Roosevelt in Barkis Mood

Willing to Accept Third Term to Preserve "Policies."

Washington, Nov. 16.—On the highest authority the United Press is able to state:

That President Roosevelt is not a candidate, either active or receptive, for renomination;

That there is only one contingency in which he can be persuaded to accept renomination;

That this contingency is the possible nomination of a "reactionary" by the republican national convention;

That President Roosevelt believes Secretary Taft of all the candidates in the field at present, is best fitted to carry out the policies of the present administration;

President Roosevelt would decline a renomination if tendered him unconditionally, if he thought a candidate would be selected who could be relied upon to carry out policies for which he stands;

That President Roosevelt is not seeking to work up Roosevelt sentiment in the Southern states, or any other state, for furthering his personal ambitions;

That personally President Roosevelt prefers private life after the conclusion of his present term;

That he is willing to lay aside his personal preference in the interest of the country, for the purpose of insuring the perpetuation of his policies if there is no other way to accomplish that purpose.

Boys Who Are Wanted.

A man recently advertised in the New Bedford Standard for a boy who "does not smoke cigarettes or drink, who goes to bed night, and is willing and able to get up in the morning." It reminded the editor of a conversation he had heard on the street.

Said one prosperous marketman to another, "Do you know a good man to go on a delivery wagon?"

"I don't know a good man," was the reply. "So and so wants a job."

"What is he worth?"

"Oh, maybe five or six dollars a week."

Dont want him. I can get plenty of that sort."

To be sure he can. They are mostly in the class which the advertiser would not have. They have some wasteful, demoralizing habit which unfits them for putting their best into their work. They may be willing to go to bed when night comes but are reluctant to get up in the morning. They are especially reluctant to get up for any work which does not suit their fancies; and when they do go about their work, they do it in a half hearted way, with no enthusiasm except for the time to stop. They earn what they are worth—but the employer who wants good work cannot afford to hire even at that.

There is another type of boys who do not have to waste time studying advertisements. The employers who are not willing to pay him for his time, to pay a good price for good work, need not hope to get him. He is up, bright and alert to do the best job he is put to.

He gets a good job, and goes from that into a better, and by and by he and his kind hold all the good jobs.

Keep close watch on the boy of that type. He is going to be the man who will have the handling of affairs.

RAISE THE PRICE.

Advice of Illinois Congressman to Daily Newspapers.

Congressman Snapp in an address delivered before the Illinois Daily Newspapers' association gave the editors some good advice when he said: "You newspaper men have seen the price of everything else advance, but you have hung back and refused to increase the price of your papers. The price of labor in the printing business has advanced twice. The cost of paper has gone up enormously. And you sat still and took the loss meekly.

What you ought to do is to get together and meet the conditions by advancing the price of your product to the public to correspond to the other advances."

Discouraging.
Dr. Johnson complains at the Review man for jabbing at prohibition and Judge Faulk says most of its contents are about Bailey. So there it goes. How can an editor please everybody? K. Lamity Bonner says "a person should read a newspaper to see what the fool editor says."—Athens Review.

One of the most disagreeable features of the present financial situation is that it gives a seemingly good excuse to the dead-beat to stand off his creditors. Many a fellow who never saw the inside of a bank book refuses to pay his debt because he can't draw free on the bank. The business people have the measure of this class, and this bluff will not last long.—Palestine Herald.

Opportunity of Country Journalism.

William H. Fandy in The Circle.

There are approximately 22,500 newspapers in the United States, employing about 200,000 people. Of these persons, 30,000 are classed as journalists—editors and editorial writers.

No wonder, an increasingly large number of young men are looking forward to newspaper work as a life profession. But most of these make the mistake of imagining that the best opportunities are found in work on the big city dailies, and of making it their first ambition to become a reporter on one of these great newspapers.

The most numerous, the most satisfying, and the best-paying positions, however, are on the country newspapers. Go among the force of any great daily, and you will find more than half of them are ambitious to save up money, so they can buy a country newspaper. The constant grind and rush of a daily paper not only wears a man out physically, but also tends to destroy his individuality. The salary of a reporter runs from ten to thirty dollars a week—the average being about twenty dollars. Of course exceptional men get more than that in other professions.

On a country newspaper, especially on a weekly, a man has time to prepare his work, and he has some leisure for other things. There is a much better chance for him to grow and for his individuality to have full sway. Where you hear of one reporter becoming prominent in the nation's affairs, you hear of ten country editors. And the financial returns are more satisfactory in the country. The day of the common joke about the threadbare editor waiting, on a diet of turnips, for some one to bring in a load of wood, has passed.

There are failures in newspaper work, just as there are in law, medicine, or the ministry, but there are fewer editors near the "bread line" than lawyers or doctors. Of course, an editorial failure has a better chance to advertise himself.

