That Public Library Question

Again Under Discussion—Mr. King
Contends for Auditorium in Connection With Library.

I noticed in last week's issue of the Houston County Times that the editor has considerable to say with reference to a public library for Crockett, and among some of the assertions made by him are:

"Public Library is Assured—Andrew Carnegie Offers Crockett $9,000.00."

"We have the unhampered offer of $9,000 for our library—what reason have we for not accepting it?"

"There is no possibility of our getting the library in this generation any other way."

In connection with the foregoing statements, I think the editor of the Times should have told the public that Mr. Carnegie's proposition to give $9,000.00 was conditioned that the city of Crockett furnish a suitable lot and obligate itself to contribute 10 per cent annually of the amount donated by him to maintain the building, which would amount to $900.00 per annum, or $75.00 per month. I think he should have also told the public that Mr. Carnegie's proposition carried with it a number of rules and conditions with reference to this building and the way it should be conducted and maintained after being built, and must bear his name, and have also told the public that it would be necessary to get the consent of the ladies of the Shakespeare Club to transfer their lot to the city, and also get the city council's consent to accept Mr. Carnegie's offer; and if he had made some investigations he would have found that there is some doubt about the city being in a position to accept Mr. Carnegie's offer on account of its financial condition, and further, I am of the opinion that some members of the Shakespeare Club are very much opposed to turning their lot over to the city without a thorough understanding of the Carnegie plan, and not then unless an auditorium can be had in connection with the library. They think the town is as much in need of an auditorium as a public library, and think the lot they have secured too valuable to turn over to the city for a one-story Carnegie library, which would have to be maintained by the city at an expense of $75.00 per month.

Now, it occurs to me that before we reach the conclusion that a public library is assured for Crockett, we should see first if the city is in position to accept Mr. Carnegie's offer.

Second, I think the ladies of the Shakespeare Club should be furnished with full information with reference to the conditions and rules required by Mr. Carnegie with reference to the erection of this building and its operation after erected. Also see if arrangements can be made with Mr. Carnegie for the citizens to supplement his donation with an amount sufficient to erect a two-story building and have an auditorium in connection with the library, and if this could be done, would the use of the building be subject to the restrictions ordinarily made by Mr. Carnegie.

In making the foregoing suggestions I do not wish to be understood as opposing the acceptance of Mr. Carnegie's $9,000.00, but I think before accepting it the public should be made thoroughly familiar with his proposition and the ability of the city of Crockett to accept his offer and just what kind of building we are to have. I do not like Editor Payne's assertion, "There is no possibility of our getting the library in this generation any other way." I think this is a reflection on our citizenship. If a few ladies of our town can pay for a valuable lot within less than two years without a business man in Crockett being asked for a donation larger than $1.00, does it not look reasonable that the business men of this town could erect a building even if we are not in position to accept Mr. Carnegie's handsome donation? Mr. Payne's comments all along on this Carnegie proposition remind me of a statement I recently heard made by an old gray haired man. He said: "When I was a boy, if a young man should want an education he would begin to think how he could earn the money to pay for his education, but such was not the case in this day and time; the average young man of today, if he wanted to go off to college, would look around for some rich uncle or some one else to give him the money to go on." While, as above stated, I am not opposing the Carnegie plan, I am opposed to the idea that it is the only possible way for Crockett to get a public library and an auditorium in this generation.

G. Q. King.

Generous and Polite Man.

The generous and polite man has a pleasant recognition and cheerful word for all he meets. He scatters sunbeams wherever he goes. He paves the path of others with smiles. He makes society seem genial and the world delightful to those who else find them cold, selfish and forlorn. And what he gives is but a tithe of what he receives. Be sociable, then, wherever you go, and wrap your lightest words in tones that are sweet and a spirit that is genial.—Waco News.

