the highest since 1953 when 88 freshmen representatives took office. The November general elections may remove a few more of the incumbents, and no more than 74 present House members are assured of returning.

The Senate turnover rate is almost as high. At least fifteen of 31 senators will be freshmen next year, and Republicans conceivably could gain another place.

Former House Speaker Gus Mutchers was among the veteran incumbents defeated.

Defeat of Price in the House set off another scramble for speaker. Rep. Price Daniel of Liberty claimed he already had the job racked up with 89 to 100 votes. Rep. Frank Calhoun of Abilene challenged him last week, expressed doubt that Daniel had anywhere near a majority and said he will begin his own campaign with about 50 dependable votes from moderates and conservatives.

PRIMARY CHANGES URGED Primary election costs topped estimates by nearly $400,000, and a better, cheaper system has to be found, according to Secretary of State Bob Bullock. Bullock advocated future primary elections be held and financed through county clerks' offices, with single polling places serving both major parties.

Such a system, said Bullock, would reduce primary costs by at least a third and increase efficiency. Bullock said he distributed $1.6 million to Democratic committees and $396,709 to Republican groups to pay the bulk of local primary costs.

AG OPINIONS A person can serve as a State Parks and Wildlife Commissioner and school district trustee at the same time but can't draw any type of compensation, Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin held.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded:

* Texas Water Quality Board may distribute "clean water" bumper stickers.

* Texas Tourist Development Agency may draw vouchers favoring the Confederate Air Force, Lower Rio Grande Valley and McAllen Chambers of Commerce for advertising and promotion.

* Shell redeposited on bay floors as pads for drilling barges can be removed only on permit.

* County employees cannot buy with county funds goods from a store owned by a county commissioner.

* Real property foreclosed by tax judgment can be purchased by the owner at a Sheriff's sale at its adjudged value although this is for an amount less than the full judgment. The judgment may be enforced for the balance against the tax debtor.

* A county operating under the optional county road law may continue to employ services of a qualified road administrator rather than a licensed professional engineer.

* A university shuttle bus driver may be under 31.

SHORT SNORTS More than $8.9 million in bonds for construction at state universities in San Marcos, Huntsville, San Angelo and Alpine were sold to Texas Commerce Bank of Houston and another $5 million will be sold later this summer.

The State Department of Public Welfare will conduct a recertification drive to survey every applicant for Aid to Families with Dependent Childer benefits in an effort to "cleanse" Texas assistance rolls of ineligible recipients, according to Welfare Commissioner Raymond W. Vowell.

An Austin district court ordered the State Democratic Executive Committee to apportion senatorial district delegates to the national Democratic convention, after its chairman made the allocations without committee approval.

September and October trial dates have been set for two present and two former state legislators charged with wrongdoing.

Calvin Guest of Bryan was new gubernatorial nominee Dolph Briscoe's choice for chairman of the June 13 State Democratic convention in San Angelo.

The Texas Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation approved allocation of $3.77 million for construction and renovation of facilities at Rusk, Terrell, Big Spring, Corpus Christi, Kerrville and Vernon. Dr. Truman G. Blocker Jr. of Galveston was named interim dean at the University of Texas Medical School at San Antonio after Dr. F. Carter Pannill was removed.

Revenue from cigarette taxes jumped from $15 million to $21.1 million from May 1971 to last month.

An application has been filed for a state bank in Presidio. The Court of Criminal Appeals reversed a death penalty in a Fort Worth murder case in which the defendant had refused to consent to a search of his business or home.

ADVERTISING:

It must help the advertisers
(they do so much of it) but does it do anything for ME?

Yes. In two important ways, advertising is useful to you.

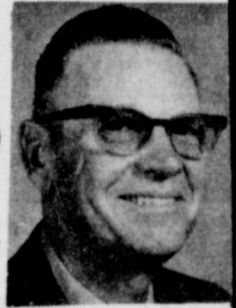

1. Advertising is news. Specialized news reporting of goods and services available to you. As such, advertising keeps you aware of how very broad your choice is. Of hundreds of soaps and detergents, which offers you most? Of dozens of banks, which promises the kind of service you really want? Of all the different gasolines, which should you choose? Take your pick. Or take none. It's up to you. And pity the poor advertiser who tries to fool you. Maybe he can make the first sale. But there it ends if he disappoints you. You are very much the boss.