The great majority of country editors are up-right, self-respecting, prosperous men. Some of them have incomes greater than the editor-in-chief of many magazines and some great dailies. The former do not work nearly so hard, nor do they have so much expense as the latter. The average country newspaper yields its editor from one thousand to three thousand dollars a year, and there are a great many that pay five thousand dollars—a few possibly more. This amount, when the expense of living in a small town is compared with that of the city, is better than the salary of the city newspaper man. Aside from the financial returns, the life of the country editor is in every way more pleasant. He has regular hours. He usually comes down to the office at eight o'clock, looks over his exchanges, writes a column or two of copy, and then goes out on the streets for an hour or so, with his ear open for news. He has an hour and a half for noon and usually leaves the office at five. If he wants to attend a press association, a political convention, or to go on an excursion, he can usually arrange affairs so the paper will not suffer during his absence.

Moreover, the country editor has a distinct place in the town and community. He is a man of affairs, a political, religious or civic force. A large number of these elected and appointed to state and federal offices are from country newspaper desks. Governor Hoch, of Kansas, has often said that he would rather go down to his country newspaper office in the little town of Marion, and there open his exchanges and write his copy, than to be governor of Kansas. Another country editor refused an important consulate, preferring to run his paper alone, rather than help run the government.

In Which Class Do You Belong?

Two families lived in adjoining houses—neighbors in every sense of the word.

One family lived well—wore good clothes (fine raiment), attended society functions, theatres, and, in truth, enjoyed themselves to the limit of their income.

The other family wore good clothes, but plain and inexpensive, cared little for society, chose only the best plays to attend, and each month deposited a certain amount in a savings account.

A panic came—money was precious, and salaries were reduced.

To which family can you liken your own?

The local newspapers are doing the work which leads to substantial progress. In discussing this subject the Terrell Transcript truthfully remarks that: "Never in the history of the country have the papers devoted so much time and space to the interests of farms and farming as they do now. The reason is easy to find. The people are seeing, as they never did before in all their lives, that the importance of the farming interests is second to none in all of the land. Whenever these interests are all right, the rest of the country is in good condition. It is a good sign to see the importance of agriculture stressed as it is being stressed now."

The paper trust is sheltered behind the tariff to the extent of $6 a ton on wood pulp. This enables these pirates to hold up the publishers of the country annually for millions. Even high tariff republican editors are feeling the clamp of high tariff screws and are urging the president to recommend relief measures to congress. This he has promised to do. The tariff simply permits the trust to successfully exploit the people.—Greenville Herald.

The World Wide Evangelist, a periodical published at Siloam Springs, Ark., in discussing evangelism, takes up the amount of money paid the evangelist. This is an unfavorable subject for the evangelist to discuss. The people are already thinking and even have reached the stage of talking. Better let the subject rest and the people be quiet. Much of the money paid for this purpose and termed a free-will offering, is extracted by the cork screw method.—Henderson News.

Always Was Sick

When a man says he always was sick—troubled with a cough that lasted all winter—what would you think if he should say—he never was sick since using Ballard's Horehound Syrup. Such a man exists. Mr. J. C. Clark, Denver, Colorado, writes: "For years I was troubled with a severe cough that would last all winter. This cough left me in a miserable condition. I tried Ballard's Horehound Syrup and have not had a sick day since. That's what it did for me." Sold by Murchison & Beasley.

Colds and Croup in Children.

"My little girl is subject to colds," says Mrs. Wm. H. Serig, No. 41 Fifth St., Wheeling, W. Va. "Last winter she had a severe spell and a terrible cough but I cured her with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without the aid of a doctor, and my little boy has been prevented many times from having the croup by the timely use of this syrup." This remedy is for sale by Murchison & Beasley.

A Fatal Omelet.

Ignorance of cooking is not often the direct cause of a man's death, but such an instance is related in "The Story of Two Salons." In the time of the French revolution one M. Condorcet, upon whose head as an aristocrat a price was set, sought refuge with a friend, M. Suard, who bade him return at nightfall, when means of escape would be provided. Unhappily Condorcet, being unable to exist without tobacco, went into a tavern to buy some. Still prostrate from fatigue, he thought he would take advantage of this opportunity to get some dinner and ordered an omelet.

"How many eggs do you wish to be used?" inquired the landlord, who had been eying him suspiciously. The innocent Condorcet was at his wits' end. He reflected on the size of the ordinary omelet.

"Twelve," he boldly replied. His fate was sealed. None but an aristocrat could be so ignorant or so extravagant. He was arrested and led away to prison, from which he never emerged.

Mountains.