The quicker a cold is gotten rid of the less the danger from pneumonia and other serious diseases. Mr. B. W. L. Hall, of Waverly, Va., says: "I firmly believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be absolutely the best preparation on the market for colds. I have recommended it to my friends and they all agree with me." For sale by all dealers.

FIRE AND FREEZE COSTLY TO STATE
Will Require $400,000 to Replace Huntsville Buildings and Machinery—Cane Crop Damaged.

Huntsville, Texas, Dec. 5.—In the cold gray dawn of the morning, after yesterday's fire that wiped out $300,000 worth of penitentiary property, the walls today present a picture of desolation. The main factory buildings are a total loss. Bookkeepers worked far into the night on the state books and presented the total of losses in figures to the penitentiary board this morning. In physical property of every description the loss is $291,420, without a penny of insurance.

STATEMENT BY THE BOARD.

"The fire is the most deplorable calamity that could have happened to the state penitentiary system, especially at this time," was the comment of Ben Cabell, chairman of the penitentiary board, after a conference with Robert Brahan and Louis W. Tittle, the other members of the board. A loss of from $250,000 to $500,000 on the cane crop made certain by the weather, coupled with the loss by fire, has badly crippled the penitentiary system, financially.

"We can not announce any plans until we have had time to go over the loss in detail and until after we have the opportunity to confer with Governor Colquitt. In fact, we have no plans at the present time," was the statement issued by the board.

There are 462 men within the Huntsville walls, and the 147 who were in the factories will be distributed among the state farms to assist with the cane crop.

With the completion of the cane crop in thirty days, however, the commissioners will be up against the proposition of finding work for the men returned to the walls from the outlying farms.

FIRE CAUSED BY ROPE.

A little piece of manila rope, according to the penitentiary engineer, caused yesterday's fire. This little piece, working about a shafting, jumped from its groove in the pulley, the friction resulting causing a spark that leaped to some cotton waste. In a moment the old oil-soaked engine house was aflame and flames had jumped to the cotton factory nearby. With the shrieking of the penitentiary fire whistle, the prisoners within immediately formed into fire lines, in which they had been instructed, and, with the aid of citizens of Huntsville, headed by the mayor and sheriff, jumped to the work of saving as much of the property as possible.

HEROISM OF THE PRISONERS.

Not a single prisoner attempted to escape. Guards on the walls were doubled, but the men seemed to have in mind only the battle with the flames. They vied with each other in seeing who could do the most work and took chances that caused the spectators to thrill in apprehension. Every one of the men saved his own tools, many of them risking their lives to do so. At the end of four hours' stubborn fighting the fire was under control. A lucky turn of the wind and heavy charges of dynamite aided the checking of the conflagration, and by 5 o'clock the danger was past. The ruins will burn for days, and a double guard was thrown about the burned buildings to prevent further damage from flying sparks.

By nightfall the men had settled back in their daily routine and but for the smoking ruins one could not tell today that disaster had yesterday visited the penitentiary. The cell-houses and dining halls remain intact and the routine life of the men within will not be disturbed.

Yesterday's fire is the fourth that the Huntsville penitentiary has suffered, according to Commissioner Brahan. In 1879 a large storehouse was destroyed. In 1898 the administration buildings were reduced to ruins. In 1900 the machine shops and wagon shops burned.

CHRISTMAS TURKEYS SAVED.

There is great rejoicing among the men over the quick-witted action of one of their number, an old negro. In a little pen near the center of the burning buildings, arranged about a hollow square, were 100 turkeys, being fattened for the Christmas dinner. While burning brands were flying in every direction and with walls crumbling at his feet, the old negro covered his head with a bandana, rushed to the pen and drove the Christmas dinner triumphantly to safety.

FIRE AT HUNTSVILLE
BURNS HALF OF PRISON

Manufacturing Portion is Reported to be in Ruins as Result of Blaze.
No Lives Reported Lost.