2. Advertising is an economic accelerator. Advertising helps force competing companies to improve their products and services. Sure, some so-called "improvements" turn out to be disappointing--and nobody catches on quicker than you, the consumer. And false "improvements" kill products quick. Real improvements you like fine--and they succeed. And so the material aspects of our life progress. If you doubt it, compare today's fine products in any area, not with each other, but with their counterparts of 30 years ago. Cars. Soaps. Razor blades. Advertising speeds up the natural process of improvements through competition.

In short, advertising is the voice of choice. Your voice of choice.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhill Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm may have his tongue in his cheek this week, although it could be chewing tobacco.

I knew this was the day of the oppressed minorities but didn't know how widespread the thing had gotten till I read an account of the National Governors' Conference meeting in Houston last week.

Governors now consider themselves an oppressed minority.

It's a fact. According to the Governor of Montana, the national government has gotten so large that governors have a hard time getting heard in Washington. "I can say all I want to by myself and no one will listen," he said at the conference. "The states are getting to be like the many Indian nations of a century ago: They're all listening to the Great White Father in Washington."

Come to think of it, there's something to this. I can name the governor of this state, but blamed if I can think of the name of the governor of New Mexico or Oklahoma. And if a man wants something done about something in his area, who does he write? He writes his Congressman or Senator. Who else?

Who ever heard of writing his Governor? Maybe occasionally they'll write their state legislator, but the Governor?

This seems a shame. Men work hard to get elected governor, spending five or six times what the job pays, and the rest of the people ought to pay more attention to them. They ought to at least send them carbon copies of all letters they write to Washington.

Incidentally, the main topic of discussion at the Governors' Conference was revenue-sharing. They want Washington to split up some tax money it's getting and give it to the states to spend as they please.

This is a good idea, as everybody knows the states certainly have a pressing need for more money and if I was governor I'd sit down right now and write my Congressman about it.

Write it in longhand on tablet paper. They say they pay more attention to simple letters that come straight from the hearts of unknown constituents. Yours faithfully, J. A.

Insect Management, Not Eradication

LUBBOCK.... Words like "conservation" and "utilization" are common in discussions about soil or water in the High Plains, but researchers and producers are beginning to use these words to describe solutions to the insect problem.

Dr. George Teetes, a grain sorghum insect researcher for Texas A&M University, emphasizes that beneficial insects must be conserved and utilized as a major part of an integrated approach to pest management. The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station employee is working on a long-range greenbug control program at A&M's Research and Extension Center at Lubbock.

"Management does not mean total elimination of insect pests," Teetes explains. There must be enough pests left in the field to allow the beneficial insect population to be maintained. Research at Lubbock and other places has shown that insecticide rates can be manipulated to keep the greenbug population below an economically-damaging level, yet retain enough beneficial insects to keep the remaining greenbugs under control.

Teetes further explains that pest management is based on the principle of depending on insecticides only when insect populations approach damaging levels. Then chemicals are used only at rates to keep the population from exceeding an economic threshold.

"This threshold level, however, must be based on sound research," he emphasizes, "this is one of our main areas of study."

Although the greenbug is the key pest of grain sorghum in the High Plains, much of the chemical application is for control of the corn leaf aphid. Research has shown that this aphid is important in the initial build-up of beneficial insects which later attack the greenbug.

Teetes and his co-workers presently have research underway to determine the efficiency of predation and the influence of these predators on the rates of greenbug increase.

"Conservation of naturally-occurring beneficial arthropods, would logically be very helpful in reducing the chance of outbreaks of secondary pests which so often follow heavy insecticide use," Teetes adds. He explains that the Banks grass mite may represent an example of this type of situation, and is currently being studied by the A&M researchers at Lubbock.

"Pest management schemes should not be limited to single crops," Teetes says. In the South Plains, which is basically a bi-culture of cotton and grain sorghum, researchers are interested in the movement of beneficial insects from grain sorghum to cotton. Grain sorghum is apparently the incubation site for large numbers of beneficial insects which become very important in the management of cotton pests.

"Past experience and present-day pressures make it obvious that total dependence on insecticides for pest control is not wise approach," the scientist concludes.