There used to be held in accordance with Murchison's well known geological views the general theory that mountains were mainly due to cracks which took place in the surface of the earth in remote periods, but this idea is no longer entertained by scientific men. As to the form of mountains, that which is known as table mountain finds the best example, curiously enough, at the Cape of Good Hope, a mountain, it is believed, due not to any action or phenomenon of upheaval, but to the sinking of the surrounding districts or territory. Why these peculiarly defined areas did not sink was owing, it is thought, to the probable fact that the ground under them cooled before the rest of the section, and thus the table mountain had the earlier foundation and has long retained its place. There would always be denudation, however, though proportionate with its surroundings, and therefore, owing to this fact of being higher at the start, it still keeps to its approximate elevation.

Distinguished Paper Hangers.

The paper hanger was not so much of a necessity in the old days as now, writes Miss Kate Sanborn in her book, "Old Time Wall Papers." The family often joined in the task of making the paste, cutting the paper and placing it on the walls. This was not beneath the dignity of George Washington, who, with the assistance of Lafayette, hung on the walls at Mount Vernon paper which he had purchased abroad. The story goes that the good Martha lamented in the presence of Lafayette that she would be unable to get the new paper hung in the banquet room in time for the morrow's ball in honor of the young marquis. There were no men to be found for such work. Lafayette at once pointed out to Mrs. Washington that she had three able-bodied men, at her service—General Washington, Lafayette himself and his aid-de-camp—whereupon the company fell immediately to work, and the paper was hung in time for the ball.

Artful Autograph Fiend.

"One of the most interesting collections of autographs is owned by a man who cultivated the art of kicking in order to secure them," said an autograph expert. "Every signature in the collection was appended to a letter written by some prominent person in reply to a complaint made by the indefatigable kicker. He complained about everything under the sun, to railroad presidents about delays on the road, to public officials about abuses in their systems of managing public interests, to literary men and artists about shortcomings in their work, to actors and singers about some defects in a favorite role, and always his complaints were couched in such virile language as to win consideration and a reply, not from some secretary, but from the celebrity whose autograph he coveted."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

To Find the Horsepower.

A rule for finding horsepower of a pulley is to multiply the circumference of the pulley in feet by the revolutions per minute, and the product thus obtained by the width of the belt in inches, and divide the result by 600. The quotient will be the horsepower which the pulley is capable of transmitting. This rule is founded on the fact that good, ordinary single leather belting, with a tension of fifty-five pounds per inch wide, will require fifty square feet of belt surface passing over the pulley per minute for one horsepower. Fifty square feet per minute are equal to a belt one inch wide running 600 feet per minute.

A Prerogative of the Pulpit.

Dr. Bacon, a New England clergyman of long ago, was reproached by a friend with some pronunciation which was not "according to Webster." Webster lived in his parish, and the doughty old divine was not disposed to be snubbed with the dictionary. "What right has Webster to dictate my pronunciation?" he demanded haughtily. "He is one of my parishioners and ought to get his pronunciation from me and not I from him."

An Unintentional Joke.

An English writer tells the story of his first sixpence, which he earned by an unpremeditated joke. His father had been for twenty-seven years engaged in a suit in chancery and had just gained his cause. The expenses of the suit, however, had swallowed up the entire estate, the residue being merely 8s. 6d. The writer says:

My father ranged the seven sixpences on our breakfast table.

"My boy," said he, "see what comes of going to law in Great Britain! Your mother has told you that I have your suit in chancery?"

"Yes, papa."

"Well, then, look! That is all I get of it," and he pointed grimly at the sixpences.

I opened wide my eyes. "All you get of the whole suit?" I echoed with a puzzled air, convinced that a suit in chancery was composed, as other suits are, of a coat, waistcoat and trousers. "Why, papa, those are only the buttons!"

It was this deplorable joke that earned me my sixpence, for my father, laughing, tossed me one across the table, and I rushed off with it like a dog pelted with a bone.

The Blacksmith's Sleeves.

An aged woman was standing before a beautiful picture of a blacksmith in a local department store. The picture was a remarkable painting and had evoked so much praise that hundreds of visitors thronged around it. The figure was that of a village blacksmith standing at his forge, which was blazing with a light that illuminated the whole room. The woman called to the canvas with several younger women, apparently her children. All stood with rapt attention before the work of art, contemplating the light effects and the beautiful shadows. One of the younger women asked of the elderly one what she thought of the picture.

"Well, it's all right but the sleeves," she replied. "I lived in the country a long time, and I know something that the painter with all his knowin' didn't know. That blacksmith's sleeves are rolled out. Now, they don't wear them that way. A blacksmith always turns his sleeves in so the flyin' sparks won't catch."—Indianapolis News.

A Friend in Need.