Huntsville, Tex., Dec. 4.—One of the worst penitentiary fires in the history of the state broke out here at 11 o'clock today. Fully half the prison has been destroyed in two hours, the water supply was practically exhausted and the entire town was in danger. Little wind was blowing.

There was no loss of life during the early hours of the fire.

A message at 12:30 this afternoon says the entire manufacturing portion of the prison is in ruins. That everything has gone except the administration building where the officials reside and the actual cells of the convicts. Only about 200 were within the walls when the fire started, the others having been sent to the fields early in the morning. Reports as to the loss of life vary. The financial loss to the state will be enormous, it is said, as no insurance was carried.

"Best On Earth."

This is the verdict of R. J. Howell, Tracy, O., who bought Eoley's Honey and Tar Compound for his wife. "Her case was the worst I have ever seen, and looked like a sure case of consumption. Her lungs were sore and she coughed almost incessantly and her voice was hoarse and weak. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound brought relief at once and less than three bottles effected a complete cure." Boycotting Mexican Papers.

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 27.—Charging that he had been ruined by the persecutions of the Mexican government because he opposed the election and the policies of Madero, Ernesto T. Simondetti of Mexico City, editor and proprietor of El Diario, will appeal to Washington for protection and damages. He is an American citizen.

In importance as a daily morning newspaper, El Diario ranked along with El Imparcial, and was on a very profitable basis. During the revolution it was bitterly opposed to Madero. After his success at the head of the army it opposed his election as president, advocating the retention of Provisional President de la Barra in the office.

Charges, which it is claimed were without foundation, were trumped up against Simondetti, attempts were made to suppress his paper, and in other ways he was persecuted. Fearing for his personal safety, he fled to San Antonio. His wife remained behind in an effort to secure for her husband justice, but despairing of this, she has joined him here, and the two will proceed to Washington, where the case will be laid before the department of state and put in the proper diplomatic channels. The persecutions of the Mexican government have cost Simondetti many thousands of dollars, as he had his entire fortune invested in El Diario.

He says that the so-called freedom of the press is a farce and that there is no hope for permanent peace and progress under Madero. He is of the opinion that conditions will become so bad that the United States will have to intervene, unless some man much stronger than Madero comes to the front to solve the various questions confronting the Mexican government.

TIME TO ACT.

Don't Wait for the Fatal
Stages of Kidney Illness.
Profit by Crockett People's Experiences.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headaches and dizzy spells are common early symptoms of kidney disorders. Its an error to neglect these ills. The attacks may pass off for a time but return with greater intensity. If there are symptoms of dropsy—puffy swellings below the eyes, bloating of limbs and ankles, or any part of the body, don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and keep up the treatment until the kidneys are well, when your old time health and vigor will return. Cures in Crockett prove the effectiveness of this great kidney remedy.

J. R. Bennett, of Crockett, Texas, says: "At times my kidneys did not do their work properly and my back ached so badly that I could scarcely straighten. When suffering in that way I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, and procured a box at I. W. Sweet's drug store. I had taken only about half the contents before my trouble disappeared and two months have since passed without any symptom of its return."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

The Power of Home.

The welfare of the State depends absolutely upon whether or not the average family, the average man and woman and their children, represent the kind of citizenship fit for the foundation of a great nation; and if we fail to appreciate this, we fail to appreciate the root of morality upon which all healthy civilization is based.

There are certain old truths which will be true as long as this world endures, and which no amount of progress can alter. One of these is the truth that the primary duty of the husband is to be the home-maker, the bread-winner for his wife and children, and that the primary duty of the woman is to be the helpmeet, the housewife and mother. The woman should have ample educational advantages, but, save in exceptional cases, the man must be, and she need not be, and generally ought not to be, trained for a life long career as the family bread-winner; and, therefore, after a certain point, the training of the two must normally be different, because the duties of the two are normally different. This does not mean inequality of function, but it does mean that formally there must be dissimilarity of function. On the whole, I think the duty of the woman the more important, the more difficult and the more honorable of the two; on the whole, I respect the woman who does her duty even more than I respect the man who does his.