Immediately after the earthquake in California in 1906 relief stations were established in San Francisco and Oakland. Supplies poured in from neighboring ranches, other towns and states, but almost all that was sent needed to be cooked before it could be eaten, and of course in many instances homeless wanderers were in immediate need of food. The volunteer cooks did the best they could. They boiled great kettles of soup, caldrons of coffee and oceans of tea, but it was impossible to cook rapidly enough to supply all comers. Late one afternoon when the cooked food supply was running low and a long line of hungry persons still waited to be fed a wagon halted before one of these stations, and a bluff old ranchman addressed the lady in charge.

"Say," said he, "I've brought you 300 dozen of the best eggs in the state, but you won't need to cook them. They're already cooked. I've been boiling eggs since 8 o'clock this morning."

A Show Worth Seeing.

It is now said that President Roosevelt is going to make all the fat admirals climb up a mast to prove their efficiency in seamanship. This ought to bring a big revenue to the government at 25 cents a ticket.—Philadelphia Telegram.

DOCTORS IN GRAND JURY NET.

Two indicted in Iowa for Conspiracy to Force an Independent Physician from a Surgical Case.

Waverly, Ia.—The Bremner county grand jury, which a few weeks ago indicted fourteen members of the county medical association, alleging violation of the anti-trust law, recently reported additional indictments against Dr. W. A. Rohlf and Dr. O. L. Chaffee on the general ground of conspiracy. Their alleged offense was of forcing an independent doctor from a surgical case, in which he as well as one of the accused doctors had been employed, after he had refused to sign the union scale.

Couldn't Discharge Him.

When the jury had filed in for at least the fourth time, with no sign of coming to an agreement in the bribery case, the disgusted judge rose up and said: "I discharge this jury."

At this, one sensitive talesman, stung to the quick by this abrupt and ill-sounding decision, obstinately faced the judge.

"You can't discharge me, Judge!" he retorted.

"Why not?" asked the astonished judge.

"Because," announced the talesman, pointing to the defendant's lawyer, "I'm being paid by that man there!"—Lippincott's.

a more potent remedy in the roots and herbs of the field than was ever produced from drugs. In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers few drugs were used in medicines and Lydia E. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an honest, tried and true remedy of unquestionable therapeutic value. During its record of more than thirty years, its long list of actual cures of those serious ills peculiar to women, entitles Lydia E. OLD SORES FED AND KEPT OPEN BY IMPURITIES IN THE BLOOD

Whenever a sore refuses to heal it is because the blood is not pure and healthy, as it should be, but is infected with poisonous germs or some old blood taint which has corrupted and polluted the circulation. Those most usually afflicted with old sores are persons who have reached or passed middle life. The vitality of the blood and strength of the system have naturally begun to decline, and the poisonous germs which have accumulated because of a sluggish and inactive condition of the system, or some hereditary taint which has hitherto been held in check, now force an outlet on the face, arms, legs or other part of the body. The place grows red and angry, festers and eats into the surrounding tissue until it becomes a chronic and stubborn ulcer, fed and kept open by the impurities with which the blood is saturated. Nothing is more trying and disagreeable than a stubborn, non-healing sore. The very fact that it resists ordinary remedies and treatments is good reason for suspicion; the same germ-producing cancerous ulcers is back of every old sore, and especially is this true if the trouble is an inherited one. Washes, salves, nor indeed anything else, applied directly to the sore, can do any permanent good; neither will removing the sore with caustic plasters or the surgeon's knife make a lasting cure. If every particle of the diseased flesh were taken away another sore would come, because the trouble is in the blood, and the BLOOD CANNOT BE CUT AWAY. The cure must come by a thorough cleansing of the blood. In S. S. S. will be found a remedy for sores and ulcers of every kind. It is an unequalled blood purifier—one that goes directly into the circulation and promptly cleanses it of all poisons and taints. It gets down to the very bottom of the trouble and forces out every trace of impurity and makes a complete and lasting cure. S. S. S. changes the quality of the blood so that instead of feeding the diseased parts with impurities, it nourishes the irritated, inflamed flesh with healthy blood. Then the sore begins to heal, new flesh is formed, all pain and inflammation leaves, the place scabs over, and when S. S. S. has purified the blood the sore is permanently cured. S. S. S. is for sale at all first class drug stores. Write for our special book on sores and ulcers and any other medical advice you desire. We make no charge for the book or advice.

DYSPEPTIC PHILOSOPHY.

The first requisite of a good husband is a good wife.

One foot in the grave is better than two in the same place.

Many a fellow has become all tangled up in a string of lies.

Some women regard a husband mere as a contrasting background.

A man is known by the company he keeps and the friends he gives away.

The average man can forgive almost anything except a friend's success.