No ordinary work done by a man is either as hard or as responsible as the work of a woman who is bringing up a family of small children; for upon her, time and strength demands are made, not only every hour of the day, but often every hour of the night. She may have to get up night after night to take care of a sick child, and yet must by day continue to do all her household duties as well; and if the family means are scant, she must usually enjoy even her rare holidays taking her whole brood of children with her. The birth pangs make all men the debtors of all women. Above all, our sympathy and regard are due to the struggling wives among those whom Abraham Lincoln called the plain people, and whom he so loved and trusted; for the lives of these women are often lived on the lonely heights of quiet, self-sacrificing heroism.

Of course there are exceptional men and exceptional women, but I am speaking of the average citizens, the average men and women who make up the nation.

Into the woman's keeping is committed the destiny of the generations to come after us. In bringing up children mothers must remember that, while it is essential to be loving and tender, it is no less essential to be wise and firm. Foolishness and affection must not be treated as interchangeable terms; and, besides training your sons and daughters in the softer and milder virtues, you must seek to give them those stern and hardy qualities which in after life they will surely need. Some children will go wrong in spite of the best training; and some will go right even when their surroundings are most un-

The Murchison-Beasley Drug Company

New Horse Feed

FOR YEARS our management has realized the enormous money drain on the county because of the necessity of shipping in feed stuffs and sending the money out which never returns, and has been experimenting and figuring on different feed propositions to the end that part of this money may be kept at home and handed around among our citizens.

One year ago we began putting up in a small way a combination of crushed whole corn, that is, shuck, cob and grain, combined in such a manner with cotton seed meal as to make a feed about ONE-FOURTH MORE VALUABLE than pure corn chops. Some would wonder at the increased value in this feed over corn chops, but when they know that pure corn chop contains ONLY ABOUT 13% PROTEIN AND FAT, WHILE COTTON SEED MEAL CONTAINS 51 TO 55% PROTEIN AND FAT, OR ABOUT FIVE TIMES STRONGER THAN CORN, one can readily see that a mixture of meal and this whole corn chop will easily increase the feed value over straight corn chop in proportion as meal is added. Experimenting along this line for one year, our manager feeding it to his own stock, also some of the largest feeders in Houston county feeding it, we have been able to demonstrate that it is better, much cheaper and much more healthful than pure corn chops. Some of the ablest stockmen have demonstrated that cotton seed meal aids the peristaltic movement in the horse better than any other feed known.

The new feed we are offering avoids very largely the danger in colic and other such ailments caused by straight corn chop ration. Any animal, from a shaved tail mule to Lou Dillon, will do well on this new ration. It runs about one-fourth better value than pure corn chops, and is sold at a less price.

Ask Your Merchant for the Davy Crockett Horse Feed.

If he has it not in stock, buy it from us direct. We are also putting up a special feed for oxen composed of 66% cotton seed hulls, 17% cotton seed meal and 17% whole corn chop, and Davy Crockett mixed feed for milch cows composed of hulls and meal ready mixed, 17% meal and 83% hulls.

Remember we are making the best fertilizer on earth. If there are those in the county so unfortunately constituted that they believe home institutions cannot turn out as good products or better than those shipped from a mysterious beyond, we feel sorry for them, and only ask that you think and read up a little. Come to see us and we will tell you more about what we are doing for the good of Houston county.

Very Respectfully

fortunate; nevertheless, an immense amount depends upon the family training. If mothers, through weakness, bring up sons to be selfish and to think only of themselves, they will be responsible for much sadness among the women who are to be their wives in the future.

There are many good people who are denied the supreme blessing of children, and for these we have the respect and sympathy always due to those who, from no fault of their own, are denied any of the other great blessings of life. But the man or woman who deliberately foregoes these blessings, whether from viciousness, coldness, shallow-heartedness, self-indulgence or mere failure to appreciate aright the difference between the all-important and unimportant—why, such a creature merits the contempt as hearty as any visited upon the soldier who runs away in battle, or upon the man who refuses to work for the support of those dependent upon him, and who, though able-bodied, is yet content to eat in idleness the bread which others provide.—Theodore Roosevelt in Home Herald.

Why It Pays to Buy Advertised Goods

When you buy goods of a man who advertises, you can always count on getting the worth of your money for several reasons, two of which we give here:

FIRST:—No man who charges exorbitant prices for his merchandise is going to turn on the light that newspaper advertising gives. It is the man who believes that he can sell you goods at a saving that will carry the message to you through your local paper. And ninety-nine times out of a hundred he will back up his advertised statements.

SECOND:—When you buy goods of an advertiser, you can always depend upon the quality, for that man could not afford to advertise an inferior article. His merchandise is always new, because his stock does not lie on his shelves until it is worn out or out of date.

It will always pay you to buy goods from Courier advertisers.

WASTED ELOQUENCE.

His One Great Speech Was Wholly Lost on President Cleveland.

Colonel Franklin Pierce Morgan of Washington and New York never made but one great speech, and the story of it is pathetic. His audience was Grover Cleveland, then president of the United States, and his purpose was to secure a pardon for a murderer named O'Neil, in whom the colonel had become interested.

"I'll never forget that day," said the colonel in telling about the incident. "I had told Dan Lamont the day before that I intended to ask Cleveland to pardon O'Neil, who was a creature of the dark places at times, but a pretty good fellow at that. Cleveland had taken the precaution to send to the department of justice and get the papers in the case.

"I got up early the next morning, had a massage and was feeling tiptop. I got in to see Cleveland, and I spoke twenty minutes. Never in my life, before or since, have I been as eloquent as I was pleading for that fellow O'Neil. The end of every sentence I uttered brushed the edges off a cloud. I concluded my argument confident that I had swept the president off his feet.

"Mr. Morgan," he said, "is that all you have to say on behalf of your friend?"

"Mind you, he said 'friend.'"

"Yes, Mr. President," I said, "I think that's all."

"Mr. Morgan," he replied, "never as long as I am in the White House shall that consummate scoundrel—consummate scoundrel, mind you—get out of the penitentiary."

"What's the use of eloquence, anyhow?" concluded the colonel.—Buffalo Express.

MADDENED THE BEAR.

Ingenious Trap That Was Formerly Used by the Mexicans.

The Mexicans in California had an ingenious method of trapping bears before the advent of the Yankees brought modern firearms into the region. A piece of meat was nailed to the stout horizontal limb of an oak tree. From a limb five or six feet above a rope was suspended, to the end of which a large stone was made fast so that it hung about six inches above and a trifle nearer the trunk than the meat on the lower limb.

When a bear smelled the meat from afar he would climb up the tree and make his way to the bait. In doing so he would push the stone pendulum to one side. Just as he was about to fasten his teeth in the meat the stone would swing back and bang his head. This would arouse the anger of the bear, and he would give the stone a sweep of his paw which would send it swinging farther out. The consequence was a harder bang and more anger. The more he struck the stone the harder he would be hit in return, until from ferocious anger he would lose his caution and attack the pendulum with all his vigor. One powerful sweep, then bang, and bruin would be tumbled out of the tree to the rocks below, where, disabled by his fall, he would be at the mercy of those who set the trap whenever they chose to take him.

THE HANDY MAN.

His Job of Varnishing the Door Was Not a Howling Success.

Mr. Brewster thought his front door looked as though a coat of varnish would do it no harm and resolved to do it himself to save the expense of a painter.

Finding an old "golden strup" tin in the yard, he went off to the shop for some "best oak varnish." He placed it in the pantry for the night and was up early next morning and by half past 12 had got the door finished.