A skeptic is a man who always puts mud on the back of a postage stamp.

Passing fame generally leaves a man smaller than ever when he gets over it.

I know a man who is so blunt that he even insists upon writing with a stub pen.

The fellow who is always on pleasure bent is apt sooner or later to be on pleasure broke.

It's all right to stand up for your self provided you are not treading on other people's toes.

It has been noticed that the women who cry at a wedding have all been married themselves.

CREED FOR THE ABOLITION OF POVERTY.

I believe in the abundant supply.

I solemnly resolve to let God use me.

CANE CROP IS SAFE.

FIRST MILL ON THE STATE FARM STARTED SATURDAY.

THE TURPENTINE EXPERIMENT

State Board Finds It Working Satisfactorily—Work of Building State Roads Is Going Ahead.

Austin, Tex.: Superintendent of Penitentiaries Herring, who was here Wednesday at the monthly meeting of the penitentiary board, said investigation had shown that the recent cold weather had done no damage to the sugar cane crop on the State farm. The temperature reached 33 degrees in Brazoria county but this was not cold enough to damage the crop. The first sugar mill on the State farm was started last Saturday, and two mills are now running all the time. There is a fair crop of sugar cane this year, but the crop is not as heavy as it was last year.

Capt. Herring said a careful study is being made of the force of seventy convicts now working in the turpentine forests of San Jacinto county. These are the first convicts to have been worked in these forests, and the letting of seventy convicts was done as an experiment. Capt. Herring says the work so far has been satisfactory.

The board reports that the railroad work is progressing satisfactorily, the road on the farm in Brazoria county having been completed and in operation. The road to connect from Rusk to Palestine is being pushed toward a sawmill, five miles distant from Palestine.

The monthly report of the board shows there were on hand, Oct. 31, 3,550 convicts. There were on hand at the end of the previous month 3,615 convicts. There have been 59 new received, 2 recaptured and 5 returned by sheriffs.

During the month there have been 86 discharged, 25 pardoned, 7 escaped, 8 died, 5 delivered to sheriffs, leaving on hand a total of 3,550.

The convicts are distributed as follows:

State Insane Asylum, 14; contract forces, 1,381; share forces, 339; railroad forces, 209; Harlem State farm, 197; William Clemens State farm, 268; Wynne State farm, 40; Camp Wright, 203; W. Ramsey, 68; Huntsville, 447; Rusk, 408.

SWEET-VOICED SIREN

Cotton Planters Resolve to Turn a Deaf Ear to Cotton Bears.

Lockhart, Tex.: In compliance with instructions received from National and State headquarters, the various Farmers' Unions met on cotton day and passed resolutions, which were unanimously adopted. Among them were the following:

Whereas, There is a strong organized effort being made by the bear cotton speculator to beat down the market,

2. At the time of organization of this union cotton was selling for 14c and 15c and there has been no just cause for the great decline in the price of cotton.

3. We realize that we, the growers of the cotton, will have to make a determined fight and present a solid front.

4. That we are determined to hold until we get the minimum price and hereby do solemnly pledge ourselves to such a course and will reduce the acreage the coming year in order to maintain and secure the minimum price.

5. We request all union farmers and their friends to be not deceived by the silver-tongued appeal of the speculator, but to stand firm, now that victory is almost in sight.
Signed by committee.

VALUE THREE BILLION.

FULL RENDITION LAW SHOULD DOUBLE ASSESSED VALUE.

TAX RATE WOULD BE HALVED

Present Rate of 12 1-2 Cents Would Be Cut to 6 1-4 Cents—Returned From Tour of State.

Austin, Tex.: Capt. W. R. Davis, tax commissioner, who has just returned from a campaign to require full renditions next year, made an interesting statement, Monday to the effect that if the assessors obeyed the new law and operated harmoniously, the total assessed valuations in Texas would be double next year, and that the state ad valorem tax rate would go to 6 1-4c on the $100 valuation. He said that the present values of $1,607,000,000 would easily go to $3,000,000,000, as the increase on the lands would nearly go to that, not to mention the listing and large increases on corporations. It was his assertion that these three and a half millions are needed to meet the appropriation, of which, he said, $1,500,000 would come from liquor and other occupation taxes, leaving $2,000,000 to come from the tax assessments. Therefore, he asserted, only 6 1-4c will be needed on three billions of values, based on 12 1-2c on each $100 of values on present total valuation of $1,607,000,000, or, in round figures, $1,500,000,000. All of this is based on the prospective 1908 valuations.

A Word With Our Patrons.