"I don't like it now it's done," he said to his wife.

"It's bad varnish," replied she. "He's sold you the wrong sort of stuff."

He thought so, too, and went back to the shop, taking what was left with him.

"This is funny varnish you sold me," said he. "It's dull, sticky stuff."

After examining it the shopman said: "This is not what I sold you. This is strup!"

It then dawned on him that he had got hold of the wrong tin, and he went back home to explain to his wife, who at once said: "Good gracious James! And I've made the pudding with the other tinful!" Then, after a moment's pause, "You'll dine today on roast mutton and varnish pudding!"—Pearson's Weekly.

The Gallery Gods' Applause.

Lawrence Barrett once told of a conversation he had with Edwin Booth. The latter had been congratulated upon an ovation given him by a crowded house on the opening night of an engagement. "The sweetest music to my ears," said the great tragedian, "is the shouting of the boys in the gallery. I know they are not applauding because I have a reputation or because they wish to make a display. They simply give vent to their natural enthusiasm.

When they shout I know that I am giving a good performance. As for the parrot, it may clap its hands out of politeness. A dramatic critic who had certain notions as to how a line should be read will applaud if I read it his way; otherwise he will remain quiet. I can never analyze the applause of the front rows, but the gallery is sincere in its likes or dislikes."

Shakespeare's Education.

Shakespeare could not have been an educated man, that is, in the academic sense of the word, for he was a mere youth when he went to London from Stratford and had had, up to that time, only such mental training as he could pick up in the schools of his native town. It nowhere appears that he attended school after leaving Stratford. And yet, as Matthew Arnold says, he lived during his London residence "in a current of ideas in the highest degree animating and nourishing to the creative faculty in a society permeated by fresh thought, intelligent and alive." And he used not only the ideas which he imbibed as they floated around him, but all the learning he could pick up without neglecting his calling.—New York American.

Drawing the Disease Out.

The Chinese have a curious custom of trying to cure a sick man. A friend of the patient obtains a straight branch with a few leaves and twigs at the end. On this he hangs a mirror of polished steel, and under that one of the sick man's coats. Then he goes for a short walk, a priest in the meantime performing a ceremony. The coat, being carried in this way, is supposed to draw the disease from the sufferer.

Just So.

"He doesn't really love you. He's after your money."

"But if his love were not genuine how could he put so much fervor into his wooing?"

"Oh, a man can dig up considerable fervor when he has to marry money or go to work."—Exchange.

Inside Information.

"Dear sir," wrote the man who owed his tailor and had received a letter asking for payment of the bill, "your letter was extremely impertinent, and I return it to you unopened."

When the Guitar Arrived.

The advent of the English guitar in the eighteenth century caused the disappearance of bandoreas, polliphants and similar wire strung instruments, or, rather, it supplanted them, for, owing to the use of fingers, the English guitar, though smaller, could be used for accompanying the voice as well as for solo performances. The instrument, which had a decorative appearance, is frequently depicted in the portraiture of the eighteenth century. It was made in various sizes, two of the smaller "to be managed by young ladies from seven to ten years of age, the other by ladies of ten and upward."

Fish Delusions.

There are two popular delusions about fish—one that they cannot live out of water and the other that they can live in any pure water, the food supply taking care of itself. As a matter of fact, there are fish in Africa which, having to exist in absolutely dry rivers for a portion of the year, have developed lungs, while in many an amateur's aquarium fish cannot live in the water provided owing to lack of food.

Suspicious.

"Very suspicious man, they say." "Very. Bought a dictionary last week, and now he's counting the words to see if it contains as many as the publishers claim."

True Courage.

True courage has so little to do with anger that there lies always the strongest suspicion against it where this passion is highest. True courage is cool and calm.

Cheerful.

"She's of a very cheerful disposition, isn't she?" "Yes, indeed. She even sings while washing dishes."—Detroit Free Press.