We would like to remind our friends who are due us on subscription and otherwise that the time is drawing near when our obligations will have to be met and we cannot meet them without the money. It is not the desire of the Courier to push any one, but we have on our books many small accounts that could be met by our patrons and not be felt by them. While they are small these accounts amount to a great deal with the paper and in fact constitute its principal source of revenue. No one realizes more keenly than the publisher of this paper that money matters are tight, and a little help from many sources will mean much in the grand total. Remittances may be made by check or postoffice money order.

For a Model Road.

The commissioners' court will do the right thing if it will take up with the national government the matter of a public highway from the county seat to the Trinity river boundary. Much material will be sent out from Crockett to the government work at Hurricane shoals and the government will be interested in a good road to haul the material over. All Houston county should be interested in any good road movement in the county. The government will send its engineers here if the county will bear a certain part of the expense, the amount we do not know. The amount will be small, when compared with the good that will result from a model road, such as the government is constructing in its demonstration work. The county can well afford to engage in the undertaking and the cost will not be felt by any tax payer.

How to Cure a Cold.

Be as careful as you can you will occasionally take cold, and when you do, get a medicine of known reliability, one that has an established reputation and that is certain to effect a quick cure. Such a medicine is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It has gained a world wide reputation by its remarkable cures of this common ailment, and can always be depended upon. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, aids expectoration, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. During the many years in which it has been in general use we have yet to learn of a single case of cold or attack of the grip having resulted if pneumonia when this remedy was used, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventative of that dangerous disease. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by Murchison & Beasley.

Keep Your Money in Circulation.

A man's money is safer in a bank than it is anywhere else. It is true that banks sometimes fail and people lose their money, but people lose their money on the outside more often than they do by the failure of a bank. If a bank has on deposit $25 for every dollar of its capital, the chances are that a large per cent of the money is out on absolutely good security. But if a run should be made on the bank by every depositor, the bank could not realize on its securities in time to pay all depositors, and the result would be disastrous to both bank and depositors. The sensible course to pursue in times of money stringency is to leave your money in the banks where it can be used, drawing out only what is necessary for personal expenses and legitimate investment. There is no greater enemy to the welfare of the public than the man who takes his money out of circulation during times of dire financial stress and resultant business depression and hoards it. Leave your money where it can circulate and Smith can pay Jones and Jones can pay Brown and Brown can pay Watkins and Watkins pay it back to Smith and thus it returns to where it started. Take it out of circulation and hide it and nobody can pay anybody.

For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. CULBERSON BEING URGED.

Friends Want Him for Democratic Standard Bearer Next Year.

Washington, Nov. 16.—Senator Charles A. Culberson arrived in Washington today for the session, and his presence has revived talk of him as a presidential possibility. The Texas senator, it is generally conceded, will be chosen as the minority leader of the senate. His admirers, who are very numerous here, are confident he will so tactfully and skillfully meet the responsibilities of the position as to win him new friends throughout the country. It was predicted by one of his friends today that with the opportunity for distinction in his conspicuous place as the democratic leader of the senate, the Democratic National convention would turn to him as the man who should be the party's standard bearer in 1908. The Texas members of congress are for him, but he has all the time earnestly deprecated the use of his name in any way by them, yet it is believed that Mr. Culberson, who modestly but firmly parries every effort to persuade him that he is available, can ultimately be brought to the view that he is the only democrat of national reputation who can nearest unite the old faction which began its existence in 1894 and lost the national election of 1896. A well-known Washington correspondent of a New York newspaper, who is familiar with New York politics, and who has just returned from that state, said today, discussing the question:

"The southern people are standing irresolutely in their own light. It is altogether a mistaken notion of southern democrats that no southern man can bring out a full democratic vote of the northern and eastern states.

"Culberson is the very man who could unite the party, especially in New York, and so it would be in every eastern and northern state. If the south is at heart and really wants a southern man, let them take one of national reputation as a patriot and statesman like Culberson. He has been loyal to every democratic ticket. No faction would have the slightest excuse to oppose and no excuse would be sought for the excellent reason that he has gained the respect and admiration of all classes of the democracy everywhere as a progressive democrat. He is possessed of safe and reliable qualities of leadership which he combines with an excellent character and the grace of a most attractive personality. The fault, indeed, will be with the south if it does not take advantage of the opportunity to back so clean and strong a man as Culberson."

ANDREW GETS TIP FROM BEN.

Tillman Says Carnegie Should Import a Few Negroes From Africa.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 16.—Senator Benjamin Tillman, passed through this city this afternoon en route from Trenton, S. C., where he resides.

From an interview he gave out here he is sharpening his pitchfork for Andrew Carnegie on account of some things Mr. Carnegie said at Howard University a few days ago.

Mr. Carnegie is quoted as saying "It is not what we shall do with the negro, but how can we get more of them?"

"I know of no man in America," said Senator Tillman, "better fixed to get more of the negroes than is Carnegie. He has amassed a great fortune through our iniquitous tariff and is financially able to get all of the negroes he wants. He is welcome to them."

"But," continued the senator, "in order that he may fully understand the race I suggest that he import from Africa the black man; then he will have the negro just as we of the South had them when they were first imported to this country. He will see the negro in the original, uncivilized state and may be enabled to understand just how much the South has done for the negro and what we have had to contend with for the last century.

"Yes, I believe we need a national jug bill of some sort," was the senator's view on prohibition. "I intend to introduce one in the senate this fall. I do not believe in prohibiting the importation of liquor for private use, but the federal government ought not to encourage illicit selling.

"Mr. Bryan's announcement regarding his attitude toward the presidential nomination is about the only thing he could say. I hope that Mr. Roosevelt will explain his position as clearly."

SECURITY IS DISAPPOINTED.

Attorney General Davidson is Making No Concessions.

Austin, Texas, Nov. 16.—Assistant Attorney General Lightfoot indicated this evening that the state is not willing to agree to any modification of the restraining order issued by Judge Calhoun in the Fifty-third district court in the Austin anti-trust suit against the Security Oil Company of Beaumont or any of the other corporations which have been sued for penalties.

As has been stated heretofore attorneys representing the Security have been here in consultation with the attorney general's department regarding this matter, but it appears the state will stand firm. It rests with the court to make any modification of the restraining order, and thus far no application has been made for modification, and Mr. Lightfoot said he could not say whether the state will consent to any order proposed, until the state knows what modifications are desired. The city of Beaumont is anxious for some action by the court that will permit the company to resume operation.

As to Security's Action.

Beaumont Journal.

The temporary close down of the Security refinery does not look good to the Journal. To the contrary, it places the concern in the light of attempting to bulldoze or coerce, and that is a policy which makes few friends in Texas. In Beaumont the Security is a very important establishment. It furnishes employment to a large number of men, buys much oil and is in every respect a valuable industry. In closing down, the company can injure the business and industrial interests of this city, but the action will scarcely be noticeable throughout the state. Certainly it will have no effect on the state administration, which, through its attorney general, has filed suit to penalize and oust the company on the theory that it is a subsidiary company of the Standard Oil Company, and that its existence in the state is unlawful. So far as the Journal has been able to discover the only ones in Texas who were disturbed over the existence of the Security Company's refinery were United States Senator Bailey, the Houston Post, and the Fort Worth Record. If the concern was violating the law the offense was not of a character to damage citizens either individually or collectively. There is danger, however, that closing down the refinery in retaliation for the suit filed against it by the state will create an impression that the company was much worse than appearances indicated, and there will come a demand that its business affairs be probed to the minutest detail. It is presumed, however, that the management of the company know their business. Certainly the Journal makes no pretension of being competent to advise them.

GOOD ROADS.

Right now is the time to start the split-log drag. Don't put it off, but get busy.—Bonham Favorite.

What do you think of the importance of good roads now that the fall rains have come?—Corsicana Sun.

It is better to work the roads in dry weather than to "bog down" in them in wet weather.—Austin Statesman.

The present condition of the roads has increased the enthusiasm of the good roads advocate.—Corsicana Sun.

With the poorly kept dirt roads business men necessarily do a lot of loafing during the wet spells.—Beaumont Enterprise.

It's all well enough to have a 75,000 courthouse for the officials, but there's no excuse for having roads that compel stock to go belly-deep in mud after heavy fogs.—Goliad Guard.

In driving over the county roads adjacent to Denison you do not have to be told where the split log drag has been operated and where it has not. The condition of the road is there to speak for itself.—Denison Herald.

The condition of the public roads gives every man an opportunity to kick and this is being done. And perhaps the man who makes the longest and loudest protest has never done or attempted to do a thing that would make the roads better, and wouldn't do anything if a first-class opportunity was presented.—Corsicana Sun.

An Object Lesson.

Have you heard from Virginia? If not you will be interested to know that the people are beginning to apply to politics the good old doctrine that no one can serve two masters.

For some twenty years a distinguished Virginian named Henry T. Wickham had been serving his district in the Virginia state senate. He came from an old family, stood high in society and had a large circle of personal friends. He was, however, general attorney for one of the large railway systems and by his political influence aided his road in matters before the legislature. At least this was charged and a fight was made against his renomination on this ground. The fight was started by Prof. Dodd of Randolph and Macon college, who reviewed Mr. Wickham's record and charged that he served the railroad at the expense of his constituents.