There are few things reason can discover with so much certainty and ease as its own insufficiency.—Collier.

Shapely Swedes.

The Swedes are probably the tallest people in Europe and have on the whole erect, handsome figures. To some extent this advantage is due to physical exercise, for Swedish gymnastics are compulsory in the elementary schools, and the system is much used in other schools and colleges.—London Telegraph.

Not Hail, but Farewell.

RAILWAY DETECTIVES.

They Trace Those Who Steal or Destroy Property of the Road.

The secret service is a hard game to tackle, but, like all kinds of work, it has its easy jobs. One of them is that of special agent for a railroad. The agent is supposed to trace those who steal or destroy railroad property.

When he is notified that a trunk or other article of baggage is missing he finds out by its number from where it was sent and follows it on the books to the last station where it has been checked. Then he notifies the police in the vicinity between the station where the baggage was last checked and the station where it should have been checked. The police get busy, and probably the property is soon recovered and the thieves put in jail. The baggage is then turned over to the special agent, who notifies the railroad official that he has recovered the stolen goods.

If a freight car is robbed the special agent pursues the same tactics. He finds out where the car was last sealed and the place where the car was reported as having its seal broken. The police or constables in the country between the two points are notified, and if they fail to capture the robbers the railroad may never hear again of the stolen goods. Wherever destruction has occurred to railroad property it is usually police officers who trace and arrest those guilty.

However, the special agent must be a keen judge of human nature and with sufficient tact to make himself popular with the police officers in his territory. Usually he is an old time detective and is well enough acquainted with detectives and police throughout the country to obtain results where an amateur would fail.

THE JUDGE ERRED.

His Mistake Clearly Explained by the Old Colored Woman.

The judge of the juvenile court, leaning forward in his chair, looked searchingly from the discreet and very ragged plectaninny before his desk to the ample and solicitous form of the culprit's mother. "Why do you send him to the railroad yards to pick up coal?" demanded his honor. "You know it is against the law to send your child where he will be in jeopardy of his life."

"Deed, jedge, I doesn't send 'im. I nebber has sent 'im, 'deed'—"

"Doesn't he bring home the coal?" interrupted the judge impatiently.

"But, jedge, I whips 'im, jedge, ebry time he brings it. I whips de little rapscallion till he cayn't set, 'deed I does'."

The careful disciplinarian turned her broad, shiny countenance reprovingly upon her, undisturbed offspring, but kept a conciliatory eye for the judge.

"You burn the coal he brings, do you not?" persisted the judge.

"Burns it—burns it—cose I burns it. W'y, jedge, I has to git it out ob de way."

"Why don't you send him back with it?" His honor smiled insinuatingly as he rasped out the question.

"Send 'im back, jedge!" exclaimed the woman, throwing up her hands in a gesture of astonishment. "Send 'im back! W'y, jedge, ain't yo' jest done been told me I didn't oughter send my chile to no sech danger'some and jeopardous place?"—Youth's Companion.

W. C. McAlister of Leon county, 70 years old and a widower 30 years, could stand the pressure no longer, and on Tuesday afternoon, in the presence of a few county officials and others, Justice of the Peace E. M. Callier officiating, was married to Mrs. Melissa Spencer of Trinity county, said to be 60 years of age. Mr. McAlister left his home county and went into the neighboring county of Trinity to find his wife, but came into the good county of Houston to have the ceremony performed. If he could not marry a Houston county woman he did the next best thing and had the ceremony performed here, evidently an act of ripe judgment.

The Courier regrets to learn of the death of its good friend and the county's good citizen, Mr. Silas Douglass, which occurred at his home at Arbor on Wednesday night of last week. Mr. Douglass died of pneumonia, and his wife was seriously ill at the same time of the same malady. Mr. Douglass was past middle life, but was not considered an old man. He was the father of several children and the funeral was postponed until Friday in order to give them an opportunity to come from other sections and attend the obsequies. For a number of years he had conducted a store at Arbor, enjoying a good patronage and the confidence of his neighbors. He was a good man and many expressions of regret are heard at his passing away.