The voters took the matter up and rallied about the standard of a retired naval officer who was brought out against the senator. At the primary the former naval officer won by a decisive majority and the railroad attorney can now devote his entire time to his client and the people of the district can have the undivided services of their senator. In another district the same question was raised against a candidate and the candidate resigned his position with the corporation. Good for Virginia! Her people are entitled to the services of representatives who will represent them.

It is possible that a man may side with the people against a corporate client which pays him many times as much as he receives from the people—POSSIBLE but not probable and it is not safe to take chances on the fidelity of such a man. As a rule, no man can serve two masters and a conscientious man will not try. It is time democrats were investigating the records and business relations of the public officials and candidates who oppose efficient legislation. Virginia has set a good example. It is a valuable object lesson.—Commoner.

R. V. Davidson, the attorney general of Texas, makes a reply to the letter and other statements of Senator Bailey. His letter is full, strong and a sweeping vindication of his work in the attorney general's department. If there ever was any misgivings as to the manner in which he conducted his office these are removed by his statements and evidence given in this letter. He shows from documentary evidence that many of the charges brought against him by Senator Bailey in his letter and open speech at Abilene are perversions of the record. His letter, like everything he gives out, is moderate and modest, yet making his positions clear and strong. He gives Gruett's testimony, taken from the Houston Post's account, touching his agreement not to prosecute Standard Oil, of which he stood charged by Senator Bailey, and the evidence shows Senator Bailey had misconceived the facts, as it would be unfair to suppose he deliberately perverted the facts to injure Mr. Davidson. Davidson holds the confidence of Texans, and the little vain charges will not destroy that confidence, till these charges are supported by better evidence than has yet been produced.—Rusk County News.

The Waco Tribune has felt the effect of the high prices of all material which go into the making of a newspaper, and it says: "The expense of printing a newspaper in Waco is practically double what it was twelve years ago, when the Tribune began publication. The price of white paper has gone up steadily for the last eight months and continues to rise. That is just one item of many. The price of everything else has gone up, too. We do not expect to consult any other publication as to what he will do, for this is a matter every newspaper must decide for itself, but on and after Jan. 1, proximo, we propose to charge $1.50 instead of $1 per year for the Waco Tribune."

JOKE ON GOVERNOR.

He is Being Sued for the Price of Two Dogs By a Bosque County Boy.

Hico Review.

At the recent Bosque county fair at Meridian, Governor Thomas M. Campbell was present. At the end of the procession of live stock walked two boys leading two specimens of the canine race whose stock was so far removed from a pedigree that a common cur like would not claim relation therewith. It followed, however, that the proud boy possessors of these objects were accosted by a practical joker, who inquired if the animals were for sale, and being told that they were, he pointed to Governor Campbell, saying: "He is here to buy one hundred dogs for the state; ask him a stiff price, and you'll get it." The boys accosted the governor, asking him if he wanted to buy the dogs, and on being asked the price, was told $100, and were told by the official to send them to Austin. The governor returned to the Capital City the next day, and imagine his surprise to receive by express C. O. D. two dogs. He returned them to the capital of Bosque, where they were again shipped to Austin. The latest developments are a lawsuit for $100 for the dogs, with many witnesses to the fact that the governor instructed the boys to send the dogs to Austin. And thus a joke is ended in a $100 hole in the governor's pocket, two homeless hounds, two happy urchins and a Smart Aleck laughing in his sleeve.

End of Stump Speech Blackguardism

Waco Tribune.

One thing Senator Bailey will never again do, and that is to attack and abuse a man while he (Bailey) is making a public speech. That prediction can be made with confidence. It will be a logical result of the Bailey-Crawford episode—and we here say that the Tribune does not believe Senator Bailey lacks physical courage and feared to meet Col. Crawford. We believe the senator's friends persuaded him to refrain from further action in the matter, and he took their advice. It was the best, too. Nobody wanted Bailey to kill or be killed by Crawford. Either termination would have been deplorable. But it may be believed that Senator Bailey now understands fully that he went too far in making such a scathing charge against Crawford, or against any man of good repute, unless prepared to prove it. The limit may be reached. And when Bailey declined to make it a personal matter with Crawford—and we do not believe he was afraid to do so—be right then put himself in a position where he can not, again, make personal remarks about men unless he expects to follow up the talk with proof or fight. Nobody knows this better than the senator and the result will be apparent. In time calm public opinion will declare that all things considered it was best that a personal encounter between Bailey and Crawford did not ensue.

Thanksgiving Service.

The Thanksgiving Service will be held at the Methodist Church on Nov. 28th, at 10:30 A. M. Rev. J. W. Downs expects to be absent, and has requested the undersigned to preach the Thanksgiving Sermon. It is hoped that pastor of the Baptist Church will arrive in time to take part in the service. It is hoped that the merchants and other business men will close their stores and offices and attend the services.

S. F. Tenny.