A local newspaper cannot survive on subscription patronage. The subscription price of a local daily is 50 cents a month, and for a weekly it is a dollar a year. These were the prices 10 and 20 years ago when paper was 25 per cent cheaper and when labor and machinery were 50 per cent cheaper than now. Nearly everything is higher, yet subscription prices of newspapers remain at the same old figures. Nowadays the local paper which is not liberally patronized cannot survive. It is the opinion of many that advertisements crowd out reading matter and that the subscriber is that much the loser. But this opinion is a wrong one. If there were no advertisements there would be no reading matter—there would be no local paper.—Tyler Courier-Times.

Mrs. L. W. Cooper Dead.

Wednesday morning at 8:15 o'clock, at the Cooper home in this city, occurred the death of Mrs. Rhoda A. Cooper, announcement of whose prolonged illness has been heretofore made. This good woman was born in Upson county, Ga., on March 10, 1825, and had she lived until that day in March, 1912, would have been 87 years old. Mrs. Cooper was married to Judge L. W. Cooper on March 26, 1845. She came from Griffin, Ga., to Crockett, arriving here November 18, 1856. She was the mother of Mrs. W. B. Wall and Mrs. H. W. Moore of this city, of Dr. J. L. Cooper of Fort Worth and of Judge L. N. Cooper of Hillsboro. Mrs. Cooper had lived a faithful Christian life since early girlhood, having been converted at the age of seven, when she became a member of the Methodist church. At the bedside during her last days on earth were three of her children—Mrs. Wall, Mrs. Moore and Judge Cooper. Dr. Cooper arrived from Fort Worth Thursday morning to attend the obsequies. The services were from the residence Thursday afternoon, interment following in Glenwood cemetery.

Miss Blair's Recital.

For the benefit of the new Baptist church building fund, Miss Willie Park Blair, a talented young lady of Tyler now making her home in this city, gave a recital at the court house Monday evening. Miss Blair was assisted by Mrs. Louis Durr of Tyler as pianist, and besides accompanying Miss Blair, Mrs. Durr gave some beautiful piano solos that were repeatedly encored. Mrs. J. Pinckney Hail gave a vocal solo in her usual pleasing manner. Miss Blair's singing received encore after encore, evidence of the high appreciation in which she is held by her Crockett friends. Her singing was of a high order, much of it difficult of rendition, but given by Miss Blair in an easy manner that was thoroughly enjoyed by her audience. Besides possessing an abundance of natural talent, she has studied under some of the best instructors in New York, and much pleasure is always in store for the audience so fortunate as to be permitted to hear her sing.

Heavy Losses on Cane Crop.

Between $250,000 and $500,000, likely nearer the latter figure, will be lost by the state of Texas through weather damage to the cane crop throughout the belt. The members of the board who have charge of harvesting the crop expected to realize approximately $750,000 from the sugar product. Commissioner Robert Brahan, who returned yesterday from a trip of inspection to every farm where the state owns cane, believes less than half that sum will be received for the crop.

Cane not in windrows has been frozen. If the weather remains cool the heavier loss will be averted. Should the weather take a warm turn, however, the cane will rot on the ground, as would a banana after it had been frozen and then allowed to thaw.

The cane owned by the state and the estimate of its condition made by Mr. Brahan is as follows:

Ramsey State Farm—1054 acres in cane, averaging 27 tons to the acre, and which has been sold at $3; 50 to 75 per cent loss.

Trammel Share Farm—600 acres in cane in which the state owns one-half interest. It will average 35 tons to the acre and the state's share had been sold for $3.50; 50 per cent loss.

Clemens State Farm—2800 acres in cane, averaging 25 tons to the
